IN FLUSHING, QUEENS, RABBI Herschel Levin of Temple Beth Sholom said last week that he would refuse to answer the census question about his race and would rather pay a fine or go to jail than do so. "It's an improper question," he asserted. "This is no business of the Government. I see no valid reason for it." Census officials said the enumerator of Rabbi Levin's district had instructions not to argue about it. Just take one look and write down "white" the emunerator was told.

A 5,000,000 POUND ($2,750,000) bond issue put on the market in Jerusalem last week by the Israeli-American Industrial Development Bank had been over-subscribed by the next day. The bank is a subsidiary of the Workers Bank, an affiliate of the Israel Federation of Labor.

THE YOUNGER JEWISH CHILDREN in America, comprising the third and fourth generations, are closer to Israel than their immigrant forefathers were, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion declared last week. Ben-Gurion . . . stated that "the love for Israel I found among millions of Jews in the United States and England is one of the wonders of Jewish history."

A PRELIMINARY AGREEMENT was reached here between the Ministry of Transportation and Britain's Leyland Automobile Company for the assembly in Israel of Leyland buses and heavy trucks. The assembly plan in Jerusalem, it was reported, will be run on 50-50 partnership between Israel and Britain. The agreement with Leyland calls for an increasing use of Israeli auto parts in the buses and trucks to be assembled.

BILLY ROSE, NEW YORK IMPRESARIO, disclosed last week that he had reached a compromise agreement with Orthodox elements of Jerusalem who felt that some of the pieces in the sculpture garden he has contributed to Israel might be in violation of the Biblical ban on graven images. Rose said that the compromise was based on the understanding that if any of the non-abstract items proved to be "too literal" they would be moved indoors and out of general sight.

AN ESTIMATED 50 COUNTRIES throughout the free world participated in the 1959 observance of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising, the World Jewish Congress reported recently. Dr. Isaac I. Schwartzbart, director of the WJC Organization Department, said he hoped that the number would be exceeded on April 24 this year, which will be the 17th anniversary. The date has been fixed by the Knesset, Israel's parliament, on 27 Nisan.

JAPANESE SHIPYARDS HAVE expressed their readiness to build ships for Israel against payment in Israel Development Bonds instead of cash or usual credit terms, it was reported in Jerusalem last week. The Israel government has not yet decided on whether to accept the offer. If the transaction materializes, Israel would issue special development bonds.

Philadelphia Group
Against Bible Reading
In Public Schools

PHILADELPHIA — The Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Philadelphia protested last week the amended Pennsylvania law requiring daily Bible reading in the public schools but excusing children at their parents' request.

"Bible reading in the public schools runs counter to the American concept of religious freedom," the Jewish agency said.

The policy statement was issued by Murray H. Shusterman, president and Sydney C. Orlofsky, chairman of the agency's committee on religious freedom. The council is composed of representatives of thirty-two city-wide organizations.

"The privilege of abstention serves only to create divisiveness and dissension among teacher, child and parent," the statement said.

"The interests of religion, public education and democracy would best be served by eliminating Bible reading and other religious practices from the public schools and strengthening such practices in the synagogue, the church and the home," the council contended.

"As a nation of people committed to many different religious faiths, or to none, the United States owes its survival and growth to the acceptance by all Americans of the concept that the relationship between man and God may not be subject to governmental interference, regulation and control."

More Than Half Of Students At Cornell In Religious Activity

ITHACA, N. Y. — Cornell University has added a new "R" to the traditional readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic routine. It is religion, according to a New York Times article.

This is not to indicate that a sweeping religious revival has hit the campus. What it means is that more than half of the university's 11,000 students are involved in varying degrees with some type of religious activity.

Much of the credit for this development belongs to an organization known as Cornell United Religious Work, an interfaith body that welds together thirteen campus religious groups. Since 1956 C. U. R. W. has been an official division of the university.

Interfaith Building

Additional factors that have contributed to the religious climate at Cornell are Anabel Taylor Hall, the eight-year-old $2,000,000 interfaith building that houses the headquarters of C. U. R. W., and

Jewish Earthquake Survivors
Turned Out, Leader Says

CASABLANCA—A Jewish leader last week said that 500 Jewish survivors of the Agadir earthquake had been turned out of the Moroccan Army barracks here and left to fend for themselves.

Meyer Obadia, president of the Casablanca Jewish community, said the Jews were ordered to leave the La Jonquiere barracks after being given asylum there for three weeks.

Moroccan authorities said the barracks were needed for their troops, according to Obadia.

The Jews, who lost their homes and part of their families in the Feb. 29 disaster, were not offered any alternative accommodations other than returning to Agadir to live in tents, Obadia said.

"They don't want to go back to that nightmare, to the graves of their dead," he added.

Archeological Expedition Finds
Roman Libation Vessels In Caves

JERUSALEM—A rare and complete set of Roman libation vessels—probably captured from a Roman legion by the desperate guerrilla followers of the Jewish rebel leader, Bar Kokhba—were found by an Israeli expedition in a cave overlooking the Dead Sea, it was revealed last week.

The faces of Roman gods and other pagan symbols of Rome on the cult vessels had been defaced, apparently by devout Jews; Hebrew University archeologists told a news conference.

Four Digging Teams

The expedition sent four archeological teams into the Judean wilderness armed with such devices as mine detectors and pneumatic drills.

Also discovered by the expedition was a tiny, apparently 1,900-year-old piece of parchment containing most of Psalm XV, in which David describes a citizen of Zion. Deciphering of the two-and-a-half-inch-long fragment, written in the script style of the famous Dead Sea scrolls, indicated that the version of this psalm in use today is exactly the same as that known in the first century of the Christian era.

Caves Explored

The expedition, which followed a helicopter survey of the desolate area, explored a series of caves high in the sheer, 1,000-foot cliffs above the Dead Sea. It was known that such caves had been used by Hebrew rebels in the latter stages of the doomed Bar Kokhba revolt, which raged from A. D. 132 to 135.

The Roman libation vessels were found with the aid of a mine detector in the biggest of the caves by a team led by Prof. Yigal Yadin, former Israeli Army Chief of Staff. The nineteen brass vessels, found in a woven palmleaf basket, included twelve jugs, three incense shovels, one pan and two large bowls.

The findings shed new light on this dim and tragic period of Palestine's history. The university archeologists concluded that Bar Kokhba's followers, fighting to the end, maintained a chain of caves over a twenty-mile stretch of wild territory east of the Dead Sea. They speculated that a single commander directed guerrilla operations from this network of caves.

Builders To Invest
In Israeli Housing

TEL AVIV — Noting that housing activity is entering a new phase, Omer, daily, says the readiness of American building contractors and businessmen to invest $11.85m. in building construction in Israel opens a vast range of new practical possibilities. The paper expresses the hope that this new development will bring more such investments in train.

Emphasizes Need Of Facilities For Service Families

ST. LOUIS — The need for providing social, recreational, religious and educational services to service men and their dependents as a family unit on military installations was emphasized last week by the head of the National Jewish Welfare Board.

The president, Solomon Litt of New York, in a report to 600 delegates attending the board's biennial convention at the Chase Hotel, declared there were more military wives and children today than there were service men.

The board is the Government-authorized agency for meeting the religious, welfare and morale needs of Jewish military personnel, hospitalized veterans and their families.

