Conference on Civil Liberties

The national conference on civil liberties, to be held this week-end and which is sponsored by the American Civil Liberties Union, is particularly well-timed.

There is a disturbing amount of evidence to show that even a peaceful nation in a world of war must fight with increased vigor to keep the liberties of its individuals.

The Bill of Rights is 150 years old. That has given us time enough to take our liberties for granted, to grow complacent and listless in their defense.

But the suppressions of civil rights in Europe should drive home the fact of the matter: We can retain our liberty to think and pray and speak as we please only by constant, determined insistence upon these rights.

Wars Produce Strange Bedfellows

With war censorship making it difficult to learn what is happening to Jews in Germany, it is interesting to note the scattered indications of governmental policy in the days immediately preceding the conflict.

For the first time, Germany put obstacles in the way of Jewish emigration, preventing able-bodied men from leaving, and conscripting them into labor battalions.

In Berlin, yellow-painted park benches, reserved for Jews, were painted over in green, removing their special designation, and signs "Jews not desired" were removed from certain shops. The leaders of the Jewish community were ordered to begin rebuilding synagogues and permission was granted to worship during the High Holy Days.

These incidents are added nails in the coffin that Hitler is constructing for his racial and save-the-world-from-Communism policies that have been sacrificed on the altar of expediency.

Another Myth Destroyed

The notion that the Jewish people dominate the American press was given a death blow by Arthur Robb, editor of Editor and Publisher, trade journal of newspapermen, who revealed the absurdity of the charge by a survey made of the 1700 controlling owners of American daily newspapers published in English.

He discovered that only fifteen Jews, or less than one percent, are owners of dailies. Even more significantly he indicated that outside of New York and Philadelphia, no metropolitan daily is owned by Jewish people. Nor is there a single Jewish officer or director of any of the three major news services. Less than ten Jews are editors or managing editors of daily newspapers, and less than 25 are business managers, advertising managers or circulation managers.

The importance of this study lies in the recent insistence of American anti-Semitic propaganda that only its own assertions can be believed and not the ordinary newspapers, because the latter are controlled and distorted by Jews.

Nazis Take Over Jewish Enterprises Plight of Polish Jews Increases

PARIS. — Advices from Poland reaching here disclosed that all Jewish enterprises undamaged by German bombardment of Polish cities have been taken over by Nazi commissars, installed by the German high command in occupied Polish towns.

Jews who chose to remain in Polish towns, in spite of bombardment and inevitable occupation, are being subjected to severe measures by the Nazi administration. The homes and shops of Jews who were caught in the general flight of refugees from the advancing Nazi army were also taken over.

The plight of the Jews has aroused sympathy among Polish peasants who are secretly feeding and sheltering those unable to obtain food and helping others to escape into neighboring neutral countries.

Yishuv Imposes War Crisis Taxes

JERUSALEM. — A unified and disciplined Yishuv is mobilizing all its moral and material resources to meet emergencies of war, it was indicated in a manifesto issued here by the Vaad Leumi under the signature of its newly-elected President Pinchas Rutenberg.

The decision was also announced to impose new taxes on the Jewish community, particularly on persons of means, so that larger funds might be available to help the Yishuv cope with the economic effects of the conflict in Europe.

Soviet Ends Religious Instructions in Poland

MOSCOW. — The Soviet authorities have stopped religious education in the Jewish schools of the newly-occupied territories of Polish White Russia and the Polish Ukraine. The teaching of Hebrew has been replaced by instruction in the Ukrainian and White Russian tongues.

Bezbozhnik, official organ of the anti-religious movement in Soviet Russia, demands in its current issue the uprooting of Chassidism among the Jews in the Polish territory occupied by the Red Army. Chassidism must be rooted out in this territory "just like wild grass," the periodical declares.

Austrian Refugees Build Factory

CAPE TOWN. — Reporting that two Austrian refugees were building a factory which eventually would employ 2,000 workers, the Cape Times appealed for relaxation of red tape and restrictions hampering refugee enterprises, and recommended appointment of a small advisory committee to deal with such matters.

The new factory, situated near Cape Town, will produce calico and canvas.

To Direct B'nai B'rith Campaign

Major objective of the campaign is to enlist every adult Jew in B'nai B'rith's program of conservation, rescue and defense.

Hull Requests Aid For Stranded Medical Students

WASHINGTON. — Secretary of State Cordell Hull has suggested that some four hundred American medical students whose studies in Scottish schools were interrupted by the American government's restrictions on travel abroad be admitted to American universities for the duration of the war.

