

Congo President Visits Israel

JERUSALEM — President Abbe Fulbert Youlou, of the Congo Republic (formerly the French Congo), arrived here for a one-week state visit. He is the first head of state to visit Israel while in office. President Youlou was met at the airport by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and top government officials.

President Youlou called on Israeli President Itzhak Ben-Zvi and Premier Ben-Gurion and was guest of honor at President Ben-Zvi's residence. The visiting head of the African state presided over a session of the International Conference on the Role of Science in the Development of New States at Rehovot.

President Youlou's schedule also included tours of agricultural projects accompanied by Agriculture Minister Moshe Dayan, visits to army installations, a reception by Foreign Minister Golda Meir, which was attended by members of the diplomatic corps, a dinner in his honor by Premier Ben-Gurion, which was attended by delegates to the Rehovot conference, and a tour of the Negev.

Believe Fortune In Gold To Be Buried In Alps

LONDON — A fortune in gold, looted from Nazi victims and estimated to be worth at least $280,000,000, is believed to have been buried in the Austrian Alps by Nazi leaders including Adolf Eichmann, the war criminal who directed the extermination of 6,000,000 Jews in Europe, it was reported here by the Bonn correspondent of the Sunday Times.

Local residents of the Styrian mountain village where Eichmann sought refuge after the war, are wondering, according to the correspondent, if the Nazi war criminal now awaiting trial in Israel, will at last disclose the secret of the Blau Alm (Mountain Pasture) where witnesses say he buried the treasure.

Says Waad Hacashruth Sets High Standards

August 24, 1960

Editor:

A very unpleasant situation has arisen in our Jewish Community. I respectfully request that you offer your columns in order to clarify certain matters so that there will be no grounds for misunderstanding. Rumors have been started and have progressed with brush-fire alacrity that one, and according to some versions, several, Kosher butchers are really not "so Kosher", and that the Waad Hacashruth is content not to do anything about it. I, therefore, submit the following information for the benefit of the entire Community.

Argentine Anti-Semites Attack Jewish Students

BUENOS AIRES — Alfredo Vitolo, Argentine Interior Minister, last week denounced the attack recently by a nationalist anti-Semitic student gang on a group of Jewish students at the Sarmiento National High School here in which one Jewish student was shot and seriously wounded.

"We will not tolerate the spectacle of religious and racial struggle," the Minister said. Doctors reported the condition of the wounded student, Manuel Trilnik, to be improving. He was shot under the heart.

The Interior Minister said he had ordered an investigation of the attack, in which a number of students of the Buenos Aires Catholic University took part. He expressed the opinion that the Tacuara movement, to which the student assailants belong, was composed of former members of the Peronist movement and other nationalists.

Condemnation of the attack also was formally expressed by officials of Buenos Aires University. The Argentine Jewish representative organization DAIA had charged, following the attack that federal and local authorities had consistently ignored DAIA warnings about conditions in the school which culminated in the assault.

The assailants had shouted "Long Live Eichmann" as they waylaid the Jewish students in the street. The DAIA said it had notified Dr. Vitolo and police officials that the Jewish students had been threatened and asked the authorities to take preventive action, a proposal the DAIA said the officials had ignored.

GJC To Dedicate 1960 Campaign To Late Henry J. Hassenfeld

The 1960 campaign of the General Jewish Committee will be dedicated to the memory of the late Henry J. Hassenfeld.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the General Jewish Committee it was voted unanimously to dedicate the forthcoming annual fund-raising drive to the memory of the late president of the GJC and leader of the Greater Providence Jewish community.

The resolution adopted by the committee reads in part — "whereas, just as all the days of life reflected his undying faith in the teachings of the Holy One . . . he continues to wear the mantle of true leadership for by precept and example he has fashioned guide posts along the road of life, if we will but follow . . ."

The resolution points out further that Mr. Hassenfeld devoted his lifetime to alleviating the troubles and sufferings of his fellow man and that his entire life was marked by charity and giving so that "poverty, misfortune and hardship born of oppression shall be no more."

Mr. Hassenfeld served as president of the General Jewish Committee for five years and prior to that was the campaign chairman for several years. His term of office was marked by the expansion of the GJC activities and increased aid for the organization's beneficiary agencies and for the thousands of oppressed and persecuted fellow Jews throughout the world.

The 1960 campaign will start with a meeting of the Initial Gifts Committee on Monday evening, Sept. 12, at the home of Joseph W. Ress, GJC president, 486 Cole Avenue.

Mr. Ress recently announced that an increased goal of $650,000 has been set for the 1960 campaign in view of the increased needs of the 53 beneficiary agencies of the GJC, including the United Jewish Appeal — its major beneficiary.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld is general campaign chairman, and Samuel Rosen is Initial Gifts chairman.

Mr. Hassenfeld and Mr. Rosen pointed out that the principal work of the Initial Gifts committee will be concentrated between the two week period of Sept. 12 and Sept. 25 at which time the community campaign will officially be launched.

Instructs Members To Refuse to Fill Questionnaires

HAMBURG — The Hamburg Chamber of Commerce has instructed all of its members to refuse to fill out questionnaires submitted by the Arab League boycott office requesting written evidence that certain German export firms were not Jewish owned, it was reported here last week.

In a circular letter to its membership, the Chamber pointed out that, while considerable importance was to be attached to the development of Arab-West German trade, the request for information were contrary to accepted international trade practices.

In a public statement the Chamber of Commerce said: "It is about time that Arab countries were told clearly by all states, not only the Federal Republic, that such snooping is incompatible with good relations between sovereign states."

The action by the Chamber of Commerce here represented a departure from the previous German attitude.

This, together with the fact that the Bonn Government never intervened against such practices, gave the impression that West Germany tacitly condoned the boycott.

Ask Court To Call Sunday Closing Law Unconstitutional

NEW YORK—Major American Jewish religious and civic organizations filed a brief with the United States Supreme Court asking the court to declare compulsory Sunday closing laws unconstitutional.

The organizations joining in the brief include in their constituencies most American rabbis, an overwhelming majority of members of Jewish congregations in the United States, and a substantial proportion of Americans affiliated with Jewish civic organizations.

The brief argues that Sunday laws infringe the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution. The First Amendment prohibits any establishment of religion or any law prohibiting the free exercise of religion. The Fourteenth Amendment enjoins states from depriving persons of liberty or property without due process of law or from denying them equal protection of the laws.

