Convict Four Leaders Of British Neo-Nazis

LONDON — Colin Jordan, leader of the neo-Nazi British National Socialist Movement, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment today and denied bail pending appeal.

He and three others were found guilty under the Public Order Act.

The four were tried in connection with a political organization known as Spearhead. The group's national secretary, John Tyndall, 26, was sentenced to six months. The assistant national secretary, Denis Pirie, 23, and the research officer, Roland Kerr-Richie, 42, each got three months.

A jury convicted the men on two of four charges of training and equipping the members of Spearhead in such a manner as to arouse "reasonable apprehension" that they were being employed for the use or display of physical force for promoting a political object.

Hebrew Day School To Hold Open House

An open house will be held at the new Providence Hebrew Day School, 450 Elmgrove Avenue, on Sunday evening, Oct. 21 from 8 P.M. to 11 P.M. The new school, which has an enrollment close to 225, contains 13 classrooms, including a fully equipped science room, arts and crafts room, a combined library and chapel, first aid room, and a multipurpose auditorium.

The Providence Hebrew Day School is the only school of its kind in Rhode Island where Hebrew training is given along with secular education.

Golda Meir Says Disarmament Necessary Goal In Middle East In Address To United Nations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — A call upon the United Nations to consider a temporary "freeze" of all "explosive international issues which might erupt into war," was issued here before a plenary session of the UN General Assembly last Tuesday by Mr. Golda Meir, Israel's Foreign Minister.

Addressing the 109-member body in her first major address of this year's session, and, asserting that disarmament is the "keynote" of the Assembly's current general debate, she told the delegates that such a "freeze" would enable the world to direct all its efforts "toward achieving that most vital and most cherished goal of disarmament."

Meanwhile, however, she told the Assembly firmly, "As long as Arab belligerency continues Israel will take all necessary measures to be capable of protecting itself."

"My government," she asserted, "rejects war as a means of settling disputes. From the day that the State of Israel was established my government has called for settling all outstanding differences by direct negotiations. We do not rest content with calling upon the great powers to find a way to disarmament and to settle outstanding problems by negotiation and conciliation. We are prepared to put this into practices in the dispute in which we are involved with our neighbors.

Calls for Disarmament

"As we have done in the past, we call again upon the Arab states to agree to complete disarmament with mutual inspection covering all types of weapons and to accept the method of direct negotiations as the only means for solving all differences between them and Israel."

As far as Arab-Israel disputes are concerned, she emphasized the Assembly must see the "basic problem" as "the denial by the Arab states of Israel's right to exist." If this attitude were to change, she affirmed, "and if the Arab states and Israel were to discuss their differences at the conference table in a frank and open manner, I am positive that solutions could be found on all the specific issues."

"Year after year," she recalled, "Israel has come to this rostrum with one demand — peace between it and its Arab neighbors."

Will Defend Itself

But Israel will, in the absence of peace, take the necessary steps to protect itself, she asserted. Referring indirectly to the recently-announced decision by the United States to permit the sale of defensive ground to air missiles to Israel she rejected the Arab objections to that U.S.-Israeli arrangement.

"Thus," she pointed out, "it is ironic that when Egypt amasses a fleet of heavy bombers and when President Nasser proclaims that his rockets will be able to hit any place south of Beirut—that is Israel—an Egyptian spokesman should complain loudly from this rostrum when Israel is acquiring missiles which can be used solely for protection against attacks."

To Speak — Dr. Felix G. Fleischner

consultant in Radiology, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, Mass., Emeritus Clinical Professor of Radiology, Harvard Medical School, will give the 15th annual Dr. Isaac Gerber Oration on Wednesday at 8:30 P.M., in the Miriam Hospital Auditorium. Dr. Fleischner's subject will be "Pulmonary Embolism" — A Roentgen-Clinical Survey.

The Gerber Oration was founded by the Staff of Miriam Hospital during the lifetime of Dr. Isaac Gerber, radiologist at Miriam Hospital, in recognition of his outstanding contributions to medical techniques at Miriam and other hospitals in this area.

GJC Contributions Stand At $440,000

The total contributions to the 1962 campaign of the General Jewish Committee now stands at $440,000.

Stanley Grossman, Initial Gifts chairman, said that while this figure represents a substantial increase over the amount pledged last year by the same persons, there can be no let down in the pace of gift-giving if we are to reach or surpass last year's total of $650,000.

