Vatican Allows Israeli Only As Journalist

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican has decided to accredit an Israeli government official as representative of the entire Jewish religion at the Second Vatican Council.

Israeli sources in Rome charge that "Arab pressure" is behind the Vatican's refusal to accredit as an observer Dr. Haim Vardy, director of the Christian sector in the Israeli Ministry of Religion.

The first reaction to the invitation of Pope John was the refusal by the Orthodox Grand Rabbinical Council meeting in Paris last November. But American rabbinical opinion, especially in reform Jewry, was critical of the orthodox refusal.

Negotiations With Beia

At this point the World Jewish Congress, headed by Dr. Nahum Goldmann, began negotiations with Augustin Cardinal Beia, president of the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity.

At first Cardinal Beia agreed to accept a nominee from the World Jewish Congress and no objection was made to the Israeli official, Israeli sources say.

Only as a Journalist

When word reached the Arab governments represented at the Holy See, however, they expressed objections to an Israeli government official's being chosen as Jewry's observer. The Arabs suggested that by accepting an Israeli official from a government that the Holy See

To Speak — John Stanley Grauel, a former crew member of the refugee ship "Exodus" and an expert on Middle East Affairs, will speak at the dinner of the Young Adult Division of the General Jewish Committee which will be held on Saturday, Nov. 3 at the Colony Motor Hotel.

Cocktails will be at 7 P.M. and dinner at 8 P.M. Music will be furnished by Billy Poore.

does not recognize, the Vatican might be prejudicing its attitude toward Jerusalem.

When these attitudes became known, it is said, the Vatican ruled that Vardy could come only as a journalist.

Alleged Leader Of 'Nazi Club' Charged With Defacing Property

The alleged teenage leader of a Queens "Nazi club" was charged with defacement of property in connection with the overturning of some 200 tombstones in Mt. Zion Cemetery, Maspeth.

His case was adjourned until later. Two other 15-year-old boys picked up by detectives were not charged. They had accompanied the club leader to the cemetery but had remained outside, detectives said.

Queens Children's Court Judge Horn set bail of $1,000 for the short, husky youth who combs his blond hair to the side in Hitler-fashion.

The boy admitted the vandalism, detectives said, but outside court today he denied it. His father also denied that his son had toppled any headstones.

Earlier, detectives said the boy admitted he had turned over 30 stones himself one night. They said he showed them how he shoved each stone three times while shrieking "Schweinhund Jews."

In a small shed behind the youth's home police found a collection of swastika flags and Nazi souvenirs including photographs of Hitler, Nazi generals and the gas chambers and baking ovens used for killing Jews in German concentration camps during World War II.

Damages Total $10,000

William Wallenberg, an official of the cemetery, on Sept. 26 complained to detectives of the Maspeth precinct that some 200 stones had been toppled recently, totaling $10,000 in damage.

Detectives were immediately assigned to various parts of the cemetery, keeping in touch by walkie-talkie radios.

Recently, Lt. Frank A. Rice, in charge of the Maspeth detectives, and three of his men, Dets. Joseph Tracy, Marvin Rogoff and John Plansker, were in the cemetery when they saw two youngsters throwing stones into an excavation just outside.

They followed the two boys, one 7 and the other 11 years old, and halted them several blocks from the cemetery. The boys denied having anything to do with stone toppling, but agreed to accept Lt. Rice's offer to help them as junior detectives.

"We know the Nazis. You mean the Nazi?" the older boy said to Rice offering to show him where the leader lived.

Anti-Semitism Highest Among Middle-Class

ARGENTINA — Anti-Semitism is highest amongst middle-class teenagers in Argentina, according to a survey recently carried out by the World Jewish Congress affiliate in that country. The study was initiated to assess the impact of the Eichmann trial on the population of Argentina, and particularly on anti-Semitic tendencies in that country.

Fully Informed

Generally, Argentinian public opinion was found to be fully informed about Eichmann and his crimes, although working class persons interviewed displayed less knowledge than those in the two other groups—middle, and upper-middle income brackets — questioned.

Interview 450

In all 450 persons were interviewed by the research institute retained by the DAIA (Delegacion de Asociaciones Israelitas Argentinas), the central representative body of Argentinian Jewry, which is affiliated with the World Jewish Congress.

Asked "Was the death sentence justified?" upper - middle and lower groups agreed with 53 per cent in the affirmative, while only 45 per cent of the middle group supported the death penalty.

Fifteen Persons In Ukraine Put On Trial For Speculation In Gold, Foreign Currency

A group of fifteen persons have been put on trial in the Ukraine on charges of speculation in gold and foreign currency. All of those listed have identifiable Jewish names, the New York Times reported recently.

According to the Ukrainian newspaper Pravda Ukrainy, the trial began "several days ago" in the city of Chernovtsy. Fifty-five pounds of gold ingots, diamonds, Soviet and foreign money "and even a check payable at the Bank of England" were found in the possession of the members of the ring, the paper said.

Chernovtsy is one of the cities in the western part of the Soviet Union with large Jewish populations. Of the city's total population of 150,000 about 20 to 30 per cent is believed to be Jewish.