Specifically challenged in the brief are the compulsory Sunday laws of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. In both those states, Sabbath-observing Jews had sought in lower courts to enjoin enforcement of the laws against them. These cases are now on appeal to the Supreme Court. Any clean-cut Supreme Court ruling will have far-reaching effects, since many states have Sunday laws like those of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

The Jewish organizations joining in the brief as "friends of the court" are affiliated in two national coordinating agencies, the Synagogue Council of America and the National Community Relations Advisory Council. The latter also includes 52 Jewish councils in cities throughout the United States.

A joint advisory committee of these two coordinating groups has been working for some years to maintain strict separation of church and state. This committee is made up of officially designated representatives of the national rabbinic and congregational bodies of Orthodox, Conservative and Reform Judaism, and of the American Jewish Congress, the Jewish Labor Committee, the Jewish War Veterans of the U. S. A., and the Jewish councils affiliated with the NCRAC. The brief was prepared under the direction of this joint advisory committee.

The brief argues that the Sunday laws infringe the First Amendment because they are religious laws, forbidden by the constitutional ban on laws respecting an establishment of religion. Even if they are considered welfare laws — as has been argued — the brief maintains, they still infringe the Amendment because they restrain the religious freedom of

GENERATES INDIGNATION

THE HAGUE — The imminent release from Bread prison of the six remaining German war criminals has generated wide indignation in this country among all segments of the population.

Opposition to the release of the criminals was voiced last week in a petition, signed by more than 17,000 Dutch citizens, to Minister of Justice A. C. Beerman.

APPROVES LOAN

JERUSALEM—Formal approval of an $8,400,000 loan to Nigeria, which is to become an independent state on October 1, has been given by the Israel Cabinet with a view to enabling the former British protectorate to purchase goods and services from Israel.

The loan agreement was consummated when Israel's Minister of Finance, Levi Eshkol, visited Nigeria recently.

Emphasizes Importance Of Middle East Peace

NEW YORK — The importance of bringing about an Arab-Israel conference for the purpose of achieving peace, as well as of taking immediate steps to eliminate Arab discrimination against American Jews, was emphasized by Senator John F. Kennedy, Democratic Presidential nominee, in a letter addressed to Dr. Israel Goldstein, Zionist leader.

"The central, overriding problem in the Middle East is the problem of achieving peace in the area," he wrote. "The persistence of the Arab states in maintaining a 'state of war' against Israel is clearly the cause of their discriminations.

"The starting point, therefore, for an effective, realistic American policy designed to preserve peace and extend the free way of life in the Middle East is to come to grips with this threshold obstacle. American diplomacy must be directed to ending the 'state of war' in the Middle East, and this undertaking should have a very high priority in a Democratic Administration."

Workers Told To Keep Religious Issue Out

NEW YORK — Vice President Nixon's headquarters issued instructions to "all persons connected" with the Republican Presidential campaign to keep the "religious issue" completely out of the campaign. The instructions were signed by Leonard W. Hall, general chairman, and Robert H. Finch, director of the Nixon campaign.

The order, which was sent to all local campaign workers from coast to coast, emphasized:

"1. No person or organization conditioning their support on religious grounds will be recognized in this campaign.

"2. There shall be no discussion of the religious issue in any literature by any volunteer group or party organization supporting the Vice President and no literature of this kind from any source should be made available.

"3. Staff and volunteer workers should avoid discussing the 'religious issue' either informally or casually since this might be construed as some kind of deliberate campaign."

Obituary

MRS. ISRAEL GOLDIN

Funeral services for Mrs. Gitel (Director) Goldin, 85, of Brookline, Mass., who died Aug. 3, were held the following day at the Torf Funeral Home in Brookline. Burial was in Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Goldin was the mother of Rabbi Aaron Goldin who served for 20 years as spiritual leader of Congregation Ohave Shalom in Pawtucket. Born in Russia, the widow of Rabbi Israel Goldin, she lived for many years in Rochester, N. Y., before moving to Brookline five years ago.

Besides Rabbi Goldin, she leaves another son, Rabbi Chaim Goldin of Brookline, Jewish chaplain at Massachusetts General Hospital and coordinator of the Jewish Chaplaincy Counsel of Greater Boston. She is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. Cecile Adler of Brookline, Mrs. Rae Winshall of Detroit, Mich. and Mrs. Ann Joseph of Belle Harbor, N. Y., and nine grandchildren.

Two other sons, one of whom was Rabbi Joseph Goldin of Shakaia, Lithuania, author of "Yesterday, Today or Tomorrow," were killed by the Nazis. Mrs. Goldin was the daughter of the late Rabbi Hirsh Director of Sokolka, Poland, author of "Binyan Shalom".

MORRIS KAPLAN

Funeral services for Morris Kaplan, 46, of 57 Palmer Street, New Bedford, Mass., who died Aug. 22 after a long illness, were held the same day at the Ahavath Achim Synagogue in New Bedford. Burial was in Plainville Cemetery.

Mr. Kaplan, the husband of Mrs. Esther (Barbatsky) Kaplan, was a former Providence resident.

A New Bedford resident for 22 years, he was a native of Chelsea, and son of the late Joseph and Etta Kaplan. He was a member and past financial secretary of Ahavath Achim Synagogue.

In addition to his widow, he leaves a son, Gerald, and two daughters, Judith and Riesha, all of New Bedford; a brother, Abraham Kaplan, and a sister, Mrs. Bernard Perlman, both of Providence.

CHARLES SCHREIBER

Funeral services for Charles I. Schreiber, 59, of 66 Fairfield Avenue, a retired mechanic, who died Aug. 24 after a long illness, were held Aug. 26 at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Mt. Carmel Cemetery, Glendale, N. Y., on Sunday.

The husband of Pauline (Cohen) Schreiber, he was born in Baltimore, Md. in 1901, a son of the late Samuel and Ida (Richman) Schreiber. He had been a resident of this city for 44 years.

Besides his wife, survivors are a brother, Jack Schreiber of Providence, and a sister, Mrs. E. J. London of New York City.

MRS. JACOB FELDMAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Lena (Weiner) Feldman, 64, of 497 Chalkstone Avenue, who died suddenly Aug. 27, were held Sunday at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

The wife of Jacob Feldman, she was born in Russia, a daughter of the late Sharsel and Rachel Weiner.

She was a member of the Women's Pioneer Association, the Jewish Home for the Aged and Congregation Sons of Jacob.

Besides her husband she is survived by six sons, Samuel, Sydney, Louis, Morris, and Hyman all of Providence; and Dr. Seymour Feldman of Newport, and nine grandchildren.

ISRAEL FERSHTMAN

Funeral services for Israel Fershtman of Brooklyn, N. Y., who died Aug. 26 were held Aug. 28 at the Riverside Chapel in Brooklyn. Burial was in Wellwood Cemetery, Babylon, L. I.