He urged all workers who still have cards to cover them immediately and get the reports in to GJC headquarters. The next report meeting will be held Thursday noon, Oct. 25, at GJC headquarters, 203 Stand Building.

Four New Rabbis Join Providence Congregations

Four new rabbis have joined the Jewish congregations of Providence this fall, and this, says Rabbi Saul Leeman of the Cranston Jewish Center, and president of the Rhode Island Rabbinical Association, is "a gain and benefit to the entire religious life . . . and spiritual forces in the community." Rabbi Leeman adds that the Rabbinical Association "rejoices in welcoming the four colleagues into our midst and trusts that their stay will be a long, fruitful and productive one."

The four rabbis are Rabbi Hershel Solnica of Congregation Shaare Zedek, Rabbi Robert Layman of Temple Beth Israel who replaces Rabbi Morris Schussheim who retired last year; Rabbi Charles M. Rubel of Temple Beth Shalom, and Rabbi Joel Zaiman, assistant rabbi at Temple Emanu-El.

The goal of Rabbi Solnica is to raise the standards of orthodox Judaism and to make Shaare Zedek a center of the Jewish community. He, as have the other rabbis, has found the community of Providence very friendly and very helpful.

At Shaare Zedek progress has already been made as shown by the formation of several adult classes and the addition of some teen-age activities, as well as by the first publication of a monthly bulletin. "The High Holidays," says Rabbi Solnica, "gave a strong indication of a favorable response to the call for revitalized action in orthodox Judaism . . . Although Orthodox Judaism was stymied a few years ago because of the lack of strong and youthful leadership, a more youthful, modern and serious approach to Judaism," has been taken in recent years.

Rabbi Rubel has become the spiritual leader of Temple Beth Shalom just as it is completing the building of its temple. The congregation and Rabbi Rubel are planning an active program in adult education as well as a youth program in conjunction with the United Synagogue Youth.

Rabbi Rubel has found Providence very inviting and says he knows that he will like it here. He feels that Temple Beth Shalom will fulfill its role of bringing the conservative philosophy of Judaism to the Jewish community. His main aim is "to spread the modern understanding of Judaism and . . . to develop youth as Jews and good Americans."

The congregation of Temple Beth Israel is in a state of transition since it is in an area from which the younger generation is moving to the suburbs, but Rabbi Robert Layman feels that much can be done, not only to keep the older members of the congregation interested but also to attract new members.

Students At Brandeis Come From 37 Nations, Five Continents

Waltham, Mass. — More than one-third of the countries in the United Nations have representatives among the students who entered Brandeis University Sept. 25.

Coming from 37 nations and five continents, the foreign students consist mainly of men and women chosen to study under the University's Wien International Scholarship Program, now in its fourth year of operation.

International Aspect

The international aspect of Brandeis is two-sided: while the foreign students are studying on the Waltham, Mass., campus, a group of American students from seven U. S. colleges and universities are studying at the Hiatt Institute in Israel. Brandeis' annual program focusing on that country's political, social and historical institutions.

Fourteen of the foreign students at Brandeis joined with 342 men and women from 30 states of the Union to form one of the most competent freshman classes in the University's history. Seventy-three per cent of the freshmen were in the top 10 per cent of their graduating class. Fifteen per cent were valedictorians or salutatorians.