Many Have Relatives Abroad

The Chernovtsy Jews have many relatives abroad and this may have helped the members of the ring in the alleged currency operations.

The presence of a large number of Jews in a series of speculation trials that began in the summer of 1961 is interpreted in some circles as Government-inspired anti-semitic discriminations.

Most of the trials have taken place in large Jewish population centers and most observers here believe the involvement of

Arabs, Israelis Unanimously Reject 'Johnson Plan' As Solution To Refugee Problem

NEW YORK—Arabs and Israelis have unanimously rejected the "Johnson Plan" put forth to solve the Palestine refugee problem according to a New York Post story by Theodore Kagan.

The apparent end of the year-long secret negotiations became known recently following a decision announced by Arab UN leaders to Joseph Johnson, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Johnson was appointed by the Palestine Conciliation Commission last September to search for a solution to the thorny issue.

Although reports in recent weeks have foreshadowed the impasse, it was not until Monday that a three-man delegation from Syria, Lebanon and Jordan presented Johnson with a definitive "no."

Johnson Still Hopeful

According to UN sources, Israel's "No" was given to Johnson several weeks ago by Foreign Minister Golda Meier, but this was kept confidential pending the Arab decision.

UN officials, while admitting that the impasse had been reached, refused to concede that it was insurmountable. Johnson was represented as still hoping that some variation of his proposals could be devised to overcome Arab Israeli opposition. He was said to maintain, moreover, that no official rejections had been received but that each side had merely made its "reservations" clear.

Johnson has conducted the delicate negotiations under top secret conditions, which included the pretense, accepted by all parties concerned, that his proposals were his own and were not officially advanced by the PCC or endorsed by any government. It was generally assumed, however, that had he been successful, both the UN and the U.S. would have provided open and strong support.

How It Would Work

The essence of the Johnson Plan was to give the Arab refugees the choice of returning to what is now Israel or to settle in an Arab country.

Israel would have had the right to reject any refugees it considered to be security risks and all the Arabs would have received compensation from an international fund.

Chairman — Harry Schwartz is chairman of the Annual Dinner of the Blackstone Valley United Jewish Appeal. The dinner will be held Sunday evening at the Ledge-mount Country Club. Eliazor Lipsky will be guest speaker.

Hersh Shternberg, a factory accountant whose wife was a vocational school teacher, became a speculator in 1946, the paper asserted. He and his father were said to have been involved in 180,000 rubles worth of currency operations.

The newspaper said that Srul Zimilevich, purchasing agent for a village cooperative had surrendered during a search 920 gold coins, Soviet cash, Soviet Government bonds, gold articles, precious stones and 150 astrakhan lamb pelts.

Esther Weinberh, a lawyer "kept and hid valuables of one of the accused, knowing full well that she was committing a serious crime," the paper declared.

The other defendants were identified as Isak Ronis, Enzel Kofman, Samuil Levental, Mendel Flomenboim, Feliks Mester, Hersh Nagel, Leonid Sherman and Yankel Koyen.

Embassy Denies Discrimination
The Soviet Embassy in Washington has sharply denied that Jews are being subjected to persecution and discrimination in the Soviet Union.

In a letter to Moses I. Soca-chesky, president of the Jewish Nazi Victims Organization, Georgi M. Korniyenko, Counselor of the Soviet Embassy, listed figures to challenge reports in American newspapers that anti-Semitism was on the rise in the Soviet Union.

Confirm Reports Of Stoning Of Moscow Central Synagogue

NEW YORK — Reports that the central synagogue of Moscow, largest and most important Jewish house of worship in the Soviet Union, was stoned on the first day of Rosh Hashonah, while High Holy Day services were in progress before a congregation crowded beyond capacity, were confirmed by highly reliable sources. The Jewish Daily Forward reported the occurrence.

According to the reports, received here, Moscow's central synagogue was jammed with worshippers, while an overflow crowd of hundreds of other Jews milled in the street outside the edifice, when suddenly a hail of stones smashed through several windows, shattering the glass and showering the worshippers with broken splinters of glass.

Services were being conducted at the moment by Moscow's venerable Chief Rabbi Yehuda Leib Levin. Shocked by the stoning, members of the congregation were thrown into panic, many of the Jews running for the exit doors. However, those who were trying to leave found themselves halted by the crowd on the outside.

The reports pointed out that none of the Soviet militia was on duty at or around the synagogue at the time the attack took place. Usually, there are militia men on duty in front of the synagogue on Jewish holidays.

There were no reports of injuries resulting from the attack and the subsequent panic, however. The reports did state that no one was arrested and that no mention of the entire occurrence has been made to date either in the Soviet press or the Soviet radio.

SEEK INVESTIGATION

NEW YORK — The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith called recently on the Department of Justice to investigate the Merchants Club of New York, charging that the "club's policy of Anti-Jewish discrimination" amounts to violation of federal anti-trust laws. In a message to Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, Arnold Forster, the ADL general counsel, declared that the Merchants Club "has never been known in its 90 years of existence, to accept Jews." Since a United States Court of Claims has found that the Club "is the quasi-official center and headquarters of the selling end of the cotton textile industry" Mr. Forster said, its policy of barring Jews is "thus a combination or conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, and in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act."

