Envious Detroit

The Hias at New York has a Jewish bread line. So I have been told. And that reminds me of the story of the man from Detroit who came to New York.

A New Yorker pointed out to him the big bread line at Columbus Circle.

"That's nothing," said the Detroit. "In Detroit, we have two bread lines—one for rye bread and one for pumpernickle."

Wallas and Lippmann

The death in England of Professor Graham Wallas recalls the part he played in fashioning Walter Lippmann. It was, it will be recalled, Wallas' book, "Human Nature in Politics," and Wallas' lectures at Harvard, which set the author of a Preface to Politics on his track. Lippmann in his Preface to Politics said as much: "His is the distinction of having turned the study of politics back to the humane tradition of Plato and Michaiavelli—of having made man the center of political investigation."

And it was on the basis of such a consideration of politics that Lippmann himself could write: "A Tim Sullivan is closer to the heart of statesmanship than five city clubs full of people who want low taxes and orderly bookkeeping. I am aware of the contract grafts, the franchise steals, the dirty streets, the bribing and blackmail, the vice and crime partnerships of Tammany Hall. And yet it seems to me that Tammany has a better perception of human need and comes closer to being what a government should be than any scheme yet proposed by a group of uptown good government enthusiasts."

It's a Grand Old Name

A writer in a New York paper points out the glory that resides in the name of Cohen. There is Octavius Roy Cohen, the writer; Senator Cohen of Georgia, the statesman; Walter Coen, the tennis player; Andy Cohen, the baseball player; Otto Kahn, the financier. Allen Dale, the late theatrical critic was actually a Cohen. Even in China, there is General Moshe Cohen, the bodyguard of the late Sun Yat Sen. In England, there is Jefferson Davis Cohen, millionaire race horse owner. In our Congress, there is Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, representing a California district. In academic circles, there is Prof. Morris Cohen.

Yes, sir, it would seem, that Cohen is a grand old name.

If you are not succeeding in life, don't blame yourself or your name. It's the economic system.

Easy to Remember

The name Cohen has many advantages. In the first place, you can never forget it. That helps a whole lot, say, if you are absent-minded, and someone suddenly asks you your name. If your name is Simpkins or Smetana or Throttlebottom, you have to scratch your head and start thinking. But if your name is Cohen, what is easier? You snap right and say Cohen.

Again, it saves you much time. I have many friends named Cohen, and I wonder if they know how much telephoning they have been spared, by my hesitance at looking through a half-dozen pages of Cohens in the telephone book for their numbers.

PROF. EINSTEIN IS OFFERED POST WITH U.S. STUDY INSTITUTE

Institute Founded with $5,000,000 Endowment by Mrs. Felix Fuld and Louis Bamberger

Berlin, Aug. 26—(JTA)—Prof. Albert Einstein, world famous physicist, has been invited to join the staff of the Institute for Advanced Study in the United States as a life member, it was learned here today.

The Institute for Advanced Study was established through a $5,000,000 endowment fund created by Mrs. Felix Fuld, widow of the late Jewish philanthropist and her brother, Louis Bamberger of Newark, N. J., for the advancement of the study of human relations. The Institute is headed by Dr. Abraham Flexner.

Prof. Einstein, it is learned has reached no decision on the matter as yet. Should he accept the post, it would necessitate his spending five months a year with the Institute, although the nature of his work will not be limited.

It is expected that in such an eventuality he would settle in Princeton with his assistant, Dr. Walter Mayer.

Prof. Einstein is still considering the invitation extended him by Mt. Wilson Observatory to extend his work there. It is believed that should he refuse the Mt. Wilson Observatory invitation, he will accept the invitation of the Institute for Advanced Study.

In connection with the latter offer, Prof. Einstein is said to have made a gesture typical of his absorption in his work and his indifference to material rewards. When asked the salary he would expect to receive from the Institute he named a sum so small, the Institute replied it could not be bound by his wishes. The Institute insisted upon naming a larger stipend, stating that a lesser would be under the standards of the organization.

Dr. Abraham Flexner, head of the Institute for Advanced Study, could not be reached to comment on this story, as he is away on vacation.

The Hebrew volumes appeared in 1489 and in 1496. The only book known to have been printed in Portugal at an earlier date is a single copy in the British museum. Another 15th century book is the perpetual almanac of Abraham Zacuto, the astronomer and mathematician whom Vasea de Gamma consulted before he set off on his pioneer journey to India. The volume was printed in 1496.

Boston Globe Editorial Asks Why League Permits Anti-Semitic Outrages

Condemns Anti-Semitism; Confirms Right of Appeal to the Christian World

Boston, Aug. 26—(JTA)—The Boston Globe published a leading editorial recently in which it condemns the anti-Semitic events current throughout the world and where it queries the League of Nations why they are being permitted "to assume the proportions of a rabid and widespread outrage."