Campus Changed

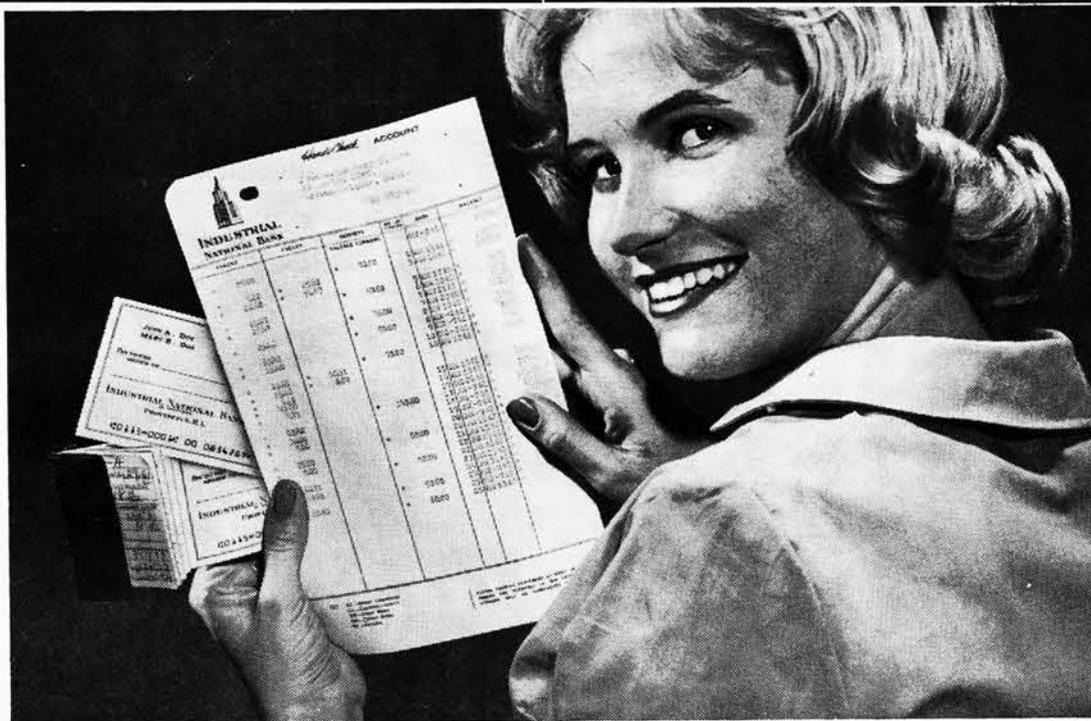

More than three times the size of the first Brandeis class, the class of '66 finds a university quite different physically from that of 1948, when Brandeis was founded. The 90-acre campus with nine buildings is now 288 acres with 55 buildings; faculty ranks have increased from 13 to 262; and total enrollment which then consisted of 107 freshmen, is now 1,8867, including 450 advanced degree candidates.

One of the most significant academic developments at Brandeis since 1948 took place last year, when a committee of University faculty members was granted permission to form a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national liberal arts honor society

FLOWER SHOW UNDERWAY

Red, yellow, lavender, pink and white chrysanthemums are on display this week at the Annual Chrysanthemum Show held at Swan Point Cemetery. The show opened last Sunday and will continue through this coming Sunday, Oct. 21. The display is open from 8:30 A.M. until sunset. Swan Point Cemetery is located at 585 Blackstone Boulevard, near the intersection of Hope Street.

There are some 4,500 educational institutions of all types in Israel. About 65 per cent of them are of the kindergarten or primary school level.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

BUSINESS SLUMP SWEEPING WALL STREET

The worst business slump in modern times has been sweeping through Wall Street since the stock market crash last May.

The recession is hitting financial houses ranging from the multi-million dollar giants with branches around the world to the small local firms specializing in cheap stocks traded in the over-the-counter market. Of course, there are exceptions to the trend -- there always are in any industry -- but there is no doubting the current downturn in the securities business from coast to coast.

"You," the disenchanted stock buying public, are the main reason for this recession in Wall Street.

You have sharply cut your trading in stocks listed on all exchanges in recent months. Average daily volume of trading on the New York Stock Exchange this month is running under 2.8 million, far below the 3.5 million-share daily volume considered the break-even point for most firms. Volume of trading on the Big Board so far this year is down over 9 per cent from 1961. On the American Stock Exchange, the second largest exchange in the country, trading volume is down over 38 per cent from 1961.

You have turned cold on buying of mutual funds to a spectacular degree. Net purchases of mutual fund shares in August totaled only $76 million, down 43 per cent from July, down 71 per cent from January. Net purchases of mutual funds in September were even lower. The net figure measures the extent to which new purchases of mutual fund shares exceed redemptions of the shares.

You have slashed your buying of over-the-counter stocks even more than your buying of listed stocks. There aren't exact statistics for this market, but no one tries to deny that the drop in trading in the over-the-counter market has been immense and that, as a result, a lot of over-the-counter firms are in a brutal financial squeeze.

You have also substantially reduced your buying of new stock issues -- those "hot" stocks with which you were so enamored in 1960-61. The total of new stock issues sold through July was $6.2 billion against $8.4 billion in the same period of last year, but this tells only part of the tale. Businesses the country over which had planned to sell new stock issues in this period have shelved their plans indefinitely not only because the buyers aren't there but also because they would have to sell the stocks at much lower prices than they had originally planned.

So it goes, with every statistic on trading in stocks confirming the decline in public participation. Nor are institutional investors off-setting this; they've cut their participation too.

