Dr. Stanley Freedman

Former Providence pediatrician, children's asthma specialist dies

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Dr. Stanley Freedman of Washington Road, a former Providence pediatrician who specialized in children's asthma, died yesterday in St. Mary's Hospital shortly after being stricken at home. He was the husband of Grace (Rome) Freedman.

Dr. Freedman was former director of pediatric allergy at Rhode Island Hospital, and founder of the allergy clinics at St. Joseph's, Roger Williams General and Miriam Hospitals.

He was a diplomate of the American Academy of Pediatrics and the National Board of Allergy and Immunology, past president of the New England Allergy Society, and honorary president of the Rhode Island Society of Allergy.

While in Providence, he was a member of Temple Emanu-El, and also was a member of the Brotherhood of Free Masons of Shaker Heights, Ohio.

A son of the late Abraham and Evelyn Freedman, he was born in Poland. During World War II, he was a major in the Army Medical Corps from 1941 to 1946.

Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Allan Freedman of Providence, and a daughter, Karen of Brooklyn Heights, N.Y.

A private funeral service will be held here today.

FREEDMAN, Dr. Stanley