Mr. Litt estimated that 2,600,000 service men and 3,400,000 wives and children were now living on or near military posts — a reversal of the previous ratio.

He stressed that civilian agencies engaged in ministering to the needs of military personnel must now also provide the same kind of service to their families.

New Challenges Cited

Mr. Litt said his agency now "faces new challenges and increased responsibilities" with Jewish personnel in the nation's armed forces. His organization, he went on, must now provide not only for the religious morale requirements of the Jewish G. I.'s "but also provide a healthy atmosphere in which their children can grow and help their families develop and hold on to a sense of stability and a sense of belonging to the communities where they are temporarily resident."

His report disclosed that the board had performed 10,000 varied services to military families in counseling, guidance and referrals last year. It also showed that there had been a cumulative attendance of 2,485,000 people at 37,170 board-sponsored group activities — recreational, educational, religious and cultural.

ORGANIZATION NEWS

TO NOMINATE CANDIDATES

The Providence Bureau of Jewish Education has been invited to nominate candidates for a national teacher of the year, who will be selected by the American Association for Jewish Education early in May, according to an announcement by Irving Brodsky, chairman of the Teacher Welfare Committee of the Bureau.

Nominees for a local candidates may be submitted to the Bureau no later than April 24. In its selection of national teacher of the year, the American Association is guided by these criteria:

- A high example of dedication to duty.
- Professional conduct which has been an influence in raising the prestige and status of the Jewish teaching profession in the community.
- The teacher's impact in creating a more Jewish environment in the community as a whole, or in the homes of his pupils.
- Leadership exhibited in civic, cultural or educational institutions and movements.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

A Pre-College Clinic for high school students will be conducted under the auspices of the Providence Coordinating Committee of B'nai B'rith and the Hillel Foundation at Brown University on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Carmichael Auditorium, Brown University, Waterman Street. The subject to be discussed is "College Life—What Is It?"

Rabbi Nathan N. Rosen, Hillel director at Brown University, will moderate the panel discussion. Participating in the discussion will be Ruth Bailyn, Pembroke; Barbara Chaika, R. I. College of Education; Mat Frauwith, Brown; Merrill Hassenfeld, Brown; Mel Stairman, Providence College; Gil Cohen, Brown; Margie Itkin, Bryant, and Judy Bender, R. I. School of Design.

Senior high school students are invited to attend. Mrs. Nathan Honig and Robert Singer are chairmen of the arrangement committee appointed by Burton Finberg, chairman of the Providence Coordinating Committee of B'nai B'rith.

BEGINS REGISTRATION

Registration for the Fall semester of the Providence Hebrew

Day School will start this Wednesday and will close on Friday, May 20.

Rabbi Akiva Egovi, director of the school, has announced that because of limited space only 25 children can be admitted to kindergarten and 25 children in the first grade.

An I.Q. test will be given to all candidates for admission. New pupils will be admitted on the basis of marks achieved on the tests. No children above the first grade will be accepted unless they can meet the requirements of both the Hebrew and secular departments.

ANNUAL DONOR DINNER

The Annual Donor Dinner of the Sisterhood of Temple Beth Am will be held on May 3 at their new temple.

Arthur Jordan Field, B. S. E., M. A., researcher in folklore, and the Brados, a group specializing in American and foreign folk singing, will provide the entertainment.

HADASSAH STUDY GROUP

Mrs. Isaac Gerber, recently returned from a tour to West Africa and South America, will be the guest speaker at the luncheon of the Hadassah Study Group. The luncheon will be held on Thursday at the Grist Mill at 12 noon.

Mrs. Harry Seltzer at DE 1-4356 is in charge of reservations.

PLAN SEDER

The Third Annual Seder of the 29 Plus Club will be held on Saturday at 8:30 P.M. in the gymnasium of the Brookline, Brighton, Newton Center, 50 Sutherland Road, Brighton, Mass.

Ceremonies will be led by Rabbi Oscar Bookspan of Temple Beth Torah of West Roxbury, Mass., assisted by members of the club. Reservations may be made by contacting RE 4-0800.

In charge of arrangements are Mollie Hookness, Dorothy Miller, Lee Nadelman, Phyllis Baril, Fay Blumer, Leon Aborn, Richard Finn, Rose Goulston, Ann Bean, Sophie Gharney, Helen Chansky, Shirley Brenner, Moe Maltzman and Gertrude Baker.

SPONSOR FOLK-SING

The Providence Chapter of Councilettes is sponsoring a folk-sing on Sunday, April 24, featuring the Vibratos, students at the Rhode Island School of Design. The concert will be held in the Temple Emanuel vestry from 3 to 5 P. M.

The committee in charge of the affair includes Joyce Sydney, Joan Leven, Ellen Levitt and Robin Green.

The proceeds from this concert will be used for sending Ship-a-Box packages to Israel.

BOARD MEETING

The next Board Meeting of the Ladies' Association Jewish Home for the Aged will be held on Wednesday at the Home. The luncheonette at 12:30 P. M. will be followed by a business meeting.

Mrs. S. Myer Harrison is chairman of hostesses, and she will be assisted by Mesdames Samuel Fabricant, Ben Poulten, Jacob Saxe, Hyman Silverman, Mitchell Sherwin, Herman Rosen, Irving Rosen, Joseph Waksler and Miss Pearl Smith. Mrs. Saul Seigle will preside.

TO SHOW FILM

A full length film, "Blackboard Jungle", starring Glenn Ford and Sidney Poitier, will be shown at both Community Center buildings during the coming week under the sponsorship of the Center's Youth Council.

The film will be presented at the East Side JCC building on Tuesday beginning at 7:30 P.M. The presentation at the South Side building will be on Wednesday at 7:30 P.M. Admission will be open to both Center members and non-members. Refreshments will be available.

The film will mark the opening of the new Wednesday evening Canteen series of special programs for high school boys and girls at the South Side Center building. Subsequent program schedules for April 27 includes a disc-jockey dance featuring Jeff Krimm, an indoor Olympics on May 4, and a Chinese Auction on May 11. Admission to these Canteen programs is open to Center members only.

INFORMAL AFFAIR

"Holiday Hootenanny", an informal folk song and folk dance affair for high school teenagers, will be conducted at the South Side Jewish Community Center, 45 Hamilton Street, this Saturday beginning at 8 P.M.

The program will feature an informal atmosphere around a fireplace setting, with informal folk songs led by Paul Friedman, and informal square dancing under the direction of Dick King.

Those planning to attend are invited to bring banjos and guitars if they can play them. Refreshments will be served.

Admission to the program will be open to all high schoolers, both Center members and non-members.

MONTHLY MEETING

Samuel Arnold, registered representative of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, will speak on Investments at the next meeting of the East Greenwich Jewish Women's Club which will be held on Tuesday at the Kingstown Inn. Election of officers for the coming year will be held at this meeting.

Mrs. Julius Irving

Named President Of GJC Women

Mrs. Julius Irving, first vice-president and campaign chairman for the past two years, has been nominated as president of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee for 1960-61.

Mrs. Bertram L. Bernhardt, Women's Division president, also announced today that the new slate of officers, headed by Mrs. Irving, will be presented for approval at the fourth annual dessert meeting on May 6. The meeting will be held in the Garden Room at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at 1 P.M. and Mrs. Bernhardt will preside.