The reasons aren't hard to figure out. The crash of this past spring has been a dominant force. With hundreds of stocks at their lowest levels in years and way down from their 1961-62 peaks, those owning the stocks have an understandably sour attitude on continued buying and those who have sold out at losses this year have an even more sour attitude. The fact that financial institutions are paying as much as 4 and 4 1/2 per cent on cash put into a savings account has been another force, for it has attracted many who otherwise might have bought stocks to put their nestegg into a savings account instead. The Securities & Exchange Commission's probe into the qualifications and practices of mutual fund salesmen and the recent Wharton School's critical report on the mutual fund industry surely have contributed to the plunge in mutual fund sales. Mutual fund sales would have gone off anyway, due to the stock market's break; the criticisms have been additional blows. The general sluggishness in the economy has been a factor. The dullness in business has been a background for the dullness in the stock market.

The results have been cumulative. Layoffs, particularly of clerical workers, are spreading through securities firms. Overtime has been virtually eliminated. Firms are cutting down on expenses for research, advertising, travel, entertainment, services. Mergers are multiplying. Salary cuts are being imposed. Branches are being shut down. There will be few year-end bonuses in Wall Street this December.

Of course, you, the public, will be back on a great scale one day (after prices have gone way up, if the past is any guide), and there'll be razzle-dazzle in Wall Street again. But as of today, I need not travel far to see a recession industry. All I need do is walk a couple of blocks from my office to the canyons of lower Manhattan and I can get the "feel" of it wherever I turn.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

A CHAPTER A DAY

By Beryl Segal

The late Hillel Bavli, great Hebrew poet, scholar, and inspiring teacher, is said to have confessed on his dying bed that of all the books he has read in his lifetime, none could compare to the Bible. You can reach great depths of despair, and you can soar heavenward with the Bible. The Bible is the Eternal Book.

The twelve Rabbis of Providence and the hundreds of people who came to the convocation at Temple Emanuel, apparently share this idea of Hillel Bavli. They came after completing the first three-year cycle, ready and eager to start anew the next three-year cycle of reading in the Bible a chapter-a-day.

Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, as host of the convocation, introduced Rabbi Saul Leeman of Cranston Center, as the man who served as goad, as prodder, and as the inspiration in the Bible Study project. He conceived of it. He feeds it with his enthusiasm. He keeps it alive. And he will see it through during the next three years.

This great experience, as Rabbi Leeman explained it, is conducted on three levels.

1. Private reading for yourself or with your family of one chapter a day. The Bible, with commentaries or without them, has just enough chapters to be read in the appointed time.

2. Weekly study of the Bible, the seven chapters of the week, with the Rabbi or in a club. At these sessions, one can discuss the difficult passages, and share impressions obtained in the daily readings.

3. Monthly convocations when the Rabbis will endeavor to answer questions and to read essays on the chapters read.

Here it might be said that the name Bible Study is preferred to Bible Reading groups. Jews did not read the Bible. They studied it. Reading can, at time, be perfunctory. Not so study. You read a sentence and look into the commentators who wrestled with the same passages, and you feel that your mind has been enriched, and horizons open before you.

The guest speaker of the convocation was Dr. Solomon Grayzel. He was a happy choice since he, Dr. Grayzel, and a group of scholars, are now engaged in the translation of the Bible into spoken English. It also is in the light of the latest findings about life and customs of the Near East as revealed to us in archeological discoveries.

Dr. Grayzel, who is the Editor of the Jewish Publication Society in Philadelphia, is a most engaging speaker. He is scholarly, yet does not overpower his listeners by his erudition. He is entertaining, yet not of the type that makes his audience laugh at all cost.

His observations on the role of the Bible in Jewish life, at different times in their history, are worth repeating.

The Bible was a Covenant. It was a bond between God and His people. The people of Israel were to keep all the commandments and do them, and God was to keep his promise which he had made to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

The Bible was a guide. It was looked upon as a road map showing where to travel in the journey of life. It was a program for living day-by-day, from the cradle to the grave. If one deviates from this road map to the right or to the left, one loses his way, the way to God.

The Bible was a source of comfort. In times of trouble and in happier days, the Jew found solace and inspiration in the Bible.

"What a far cry this is from the use we make of the Bible in our days," said Dr. Grayzel. We print small Bibles, in very fine letters, but beautifully bound and embroidered in gold, for the confirmant and for the bride. The print is so fine that no one can ever hope to read the contents, but the very presence of the Bible at a wedding or at a confirmation is considered "good luck." It is an ornament and a talisman. This obviously is not what the Bible was and what it still is to discerning Jews. The Bible still is our guide, our inspiration, our solace.

