LILLIAN EAGLESON

PROVIDENCE — Lillian Eagleson, 94, of 69 Fair St., Warwick, died Nov. 30 at the Charlesgate Manor Nursing Center in Providence. She was the wife of the late Andrew Eagleson. Born in Providence, she was the daughter of the late Jacob and Sarah (Ronberg) Cohen.

She worked as a manager at Lerner’s Clothing Store in Providence. She retired many years ago.

She is survived by several nieces and nephews. She was a sister of the late Samuel A. Cohen, Max A. Cohen, Rose Fabricant and Elsie Berger.

Graveside services were held on Dec. 4 at Swan Point Cemetery in Providence. Arrangements were by the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel, 458 Hope St., Providence.
GEORGE EASTWOOD, 62, of Vine Street, head of a customer-returns department at Hasbro for many years before he retired in 1995, died Thursday at Oakhill Nursing and Rehabilitation Center.

A lifelong Pawtucket resident, he was a son of the late Yvonne M. and George A. Eastwood.

Mr. Eastwood was a member of Temple Beth-El of Providence, and its Brotherhood. He was a member of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island and the South Providence Hebrew Free Loan Association.

He was a member of the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island and Friends of NORCAP. He was also a member of the Rhode Island Jewish Community Center and its Singles Club.

There are no survivors.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Temple Beth-El, Orchard and Butler Avenues, Providence. Burial will be in Temple Beth-El Cemetery, Providence.
For some people, the best medicine comes with paws

When Comet turned the corner and saw George, he did a four-paw sprint to the wheelchair and jumped into George's lap. It was the treatment George needed. His life got better with the airborne arrival of 15 pounds of dog.

At the Oak Hill Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, in Pawtucket, the staff members did a nice thing back in the middle of February, when George Eastwood arrived. They decided there was nothing that could do for George what Comet could do for George.

"When he was asked if he had any next of kin, he said, 'Yes, Comet,'" says Jane Rego, the community-relations coordinator at Oak Hill. George and Comet lived in a small house in Pawtucket not far from the Hasbro toy factory, where George worked for 30 years before he was laid off. George had no close family. He just had the little white Shih Tzu he had rescued from an animal shelter after its previous owner had died.

George came to Oak Hill on a referral from Miriam Hospital, in Providence, where he was being treated for cancer.

"I went and met with him," says Rego. "He was a very gentle, a very gracious man." When he arrived at Oak Hill, he put a picture of Comet next to his bed. He would get tears in his eyes when he talked about his dog. He said he doubted he would ever see the dog again.

So a nurse went to Tony Sousa, the Oak Hill administrator, and asked about bringing Comet in for a visit.

"What helped is that Comet is a little Shih Tzu, and I have one at home," says Sousa.

When TV reporter Pat Masters heard about George and Comet, she saw the kind of story she loves to cover.

"I work closely with animal-rights advocates," says Masters, of Channel 12. "And I heard from a friend that there was this nursing home that was bending the rules a little to help one of its patients."

She went to Oak Hill and met George. She found him engaging. He told her on camera that he was a man who used to make mountains out of molehills, but that now, with his dog, he was at peace.

"We all know what pets can do for people," says Masters.

The story aired at the end of Channel 12's 6-o'clock newscast two weeks ago. George, who during the day had been alerting everyone to the promotional spots for the story, watched it with other patients at Oak Hill. Comet was at a veterinarian's for treatment of some eye problems.

George said he was very glad he had seen his and Comet's story. He went back to his room, and a few minutes later he died. He was 62.

Pat Masters says her jaw "dropped to the floor" when she heard the news.

"He was a really neat guy," she says. "I met him only once, but it was obvious he had things in good perspective."

Comet has moved into someone else's life. Tina Smith, whose daughter Sue is the nurse who originally pitched the idea of bringing Comet to Oak Hill, adopted him. He takes the place of her golden retriever, who died recently.

"He's just wonderful," she says. "I take him to work with me."

LOUISE W. EHRlich of Acacia Drive, a teacher in the Middletown School Department from 1969 to 1983 and an artist, died Saturday at Newport Hospital after a brief attack of aggressive non-Hodgkin’s lymphoma, a cancer she had survived for almost 20 years. She was the wife of Stanley L. Ehrlich.

Born in Arlington, Mass., a daughter of the late Pauline (Bronstein) Kreem and Harry Waldfogel, and stepdaughter of the late Louis Kreem, she lived in Middletown since 1960.