The editorial refers to the manifesto appealing to the conscience of the Christian world, issued by the World Jewish Conference which concluded its session in Geneva, Aug. 16.

The editorial, signed by Uncle Dudley, lists Greece, Roumania, Poland and Germany as the lands where the outrages against the Jews have reached their height. It declares:

The manifesto issued at Geneva by the International Jewish Conference, protesting the treatment accorded members of that race in many European nations, is at once a vigorous indictment, grounded in facts which are indisputable, and an appeal to the several governments cited and to the League of Nations to execute their solemn pledges and statutory laws.

There is ample cause for the indignation of these representatives of the Jewish race. This is not the first time protests of a like nature have been lodged. It represents the climax of a steady stream of thoroughly documented complaints, flowing in upon the officials who direct policy at Warsaw, Berlin, Prague, Athens, Bucharest, Budapest and Vienna during the past half dozen years. Thus, to consider the protests filed at Geneva alone, no less than 525 petitions for redress of grievances were brought there by minorities in European States between 1920 and 1930, a very large proportion of which were concerned with complaints against brutal anti-Semitic activities. Some idea of the steady increase of this wretched phase of affairs in Europe can be gleaned from noticing that, between June 1, 1930, and June 1, 1931, a torrent of 204 complaints poured into the headquarters of the League. These, again, showed a rapidly mounting proportion of petitions relating to treatment of the Jews.

The problem of minorities in the European scene is vast and complicated, as all are aware who take the trouble to examine it. It is true, furthermore, that the difficulties confronting the Jewish people in the various nations of Europe constitute but one part of that larger confusion. But this is far from being the whole story. For, with respect to practically all other minorities problems, elements of nationalism, politics and past cultural history enter the picture. In the case of the Jews, these are absent in any comparable sense. The incredibly brutal attacks to which these latter are increasingly being subjected in Eastern Europe, from the Baltic to the Aegean, spring from race hatred, religious intolerance and a brash national egotism. The Jews are struggling not only against injustices leveled at them by the dominant nationalities in various countries in that area; they are equally under attack from other concomitant minorities.

During the past two years, particularly during the past dozen months, this sort of thing has developed to the proportions of an international scandal. Since the first of the present year, Jewish settlements in Greek cities have been mobbed and demolished, with considerable injury to the victims. No adequate redress has been offered and no proper penalties inflicted by the Greek Government upon the thugs and ruffians responsible.

Bad as is the plight of the Jews in parts of Greece, it is infinitely worse in Roumania. In that country scarce a month passes without anti-Semitic demonstrations, savage street attacks, murders, beatings, and the destruction of Jewish-owned property. And where in Greece the Government indulges in the pretense of action, in Roumania the rulers pay almost no attention to such lawlessness.

In both Roumania and Hungary not only does this baiting of a helpless minority proceed unchecked, it is condoned by the courts. Jewish students, seeking education at the universities, are mauled and pummeled in periodic attacks from hostile student societies, whose actions bring but scant reproof from the authorities. Severe penalties are inflicted upon Jewish students arrested in the act of defending themselves; their opponents are benefited by every leniency and legalistic evasion within muster of prejudice.

Poland, which has been notorious for its ruthless manhandling of all minorities since it emerged as a post-war state, is at present passing through another flurry of anti-Semitic barbarity. The pains taken by Warsaw to conceal the evidence are frustrated by a steady stream of detailed reports now making its way into Western Europe.

Germany, since Hitler's advent to prominence, has been hag-ridden by a similar fanaticism. The well-known theories of the Nazi leader regarding the Jews in Germany, his proclaimed purpose of outlawing them from citizenship, confiscating their properties, and denying them the rights claimed by other Germans, need no repetition. Of more moment are the consequences of being produced by such preachments of hate. During the past three months the Jews in the Reich have been subjected to indignities, to assaults, and to such damage of their homes and business as to have caused the "New Statesman" in London to lift powerful voice demanding redressive action.

Every nation involved in this disgraceful business is committed by solemn treaties against it. A host of minorities pacts forbid it. The League at Geneva is pledged to prevent it. Why, then, is it being permitted to assume proportions of a rabid and widespread outrage?

Rabbi Silver will leave Cleveland on a year's sabbatical leave, beginning in October. This is the reason given for Rabbi Silver's resignation.

SIUM HaTORAH

Preparations are being completed to make the ceremony of the Sium HaTorah. Sunday, Sept. 25, (the presentation of new Torahs to the Home), a real religious inspirational revival. This is the first day of Selichot, which, from an Orthodox standpoint, marks the beginning of the preparations for the High Holidays of the year. From a truly religious standpoint there is no higher form of religious fervor than that of a ceremony in which the Torah is the chief object of felicitation.