The husband of the late Sarah (Berland) Fershtman, he leaves three sons, Dr. Max B. Fershtman of Cranston, Peter and Jack Fershtman of New York City; a daughter, Mrs. Harry Reiter of New York City; a brother, Mathew Ferrin of Philadelphia; 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Foods To Remember

Ding-dong bell!
School's open--oh, well!

Time to think about after-school snacks to serve the kids when they come trooping in, excited and hungry and full of vim, vigor and vitality. For a change from cookies and milk, try serving a crusty roll-half that is prepared ahead of time by a quarter of an hour, or re-heated on demand. It is guaranteed to satisfy even a teenager of either sex.

▲ STUFFED CRUSTY ROLLS

2 tablespoons butter or substitute
1 cup finely diced celery, leaves included
1/4 cup finely diced green pepper or green onions
2 tablespoons fine cracker or bread crumbs
1 tablespoon cold water or fruit juice
1 3/4 cups home-made or canned applesauce
1/8 teaspoon grated lemon rind
A dash of nutmeg or
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
4 crusty rolls, sesame seed or poppyseed topped, halved
Melt the shortening in a frying pan and saute the celery and pepper bits over moderate heat, stirring with a fork or spoon for 2 to 3 minutes. Add the crumbs then the mixture of remaining listed ingredients and blend while heating through--about 1 minute. Scoop out the halved crusty rolls and fill with chopped nuts, a sprig of fresh mint or a maraschino for color. For a cool day, we suggest heating the filled rolls before filling, then letting them remain in the warm oven until serving time. Goes with any liquid nourishment like milk, fruit juice or bottled drinks of the kids' choice and yours. Serves 4 to 8, depending on degree of hunger as well as age.

3/4 cup dark brown sugar, tightly packed

2 tablespoons caraway seeds
1/2 teaspoons peppercorns
1/2 teaspoon mustard seeds
4 bay leaves
1 large onion, thinly sliced, optional

Prepare the watermelon rind a day in advance by cutting away the dark outer rind and whatever red part has remained on the slices served. Cut into 1-inch cubes or 1-inch by 1/4-inch "fingers" and place these in a glass container or in glass jars. Sprinkle with salt, shake the jars or mix well if a bowl is used. Cover with a towel or other thin material and let stand at room temperature. Let stand at least overnight. When ready to prepare the relish, drain off whatever liquid has formed on the melon bits, rinse with cold water then cover with cold water and cook 10 minutes over moderate heat. Drain, cover with fresh cold water and cook again for 5 to 8 minutes over moderate heat. Repeat this procedure once more which should make the melon bits clear and tender. Drain and let stand while preparing the pickling solution as follows: Combine vinegar, water, brown sugar and seeds, bringing all this to a quick boil and cooking 3 minutes. Add the sliced onion, cover and let stand while you get glass containers ready for filling. Add the pickling mixture to the drained cooked melon bits and bring to a boil. Turn into glass containers, place a bay leaf or two in each and adjust covers while hot. When cool, store in any cool place. Chill before serving. Keeps well in the refrigerator for weeks. The yield depends on texture and size of melon rind bits. Add a few drops red or green coloring if desired. We like red.

SHOW FILMS

BONN — Films of Nazi atrocities committed in the Warsaw Ghetto are being shown throughout West Germany for the first time, it was disclosed here last week. German audiences have been reported to be deeply shocked by the visual description of Nazi savagery in Erwin Lesier's documentary "Mein Kampf." The films were taken by the Nazi authorities in the Warsaw Ghetto in 1942 for the enlightenment of Nazi officials, but they were suppressed because it was feared that they might provoke pity for Jews even among Nazis.

Criticizes Proposals On Aid For Private Schools

MONTREAL — The Canadian Jewish Congress has not officially taken a position on the question of state aid to Jewish schools, Saul Hayes, its executive vice-president, said here, but he sharply criticized proposals to this effect on philosophical and practical grounds.

Hayes' statement came in comment on recommendations by a royal commission in Manitoba that the province make financial grants to private schools there. The recommendations provoked a lively debate in the Winnipeg Jewish community, with some elements strongly supporting them and favoring government support for the Jewish schools there.

Hayes stressed his belief that the issue of separation of church and state was not the principal issue involved and noted that "one needs not rely on this creed of separation of Church and State, however, to have a deep philosophical concern for the value of a public school system and to believe that State monies ought not to be used for a hodge-podge of educational systems."

The Congress official also warned that government financial aid would materially alter the character of the Jewish schools. He pointed out that "the specific practical question is how Jewish schools would operate if the government supported them. To my mind, the issue is clear."

"There would be such an interference by the Department of Education, which would insist on a certain curriculum; which would measure the amount of time that would have to be given for the complete curriculum on the basis of what is given in the public schools; and that would leave all other subjects, such as Hebrew and Jewish history, to extra-curricular time-tables.

"I believe dogmatically that, if the Jewish schools accept government monies, within a few years the whole character of the schools will be changed, and the Jewish day school will be back to the old system of Jewish subjects after school hours," he declared. "Then the whole fuss will be about having Jewish children in a building owned by Jews, but nothing else."

Hayes noted that the Canadian Jewish Congress had never taken an official stand on the question of Jewish day schools. He conceded that "there is a general feeling that the day schools are good ideas, but only for gifted children, being those who can take a full course according to the curriculum of the Department of Education in any given province and who can add to this during the

BELITTLED ATROCITIES

LONDON — Reports from Bonn indicated that the Social Democratic Party will urge the Federal Republic of Germany to investigate charges made here by Lord Russell of Liverpool who has stated that a former German general belittled the Nazi atrocities at Dachau concentration camp, which Lord Russell visited this summer. During 1946-47 Lord Russell was in Germany as the Deputy Judge General Advocate at British Army Headquarters at the Rhine. According to Lord Russell, the ex-general accompanied him on his tour of Dachau. When they came to a former gas chamber, where victims of Nazism were put to death, the general allegedly told Lord Russell "this was only a shower."

school hours, Jewish history, Hebrew and such other distinctly Jewish subjects as give a school a Jewish character."

He added the view, however, that "for people who want this for their children, either the community should pay for the gifted children, or parents should do so, or as is now the case in Jewish high schools, a combination of both. To ask government to do so may or may not run counter to the Congress philosophy, but there is no known or stated position as yet."

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Consove of Pawtucket and Narragansett announce the engagement of their daughter, Reva Naomi, to Robert Earl Miller, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller of East Greenwich.