In a letter to Governor Herbert H. Lehman, who had written the State Department for an explanation of the ban on passports for the students, Secretary Hull expressed the belief that "there is a solution of the matter without jeopardizing the lives of these young men and the possibility of creating a bad international situation."

The four hundred students are among approximately a thousand, a considerable number of them Jewish, who annually go abroad to study medicine in foreign universities, most of them because they were not admitted to American medical schools. This situation was commented on this week by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, authors of a syndicated Washington column, who said the students were obliged to obtain their medical educations abroad because American schools were quietly limiting Jewish students to certain quotas.

Leaflet Distributor Gets 30-Day Term

MINNEAPOLIS. — An anti-Semite, George R. Blaisdell, 37, who distributed leaflets near a church signed "Committee for Relief of Jewish Refugees," was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse for disorderly conduct by Judge William C. Larson, who termed the leaflets "spurious writing emanating from an unknown source and calculated to create hatred and antagonism."

Judge Larson declared in his ruling that "there can be no more potent breeder of public disorder than a deliberate stirring up of class against class and race against race."

Fear Nazi Reprisal Over Jewish Legion

AMSTERDAM. — Jewish circles here feared serious reprisals against the Jews in Germany, particularly Zionist leaders, as a result of the formation of a Jewish legion in Palestine to aid Britain. Indication of serious developments was seen in German broadcasts emphasizing an alleged nation-wide wave of serious indignation in the Reich.

A broadcast from Cologne reported outbreaks of violence by Jews against Germans in Palestine. The broadcast asserted that mobs from the all-Jewish city of Tel-Aviv destroyed the whole German colony of Saron and that the leader of the colony, Wuertemberg, was forced to escape in an Italian airplane.

Bruno Walter's Daughter Slain

ZURICH, Switzerland. — Marguerite Neppach, the daughter of Bruno Walter, exiled German-Jewish conductor, has been shot dead by her German non-Jewish husband who then took his own life.

The tragedy of the refugee couple became known when Herr Walter cancelled an engagement to lead the Mozart Music Festival at Lucerne, Arturo Toscanini agreeing to substitute for him.

URGED TO RETURN

LONDON. — Newspapers reported that German Embassy officials were advising German Jews to return to the Reich. An official was quoted as stating: "We have advised all German citizens to return home. If it happens that there are Jews among them, well, they are still German citizens, and after all there are many Jews in Germany."

Jewish Leaders Are Shot; Chief Rabbi Among Victims

NEW YORK. — Rabbi Moses Sehorr, spiritual leader of Warsaw, and one of four former Jewish Senators in the Polish Parliament, was among 16 Jewish religious leaders arrested and shot by the Nazis, according to a report appearing in the Jewish Morning Journal in a London dispatch originating in Prague. The dispatch also disclosed that among those executed was Judge Gutschlechter of Warsaw.

In cities throughout the eastern part of Poland, especially in Galicia, the Soviet army of occupation have begun to enforce military measures and in Lemberg suspended publication of all Polish and Jewish periodicals.

The London dispatch revealed that Jacob Kenner, Polish correspondent, who had escaped to Hungary, had witnessed the terror in Lemberg following occupation by the Red army. Jewish religious leaders, Bundists (members of the Jewish labor party) and laborite Zionists were among those arrested in Lwow by the Reds.

Good Americans Are Good Neighbors

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON

Following is the second installment of Dorothy Thompson's appeal for support of the Providence-Cranston Community Fund Campaign which will begin Monday. The third and final installment will appear in next week's Herald.

It is a new experience that one wakes up in the morning, and says "I am thankful that I am still free. I am thankful that my government does not make spies of my neighbors. I am thankful that my little boy is not taught to throw a hand grenade. I am thankful that I cannot be thrown into prison for what I have always thought were my best impulses. I am thankful that no permanent blight is cast over my life by the racial origins of one of my grandparents. I am thankful that my neighbors will judge me for what I am and not for something over which I have no control."

To keep these things which are very dear to me, I am willing to pay, and I know that one way in which I will keep them is by every expression of human solidarity. We shall not keep them if there is rank injustice; we shall not keep them unless there is gratitude for them, expressing itself in social responsibility.

A nation begins to decay when its democracy becomes so leveled and so mean that it precludes such conceptions as gratitude, loyalty, duty, reverence and dignity.