Mrs. Ehrlich received her bachelor of science degree in education in 1949 from Massachusetts State College at Salem. She completed a master of science equivalency at the University of Rhode Island and Salve Regina University. She studied at Brown University, the Newport Art Museum, and the Brattle Square Learning Center in Cambridge, Mass.

From 1949 to 1951 she taught in the Waterford, Conn., school system, and was an artist while raising her family. She was education coordinator for the Newport Historical Society from 1983 to ’84. She received the Educational Foundation Award of the American Association of University Women in 1988.

At the time of her death, she was secretary of the board of trustees of the Newport Art Museum, chairman of its education committee, and a docent. She served as phonathon chairman from 1986 to 1997. She was a life member of the Middletown Historical Society, where she was chairman of the Golden Rules Days Program since 1992 and a member of its board of trustees since 1994. She was director of the art gallery of the Middletown Public Library since 1985, and was a trustee from 1984 to 1987. She was a member of its Five Year Plan Committee and a life member.

As a working artist in monoprints, “one-of-a-kind” numbered prints, Mrs. Ehrlich exhibited her art at the DeBlois Gallery, Middletown Public Library, Providence Art Club, Newport Art Museum, Gallery 401 in Providence, Newport Officers’ Club, Norman Bird Sanctuary, Arnold’s Art Gallery, Happy White Gallery in Barrington, and Spring Bull Gallery.

She was a member of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Monotype Guild of New England, Newport Artists Guild, Newport Preservation Society, Newport Historical Society, Norman Bird Sanctuary, Redwood Library, Newport Havurah, and Friends of the Brown University Library. She was a life member of the Dana Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, and the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged, Boston.

Besides her husband of 48 years, she leaves a daughter, Barbara E. Ehrlich of North Haven, Conn.; two sons, Stephen M. Ehrlich of Cherry Hill, N.J., and Michael A. Ehrlich of Sands Point, N.Y.; a sister, Helen Sherman of Longwood, Fla.; and six grandchildren.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Jewish Memorial Chapel, Fowler Avenue, Newport. Burial will be in Beth Olam Cemetery, Wyatt Road, Middletown.
EHRLICH, NANCY BAND

of Concord, MA and Providence, RI passed away unexpectedly on the evening of December 7, 2015 at Emerson Hospital in Concord, MA. She was 70 years old.

She was born Nancy Lou Band on February 23, 1945 to Jules and Beulah Band, in New York, NY. She graduated from the High School for Music and Art and Columbia University, both in New York.

She is succeeded by her loving husband, Dr. Michael Ehrlich, The Chief of Orthopedics at the Rhode Island and Miriam Hospitals and Chairman of Orthopedics at the Warren Alpert School of Medicine at Brown University, her sons, Christopher and Timothy, their wives Sara and Isabella, four grandchildren, Charlotte, Harrison, August and Julian and her brother Richard.

In addition to being the centerpiece of her family, Nancy was also a scholar (she received several Masters’ Degrees from Columbia, Brandeis and Rhode Island College), a talented interior architect, an historian (she was involved with helping to restore the Caesar Robbins’ House in Concord) and a patron of the arts (she served on the board of directors of the Rhode Island Philharmonic). She was also an avid gardener, knitter and needle pointer. Finally, she was committed to various social causes having served on the boards of the Providence Children’s Museum and Family Services.

Passionate about social justice, at age 60, she, once again, went back to school to earn a Master’s Degree in Social Work. This enabled her to be able to provide life-changing guidance to seniors in Rhode Island.

Funeral services will be held at Temple Beth El, 70 Orchard Ave in Providence, Rhode Island on Thursday, December 10, at 1 pm EST. Receptions for family and friends will be held on Thursday, December 10 at 454 Monument Street in Concord, Massachusetts from 5-7 pm and on Friday, December 11 at the Hope Club, 6 Benevolent Street, Providence, RI from 2-5 pm. Those interested in honoring her name can make a tax-deductible contribution to the “Nancy Band Ehrlich Fund for the Arts” to Washington Trust Wealth Management, 10 Weybosset Street, Suite 200, Providence, RI 02903. Raymond Eichenbaum, only member of family to survive Holocaust, dies at 64

By S. ROBERT CHIAPPINELLI
Journal-Bulletin Staff Writer

PROVIDENCE — For years Raymond Eichenbaum, a concentration camp survivor, labored to fashion a tribute to his sister, Bronia, who died heroically at age 18 during the Holocaust.

