Palestine Is No Burden On Great Britain's Taxpayers, Prominent Writer Declares

Samuel Asserts England Operates Homeland at Big Profit Outlasts Depression

New York, Nov. 25.—A cry familiar in Great Britain three years ago that "Palestine is a burden on the British taxpayer" has ceased to be heard today, because "Great Britain operates the Jewish Homeland at a profit," Maurice Samuel, well-known author, declared in an address as part of this month's celebration by the Zionist Organization of America of the 15th anniversary of the Balfour Declaration.

Mr. Samuel emphasized that while every country in the world shows a deficit, Palestine shows a favorable balance of about two million dollars.

During his address, Mr. Samuel, who just returned from a six months' stay in Palestine, said:

"One of the most interesting economic phenomena with regard to present day Palestine is the fact that ever since the world depression there has been no talk, in the British Parliament, about the Palestine burden to the British taxpayer. As long as money was plentiful, demagogues could pretend that the Jewish Homeland cost the English money; today, when money is scarce, and financial problems have to be taken seriously, such an inaccuracy would be shouted down.

"$2,000,000 Profit"

"The fact has always been—and today it is more potent than ever—that Great Britain operates the Jewish Homeland at a profit. And thus, in 1932, when every country shows a deficit, the government of Palestine shows a favorable balance of about two million dollars.

"The British no longer hear appeals to 'Get out of Palestine' for the sake of economy. It is quite clear to everyone that as the Jewish Homeland continues to grow, it will be a more and more profitable task to administer the country.

"Palestine shelters today two hundred thousand Jews, of whom one hundred thousand have been rescued from the political and social infernos of Central and Eastern Europe. The demand of Jews to be permitted to settle in the Jewish Homeland is greater today than it was ever before. And the prospects of a powerful and flourishing Jewish Palestine is brighter today than ever.

Manchester Paper Praises Jews For Homeland's Gains

Manchester, Nov. 25.—(JTA)—The Manchester Guardian comments editorially upon the prosperity in Palestine "amid a weary tale of world depression."

The paper ascribes the prosperity in Palestine to immigration of Jews into the country.

"Palestine," it says, "is reaping a considerable economic benefit because it is unstiffened by immigration restrictions like in most countries."

The editorial is hopeful of better relations between Jews and Arabs, pointing out that economic prosperity has always proved a good salve for sore feelings and a preliminary condition to peace.

Commons Wage Heated Debate Over Homeland

Jewish Deputy Urges Full Discussion by Parliament

London, Nov. 25.—(JTA)—The local self governments to be established in Palestine as a preliminary to a Legislative Council, which were referred to in the report to the Mandates Commission of the Palestine High Commissioner, formed the subject of a heated debate in the House of Commons.

"Is not the government asking for trouble in giving self-government to Palestine when the people of Palestine do not want it?" demanded Col. Josiah Wedgwood excitedly.

Col. Wedgwood also asked Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Minister of State for the Colonies, to give assurance that minority rights will be safeguarded when the local self-government ordinance is introduced.

The Jewish Deputy, Barnett Janner, demanded that Parliament be given the fullest opportunity for discussion of the matter before definite

National Junior Hadassah Begins Membership Drive

Junior Hadassah, the outstanding young women's Zionist Organization of America, is now conducting a sweeping membership campaign throughout the country. Sunday was National Membership Day, whereby almost every young Jewish woman in each community was approached to join the ranks of Junior Hadassah.

Junior Hadassah in its twelve years of existence has been doing important Zionist work both in America and Palestine. Beginning with but a few units in 1920, the organization now has 170 units, with a membership of 10,000. There is a Junior Hadassah unit in almost every large city in the United States, in every section of the country—North, South, East, West.

Junior Hadassah has played an important role in bringing to the consciousness of the young Jewish women of this country the meaning of the Zionist movement.

In addition to the cultural work of the organization, Junior Hadassah supports three projects in Palestine; Meier Shfeyah, a complete children's village; Pardess Anna, a training farm, and the Nurses' Training School. The work of these projects is in each case a significant contribution to the upbuilding of the new Palestine.

Other Leaders Now Cited to Form New Cabinet

Berlin, Nov. 25.—(JTA)—Consideration of a candidate for Chancellor other than Adolf Hitler was taking up the time of President Paul von Hindenburg today. The aged President has withdrawn the offer he made the Nazi leader earlier this week, it having become apparent that Hitler could not hope to form a cabinet that would have the support of a majority of the Reichstag.