Mrs. Harry Fowler, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the names of the other officers to be submitted to the annual meeting as Mesdames Raymond L. Cohen, first vice-president; Arthur Kaplan, second vice-president; Merrill L. Hassenfeld, third vice-president, and Martin I. Dittleman, recording secretary.

Under the by-laws of the Women's Division, no officer may serve more than three consecutive years. Mrs. Bernhardt is now serving her third term as president.

Nominated as members of the Board of Directors for two years, term ending in 1962, are Mesdames Carl Arbitman, Irving L. Baker, Herman L. Bennett, Augustus F. Elias, Irving Jay Fain, Herman S. Galkin, Stanley R. Gilbert, Samuel Gereboff, Adrian Goldstein, Edmond W. Goldstein, Irving C. Goldfarb, Louis I. Kramer, Marshall Leeds, John J. Lury, David Meyers, Alexander Rumpel, Joseph J. Sefer, James Siegal, Joseph Waksler, and Albert Shore.

Announce Judges For Bible Contest

Judges for the Regional Bible Contest for Rhode Island have been announced by the chairman of the School Council, Rabbi Akiva Egovi. They are Alter Boyman, president of the Bureau; Rabbi Abraham Chill, president of the Rabbinical Association of Rhode Island; Rabbi Saul Lee-man, chairman of the Bible Reading Project of the Rabbinical Association; Dr. Aaron Klein, member of the Regional Contest Committee; Dr. Harry Elkin, who is the regional chairman for the National Bible Contest, sponsored by the Jewish Agency for Israel. Mordecai Shapiro will be time-keeper at the Bible contest.

The Regional Bible Contest will be held on Sunday morning, May 1, at Hope High School auditorium as part of the annual Inter-School Festival conducted by the Bureau of Jewish Education and the School Council. The schools which have thus far signified their interest in sending representatives to the Bible Contest are Beth Am, Beth David, Beth El, Beth Israel, Beth Shalom, Cranston Jewish Center, Emanuel and Sinai.

The Contest, which is open to students between the ages of 11½ and 14½, will center about the Biblical books, Genesis, Exodus, Deuteronomy, Joshua (till chapter 11), Esther and Ruth.

BETH AM DONOR DINNER

The annual Donor Dinner of the Sisterhood of Temple Beth Am will be held on May 3 at their new temple.

Arthur Jordan Field, B.S.E., M. A., researcher in folklore, and the Brados, a group specializing in American and foreign folk-singing, will provide the entertainment.

Mrs. Louis Weisman is chairman of the Donor Dinner. Her committee includes Mesdames Bernard Gelband, T. Surman, Milton Pierce, Irving Levine, Arthur Leven, Irving Botkin, Marshall Bornstein, Max Kaminsky, Abraham Blumenthal, Kurt Heymann, Warren Fish, Harold Halzel, Raymond Bottleman and Seymour Zydney.

ORGANIZATION NEWS

NEW YORK — A slight variation in Soviet policy on Israel was noted recently by Max Frankel, Moscow correspondent for The New York Times, who reported that a "restrained" appeal has been issued by the Soviet Government for "a relaxation of tensions along Israel's borders and a calming of passions on both the Israeli and Arab sides."

Frankel cited an unsigned article in the Government newspaper, Izvestia, accusing both Arab and Israeli forces of having violated the 1949 armistice agreement by sending troops into the demilitarized zone.

The article, however, attributed the major blame for the trouble to Israel by saying that the air in Israel was "unfortunately" full of a "military psychosis." It said, according to Frankel, that the idea that force must be demonstrated in order finally not to be used, is an "awkward theory."

"Better tightrope walkers have fallen from their perch," the article said. "Boasting and saber-rattling in present conditions is dangerous."

Council Of Jewish Women To Hold Fashion Show

"An Afternoon of Paris in the Spring" is the theme of the luncheon and fashion show which will be given by the Providence Section of the National Council of Jewish Women on Tuesday, April 26, at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtucket at 12:30 P. M.

The entrance to Rhodes will be decorated as an outdoor cafe and the interior of the hall will be decorated as a French salon.

Fashions by Peerless will be shown following the luncheon. Irving Rosen will provide music for the afternoon.

The door prizes to be given out include a cashmere sweater with a fox collar from William H. Harris; $50 in stock from Michael Investment Company; a two-day vacation at Grossingers for two persons; a Bronzini man's shirt from London Shop, Peerless; eight piece luncheon set from Mrs. Robinson's; brass magazine rack from Reliable Furniture Company, Pawtucket; Eaton or Crane personalized stationery from Sackett's; hairstyling by Jenny's Beauty Salon of Wayland Square; "Porgy & Bess" Album from Adams Radio, and an ironstone jam jar from the Reliable Gold Company.

Mrs. Arnold Soforenko and Mrs. Harold Harris are co-chairmen of the affair and are being assisted by Mesdames Lester Salter, commentator and chairman of models; Arthur Markoff, decorations; Martin Temkin, table decorations; Bertram Bernhardt, luncheon; Eugene Nelson, hostesses; James Winsten, music; Milton Isserlis, prizes; J. Lee Bonoff, invitations; Irving Baker, flower carts; Augustus Elias and Albert Rigberg, publicity.

Models will include Mesdames Bernard Abedon, Peter Bardach, Albert Chase, Milton Dwares, Herbert Fanger, Leon Goldberg, Arthur Kern, Mark Land, Philip Lapides, Gilbert Mason, Neil Pansey, Mendel Robinson, Robert Shoor, Irwin Siegel, Stanley Summer and Miss Lita Logowitz.

Hostesses for the afternoon will be Mesdames Leonard Blazer, Charles Fox, Herman Gadon, Stanley Gilbert, Burleigh Greenberg, Samuel Kapstein, Owen Kwasha, Marshall Leeds, Irving Leven, Richard Loebenberg, Stanley Loebenberg, William Mayer, Bernard Pollack, Robert Singer, Milton Stanzler and Marshall Wolfe.

Mrs. Albert Chase, secretary, and Mrs. Irving Goldfarb, assistant secretary, are in the process of issuing the tickets of admission at this time.

Tickets of admission will be sent to those who have contributed $25 worth of resaleable merchandise to the Council Thrift Shop at 174 Ives Street.

Tuesday mornings will begin at 9 o'clock. On Monday morning Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen will speak on "The Red Sea Story." On Tuesday morning, at Memorial services, Rabbi Bohnen's sermon will be entitled, "Looking Backward."

The services will be chanted by Cantor Jacob Hohenemser with Arthur Einstein at the organ.

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

JERUSALEM—Joseph M. Proskauer, honorary president of the American Jewish Committee, said there should be a greater student exchange between Israel and the United States.

To Appear At Third Seder—

Benjamin Fishbein, humorist, will appear at the 34th Annual Seder sponsored by the Providence Labor Zionist movement. The Seder will be held on Sunday at 7 P.M. in the Temple Beth El Auditorium.

Israel Gal-Edd, Captain in the Israeli Army, will be the guest speaker, and another guest artist will be Nico Feldman, leading tenor of the Israeli Opera Company. Rabbi Jerome Gurland of Temple Beth El will give the invocation.

