Fate of Pharaohs

"And he said unto his people: Behold, the people of the children of Israel are too many and too mighty for us: come, let us deal wisely with them, lest they multiply, and it come to pass that, when there befalleth us any war, they also join themselves unto our enemies, and fight against us' . . ."

Familiar words. And, lest our rereading of them once each year at the Passover season be insufficient to keep them alive in our memory, Providence sends us, from time to time, powerful tyrants who belittle them night and day, till every Jew assimilates their meaning, till we need only hear the sentiment expressed in some place or other there are "too many" Jews, and we know what will follow.

Curiously enough, though, these echoers of the Biblical phrases and copiers of the tactics reported in the first chapter of Exodus seem to stop their reading right there. If they would take the trouble to read through the thirteen chapters that follow they might learn what was the outcome of the "wise dealings" Pharaohs recommended.

And if they would turn to history books they would discover that the outcome has been the same in the case of all of Pharaohs' imitators.

A True Story With a Moral

This is a true story with a moral for those Americans who look with a longing eye at the supposed "efficiency" of Fascism and the "achievements" or Mussolini.

After the World War, Italy experienced a serious and economic crisis, comparable to that which the United States went through in 1931, 1932 and the first part of 1933, except that the Italian crisis was more grave.

There were strikes and seizures of factories in 1920, and the members of the upper income group became alarmed for their lives and property. The strikes subsided, labor was settling down, the Government was committed to a program of gradual democratic progress.

Looking back it is easy to see that Italy was out of danger from radicalism and on the road to recovery before 1922. But reactionaries allowed themselves to exaggerate their own fears; they listened to a demagogue who used their money to buy up newspapers and street gangs and who insisted constantly that they were still in danger and only he could save Italy from Bolshevism.

Italian bankers, industrialists, professional men had scant respect for Mussolini. But they thought they could use him against the unions and against democratic forces generally. So they helped him into power.

Democracy in Italy was smashed and progress was stopped, as those who supported and tolerated Mussolini desired. But—

Il Duce demanded his price. And his supporters have paid more than democratic progress would have demanded of them. Not only are their personal liberties destroyed, but their very property, which Fascism was supposed to protect, is being taken from them.

To pay for the Ethiopian adventure there was a 10 per cent CAPITAL LEVY on all real estate and corporations last year.

Seder Ceremony on April 3 To Mark Start of Passover

Passover, the Feast of Unleavened Bread is the Jewish Spring Holiday, with its story of redemption. It will open with Seder Services at sundown, April 3, in homes of Jews throughout the world.

The oldest holiday in the Jewish calendar Passover had its beginnings in the early Spring festival celebrations of shepherds and farmers.

A new significance was attributed to the festival, when in addition to being a feast of supplication for a good year, it was made an occasion of thanksgiving for the redemption of the Jewish people from slavery in Egypt.

During the seven days of the festival only "matsos" (unleavened bread) is eaten in commemoration of the haste of the people when, fleeing from Egypt they did not have time to await the rising of their dough.

Though celebrated in the Temple when Jerusalem was the religious center of Judaism, the Passover holiday afterward became and has remained primarily a holiday observance in the home.

The Seder Service retells the crossing of the Red Sea when the Children of Israel escaped from their oppressors. Matsos still take the place of leavened bread for the duration of the holiday.

ST. JOSEPH, M. — Constable Louis Silverman is proof that all of his calling aren't the hard-hearted creatures tradition makes of them.

Touched by the plight of the families he was called upon to put out of their homes because they couldn't pay the rent, Silverman has taken an option on an old hotel and plans to make it into a home for the destitute.

The constable plans to hold a public dance to raise the $2,000 the hotel will cost. Most of the rooms of the four-story building still are furnished, and Silverman estimates he can accommodate 800 persons.

$25,000 Grant Given For Scientific Study

BALTIMORE. — Doctor Isaiah Bowmann, president of the Johns Hopkins University, last week announced a $25,000 grant from the Refugee Economic Corporation for a continuation of a scientific study of settlement begun ten years ago.

Voice is Father Coughlin's, But Words Are Nazis'

Charges that Father Charles E. Coughlin takes some of the anti-Semitic material appearing in his magazine, Social Justice, from the official Nazi press were made by the American Jewish Congress.