President von Hindenburg today was holding conferences with leaders of other parties. Whoever is chosen, and Franz von Papen is again strongly mentioned, faces the almost impossible task of swinging every party into line except the Hitlerites who will oppose any leader other than their own. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, one of the National Socialist powers, has served notice that none but Hitler will be satisfactory to the Nazis, who have a plurality but not a majority in the Reichstag.

Offer Limited

The original offer made to Hitler was so limited that it was impossible from the very start for him to form a cabinet that would have popular support. Hitler had before him the herculean task of swinging the Nationalists and the Bavarian party to his standard. That task he could not accomplish; and President von Hindenburg made it plain that he had not sufficient confidence in the Nazi leader to trust him with forming a "residual" cabinet that would rule without consulting the Reichstag.

The problem now facing Germany is that of finding a man who will have the confidence of the Reichstag or in whom President von Hindenburg will have faith enough to allow to rule by Presidential authority alone, under conditions by which von Papen held the Chancellorship.

Von Schnee Mentioned

Another man who is receiving consideration is Albert Heinrich von Schnee, who was a German member of the Lytton commission which investigated the Manchurian situation under instructions of the League of Nations. Von Schnee long was in the colonial service before the war.

On the other hand, it is said the President declared that he does not know Hitler well enough to have sufficient confidence in him, to permit him to form a presidential cabinet responsible to him alone.

GREAT ZIONIST LEADER COMING TO U. S. SOON

New York, Nov. 25.—(JTA)—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, former President of the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish Agency for Palestine, will visit the United States next February, in the interests of Zionism, it was announced yesterday by the American Palestine Campaign.

Dr. Weizmann's visit will be of short duration owing to other engagements, which call for his return to Europe. He was expected to come to this country in January, but has been delayed because of scientific experiments he is now conducting.

Dr. Weizmann is coming here in response to a joint invitation issued by the Zionist Organization of America, the American section of the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the American Palestine Campaign.

At the same time the American Palestine Campaign, in a statement by its National Chairman, Louis Lipsky, announced that a national conference on fund-raising for Palestine will be held in the middle of January. "It is recognized that some of the methods now being utilized in fund-raising activities are obsolete and must be changed to meet the new conditions both here and in Palestine," Mr. Lipsky declares. "The purpose of the conference will be to revise present methods and to consider carefully the practices and psychological approach used during the past decade which seem to have lost their effectiveness."

Communities throughout the country are urged to wind up their campaigns so that a new campaign may be launched without overhanging obligations.

"Next year's campaign of the Jewish Agency will have to enlarge its work for the Keren Hayesod," the statement points out. "Faced by menacing deficits, the Keren Hayesod has been staggering along under a burden that threatens its existence of the various activities it has sponsored since 1921. The development of the new immigration depends upon the financial resources of the Keren Hayesod."

JEW IN THE EYES OF EUROPE'S HAUTE MONDE

By HELEN, DUCHESS OF CROY

The passages quoted here are excerpts from a novel, entitled "An American Duchess," published by Robert McBride and Company, written by an American, who married into European nobility. The Duchess of Croy, in this sprightly novel of the haute monde of post-war Europe which takes the reader to the leading European capitals gives a graphic description of the condescending and suffering displayed toward the Jew even when he was presumably accepted into high society because of his wealth. The passage with which the quotations begin is a description of the attempted putsch by Adolph Hitler in Munich in 1921—Editor's Note.

The roar in the street had increased until now it seemed to be in the square below. Under the balcony the square was black with people, upturned faces and gesticulating hands showing white in the vague light of the street lamps. Strident voices called for the manager, demanded Jews, demanded the right to search. The manager temporized. The mob wanted a victim and howled. At last it found one. A little man with a big hooked nose, very drunk, emerged from the bar into the street. In an instant he was snatched up into the maelstrom. Cries came up from the street, "The Jew!" "Death to him!" "Down with them all!" And then the mass of maddened men made off into a side street with their miserable sacrifice, his thin, frightened face showing pale in the light of the street lamps.

The little group on the balcony stood still and silent for a moment, too moved to speak. Finally Ghika shuddered.

"It's revolution," he muttered. "What shall we do?"

"Nonsense!" Briac spoke loud and firmly. "Hitler has filled them full of fiery speeches and they have filled themselves full of beer; they are jealous of the success of the Jews and this gives them a chance to vent their rage under the guise of noble love of country. You'll see; they'll scream a lot, kill a few Jews, loot a lot of shops, and in a few hours all will be quite."

