Irving Goldstein

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Irving Goldstein, 92, of the Hebrew Home for the Aged, an agent for John Hancock Life Insurance Co. for 10 years before retiring in 1961, died yesterday at the home. He was the husband of the late Rose (Yaraus) Goldstein.

Born in Romania, he was a son of the late Louis and Sophie Goldstein. He lived in Providence for more than 50 years before moving to Florida in 1951.

Mr. Goldstein previously owned the former Broadway Pharmacy at LaSalle Square and the pharmacy at the former Mohican Hotel, both in Providence. He also had been a salesman for the former Interstate Furniture Co. in Providence.

Mr. Goldstein was a graduate of the former Rhode Island State College, now the University of Rhode Island. He was an Army veteran of World War I and served in Europe. He was a member of the Jewish War Veterans.

He leaves a son, Dr. Paul Goldstein of Branford, Conn.; four sisters, Nan Greenspan, Clara Rose and Honey Ginsberg, all of Providence, and Esther Beranbaum of Hartford, Conn.; a brother, Seymour Goldstein of Atlanta, Ga.; three grandchildren and a great-grandson.

The funeral service will be Friday at 1:30 p.m. at Mount Sinai Memorial Chapel, 825 Hope St., Providence. Burial will be in Lincoln Park Cemetery, Warwick.

GOLDSTEIN, IRVING
