Merchant Tailor for Nearly 60 Years Dies After Illness

Simon Kessler, 77, of 127 Verndale Avenue, a merchant tailor in Providence for almost 60 years, died yesterday in Roger Williams General Hospital after a short illness.

He operated a tailoring and clothing establishment at 189 Mathewson Street and had been in business since 1891. He started his original tailor shop at the foot of College Hill with his brothers Louis and Barney Kessler, both deceased.

The widower of Sabina (Kessler) Kessler, he was born Apr. 1, 1875, in Stanislaw, Austria, the son of the late Rubin and Esther Rose (Messer) Kessler.

He is survived by two sons, S. Louis Kessler of Providence and Rudolph Kessler of Los Angeles; a daughter, Mrs. Hazel K. Roth of Providence, and three grandsons.

He was a member of Temple Beth El, Providence Lodge of Elks and the Providence Fraternal Association.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at noon from the Max Sugarman Funeral Home, 458 Hope Street. Burial will be in the Congregation Sons of Israel and David Cemetery, Reservoir Avenue.