Rev. Seidel Rovner, World-Famed Cantor, to Appear In Concert

Rev. Seidel Rovner, musical genius and composer, will appear in concert at Infantry Hall, Sunday evening, Nov. 27, at 8:30 o'clock.

REV. SEIDEL ROVNER

Reverend Rovner was born at Radomisel, Russia, in the State of Kiev, in 1856, April 2nd. His father, an established leather goods merchant, died when Seidele, as his mother used to call him, was 18 months old.

Seidele showed a great inclination for learning, but his ear for music surpassed that.

His mother, Hannah, a pious woman, entrusted the education of her only son to the famous Rabbi Jacob Twersky. As a pupil, little Seidele was the best in the Rabbi's class, but still, a better singer.

At the age of 10, Seidel became engaged to a young lady of eight, whose father was a close friend of the Rabbi. The couple married when he was sixteen and she fourteen, and she is still his wife to the present day.

After marriage, Seidel went into business. He became a flour merchant, but he was not successful. He constantly complained of ill luck to Rabbi Twersky, who always advised him to drop his business and become a cantor. "For your melodies would rejoice the world, for which God would prolong your years," were the Rabbi's words.

About two years later, the famous Rabbi Mordechai, of Saslava (Vohlin), who also held his cantorship here, was killed in a riot. The Jews of Saslava applied to Rabbi Jacob Twersky for a Cantor, and he sent his best pupil, Seidel.

Seidel came to Saslava and his reputation commenced to grow. He was then invited to Rovno, where he became very famous, hence the appellation, Seidel Rovner. From Rovno, he went to Kisheneff, the famous city of cantors, and later to Berditcheff.

Since that day, his name has become famous throughout Russia and Europe. In the year 1896, Seidel was brought on to Berdichev as Chief Cantor of the New Synagogue, called "The New City Congregation." It was here that he gave to the world his most popular psalm compositions, "Hallelulah" and "Uhavti," for symphony orchestra and choir in opera style.

In 1903, Seidel was invited to London, where he took his audience by storm.

From London he was invited to Lemberg, Galizia, where he held his cantorship for seven years, after which he went to Vienna.

In 1914, Seidel arrived in New York. In 1923, Rev. Seidel Rovner and wife celebrated their golden wedding at the Hippodrome. In 1926, he gave a concert at Madison Square Garden, where twenty thousand people were present.

Before his departure for Palestine, Rev. Rovner was entertained by President Coolidge, in whose honor he wrote a special musical composition.

Rev. Rovner has come back to America and is appearing in a series of concerts managed by Prof. Victor Edison Perry, Louis J. Nusbaum and A. Chassin, son-in-law of the Cantor, and who is a director of the Cantors' Seminary and Cantors' League.

Hospitals Are Cause For Thanksgiving, Says Miriam Hospital Superintendent

Many people may feel that they have little to be thankful for this Thanksgiving, said Charles M. Hoffman, Superintendent of the Miriam Hospital, yesterday, but the Superintendent then proceeded to point out that the community that has a progressive hospital has a great deal to be thankful for. Hospitals should not be judged solely by the number of patients they serve, it was pointed out—although this is a good measuring rod—for hospitals encourage doctors to keep abreast of modern medicine, provide new equipment and in short, try to assure the community the most improved service. It must be remembered, too, that only a few of a doctor's patients need hospital care, and the new ideas of treatment, the new methods, etc., are carried into the homes and thus the hospital benefits many times the number of its patients in the course of a year.

Injuries, illnesses and many conditions which because of the facilities of the hospital and the up-to-the-minute knowledge of the staff remain trivial by prompt and effective treatment, would get beyond the trivial stage, said the Superintendent, and some of them would prove fatal were it not for the hospital.

Speaking of Thanksgiving, the Miriam Hospital always observes this day with appropriate menus and trimmings.

Inquiring Into Dumping Charges

CARELESS OPINION

By BERNARD M. GOLDOWSKY

Immediately after I announced that a renowned broadcasting and recording orchestra will furnish the dance music at the Charity Ball of the Jewish Home for the Aged, Christmas, at the Biltmore Hotel, I was censured for not engaging local talent because the funds for the Home's maintenance comes out of the pockets of the local Jewry.

I am exceedingly glad that that subject was brought up at this time so that it may be discussed freely and openly before it does harm to the cause.

Experience has taught me that if an annual ball is to be taken out of the ordinary dance class the public must be given novel attractions. And that is no slur on the ability of local Jewish musicians, who are probably as good, if not better, than many musicians of other cities.