EINSTEIN MEMORIAL

NEW YORK — A sculptured memorial to the late Dr. Albert Einstein, done by an American artist, may go to West Germany because no Americans have come forth to finance the memorial, it was announced here last week by the sculptor, Robert Berks. The memorial is in the form of a disc, 21 feet in diameter, at one side of which sits a replica of the late scientist with a book in one hand.

According to Berks, West Germans have offered $180,000 for the sculpture but no one in the United States has offered to purchase the work and erect it. Berks said that, thus far, no memorial has been put up to Dr. Einstein in this country, although his death occurred in 1955.

Summary Indicates Firms Disregard Arabs' Boycott

JERUSALEM — A summary of developments during the past six months indicated recently that the Arab anti-Israel boycott is in full retreat. In recent months, it was noted, leading international firms were tending more and more to disregard the threat of the Arab League Boycott office against doing business with Israel.

It was pointed out that the Israel Foreign Ministry's Department for Economic Planning, established several years ago with the responsibility of fighting the Arab boycott, had adopted a more aggressive posture in carrying out its assignment and could be credited with considerable achievement.

Brigadier General David Shaltiel, wartime commander of the Jerusalem area head of the department, said that in the past five months there had not been a single case of a firm interested in doing business with Israel or investing in Israel having withdrawn under Arab pressure. Conversely, he said, several firms which had yielded to such pressure, had approached Israeli authorities with plans for resuming operations in Israel.

Of the motor cars now in use, 57 per cent are equipped with automatic transmissions, 22 per cent with power steering, and 20 per cent with power brakes, the ALA states.

Miss Roberta Zeltzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Zeltzer, 416 Adelaide Avenue, has been awarded sixth place honors in the National Jewish Welfare Board's recent Air Mail Track Meet, it was announced this week by Richard King, Physical Education Director of the Providence Jewish Community Center.

Miss Zeltzer competed in the 75 yard dash against participants from Jewish Community Centers throughout the USA, England, Australia, and Canada. The competitions were sponsored by the World Federation of YMHAs and Jewish Community Centers.

Mr. King also announced that all boys and girls from the Providence Center who competed in the track meet may pick up their Certificates of Participation at his office at the East Side Center building.

Converted Parisians Establish Kibbutz

PARIS — In the south of France, on the slopes of the Cevenn mountains, is a tiny village called Pardailhan which has the distinction of being the site of a kibbutz inhabited by 65 Parisians who converted to Judaism. Jonathan J. Goldberg, a member of Kibbutz Pardailhan, has described this "outpost of Israel" for the Jerusalem Post.

The rocky land around Pardailhan was abandoned by its original inhabitants, all but a few of whom left it for life in bigger towns. A group of working-class families from the 17th arrondissement of Paris, who had had enough of the city, bought up the crumbling houses and founded a kibbutz, on the suggestion of one of the number who had visited Israel and who succeeded in infecting the others with his enthusiasm for kibbutz life.

Since the adventurers had, for the most part, already given up any allegiance they may once have had for Catholicism, it was a logical step for them to adopt the Jewish faith as well as the kibbutz way of life. As a result, the cultural influence at the kibbutz is almost entirely Jewish.

Though prayers are held at Pardailhan morning and evening, the majority of the Kibbutz members do not attend them. Goldberg says that the general attitude is: "Once you have accepted Judaism and the unity of God, there is no need to go further." Such a liberalization of Judaism in a setting in which it is a religion that has been deliberately adopted by an "alien" group has led to some "glaring contradictions." But, as one kibbutz member summed up the feeling of the majority, "For us Judaism is not a question of race or nationality. It is not even a question of common historical experience. It is an ethical creed, nothing more and nothing less."

Need Foster Homes In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES — Jewish children in need of foster homes here are being placed with Catholic or Protestant families because no Jewish foster homes are available for them, according to an announcement by the division of child welfare services of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Public Assistance.

"At the present time," the agency stated, "there are no Jewish homes available for children who, for various reasons, need placement in foster homes. As a result, when Jewish children are found in immediate need of shelter, they are having to be placed in Catholic or Protestant home." The agency made an urgent plea for potential Jewish foster parents to volunteer for such services.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA-- "Since I have been 9 years old," beamed actress Allison Ames, "I have seen every movie made by Paul Muni. Meanwhile, I dreamed of being an actress and starrng with him some day. I know it was a crazy ambition, but I never relented."

Last week, Allison's agent phoned her at home and announced she was to star opposite Muni in a TV segment of "Saints and Sinners." Allison promptly collapsed in the middle of her living room and yelled at her mother: "Momma, I made it!"

JOHN Larkin, the handsome and accomplished actor who essays the regular role of the editor in the aforementioned "Saints and Sinners" TV series, also had sincere praise for Muni's efforts in the segment, which is titled oddly: "Shame for a Diamond Anniversary."

Commented Larkin: "Muni is one of the greatest American actors of all time. He was just wonderful in his superb portrayal." What Larkin and other dedicated actors admit -- that the reason for Muni's magnificence is his background with the Yiddish theater.