The ceremony of the Sium HaTorah is that of completing the entire Torah by inscribing the last lines into the Scrolls. The words inscribed represent traditionally a memorial by the letters used for initials for the names to be commemorated.

Committees are diligently at work making every detail ready for this occasion, which promises to be one of the outstanding religious events of the community, ushering in, as it were the period of preparations for the Solemn Holidays.

The committee is extending a city-wide invitation to everybody who wishes to participate in this Sium HaTorah.

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

A special meeting of the captains and workers was held at the Home on Aug. 23rd, at which time teams were formed and various important problems pertaining to the campaign were discussed. The meetings were addressed by the Hon. Charles Brown, chairman; Mr. Samuel M. Magid and others.

An executive committee of the campaign was organized to work out all details. It is contemplated that the first meeting of the captains and workers will be called at the earliest possible moment in order to launch the campaign properly. All the details will appear in the next issue of The Herald.

URGES J. N. F. TO HELP SABBATH OBSERVANCE IN PALESTINE

London, Aug. 26 — (JTA) — The World League for the Observance of the Sabbath has submitted in a memorandum to the World Zionist Organization requesting that it prohibit the breaking of the Sabbath on Jewish National Fund ground, in the contracts entered into by the Jewish National Fund with settlers.

The memorandum points out that at a time when economic conditions the world over have impaired the sanctity of the Sabbath Palestine is the only land where Sabbath observance meets with no serious difficulties. The demand of the religious Jews, regardless of their political outlook is therefore the firmer, says the memorandum.

Bringing Religion to the University Campus

(A Discussion of This Phase of the Work of Rabbi Philip W. Jaffa, Regional Rabbi of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations).

Bringing religion to the university campus is one of the duties of Rabbi Philip W. Jaffa, Regional Rabbi of the North Central District, for the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. As a result of visits to the several universities in his region, Campus Religious Councils have been formed and several inter-denominational symposia have been held. According to university authorities, the reaction to this type of work has been very promising.

This religious work at the universities has done much to change the attitude of many of the students towards religion. Where formerly it was considered not quite the proper thing to partake in any religious activity on the campus, it is now conceded in many universities that religion has a definite place in the modern American institution of learning and that some religious activity should be sanctioned.

$50,000 TRUST FUND FOR JEWISH INSTITUTIONS

Chicago, Aug. 26 — (JTA) — A trust fund of $50,000 for the benefit of a number of Jewish institutions is created in the will of the late Benjamin L. Jacobs, who left an estate valued at $120,000.

The income from the trust fund is to be divided for a period of 10 years in equal shares among the following: Adolph Kraus Lodge, Emanuel Congregation, Willing Workers Club to become part of the flower fund Chicago Section of the National Council of Jewish Women and the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphans Home.

At the expiration of the 10 year period the trust funds are to become absolute and charitable institutions are to receive the bequests outright.

Paterson Jewry Debate Tax on Kosher Meat to Aid Institutions

Paterson, Aug. 26 — (JTA) — Agitation has been started locally for a tax of one cent on purchase of kosher meat and on the slaughtering of fowl, the entire income to be devoted to the maintenance of the Barnett Memorial Hebrew Free School, Reform and the Paterson Talmud Torah, Orthodox both of which are now in process of merging. The tax plan is similar to that now being discussed in Philadelphia.

Philip Dimond, President of the local Y. M.-Y. W. H. A., and a prominent communal leader, is quoted in the local Jewish Post, which started the agitation editorially, as approving the idea. Mr. Dimond says "It will mean that here in Paterson another step in the consolidation of our Hebrew institutions will take place. I do not believe the tax will bring about any difficulty for Paterson Jewry. In fact many members of our community would be only too glad to pay the tax and to stabilize our Hebrew schools."

Benjamin Horwich President of the Reform Religious School, has also highly endorsed the proposal for the tax. It is expected that a conference will be held very soon to air a current Kashruth controversy here, and take steps to introduce the tax project.

Havana May Annul Decree Raising License Fee

Havana, Aug. 25 — (JTA) — The possibility that the municipality of Havana will change its decree raising the fee of peddlers' licenses from $6 to $120 a person, to the sum of either $20 or $25, was indicated here recently.

The rise in the price of licenses fees announced on July 25, has jeopardized the economic position of 500 Jewish peddlers who are unable to pay the fee. It is estimated that 60% of the Jewish peddlers would be without means of livelihood should this new regulation be carried into effect.

The announcement of the new measure aroused sharp protests in Jewish circles and brought about representations to the authorities on the part of the Jewish Center.

These representations will bring about either the complete nullification of the decree or a reduction of the fee to either $20 or $25, it is stated.