Some years ago when I conducted the affairs of another annual ball, the same time-worn argument was advanced. I said then that I was perfectly willing to engage any group of musicians provided some one would guarantee the difference between the twelve to fifteen hundred dollars profit made annually on previous balls and the sum of over seven thousand dollars that was being realized annually on balls conducted under my supervision.

I realize that my good friends are perfectly sincere in their criticism, but it does not work out well. Our combined interest lies solely in the colossal task of making as much profit on a ball as possible, even if we are obliged to import the Prince of Wales on horseback to do it. I need service, not advice. That is sound logic, not intentional impertinence.

NOW HOLD YOUR BREATH!

In a previous issue of The Jewish Herald I promised to divulge the identity of the orchestra that will furnish dance music, so here goes.

Joe Rines, of Show Boat fame, in person, and his Columbia and Victor Recording Orchestra will keep you gliding enchantingly over the ball-room floor of the Providence Biltmore Hotel, Christmas night.

That musical organization comes high, but I am bound to make good my promise to the Rhode Island and Southern Massachusetts Jews to give them their money's worth. The best is none too good. Melodies emanating from the instruments of such artists are bound to linger in the memories of the patrons of the ball like a haunting perfume. That will go a long way to establishing the Charity Ball of the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island as THE EVENT OF THE YEAR.

It is a cherished ambition of mine to have every individual attending this ball shake me by the hand and tell me that every dollar spent was worth a five-dollar bill in delightfulness.

Yes, my dear friends, I shall make every effort to reproduce events of years gone by. I am extremely happy to do for the aged and feeble people what I have previously done for helpless children. If the Ruler of the Universe would only pay attention to me, I would say to him "Rebbono Shel Olom! I am a 'bum' musician. So instead of making me play a harp in heaven let me continue as Chairman of the Jewish Home for the Aged Charity Ball indefinitely."

Jewish Wedding Scheduled at Marathon Dance Barred

Lancaster, Nov. 25—(JTA)—A widely advertised Orthodox Jewish wedding ceremony, which was scheduled to take place last week at a Marathon dance here, was cancelled, due to the efforts of Rabbi Daniel L. Davis of Congregation Shaari Shomayim, who protested in behalf of the community against the profanation of a sacred ceremony.

The American Legion Post, No. 34, under whose auspices the Marathon was held, following the representations of Rabbi Davis, demanded the cancellation of the wedding and threatened the withdrawal of its auspices unless this was done.

LOOKING AT GERMANY

World Jewry now has its eyes focussed upon Germany while it is analyzing the situation as Adolf Hitler, its greatest enemy, strives to achieve the chancellorship. News coming out of that country is vague and uncertain. It smacks of the insidious politics and backstairs intrigue which marked the Schleicher-von Papen coup not so long ago.

Two things, however, are certain. The aged and revered President Paul von Hindenburg is not disposed to give the Nazi chieftain carte blanche in the conduct of the government; in fact, he has made it clear that he has no confidence in Hitler. Nor will the Nazi leader's success, if he finally does assume the office of chancellor, be an unconditional triumph. His hands, on the contrary, will largely be tied—and the knots will be put there as much by the sentiment in foreign countries as by a majority of the Reichstag. Significant is the fact that Nazis suffered important losses in the last election.

The other hope held out to anxious Jews lies in the fact that Herr Hitler, whether voluntarily or otherwise, has toned down considerably from his extreme stands on all matters. While Jews continue to suffer at the hands of his followers, especially in the rural sections, Hitler is crafty enough to see that German Jews long have played a major role in that nation's greatness. It ill behooves him to antagonize further so powerful a group when he is on trial before the nation and the world. Anti-Semitic riots and sentiments were good campaign fodder—so were his nationalistic demands—while the Fascist chief was making his way upward; now his extreme rantings will serve no purpose.

Nor is it likely that Herr Hitler, if he becomes chancellor, will remain there long. Von Papen, with all the tradition of German might makes right, with the backing of the powerful Junkers and Monarchists, failed after he disregarded and disbanded the people's representatives. Now comes Hitler, his strength already on the wane. German political sentiment seems to be "Give him enough rope and he'll hang himself," thereby saving the Reich a nasty job.

Hitlerism has done for German Jews what world persecution has done for Jewry the world over; it has strengthened the consolidation of that nation's Jewry. Perhaps never before in German history have the Jews had such cause to become united against a common enemy. They are well organized today. While the Hitlerite movement has wrought considerable damage to German Jews, it has not been an unmitigated disaster.