RECENTLY, I used an item, emanating from what I have always considered to be a reliable source, which referred to Allen Sherman's recording for Warners of "Golden Moments from Broadway." I have since been advised that Warners have not pressed or released the aforementioned album. This column sincerely regrets any inconvenience that our item may have caused Warners or Mr. Sherman.

JOEY Ross, of TV's "Car 54," told Larry Storch that he'd love to live in Hollywood. However, moans Joey, the show's producer Nat Hiken has his roots firmly imbedded in New York's concrete and refuses to budge.

Lou Mason, raconteur and humorist, will be the featured entertainer at the Jewish Community Center's open "Cabaret Nite", to be conducted at the East Side Center building on Sunday, Nov. 4, at 8 P.M.

Sponsored by the Center's Membership Committee, under the chairmanship of Maurice Dressler, "Cabaret Nite" will be open to all adults.

Mr. Mason, who has appeared from coast to coast, utilizes a stock of Jewish wit and humor that stems from the comedy of everyday life. He is a graduate of the Talmudical Academy of the Yeshiva College of N. Y. and the Hebrew Teachers' Institute.

The "Cabaret Nite" program will include dancing, refreshments, and entertainment, all set in a cabaret atmosphere planned by Mr. Dressler and his committee. Table reservations may be made in advance.

1♥	pass	1♠	pass
2♣	pass	3♥	pass
4NT	pass	5♦	pass
5♥	pass	pass	pass

Opening lead: queen of diamonds.

The opening lead is taken with the ace on the board. West next leads two rounds of trumps ending in the closed hand. West then leads a low club which North takes with the ace. North returns a small spade, West plays the jack from the dummy and South covers with the ace which West trumps. West leads to the king of clubs in the dummy, sluffs a club on the king of spades, then leads a diamond to her hand which is good, easily making six.

Comment: East and West chose the wrong method of trying to reach slam. They should have stayed away from Blackwood, simply bid their aces and kings to each other and slam would have been reached. West was surprised to find the ace of diamonds and king of clubs in partner's hand, expecting ace of spades instead.

Yemenites Say Former Imam Protected Jews

TEL AVIV—Yemenite Jews in Israel said the head of the new republican government of Yemen was a slum urchin.

A former shopkeeper in Sana said the father of Premier Abdullah al-Salal had been a coal vender and that his family lived in a hovel near the Suk Agil.

When Abdullah was about 10 years old the Imam Yehia established a school in Sana for orphans and neglected boys. Abdullah was admitted and later transferred to a military school. He was one of a group of officers sent to Iraq for further training.

The sources asked that they not be identified. One of them, who had been an official of the Jewish community in Sana, said he was fearful for the few hundred Jews who remained in Yemen.

"The republicans have no conscience and no religion," he said.

Imam Protected Jews

The Imam had protected his Jewish subjects, the source explained. When the last plane-load of refugees arrived from Yemen, a leader of the group said the late Imam Ahmad had told him that those who wished to leave could go, and that those who wished to remain could do so, but that he did not know what would happen to them after his death.

The former Jewish official recalled that the republicans had tried to get the Jews of Sana to take up arms against the Imam Yehia during the 1948 uprising. The republicans had tried to distribute weapons to Jews for the defense of Sana but the leaders of the community met and decided against taking them, the source said.

A year later he said, republicans threw the bodies of two Arab girls into a well and accused the Jews of murder. Scores of Jews, were arrested.

1st: About 25-30 years ago when one went out-doors in the Jewish neighborhoods, there was a certain degree of Holy-Day spirit prevalent. It was quiet and one noticed the absence of motor vehicles. Now on Rosh Hashona, one sees cars with Jewish people, as on a week day, some going on business, others as if on picnics, etc.

I have come to the conclusion that this is the result of some of the conservative rabbis giving a Heter (permission) to ride to services. The operators and the passengers of these cars say — logically — if the car can be used to go to services why not for other matters. In the past our sages erected 'fences' so one should not come to a transgression. Now, it seems that the conservative rabbis have not only trampled down these 'fences', but have issued Hiturim for Isurim (permissions for prohibitions).

2nd: In the past some people had been in the habit of ridiculing orthodox Synagogues as being noisy and lacking in decorum. I have had the pleasure of attending all the services at the new Mishkan Tfilo, orthodox, Synagogue, including the High Holy Days. Every one who attended those services will bear out my statement that the services were highly dignified and the decorum was excellent. The rabbi delivered excellent sermons in perfect English and Yiddish, and the entire Congregation, diligently, followed the Cantors who chanted the prescribed liturgy. This is in addition to worshipping in a very beautiful edifice of which East Side Jewry may be proud.

This dispels the old, malicious charge of lack of dignity and decorum in orthodox shuls.

Sincerely,
 Harris Miller

To Provide Counseling For Handicapped

NEW YORK — Twenty-four Jewish vocational services in the United States and Canada will provide individual counseling and job finding services for about 40,000 handicapped persons before 1962 is over, it was estimated by the Jewish Occupational Council here on the basis of a survey conducted in connection with the national "Employ the Handicapped" Week.