Dr. Grayzel then spoke of the translations of the Bible.

Whenever Jews lost touch with the original Hebrew, they needed translations of the Bible into whatever tongue they spoke at the time.

The Jews of Alexandria, in Egypt, translated the Bible into Greek. Jews in Greek speaking countries still use that translation.

The Jews of the countries speaking Aramaic, translated the Bible into the Aramaic, and this translation, the Targum, is still being printed alongside the Hebrew text. So widespread was this translation that until recently, the Jews of Europe would read a sentence in Hebrew and a sentence in Targum, in Aramaic.

Rabbi Saadia Gaon, who lived in the ninth century, translated the Bible into Arabic, and the Rambam testifies that:

"Were it not for Saadia, the Torah would almost have disappeared from the midst of Israel. It was he who made it known far and wide by word of mouth and in writing."

There were other translations in modern times. They attempted a translation into French. Mendelsohn translated the Bible into German. Yehosh translated it into Yiddish. English translations were many in Britain and in America for the English speaking Jews. Now the Jewish Publication Society is translating the Bible into spoken English, and the first Printing will appear in 1963. This will supplant the older translation by the J.P.S., now in use almost everywhere in England and in America.

Why all these translations? What do they signify?

It can only mean that the Jew never allows the words of the Torah to be forgotten. The Hebrew, of course, is preferred. But when Jews find themselves ignorant of the original, as is the case in our time, and as was the case many times before, they translate the Bible into the tongue of the country, so that they may understand it, so that they may find solace in it, so that it may serve as a guide in their lives.

Bible study came to Providence thanks to the efforts of the Rabbinical Association. The study is now in its fourth year. We begin the Bible all over again, and hope that we may live to finish it. You may join, if you have neglected the first cycle. It takes only a few minutes to read the chapter. You could do worse things on an evening. You will, I am sure, be rewarded.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

INSCRIPTIONS: Recently Winston Churchill signed a contract, for a movie, based on his life, with Jack LeVien, who did "The Valiant Years." Then LeVien flew to Paris for a TV deal with the Duke of Windsor.

The Duke showed him around his home, then brought out some unique volumes on Marlborough written by Churchill. The first volume was inscribed "To His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales... Vol. II: "To His Majesty, King Edward VIII"... And Vol. III: "To His Royal Highness, the Duke of Windsor."

COTTAGE: A few weeks ago, a tentative deal was set for a musical version of Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth," with Jerome Robbins directing and Comden and Green doing the book and lyrics. Leonard Bernstein was asked to write the music. He said he'd think it over while in retreat at the MacDowell Colony, the haven for artists.

Bernstein arrived at the retreat and entered the cottage assigned to him for the stay. He glanced at the list of previous occupants of the cottage. One was Thornton Wilder, who'd written "The Skin of Our Teeth" there... Bernstein agreed to write the music for it.

REUNION: More than 50 years ago two boys grew up together in Bucks County. One of them, Grove Day, left to become the world's foremost authority on the literature of the South Pacific. The other, James Michener, left to become the most successful author of South Seas history and fiction. Last month, a publisher started searching for someone to write about Michener and his work--and decided on Day.

A few days ago, Michener and Day met again, to discuss the project. They met in Bucks County, where they had been boys together.

ART: Reuven Rubin, the Israeli artist whose paintings are on exhibit at Wildenstein's, was Israel's first Ambassador to Romania. When he left Tel Aviv on his mission, he told the Foreign Minister that he knew nothing about protocol, and asked for some instructions.

A LOOK AT SPORTS

by LEON SAPERSTEIN

Whew! That was some World Series. And the final game had all the elements of a screen writer's masterpiece. For the first time, in my memory at least, it took superb Yankee pitching to rescue the New Yorkers from the hands of the fired-up Giants.

There were several surprises during the 1962 Classic. Foremost was the batting slump of Mickey Mantle, who managed to obtain only three hits, went homerless and failed to drive in a run. Not only was Mantle shackled but the Bombers were outomered by the Giants five to three, an occurrence that certainly was not anticipated.

Heroes for the Yankees were Ralph Terry, their brilliant ace hurler and the surprising rookie Tom Tresh, who not only hit in the clutch but provided the outstanding defensive play in the seventh contest when he snared Willie Mays' shot preceding a triple by Willie McCovey.