The most distressing aspect of the Nazi movement—and the one that is bound to be the most difficult to overcome long after Hitler is gone—is that the hates and antagonisms have been bred into the youth of the land. University students and even younger boys and girls have been inoculated with the dread anti-Semitic germ. Jewish school children are suffering now; later, unless this disease is eradicated, it will have its aftermath in anti-Jewish discrimination. Although serious enough, it is not the immediate cloud that looms large on the horizon of German Jewry; it is the threat of unceasing hatreds and persecutions in generations to come. This peril the Jew of every nation has faced and every preventive measure must be taken to forestall the spread of another such epidemic.

BY THE WAY

TIDBITS AND NEWS OF JEWISH PERSONALITIES

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Pretty soon you will be saying: Some of my best friends are consuls or ministers to Albania.

Barnard G. Richards is being talked of for Minister to Albania, and Abraham Goldberg is being boomed for Consul to Jerusalem.

But if they go abroad, the Roumanians and those other people will have to stop having Jewish pogroms, for there will be no one in America to make protest meetings. And what's the use of having a pogrom if you don't have protest meetings.

The job of being Minister to Albania is a very hard one. Only last year, it is said, three Americans accidentally strayed there, mistaking it for Albany, N. Y.

Once, however, you get used to their daily revolutions, there is nothing like the job of Minister to Albania. You can just sit back quietly and write the great American novel.

And when a Revolution breaks out, all you need to do is hang out the American flag or your talith katan—the Albanians are not particular and don't know the difference—and everything is fine. Or you can whistle the Star Spangled Banner or Hatikvah, and the Albanians stand at attention.

What Jew, especially if he has been at Zionist meetings, doesn't know what to do when a revolution breaks out? If worse comes to worse, you just take up a collection for the Jewish National Fund, and all the revolutionists disperse.

But why only Albania and Jerusalem? What's the matter with Pinsk?

The Democrats stand for a lower tariff. A Jewish consul at Pinsk could help remove the tariff on yashiva bachurim, which Pinsk produces in such great quantities. They could take our cotton and sell us yeshiva bachurim or Haman taschen.

Some of the best kneidlach in the world, too, are made in Pinsk. We could sell them near beer in exchange.

And what's the matter with Lithuania? Doesn't anyone want to be Minister to Lithuania? Are there no Litvacks yet among us?

Some people think Litvack is just a cuss word. But it isn't altogether that. They are people, too. In fact, I am a Litvack.

Several years ago, Henry Hurwitz of the Menorah tried to form an Association of Litvacks, on the style of Tygel's Polish Federation. In fact, the plan went so far that a hall was hired and delegates elected.

But they made the mistake of having the convention near a delicatessen store. The Litvacks, passing the store, saw the herring in the show window—and never got to the convention.

Sometime ago, a Washington correspondent of one of the New York papers reported that Herman Bernstein, the present Minister to Albania, had shown King Zog his Frigidaire, and the King had become very enthusiastic and ordered one for himself.

But that is only half the battle. What is in the Frigidaire is just as important as the Frigidaire. Richards perhaps will show Zog the gefilte fish, and scientists tell us, a man is what he eats, King Zog, first thing you know, will be wearing "pay-ess." (Cute little Chassidic curls).

An economic revolution might result. If we could get "pay-ess" in style, we could all save half of our barber bill and pay the saved money to the government to build more battleships.

And with Abe Goldberg as Consul to Jerusalem, the first thing you know, the High Commissioner of Palestine will be reading Goldberg's articles in the Hadoar and get first-hand information about Palestine.

After listening to Goldberg's speeches, I shouldn't be surprised one day to see Goldberg returning bringing the High Commissioner for a speaking tour for the Keren Hayesod.

And speaking of Albania again, there are, of course, those who say that though Albania is in fact, behind the scenes, as it were, ruled by Mussolini, that is no reason why anyone should try to muscle-in-it, since it is at present Bernstein's preserve.

And what will the Albania King "zog" if another Jew comes there?

But I am very much in favor of this business of making Jewish Consuls. If we had more Jewish Consuls, it wouldn't be so easy to suppress pogrom news. A friend of mine told me that he saw a Jew plainly kicked in Hungary, and it wasn't reported in the press.

Of course, the goy claimed that it was accidental, that he fell on a banana peel and he slipped and accidentally hit a Jew who was passing. But who can believe that a goy would just slip on a banana peel like that. It was "rishus."