"Handicapped persons will constitute at least 70% of the total caseloads served by these agencies and the figure may well increase to 80%," the report said. It emphasized that job finding for handicapped persons, particularly those who are unskilled and untrained, is becoming more difficult as the labor market continues to demand more and more the services of those who are technically trained, educated and skilled. "Nevertheless," the report continued, "Jewish vocational services continue their unflagging efforts to find jobs for the handicapped."

Specialized Programs

Specialized programs for the rehabilitation of the handicapped being conducted by Jewish vocational services include exploratory research in vocational adjustment of the handicapped by the Jewish Vocational Service of Chicago; programs for the rehabilitation of post-hospitalized schizophrenic patients being conducted by the Jewish vocational services of Essex County and Detroit; and a comprehensive vocational rehabilitation program for vocationally handicapped persons 60 years of age and over, being conducted by the Federation Employment and Guidance Service in New York.

Programs based on this prototype are being conducted by the Jewish vocational services of Miami, St. Louis, Kansas City and Philadelphia, and special programs in behalf of the cerebral palsied and the mentally retarded in Milwaukee.

In Canada, the Jewish Vocational Service of Toronto is conducting a building maintenance program to provide unskilled and often disabled, displaced persons with marketable skills.

The outstanding work of the Jewish vocational services in the rehabilitation of the handicapped won the William Schroder Awards of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds on two occasions in recent years. The agencies granted these awards were the Jewish Vocational Service of Milwaukee and the Federation Employment and Guidance Service of New York.

Inbal To Dance In Hollywood Film

JERUSALEM — Israel's Chief Rabbinate last week expressed disapproval over an arrangement made between Inbal, the Yeminite dance group here, and a Hollywood movie firm which has scheduled employment of the dancers in the filming of a picture dealing with the life of Jesus.

The Inbal aggregation has been booked by United Artists for a three-month stay in Hollywood, with a provision for three more months, to participate in the making of "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Thirty members of Inbal were scheduled to leave for Hollywood.

Bias On Park Avenue

It has long been known that many of the high-priced cooperatives on Manhattan's East Side discriminated against Jews. They are run like exclusive clubs and are strongholds of social snobbery and prejudice. A B'nai B'rith survey in 1959 showed that one third of the 175 luxury cooperatives in Manhattan had no Jewish tenants; the survey labeled them "fosteresses of anti-Semitism."

The charge of bias is now being pressed to a legal showdown by the City Commission on Human Rights. It has upheld a complaint by Alfred R. Bachrach, president of Temple Emanu-El, that he was denied the right to purchase a Park Av. apartment because he was Jewish. It has asked the Corporation Counsel to seek to enjoin the co-op from further discrimination.

We are sure that it gives Bachrach no pleasure, no more than it does James Meredith, to press himself into surroundings where he is not welcome. Nor, we suspect, is the plaintiff likely to be homeless, if he cannot get a Park Av. apartment. But discrimination is an evil and should be fought wherever it manifests itself. In pursuing his complaint, Mr. Bachrach is performing a public service. (Reprinted from The New York Post)

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

If you will need to borrow money in the next several months -- and hundreds of thousands of individual families, business corporations, states and cities, etc., will -- you would be wise to start your loan negotiations now and probably to complete them soon.

For you, the borrower, are more in control of the market for money than in many years.

In essence, we are into the first real buyers' market for borrowers this country has experienced since the late 1940s.

This is particularly true if you're a businessman with a good credit record; lenders of money are eagerly seeking for you these days. It's also true if you're an individual with an acceptable credit rating needing a home mortgage or cash to finance a major personal purchase. It certainly applies to states and cities in sound financial shape.

Funds for loans are abundant in banks and savings institutions the nation over. The loans aren't cheap in comparison with charges of earlier postwar years. Interest rates generally are far above the starvation levels of the 1940s. But the cost of a loan is secondary to the availability of the loan. "Availability" is the key point.

There are four clear forces which are favoring you, as a borrower of money, today.

First, there has been a huge piling up of savings in lending institutions of all types. The Federal Reserve Board's policy decision to permit commercial banks to pay as much as 4 per cent on deposits left with them a year or more set off a monumental influx of funds into commercial banks at the start of 1962. While the pace of the flow has slowed now, the convulsion in the money markets has been profound.

Simultaneously, other types of institutions, competing on interest rate payments and promotions of savings, have continued to attract cash. Unquestionably, a factor in the pile up of savings also has been the crack in the stock market -- for many individuals have decided to deposit new savings in a financial institution rather than to channel the funds into stocks. To put it plainly, lenders simply have an awful lot of money around to put to work.

Second, the demand for loans has been sluggish -- a direct reflection of the sluggishness in our economy. The total of loans is up over last year, of course, but with so much money available to lend, the demand has not risen up to the supply. What's more, there are no indications now of any significant pickup in loan demands that would abruptly change the present picture.

Third, the Federal Reserve System has geared its monetary policy to keep credit readily available. It has not flooded the banking system with lending funds -- as the supporters of exceedingly easy money wish -- but it hasn't put any brake on lending either.