I guess my wife wanted to get into the act of prognostication. She picked the winner of each Series game. So I shall have to be careful in my next predictions or I may be benched. Many experts had not thought too highly of the Yankee mound staff before the Series. So it was satisfying to me to see the big three of the men of Houk come through. Particularly was this true in the case of Ralph Terry who hurled the best post-season ball since that former Yankee terror, Alie Reynolds. His 1-0 shutout ranks as one of the finest pitched in Series history. Anti-Yankeeries have little cause for optimism for 1963.

Another National Basketball Association season is starting and the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers should win the titles in their respective divisions. The league will show a few changes since there are three new coaches and the shifting of the Philadelphia Warriors to San Francisco.

In the Eastern Division it seems unlikely that the long domination by the Celtics will be broken. All the key performers from the 1961-'62 squad will be present and they will be reinforced by newcomers John Havlicek, Dan Swartz and newly acquired Clyde Lovellette. Big Bill Russell should continue to harass enemy hoopsters by his phenomenal defensive work near the basket. Bob Cousy, in his farewell season, should have enough left to spark his team during the frequent Boston rallies which usually demoralizes the opposition.

Now that the Warriors are over at Frisco, the Cincinnati Royals will try to assume the role of pretenders to the throne of eastern supremacy. Had Ohio State's fabulous Jerry Lucas signed with the Royals, they would have become a powerful adversary, perhaps capable of beating out the favored men of Red Auerbach. But, they have not strengthened their club sufficiently more than being considered one of the purchasers.

The most improved team is definitely the New York Knickerbockers. They have acquired Gene Shue from the Detroit Pistons (a former Knick), ejected Kenny Sears to return from the American Basketball Association, drafted Paul Hogue, All-America center on the NCAA University of Cincinnati team and will have a healthy Tom Stith of St. Bonaventure who has shaken a year's struggle with tuberculosis.

Syracuse still has the veteran (Continued on 9)

Dolph Shays but the once dangerous Nationals are no longer to be feared even in their home court.

Out west the Los Angeles Lakers should snatch the title away from the clutches of the Warriors and St. Louis Hawks.

The Warriors, formerly the Chief threats to the Celtics, will assume the same role out west, this time to the Lakers.

Once the scourge of the western sector, the St. Louis Hawks must now battle the Warriors and Pistons to earn the position of bridesmaids to the Lakers. Len Wilkens, the former Providence College All-America will definitely bolster the Hawks with a full time job. Last season he spent most of his time in the service of the military. Yet another in the long line of coaches hired by Hawks' owner Ben Kerner, is Harry Gallatin, former Knicks star who will attempt to last the season.

"Taxes Can And MUST Be Reduced"

We will scrutinize the expenses of every single department in city government. We are going to eliminate waste and inefficiency. And we are NOT going to hide government activities behind a veil of secrecy. Every nickle that is collected and every nickle that is spent will be fully itemized and reported in crystal clear language to every citizen of Providence.

We are going to thoroughly search for ways to save the city's money . . . to eliminate waste . . . and to confine expenditures to the essential.

We Intend To Reduce The Tax Rate
We Intend To Reduce Assessments

In short, we shall manage the city in the way it ought to be managed — in the way that a well-organized and profitable business is conducted. And if, in order to do that, major surgery of the present government is necessary and indicated, then we shall proceed with major surgery.

All waste and extravagance of every kind and description will be weeded out. The erosion of Providence must be halted. We must shift gears and start moving straight ahead. And to do that we need a dynamic and comprehensive program of development — a program designed to meet the needs of the City of Providence for now, and in the years ahead.

tions. "It's simple," he was advised. "On your way to Bucharest you will have to stop in Paris, anyway. So while you are in Paris, you can buy a book on protocol."

In Bucharest, the new ambassador from the new nation discovered that his official letter of accreditation had been addressed to the wrong man. Rubin corrected it, with art work and calligraphy.

Rubin, incidentally, said of the crowds streaming to his current exhibit: "The art market is such nowadays that to become a successful painter, you don't really need to have your work seen by huge crowds. Ten top collectors and two top museums can do it."

AGENT: Richard Burton tells this story about his New York agent, Harvey Orkin: While Burton was in "Camelot," the agent decided to surprise him -- and did. One of the stage managers permitted Orkin to don a costume just for the bow at the final curtain. And when Burton stepped forward to take his bow as the star, he recognized his agent on-stage.

The agent's reaction was typical: He turned toward Burton and applauded his client.