And how it will help the publicity men—if we get more Jewish Ministers and Consuls. Now, if organizations send out releases with the names of these men, the editors look at it about a minute and then toss it in the waste basket. If they could attach their distinguished posts to their names, the editors would look at it two minutes before tossing it in the waste basket.

Jews In the Eyes of Europe's Haute Monde

All that night the mob raged through the town.

Their calls, the shuffling of their feet, filtered faintly into the Carson apartment from distant streets. In the morning Red Cross cars dashed through the square, there was the sound of gun-fire, and the luggage of departing Jews was piled at the curb in front of the hotel. Wilhelm and Ghika came in with accounts of looted shops and a tale of six peaceable citizens shot down by the fire of hidden machine guns as they were about to enter the restaurant where they always went for their morning glass of beer. The Reichswehr had been sent for; troops should arrive at any minute; there was a talk of declaring Bavaria separate from Prussia.

Everywhere were orators and milling crowds; the square was black with them. . . . It was dusk when she thought of returning home. . . . Her approach was met by a solid row of green uniforms and gleaming fixed bayonets; the Reichswehr had arrived. All streets were blocked and nobody might pass. Only one wide avenue remained open. . . . Far away, in the broad gloom of the avenue, a dark mass seemed to be moving, approaching. Out of the shadows came men on great horses, charging, the hoofs of their mounts striking fire from the granite blocks of the street, their outthrust lances catching rays of pale light on their polished points.

She was not a German Frau at all. She was an American by birth, the daughter of a diplomat and was known throughout Germany for her absurd efforts to adopt without modification the traditions of the class and religion she had married into. . . . Her's the distinction of glancing the length of the table and complimenting her host in strident tones: "Ah, I see you've everyone here from Frankfort Jews to royalties!" His cold blue eyes sought his wife's and directed them to where a rich elderly man stood, talking with ill disguised impatience to two plump Jewesses. . . . His eyes without jealousy stayed riveted upon her until he saw her withdraw her hand from the Count's and turn away to join the rich Kogmerzienrat, then he smiled at his pretty companion and nodded in the direction of his patron: "Sau Jud, but one needs them!"

Baron Sylvestre de Gottschalk's tall stooping figure stirs the imagination of even blasé Paris. He is awkward, inelegant of carriage and of manner in his fantastically cut and oddly colored garments. . . . He is consistently kind to his poodle and spasmodically kind to the friends of the moment who catch his fancy. Wherever he goes gossip follows in his wake, heavy and persistent as the amber scent in his clothing exudes. The parties he gives in his house, which is richer in beauty than many great museums, are a sort of cocktail in which all strata of Paris society, diplomatic corps, Faubourg St. Germain, art, literature and politics are shaken together with a very few decorative feminine specimens who do not belong to any society at all, conventionally speaking. . . . These are the ladies, these are the husbands, the brothers. . . . these are the people who talk of Gottschalk the Jew.

Often his strange ideas of hospitality provoked incidents which enlivened Paris conversations for weeks. He had ideas upsetting to the orthodox and took a sardonic pleasure in giving fully expression to them; to be the worst-mannered man in Paris, some said in the world, a Jew whose family's old home still stands in a German ghetto, and to see all these people accepting his brusqueries and groveling to his wealth, grasping the crumbs he throws at them—ladies with great names from the Faubourg.

At the last ball there had been the Gauthier incident; Madame Gauthier, the wife of the famous rue de la Paix jeweler, had received an invitation to the ball and had arrived accompanied by her husband. Sylvestre welcome Madame effusively but ordered Monsieur into the street.

"Where is the Baron?" the Duchess de St. Quentin was demanding loudly. "We must see him. We must say our adieus. It is outrageous this! Inviting us, our daughters to dance on the same floor, to eat in the same room with this woman who has disgraced our name. . . ."

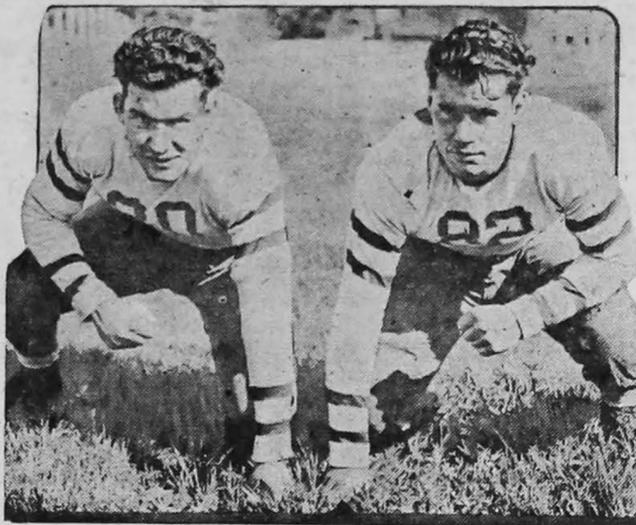

The woman with the sharp face came forward. "It is a disgrace, indeed! This is what comes of frequenting Jews with no discernment."