He finally finished a play about her in 1991, but not until last Sunday was Till Death Did Us Part performed publicly — by a group of friends before a small but moved audience at the Jewish Community Center.

Yesterday, only two days after that performance, Raymond Eichenbaum, 64, of 96 Savoy St., died at the Miriam Hospital.

One of those moved by the timing was Norman Sadler of Lorimer Avenue.

"That play added another dimension to everything," Sadler, an acquaintance, said.

After the play, audience members were invited to the Eichenbaums' nearby home to enjoy Alice (Handel) Eichenbaum's homemade pastry and her latkes, potato pancakes traditionally served during Hanukkah. Sadler said his wife, Marika, and "He died at a high point of his life," said Dr. Saul Martin, who performed a leading role in the play written by his close friend.

Raymond Eichenbaum lost his parents, his sister and his brother, Moniek, during the war and was the only member of his family to survive. Like other Holocaust survivors, he since had "gone through a lot of hell," Martin said.

The play, directed by Tony Annicone, resurrected many raw feelings, Martin said, but it also greatly satisfied Mr. Eichenbaum by memorializing his beloved sister.

"He got a lot of what he wanted to from putting on the play," he said.

Both at a party at Martin's home the night before the performance and at a celebration Sunday night at Temple Emanu-El, Martin said, Mr. Eichenbaum was laughing and jovial.

Edith E. Grant and her husband, Harold E. Grant, have known the Eichenbaums for more than 16 years. Edith Grant she described Raymond as the gentlest of people.

"He was a giant of a human being who taught in the community by going to the schools and telling them about the Holocaust in a gentle and forgiving way," she said.

Funeral is tomorrow for Gita Eides, 14, Rte. 95 crash victim

PROVIDENCE — A funeral service will be held tomorrow for Gita L. Eides, 14, of 145 Ninth St., who died last night at Rhode Island Hospital as a result of injuries she received in an automobile accident on Route 95 in South Attleboro, Mass.

Several other people, including her mother, were injured when the car they were traveling in went down an embankment, overturned and struck a tree.

State police at the Foxboro, Mass., barracks said Miss Eides was pronounced dead at Rhode Island Hospital at 9:25 p.m., several hours after being transferred from Sturdy Memorial Hospital, Attleboro.

Police said she was a passenger in the rear seat of a car driven by her father, Alexander Eides, 48, of the same address. He was not injured, police said.

Mira Eides, 41, the victim’s mother who was riding in the front seat, was taken to Sturdy Memorial and transferred to Rhode Island Hospital, where she was listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

Also injured were Faina Kustanovich, 48, of 141 Hillside Ave., Providence, and her son, Vladimer Kustanovich, 14, of the same address. Both were taken to Sturdy Memorial.

Vladimer was treated for cuts and released. His mother was admitted. She was listed in good condition this morning.

State police said Eides reported that he became tired while driving south on Route 95 at 5:40 p.m. and pulled over to the breakdown lane. Police said the car skidded on slush, then went down an embankment and overturned before striking a tree.

Born in Rome, Italy, Miss Eides had lived in Providence since coming to this country as an infant.

She was a freshman at Classical High School and was on the honor roll. Miss Eides was a graduate of Providence Hebrew Day School and was a member of Tempel Emanu-El.

Besides her parents, she leaves a brother, Michael Eides, at home; a maternal grandmother, Ita Friedman of Providence; and a paternal grandmother, Musa Eides of Providence.

The funeral service tomorrow will be at noon at Temple Emanu-El, Morris Avenue at Sessions Street. Burial will be in Lincoln Park Cemetery, Warwick.
Soviet immigrant community reeling from girl's death

Teenager who died in auto accident eulogized at funeral

By JUDY RAKOWSKY
Journal-Bulletin Staff Writer

PROVIDENCE — Gita Eides never knew the hardship of her Soviet origins.

Her mother, Mira, was pregnant when the family left the country in February 1973, and Gita was born in Rome. The family arrived in Rhode Island six months later, part of the first wave of Soviet Jewish immigrants to settle here.

In many eyes, the Eideses have been a model of adjustment to their new country, not least so Gita, marking her commitment to her faith.