Temple Faces Closing of Its Doors Owing to Money Lack

Elizabeth, Aug. 26 — (JTA) — Because of the financial difficulties faced by Temple Bnai Israel here, a campaign will be launched under the leadership of Judge Henry S. Waldman to enroll a large number of Jews in the community as seat holders and to register in the Temple's school, hundreds of Jewish children who are receiving no Jewish education whatsoever.

Should the campaign fail of success, the Temple will be compelled to close its doors, it is stated.

The drive is to begin on Sept. 11 and continue until Sept. 18th.

DISTURBANCES RECUR IN HADAR COLONY IN WORKERS' DISPUTE

Jerusalem, Aug. 26 — (JTA) — Fresh disturbances occurred recently in the Hadar colony where a dispute has been current for some time between the Poel Mizrahi and the Histadruth on the right to cultivate the territory.

Three additional members of the Histadruth, Palestine Labor Federation, were taken into custody recently following the disturbances.

DEMAND RADICAL CHANGE IN BESSARABIAN ADMINISTRATION

Bucharest, Aug. 26 — (JTA) — An insistent and reiterated demand for a radical change in the Bessarabian administration is being made by the Bessarabian Deputies at all meetings of the parliamentary government party, it was disclosed recently.

The Bessarabian representatives demand the dismissal of many Bessarabian officials and especially that of the Prefect of Balti, George Hianoff. Balti is the native town of the four Jewish quarry owners who were arrested and acquitted of signaling to Soviet frontier guards. Hianoff openly assisted the anti-Semitic Party of Prof. Cuza during the last elections.

HEROES ARE BORN

By NINA KAYE

Down at the office, where he was head bookkeeper, Milton Sherman's word had weight. But at home he was like the radio turned on at a station which was not broadcasting. The children didn't hear him when he spoke. Hattie set the food on the table, settled the children and herself and expected him to drift in without being called.

This, he often told himself, came from marrying a girl with as much brains as Hattie had. Hattie had been making more than Milton at the office when they were married. She felt she had given up a lot to marry Milton. And she never let him forget it.

She'd wanted them to own a home of their own. That's why they lived in a forsaken, wind-swept waste which had looked so attractive on the real estate company's circular. That's why he rode over an hour on the Erie and then wove his way along the rutty road in the second-hand car he parked each morning at the station.

It was late as Milton drove home a night in August. Some of the office force were away on a vacation and Milton had worked until nearly eight. He was very tired and very hungry. He knew supper would be over, that the children would be asleep and Hattie playing bridge at a neighbors. But even the prospect of taking his own meal from the stove and ice box, eating alone with the evening paper propped against a milk bottle, warmed his tired bones.

Milton's car hit the smooth strip of road that led to the Monmouth Golf Club. Automatically he slipped into his favorite dream, when he would be rich enough to join the club and play golf. Of course, Hattie took charge of the money, allotting him ten dollars a week for lunches and fare, but this did not prevent Milton from dreaming. On Sundays he always went to walk across the course, pretending he was going from one hole to another.

Milton was so intent on his dream, he almost ran over a dark figure which darted out of the darkness and stood in the path of the car. He jammed on the brakes.

The man held up his hand and Milton opened the door.

"Sorry, partner," the man said, looking sideways, as he spoke through the corner of his mouth. "We've had a breakdown. Will you give me and my pals a lift?"

Milton coughed. "Why," he stammered, "I'm not going very far. I live about a mile down the road."

The man was already on the step. He whistled softly and two other men materialized out of the darkness. Milton felt a sharp jab in the neighborhood of his vest pocket.

"Leave 'er there, if she won't get started," he man growled to his companions. "We'll let this guy give us a lift. Take the Sunset Highway, partner. That's a nice, quiet drive, this time of night. Hop in fellers," he commanded.

After the two men had climbed over the folded front seat, the one who had stopped him sat down beside Milton.

"Go ahead, partner," he muttered.

Milton's trembling foot found the gas. He did not have to be told into what kind of company he had fallen. He knew, too, as if he had been told, that these gentlemen had just come from a visit, though not a social one, to the exclusive Monmouth Golf Club.

"Try any monkey business on us," his companion warned, "and see where y' land!"

Until that moment it had not occurred to Milton to try any monkey business. But now, as the car leaped ahead, there was born in Milton the desire to be a hero.

He tried to think quickly of a plan. He might drive the car from the road. But that was dangerous. One of the men in back grumbled. "Is he takin' us the right way, Bugs?"

Milton acted on the suggestion. He knew his roads far better than these city gentlemen. He swung off the main road. "Detour," he explained.

As the car went careening along, it was not apparent that it bore more and more to the right. Milton was driving in a circle. And he was very much aware of it.

The car hit a smooth stretch of macadam and headed toward a clump of trees.

"Look out!" the man beside him called.