SPORTING WORLD

NEWS WRITTEN FOR THE JEWISH HERALD BY GEORGE JOEL

All the fighting in the fight business is not done in the ring. As a matter of fact there is more fighting done before the fighters step into the ring than there is after the opening gong sounds. Right now the fist world is all agog over the services of Maxie Baer, the California Jewish heavyweight. It seems as though a number of people are after his services. Here's the situation and it makes a good story.

The protagonists are Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, and the Madison Square Garden Corporation. Both are bidding for Baer's signature to a contract. Jacobs opened hostility on the day he sailed for Germany where he met Schmeling, his meal ticket. He announced that Schmeling was under no obligation to the Garden and would not fight under its managerial genius next June, in fact Schmeling was all set to meet the number three man, Baer, under the banner of an independent promoter to be named by Jacobs.

The Garden bosses, sitting in solemn conclave, retaliated by saying that Jacob's blast was just so much air and ballyhoo, spouted for the sole purpose of keeping Schmeling's name in the papers. In the meantime Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Garden, publicly asked Baer to toss over his present manager and enlist under the banner of Charlie Johnston, his brother. Mr. J. J. promised to make Baer the next heavyweight champion. The Garden boys even tried to laugh off that and Baer helped by not paying much attention to the offer.

However, from that day to this, the Garden has been doing everything in its power to wean Baer from his compact to box Schmeling next summer as planned by Jacobs. So far, Baer has stuck with Ancil Hoffman, his real manager, who is aligned with Jacobs.

Primo Carnera boxed Joe Santa in the Garden last week. It was a foregone conclusion that Carnera would win. The Garden has tried with every means at its command to persuade Baer to accept a bout with Carnera here next month.

OFFERED SHARKEY BOUT
Baer was offered the crack at Sharkey and the title in June, without further qualification, if he would accept the Carnera assignment and hang up a victory. In short, Baer would be given the coveted shot at the title without being asked to hurdle Schmeling.

So far Baer has turned a deaf ear to the Garden's blandishments. He definitely has declined the proposition to box Carnera. So there will not be much in the way of a match for Carnera in the Garden in December.

Baer undoubtedly figures that he can harvest more coin by fighting Schmeling than by mixing with Sharkey and still have the Sharkey bout next September if he can remove Schmeling in June. Baer realizes that Schmeling, after the hold he gained on the customers by his fight with Sharkey and his annihilation of Mickey Walker, is the best drawing card in the heavyweight ranks. He estimates, no doubt, that 20 or 25 per cent for boxing Schmeling would net him much more than 10 per cent for facing Sharkey, which means that he doesn't think the heavyweight title means much in a money way.

As long as Baer stands pat, Schmeling is in a good spot. If Baer does an about-face and throws in with the Garden, Schmeling will be left holding the bag. Baer is in the strongest position of any of the figures in this heavyweight triangle. Probably nobody knows that better than he does.

Jacobs injected the situation into print again when he announced in Paris recently that Schmeling and Baer would box in New York next June for the Milk Fund. He may have been overstepping himself in mentioning the Fund, which always has strung along with the Garden. But if Jacobs really can offer Schmeling and Baer, he won't have any trouble finding a promoter. It is the outstanding fight.

Times have changed. Imagine a fighter five years ago turning down a chance at the heavyweight crown because there was more money in being just a contender.

CHATTERINGS
Next week's column will be devoted entirely to our annual All-Jewish, All-American football team. It only goes to prove that you can't discourage a fellow who wants to try. . . . This year I am doing it all by myself and will be able to blame nobody if things go awry.

The only twins playing college football this season are the Singer brothers from New Jersey, two Sophomores, who are playing for Syracuse. Walter is an end and Milton is the center. Both boys played through the entire season. That Syracuse team was quite Jewish; besides the Singers, there was Fishel, a halfback, and Stark, a fullback.

