Dr. Himon Miller in Alabama

PROVIDENCE — Word has been received that Dr. Himon Miller, M.D., 71, of 5800 Jones Valley Drive, SE, Huntsville, Ala., a native of Pawtucket and former Providence resident, died at home Dec. 6. He was the husband of Inge (Traub) Miller.

A Brown University graduate, class of 1930, he received his M.D. at Georgetown University School of Medicine, Washington, D.C., and interned at Middlesex General Hospital, Middletown, Conn.

He served his residency in neuropsychiatry at the former Charles V. Chapin Hospital, Providence, and Litchfield Hospital, Midlands, England. He was a member of the staff at Miriam Hospital, Providence; the Rhode Island Hospital and Roger Williams Hospital, both of Providence; Fuller Memorial Sanitarium, Attleboro, and Memorial Hospital, Pawtucket.

Dr. Miller was chief of medical staff from 1977-79 at Huntsville Hospital, Ala., and was in-hospital teacher from 1975 to 1980 at the University of Alabama School of Primary Medical Care.

A veteran of World War II, he received a bronze star oak leaf cluster for meritorious service. He entered the service in 1941 and resigned his commission April 1, 1953.

Upon completion of his term as chief of medical staff at Huntsville Hospital, the community honored Dr. Miller by dedicating a hospital wing to him on Dec. 13, 1979.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three sons, Stephen Miller of Attleboro, Dr. Robert H. Miller of St. Simons Island, Ga., and John L. Miller of Huntsville, Ala; two sisters, Mrs. Bluma Mann of Boston and Mrs. Ann Preblod of Mercer Island, Wash., and five grandchildren.
