Express Interest In Investment Project

JERUSALEM — The First National Bank of Boston and French Bank Lazard Freres have expressed interest in joining the world bank in a major investment project to expand production of dead sea potash and chemical works and to construct a new Mediterranean Harbor, it was reported last week.

The two banks would provide an investment of about $11,000,000 while the World Bank has agreed to lend $27,500,000 toward the $46,000,000 investment project at Ashdod.

Details and the schedule of the Ashdod port development were announced by Frederic R. Harris Inc., the consulting engineering firm commissioned by the Israel Government to design the port facilities.

The plans were disclosed at a reception with the participation of Oved Ben-Ami and Philip Klutznick, the initiators of the project. The master plan for the port development, the announcement said, was based on cargo forecasts and on various economic data. It calls for an off-shore development of protected watershed by means of breakwaters.

The plan is divided into two main phases of development: A first complete phase of 16 berths and an ultimate phase for 30 berths.

Commit G. Lincoln Rockwell For Psychiatric Examination

WASHINGTON — Municipal Judge George Neilson committed George Lincoln Rockwell, self-styled leader of the American Nazi Party, to the District of Columbia General Hospital for psychiatric examination.

Judge Neilson accepted a claim of Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King, at the close of a lengthy hearing, that a prima facie showing had been made that Rockwell might be of insufficient soundness of mind to stand trial on two charges of disorderly conduct arising from clashes at "rallies" he has been staging in the nation's capital.

Hearings Continued

The hearings on the disorderly conduct charges against Rockwell were continued by Judge Neilson until Aug. 26. The hearings against several of Rockwell's "troopers" on the same charges were continued until Aug. 31.

Rockwell asserted he was not advocating the extermination of Jews "as a race" but "as traitors." He added he would "save some good Jews," and asserted he had

Three Providence Banks Approve Secured Loan Of $600,000 For UJA

A secured loan of $600,000 for the United Jewish Appeal has been approved by three Providence banks through the General Jewish Committee of Providence.

The loan was negotiated after a resolution authorizing such a loan was adopted at a special meeting of the board of directors of the GJC on June 14. The resolution came after an urgent request by the National United Jewish Appeal. Archibald Silverman, honorary GJC president, was empowered by the board of directors, to negotiate the loan with the three banks.

Joseph W. Ress, GJC president, said this action was taken following the urgent request of the United Jewish Appeal for immediate cash funds over and above the normal flow to meet basic expenditures of the Jewish Agency for Israel.

The loan is being granted to the General Jewish Committee on the signatures of its president, Mr. Ress, and its treasurer, Judge Frank Licht. However, Mr. Ress said that the loan represents an obligation upon the entire Jewish community of the Greater Providence area.

Collateral for the loan, which becomes effective August 16, 1960, will consist of four $150,000 notes totaling $600,000 each due consecutively from one to four years inclusive, signed by the National United Jewish Appeal, Inc., and payable to and endorsed by the General Jewish Committee of Providence.

The loan was negotiated by the Plantations Bank of Rhode Island. Participating in the loan, along with the Plantations Bank, are the Industrial National Bank and the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company.

Under the terms of the new loan of $600,000, the participating banks will deduct $300,000 of the loan to pay off the balance remaining on the loan of $600,000 negotiated in June, 1958. The balance of $300,000 will go to the United Jewish Appeal immediately.

Mr. Ress expressed his sincere thanks to the participating banks for their cooperation in this matter.

Israel Displays Newest Weapons During Maneuvers

JERUSALEM — Israel's newest weapons, first unwrapped at last May's Independence Day parade, went into action in armored forces and infantry maneuvers that constituted a pointed reminder of the country's preparedness for military threats from any quarter.

With forces deployed over a large area of the Negev, and involving more tanks than were mobilized for the Sinai engagement, the maneuvers revealed mature skills in modern armored warfare. Pointedly stressed were elements of speed, firepower, the initiative of commanders in the field, and generally tough conditions involved in mounting and facing the Soviet style Blitzkrieg tactics now part of the U.A.R. war manual, the Jerusalem Post reported.

Country-wide awareness of the elementary role in survival played by Israel's armed forces was symbolized by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's two swift visits to the troops in the field within 24 hours, the last to the armored corps that succeeded in "breaking through" to enemy territory. Live-fire exercises, and parachutist drops behind enemy lines, were among the highlights of the maneuvers.

The Jerusalem Post said the real significance of the successful operation was the grit, stamina and unflagging morale of the men themselves.