Fourth, the Treasury has geared its management policy to avert competing with private borrowers for long-term funds. As a tremendous and constant borrower of money, the Treasury could be a heavy competitor with corporations, states, cities, home builders and buyers. But it has avoided this so that it would not interfere with private activities that would add strength and solidity to our economy.

Even in a business recession, the chances are against an important decline in borrowing costs. Defense of the dollar dictates this. The U.S. cannot afford to let interest rates sink to the point where foreign holders of "hot money" here would be encouraged to withdraw their balances and invest them in other financial centers paying higher rates. Financial institutions holding your savings and now paying you so much interest on your deposits also are deeply reluctant to shave their lending charges.

You can get concessions, though, that you couldn't have obtained only a few months ago.

CHANTS AND MEMORIES

By Beryl Segal

The cantor, Norman Gewirtz of Temple Beth El, was chanting the Sabbath and Holiday Kiddush. He sang with feeling, softly, and unpretentiously, as if he was saying the Kiddush before his own family. My wife turned to me and whispered in my ear:

"I was in my father's Succo now and listened to my father chant the Kiddush. After all these years, imagine."

My father-in-law lived in the Great House on the edge of town. His house sealed off the section of town where Jews were permitted to live. After the house began the village where Ukrainian peasants had their straw thatched huts and their gardens, their stables and their chicken coops.

The house stood on a hillock, and at the foot of the hill the river was flowing placidly. The river was wide at that point, and there was an island in the middle. On summer days the children would swim in the river and the older ones would swim to the island and bask in the sun. They were, of course, wholly naked, but nobody cared. Everybody was swimming naked. On summer nights, too, the peasant girls and boys would gather on the village green and sing till late at night. You sat in front of my father-in-law's house and listened to the singing that came from across the river. Ukrainian songs that reverberated and reached the town clear and sweet. You wondered how such songs could come from the mouths of boys and girls that you knew well. These were the boys that came to town on Sundays and drank and quarreled and got into fights. These were the girls that milked cows, hoed the garden, and were bent over their field work all the day long. Now their songs rang so angelically, so heavenly.

There was a small room in my father-in-law's house that was apart from the rest of the house. All year long the room was used for drinking tea in the afternoons, for sitting and chatting on rainy days, for children to play in. But when the Festival of Succos came the room became the most important part of the house. The room was scrubbed and cleansed and the furniture rearranged. A bed was put in the room, and a long table and chairs were placed there. The walls were decorated with pictures and flowers. Then on the afternoon of the first night of Succos the roof over the room would be opened and the entire room would be flooded with autumn light. That room was the permanent Succos. The roof over the room was built on hinges and could be opened and closed at will. The two sides of the roof would stand erect like wings, and would tell the villagers across the river that Succos was here. In that room the family lived for eight days. There they ate. There the children played. There guests were received. And there the father of the family slept.

On the first night of Succos the family would stand around the table and my father-in-law would raise the cup of wine and begin to chant. The chant was an ancient one, a chant that he had heard from his father, who in turn heard it from his father. It would ring across the river and to the island, and would linger on the moonlit ripples of the water.

Strange how a chant, a quiet chant of Kiddush can conjure up memories of times and places that can never be relived again. The Great House is gone. The townlet on the Ukraine has changed. The villagers perhaps no longer sing. Children swim no more in the river by the house. And the melody of Kiddush is no longer heard in the nights of Succos.

But does it matter? Such is the power of memory that it can make things live after they are gone. With my wife, who as a child had heard her father chant the Kiddush, that Succo, that night, that expectant group of children that stood by the father, has come back to life. They were real at that moment. That moment has been conjured up by the chant of the cantor, so soft, so reverend, so home-like.

The Kiddush chant. Often I wonder how did it travel from place to place, from city to city, from the remotest village to the single Jewish house somewhere on the plains of the Ukraine. Those were days without recordings. Those were the days before performing artists traveled across the country. Perhaps a travelling cantor came to town, and he chanted his melodies for all to copy? Perhaps a Hassid going to his Rebbe for a holiday heard the chant from the singing Hassidim and he brought it back with him? But the fact is that from the Kiddush to the various melodies of the Festival prayers, to the wailing of the Psalms at night, to the reading of the Megillah on Purim, to the blessing over the candles on Hanukkah, they were all alike in the towns and villages of the Ukraine, and Galicia, and Rumania, and Poland, and wherever Jews lived in the great and mighty pre-Revolutionary Russia.

And that same chant was sung by the cantor in a Temple in Providence, thousands of miles and so many years away, from the Succos night in our little town on the Ukraine.

BROADWAY GAZETTE

SOCIAL NOTE: Gore Vidal, the author-playwright, was with Mrs. Joseph F. Kennedy at the Met opening. He heard the President's mother, who is 71, sigh about the problems of growing old. "Oh, but you're a young woman yet," Vidal said. "I was speaking," replied Mrs. Kennedy, "about my mother. I just visited her in Boston."