The struggle to adapt

The Eideses weren't alone in leaving the Soviet Union. Mira's brother, Sol Friedman, left with his family. Mira's parents, Ita and the late Zoroch Friedman, left, as did Alexander's mother, Musa Eides. All settled in Providence.

Mira's first job was at night, cleaning offices downtown. Alexander toiled by day at Carol Cable Co.

Now Mira has a master's degree in history from Brown University, where she works as an archivist. Her husband is a partner in a scrap metal business. They bought a house at 1459th St.
Gita Eides remembered

Thank you and reporter Judy Rakowsky for giving deserved attention to Gita Eides, who died so tragically (Dec. 23). Newspapers devote their pages too extensively to evil-doers and ne'er-do-wells. It is essential to recognize those who in their everyday lives are an inspiration of goodness, honesty and caring.

Writing about the tragedy of Gita's death can do nothing to change the absoluteness of her loss, or the anguish of her family and friends. But it can and does say to readers that the loss of this wonderful young woman is a loss for us all.

Gita touched many people in her short life, and will be lovingly remembered. While the headline said "Soviet immigrant community reeling from girl's death," a more accurate statement is that all in the community who know the Eides family are reeling and grieving with them.

Peter Eimas, 70

PROVIDENCE — Dr. Peter D. Eimas, 70, died Oct. 28. He was Fred M. Seed Emeritus Professor of Cognitive and Linguistic Sciences at Brown University.

Dr. Eimas made significant contributions to the fields of psychology and cognitive science throughout his career. In a seminal article published in 1971 in the journal Science, his research team at Brown reported that infants possess sophisticated abilities to perceive speech far earlier than had been thought. This finding spurred a new field of research in infant speech perception and placed him at the center of the “cognitive revolution.”

A hallmark of his research was that he both asked original questions about the linguistic and cognitive abilities of infants and devised creative methods to reveal that they possessed unexpected abilities.

From 1964 to 1996, Dr. Eimas received grants from the National Institute of Mental Health and the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development to support his research. He also received a Guggenheim Fellowship and a James McKeen Cattell Sabbatical Award. He was a fellow of both the American Psychological Society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Dr. Eimas published more than 100 research articles, including many influential reviews, and co-edited three research volumes on speech and language.

Dr. Eimas was born in 1934 in Bridgeport, Conn. He graduated from Yale University and earned his master’s degree and doctorate from the University of Connecticut. He taught and conducted research at Queen’s University, Ontario, Can.; Williams College, Mass.; and Rutgers University, N.J. before joining the Brown faculty in 1968.

He leaves his wife, Joanne L. Miller, a daughter, Leslie Eimas of Syracuse, N.Y., and three grandchildren.

Contributions may be made to a fund being established to support graduate education in the Department of Cognitive and Linguistic Sciences at Brown University.

Dr. Julian Ralph Einstein
Physicist, concert pianist

Dr. Julian Ralph Einstein, musician and scientist who had lived in Oak Ridge since 1965, died Tuesday night, Dec. 28, 1999, at Methodist Medical Center of Oak Ridge. He was 74.

Dr. Einstein was born and raised in Providence, R.I., where his parents, Arthur and Essie Einstein, now deceased, were well-known locally as piano teachers and for their contributions to the Jewish community. Music was an integral part of growing up for him, and under his father's tutelage, he became an accomplished pianist at an early age.

In an article written by Vera Maya and published in The Oak Ridger in 1997, Dr. Einstein recalled sitting in the choir loft of the synagogue during services and listening to his father conduct the choir and play the organ while his mother sang in the choir.

Most of the music played was composed by one composer in Odessa, Russia, from where his father had emigrated, and had been arranged by his father. According to the article, while he was a graduate student at Yale University, Dr. Einstein became the organist and choir director in another synagogue while his father continued the same job in the original synagogue.

Ralph Einstein

he joined Oak Ridge National Laboratory's Biology Division and where daughter Miriam was born. He most recently worked as a staff scientist in the Computational Biosciences Section of the Life Sciences Division at ORNL where he was involved in computational predication and recognition of protein structures.

David Eisenberg, 95; retired tobacconist

PROVIDENCE — David Eisenberg, 95, of the Jewish Home for the Aged, 99 Hillside Ave., owner of the former Dave's Smoke Shop, Broad Street, Pawtucket, for more than 50 years before retiring in 1988, died yesterday at Miriam Hospital.

