Dr. Bernhard H. Lisker

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. — Dr. Bernhard H. Lisker, 36, who was a cardiologist on the staff of Danbury Hospital, died April 8. He lived on Long Ridge Road, Danbury, and had been ill for several years.

Dr. Lisker was born in Providence, a son of Albert Lisker of West Palm Beach, Fla., and the late Ethel (Gordon) Lisker.

He graduated from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., with distinction and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. A graduate of Yale Medical School, he served his internship, residency and chief residency at New York University Medical Center.

After a fellowship in cardiology at the University of Miami Medical Center, he practiced medicine in Brooklyn for a year before joining the staff at Danbury Hospital.

Dr. Lisker was a fellow of the American College of Cardiology and a member of the American College of Physicians and the Connecticut and Fairfield County medical societies.

Besides his father, he leaves two sisters, Barbara Zucker of Charleston, S.C., and Gail Levy of Denver, Colo.

E/3 4-22-82

LISKER, DR. BERNHARD