Members of the committee in charge are Harry Hoffman, chairman, and Mrs. Hoffman; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Finkelstein, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lappin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richman, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Black, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Grebstein, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Korman, Mrs. Jacob Uloff, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sokolow, Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Grossberg, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grossman and Mrs. Larry Dering.

Members of the tickets committee are Mrs. Alter Boyman, Mrs. Charles Lappin, Mrs. Max Corn, Harry Coken, Morris Ladd, Charles Bresler, Carl Arbitman, Samuel Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Schuster, David Mellor and A. Grabstein. The general chairman is Alter Boyman.

Cornell

In 1865, Ezra Cornell and Andrew Dickson White, a Quaker and a humanist, announced that their school would be free from domination by "persons of any one religion, or of no religion."

With this as something of a challenge, C. U. R. W. accepted it and emphasized what in effect has been the converse of the coin: opportunity for all religious traditions under the domination of none.

Had Genesis in 1919

Cornell's united religious program was the brain-child of Richard Henry Edwards. It was born in 1919 when six Protestant denominations provided chaplains to work with Mr. Edwards in getting his idea off the ground. Ten years later Roman Catholics and Jews affiliated with the Edwards movement and the name Cornell United Religious Work was selected.

Significantly, C. U. R. W. has spent more and more time on the theological problems and studies than on purely social get-togethers. This is a trend already confirmed in other institutions.

Last month Dr. Robert Goheen, president of Princeton University, observed that theological implications were making themselves felt in university courses.

Touro To Honor Its 'Man Of The Year'

Touro Fraternal Association will honor its 1966 "Man Of The Year" at a testimonial dinner in honor of Paul E. Goldstein, Wednesday, April 20, at Shaare Zedek auditorium, 688 Broad Street, Providence. A full course kosher roast beef dinner will be served. The program will start at 6:30.

Mr. Goldstein, a member of Touro since 1924, has served on the board for 15 years, and has been active on many committees. He resides at 155 Melrose Street, and is head of the traffic department at American Luggage Company.

Alfred Weinstock heads the testimonial dinner committee. Tickets may be purchased from Charles Coken, secretary, or any Touro officer.

Men Wear Out, Too

Last year, for example, over 260,000 applicants found they could not purchase life insurance at any price! Hundreds of thousands more had to pay higher-than-normal rates because of health impairment or hazardous occupation.

But a young man who purchases a policy with our Guaranteed Issue Option, doesn't have to worry about becoming uninsurable. He is guaranteed the right to buy more protection in the years ahead—as his needs and his ability to pay increase—regardless of his health or occupation. For full details, call—

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

Stockholders Pass 13,500,000

The number of individuals who own stocks in our land has now climbed past the 13,500,000 mark.

This is more than double the total who were "in" the stock market in 1952. It is 50 per cent above the number who were stockholders as recently as 1956. It is a full million above the total who owned stocks at the start of last year.

It is a startling statistic of profound implications to our entire economy. Nothing like this pattern of ever-broadening stock ownership ever has been drawn before in our nation or in any other.

The 13,500,000 figure is an estimate, for no census of stockholders has been conducted since January 1959, but it is authoritative, based on careful surveys of what has been and is going on in stock brokerage firms across the country.

The surveys pound home the fact that ownership of stocks spurred throughout last year and significantly, ownership continued expanding in the fact of the sharp break in prices this year. "The pace may have slowed, but the trend is the same," said one informed source.

"Brokerage firms report opening of new accounts, representing initial purchases by the individuals, week after week."

How are the new stockholders entering the market?

Most of them are buying in the traditional ways--just walking into a brokerage firm, opening an account on their own or buying through their banks. The estimate is that more than 55 per cent who have become stockholders for the first time in the past 12 months have acquired their stocks this way. Increasing numbers are buying through the companies for which they work. A good guess is another 25 per cent have become stockholders through employe stock purchase plans.

What special characteristics have the new stockholders?

A fascinating angle (particularly to me) is the extent to which women are dominating the new stockholder lists. Among those who have become stockholders in the past 12 months, women probably outnumber men by 57 per cent to 43 per cent, it is estimated. Millions of American women are now actively buying stocks on their own, really studying the techniques of stock investing.

Another provocative aspect is the comparative youth of the new buyers--mostly in the 30's. Typical newcomers may be a husband-and-wife working team, a couple with children still at the school ages.

A third angle is the degree to which stock ownership is spreading.
New York still leads in the number of stockholders, but California is moving up fast.

What does it mean?

Of extreme importance to the future economic stability of the country is the very fact that the increase was not reversed during the unexpected and severe crack in stock prices earlier this year. "The evidence is strong," said one informant, "that the buying by individuals now is for the long-term and based on long-term confidence in the economy's prospects. Neither long-time holders nor new buyers of stocks have shown anything more than normal concern about price fluctuations."

If the solidity of buying is as strong as their expert believes, the individual who was a force for such instability in the stock market a generation ago, may be a key force for stability now.

Also of fundamental importance is the extent to which we are a nation of stockholders today. In addition to the millions of individuals owning stocks directly, an estimated 110,000,000 own stocks indirectly through their savings in insurance companies, pension funds, other financial institutions investing in stocks.

No one can dare shrug off the significance of Wall Street to Main Street today. It would be difficult to exaggerate it.

A Passover Story For Children

By Sholem Aleichem

Translated From The Yiddish

By BERYL SEGAL

Once upon a time there was a king. He was a great and mighty king, but he did not like the Jews.
He always issued new edicts against the Jews, just like Pharaoh of Egypt.

One day--it was in the middle of Passover--all the king's ministers gathered in the Senate chambers and they were thinking of new edicts and regulations concerning the Jews.

The Jews cannot live everywhere--that is old.

The Jews cannot hold office-- that is a law.

The Jewish children cannot go to school--that is in the books.

What else could be done for the Jews?

Then one of the ministers thought of something. He was against the Matzoh. The Jews, he said, eat a strange dry piece of cookie all week long. They call it Matzoh. Now, who knows what is in the Matzoh. Let the king forbid the eating of Matzohs.

The king thought of it for a while, and then said he would like to see a Matzoh.

The king's messengers went all over the capitol city to find a Jew, but could not find one. And when they finally found a Jew he swore that he did not eat Matzoh.

(The Jews guessed that something must be wrong if the king wanted to see a Matzoh. Some new edict, new law against them.)

Finally they found a Jew who admitted that he ate Matzoh. They took one of his Matzohs and brought it to the king.

The king liked the Matzoh very much. He tasted a piece, and he took another piece, and little-by-little he ate the whole Matzoh.

When he finished eating, he suddenly became ill. It got worse and worse, and when he was very bad, they brought the best doctors and professors in the land to see the king. They examined him and decided that there was something in his stomach that made him ill.

Then the biggest of the professors put his ears to the king's stomach and he heard someone sing there.

"My master the King," said he, "with your permission I shall talk to the one in your stomach."

"Go ahead, talk," said the king.

Then the professor talked to the one in the stomach:

"Who are you?"

"A Jew," said he.

"What do you want here?"

"Nothing."

"Why don't you leave?"

"I don't want to leave."

"Why not?"

"That is my business."

"If you leave, you will get a reward."

"Some reward. They will probably give me 24 hours to leave the city."

"Why do you think so?"

"Because I am a Jew, and Jews are not allowed to live here."

"What if we promise you that you may live here?"