Born in Woonsocket, a son of the late Harris and Fenney (Eisenberg) Eisenberg, he lived in Pawtucket for 90 years before moving to Providence three years ago.

Mr. Eisenberg's father established Dave's Smoke Shop, originally on Exchange Street, Pawtucket, in 1910. The shop featured corncob pipes, Cuban and other high-priced cigars, pipe tobaccos, snuff, rolling papers, lighters and cigarettes.

The Eisenberg family had been in the tobacco business since the turn of the century. Mr. Eisenberg's father also started the French & Turkish Tobacco Co., Humes Street, Pawtucket, in 1910. The family was mainly wholesalers, buying tobacco in huge hogsheads, cutting it on machines, and selling it to stores in Fall River, Woonsocket and other French-Canadian enclaves.

When Mr. Eisenberg opened the Broad Street shop, he converted it almost completely to retail sales.

In a Journal-Bulletin interview in 1980, he disclosed that he had never smoked, saying, "I never took a puff from a pipe, cigar or cigarette in my life. I used to cut a lot of tobacco, mix it, and the dust would come out of it and I'd have to gargle water in my throat. I guess I got enough to satisfy me."

Explaining why he continued to work well into his 80s, he said, "I really don't need the store, to be honest with you. It's something to do. I'm not married — what am I going to do — get up in the morning and twiddle my fingers? So I come down here and meet the people, talk to the people — and I make a dollar, sure I do."

He leaves three sisters, Rebecca Levine of Providence, Freeda Cossock of North Providence, and Catharine Levin of Plymouth, Minn.

The funeral procession will depart tomorrow at 9 a.m. from Mount Sinai Memorial Chapel, 825 Hope St., for a 10 o'clock graveside service at Mishkan Tefilah Memorial Park, Center Street, West Roxbury, Mass.

Holocaust survivor who spread hope dies

BY KIA HALL HAYES
JOURNAL STAFF WRITER

PROVIDENCE — Witnessing the violence that came from learned hatred, Lea Eliash spent her life teaching forgiveness and humanity.

Eliash, a Holocaust survivor who devoted her life to telling her story of survival and the atrocities suffered by millions of Jews, died yesterday from a massive stroke. She was 89 years old.

"The most amazing thing about her is that she wasn't bitter and she wasn't angry; she wanted to educate people," said her daughter, Asya.

In 1997, Eliash received an honorary doctorate degree in public service from Rhode Island College for having told many people around Rhode Island of the brutality she had witnessed more than 65 years ago.

nia in 1941, her husband, Solomon, was sent to the Dachau concentration camp. Eliash worked in a factory in Kovno, Lithuania, making gloves and vests for German soldiers.

Learning in 1942 that the Nazis planned to kill all Jewish children, Eliash arranged for a Christian family to keep Asya and smuggled her out of the ghetto in a shopping bag.

In 1944, Eliash crawled beneath the barbed wire fence in Kovno's ghetto when the electricity was shut off. Living on the run, she was reunited with her daughter months later.

Eliash and her daughter were living in a displaced persons camp in 1947 when they were reunited with Solomon. The family emigrated to the United States in 1951.

The Christian family served as an example of humanity for Eliash, her daughter said. Despite the indignities Eliash experienced, "That's what she came out of it with, rather than anger and bitterness. She came out of it with goodness."

She had promised her husband before he died in 1978 to tell others about the Holocaust, so Eliash crisscrossed the state, spreading her message and her memories in schools and at the Rhode Island Holocaust Museum. She taught Hebrew at Temple Emanu-El in Providence for more than 40 years.

Eliash was preceded in death by her parents and her sister, Sarah Isaac Kotler. She is survived by her daughter and her grandson, Jonathan.

A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. today at Temple Emanu-El, with the burial at Lincoln Park Cemetery in Warwick. Shiva will be observed at her residence at 266 Morris Ave. today from 7 to 9 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., and Friday from 2 to 4 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to Temple Emanu-El or to the Rhode Island Holocaust Museum. Funeral arrangements are being handled by the Sugarman-Sinai Memorial Chapel.

Bureau Establishes
Fund For Dr. Elkin

Irving Brodsky, president of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Providence, announced Monday that an Elkin Memorial Fund is being established to honor the memory of the late Dr. Harry Elkin. Dr. Elkin, who died last Saturday, had been director of the Bureau since 1954. Under his leadership the Bureau had greatly expanded its scope, according to Mr. Brodsky, and increased its services, raising the standards for Jewish education throughout most of Rhode Island.