The Congress cited an article printed in Social Justice March 6, and gave as the article's source a publication Sigilla Veri, issued by the Nazi publishing house of Ulrich Fleischhauer, which publishes World Service an anti-Semitic bi-weekly clip sheet.

The material shown below in parallel columns, is taken verbatim from Social Justice and from the Nazi book.

The story itself, the American Jewish Congress declared is an ancient anti-Semitic lie, first published in Germany in 1875, publicly admitted to be a forgery later on, and since revived by the Nazis. It purports to show a "Jewish plot" to dominate the world press. The Congress cites the startling similarity between the wording used by Father Coughlin's paper and that of the Nazi book.

Jews Boast Control Over Press

Moses Montefiore, speaking before an assembly of Jewish Rabbis in Cracow, Poland, as long ago as 1840, said: "What are you drivelling about? As long as we have not got control of the press all your chatter is useless. You can do no good whatever with your societies, loans, bankruptcies and that sort of thing. As long as we can not make use of the press in order to stultify and delude the world, our efforts will be of no avail, and our 'domination' will remain a will-o'-the-wisp."

Our informant on this interesting bit of intelligence is Simon Wolf, the Jewish writer. He adds: "We all know that the first bankers of the world—Rothschilds—are Jews. We know they control not only the money market, but also the political destiny of the European world. The press of Europe is mostly controlled by Jews."

Moses Montefiore, famous Jewish philanthropist says the Congress, never visited Cracow, and Simon Wolf, American writer, never wrote what he's alleged to have written by Social Justice.

In order to mislead the nations for the purpose of Jewish domination, Montefiore advised first the utilization of the press, which at the opening of the industrial age was just growing out of its baby shoes.

Speaking before an assembly of Rabbis in Cracow, in 1840, he said. "What are you drivelling about? As long as we have not got control of the press all your chatter is useless. You can do no good whatever with your societies, loans, bankruptcies and that sort of thing. As long as we cannot make use of the press in order to stultify and delude the world, our efforts will be of no avail, and our domination will remain a will-o'-the-wisp." Shouted Objections To Trade Boycott

No Vote Taken On Proposed Ban

NEW YORK. — A crippled Jewish editor who was tortured by pro-Nazi hoodlums a year ago disrupted an anti-Nazi rally in the Hippodrome last week when he rose from his seat and protested Nazi boycotts only intensified anti-Semitism.

"Speaking as one who has had half a swastika cut into his body by the Nazis and has been crucified by them, I tell you that nothing has done more to intensify anti-Semitism than the use of the boycott as a weapon," the editor, Dr. Charles S. Weiss, shouted.

Law Asked to Curb Isms in Army, Navy

WASHINGTON. — Legislation to curb the subversive agents working within the army and navy of the United States was asked of Congress recently. Most of the activities were reported to be of Communist origin.

A letter from the Navy Department declared present laws were inadequate to meet the situation, since those responsible for the propaganda "avoid use of the mails." This prevents action under the postal acts.

A draft of a proposed bill to cover the situation would impose a fine of $1,000 or two years in prison for "inviting disobedience of military orders or regulations."

Refugee Kisses Ground on Arrival

NEW YORK. — Hermann Leopoldi, Viennese Jewish vaudeville comedian and musician was photographed by newspapermen kissing the ground as he arrived here on the United States liner City of Baltimore.

The famous comic had been held for nine months in the Dachau and Buchenwald concentration camps, where he sang songs of his own composition to keep up the morale of the prisoners. "I am so glad—so happy," he said. "Here I can breathe the free air. In Germany every man has a gun in his hand."

Paper Hits Plan for Statue of Negress

BERLIN. — The S. A. Mann, official organ of the Nazi storm-troopers, bitterly attacked plans to erect a statue of a Negress as the central figure of a monument to the war-lost German colonies soon to be raised at Potsdam.

"If we put up a statue of a black woman in the city of the Soldier King (Frederick the Great)," the newspaper said, "the Jewish world press will have a to say that we are ridiculing our own racial policy."

The paper observed with regret that German "Aryan" principles were not being more strictly adhered to "at a time when the Reich is going to be able soon to regain her colonies."

