

FRANK, ELEANOR
PB 5-6-12

PROVIDENCE

FRANK, ELEANORE (LEWENBERG), 86, passed away peacefully May 4, 2012 at the Philip Huilitar Hospice Center. She was the wife of the late Melvin Frank and the late Stanley Simon. Born in Brookline, MA she was the daughter of the late Maurice and Jennie (Sacknoff) Lewenberg.

A lifelong resident of Providence, she was a graduate of Hood College, Frederick, Maryland.

Ellie worked as a fashion buyer for Macy's, an interior decorator and a metal sculptress. Her volunteer activities included Casa (child advocate for state of RI), serving as a docent at RISD Museum, and serving as vice-chairwoman of Israel Bonds.

Ellie was always a voracious reader and loved art. Her art activities extended over many years, painting, sketching and finally her life-size metal sculptures, now on permanent display at Prov. Art Club Sculpture Garden.

She leaves 3 children, Leslie Simon Haduch and her husband Rick of Warwick, RI, Laura Mainelli and her husband Michael of Lake Mary, FL, and Moshe Simon and his wife Janette of Jerusalem, Israel. She was the beloved grandmother of Joel and Rachel Haduch, Jennifer, Michael, and Peter Mainelli, Pessya, Bayla, Yonathan, Ysacher, Goldie, Shayna, Asher Mordechai, and Raisie Simon, and one great granddaughter Dakota Mainelli. She was the sister of the late Richard Loring.

The funeral service will be held Monday, May 7th at 10am at Sugarman-Sinai Memorial Chapel, 458 Hope Street, Providence. In lieu of flowers, contributions in her memory may be made to the charity of your choice. Shiva will be observed at Laurel Mead, 355 Blackstone Blvd., Providence, on Monday and Tuesday, 7-9pm. The Final Challenge

The final challenge that we all must face,
Is a mysterious journey to an unknown place.

We all finally arrive
at this door,
That's a given, that we know for sure.

It doesn't really matter how well we were known,
This is a trip we're going to have to make alone.

Honor and wealth here-
might offer us some respite, But when passing to the next world- the entrance gets too tight.

Its thoughts, ways and realizations that
float in the breeze,
That make up the landscape and the trees.

Power and importance in this dimension
Is only awarded-
to purest intention.
Its Torah thoughts,
and the Mitzvot,
Which are the only things-
worthy of note.

Now is the time, to work out our ways,
To make ourselves better,
before the end of our days.

This is the lesson-
that hit us so hard,
When we came from all over- to see Mom depart.

Leslie and Laura
and Moshe too, Ask her forgiveness and cry
out- "Mom we love you!"

Her Loving Children,

Leslie Haduch,
Laura Mainelli
and Moshe Simon