The Elkin Memorial Fund will be used for an appropriate educational project, in keeping with the ideals of Dr. Elkin. Details will be announced shortly. In the meantime, contributions in any amount, may be sent to The Elkin Memorial Fund, care of the Bureau of Jewish Education, 511 Westminster Street, Providence.

Elkin Memorial Fund Of Hebrew Day School Receives Contributions

More than 250 people, saddened by the unexpected death of Dr. Harry Elkin, executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Providence, attended the annual dinner Sunday evening of the Providence Hebrew Day School.

Anne Sherman
R.I. Jewish Historical Association
130 SESSIONS STREET
Providence, RI 02906

Dear Anne:

As you probably already know, my husband, Herb, died on the night of August 14, surrounded by his loving family and dearest friends. We have all lost an ethical, caring man, who ran his business the way he lived his life—with grace and humanity.

Herb took great pleasure in serving his clients, which service will continue without interruption by Jeff Brier, as was Herb’s intent, with The Egis Group. Jeff and Herb had a long-standing relationship, bonded through the principled way that they conducted their business. I am also grateful that Savannah Burns will make the move to The Egis Group, where Jeff will also have his offices, and where she will continue to provide the personal service that was a hallmark of Emers Insurance.

Like Herb’s company, The Egis Group is an agency deeply rooted in the community, with a reputation for excellent service and creative insurance solutions. I’m so pleased that Jeff and The Egis Group will be able to serve your insurance needs in a way Herb would have approved.

All the best,

Jill Brody

Obituaries

Augusta Epstein

PROVIDENCE — Augusta Epstein, 83, of the Jewish Home for the Aged, 99 Hillside Ave., died today at the home. She was the wife of the late Irving L. Epstein.

Born in Waltham, Mass., a daughter of the late Moses and Mary (Young) Nochemson, she was a resident of the city for 60 years.

Mrs. Epstein was a charter member of Jewish War Veterans Post 23, Women's Auxiliary.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Helen Chernick of East Providence and Pompano, Fla.; three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at Lincoln Park Cemetery, Warwick.
EPSTEIN, BARBARA,
died Dec. 6, 2010 in Providence, Rhode Island, at age 80 of complications of heart disease. She bore her final illness with remarkable stoicism. Barbara was born and raised in Sydney, Nova Scotia, the only child of the late Gordon and Lillian (Becker) Elman.
She attended Wellesley College, (Class of 1951), majoring in political science, where she was extremely active in campus life and made lifelong friends. Barbara entered Wellesley a year younger than her classmates, yet attained Phi Beta Kappa in her junior year.
On graduation, she married Dr. Nathan Epstein, also of Cape Breton Island, and began the first of their four city journeys together in New York City where she gave birth to daughters Tobe and Nancy. They moved to Montreal while Nate began his academic career at McGill and Barbara gave birth to their third daughter Jane. Barbara became a discerning art collector while raising a young family. Typically, she was very active in the community, running the Wellesley Club of Montreal and serving on the Board of the Baron de Hirsch Society.
They next moved to Hamilton, Ontario where Barbara completed a Master's degree in political science at McMaster University and was active in fundraising, rising to the position of Vice Chairman of United Israel Appeal for Canada. Their final move in 1977 was to Providence, Rhode Island. Here, Barbara became involved at Brown University: helping organize a furniture exchange for international graduate students and serving on committees for Hillel. In addition, she pursued her lifelong love of books by volunteering extensively at The Athenaeum library.
In 2007, she and Nate moved into the retirement community of Laurelmead, where she made new friends and rediscovered her passion for bridge. She was a relentless completer of New York Times crosswords and a critical thinker in politics with firm opinions. She was also a devoted - and opinionated - mother, grandmother, wife, aunt, sister-in-law, cousin and friend.
She is survived by her husband Nate; her daughters Tobe (Joel Barad), Nancy (David Goldbloom), and Jane; her grandchildren Daniel, Will, Gordon and Lillian.
The funeral service will be at 2:00 pm, TODAY, Wednesday, Dec. 8 at Temple Emanu-El. Shiva will be held at the Epstein home from 7:00 to 9:00 pm that night. Donations in Barbara's honor may be made to Wellesley College or Home & Hospice care of Rhode Island, 1085 North Main Street, Providence, RI 02904, (401) 415-4200, www.HHCRl.org.