RENTALS: Henry Sherek, the co-producer of "The Affair," saw the pictures of the Philharmonic Hall premiere, where the men wore full-dress suits. Most of these suits of course, were rented . . . In London, the most famous of such rental places is Moss Bros. Sherek tells of the time a man entered the place and asked to see Mr. Moss. This was Ascot Day, when those who go to the races usually wear pearl-gray cutaways and matching toppers.

"I'm sorry, but Mr. Moss isn't here," the man was told. "He's at Ascot today taking inventory."

SPEECHES: Gov. Rockefeller made a speech at a dinner in the Museum of Modern Art recently. He told the guests: "I've made so many political speeches lately that even I have come to believe at least half the things I say."

BANDS: The social season is about to start, the season when bandleaders are swamped with bookings for college proms, debut balls, fraternity dances, etc. It was the practice of the late bandleader Ben Bernie to accept all such bookings -- but instead of bringing his high-priced regular musicians, he'd hire some cut-rate players for the night.

As he signed up each one, and told him where to be and when, Bernie's last instructions to the newly hired musicians were "No shaking hands on the bandstand."

TIME: Carroll Baker, co-star of Garson Kanin's "Come On Strong," said she thinks the audiences don't notice that there is a two-year time lapse between acts . . . "To them, it is only a 10-minute intermission" . . . Kanin replied: "What's your suggestion -- two-year intermissions?"

ACTING: Although Richard Beymer has been starred in five movies, Joanne Woodward and Bob Webber persuaded him to learn acting at the Actors Studio. Beymer has sold his Hollywood home and car, moved to Manhattan and now is enrolled in the studio.

Asks To Attend Annual Meeting

October 13, 1962

Dear Editor:

The concise and detailed description of the make-up and operations of the Chased Shel Emes by its president, Mr. Jacob J. Alprin, was, indeed, very clarifying. However, with the exception of blaming the poor soil, etc., for the lack of good grass growth, the President made no mention of why other abuses are prevalent at the Lincoln Park Cemetery.

As for grass growth, how does Mr. Alprin explain a lush growth of grass on one plot, while another, bordering on the first, is an eyesore? What has poor drainage to do with a grave overgrown with grass that has not been mowed? Why has a certain plot never, once, been reseeded in almost twelve years time? Why are some graves strewn with foreign debris or contain growths of brambles? How many years do people have to beg to have sunken graves put back into shape?

In answer to my letter, published several weeks ago in your paper, I have received a flood of letters and telephone calls and have been personally approached by a number of persons, all of whom have grievances, some of which I have mentioned above.

If it is true, as Mr. Alprin explains, that lack of shade, irregular drainage and other factors present a problem in growing good grass, isn't it about time that an expert be called in to take over the job presently assigned to the "various committees which always work on this problem?"

Why must a family be forced to complain of a sunken grave when cemetery officials claim that laborers are always hard at work? Is it too difficult to notify a family of the existence of such a condition? Must the discovery of this condition be made by a family, itself, long after its occurrence?

I am fully aware that the men who are members of the Chased Shel Emes Association donate their time and efforts without remuneration. However, if the Association is encountering so much difficulty because of ground conditions and is unable to perform a satisfactory job with funds received, why is an individual forbidden to bring in outside help to perform the task correctly?

Mr. Alprin brought up the problem of care for graves where no living relatives remain. This problem has no relationship, whatsoever, to the upkeep of graves where a charge for such care is made. Because certain graves must be cared for without charge, there is no reason that work that is paid for should be neglected. Any free care necessary can and must be provided by the community.

The president states that "the order of business at the Chased Shel Emes annual meetings is the financial report of an independent Public Accountant. But is this report made public? The many people who have contracted me want to know.

The Association, whether it is incorporated under Rhode Island laws or whether it is the authorized caretaker of Lincoln Park Cemetery, is and always will be a servant of the Jewish community and as such, should not be allowed to take all matters into its own hands.

I publicly request the president and the entire Association to invite these of our Jewish community who make payments to the Chased Shel Emes and who are naturally interested in its maintenance, to be guests and participants at the annual meeting on the first Sunday in December in order to air their grievances.

Sincerely yours,
Harry Albert

Senior Citizens — EVERYONE CAN NOW JOIN BLUE CROSS PHYSICIANS SERVICE

No Age Limit • No Physical Examination Required

In cooperation with the national program to extend Blue Cross-Blue Shield protection to the aged, your Rhode Island Blue Cross and Physicians Service now offers membership to everyone — regardless of age — October 15 through November 15.