End Dispute Over Seizure Of Eichmann

JERUSALEM — A joint Argentine-Israel statement ending the dispute over the capture of Adolph Eichmann, the Nazi leader who directed the mass-extermination of the Jews in Europe emphasized the desire of both countries for renewal of their friendship. Shabtai Rosenne, legal adviser to the Israel Foreign Ministry, met with Argentine President Arturo Frondizi and Foreign Minister Diogenes Taboada.

Cordial Talks

These meetings were held in a cordial atmosphere and paved the way for a final settlement of the dispute.

Argentina and Israel agreed to regard the Eichmann case as a closed incident. There were no terms announced and no mention of reparations in the agreement to end the dispute, according to press dispatches.

It added that the hope was expressed that the existing friction should come to an end and that the traditional good relations between the two countries should be resumed.

Borman Alive

Martin Bormann is alive, and while he has so far eluded capture, it was his trial that led Jewish volunteers to Eichmann, according to the French monthly, "Lecture pour Tous."

The Paris magazine reported that Eichmann was finally given away by his discarded German mistress Anna, who "sold" his whereabouts for money to buy a cafe in Rosario, Argentina.

The article names the Jewish volunteers hunting Bormann and Eichmann in separate teams, Simon Wiesenthal, Asher Ben-Natan, Max Levinsky, Simon Gold, Aron Friedwald, Jack Karens, Gordon Margoulis, and Adolf Tauber, alias Beridze a former Soviet officer commanding the Sixth N. K. V. D. Regiment.

The majority are apparently non-Israelis, according to the Paris monthly, and their operations were reportedly financed over a long period by a Jewish industrialist in Geneva who lost his entire family in Auschwitz. His identity is not disclosed.

Argentina's action in declaring Israel's Ambassador in Buenos Aires, persona non grata was regarded by the press as a direct slur on Israel, indicating that extremist and pro Nazi circles in the government have gained the upper hand. The final settlement of the case, however, changed this view.

Anti-Jewish manifestations were reported in Buenos Aires and shouts of "death for the Jews" were heard.

Appeals For Understanding Of Problems Of Negroes

HARTFORD, Conn. — In the light of recent revelations of Jewish-Negro tensions, an appeal for Jewish understanding of Negro problems and extension of the hands of friendship and support was made by Rabbi Jacob Neusner in an editorial in the Connecticut Jewish Ledger.

Rabbi Neusner, son of the publisher of the Ledger, wrote:

"The Jewish responsibility, which was imposed on him in prophetic and rabbinic teaching, is to receive every man with honor and love, to accord to him the dignity of his race — the human race — and to help him to realize the image of God impressed upon his soul.

"Of all the American people, the Negro most needs support in his struggle for dignity and full citizenship in the human race.

"As Jews, we have a further task. It is to accord to the Negro every economic and social benefit we can. It is to help him earn a decent living, if we are businessmen. It is to exchange friendship with him as a man, to give him a sense of individuality, if we know him face-to-face."

Tensions Evaluated

The problem of Negro-Jewish tensions, a topic approached queasily in the Jewish community has been given a critical evaluation by Nathan L. Edelstein, chairman of the Governing Council of the American Jewish Congress and chairman of the Philadelphia Human Rights Commission.

Edelstein noted that despite the commitment of Jewish community relations agencies and their genuine efforts to preach and teach equality, there is a wide and alarming gap between the leadership and the rank and file in the Jewish community, and in the Negro community too.

"We as leaders have to convince, sell and inform the masses of the Jewish community of the Negro problems, and especially in regards to housing and equal rights," he said.

WARNS OF BIGOTS

NEW YORK — A warning that while some teen-agers had been arrested for recent anti-Semitic acts, "seasoned" bigots ready to strike again may have escaped, has been voiced by a spokesman of the World Jewish Congress. The charge was made by Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig, director of the WJC Department of International Affairs.

Visit To Eichmann's Jail

by Leo Heiman

I was the first newspaperman to visit Adolph Eichmann's jail. I may not say precisely where it is, except that it is a British-built police fortress located somewhere in the north of Israel. Its code-name is "Camp Iyar," Iyar being the name of the Hebrew month during which the secret operation which led to Eichmann's capture was carried out. (The undercover operation is likewise known by the code-name "Action Iyar.")

Travellers who pass "Camp Iyar" from the road see only the top towers of what looks like an ordinary police station rising from the lush green of the countryside. But heavily armed police patrols screen the entire area and passers-by are warned not to loiter more than a few seconds. Additional guards with machineguns and searchlights are posted on watch-towers and on top of the wall which surrounds the fortress compound. Inside the outer courtyard, heavy mesh-wire fences, guarded by police dogs, crisscross the path leading to the main building.