But Milton knew those trees. He knew they arched over the private driveway into the Monmouth Golf Club. As the car spun out from under the shielding branches and swung into the semi-circle for parked cars, now seething with irate victims of the recent hold-up, Milton's right hand bore down on the horn and his left hand flung open the door.

"I've brought them back!" he shouted. "Look out! They're armed!"

Late that night, somewhat flushed by the unfamiliar champagne and heavy from the ample dinner he had been served at the club, Milton again headed his car toward home. A new feeling surged within him. He had been honored by the membership of the Monmouth Club. He had been called a hero in capturing, single-handed, three bandits. He had been invited to join the club—membership fee $100 for three months. And he had accepted!

Everything would be different now. The children would treat him with respect when they read about him in the morning paper. Hattie would let him handle the money, and he would join the club!

Hattie was waiting for him in the kitchen when he drove the car up the driveway. At sight of her stormy face, Milton decided to postpone until morning his tale of the night's adventure. "Let her read it in the paper," he thought, as he went wearily toward the stairs.

"Milton!" Hattie called after him. "You didn't eat your supper! Where were you?"

Sighing wearily, Milton went back into the kitchen, sat down at the table and ate the meal Hattie had prepared for him.

The morning paper contained a report of the Country Club hold-up, but the item was so small it did not contain Milton's name and his share in the capture.

More than once Milton tried to tell Hattie about it, to say he was invited to join the club, but each time he swallowed his words. She'd never believe him, he knew. She'd be sure to laugh and say he had imagined it all.

And, as time went on, Milton began himself to believe that he had imagined it all.

INJUSTICE IN POLAND

News of late has brought to light so many cases of bitter anti-Semitic feeling throughout the civilized world that it seems almost impossible to measure specifically the extent and seriousness of all of it. One thing, however, is perfectly clear; and that is that all Jews should realize the necessity of looking the facts straight in the face, unflinchingly and intelligently. No matter how remote the various critical Jewish problems may seem to us, we should make an attempt to grasp their potent and dangerous reality. While so doing, we should also strive to create the proper public opinion which would work to the material advantage of our fellows.

The cruel injustice of the Polish Government toward the Jews is already a part of the history of the post-war period. That so much injustice should have been concealed and camouflaged by that country's representatives in other countries has been a source of wonder to many penetrating scholars of contemporary affairs. At the present time, the persecution of the Jews is unabated; and unless strong censure of the government by responsible Jewish groups and individuals is brought to bear, there can be little hope of improvement in the Jewish lot.

Dr. Max J. Kohler, in an address at the Institute of Politics in Williamstown, made clear many charges against the Polish Government. He pointed out that the Jews have been discriminated against in all phases of civic and economic life; that the present system of taxation compels the three million Jews to bear an utterly disproportionate share of the burden; that the industrial and agricultural laws make the earning of a livelihood impossible for seven hundred thousand Jews; and that their representation in the legislature has been illegally reduced.

Polish officials have already denied the truth of Dr. Kohler's charges. But many occurrences have been reported in the press to bear witness to the truth of all of them. The responsibility of the Polish Government to give fair and honest dealing to a citizenry within its borders has not been kept. It now becomes the obligation of world groups, supported by firm public opinion to demand that the persecution of Jews cease. Insincere and wordy protests and denials should be no longer accepted. All Jews should take it upon themselves to bring to light the plight of their Polish brethren; and by working through their own and other governments, and if necessary the League of Nations, to bring to an end the bitter and insupportable injustice of an ill-advised government against a defenceless minority group.

By the Way

Tidbits and News of Jewish Personalities
By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Names and the Public

Woodrow Wilson's full name was Thomas Woodrow Wilson. But he wrote to a friend, that he needed a trade-mark in his name—something that would make it stick, so he dropped the Thomas as Hoover has dropped the Clark.

It is very important, as Wilson sensed, that the name of a public character should be one that easily remembers itself.

Now what could be better therefor than Cohen? Perhaps to make it ideal—one should have a name like Jonas Smith Cohen Levy. Nobody could forget a name like that. I dare say, if any public figure took a name like that, he'd be a made man in no time. Just think of the reams of free publicity he would get, and who could ever forget his name.

Originality Wanted

We have on the whole, I should say, too little inventiveness which goes in the making of our names. Our forefathers were much our superiors in that respect. Our inventiveness in nomenclature is largely that of translation. Schoenberg, for instance, is translated into its French equivalent of Belmont or Goldberg into Montor. The name Hadas—that of Rabbi Gershon Hadas of Kansas City and Dr. Moses Hadas of Columbia, is synthetically original—having stemmed from the fact that their parent, who was something of a scribe, was wont to sign his name with the letters H. D. S. (in Hebrew).

But for genuine originality, I repeat, we must go back to our patriarchal fathers. Abraham laughed therefore his son born about the time is named after the word "laughed"—Isaac.

