Congress Scores N. E. Prejudice

Editorials

Aid To Britain

Widespread interest has been evinced throughout the country in the proposal by the American Jewish Congress that organizations co-ordinate their activities in a nation-wide effort to aid Britain in her struggle against the forces of Nazism.

Franz Werfel, distinguished author, in urging assistance to Great Britain, declared, "If England falls, American Democracy falls with her. If England and American Democracy fall, Judaism and Christianity will fade away into shadowy emptiness and will quickly disappear. Nothing that we do, therefore, can be too much."

While individual organizations have made actual collections on behalf of Britain and others have contributed sums of money to their home towns, the proposal to organize this scattered assistance and integrate it into a force that will provide needed supplies in an ever-increasing stream, is a welcome one. There should be no delay in putting the plan into effect.

Women Pioneers

Members of the Providence Women Pioneers are justifiably proud of their accomplishments during the past 15 years.

And when they gather, on Tuesday afternoon, to celebrate this milestone they can look back to the day when they challenged the traditional attitude that women's place is only in the home. Since then they have proven by their activities that they have become a vital cog in the wheel of communal activities.

In America the Pioneers have as one of their basic platforms a life built on better understanding and social and economic equality. For that reason it has accepted and advocated the Poale Zion ideology which aims at the productivization of the Jewish masses and shares with other progressive forces in the American community the desire to establish a better society.

Many forget that while the Pioneers are vitally concerned with their Palestinian program, they have not confined themselves entirely to that work. Emphasis is also placed on cultural work, through self-education and by lecture tours by prominent leaders in the movement.

This positive attitude in all programs that would lead to a better community has earned the respect of all. The Women Pioneers have earned the right to celebrate their anniversary.

Says Colleges, Firms Admit Discrimination

Approves Move To Aid Britain

BOSTON. — Anti-Jewish prejudice on the part of New England colleges and business firms was alleged last Sunday in a resolution adopted by the New England division of the American Jewish Congress which met at the Hotel Bradford, Boston.

"Here in New England," read the resolution opposing anti-Semitism, "interviews with many of the larger universities, employment agencies and business firms have revealed that there is a definite discrimination."

Organizations Send Delegates

More than 1,000 persons, representing more than 100 Jewish organizations attended the annual convention of the Congress which passed numerous resolutions in support of Great Britain and in protest of discrimination against the Jewish race.

Approve Aid to Britain

Support of the government in helping Great Britain was pledged, as well as the active participation of Jews in agencies lending support to the British cause. Increased aid to China was urged, and an embargo on all war supplies to Japan.

The convention resolved to ask for a Federal investigation of forces seeking to foment anti-Semitism. It condemned "fifth column" activities and called for a stand by all denominations against Communism.

Patria Survivors to Remain in Palestine

Illegal Immigrant Policy Unchanged

LONDON (Palcor Agency. — The survivors of the Patria which sank last week in Haifa Harbor will be permitted to remain in Palestine, but the Government's policy toward illegal immigration remains unchanged, George Henry Hall, Parliamentary Undersecretary for the Colonies, declared in debate in the House of Commons today.

The debate was precipitated by lengthy questioning by Colonel Josiah C. Wedgwood, Laborite, over the methods pursued by the Government in dealing with Jewish immigration into Palestine. The burden of Colonel Wedgwood's remarks dealt with the waste of human resources and the unnecessary destruction of the Patria at a time when the ship could be used to transport men and munitions to Greece.

THE telephone's part IN NEW ENGLAND'S present program

To

New England men who have joined the nation's military and naval forces;

The families of these men;

Workers in industries important to national defense;

The management of these industries;

Other New England people interested in knowing how well prepared the telephone companies are in meeting communication needs.

To each of you, a familiar story takes on new meaning because of the emergency which has arisen. That emergency separates families; it speeds up the demands of industry for raw material and finished products; it focuses your eyes on the vastly increased need for communication; it evokes memories, if you are old enough, of that 1916 era when the country faced another emergency.