To gain entrance here, the visitor must pass a quadruple chain of controls: first, the patrols which screen the countryside and roads; then, the guard at the steel-plated main gate; then, the courtyard guards with their dogs; and finally, the inside guard who unlocks the heavy steel doors. But once inside the main building, it would be easier to be admitted into Nikita Khrushchev's office in the Kremlin than to the padded isolation cell where the top Nazi war criminal sits writing his memoirs and confession notes.

The fortress building itself is divided into several parts: administration and guard rooms; investigation and interrogation rooms; office space and laboratories; archives; kitchens and service rooms; and—finally—the isolation wing where Eichmann is kept. Each part is shut off from the rest by a series of steel bars, automatic trap-doors and sliding gates. At least five separate checkpoints must be negotiated before penetrating the inner sanctum of Eichmann's detention. A different unit of guards is locked in together with the prisoner, remaining inside the isolation wing 24 hours a day, seven days a week, without any contact with the outside world.

The guards for this strenuous duty were hand-picked from among the special security service branch of the Israel police headquarters, veteran detective units, and criminal investigations divisions of all police commands and districts. All who were selected had to meet the following conditions: Oriental parentage (Iraqi, Yemenite, etc.), so that they would have no knowledge of German or Yiddish, no relatives massacred by the Nazis and hence no personal motives for vengeance; unhampered bachelor status, so that they could stay with the prisoner at all times; approval by a psychologist to vouch for their emotional equilibrium.

In charge of this special detail is an old sergeant-major of the Israel police. He was born in Germany and is the only one of the guards who speaks German and with whom the prisoner is allowed to communicate. If Eichmann wants to use the washroom, get a book or some writing paper, he addresses himself to the sergeant-major. The other guards are under the orders to ignore Eichmann when he talks to them. Incidentally, after a few weeks in prison, Eichmann suddenly began speaking Hebrew. Not a fluent Hebrew, to be sure, but not so bad either, and certainly no worse than the Hebrew spoken by many new immigrants. He explained that he used to take Hebrew lessons, some 23 years ago, from a rabbi (later murdered) who was a prisoner of the Gestapo in Berlin. "I forgot my lessons entirely, but after I heard you talking for a couple of weeks, it all came back to me," Eichmann told his startled guards.

The sergeant-major sleeps on a cot in Eichmann's cell, in which a ceiling light burns day and night. The cell is padded with foam rubber mattresses three inches thick and eight feet high. The single narrow window is barred and completely boarded up from the outside, except for a thin half-inch slit on top. When the pencil-thin shaft of sunlight moving along the wall opposite the slit disappears, the prisoner knows that it is nightfall.

Because the cell is hot and stuffy, ventilation equipment and an air-cooler have been installed outside the boarded-up window. The ceiling light can be switched on only from the outside. Eich-

Home Run Derby . . .
"Dial M For Murder"

The long-ball hitting proclivities of that back-to-back slugging duo of the Yankees, Mantle and Maris has led to the coining by Mel Allen of the popular new phrase among Yankee fans, "Dial M For Murder". The catchword is supposed to convey the awesome power in the bats of the two M's.

Looking at them from another point of view, Mantle and Maris take on an even greater importance in the pennant scheme of the New Yorkers.

At their present pace, two-thirds of the way through the season, Roger and Mickey stand a chance (even if it is a slim one) of being the first teammates in many a year to hit 100 home runs.

As this was written, with the Yankees two games shy of the two-thirds marker, Maris had 35, Mantle 27. Total—62. Two-thirds of 100 is 67; so the M-Men are not far off target. A look at the record reveals also that Mantle usually works up to a good home run spree around this time of the year. If he does it this time, the pair could make it to the 100 mark.

How common is it for two men of the same team to clout 100 homers? Unless your record books are different from mine, the answer lies back in the late 1920s, when Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the same Yankees also were hitting back-to-back (there's a coincidence!)

The top year surely must be 1927. That's the year that Babe hit 60, while poor Lou couldn't keep up his teammate's terrific September pace, and had to settle for a pitiful 47.

Two men — 107 home runs! That was the year of the most-est. The same pair came close at least a couple of time. In 1930, Ruth hit 49, Gehrig 41, for a total of 90. The very next year, each had 46, for a total of 92.

Without checking too closely, I have to guess that the only other combinations to hit as many as 90 in one season were Jimmy Foxx and Al Simmons of the old Philadelphia Athletics, and Joe DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig of a later era of Yankees. Foxx, the celebrated Broadback of Philly, slugged 58 in 1932; while his teammate, Simmons, was very respectable with 35. Total—93. DiMaggio, the Yankee Clipper, led the league in his second year, 1937, with 46. Gehrig, who was strictly fabulous for two-thirds of that season until he went into the mysterious decline that led to his death, had to settle for 37 as a result of his prolonged slump. Total—83.