Miss Consove, a graduate of Classical High School, attended Westbrook Junior College in Portland, Maine, and is presently a senior at the University of Rhode Island where her sorority is Sigma Tau.

Mr. Miller, who was graduated from Georgia Military Academy, attended Emory University where he belonged to Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. He will enter Massachusetts College of Optometry in the fall. A summer, 1961, wedding is planned.

JCC To Start Season With Open House

The Jewish Community Center will open its 1960-1961 program year with a week-long series of "Open House" programs for all age groups at both Center buildings.

The "Open House Week" will begin with an under-the-stars musical program for adults, "Curtain Up", to be conducted outdoors at the East Side Center, 170 Sessions Street, on Sunday Sept 11, beginning at 8 P.M. The program will feature a trip through the music of the last three decades of Broadway musical comedies featuring a 23-piece concert orchestra and many guest stars. The program will be open to the community.

The musical program will be conducted by Robert Kaplan, with the orchestra furnished through the courtesy of the Providence Federation of Musicians through a grant from the Recording Industries Trust Fund.

The program will be introduced by Mort Blender, WPRO-TV news editor. Guest artists will include Rhea Goldstein and Larry Reedy. During the balance of the week both Center buildings will feature special "Open House" activities each day for each age group. A complete schedule of these events will be published in next week's Jewish Herald.

Assisting Mr. Kaplan, who is conductor - arranger - director of the "Curtain Up" presentation, will be Gordon Morris and George Price.

All organizational news MUST be in the Herald offices before noon of Monday each week. It will NOT appear in that week's paper if it is received later than noon.

Wins Beauty Contest — Rhonda Sue Blasbalg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Blasbalg of 8 Babcock Street, was the winner of the 1960 Beauty Contest held at Narragansett Pier recently. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Blasbalg and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rosenberg.

Israel Opens New Golf Course

CAESAREA, Israel — Herzl, Ussiskin, Weizmann and other founders of Zionism would lift their eyebrows in disbelief, but Ben Gurion's modern Israel takes the opening of the new Caesarea golf course here in stride and Abba Eban, minister of education, is the high priest of the cult of the putter.

What this country needs, critics say, was certainly not a golf course. For a struggling economy to contemplate such a symbol of conspicuous consumption was, to say the least, inappropriate.

Tourist Attraction

Caesareites contend, however, that attractions must be provided for a new breed of visitor; not only those who see the country through the rose-colored glasses of Zionism, but also those who expect a relaxing and interesting holiday without benefit of sentimentality.

There will be three distinct types of attractions: golf, bathing, and reconstructed antiquities. A luxury hotel is planned.

Many visitors have come for a few days, seen Jerusalem and certain required sights, and then gone on to, say, the South of France for sun and fun. The Caesarea development is intended to give them all this — on Israel's Mediterranean, according to the Jerusalem Post.

The Club has 1,000 members in America under its group membership plan whereby entire American clubs become affiliated.

The Club has 285 local members. Local membership costs $1100 annually per player, $125 per couple.

Visitors see 400 dunams of miraculously green grass (of the Clubs total grounds of 1,600). Until two years ago it was pure sand. The 18-hole course is 7,000 yards long, the clubhouse, with shower and locker facilities, restaurant and bar, stands on a high point.

The view stretches to the Mediterranean, where the beach is strewn with ruins of Herod's era and of Crusader times.

Sunday Closing Law

persons who observe some day other than Sunday as their Sabbath and thus interfere with the free exercise of religion.

In contending that the Sunday laws also infringe the Fourteenth Amendment, the brief rests on the so-called "due process" clause. The laws, the brief maintains, deprive individuals of liberty and property without due process of law and denies equal protection of the laws, the brief argues.

Recent attempts to interpret these laws as welfare measures, intended to ensure at least one day of rest in seven, the brief calls "unreal, bordering in fact upon the fictitious." In support of this contention, it points out that:

The Massachusetts law still designates the day on which certain activities are forbidden not as Sunday, but as "the Lord's Day."

Both the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania laws permit sports events after one or two p.m. on Sunday. This limitation, the brief shows, is designed to "avoid competition with church services."

"The Sunday laws do not in fact require anyone to rest on Sunday." They merely forbid certain trades, businesses and occupations from being pursued on that day. Thus a person who works six days at an occupation forbidden on Sunday may work Sunday also at an occupation not forbidden.

A law concerned with health and welfare would not necessarily designate "the Lord's Day" as the required day of rest. This is shown by the fact that both Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, as well as other states, have separate laws regulating the number of days and hours that persons may work in any one week.

However, even should the laws be deemed welfare laws and not essentially religious laws, the brief contends, they are still unconstitutional because they in effect penalize individuals whose religion requires them to observe some day other than Sunday as Sabbath.

3—One of the strict requirements that we demand of our Kosher butchers is that the meat they get from Boston (or from any other source) must have indelible ink stamps and tags, indicating that the meat is kosher, where and when it was slaughtered, and the day and hour it was last washed down. On two occasions butchers received meat without the identifications that were required by the local Waad Hacashruth. Our first move was to instruct the butcher not even to put the meat into the ice-box. Our second move was to call the Abattoir and inquire whether the meat in question was from the Kosher department or not. We spoke to the Rabbis in Boston and they assured us that again because of the human element, a mistake may be expected ever so often in the tagging of the Kosher meat properly. Although we were assured by the Rabbis, and we had every justification to rely upon the Boston Rabbinate, we asked the Abattoir to please come and pick up the meat and return it to Boston. The reason was so that we would not set a precedent of compromise in the face of the high standards we have set.

4—The members of the Waad Hacashruth are men of dedication and sincerity. They are giving of their precious time, health, and means to the cause of assuring Rhode Island Jewry of genuinely Kosher meats. It is indecent and unfair to these dedicated men when many people of our community will brand them as "do-nothings". They have achieved very much and they will attain even more. Instead of discouraging them and causing them undue distress we should buoy up their spirits and strengthen their hands.

5—I wish people would think more and more what the consequences of both carrying and receiving rumors can be. Both offering and accepting false and unsubstantiated rumors is a vicious and un-Jewish trait. I hope that by now people will realize how much damage was done affecting the "bread and butter" of butchers and the honor of the Waad Hacashruth by spreading unfounded, disgraceful rumors. It is obvious why the Talmudic Rabbi made it emphatic that "Lashon Harah" must be equated with leprosy. Leprosy was considered a deterioration of the body and necessitated isolation: Lashon Harah—the carrying of false rumors and irresponsible tales—is the deterioration of the morality of man and should cease immediately. One of the greatest Jewish Saints in the past century was a Rabbi in a small village in Poland. He was universally acknowledged to have achieved the apex of piety. We may rest assured that he strove to observe every detailed Mitzvah. However, in view of the fact that the Psalmist offered this advice "What man is he that delighted in life (Chofetz Chaim,) — keep thy tongue from evil and thy lip from speaking guile", this Tzadik concentrated most of his spiritual efforts in keeping his lips from speaking guile. It was in 193 that the Jewish world mourned the passing of this Saint — Th Chofetz Chaim, of Radin.