Sapinsley Stresses Need of Center Building

Urges City Jewry To Speed Donations One-Third of $75,000 Raised

As the $75,000 Building Fund Campaign of the Jewish Community Center entered the second week of its duration, Milton C. Sapinsley, general chairman, issued the following appeal to the Jewish community of Providence:

"When this issue of THE JEWISH HERALD is in your hands, the Jewish Community's drive for funds with which to rebuild and enlarge, add a permanent auditorium, and make the plant as a whole safe for the children who use it will have reached the half-way mark. Frankly, the result has been rather disappointing.

"Out of a total of approximately 4000 pledge cards, our workers have reported on less than 700, with a goal of $75,000, an amount which careful investigation has shown us is the minimum with which the requirements of the Center can be satisfied, we have to date succeeded in raising some $22,000, less than one-third the required amount.

"Can it be that notwithstanding the approval of such organizations as the Providence Community Fund, the Council of Social Agencies, the Providence Chamber of Commerce, none of which is exclusively Jewish but all of which have recognized the need and urged whole-hearted support, the Jewish community itself is actually indifferent to the success of the campaign? That I cannot believe. During the years of my connection with the Center, time and again the need for expansion in plant and facilities has been brought to my attention by practically everyone with any interest in a central gathering place for Jewry until I felt convinced that the community as a whole was in agreement on the matter. I still feel that it is, and I cannot, therefore, entertain the notion that the community will let the Center and the 4000 Jewish children who should have its facilities, go by the board.

"In behalf of the campaign committee; in behalf of the hundreds of boys and girls, young men and women to whom the Center is or can be a second home, I urge you to give, and give until you can feel pride in your contribution. If you will but do that, this campaign will be a rousing success.

"If one of our workers has not yet called on you, remember that there are more than 4000 cards to be covered, and that you can be of invaluable assistance to the campaign by taking the initiative and your mailing contribution di-

A special meeting of all workers will be held at the Center Sunday evening, April 2, at which time a program of entertainment will be offered. Owing to the advent of Passover, there will be only one meeting, on Thursday April 6, next week. Campaign meetings will resume with a meeting at the Center the following Thursday evening, April 13.

Seder to be Given By Synagogue Students

Students of the Congregation Sons of Abraham Sunday and Hebrew Schools will present on Sunday, before the entire congregation, a dramatized sketch of the traditional Passover Seder, with the symbols and ceremonies, including kiddush, the four questions, the four typical sons, the recitation of the Hagada and the cup of Elijah, the prophet, Mr. and Mrs. Rosenblum and Samuel L. Eisenstadt will assist in conducting the Seder.

On Sunday morning, April 16, 11 o'clock, Jewish moving pictures will be shown to Sunday and Hebrew School students, through the courtesy of Samson's Picture Service. All children of the vicinity are invited to attend.

Czar of Jews Heads New Office

BERLIN. — The establishment of a central emigration bureau for Jews within the next week will be headed by a Storm troop official named Eichmann, who in Vienna earned the sobriquet "Czar of the Jews," it was reliably reported.

It is believed that if Eichmann or one of his type controls the emigration office, there is no doubt that Vienna's story of panic flight and continuous harassing of the Jews until in desperation they smuggled themselves across forbidden frontiers with false passports will be repeated on a wide scale in Germany.

Where Now, Refugee?

By Hendrik Willem Van Loon

I am, among other things, a geographer. Therefore, when the problem was being discussed of finding some convenient territory, "preferably not too well inhabited," which would be used as a general place of refuge for those who now face exile from their native lands, I became a sort of perambulating geographical encyclopedia and whenever I met one of my neighbors on the train or in the drugstore, I was asked the question, "Now, where would you send these exiles if you were running this problem?"

When I confessed that I had not the slightest idea, I was looked at with deep scorn and suspicion, and not infrequently I heard the question whether I had ever studied any geography at all.

Complicated Question

The question seems very simple, but as a matter of fact, it is hopelessly complicated. Our ancestors used to print the words "Terra Incognita" across all those parts of the map about which they knew either very little or nothing at all, and then they ceased to bother about these regions. Sometimes they went a little further and were a little more precise, as in the case of those Spanish map makers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, who covered the greater part of the United States with the delightful legend, "All this land is of no earthly use to anybody."

