SATLOFF, BEVERLY G.,

passed away peacefully on Thursday, January 28, at the Hebrew Home of Greater Washington, at the age of 92.

Born in 1928 in Providence, the city where she spent all but the final years of her life, Beverly was the youngest of the four children of Louis and Edith (Samdperil) Granoff. She graduated Hope High School with honors, attended Cornell University, and worked at the Providence Journal before she married Morris Satloff in 1954 and became a homemaker. Over the next half-century, they together raised three boys, before Morris died in 2011. Soon thereafter, Beverly relocated to Maryland to be closer to some of her grandchildren.

Devoted to her family and community, Beverly was a lifelong member of Temple Emanu-El and a strong supporter of Jewish organizations and causes. Over the years, she enjoyed golf, painting, mahjong, travel and visits to Narragansett Pier.

She is survived by her three sons: David, of Pawtucket, RI; Lewis, of Los Angeles, CA; and Robert, of Chevy Chase, Maryland; her older brother Leonard Granoff and his wife Paula, of Palm Beach, Florida; nieces and nephews; and fifteen grandchildren, including Zeke, Sophie, Bat-El, Eliel, Avigayil, Tehila, Elisheva, Naomi, Hannah, Noah, Gabriel, Sammy, Benjamin, William and David.

A private graveside burial will be held at Lincoln Park Cemetery in Warwick, RI. Contributions may be made to the Temple Emanu-El Chapel Fund, 99 Taft Avenue, Providence, RI, 02906.