If we followed the old Hebrew mode, many of the children being born now would be named Hard Times, Depression, Economic Cycle, etc. Now I maintain such words as these are very suitable for names. Of course, in the processes of conversation, they would naturally be shortened. Hard Times would probably be shortened to Hardy or Tim. Economic Cycle would probably find himself being called Ekky. But what's the matter with Ekky?

Margaret's Jewish Lover

Every now and then, I make some signal discovery. I am now about to announce such a one and particularly invite the attention of Dr. Adler, Max Kohler and others who are the mainstays of the American Jewish Historical Society.

A Tribute to Mrs. Anne Crosby Emery Allison

Mrs. Anne Crosby Emery Allison's passing has evoked poignant expressions of sympathy and regret and ardent appreciations of her influence and accomplishment in this community, which so largely harvested the fruits of her genial and expansive nature and life.

What these and what her accomplishments were elsewhere, have also been adverted to. Mention has been made of her teaching and influence at the University of Wisconsin from 1897 to 1900, and of the noble building later named in her honor at that establishment of learning.

By the chance of time and fortune, I, one of her students at that institution in 1898, am here present in this community, which was enriched by so many years of her mature activity. I am moved to relate an incident of Mrs. Allison's teaching that reveals the early presence of her love of nature often dwelt upon in her writing:

Homer was for many years at Wisconsin taught in the course in Greek on the "Hill" of the university, which watches over the gleaming waters of Lake Mendota. Old South Hall saw generation after generation of students come and go, while it maintained its vigil over the truly Homeric setting in which the Greek Bard was there taught.

To nobody, apparently, of all the line of professors of the language and spirit of Greece, did there occur the fitness of utilizing that wonderful setting of nature to re-embodiment the spirit of Homer, until Anne Crosby Emery, in the spring of 1899, conducted the class in Homer's Odyssey, of which I was a member, out of doors under the trees and smiling skies that rivalled those of Greece.

And so for the first time, and with her for the last time—the students saw revealed the dramatic power of Mrs. Allison to make literature live. Strange Ionic forms of Homer suddenly lived in that atmosphere, and what had been the drill of a dead language, took on the blood and life and glow of a master spirit.

No wonder, appreciation of nature was a marked trait of Mrs. Allison, and no wonder nature found a sympathetic and powerful exponent in her—and simple it is to see how the beauty of Nature evoked a fine expression from her, and how she repaired to Nature for inspiration in her composition—as she was about to do again when fate overtook her.

Larry Funk to Play at Fall River "Y" Dance, Tuesday, at Wilbur's

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 30th, Larry Funk will lead his "Band of a Thousand Melodies" in person at Wilbur's-on-the-Taunton, in Somerset, Mass., for the dance to be conducted by the Fall River Y. M.-Y. W. H. A. Community Center.

Mrs. Oscar Bloom, Chairman of the Dance Committee for the Y. M.-Y. W. H. A. Community Center, is in charge of arrangements. Guests from Newport, Taunton, Providence, New Bedford and Boston are expected to attend.

The discovery that I refer to revolves about Margaret Fuller, the brilliant woman member of the Transcendentalist group of which Emerson was the unofficially recognized doyen.

Well, Margaret was very much in love with a Jewish young man, named James Nathan.

I really should be more modest and not claim the discovery for my own. For you will find full accounts in the biographies of Margaret Fuller, but as far as I know, no Jewish historical writings have taken cognizance of the affair.

A Review of World Events in Photographs

Setting a New World's Record

This photograph, transmitted over A. T. and T. wires from Los Angeles, shows J. Healy of New York setting a new world's record of 52.02 over the 400-yard hurdles in the Olympic games. Adelheim of France is second and Areskog of France is third.

Uncle Sam Makes War on Beetles

Uncle Sam has declared war—but the object of his wrath is a pernicious insect invader who will this year attempt to destroy as much of the nation's food, flowers and shrubbery as possible, just as he has done in past seasons. The pest, known as the Japanese beetle, is being battled by means of traps, which might be called "execution chambers." At the left are shown some of the 600 death chambers in which 200 different kinds of poison are used to determine which is the most fatal to the beetle, at the experimental station at Moorestown, N. J. Miss Gertrude Presscott, at right, is shown examining one of the traps.

Swap Market Flourishes in New York

Brought on, no doubt, by current "hard times," a new kind of market has sprung into being in New York, and is probably doing more "business" than any other market in the world. It is known as an "exchange market," but is more fittingly called the "swap market." It started in a tiny spot beneath the steel structure of the Williamsburgh bridge, at Delancey and Ridge streets, and has spread out considerably with the daily increasing demand for trade. In probably nine-tenths of the business done beneath the bridge, money takes no part. Any possession of a prospective trader can be exchanged for something in the stock of the market, provided of course, its value does not exceed the value of the article desired by the customer.

