SCHAFRANIK, ERICH

Erich Schafranik

Consulting engineer was formerly instructor at Brown and RISD

PROVIDENCE — Erich Schafranik, 68, of 130 Slater Ave., a self-employed consulting engineer and former instructor at Brown University and Rhode Island School of Design, died Tuesday at home. He was the husband of Clara (Brodesky) Schafranik.

A graduate of the Technical Institute, Vienna, Austria, Mr. Schafranik also taught engineering at Brown University from 1958 to 1968 and Rhode Island School of Design for one year.

Born in Vienna, he was the son of Mrs. Lola (Spiegel) Schafranik of Providence and the late Heinrich Schafranik. He had been resident of Providence for the last 43 years.

A retired major, U.S. Air Force Reserves, he was a member of the American Association of Engineers, Roosevelt Lodge F & AM, and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Jewish Home for the Aged.

A funeral service will be held today at noon at the Mount Sinai Memorial Chapel, 825 Hope St. Burial will be in Lincoln Park Cemetery, Warwick.