GERSTENBLATT, WILFRED

Wilfred Gerstenblatt, 80

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Wilfred Gerstenblatt, of East 74th St., died June 12 at Cornell Medical Center. He was the husband of Judith (Furedi) Gerstenblatt for 31 years and the late Roberta (Rosenberg) Gerstenblatt. Born in Providence, R.I., a son of the late Harry and Bessie (Brill) Gerstenblatt, he had lived in New York City and Wakefield, R.I. Wilfred was a comedian with his partner, Jim Gannon, entertaining in the Catskills, and in comedy clubs in New York City from the '50s to the '80s he also appeared on the "Johnny Carson Show". He was a middle school teacher in South Bronx for 30 years. He was a 2nd Lieutenant in the U.S. Army serving in France. Wilfred was a member of S.A.G. Besides his wife, he leaves a daughter, Robin Gerstenblatt and her husband Dietmar Cziborra of Tappan, N.Y., a son, Randy Gerstenblatt and his wife Jill of Roslyn, N.Y. and four grandchildren, Rebecca, Ashley, Ross and Brett. He was predeceased by three brothers, Sidney, Victor and James Gerstenblatt.

In lieu of flowers, contributions in his memory may be made to the American Cancer Society.