With the approach of the New Year it would be a sublime resolution for all of us to look out for the good in our fellow man and not inadvertently, and often deliberately, try to destroy him even by a supposedly unimportant "averah" of — Lashon Harah Rabbi Abraham Chi

Jewish Community Center Closes Camps For Season

The Jewish Community Center's 1960 summer day camp season ended last Friday and more than 250 boys and girls heaved a collective sigh of regret that some of summer's happiest days had drawn to a close for them.

It was a good summer for all three of the Center's day camps — "Camp Jaycee", "Camp Centerland", and "Camp Adventure." Good weather predominated throughout the summer and hot, sunshiny days added their zest to the camp activities. Swimming, sports, hikes, cookouts, campfire programs, nature activities, and other special outdoor events were at their best this season and campers took advantage of them.

A staff of nearly 60 persons directed and maintained the camp program this summer. Headed by Matthew Millman, camp director, who has been associated with Center camping for nearly a decade, the program staff included as division heads Edward Goldstein, Norman Saranovitz, Miss Meryl Wurafitic, and Miss Rona Name-row. Gardner Lakey headed the camp waterfront program, assisted by Miss Carol Lessler, and the camp crafts program was directed by Mrs. Evelyn Zisserson. Miss Mary Hicks was the camp nurse.

Six large yellow school buses made the rounds daily, from Pawtucket to West Warwick, picking up the campers for delivery to the camp grounds near Hope, R. I. Once at the camp, the youngsters and their counselors spread over the camp's woodlands, playing fields, and waterfront in the day's many activities. Each camper group was supervised by a senior counselor, a junior counselor, and a counselor-in-training, with the "sometimes" assistance of a Center JAC, or Junior Aide, in training for future counselor's duties. This counselor team directed the camper group through all its camp activities.

Many special events illuminated the camp calendar during the season. A "United Nations Olympic Day", a "Camp Carnival", a "Camper Show", and a "Counselor Show" were the season's true highlights, but overnight sleep-outs, sightseeing trips, horseback riding, bowling, theatre parties, wiener roasts, and others added their spice to the season, too.

The camp waterfront program was vastly improved this season with the addition of a new system of all-aluminum docks. Pioneers of the "Camp Adventure" group worked diligently to construct a bridge across the camp's "Back Bay" area to gain access to a whole new area of the camp's woodland. A further improvement to the camp itself this season was the planting of 500 blue spruce seedlings. These trees were personally adopted by the campers, each of whom took the best of care of "his" tree.

Plans for the Center's 1961 camping season are already being considered by the Center's Camping Committee, under the chairmanship of Murry Halpert.

The Center day camps have been certified by the American Camping Association.

Providence Jewish Schools Start Fall Registration

Enrollment in the Jewish Schools in Greater Providence will be completed during the coming week according to an announcement of the Bureau of Jewish Education. The School Council has set Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 8 and 9 as opening days for mid-week Hebrew Schools and the completion of enrollment in this department. Sunday, Sept. 11, will be the first Sunday School session.

Parents whose children have reached or are reaching their eighth birthday are asked to enroll them in mid-week Hebrew school, since most of the schools in the state do not offer one-day-a-week Jewish education for children who have passed their eighth birthday. In addition, most schools are requiring candidates for Bar Mitzvah on a Sabbath morning to be enrolled as a student in mid-week Hebrew school for a period of five years prior to Bar Mitzvah.

Affiliated schools of the Bureau which are now accepting enrollment include Beth Am, 40 Gardner Street, Warwick; Beth David, 145 Oakland Avenue; Beth El, 70 Orchard Avenue; Beth Israel, 155 Niagara Street; Beth Sholom, 275 Camp Street; Community Hebrew High School of the Bureau; Cranston Jewish Center, 330 Park Avenue; Eastward Center; Emanuel, 99 Taft Avenue; Ohawe Sholom, 12 Jackson Street, Pawtucket; Providence Hebrew Day School, 295 Morris Avenue, (offers an English and Hebrew studies program) Shaare Zedek, 688 Broad Street; Sons of Abraham, 364 Prairie Avenue; Sinai in Warwick; and Workmen's Circle, 170 Sessions Street.

For additional information about enrollment in Jewish schools, the office of the Bureau, DE 1-0956 may be called.

International Science Conference Assumes Far-Reaching Significance

REHOVOT, Israel--The first International Conference on Science in the Advancement of New States last week began to assume far-reaching significance for the small nations which are represented. This was evident from the tone of the remarks made both privately and publicly by the enthusiastic delegates to the conference.

The Finance Minister of Nigeria, Dr. Samuel Efem Imoke, strongly recommended that the conference "should become a regular feature of world affairs." The Minister of Education of Singapore, Nyuk Lin Yong, declared that the conference "may well be the precursor of a little United Nations," and hoped that from it would emerge a permanent forum for the smaller nations.

There is wide support for Imoke's proposal, according to THE JERUSALEM POST, and it was expected that at the end of the conference, the delegates would elect a committee to make practical suggestions for implementing it.

Should Be Rotated

Addressing the conference as chairman of the session devoted to medicine, Imoke said, "Much as I would personally love to see the conference held again in Israel, whose hospitality has been outstandingly generous, I accept, without some reluctance, the viewpoint which I have heard expressed that the venue of the conference should rotate, particularly in the new countries."

Imoke also appealed to the Soviet Union to participate in the future work of the conference, saying he regretted the absence of one of the two world powers which hold the destiny of mankind in their hands. The United States is represented at the conference both by its Ambassador to Israel, Ogden Reid, and by a group of scientists.

In an interview with a JERUSALEM POST reporter, Imoke added the hope that Egypt would also agree to cooperate, since the importance of the subject transcended all politics and differences. This was regarded by Israel observers as a slap on the wrist to United Arab Republic President Nasser--who, along with other Arab countries is boycotting the conference--and to his attempts to degrade Israel in the eyes of the new African and Asian nations.

Just 'Family Quarrel'

Earlier, Gabriel Lisett, deputy prime minister of the Chad Republic, said the conflict between the Arab states and Israel is "but a family quarrel that can be resolved with the assistance and good will of cousins, close or distant."