"I am not talking for myself.
I want all the Jews to be permitted to live here."

And when the Jew spoke, he waved his hands and stamped with his feet, and the king thought that his end was near.

Then he begged the professor to promise him anything, but let the Jew come out of his stomach.

The professor said to the Jew
in the king's stomach:

"The king promises that you will be allowed to live in the city and no one will disturb you."

"But I told you that I don't care for myself. I want all the Jews to be permitted to live here."

"All right, all the Jews can live here. Come out of the stomach."

"Who said so?" asked the Jew.

"The king said so. You have heard him say it."

"Oh, what the king says does not mean much. Because it hurts him he makes promises. As soon as I am out of here, he will feel better and will change his mind.
Just like Pharaoh of Egypt."

"Then what do you want?"

"I want this to be written down on paper, and signed by the king, and passed by the senate."

And the Jew waved his hands and stamped his feet, and the king could not stand the pain any longer.
Then he gathered all his ministers, and they wrote a new law, signed by the king, that the Jews might live in the capitol city and everywhere they pleased throughout the land, and the thing became the law of the land.

As soon as the Jew heard this, he jumped out of the king's little finger, bowed before the assembled and ran to his brethren to do business.

circus. Benchley watched one man juggle three plates, an axe, six torches and five balls, then he sighed: "And I can't even get a cup of coffee up to my mouth."

WASHINGTON NOTE: An ambassador from a Middle East nation said of an odd Washington, D.C., hostess: "She has a matchless gift for being on intimate terms of friendship with people who know her only slightly."

SALES DEPT.: The co-author of a play panned by the critics revealed how he succeeded in getting a six-month run for the show:
He and his partner appeared on all the disc jockey programs, where they'd hum the most recognizable tunes and offer two free tickets to their show to the first person who phoned the correct title. The phones were swamped:
"We told all the other callers, they'd won second prize--tickets at half-price."

LOCAL NEWS: William Saro-yan collected royalties on his books and plays, from the Soviet government... The promoters of the Johansson-Patterson fight will let
R. Bisland handle the ticket sale...
Jack Levine, the artist who was criticized by President Eisenhower because of his painting at the Brussels Fair, will be given a one-man show by the Mexican government, at the Palace of Fine Arts...
A New York syndicate is bidding for Monte Carlo.

THEATER NOTE: A Pulitzer Prize playwright confided that he received an elementary lesson from the late producer, Arthur Hopkins, to whom he'd submitted a two-act play. Hopkins rejected it, explaining: "You fail to realize the importance of two cigarets to the Broadway theater. You have only one intermission. That's only one cigaret. First night audiences need two cigarets."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Frank Loesser, who wrote "Green-willow," was asked by Erroll Garner, who is one of the backers of the show, how he felt about the mixed notices. "Business is good, and that's most important," said Loesser. "For me it was like waiting for the birth of a boy-- and getting a girl."

TV DEPT.: To celebrate
National Library Week, Gilbert
Chapman--president of the N.Y.
Public Library--appeared on the TV show, "I've Got a Secret," with the Gutenberg Bible as his secret. The Bible is insured for $500,000, under a policy requiring that it be accompanied by an armed guard whenever it's taken from the library. A Burns man was the guard for the trip to and from the studio. No cabs were available, and so the Burns man, the curator of rare books, et al, walked-- carrying the $500,000 treasure in a suitcase.

BOOK NOTE: George S. Kaufman was asked to write the introduction to a book. He read the manuscript, which was interesting but contained elementary mistakes in spelling. Kaufman replied: "I'm not very good at it myself, but the first rule about spelling used to be that there's only one 'z' in 'is'."

MOVIES: Jerry Wald, the movie producer, heard a director comment on a star's vitality because she'd submitted to long hours of close-ups, without tiring... "You're wrong," Wald said. "The frailest performer in Hollywood never shows any sign of weakening when the camera is doing closeups on him; and the strongest actor tires during long-shots. Vitality is when you don't get tired during long-shots of you while somebody else gets the close-ups."

DRAMA NOTE: At a social gathering in N.Y. Tallulah Bankhead was introduced to Dr. Karl Menninger and, merely by way of conversation, asked: "Do you think I should be psychoanalyzed?"...
The distinguished analyst replied:
"It would be a wonderful experience for the analyst."

SCHOOL NOTE: Sauk Center,
Minn., is celebrating the Diamond Anniversary of its foremost citizen, the late Nobel Prize winning novelist, Sinclair Lewis. Lewis once showed me his reply to a college student who sought rules for writing: "I know of no rules of the slightest value for learning to write. If there were any rules, we'd have a million successful writers. I know of nothing to do beyond wanting to write, and then writing."

North brought his circus performers as surprise entertainers for the Jan Mitchells' wedding reception last week. While the jugglers

he once gave for Robert Benchley,

SYD COHEN Darning The Sox

The dispatches out of the spring training bases would have us believe that a dreary summer lies ahead, and that the Boston Provincials (also known as the Red Sox) will be battling tooth and nail with the Washington Senators for the distinction of supporting the rest of the league.

The logic seems sound — the sneering seemingly deserved. A fan starts to compare the Provincials' lineup with that of the Champion White Sox, the runner-up Indians, and the no longer mighty Yankees, and quite a bit seems lacking. Baltimore's Orioles seem on paper to be well superior to the Fenway Futileers. Kansas City is on the move, and Detroit is looking for the spark to set them off on a trail of rocketry to the top of the standings.

Boston? The team from the Hub just doesn't seem to have enough spokes.

In such manner have the experts — even the inept local experts — consigned the Sox to the depths.

Except this one. It is the opinion here — a scared opinion, but one that has remained helplessly constant in the face of all the team's spring troubles — that the Red Sox will be a GOOD team, an interesting team, an exciting and even thrilling team, a surprisingly competent team. And this is said even as it is acknowledged that Boston will do well to finish at the head of the second division.

It's funny. A year ago, with New England hopes boiling high, and most Red Sox fans counting on third place or better, this column dashed cold water on the optimists with an opinion that fifth place was the best the Sox could hope to accomplish. The cat-calls, hoots and jeers were prompt, generous, and derisive.

So the Sox wallowed around in sixth place most of the year, and occupied fifth place as late as the beginning of the final game of the season. Close enough for a pre-season opinion, you'll admit.

Now, one year later, Boston's forces are being relegated to the depths, many experts saying the Sox may be the worst team in major league baseball this year. That's a lot of bunk. Don't you believe it!

Again, I can see the Bosox finishing at the head of the second division, with fourth place not at all impossible. Consistent sort of cuss, eh what?

Now don't get me wrong. I haven't mellowed. I still would like to help grab the Incomparable Sportsman, heave him ungently in any direction, and remove from his person forever his passport to New England. It's about time he practiced his brand of sportsmanship on some other trusting, worshipful, and unsuspecting community. Twenty-eight years is long enough, with nothing but one war-connected pennant to show for it.

As for his chief assistant, the so-called general manager, I would trade him even up for a discarded pair of Frank Lane's seven-league boots. And throw in some cash and Farm Director Johnny Murphy to boot — with a deliberate, well-aimed boot, at that.

