OBITUARIES

Max J. Levy

WILLMAR, Minn. — Max J. Levy, 77, former owner and operator of Eastern Beef Co. in Providence, died Oct. 19 at Rice Memorial Hospital after a long illness. He was the husband of Harriet (Loseth) Levy.

Born in New York City, he was a son of the late Jacob and Rachel (Bacola) Levy. A former Providence resident, he had lived in Willmar since 1988.

Mr. Levy also had managed the National Beef Packing Co. in Kansas and the Chicago Dressed Beef Co. in Worcester, Mass. He had been involved in the meat packing business for 55 years before retiring.

After retiring, he worked as a consultant and was a volunteer for the Senior Corp of Retired Executives, the Miriam Hospital and the Wilmar Regional Treatment Center.

Mr. Levy was a life member of the Mount Hope Masonic Lodge in Fall River, Mass.

Besides his wife, he leaves a daughter, Joan Scheer of Woodland Hills, Calif.; a stepdaughter, Carolyn Swanson of Brooklyn Park, Minn.; a stepson, Rick Loseth of Wilmar; two brothers, Hyman Levy of Milton, Mass., and Morris Levy of Bronx, N.Y.; five grandchildren, five step-grandchildren and a great-granddaughter. He also was the father of the late Norman Levy.

Memorial services were held in Willmar.