POLITICS: Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., was a professor of economics before he turned to politics. In his Senate office he showed Horace MacMahon the two pictures he keeps there -- of Erasmus and of Sir Thomas More. Erasmus, said Sen. Douglas, was an educator who stayed an educator and died in bed; More was an educator who became a politician and was beheaded.

TV NOTE: Roger Stevens, the producer, who heads the fund-raising drive for the National Cultural Center, addressed a roomful of Broadway and Hollywood stars. They all will participate in the Center's closed-circuit TV program on Nov. 29. Stevens told them: "No matter your politics, the fact is that the No. 1 star in America today is Jacqueline Kennedy."

TAX NOTE: Herman Wouk donates his book manuscripts to college libraries. The Internal Revenue Dept. allows him a tax deduc-tion on the manuscripts. Wouk was curious about the deduction allowed on his manuscript of "This Is My God." It was valued higher than his manuscript of "The Caine Mutiny," which won the Pulitzer Prize.

"You were younger when 'The Caine Mutiny' gift was made," the tax man explained. "As an author gets closer to the end of his life span, his scripts become rarer and so are worth more."

BUSINESS NOTE: Most Americans now are familiar with every angle of TV profits. Recently Hal Schaffel, the lawyer and locations coordinator for "The Naked City" TV series, found an ideal site for one scene -- a building under construction here. The superintendent of the project came to terms with Schaffel -- $350 for allowing the site to be filmed.

"Plus," the superintendent added, $200 for every re-run. I want the residuals too."

PET DEPT.: When Charlie Conerly retired as the Giants' quarterback, he and his wife wanted to take back to their Clarksdale, Miss., home a reminder of their happy years in New York. They took "Charlie," the cat that had free run of P.J. Clarke's bar on Third Avenue.

"Charlie" became the first cat ever to fly in a jet. But the Conerlys found the cat different in Clarksdale. "Charlie" became "Miss Muffitt" -- after giving birth to a litter.

LOCAL NEWS: The Actors Studio's $250,000 grant from the Ford Foundation is contingent upon the Studio raising a matching sum elsewhere. . . Mrs. Robert Morgenthau and Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, both having babies, are campaigning here for Morgenthau's candidacy. . . Noel Coward is postponing the operation he needs on his leg until next spring, when he will have finished his songs for "The Sleeping Prince" . . . "The Manchurian Candidate" will be shown to the U.S. forces in Seoul, South Korea, on the same day it opens at the Astor Theater here.

CENSORSHIP NOTE: The N.Y.C. public library system is involved in a dispute over Tana de Gama's first novel, "Like a River of Lions." It's been banned from the libraries because it contains love scenes deemed objectionable

'Mosaic', London Publication, Polls Jewish Youth On Feeling Of 'Difference', Religion, Attachment

LONDON—"Mosaic," a publication issued by the Jewish Youth Council, posed five questions to poll participants: "As a Jew do you feel yourself 'different'?"

"Do you consider yourself a religious Jew and if so on what basis?"

"Have you any other reasons for remaining attached to the Jewish people?" Have you anything more than a sentimental regard for Israel?"

tal regard for Israel?"

The poll was to give religious Jews as large a say as possible while ensuring a reasonable spectrum of views.

Aware of Difference

There seems to be an overall awareness of "difference," as could be expected in what is basically an immigrant community living in old-established surroundings. Various attempts are made to analyse this feeling of differentness:

The Jew is the original outsider. In non-Jewish company one is always more alert, more wary of the word "Jews"—a typical touchy Diaspora approach. And if the non-Jew is friendly to our people, he too will feel diffident, wary, trying not to offend or touch that sensitive spot which has become part of the make-up of the Diaspora Jew. Though one may not be always culturally or intellectually at one with all Jews, there is in their company a shedding of inhibitions and an inevitable relaxing as in a family circle.

TO ESTABLISH BRANCH
 NEW YORK — The Bank Leumi Le Israel is establishing a subsidiary company in New York to deal in Israeli securities and create a market for Israeli issues, it was announced here by bank chairman Dr. Y. Foerder.

To be known as the Leumi Securities Corporation, the new company will begin functioning next month, buying and selling all types of Israeli securities, at rates paralleling Tel Aviv market quotations, and dealing in State of Israel Bonds.

Sample comments follow:

"I would claim to be an assimilated Jew. Socially I have more non-Jewish friends but it is definitely easier for me to form deep friendships with Jews than with non-Jews.

"English Jews are fundamentally different from and superior to their non-Jewish neighbors; so at least many of us assume."

Most of the participants are critical of Anglo-Jewry:

"Anglo-Jewry has assimilated some of the worst elements in Judaism and Episcopalianism.

"I am very concerned about the future of Anglo-Jewry and, to a lesser extent, about that of World Jewry. The problems throughout the Diaspora are the same — intermarriage, religious apathy, assimilation. The answer lies in emigration or rather "homecoming" to Israel, even though most Israelis are irreligious."

Spiritual Bankruptcy

"I visualize spiritual bankruptcy for Anglo-Jewry.

"Apart from our charitable efforts, which are not to be derided, we are a community virtually divorced from our traditions. We have become sterile.

"The Jews in England have many fine qualities, yet on the whole their contribution to Jewish thought and tradition has been pretty meager.