Yet, for all the front office bungling and boobery, I cannot see that the team itself is as black as it is painted. There simply is no such thing as a bad major league club any more. And as usual, the baseball writers are doing their investigating and casting their expert eyes hither and yon in very shallow fashion. It is not a new phenomenon. Here's why I'm hopeful:

1. The loss of Jensen may well result in theorning of a new outfield star. Boston has a host of competent, potentially star outfielders. With the solid chance to play regularly that one or two of them must now get with Jackie gone, a new glamor might easily be added to the team.

2. Jensen's loss is overestimated. While writers and fans held his impressive RBI figures in awe, Jackie's talents were not held in much esteem by players and umpires. Sure, they said nice things about him, and Stengel said he would like to have him back (anybody would have been an improvement for Casey last year), it was considered laughable. But I happen to know first hand that many sound baseball observers privately considered it laughable that Jackie was voted the league's most valuable player in 1958.

Jensen was quiet and courteous and cooperative. He signed autographs for those whom Ted Williams refused, and his behavior overall was impeccable. But he was as lifeless as he was polite. Like too many Red Sox stars of the past 15 years, there was no excitement in Jensen, neither the tendency nor the desire to try to spark his mates. He was a dispirited player, with a complete lack of enthusiasm.

Col. Lahat To Address Israel Bond Breakfast

Colonel Shlomo Lahat, a founder of the Israel Air Force, and currently Executive Officer of its Headquarters Staff, will be guest of honor at an Israel Bond Breakfast at the Ledgemont Country Club on Sunday, April 24, at 10:30 A. M.

Harry A. Schwartz, chairman of the Pawtucket Committee for the second annual Diplomat Ball, will be host at the Breakfast.

With Israel Defense Forces

In 1948, when the newly born State of Israel's very existence was imperiled by the onslaught of Arab armies, Colonel Lahat was in the field with the Israel Defense Forces, fighting against the invaders.

Colonel Lahat received his military training during the British mandate of Palestine.

In 1951, he was the first Israel Air Force Officer to attend courses at the Air Force Command Staff School of the United States Air Force. Colonel Lahat is still attending courses during his present stay in this country, but these, at Columbia University, are concerned not with matters of military tactics, but with management and administration. This shift of emphasis in his own career is paralleled by Israel's emphasis, and dedication, to peaceful building and construction, with armed forces for defense only a necessity, and not a way of life.

Part of Nation-wide Effort

The 1960 Israel Bond campaign in Rhode Island is part of the nation-wide effort to attain more than $75,000,000 in Bond sales, to help Israel overcome the intensified Arab boycott and blockade of the Suez Canal, and to assist her in the implementation of her eight point program of future development.

The development program includes further reclamation of the desert, the construction of a new seaport at Ashdod on the Mediterranean to handle Israel's vastly increased export trade, the completion of a 16 inch pipeline from Elath to Haifa, and the building of at least 32,000 housing units a year for the next five years. Israel's present population of 2 million is expected to rise to 3 million in the next decade, and her economic program is designed to keep pace with that growth.

The Magic Of Numbers — '8' Points To Progress

The magic of numbers has a fascination for many people. Literature on the subject reaches far back into antiquity, and extends into many fields — mathematics, music, astronomy, history, folklore.

Numbers have reputedly been able to bring one luck, enable one to foretell the future, have the power to ward off evil. The variations are endless.

Even those who reject the "magic" — whose approach is a purely rational one — respond to the fascination of numbers as symbols.

Take the State of Israel, for example. Its future rests, not on the powers of magic, but on the rational bases of intelligence, hard work and planning. Yet there is a number in Israel's future — a number that is, as a matter of fact, a key to its future.

Israel's "magic number is "8". Its program of economic objectives during the next decade features 8 points — and each of these is a vital step in Israel's growth and development.

The first of these is the irrigation of a minimum of 100,000 additional acres in the Negev.

The second is the completion of a 16 inch pipeline from Elath to Haifa, which will supplement the existing line built three years ago with Israel Bonds.

The third is the construction of a new seaport at Ashdod on the Mediterranean, twenty miles south of Tel Aviv, which will give Israel another major seaport with a loading capacity of 2,500,000 tons a year.

The fourth is the further exploitation of the country's natural resources, including phosphates, oil, copper and the minerals of the Dead Sea.

The fifth is the construction of at least 32,000 housing units a year for the next five years.

The sixth is the expansion of agriculture and the development of new industrial centers in the Negev, which will be a major area of settlement during the next decade.

Foreign Notables To Appear At Ball

Nations of three continents will be represented at the second annual Diplomat Ball, to be held in the Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton Biltmore Hotel on Saturday evening, May 21.

These Diplomatic representatives of foreign governments will join a host of American notables from government, the judiciary, clergy, education and industry, and the Jewish community of Rhode Island, to honor Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations, Michael Saul Comay, and the State of Israel, on the occasion of Israel's 12th anniversary of statehood.

Members of the Diplomatic corps who have thus far accepted invitations to attend the Diplomat Ball are the British Consul General, G. D'Arcy-Edmonson; the Consul of Panama, George H. Green; the Canadian Consul General, S. D. Hemsley; the Consul of Argentina, Juan D. Guilhauman; the Consul of Haiti, Edward D. Sherman; the Peruvian consul Jose Antonio Godoy; the Consul from Portugal, Anibal Martins; the Consul from Switzerland, Germain Broquet.

The seventh is the speeding of industrialization, so that exports may be increased and the gap in the balance of payments narrowed.

The eight is the promotion of Israel's tourist trade through investments in hotels and other tourist facilities. More than 100,000 are expected to visit the country during 1960, an increase of 10,000 over 1959.

What does it take to give this number "8" its magic power? Here, perhaps a few more numbers are in order. — $75,873,550 — This is the 1960 goal for Israel Bond sales. This figure, added to the $424,126,450 in Israel Bonds which have been sold since the inauguration of the Bond program in 1951, will bring the grand total up to a half billion.

So numbers are still capable of working "magic" with the right kind of assistance!

Mrs. Jan Peerce To Address Sponsors Enrollment Luncheon

Mrs. Jan Peerce, National Chairman of the Women's Division for State of Israel Bonds, and wife of the famous Metropolitan Opera tenor, will be the guest of honor at a Sponsors Enrollment Dessert - Luncheon on Thursday, April 21, at 12:30 P.M., at the home of Mrs. Max Alperin, 400 Blackstone Boulevard, Providence.

Mrs. Stanley Grossman, Chairman of the Rhode Island Women's Division for State of Israel Bonds, announced that Mrs. Peerce will present specially designed Sponsor pins to all women enrolling as 1960 sponsors of Israel. The pin, in the shape of a menorah, symbolizes Israel's role as a "light unto the nations."

Sponsor eligibility is through purchase of $1,000 or more in Israel Bonds.

Mrs. Peerce, former chairman of the Greater New York Women's Division for Israel Bonds, has for many years been identified with Jewish and communal causes, not only in the United States, but throughout the world.

Accompanying her husband on several world concert tours, the most recent of which was in 1959, Mrs. Peerce has encountered and studied Jewish life in such far-flung places as China, Russia, Alaska, Australia, South Africa and Europe.

She had made several trips to Israel since the establishment of the Jewish State and has met with Prime Minister David Ben Gurion and other key government officials to discuss a means of advancing Israel's economy through the Israel Bond investment program.