Striking indeed is the contrast between telephone service as you know it today and the service which existed in that other time of crisis.

Today, in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, there are a million and a third telephones, a growth of a hundred and seventy per cent from the scant half million of 1916. Today's telephones are connected by a network of nearly six million miles of wire, most of it in cable buried deep in the ground against the acts of both men and nature. That is a four-fold growth from the copper wire on poles and crossarms which paralleled the roads of that other era. Important cities no longer depend on a single route for their calls; alternate cables now connect them, so that service interruptions are almost unknown.

The doughboy of 1916 had never talked by radiotelephone, for there was none; his orders couldn't reach him by teletypewriter, as they may now; he probably had never heard of a dial telephone.

Today, the telephone, aided by radio, encircles the globe; teletypewriters flash the written messages of the military and civilian establishments of the nation from one coast to the other. . . . Nearly three-quarters of a million dials, of watch-like precision, speed New England's calls to their destinations. Two thousand motorized units, whose mobilizing power New England saw after the hurricane, carry on the services of supply, construction, installation and repair.

A single sentence used by your long distance operator points up the story. Be the call near or far, she almost always says, in 1940, "Hold the line, please." In 1916, you may remember, her response was always, "Hang up, please, and I'll call you."

These advances have not come without hard work, planning and vast investment of money. . . . Systematic probing for new and better materials and new ways of using nature's bounty has been carried on by the Bell Telephone Laboratories. Adequate sources of supply and advanced methods of manufacture have been developed by the Western Electric Company for the entire Bell System, of which your Telephone Company is a part. . . . Our own skilled operating force of more than twenty thousand people has grown both in numbers and in competence.

1940 telephone service brings assurance to the military and naval forces and to industry and its workers that their Telephone Company is ready to do its job—promptly, efficiently and cheerfully.

And there we stayed till we had enough
To fill the column with fashion stuff . . .

While a woman's shop downstairs was presenting a style review, members of Senior Hadassah, holding their meeting last Tuesday afternoon in the Biltmore foyer, pleased this department no end, with their own flair for clothes . . . In another column of the Herald, you'll find an account of the actual business of the meeting, but the business of clothes we'll take take care of right here . . .

It was pleasant to see so many 'pillars' of the local Chapter still their wonderfully active selves, and equally pleasant it was to see newly married young matrons, following right in the proverbial footsteps of the senior members . . .

In our usual observation stance at the doorway we noted Mrs. Maurice Robinson in a crepe dress of cloud blue, cut sort of on the apron silhouette . . . Mrs. Daniel Irving, her usual gracious self in an unusual outfit of black, with a dubonnet velvet skirt, and dubonnet trimming on the blouse . . . Mrs. Arthur Kaplan in a hat and frock of pale foam blue rabbits' hair . . . Mrs. Sidney Weinstein, exquisite in a wool frock of buttercup yellow, and a darling hat . . . A white beaded Peter Pan collar on a fitted black crepe frock chosen by Mrs. Irving Wattman . . .

Celia Korn Feldman wore a silk jersey dress of scarlet, and a black hat in the Spanish manner, with a mantilla-like veil . . . Mrs. Maurice Hendel, big as a button and ten times as cute, in her frock of slate blue corduroy, with buttons in the form of little old-fashioned school slates . . . Mrs. Harold Weinstein was a devotee of something smart and black . . .

Mrs. Archibald Silverman, speaker of the afternoon, entered in her stunning mink coat properly complemented by orchids . . . Her frock was black . . . Gold pailletes were used for accent on the pockets of Mrs. Samuel Michaelson's black dress . . . Her hat was mink . . . Sitting beside her at the door was Mrs. Everett Cowen, wearing a darling dress of black, with a fob of colorful ornaments . . . A much-veiled black hat on her short locks . . .