The benefits of good relations with Israel, he declared, could be made clear to the emergent African nations, if presented properly. Several African countries with Moslem populations are friendly to Israel, he added.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported last week that Israel's "Little Point Four" program was extended to the Asian mountain kingdom of Nepal as Premier Ben Gurion and Premier B. P. Koirala of Nepal announced agreement between the two states for technical cooperation and joint enterprises in the fields of agriculture, industry and construction.

To Send Experts

Israel will send a team of technical experts to Nepal to blueprint plans for technical assistance and cooperative enterprises. It was understood that the major form of cooperation between the two countries will be in joint Nepalese-Israeli companies similar to the joint companies in which Israel is participating with a number of Asian and African countries.

Judge Picks Names Of Wrong Men

NEW YORK--A 17-year-old youth held here for attempting to organize a nazi-style movement which was to engage in terrorism against Jews, was given a choice last week by a judge here to either go to jail or write an essay on a famous American of Jewish origin. He will have to submit the essay to the judge not later than Nov. 23.

The judge gave Richard E. Phelps a choice of John Peter Zenger, Mordecai Gist and Robert Moses. Zenger was a Colonial printer who won an important victory for freedom of the press in America, but the New York Public Library's Jewish Division did not have him on its rolls. Researchers at Yeshiva University could not find him in a book listing Jewish leaders, and Mrs. Dorothy Millstone, director of public relations for Hebrew Union College, said "I'm ready to bet dollars to doughnuts that Zenger wasn't Jewish."

Gist, a Revolutionary War General, was born in 1743 and educated at an Episcopal seminary in Baltimore. Said Mrs. Millstone, "I believe he (the judge) laid another egg."

That left Moses, who, according to the New York Post, had, previously told reporters that his religion was "none of your business . . ." When Moses was asked if he could be considered an American of Jewish origin, he answered, "If you are asking me that--yes. That's all I'm going to say."

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

$2,000-AND-UNDER CAR "BEST SELLER"

Here is what you, the economy-minded U.S. automobile buyer, are doing:

You are making the $2,000-and-under price class the fastest growing segment of the new car market in our nation.

You are causing a convulsion in the U.S. market for foreign cars. Sales of foreign autos in our market have been plunging in the last few months--but significantly, at the same time, sales of the low-priced Volkswagen and Renault are up.

You are shrinking Detroit's capacity to absorb steel, textiles, glass, rubber, other materials that go into a typical U.S. car and telegraphing a warning to several of America's most basic industries that for a while at least, they must find and develop other markets that will make up for Detroit's lower buying.

You are also buying less gas and oil because your compact car uses less of these products than your old standard size model.

You are proving that money can be saved on the purchase and maintenance of a compact car and are inviting other industries and services catering to you to compete for these new savings.

You are sending out signals that your economy-mindedness is no fad--and that you will be marking a new trend in U.S. taste and thought.

Although, of course, you know that the popularity of the compact car is the highlight of the auto industry this year, the total figures do not reveal the extent to which the inexpensive car has caught on. The startling fact, according to Ward's Automotive Reports, is that in the 1960 model year, nearly 1,000,000 cars--or 17 per cent of the industry's production--were in the $2,000-and-under price class as compared with a mere 3.4 per cent or only 193,000 units in this price class in the entire 1959 model year.

The fact is that almost two-thirds of all the compacts produced in the 1960 year carried a window sticker suggesting a retail pre-tax price of $2,000 or less. The fact is that while in the 1961 model year, just beginning, there will be a shift to production of slightly higher priced compacts, there also will be increased emphasis on the least expensive models (under $1,800), too.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

LEADER: It was June 9, 1941, and 350 of us drove across the bridge to the Riviera at Fort Lee, N.J., for the farewell party to Daniel Arnstein. The trucker and taxi-fleet owner was leaving for China, assigned by FDR to open the Burma Road for armaments shipments to China. He accomplished a traffic miracle there. Chiang Kai-shek wanted him to stay, and assured Arnstein that he could earn $1,000,000 in 12 months there.

"I'm interested in something more important," said Arnstein, "in earning my one dollar a year."

Under his plan every fifth truck in the long convoys was operated by an American, each responsible for the four trucks up front. He then arranged for two-way traffic. He installed anti-aircraft guns, nailing the bulls-eye hits the enemy had been scoring. "A bomber's aim," he pointed out, "can't be as good when someone's returning his fire." His name became so famous that he abandoned his name-change to Daniel Austin.

Arnstein, who died recently, had no formal schooling. At Chiang Kai-shek's party for him, the cabinet ministers wore their college pins, "Yale '31," "Harvard '24," "Cornell '29." Arnstein prepared his own button, "Intl. Correspondence School, '25."

Ten years ago he set up a scholarship fund assuring college education for the children of his cab drivers. He told me of his leap into philanthropic projects. "It's easy to succeed," he said, "if you have drive, and put on blinders and only see your objective. You ride over people, you push others aside, until you've reached the goal. I did that, and then I took off my blinders, and saw the havoc. Philanthropy is by way of atonement."

TRIBUTE: Sen. Jack Kennedy addressed a Brandeis University dinner at the Waldorf. He was introduced by Harold L. Renfield, who had bought the Somerset Importers firm--the agency for Haig & Haig, Gordon's gin, etc.--from Joseph P. Kennedy. Renfield made a glowing introduction of Sen. Kennedy, who replied: "I never thought I'd get such a nice introduction from someone who's done business with my father--and who's doing a better job at it, too."

PROTOCOL: Gen. de Gaulle's protocol officer conducts the new ambassadors when they present their letters of accreditation to de Gaulle. Because the new envoys, out of nervousness, sometimes forget to bring along their credentials, the protocol officer carries a blank envelope and pretends that the credentials are inside. He devised this system when a new ambassador, in full diplomatic costume, stood transfixed because he'd forgotten his credentials. "That's a nice suit," de Gaulle whispered, "but who is he?"

EXCUSE: Jack E. Leonard tells of the golfer whose caddy had hiccoughs all day long. On the 18th green the golfer needed to sink only a two-foot putt to win the tournament. He lined the putt up carefully. Not a sound was heard as he touched the ball and overshot the hole. He turned on his caddy;

The significance of this stretch far beyond the obvious meaning to Detroit and your own pocketbook.

A bright aspect, as indicated above, is that it shows the U.S. auto industry has rediscovered the old axiom that the way to compete is to compete. In the second quarter of 1960, foreign car sales slumped 17.2 per cent under the comparable 1959 months, Ward's estimates. The fall in June alone was a thumping 45 per cent. There is no doubt that the explanation is the competitive U.S. compact car.