Of course, they were hopelessly mistaken, for that land that was of "no possible use to anybody" is today the United States of America.

And for all we know, those thousands of square miles that seem to us today to be of "no use to anybody," may some day feed millions of inhabitants. But we have our doubts, for technically we have gone so far ahead of our ancestors that we can make the desert blossom and raise grain where our grandfathers could only hunt wolves and bears, or starve to death.

Few Empty Spots

From a strictly geographical point of view, there are now very few spots on the map about which we are really ignorant. But can the rest be opened up to civilization and can it be turned into a home for some future race of refugees or settlers? Suppose that we begin at home with our new western hemisphere. I have an atlas of America before me, as I hope that you will have when you read this article. All sorts of extra maps tell us about the mean annual rainfall and the prevailing winds and the political divisions and the magnetic variations and the mean annual cloudiness. But please pay very close attention to two little charts which are tucked away in a rather obscure part of that useful volume. They are supposed to show as the "Commercial Development" and "Chief Occupations" of the various regions. Those are the subtitles which interest us most of all when we are looking for a new haven for the disinherited masses of this earth.

Of course we must find a place for all these exiles. We are not the sort of people who can live happily while millions of others starve to death or are doomed to a life of bondage. But off-hand, I must express a very serious doubt about most of the plans, that until now, have been brought to our attention.

It was very generous of some of Europe's leading statesmen to offer those hundreds of thousands of square miles (which sometimes belonged to them and sometimes did not) to the poor exiles from Central Europe. But wouldn't it mean that they were being thrown from the frying pan into the fire? And would the wilderness be more merciful than the concentration camp?

First, Canada

Let us begin at home. There is that immense tract of forests and plains in the northern part of the Dominion of Canada which is usually referred to by the name of the Northwest Territories. There is land enough there, if you divide humanity to the number of square miles available, to take care of the whole population of this earth. But what kind of land is it? The map that shows the commercial development, colors this region a delicate pink and then in small letters informs you that a delicate pink means "regions ultimately capable of commercial development but at present undeveloped." That, I fear, is expressing it very mildly.

Three hundred years ago that same legend could have been engraved upon all this territory.

Three hundred years ago, too, there were political and religious and racial upheavals which forced large numbers of people to look for a new home across the Atlantic Ocean. New England (the name tells the story) was settled by people who so completely despaired of the Old England that they wanted to start all over again (and from scratch) in a new and happier part of the world—in a new England.

The puritans came through, by the grace of God and the generosity of some of their Indian neighbors.

Not for City People

How would such city and village people fare today if, without generations of previous training behind them, they now tried to build homes along the frozen shores of the Hudson Bay itself or along the banks of the Great Slave Lake or the Great Bear Lake or the Mackenzie River?

I think that I can give you the answer. They will stick close to the railroad stations where they have been told to get off and there they will sit and starve until relief comes. These small tradesmen and slum dwellers will prefer a death with which they are familiar to a life that has not a single point of contact with anything they have ever experienced before.

Palestine Top Heavy

You may think that I am too pessimistic and you may point to Palestine as an example to show me that the thing can be done. But that great experiment is completely top-heavy. The cities are much too densely populated, compared to the country districts. This is entirely regrettable, yet experience has proved that it is impossible to move the professional men or the merchants to a farm. As an expert once told me: One night as well expect to try to make the mammals live in the water and to persuade the fish to go and live on dry land.

And so, for the moment, the legend on the map of northern Canada showing us the chief occupations of that wilderness will continue to read, "hunting, fishing and collecting." For the refugee is neither a hunter, a fisherman nor a collector of pelts. And he is much too old to learn a new trade.

It Happened This Week

Royal Visitors Want to be Alone

LONDON. — No hobnobbing with the common people is contemplated for the King and Queen during their visit to this country. Buckingham Palace officials have emphasized that their Majesties splendid isolation must be preserved.

Court Orders Review on Film

The Supreme Court will hear arguments in the film banning of "Professor Mamlock" on April 17, it was announced this week after a writ of certiorari was issued by the Court ordering the Bureau of Fire and Police to submit all their records concerning the disputed film.