A precious crepe dress of winter blue, with pinafore-like ruffles worn by Mrs. Maurice Bazar, she of the charming Southern accent . . . Landscape green was a colour unanimously favored by several of those present, and here are some of them who wore it . . Mrs. Saul Abram's wool dress was of that hue, and she wore a silver fox hat, while Mrs. Henry Sopkin's green frock was contrasted by a brownish chapeau . . . . . Mrs. Harold Sydney had on a unique outfit of "evergreen" green, with a velvet skirt and torso blouse . . . Green visored hat to match . . . Mrs. Abe Blackman's outstanding outfit of green wool crepe had a hat to match, covered with clouds of orangy-brown veiling . . . An outfit of moss green, with a longish jacket was selected by Mrs. Herman Swartz and her hat was a breton sailor . . .

Mrs. Leo Logan was lovely in a dress of black bengaline, made with a peplum . . . Her coat, wonderful mink . . . From the other end of the room we spied Mrs. Herman Eisenberg in black and red, as was Mrs. Irwin Silverman . . . Red trim on a black frock also poked out from a black and mink outfit worn by Mrs. Matthew Segool . . . Mrs. Samuel Gan wore something in checks, which peeked out from her beige coat . . .

And about here, we departed . .

WEDDINGS, PARTIES and BANQUETS

Scene Around Town

BY HENRY DAVIS

WELL OFF

As you are now, tho' still quite fair
You seem to lack the carefree air
You had when we walked side by side
You made a perfect banker's bride . . .

Goodbye, my pet, I don't regret
You're leaving me flat — cause you've grown fat . . .

—Don Wah Wah

From Washington we hear that Meyer Mandell of this city contribute the cranberries for the White House Thanksgiving Day Dinner . . . Mr. Mandell this week received a note of thanks from one of the president's secretaries . . . Evelyn Nulman and Edward Katz of Worcester will be exchanging vows one of these days . . . Hy Lisker will be married next Thursday to an out-of-town lass . . . Willard Rifkin and Rose Lazarus will be saying "I Do" soon . . . The bride-to-be is to be the guest of honor at a party, to be held December 23 at the Narragansett Hotel . . .

Here and There

A new organization devoted to cultural things in Life has been organized with Milton Paisner as president, and Martha Kaplan as secretary . . . Known as the "25 Group" — similar organizations exist in other New England states — the members, all college graduates, meet every two weeks . . . Maurice Hendel leaves Monday for a trip to Washington . . . The Nat Roys are vacation-minded and will sail soon on the good ship, "America," for the West Indies . . . While an energetic Jack Frost has most of us longing for the warm sands of Florida, Mrs. Paul Bergman and Mrs. Nathan Temkin prefer Montreal, where they are on extended visits . . .

Homecomings

The past few days seemed like Old Home Week . . . We saw many a former resident, back in town for brief visits . . . Mrs. Erich Bruch, formerly Evelyn Horenstein, is here from Cleveland . . . Abbott Coburn, now of Chicago, who some folks will remember as Abbott Goldberg when he lived in Providence about sixteen years ago, visited the Philip Marcus's and the Harry Jagolinzers . . . And we hear that Irene Greene is coming home from New York for the Christmas holidays . . . The first rumbles of New Year plans indicate that the Sam Greenes, Albert Kumins, Nat Weisses and Adrian Goldsteins are completing arrangements for a gala New Year week-end in the big city . . From the Knights of Pythias comes word of a New Year affair that they will sponsor at the Miriam Plaza . . .

New Doings

"Jewish Day" at the Sale for the Blind, held last week at the Outlet, resulted in the biggest receipts ever recorded . . . Junior Hadassah is bringing the Jewish film, "Eli Eli" to the Playhouse on January 12 . . . Tickets may be obtained from any member . . . The annual linen shower of the Miriam Hospital takes place on Monday afternoon at the Biltmore . . . The event is held yearly to help replenish much needed linen supplies throughout the Hospital . . The Morris Cowens are now the owners of a beautiful rug purchased at the Dutee Flint auction held this week . . . Mrs. Eddie Berren has her eyes on Florida . . . Irene Berman was given a shower at her home last Wednesday nite by her sister Ruth . . She'll be married soon to Mac Isserlis of Fall River . . .

That's all for now . . .