But surging upward against the trend were sales of the low-priced Volkswagen and Renault. If Detroit is to compete up and down the line, it also must produce cars in this price range. It will.

Another aspect, not so bright to some of our major industries, is the adverse impact the popularity of the compact is having on Detroit's suppliers and the petroleum industry. A Corvair weighs 66 per cent less than a Chevrolet--which means it takes much less steel, rubber, glass, upholstery fabric, etc., etc. The driver of the Falcon gets 20 to 24 miles a gallon against the 13 to 15 miles a gallon obtained by the driver of the Ford V-8--which means that the owner of a compact over a year buys considerably less gas and oil than the owner of a standard size model.

The compacts accounted for more than 26 per cent of all Detroit's production in 1960, may account for 50 per cent of its output in 1961. What this reflects is no temporary phenomenon. We may be only starting to glimpse the extent to which the economy-mindedness of the U.S. consumer will influence the economy of the entire United States.

"You and your damn hiccoughs!" . . . "But I didn't hiccough," said the caddy. . . "I know," said the golfer, "but I allowed for it."

MEMOS: The ILGWU Campaign Committee will sponsor a weekly radio series with Kennedy, Johnson, Stevenson, Eleanor Roosevelt, George Meany and Hollywood stars. Lily Lodge, niece of the GOP's Vice Presidential candidate, will be on TV every day with a role in a new ABC-TV serial, "Road to Reality" . . . There'll be a color TV fashion show on NBC Sept. 11, with the Four Seasons restaurant as the setting and Melvyn Douglas as narrator.

ROLES: The American Bar Assn., convening in Washington, will take up a matter introduced by the Los Angeles Bar Assn.--that it is improper for a lawyer to appear on TV. The Masquers Club of Hollywood had entered the protest, on two grounds: (1) Lawyers work for less pay than actors do, and (2) it holds the legal profession up to ridicule because lawyers can't portray lawyers as skillfully as actors can.

TITLES: At a meeting in Chicago where the guests of honor were introduced formally--"The Honorable. . . ." "His Excellency, the Ambassador. . . ." etc., George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, told this story about a title: An Army draftee listed his business experience as "C.P.A." He was assigned to the general accounting office, and quickly messed up the books. His superior sent for him, and asked how a certified public accountant could be so inept.

"But I'm not a certified public accountant," the soldier protested. The officer glanced at his card and reminded him: "You gave, as your experience, 'C.P.A.' . . ." "Right, sir," replied the draftee. "That stands for 'Cleaning, Pressing and Alterations.'"

Such Popularity Must Be Deserved

Here's an aggravating question to get this week's essay started. The San Francisco Giants now are far back of the leaders, some 14½ games off the pennant pace, last time I looked.

The question is this: At the time Bill Rigney was fired as manager early this year because his team was not winning, how many games were the Giants out of first place?

Since the question has a bearing on this column, the answer will not be found at the bottom. You'll have to keep reading, however, to find it.

This week's column is one of reporting, not of opinion. Some very interesting and strange rumors and stories have been making the major league rounds of late. The rumors are not the result of idle gossip; they have considerable factual background. They are of such a nature that there may be a lot of changes made during the coming off season.

No less than four teams are reliably reputed to be playing in various degrees of dissatisfaction. These teams are, in order of their standing, the Milwaukee Braves and the San Francisco Giants in the National League; and the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians in the American.

The lesser important of these are the Yankees and the Indians, and we will get to them first, for their story is mild when compared to the others. Cleveland's players, who have had a disastrous season when they were supposed to have a very good one, and who have fallen far short of their advance billing as pennant contenders, are completely unsettled.

It is true that the team has gone downhill rapidly since its top power and clutch man, Woody Held, went out of the lineup with a serious injury, and that the loss of all that Held represented has hurt them badly. But mostly, the club is unsettled because of the furious and confusing personnel changes made by the master trader, Frank Lane. Even those who admire the man for his daring, his willingness to gamble in the process of building a contender, and his astuteness in putting together a good team, feel that this year he has gone too far. I still would love to see him running the Red Sox. There is a chance that he will be available soon, for reports out of Cleveland have it that the directors of the club place the blame for this disastrous season squarely at his door.

The players understandably feel nervous and unsettled, for they never know when they will be taken out of the lineup even during a game, and told they have been traded. They are all strangers, who don't play together long enough to gain that spirit of camaraderie and team devotion that leads to championships.

In Yankee circles, it is known and often commented on, that the players as a whole despise Casey Stengel. They are openly scornful of all his claims and those that are made for him by the writers. On the surface there is peace and harmony between the manager and the players, in sharp contrast with the circumstances that existed during last year's debacle. Casey no longer insults his men loudly from the dugout and the batting cage, but the memories of the past still linger. So they still deride him, and make no bones about the fact that they wish he were gone.

Stengel knows all this; it would, indeed, be hard to keep it hidden; but he has ignored it, kept his former garrulousness fairly well in check, and devoted himself grimly to the task of trying to promote his athletes into a pennant.

Possibly the Yankee situation would not be so acute if the players were not constantly reminded of their manager's greatness. In the old days, Stengel openly took all the credit. He was a great "I" man. "I" did this, and "I'll win that pennant yet", and that sort of thing. This always riled the New York players.

Last year, when they lost, the Yankee writhed under repeated stories that Stengel was not to blame for any part of the defeat. The New York press as a whole stood up for Casey; the few discordant views, including mine, did not as a rule reach the Yanks.

So the players, who had watched for years as Stengel got all the credit for their string of pennants, now were incensed as the manager got off the hook and they got all the blame for defeat.

So again it is this year, and this is not making the players feel any better toward Old Case. Writers all over the country are loudly acclaiming Stengel for a great job in keeping this mediocre team in first place. Many are suggesting that this will be his greatest triumph of all. Ball players are fuming.

And they hate him all the more.

Milwaukee has a similar situation, one in which the players despise the manager with such feeling and so openly that it is the talk of the National League. Many of the Braves, and this includes Warren Spahn, go around mimicking Charley Dressen. They act out little dramas that are supposed to represent the manager's clubhouse lectures. These playlets have gained such popularity that the players of other teams now give a portrayal of Spahn doing his takeoff on Dressen.

What are the Braves upset about? Well, the Milwaukee club is accustomed to being praised as a good team. Fred Haney, whatever his other faults, and they were many, pointed out that his players did the actual winning. He only directed. Dressen is perhaps an even greater "I" and "me" man than Stengel. Everything he talks about revolves about him personally.