OBITUARY

Yachtsman J. Ernstof; skippered ’64 winner

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Jacob M. "Milt" Ernstof, 65, former Narragansett Bay S Class champion, who skippered the 38-foot yawl Burgoo to victory in the 1964 Newport-to-Bermuda race, died of a heart attack here Friday night.

He had moved from Providence to Vermont 10 years ago, and in recent years had lived on his farm in Waterbury Center, Vt., about 10 miles from Stowe, with his Norwegian-born wife, Sidsl, and his two sons, Joel and Eben.

Mr. Ernstof and his crew of S Boat skippers made history in two successive Newport-to-Bermuda races, not only for the success they achieved, but for the manner in which they achieved it.

In 1962, his first year as a Cruising Class skipper, Mr. Ernstof, Everett Pearson, Alden Walls, Dr. Terrell E. "Ty" Cobb, Robert O. Read, Russell R. "Bud" Hunt Jr. and Joe Levy sailed Burgoo to first in class and second in fleet on corrected time.

Two years later, with Jeff Spranger and Dr. Ernest McVay aboard in place of Pearson and Cobb, Burgoo won the race, the first Rhode Island entry in 32 years to do so.

Prior to Burgoo’s victory, ocean-racing crews had been used to adopting a somewhat more relaxed routine for night watches than during the day.

Mr. Ernstof changed all that, devising a system whereby each man on watch spent 20 minutes every hour at the helm, 20 minutes in the cockpit and 20 minutes on the foredeck.

"We felt 20 minutes was as long as a man at the helm could maintain total concentration," he later explained.

They sailed their Invicta Class yawl like a dinghy, with an intensity of concentration seldom seen up to that point. The constant striving for every last ounce of speed in a dying breeze tipped the balance in their favor in the final few hours of that race.

Mr. Ernstof’s last race on Burgoo was the transatlantic race from Bermuda to Denmark in 1966, with a crew of college-age sailors aboard. Burgoo lost her rudder 1,000 miles west of Scotland, but her crew fashioned a replacement, using boards from the cabin sole, and made it safely to a harbor of refuge in the Scottish Hebrides.

Mr. Ernstof was a modest, soft-spoken man who avoided the limelight whenever he could. He was also a deeply religious man.

Dr. McVay recalled powering out past Castle Hill on the way to the starting line for the ’64 race, with the wives and children of the seven men aboard waving at them as the black yawl pointed her bow seaward.

"Suddenly, Milt shut off the engine and said we were going to have a little prayer," McVay said.

"He had all of us put a hand on the tiller, and then he said a few words. I wish I’d had a tape recording of it. He didn’t ask to win the race. He just asked for God’s guidance, and asked that God take care of our families while we were gone.

"It was very moving, and it’s something we’ve spoken about whenever we got together after that."

Mr. Ernstof traveled down from Vermont a number of times in recent years to visit members of that crew, and they usually gathered as a group at the home of one of them in the Providence area.

business. His rise was rapid, and before he was 21 he had opened his own clothing store.

The business grew, and he opened upon quarter-acre lot on Cathedral square, later opening two stores in

Pawtucket and stores in Worcester,

Mass., and Hartford, Conn.

About 1915, he turned to the real estate business, and as his interest in real estate grew, he retired gradually from the clothing business and disposed of his stores.

At one time, his real estate holdings in the downtown section were extensive, but he had disposed of most of them at the time of his death.

In 1922, he had an interest in both the Crown and Narragansett Hotels, but later sold out.

Active in Jewish charities and affairs, Mr. Ernstof was a director of Miriam Hospital, a former director director of the Jewish Orphanage and a director of the Jewish Home for the Aged.

He was a director of the Lincoln

Trust Company when that company was reorganized about a decade ago.

He was a member of the Providence Lodge of Elks, having joined that organization in 1902, and a member of the Touro Fraternal Association. During the Spanish-American

War he was a member of an organization known as the Touro Cadets.

One of his favorite hobbies was handball, and he achieved considerable reputation as a player. For about 30 years, he met all comers at the Y. M. C. A. and beat most of them.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Minnie

(Mahesh) Ernstof; two daughters,

Mrs. Daniel Robinson and Mrs. Wal-

Adler; a son. J. Miller Ernstof,