Built to Fly in the Stratosphere

This is the F-1000-1, France's first stratosphere plane built by Henry Farman with support of the government, which was given its first test near Versailles recently in the presence of many aviation experts. The plane is designed to attain a speed up to 375 miles an hour flying at altitudes above 60,000 feet. It is chiefly distinguished from an ordinary monoplane by its great wingspread and by the air compressors attached to the fuselage enabling flyers and motor to breathe compressed stratosphere air. It is hoped that a trip from Paris to New York may be made in less than 10 hours in the new plane.

BULL FIGHTING PAYS

Sidney Franklin, the one and only Jewish professional bull fighter, has demonstrated that his acquired profession is a well-paying one. He is returning to Mexico to supervise the stocking of his 100,000 acre ranch there.

The Brooklyn Jewish boy, son of a policeman, who made good in Spain, but got the well-known Bronx cheer in the Mexican bull rings, cleaned up close to $500,000 in the last five years. It is true that not all of this considerable sum of money was earned sticking swords into potential roast beefs, but the basis for it was his skill for bull fighting. After earning a reputation as the first American bull fighter he came back to his native land and went on a vaudeville tour, and held sundry exhibitions, all of which added to the total. Franklin admits that bull fighting is a tough racket and getting tougher all the time. The rings are run just like theatres. He said that in some spots he had to do three shows a day. At 27 years he figures he has three more years to go as a bull fighter at the end of which time he expects to retire, settle down, marry and take things easy, in a peaceful existence. Someone should tip him off!

himself. In his last six starts he has been impressive and he may yet be that "Jewel of the East Side." Certainly he has more ring presence, punch, style and durability than most of them.

CHATTERINGS

Bea Gottlieb, our golfing friend of the Lakeville Country Club, holds the women's record for the Hackensack, N. J., Golf Club long course. She carded a 79 in a recent one day tournament to win the low gross prize and in so doing slipped one stroke off the record set more than a year ago.

The women's national singles tennis championship failed to bring any Jewish players into the limelight. Our only entry, Mrs. Caroline Hirsch went out in an early round without putting up much of a struggle. Incidentally it was a most exciting tourney for the players, but not for the slim gallery. With Helen Moody out, the crowd stayed away. I don't know why because of all the women players she is the most colorless. The players showed no concern over Helen the Great's absence. It left an open field.

MARATHON WINNER

Juan Zabala, young athlete from Argentina, who won the marathon race in the Olympic games at Los Angeles. He set a new record, covering the 26 miles, 385 yards in 2 hours 31 minutes 36 seconds.

LEONARD TO FIGHT McLARNIN IN OCTOBER

Benny Leonard has reached the objective of the comeback campaign, which has been conducted more or less, mostly more, successfully through twenty-one fights and was matched last week to meet Jimmy McLarnin at the new Madison Square Bowl, in Long Island City, on the night of Oct. 3rd. After a long session, in which representatives of the boxers conferred, stalled and acted, it was finally decided that the bout should be over a ten round route at catch weights, which means that the fighters will be allowed some latitude and Leonard will come into the ring some five or six pounds heavier than his Irish opponent.

As fights go this one should create a tremendous interest. Leonard very cleverly has introduced the question of race pride by stating it was up to him to avenge the race against the Irishman who has put the skids under so many of our Jewish fighters. The fight fans who don't fall for that kind of hooey will be interested in seeing if Leonard can really come back. The old maxim, "They never come back," is the stumbling block and if Leonard can get around that he will have been the first ever to have accomplished that feat. About the only sentiment there is in the fight game concerns itself with the overcoming of the old adage. Ten thousand middle aged gentlemen who have begun to realize that youth is slipping, will be on hand rooting for Leonard; in his victory they will see a vindication of themselves.

LEONARD PICKS KIRSCH AS COMING CHAMP

Leonard, after the conference, refused to talk about his own career, but insisted upon regaling the newspaper boys with his boast for Lew Kirsch, another Jewish lightweight. Leonard claims that the boy will be the next lightweight champion. "He has everything but imagination," said Leonard. "Imagination took me to the top. A good fighter has to dream; when he dreams he tries to make his dreams come true."

Nicknamed Dingy, the handsome Lew Kirsch is fast becoming another pride of the East Side, and has been cleaning up his opponents in apple pie order. A product of Public School 62 on the East Side, in the Hester and Essex streets district, Kirsch was an all around athlete. Baseball, running, handball and basketball were his sports. In the last named he excelled. He was one of a school team that won the P. S. A. L. championship of New York City. It was a remarkable team, entirely composed of boys who later made names for themselves in the ring. The other boys were Terris, Goldstein, Rosen and Gordon, an all-Jewish team. What a gang to get in a fight with!