Artificial Lightning

NEW YORK. — An invocation at the World's Fair will be a 129-foot bolt of lightning from the blue, complete with cloud. And puns about trying to steal thunder are strictly forbidden.

Attempt to Organize School Teachers

A movement was inaugurated here this week to organize the teachers of the city into a union which would be an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. About 100 teachers attended the first meeting to listen to Maurice Wheeler, field representative of the Federation.

A letter from Mayor John F. Collins was read. It urged the teachers to organize "so that their collective strength may be placed behind a reform program which would mean no reduction in their pay."

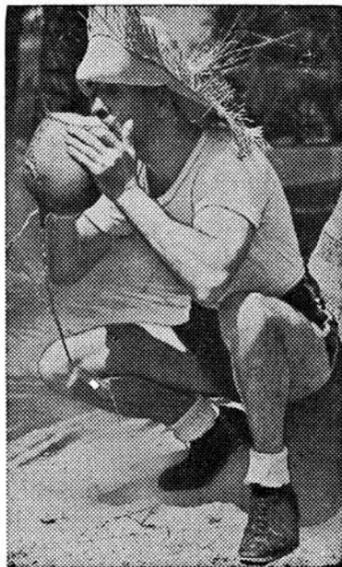

On Prodigies

NEW YORK. — It's just as bad for a child to be too bright as to be backward, an educator told the College of Physicians. Prodigies need as much adjustment and training as dullards, if they're not to become mental patients.

Election Frauds

More indictments on election fraud charges were handed down by the Providence and Bristol County grand jury. William J. Little, Republican city committee chairman and two Central Falls city officials were among the eight named by the grand jury in their report.

No Way To Train

Kayo Morgan, Stamford, Conn., fighter who (will mix) Sunday with Bantamweight Champion Sixto Escobar in a title bout at San Juan, Puerto Rico, is shown "in training" on the Caribbean Island. Morgan's diet features coffee, favorite Puerto Rican drink, while he wears a native straw hat.

Gets Fortune If She Marries Jew

GENEVA, Ill. — Adele Gay, a Chicago hospital clerk, must marry a man of the Jewish faith within a year if she wants to qualify for an inheritance estimated at $40,000 to $70,000.

Miss Gay, whose former name was Goldman, joined the Congregational Church seven years ago over the protests of her father who, in his will this week, said if she refused to marry within a year, and to a Jew, she will be cut off with only a $5 bill.

Miss Gay said she was aware of her father's intention. "It will make no difference to me," she said. "I have no intention of marrying anyone."

Unemployment Act

A proposal, tagged on to an amendment of the R. I. Unemployment Act, which would have extended the act to cover all employers have one or more employees, was deleted this week by the Senate labor committee in response to an avalanche of protest for small business men.

Advise of New Mosquito Danger

NEW YORK. — A horde of African mosquito invaders reached Brazil and attacked population with a deadly form of malaria. The Rockefeller Institute investigating the menace says a northward advance to the United States is threatened. It is believed the Monroe Doctrine won't kill mosquitoes.

Religious School To Mark Passover

The Religious School of Temple Emanuel will have three special Passover programs. The first will be a Children's Model Seder conducted by the children and to be held on Thursday afternoon, March 30, from 4 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Jack Cerel is chairman.

The second will be a Passover Assembly program on Sunday morning, April 2, from 10:30 to 11:30 o'clock, presenting a Passover Operetta entitled "The Jews in Egypt." Mrs. Fred Weiser is in charge. The parents are invited to this program.

The third will be the annual Home and School Sabbath service to be held on Friday night, April 7 on Sabbath Chol Hamoed Pesach, in which 60 children will present a program.

Beth-Israel Sets Dates for Bazaar

Temple Beth Israel announces the dates this week for its annual Bazaar as May 10, 11, and 13. Prizes consisting of valuable gifts or their equivalent in cash have been announced by the chairman, Isadore Miller.

A feature of the annual Bazaar has always been the annual dinner of the Congregation. While the date has not yet been set, due to the absence from the city of Jacob Licht, President, this dinner will take place some time before the actual launching of the Bazaar itself. The time of the Bazaar has been shortened from previous years as an evidence of cooperation with other affairs of a similar nature being conducted in the city, in particular that of the Jewish Home for the Aged.
