OBITUARIES

Samuel Goldin; founded state's 1st medical lab

PROVIDENCE — Samuel Goldin, 93, a resident-member of the Jewish Home for the Aged, who formerly lived on Upton Avenue, died yesterday in Miriam Hospital. The late Celia (Chambers) Goldin was his wife.

Mr. Goldin was the founder of the state's first privately operated medical laboratory, Goldin Biological Laboratories, which he operated on Westminster Street for some 50 years prior to retiring.

He was a member of Temple Beth-El and its Men's Club, and in 1965 he was named the Temple Brotherhood's Man of the Year. He was an organizer of the Temple's Minyun group, as well as the Young Judea of Rhode Island. He was a past president of Providence Fraternal Association and the Zionist Organization of America, Rhode Island District. He also was a member of Miriam Hospital.

During Prohibition, Governor Theodore Francis Green appointed him state assessor of liquor. He was a graduate of Trud—Institute in Odessa, Russia, and a former director of laboratories of the New York City Post-Graduate Hospital.

Before coming to Rhode Island, he was a member of the U.S. Health Service, and worked on the cause and cure of pellagra.

Born Dec. 19, 1883, in Russia, a son of the late Zalman and Frances Goldin, he had lived in Providence for more than 60 years.

He is survived by a son, Edward S. Goldin of Providence; two daughters, Mrs. Estelle Rosen of Providence and Mrs. Frances Miller of Warwick, 12 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow at noon in Temple Beth-El, Orchard Avenue. Burial will be in Sons of Israel & David Cemetery, Providence.

GOLDIN, SAMUEL