A brief note here on Gehrig. Lou had really been powdering the ball through the middle of the summer, and actually had a batting average of better than .400, at the time the fatal bug hit him. This was his greatest season up to that point; and it is interesting to conjecture what heights he, as an individual, and in concert with DiMaggio, would have reached had he remained well.

Back to the point, however — which is that Mantle and Maris have a chance to become only the second combo in history to hit 100 or more homers.

In case you don't respect the magnitude of this feat, you are hereby invited to look up the number of TRIOS on the same club that have hit 100 homers. The pickings there will be found to be mighty lean, once you get past the Yankees of Ruth and Gehrig. There are the Athletics of Foxx and Simmons — maybe once, but certainly not more than twice — and the Yankees of DiMaggio and Gehrig — ditto. Aside from those powerhouse teams, the searcher will look far and wide to come up with an entry.

There was a year, for example, when three men — DiMaggio, Keller, and Henrich — of Joe McCarthy's Yanks each hit 30 or more homers. This was a spectacular achievement, possibly the only one of its kind extant. But the total of the three still fell short of 100.

In that regard, this year's New York team stands a chance to pick up a lot of marbles. Bill Skowron, who has avoided serious injury to date, had hit 20 home runs through Sunday's

Foods To Remember

With the thermometer soaring, it's our practice to prepare our main dish in the cool of the morning. We know that proteins in the summer diet are just as much a MUST as at any other time of the year, but the less "heating" of this essential food element is FISH in any form. For a change from fresh fish dishes, we often resort to the following:

▲ MOCK GEFILTE FISH (Midsummer Dream Dish)

1 tall can salmon (your favorite brand)
1 medium size onion, diced fine
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening or oil
1 med. size raw carrot, grated
3 eggs, separated
4 tablespoons fine cracker or bread crumbs
Salt and white pepper to taste.
Drain liquid from canned salmon, reserving liquid to be used as below. Remove fish bones and mash fish with a fork. Add the diced onion to hot shortening in a frying pan and saute till lightly yellowed. Add to the fish along with grated carrot, egg yolks and crumbs. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Beat egg whites stiff and fold in with a fork. Cover and let stand in the refrigerator while preparing sauce.

FISH SAUCE:

2 onions, sliced (about a cupful)
2 carrots, diced fine or sliced thin
Liquid drained from salmon plus cold water to make 1 cupful
1/2 teaspoon sugar
*Parsley sprigs, lemon wedges or slices for garnish
Combine the prepared onions, carrots, liquid and sugar in a large enough saucepan to prevent boiling over when the fish is added and bring to a quick boil. Reduce heat to a simmer. Form the fish combination into balls the size of walnuts and drop them one by one into the simmering sauce. Let simmer, uncovered, for 45 min. Cover tightly and turn off heat under saucepan. Let cool in the saucepan before lifting out the fish balls with a perforated spoon to a serving platter. Use carrot bits or slices for garnish, then strain the sauce over all. Cover with aluminum foil or wax paper and refrigerate till serving time. Garnish as indicated above and pass the horseradish or ketchup. Double or triple the listed ingredients for more than 4 servings. We like to have plenty of this on hand, just in case we have impromptu guests.

▲ BOILED EGGPLANT RELISH (Non-fattening)

1 pound eggplant, pared and diced
1 tablespoon salt
Cold water as directed below
1 large green or sweet red pepper, diced or chopped
4 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 tablespoon light brown sugar
A dash of paprika
A dash of garlic powder, optional
Sprinkle the diced eggplant with salt and let stand in a cool place for 15 minutes. Add 1/4 cup cold water, stir then drain well. Place the eggplant in a saucepan, add cold water to about 1 inch depth, cover and cook at moderate heat only till the eggplant is tender and transparent. Drain, add prepared green pepper and the rest of listed ingredients, mixing with a fork.

Chill before serving with meat or fish dishes, or as a spread for canapes.

Variation: Add 1 slice of your favorite bread, diced and toasted, to this while hot, stirring till well combined. Good extender, too.

Culinary cues: Pep up your mixed vegetable salads with a tablespoonful of salted or brined CAPERS. These are available at any food store or delicatessen.

SESAME SEED CRACKERS, several varieties, all bearing the circled (U) insignia, make excellent canapes with almost any spread.

Arab Discrimination Matter Of Concern To U. S. Government

NEW YORK - Discrimination by the Arab governments against American Jewish firms is a matter of "great concern" to the United States government, the State Department said last week in a communication to Louis Segal, general secretary of the Farband-Labor Zionist Order. The communication was an answer to a complaint that the government of Kuwait has addressed letters to American enterprises requesting information about their relations with Israel or Israeli firms.