Mrs. Jan Peerce

Mrs. Philip Dorenbaum, chairman of the Sponsors committee, reported that since 1954, when the national Sponsors society was first organized, 69 women of the Greater Providence area have been enrolled as Sponsors.

The Sponsors Luncheon on April 21, will initiate an active month of Women's Division activities, leading up to the gala event of the Providence Jewish community — the second annual Diplomat Ball.

Members of the Sponsors committee include Mrs. Max Alperin, Mrs. Bertram L. Bernhardt, Mrs. Ilie Berger, Mrs. Melvin Berry, Mrs. Harry Blacher, Mrs. Archie Fain, Mrs. Irving Jay Fain, Mrs. M. Edgar Fain, Mrs. Leonard Y. Goldman, Mrs. Max L. Grant, Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld, Mrs. Louis Kirshenbaum, Mrs. David Meyers, Mrs. Samuel Rapaport, Jr., Mrs. Robert A. Riesman, Mrs. Leonard Salmanson, Mrs. Harry A. Schwartz, Mrs. Morton Smith.

Mrs. Arthur Einstein is co-chairman of the Women's Division; Mrs. Samuel Michaelson, honorary chairman; and Mrs. Beryl Segal, CHEN chairman.

Committee Enrolls Fifty-Four Couples

To date, 54 couples have enrolled as members of the Host and Hostess committee for the second annual Diplomat Ball. Each Host and Hostess couple seeks to secure a table of ten for the Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph K. Levy are the Ball chairmen, and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld are honorary chairmen.

Ball co-chairmen for R. I. communities are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Block for Cranston, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Adelson for Newport, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Schwartz for Pawtucket, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bernon and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin M. Falk for Woonsocket.

Patrons Enrollment For Diplomat Ball

35 persons have enrolled as Patrons of the second annual Diplomat Ball by buying $1,000 or more in Israel Bonds, it was announced by Stanley Grossman, Bond campaign chairman, at a recent meeting of the Patrons committee.

Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin, who was to have addressed the meeting, was unable to make an appearance because of bad weather which delayed his plane.

Judge Frank Licht of the Superior Court of Rhode Island filled in as speaker with a talk on his recent trip to Israel. He expressed his confidence that Israel will continue to grow and become a strong force for economic development throughout the Middle East.

Chairmen of the Patrons committee include Dr. and Mrs. Ilie Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Riesman and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Rumpier.

DINNER SUGGESTIONS

Syd Cohen

His successor, or the players competing for his spot, are bound to display more hustle and fighting spirit — and there is nothing the Sox need more.

3. This is the first time in countless years (almost three decades) that the club's permanent starting lineup was not well established early in spring training. Usually, rookies and second stringers knew before packing for camp that they were doomed to the role of fill-ins. For once, there is really and truly an element of competition on the team, a situation where a player can make the grade if he shows the ability. For years, Boston had many stars but no team. Now, with few stars, the team might prosper.

4. Sal Maglie. For the first time, Boston has a pitching coach. A REAL honest to goodness pitching coach, who has already achieved considerable success with his charges. The pitching might be surprisingly good this year.

5. If Ted The Thumper plays, you may rest assured he will hit. He won't hang around long at last year's figures. I think he will stick it out, and wield a potent bat in his part-time performance.

6. The infield seems solid. Buddin is arriving as a shortstop, and with Malzone on one side, and either Green or Runnels on the other, where is the great weakness?

Personally, the player I'm hoping gets a chance is the Great Scot, Bobby Thomson. This vet seems to me to be tailor made for the left field job. He hits a long ball, and could take to the Welcome Wall and the Nearby Net as a bear to honey. Bobby could be the star of the whole team, with a comeback in the proportions of Johnny Mize and Enos Slaughter not so many years ago.

Adversity is often a good thing. You can choke on a silver spoon, or wax fat eating with your fingers. The loss of two regulars may give other players the break they need, and the Red Sox could be better off as a result.

Don't give up on them just yet, despite the polls. You might

Add Two Sessions To Discussion Series

Following the discussion series on "How To Live With Your Teen Ager" jointly co-sponsored by the Jewish Community Center and the Jewish Family and Children's Service two additional sessions have been planned at the request of the participants.

The first session, for teen agers only, entitled "How To Live With Your Parents" will feature the film on "Discipline During Adolescence" previously discussed by the adults. Nathan Sklar, executive director of JFCS will be the discussant, with Stanley King, program director of the East Side Jewish Community Center, representing the Center. There will be opportunity for questions and discussion with some of the topics to be covered being dating, car privileges, allowances and curfews. This session will be conducted at the East Side Center on Thursday, April 21 at 7:30 P.M. All teen agers are invited to attend.

The final session entitled "Can Parents and Teen Agers Live Together" will take place on May 10 at 7:30 P.M. at the East Side Center. A panel of teen agers and parents will be on hand with Mr. Sklar serving as moderator. This session will be open to all adults and teen agers.

be pleasantly surprised — if you don't set your sights for the team at too lofty a level.

Meanwhile, this column concedes the vast improvement in the San Francisco Giants, and the tremendous impetus that will be provided the team through its new, modern, frequently crowded stadium . . . and then leans in the direction of Charley Dressen's Braves as the probable National League winner.

A solid, superior, experienced club that has chafed under gross mishandling by its former manager, Milwaukee is quite eager to show its wares under the sometimes irritating, but always stimulating leadership of Dressen.

No more 21-15 records for Spahn and Burdette. Like it or not, the extra day of rest being mapped out for them will assure them better records, greater margins of victory over defeat, even though they may not win 20.

I've gotta stick with the Braves.

Bridge

By Revoke

If there is one department of the game in which the Italian world champions have a distinct edge over our own leading players, it is in slam bidding. They seem to have an uncanny talent for discovering slams on minimum holdings, and for steering the contract into the right hand. In the following deal from the recent men's trials one pair achieved that result thanks to the special no-trump methods of the CAB system.

Dealer East: no score:

North
 ♠—A, J
 ♥—Q, 7, 4, 2
 ♦—8, 7
 ♣—K, 10, 7, 5, 4
 West
 ♠—Q, 10, 8, 7
 ♥—A, 10, 3
 ♦—A, Q, 4, 2
 ♣—A, Q
 East
 ♠—K, 6, 4, 2
 ♥—K, 9
 ♦—K, J, 10, 6, 5
 ♣—9, 2
 South
 ♠—9, 5, 3
 ♥—J, 8, 6, 5
 ♦—9, 3
 ♣—J, 8, 6, 3

The bidding went:

West	East
1NT	2NT
3S	4S
5S	6S
Pass

The CAB system features a no-trump convention called Gladiator. Its main elements are that over a response of 2C the opener is obliged to bid 2D. If the responder now bids 2H or 2S the opener must pass, if the responder bids 2NT that now has the effect of a natural raise to 2NT. A bid of 2D or 2H over an opening no-trump thus becomes constructive, and a raise from 1NT to 2NT announces game values, suggests that there may be a better contract than no-trumps and asks the opener to bid his four-card suits.

In this case East knew not only that his partner had more than a borderline raise to game but also that he had a good distribution for suit play since otherwise he would have raised 1NT to 3NT instead of exploring for a suit fit. Because of his maximum no-trump and the fact that he held three aces, he was therefore able to make one further effort which East did well to accept. With West as declarer there was no danger once the trump suit turned out well.

