Abraham Sternbach

WEST WARWICK — Abraham Sternbach, 92, of 700 Main St., a retired businessman, died yesterday at Miriam Hospital. He was the husband of the late Minnie (Markel) Sternbach.

Mr. Sternbach was founder of one of the oldest filling stations in Rhode Island. He also founded the Phoenix Supply Co. about 60 years ago and retired in 1974.

Born in Austria, Sept. 20, 1886, a son of the late Hyman and Fannie (Treiber) Sternbach, he lived in West Warwick since 1912.

Mr. Sternbach was a founder of Ahavath Sholom Synagogue of West Warwick. He was one of the original members of the Providence Hebrew Day School. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias, the Jewish Community Center, B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Home for the Aged.

He leaves three sons, Maurice M. Sternbach of Providence, J. Raymond Sternbach of West Warwick and Harold Sternbach of Coventry; a daughter, Mrs. Florence D. Futtersak of Warwick; seven grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

A funeral will be held today at 12:30 p.m. at Mt. Sinai Memorial Chapel, 825 Hope St., Providence. Burial will be in Lincoln Park Cemetery, Warwick.