If you live or work in Rhode Island, you Qualify! There's no age limit. You don't need a health statement. But you should act now. With Blue Cross and Physicians Service, you can take advantage of modern health services without serious financial worry. And you'll be joining the 8 out of 10 Rhode Islanders who already have found that Blue Cross and Physicians Service is the best way to pre-pay hospital medical bills.

HERE'S WHAT BLUE CROSS PROVIDES! Blue Cross pays hospital bills. You can choose either the semi-private plan, $20 per-day or $14 per-day hospital room, board, and general nursing care coverage. All three plans give PERSONALIZED SERVICE BENEFITS. This means full-payment coverage for most hospital services when you are a bed patient in any member hospital.

LOOK WHAT PHYSICIANS SERVICE PROVIDES!

With Physicians Service, you subscribe to a surgical-medical plan that is endorsed and guaranteed by the doctors themselves. If your income is within certain broad limits and you meet other qualifications, your surgical bills are paid in full. Plan A is designed for persons with modest incomes, and Plan B is designed for persons with moderate or higher incomes.

HERE'S HOW TO JOIN!

And You Must Act Before November 15th.

1. Use the coupon at right to get full information and your application blank.
2. Choose the Plans that fit your needs and budget best.
3. Send in your application before November 15. Within a matter of a few weeks you'll receive your membership card. Your protection will then begin with hospital admissions or physicians services rendered, beginning on or after December 1, 1962.

IMPORTANT NOTES

- A. Family membership covers husband, wife and all unmarried children under the age of 19.
- B. If your application is received by November 15, your membership will be effective with hospital admissions or physicians services beginning on or after December 1, 1962 (not the date of application).
- C. Conditions existing at the time of application are not covered for the first seven months of membership.

Your Rhode Island plans already lead the nation in voluntarily enrolling more of our "senior citizens" than any other plan. But for the first time, a nationally-coordinated enrollment of the aged is now being conducted by Blue Cross-Blue Shield plans across the country.

In cooperation with this national program — and to make certain that everyone has an opportunity to join — your non-profit health plans in Rhode Island are again opening membership from October 15 through November 15. There is no age limit. Anyone — either over age 65 or under age 65 — can join now.

AT THESE LOW MONTHLY RATES YOU CAN CHOOSE THE PLAN THAT FITS YOUR NEEDS AND BUDGET BEST!

Fund Contributes $68,000 To Aid Jews

NEW YORK—The American Council for Judaism Philanthropic Fund has contributed $68,000 for aid to Algerian Jews who are now in France.

Henry S. Moyer, president of the fund, said that his fund donated $32,000 last year for aid. The amount was more than doubled this year because of "the influx of thousands of Jews from North Africa who have sought haven in France during the past few months."

"As French citizens," Mr. Moyer said, "it is natural that they hope to build new lives in their mother country. The humanitarian tradition of France throughout modern history has been to open her doors to all

Children's Theater Offers $1000 Prize

NEW YORK — The Jewish Theater for Children announced last week a prize of $1,000, for the best full-length play for children in English on a Jewish theme in the seventh annual competition for such plays. Philip Kasakove, theater chairman, said manuscripts must be submitted by April 15, 1963.

Judges include Dr. Azziel Eisenberg, executive vice-president of the Jewish Education Committee of New York; Lewis Funke, New York Times Drama editor; N. U. Levitt, chairman of the School of Adult Jewish Studies of Temple Beth El of Great Neck; World-Telegram and Sun drama critic; and Grace M. Stanistreet, director of the Adelphi College Children's Theater Arts Center.

Investigate Calls To Read 'Protocols'

SAN FRANCISCO — Federal and State agencies investigated last week a recorded telephone message urging callers to read the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion," the repeatedly exposed anti-Semitic hoax.

Stanley S. Jacobs, regional director of the Anti-Defamation League, said that the recorded message was arranged by Fred Huntley of Berkeley, Calif. He said he had received a letter from Huntley a year ago in which Huntley wrote that "maybe Eichmann had the right idea."

The stunt came to light when advertisements began appearing in Bay area newspapers, urging readers to dial a Berkeley number for a "patriotic message." Those who did so heard a recording attacking Communism and ADL and urging callers to read the vicious anti-Semitic "Protocols." Sponsors called themselves "Let Freedom Ring."

The Federal Communications Commission, the California State Utilities Commission, and the telephone company entered the probe. Spokesmen for the telephone company said, however, that they had no legal power to interfere with the recorded announcement.