Kirsch's keenest rival is Sammy Dorfman, and although they were matched four times, they never met in the ring, but neither has given up hope. Kirsch, who began his ring career some years ago, won his first 43 fights until he received a set-back. Undaunted he determined to keep winning, but an automobile accident put him on the shelf where he stayed three years. At the time it was believed that he would never fight again, but he has fully recovered and has determined to knock out a name for

Revisionists Here Call for Resistance to British Policy

New York, Aug. 26—(JTA)—At a conference of American Zionist Revisionists, held in connection with the forthcoming World Congress of the Revisionist Union, which opens on Aug. 28 in Vienna, the stand of American Revisionists on a number of questions with which the World Conference will deal, was formulated.

Reiterating the Revisionist belief that Britain is not fulfilling the terms of the Mandate, the conference went on record as favoring both active and passive resistance to Britain's Palestine policy.

Efforts to increase the membership of the Revisionist body here and the strength of the Revisionist youth movement will be made. A second conference will be held within a month.

MACEDONIA REPRINTS COTY ANTI-SEMITIC ARTICLES

Salonica, Aug. 26—(JTA)—The Macedonia, organ of the anti-Semitic factions, which in recent years has achieved notoriety for its responsibility in inciting to anti-Jewish outbreaks, is reprinting a series of articles by Francois Coty, French anti-Semite.

Ask Ouster of All Jews From Clergy and Church Offices

Vienna, Aug. 26—(JTA)—A demand for the ouster of all clergy and church officials of Jewish descent is made of the Archbishop by the Nazi press.

The papers declare that a Jew even though he becomes a priest through the baptismal font, cannot become a son of the German people. They charge that the Christian clergymen of Jewish descent are opposed to the German nationalist movement and that they impose difficulties in the way of the Nazis, even in church ceremonies.

SAYS TARIFF RUINOUS TO BRITISH PALESTINE TRADE

London, Aug. 26—(JTA)—British trade with Palestine is being ruined by the heavy duty on imports, the Daily Mail complained recently.

The paper says it made representations regarding this matter to the Colonial Office and was informed that the latter can act only following the receipt of representations from the Palestine government.

Franklin Auto Supply Announce Formation of Voluntary Chain

Harry R. Rosen, President Announces Formation of A. I. D. Stores Plan

An announcement of great interest to the retail automotive accessory field of Rhode Island and Southern New England is that made yesterday by Harry R. Rosen, President of the Franklin Auto Supply Company, of that firm's intention to organize a voluntary chain among the retail dealers of this territory, to be known as the "Allied Independent Dealer" stores plan.

At a dinner held at the Narragansett Hotel and attended by one hundred automobile men in affiliated fields of the industry, Mr. Rosen outlined the plans and details of the "voluntary chain," which is the most progressive step made in the interests of the retail dealers in years.

The plan, which was originated by the Economy Auto Supply Co., of Newark, N. J., and now numbers more than 50 units in that state, has met with great success. It is patterned on the same unique style and operation as that of the successful voluntary grocery chains now doing business in Rhode Island and other states. Always alive to present conditions and being one of the foremost automotive accessories wholesale dealers in the United States, the Franklin Auto Supply Company through Mr. Rosen made an exhaustive survey and examination of the "A. I. D." plan in New Jersey before deciding to become an important link in the plan.

The dealers attending the Narragansett Hotel dinner showed unusual interest in the plan as outlined by Mr. Rosen and other speakers from New Jersey. After the dinner the meeting adjourned to the Franklin Auto Supply Company building on Broad street, where a model "A. I. D." store was shown, equipped and decorated to the fullest and most minute detail.

Each unit of the A. I. D. chain, although owned by the individual operator himself, carries a sign over the store with an insignia. All the stores are painted red and gray. When an independent retailer is inducted into the chain, the following changes take place:

The stores are completely renovated and redecorated. Shelving is rebuilt according to the standardized store plan. Display tables are installed. The interior is painted according to a standardized color scheme. The merchandise is replaced on the shelves according to a definite merchandise location plan, which includes grouping it by use and application. Obsolete, slow-moving and shop-worn merchandise is marked down and prominently displayed on a table near the front of the store. The store stock is then filled in with an array of those items that are so definitely a part of the average chain accessory and supply store set-up. A professional window trimmer, supplied by A. I. D. merchandising service, trims the window. Subsequent special trims featuring A. I. D. specials and carrying a seasoned appeal are provided monthly for each unit. After the opening of a unit, monthly bulletins are supplied to each unit with the name of that unit prominently printed upon it.

A. I. D. units have already been established to date in dealer service stations, repair shops, super-service stations, gas and oil stations.

The Franklin Auto Supply Company and its owners, Harry R. Rosen and Max Rosen, through their vision and far-sightedness have taken an important step in the promotion of an industry and business which is closely allied to the every-day life of thousands of people.