One other pair reached a slam, but their result was a less happy one:

West	East
1D	1S
4S	5D
6D	Pass

Again West was protected against an opening club lead, but since he was playing in the 5-4 suit rather than the 4-4, there was no discard and he had to take the club finesse eventually. It was a mistake for East to go on over 4S. His spades were weak, he was aceless; and it was hardly conceivable that his partner with a hand suitable for a slam would have preferred a raise to 4S to the more powerful course of forcing in another suit and supporting spades later.

The permit granted George Lincoln Rockwell, self-styled fuhrer, the right to have Nazi officers in the building; not mass meetings. In Washington, Rockwell announced that next week and every Sunday thereafter his movement would hold mass rallies in the tourist center of Washington, adjacent to the Mall, between the Washington Monument and the Capitol Building.

He said his forces would use an area designated by the National Capitol Parks Division of the U.S. Department of The Interior "for free exercise of every American's right to free speech."

Deplores Inactive Temple Members

ST. LOUIS—The spiritual leader of American Reform Judaism deplored recently what he termed "dues-paying but otherwise inactive synagogue members."

The Rev. Dr. Jerome D. Folkman declared that such congregants do not transmit spiritual values to the next generation. At the same time, he warned that the current "unprecedented material prosperity" has posed a serious threat to the "spiritual and intellectual pursuits that have distinguished the Jewish people through the ages."

Dr. Folkman is chairman of the Committee on Home, Marriage and Family of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. His address marked the opening of the biennial convention of the National Jewish Welfare Board at the Chase Hotel.

An authority on marital and family counseling, Rabbi Folkman is spiritual leader of Temple Israel, Columbus, Ohio. He told 600 delegates that "the prevailing atmosphere of materialism induces some to think of religion as a commodity that can be purchased."

He was sharply critical of those parents "who dump children at religious schools one day a week," saying that this procedure would not enhance the spiritual values of the younger generation.

"Religion," he emphasized, "must be caught, not bought. Children acquire spiritual values by witnessing parental behavior based upon them."

Rabbi Folkman asserted that Judaism in the last 3,000 years had developed "remarkable techniques for the survival of adversity." He added that "now we need to preserve Judaism and its characteristic spiritual and intellectual values in conditions of general prosperity."

Rabbi Folkman held that in every part of the world except the United States "the Jewish husband-father is responsible for the guardianship and the transmission of the spiritual values." He said that the "husband-father supports the wife-mother in these roles" in the United States.

"It is not enough," Dr. Folkman then stressed, "for the wife-mother to kindle her Sabbath candles in the quiet of dusk in the privacy of her kitchen. Unless her children see her in the performance of religious functions and visualize their father in a supporting role, the transmission of spiritual values is impaired."

Darwin's Impact On Jewish Religion

A conflict between science and religion is possible only when we assume that our knowledge of God originated not from our understanding of the universe and of human life, but from some supernatural revelation which is entirely extraneous to the natural powers of the human mind.

Dr. Kaplan points out that although the previous attempts to reevaluate the Jewish religion have been helpful they are now of little value in "reconstructing" Judaism. While in the nineteenth century a heroic effort to revive the allegorical method of interpreting Scriptures was made by the great exponent of Orthodoxy, Samson Raphael Hirsch, the result proved sterile because this method was in conflict with modern man's demand for historical truth. It denied the fact that crude ideas of life and society were intermingled with great ethical principles in the Bible. Terming this allegorical method "an act of jugglery," Dr. Kaplan calls for an entirely different method compatible with the "evolutionary and historical conception of religion and based on the needs of the human spirit."

The conflicts in Judaism resulting from the Darwinian revolution have not ended. The search for authority continues in Reform and Conservative ranks to replace the authority which has been abandoned or suspended. The Reconstructionist group advocates a "religion without supernaturalism" (the title of Dr. Kaplan's latest work), relying on the natural powers of the human mind for authority. Only the Orthodox leadership acknowledges the Bible as the infallible source of authority in Jewish life. It considers the biblical doctrine of creation and the theory of evolution to be basically irreconcilable.

This point is stressed in considerable detail in Menachem M. Kasher's first volume of the "Encyclopedia of Biblical Interpretation." Orthodoxy in general holds that the allegorical interpretation referred to above has always been supplemental to the literal interpretation of Scripture; it never took the place of the literal text of the Bible which stands eternal. In effect, once one denies the literal interpretation — the pshat — of the Bible, one denies the validity of Orthodoxy. A leading Orthodox spokesman in America, Dr. Samuel Belkin, President of Yeshiva University, puts it this way in his essay, "The Philosophy of Purpose":

Philosophers of reason may question why and how God created the world. The Torah does not speculate on such matters . . . The teaching (of the schools of Hillel and Shammai) is that we do not understand the why of human creation. Their conclusion is that since man has been created, he must examine his actions and avoid sin, implies even more. It teaches that if man can never learn the cause of creation he is duty bound to strive to uncover the divine purpose in creation. It is the judgment of our Sages that man cannot comprehend the divine cause, but he can and must discover for himself the moral and spiritual purpose which give meaning to his (Continued on Following Page) creation. . . It is not the origin of creation, but rather the purpose of creation that is important.

Dr. Isidore Epstein, Principal of Jews' College, London, presents the Orthodox argument in this fashion in his book The Faith of Judaism:

Evolution is, after all, a process and a means of activity, and is not to be confused with the act of creation itself. In other words, it is not concerned with the question of who created the world, but how it was created. All that the doctrine of creation insists on is that the world and all it contains is the product not of necessity, but of the free will of God, and that it is completely dependent on His will—whether it came into existence as a result of an eternal activity, or through the slow process of millions of years, or, as the Biblical narrative presents it, in six days. Here, too, as in all matters of Jewish belief, the doctrine of creation is emphasized not because of the doctrine itself, but because of its tremendous practical consequences. A rejection of the doctrine of creation would only lead to the rejection of the whole Torah. (Emphasis added)

World War II created a spiritual and moral vacuum in the United States and masses of people turned to religion in an effort to fill the void. In this "return to religion" there has been an unmistakable yearning for guidance in daily living. For many Jews, however, the "fundamentalist" approach based on an infallible book is secondary to the social impetus motivating their synagogue affiliation. They wish primarily to belong to a religious community and to provide religious education for their young.

There is a marked resurgence of religion in our land, but no clear evidence that the many thousands who are joining synagogues nowadays are concerned with the need of authority, even though they may be dimly aware of the fact that a less casual approach to religion might give them greater inspiration than their present affiliation now affords. But it is not probable that they will eventually accept the authority of divine revelation for the folkways, the ceremonies and the customs they now observe. American Jews, educated according to modern theories of knowledge, accepting the validity of scientific discovery and showing the influence the sweeping changes in the social order that have so profoundly affected inherited religious beliefs, will be prone to look for authority in places other than the traditional word of the Bible.

One cannot safely predict whether the future Judaism of the Western world will be Orthodox, Reform, Conservative or Reconstructionist. These names are now generally considered identification labels rather than doctrinal designations by the masses of synagogue affiliates today.

But the impact of Darwin, as has been demonstrated in the philosophies of the new movements in Judaism that have come into being in the hundred years since the publication of The Origin of the Species will have to be reckoned with in days to come. (Condensed from Congress Bi-Weekly)