Definition of Charity

"Charity" is a word that has grown meaner as it has grown older, cheapened from its original sense into meaning too often something that the rich give to the poor, perhaps out of bad conscience. Somehow, like democracy, it has come to be a weak word, perhaps it has been too often honored in the breach. But charity, "Charitas," means tenderheartedness and is as truly translated by the word love as by any — nonpossessive, nonself-seeking love. Charity is a product of sensitiveness. If a democracy loses its sensitivity; if its people fail to be disturbed by their neighbors' wounds, by and by there will be no democracy. We shall all be treated according to our deserts by some self-appointed judge, and Portia told Shylock, in the "Merchant of Venice," how badly off we are if we get what we deserve.

Some realization of this is back of the community chest movement. In the next weeks, all over this country, in hundreds of communities citizens will be asking other citizens to support the voluntary efforts of the people themselves to meet social needs. Some of these are immediate — for people in want.

No system of racial security yet devised by any state has ever been adequate to meet all of these needs. Even more important are the needs for preventive and remedial services. Out of the funds which are raised will come money for the hospitalization of those who are unable to afford it without full or partial help. Some of the money will be spent for orphan asylums, settlement houses, boy and girl scouts, YMCA's, YWCA's, work with delinquent children—rehabilitation work and preventive work as well — all the many spontaneous and voluntary social activities that give America its especial character.

The bride was attractively dressed in an afternoon outfit of teal blue, and wore a corsage of gardenias. The couple will make their home in New York City.

Community Fund Drive Begins Monday

"Open Doors," will also be presented.

The Community Fund was organized in 1926 to combine forty annual charitable campaigns into one, reduce campaign cost, eliminate duplication and waste, develop needed community services and raise standards. Since then over 400 campaigns have been eliminated and more than three-quarters of a million dollars has been saved in campaign costs alone.

In a letter received this week from Walker Mason, campaign chairman, Mr. Mason declared, "Your Community Fund cannot solve all the complicated problems of our community. But it does offer you a chance to help. It gives you an opportunity to do your share toward improving our community life."

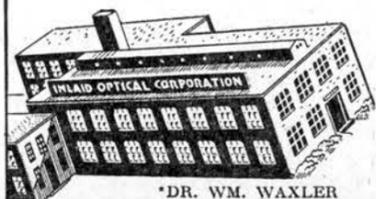

"This year, the Providence-Cranston Community Fund appeals to you to consider a pledge to the Campaign in a new light, —to make a pledge demonstrating your faith in the American way of doing things. For what is more uniquely American than our way of helping our neighbors through voluntary giving to our own private charities which serve the people in our own community?"

Uruguay Praises Jewish Colonists

MONTEVIDEO. — The Uruguayan press, commenting on the success of the first Jewish agricultural colony in the country, praised the settlement of Tres Arboles as providing "an illuminating example of what should be done in our own national economy."

The newspaper El Plato said that the success of the colony "must have a favorable influence on the immigration of Jews to Uruguay." Refuting the allegations made by anti-Semites that Jews do not make good agricultural workers, the newspaper El Imparcial declares that "The Jews are good colonists."

Cable Blessings To King George

Stored Goods of Refugees Held Duty Free at Customs

NEW YORK. — Household goods of 2,160 German-Jewish families, estimated to be valued at more than $3,000,000, are being stored in the New York Foreign Trade Zone, a free port, at Stapleton, S. I., pending the arrival of their owners, most of whom are in Cuba and England awaiting permission to enter the United States, it was learned here.

Goods may enter the zone duty free and be kept there indefinitely at a nominal storage charge of $5 monthly for each lift-van. The vans average one to a family. Since many of the owners will not be able to enter the United States for at least two years due to quota regulations, and others are still in Germany, making it uncertain whether they will ever be able to reach New York, the zone operators are faced with a serious problem.

Harry C. Shanks, operator of the zone has said, however, that although charges in the zone are payable when they accrue, and the goods may be sold at public auction in lieu of payment, he will permit no refugee to lose his property because of temporary inability to pay the storage fees. Mr. Shanks also said that he would not put the goods up for forced sale unless he was compelled to do so because of the death of the owner. There have been only two such cases so far.

Every one of the 60,000 Germans, Austrians and Czecho-Slovakians in Great Britain will have to face one of these tribunals. If they are genuine refugees they will have stamped across their registration books "refugee from Nazi oppression."

The figure represents a growth of 23,000 since the end of 1938, including a natural increase of 4,000 and 19,000 immigrants, legal as well as illegal. This is more than the increase of the whole year of 1938, which was 21,000 according to the fund's figures.