So it is, they say, that Charley will stand up in front of his players, who generally have been about half a dozen games back of the Pirates, and plead with his men: "Look you guys, get me close, and I'll show you something." Or: "Get me close, and I'll think of something." It is never, "Get us (the team) close", but always "me", as if the team is Dressen, and Dressen the team.

So they mimic him, and ride him, and hate him.

And strangely, the Braves have a certain respect for Dressen. They have noticed, and grudgingly admit, that his thinking is sound when his "I's" and "Me's" don't get in his way. His handling of the squad has been good, and Spahn and Burdette, to name but two, are better pitchers as a result. Under Haney they were always overworked, pitching in relief as well as in their starting turn. Last year, both won 21 games, but they lost 15, and their earned run averages were nothing to brag about. Under Dressen's system, they are prospering, with fine records, and excellent performances.

The Braves still have a good chance to win the pennant. But they heartily hate their manager. So brazen are the Giants in their disrespect and their dislike that Dressen knows all about it. To his great credit, he is ignoring the situation, and concentrating on winning the pennant.

The San Francisco story is a sorer one, and one that will have the louder reverberation. When the season started, Bill Rigney knew he was on the spot. Win or else! This was his ultimatum.

For many reasons, the Giants never did get started. Giants' owner Horace Stoneham did not wait long. He fired Rigney abruptly and hurriedly quite early in the season.

At that time, the Giants were just ONE GAME out of first place.

The firing of Rigney so early in the race, when the club was so close to the top spot, created a bitterness among the players that certainly contributed to their eventual downfall. The appointment of Superscout Sheehan to head the club was the blow that destroyed them.

Sheehan is the laughingstock of the National League. He is known to have Stoneham's confidence, and he is a notorious second guesser. He is always telling Horace that this manager should have done so-and-so, that the other one is no good, and so on. He is said to have been the major factor behind the resignation of Leo Durocher as manager; and it was he who persuaded Stoneham to ax Rigney.

The players hate him thoroughly; but unlike Stengel and Dressen, who are good baseball men, the Giants have not a single shred of respect for Tom. They think he is a fake, and an incompetent boob.

So now the rumor mills have started working on Sheehan's successor. First reports had it that Leo Durocher would get the job in 1961; and to back this up, Leo was reported to be looking for a house in San Francisco.

Now, however, there are reports out of the Bay City that Paul Richards has been offered the job, and that he is considering it. Asked about the reports, Richards said last week that he has not been made a concrete offer by the Giants; but the writers quickly retorted that the only thing he had not agreed on with the management was his actual salary.

That is where the matter stands today.

REACH AGREEMENT

DETROIT—Agreement to abandon the point rating system for screening prospective home buyers in Grosse Pointe was reached here between the property owners association and a group of real estate brokers. The agreement to eliminate the system was regarded as a major step in the state's drive against discrimination.

Announce Promotion To Lieutenant Colonel

Major General Daniel S. T. Hinman, The Adjutant General of Rhode Island, has announced the promotion of Major Clarence M. Bazar, of 47 Sunset Terrace, Cranston, to the grade of Lieutenant Colonel in the Rhode Island Army National Guard and in the Reserve of the United States Army.

Lieutenant Colonel Bazar, a member of Touro, the Cranston Jewish Center, and the Jewish War Veterans, is the Commanding Officer, 2d Missile Battalion (NIKE-AJAX), 243d Artillery, Rhode Island Army National Guard. The battalion he commands is currently training to take over the operation of the Foster and Davisville NIKE-AJAX sites from the active Army. Lt. Col. Bazar departed for Fort Bliss, Texas on Aug. 6 where he joined 83 of the members at the United States Army Air Defense Command Training Center for weeks of training, including the firing of Nike-Ajax missiles. Upon their return, they will enter the phase of training, culminating with the take-over of the sites from the Army in early December.

Heads Delegation — Thomas W. Pearlman, recording secretary of the Providence District of the Zionists Organization of America, headed its delegation to the 63rd Annual National Convention of the ZOA which held at the Hotel Statler-Hilton in New York City. Other delegates were Edward S. Goldin, Nathan Y. Temkin and Martin M. Temkin. Delegates of the Providence District served on the rules and Israeli Bond committees.

TO URGE INVESTIGATION

LONDON — Reports from Bonn indicated that the Social Democratic Party will urge the Federal Republic of Germany to investigate charges made here by Lord Russell of Liverpool who has stated that a former German general belittled the Nazi atrocities at Dachau concentration camp, which Russell visited this summer. During 1946-47 Russell was in Germany as the Deputy Judge General Advocate at British Army Headquarters at the Rhine.

Chassidic Followers Vote To Incorporate Their Community

NEW YORK — Followers of Rabbi J. J. Twersky, the Skvirer Rebbe, voted to incorporate their community near Spring Valley, N. Y. as a village, to be known as New Square, the Americanized form of Skvir, the town in Russia which was the birthplace of the leader of the Hassidic sect.

The village became the 12th in Rockland County, N. Y., and the first to be incorporated since 1929. The residents voted unanimously in favor of incorporation.

The first family from among the followers of Rabbi Twersky moved into the new community in 1957 after the site for the entire village was purchased from a dairy farmer. Sixty-nine houses have since been built, and are occupied today by 79 families numbering 539 persons.

The synagogue is not yet completed, and daily and Sabbath services are being held in the roofed-over basement structure which village residents hope to complete in the near future. Two of the 69 Cape Cod houses serve as school facilities for the 350 children.

Residents of New Square are expected to hold elections later this month when a mayor and four trustees will be named. Louis Mermelstein, who managed the community unofficially since its inception three years ago, is expected to be elected mayor of the village.

The role of Rabbi Twersky following election of officers probably will continue to be one of advisor, in spiritual and other matters.

While nearly all residents of the community are hasidim of Rabbi Twersky, leaders of the group have emphasized that all persons will be welcome to live in the village.

Although looking forward to the expansion of the village with a post office, shopping center and other facilities to make life pleasanter, community residents are hoping that no changes will be introduced which will alter their religious way of life.

STORAGE in a hump

THE HUMP ON THE CAMEL'S BACK may look strange, but it serves a practical purpose. On the desert, the camel must go without food and water for long periods of time. But he is able to store nourishment in his hump sufficient to tide himself over the lean days that might lie ahead.

There are apt to be lean days for everyone. Life insurance can help tide you over many of these for it provides cash at times of greatest need. A Sun Life insurance program, for example, can safeguard your widow's independence, your children's education, your home and your retirement years. Let me tell you how.