What a thrill Charlie Freeman, old Princeton quarterback, experienced last week when he picked up the paper and found that his two sons, Charles and John, were playing in the backfield for the Manlius prep school team. Both boys starred. The old man played on the Manlius team himself, when he was their age. Did I say, "picked up the paper?" I just received a flash that the old boy came all the way from Hollywood to be on the sidelines at Kaller Field to watch his boys perform. Without getting too sentimental, I must say that there are few things more satisfying to a father than to see his boys follow in his own athletic footsteps.

The squash season has opened and in the first major tournament, Harry Wolf, present title holder, is walking through the ranks with little trouble. . . . He looks like the 1933 champ.

Halperin, Grossman and Friedman are the Jewish trio playing for the professional Brooklyn Dodgers football team. The club hasn't won too many games this year, but the Jewish fans in that borough are getting a big kick out of the Jewish footballers.

I'll bet the Harvard coach is still kicking at the eligibility rules that kept Kopans off the Harvard line. The Crimson boys certainly could have used his services this season.

steps are taken to create a Legislative Council.

The Colonial Minister refused to give the guarantees demanded by Mr. Janner. Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope's statement before the Mandates Commission was perfectly clear, said Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, "and entirely on the lines of policy of the late government and its predecessors."

The Colonial Minister at the same time stated that the fullest effort will be made to consult the interests concerned before a constitution of any Legislative Council is enacted. He stressed the statement made by Wauchope in Geneva to the effect that the one essential of anything that is done is that the terms of the Mandate for Palestine be completely maintained.

Lauds Jewish Initiative

"Fifty years ago Palestine was one of the neglected, decaying provinces of the decaying Turkish Empire. Its sole significance was sentimental. Today, by virtue of Jewish initiative, Palestine has become the focal center of the entire Near East. The Palestine Levant Fair, held in Tel Aviv in the spring of 1932, was the first thing of its kind ever held in Asia Minor. While small when compared with the fairs held in Europe and America, it gave a great impetus to local trade and industry. The plans which are already laid for the next fair, in 1934, envisage an enterprise which begins to measure up to western standards. It is expected that instead of the $3,000,000 worth of trade brought in by the fair of 1932 the fair of 1934 will net local manufacturers and merchants orders to the amount of at least $10,000,000.

"This amazing growth in Palestine has been made possible in the first instance by the sustained efforts of the Zionist Organization and its subsidiary funds, secondly through the growing participation of individual Jews in the building of the Jewish Homeland. The coming decade will probably witness an unprecedented expansion in the building of Jewish Palestine, for by now the feasibility of the enterprise has been established beyond a doubt."

No Burglars Need Apply Here

Burglars had better beware of Uncle Sam's mammoth new warehouse, recently completed at Washington, for an elaborate system of burglar and fire alarms makes it the best protected building in the world. Included is a device which records watchman's rounds in a new and easily understood manner and gives an alarm should he fail to visit any point, and a call bell signal by which any guard may be summoned to a telephone from any part of the building. The photograph shows A. Schnieder, chief guard and A. G. Mann, assistant superintendent of the warehouse, at the central switchboard of the alarm system.

Trade In Your Worn Tires for Safe Gripping Non-Skid Firestone Tires

LIBERAL trade-in allowance—now—on all Firestone High Speed and Heavy Duty Tires!

Why take a chance on worn, smooth, uncertain tires when you can buy Firestone non-skid safe, proven tires at lowest prices.

Firestone Tires are designed to grip the road. The non-skid tread is thick, tough and gives 25% longer non-skid safety.

Glen Schultz only last month set a new world's record in climbing Pike's Peak, in 16 min. 47 sec. His top speed was 78 miles per hour—negotiating many hair-raising turns where a skid or a tire failure meant death.

It's that kind of stamina that makes Firestone Tires safe and economical for you.

That's why race drivers use Firestone Tires. They won't risk their lives on any other make.

No tire in the world has the Firestone endurance. That is because Gum-Dipping, the patented Firestone process, transforms the cotton cords into tough, sinewy units.

It means that the liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, assuring protection against internal heat. Two Extra Gum-Dipped Cord Plies under the Tread, give 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body.

Don't buy cheap tires that are only made to sell. Don't risk your life on wet, slippery pavements these October days—Use the same precaution race drivers use. Trade in your old tires—We will give you a liberal allowance on Firestone Tires—the safest tires in the world.

The Firestone tread is designed with angles and projections to give the maximum traction and non-skid. Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world records on road and track for Safety—Speed—Mileage and Endurance.