Segal referred specifically to a letter addressed by the Boycott Affairs Department of the Kuwait Government to Samuel Shulsinger, head of a New York printing firm engaged in the printing of Jewish books, periodicals and other printed matter. He attached a copy of this letter to his complaint to the State Department.

Kuwait, a sheikhdom on the Persian Gulf, has sent such letters to American firms all over the United States warning them against doing business with Israel on pain of Arab boycott.

Pointing out that these letters are "an outright example of the Arab boycott which is being conducted in the United States against American citizens," Segal asked the State Department to advise him as to what action can be taken "in this most serious and urgent matter."

In a reply received from the office of the Near Eastern Affairs of the State Department, Segal was told that the Kuwait letter "will be cited" by the State Department "as we continue to register our Government's disapproval of Arab boycott activities." The reply added:

"As you know, the boycott is only one of several disturbing

Reynolds, Superior Court Judge Frank Licht, Supreme Court Judge Thomas J. Paolino and former governor J. Howard McGrath were among officials present at the services.

Eichmann's Jail

mann's bed is a simple army cot, with a straw mattress, three blankets, small pillow and two white sheets, which are changed regularly. He wears a khaki prison uniform, without belt or suspenders, and soft brown shoes without shoelaces.

Leaning against the wall under the window is a small bookshelf crammed with German novels and short stories. Eichmann receives about five new books a week from the police. He is allowed no newspapers, magazines, or mail privileges. It goes without saying that he never knows what time it is, or even what day it is. He is not allowed to keep track of the passage of time by scratching marks into the wall as prisoners everywhere do. He does not know where he is, except that he is in an Israeli prison.

The chief duty of the sergeant-major, who is also Eichmann's personal escort, is to prevent lynching, murder or suicide, and to make sure that the prisoner cooperates willingly with his interrogators and examiners. On this score, there is no trouble at all, Eichmann is very cooperative, now that the game is up, and in addition to the personal interviews is supplying his captors with much written material. With dozens of publishers and the world's biggest magazines already bidding for Eichmann's confessions and memories, the Israel police have placed an exclusive copyright on his literary efforts, which are a property of the state.

The prisoner eats the same food as his guards. He does not even have his own plate and cup, and the meals are always switched at the last moment to prevent the possibility of poisoning attempts. There is one central kitchen in the fortress, which prepares food for all the guards, officers, investigators, interrogators, examiners, technical service staff — and for Eichmann. No one ever knows in advance which portion will be his.

The meals delivered to Eichmann's wing are distributed irregularly by the sergeant-major who eats together with Eichmann, from the same table, which is also used as a writing desk. The meat is cut up beforehand so that there is no need to use a knife. Needless to say, the food is kosher, as all police kitchens are under the strictest rabbinic supervision.

Whereas all personnel outside the isolation wing eat according to a fixed schedule, and have their duties blueprinted by orders and regulations to account for every moment of their time, Eichmann and his personal guards follow an irregular routine.

(To Be Continued Next Week)

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. George Tobolson of June Street, Worcester, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Ellen, to Harvey N. Mendelovitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Mendelovitz of Park Avenue, Cranston.

INDIAN PRESS OPINION

Syd Cohen

asserted, he had maintained in the spring that the Yankees were the team to beat.

Ah ha, Al, this time I've got you! In April, the Sporting News conducted its annual survey of the opinions of the major league managers. And one Mr. Lopez was quoted as picking Cleveland to follow his club home. The Yankees, he said at that time, have not improved any, as far as I can see, over last year. They can't finish any better than third.

Which is a peculiar way of saying that New York was the team to beat.

The Giants Is Dead!

Never were there more confident fans than those who, in the spring thought it impossible that the San Francisco Giants could lose the 1960 championship. When I wrote (and argued publicly) that Charley Dressen would maneuver his Braves to the championship, the reaction was astonishingly strong. I haven't heard such violent bitterness in years. It was as if a man had no right even to think that any other club had a chance.

Not that I'm bragging about the Braves, you understand. Milwaukee has been something less than sensational. But do you mind, Giant fans, if I mildly point out that the team I picked has been the better of the two?

Now, with some six and a half weeks remaining, the Giants "is" certainly dead. Oh sure, they overcame a bigger lead just nine years ago; but only one team was ahead of them at that time. Now there are at least four; and it is just about inconceivable that San Francisco could get red hot, and stay red hot, while all their heel-showing opponents suddenly and permanently deteriorate into losing ball clubs.