"There is little difference between my anger as a Jew and my disappointment as an Englishman that over 300 years of undisturbed life in this country so little has been produced for either community.

Israel Conscious

The vast majority of the participants are intensely Israel-conscious and several express their intention of settling there in the near future. The symposium produced various views on the subject:

"The most important thing Israel has done for the Diaspora Jew is to kill the picture of the Jew as a physical ward.

"I am not a Zionist for the same reason most Zionists will never go on aliya: Israel cannot provide the security for our families, the career opportunities and the standard of living which exist in most Western countries.

"What am I doing in England? I maintain a persistent guilt complex—a feeling of having deserted the sinking ship in a time of need. . . . The future of Diaspora Jewry is much brighter as a result of Israel and whilst Israel needs us we have a positive purpose in living.

"It is impossible to say if Israel has 'affected my outlook as a Jew'. As long as I have been old enough to think there has always been an Israel." A generation is beginning to be heard for whom even the struggle for statehood is unknown. There are arising new Josephs who knew not Pharaoh.

POPE GIVES PRAISE

ROME — Pope John XXIII voiced very high praise for the religious values of the Old Testament recently, in an address at the Vatican to the Italian Biblical Association.

"Man awaits and listens to the Word of God," said the Pontiff, "with the same devotion with which the Jewish people received the reading of the Holy Book, given to them by Ezra after the fortunate return of the people from captivity in Babylon. Beloved sons, you will find therein everything that refers to the teachings and to the worship of the Divine Book."

COLUMNS

A LOOK AT SPORTS

by LEON SAPERSTEIN

This Sunday, October 28th, we shall learn whether or not the Washington Redskins of the National Football League have been living on borrowed time. For now they will have to lock horns with the defensive oriented New York Giants.

Last Sunday afternoon the Giants demonstrated their impressive ability to stymie enemy assaults by stifling the Detroit Lions attack in the second half. Once more the awesome foursome of Andy Robustelli, Roosevelt Grier, Jim Katcavage and Dick Modzelewski will be on display, ready, willing and able to wreck the best laid plans of men and football coaches. And the ever present Sam Huff will be roaming about to help break up Washington offensive outbursts.

The 1962 edition of the Redskins has been greatly strengthened through the pre-season acquisition of Bobby Mitchell, a speedster who has developed into the favorite target of Washington quarterback, Norm Snead. There is no back in the NFL any faster than Mitchell and Giant defensive back, Erich Barnes, who usually draws the job of covering the most elusive men of the opposition, will no doubt be assigned to stay close to Bobby.

I look for an exciting contest with the New York defensive unit once more being called upon to provide the difference between victory and defeat. Snead will be "Red Dogged" repeatedly by the hard charging Giants. Thus far Snead has been afforded superb protection and his accuracy has been excellent. However, he will be mightily disconcerted after several encounters with Robustelli, Grier and Huff.

The pick here is New York 24—Washington 14.

AGELESS ARCHIE

Next Tuesday night, October 30th, ancient Archie Moore will climb into the ring to battle young, cocky, Cassius Clay, Olympic lightweight - weight champion. In Moore, boxing has its most memorable character, a legend in the annals of fistiana. Not only has Archie tangled with the top fighters of the past twenty-five years but he has struggled successfully against the battle of the calorie.

After a bout, Moore usually balloons to some twenty to forty pounds beyond his best weight. Using a strict diet, and a will envied by millions of American housewives, Archie has been able to shed the excess poundage without weakening his body as usually occurs after a strenuous weight reduction program. And the question of age has also been overcome up until now.

However, the sands of time are rapidly sifting through Moore and after each fight there is a little less of the strength and the response to punishment. Archie, who admits to being 45, but is closer to 50, will be sorely tested next week. Clay is a young aggressive fighter, capable of throwing quick combinations that will find their way through the wrap-around defense of Moore. A younger Archie Moore would have disposed of the brash Clay without too much difficulty. But giving away more than twenty-five years to a fast battler should prove too much.

Picking on form, not sentiment, I am predicting Cassius Clay to defeat Moore, possibly by a technical knockout.

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

After the first three games of play and the Boston Bruins were still unbeaten, a few of the experts were predicting a Boston revival. The past week has shattered their expectations. Last year's Bruins squad was probably the worst sextet in the past ten years of NHL play and this season's club is improved only at goalie.

The Montreal Canadians cannot be discounted, not with their explosive Boom Boom Geoffrion, their fast skating, Henri Richard and top star, Jean Beliveau. They must still be considered the team to beat.

Detroit appears to be stronger than last year and should stay up in the NHL race, at least for the first half of the season. Toronto will again be a strong contender and will finish no lower than third.

The Lyon's Den

... Books like "Tropic of Cancer" and "Peyton Place" have been accepted, Miss de Gamez was told, only because of "the author's fame and renown."

ART NOTE: Charles S. Hopkinson, the Cambridge-born artist who died recently at 93, painted the portraits of U.S. Presidents and presidents of Harvard. When the late Raoul Dufy was at a hospital in Boston, he met Hopkinson at dinner, and each finally decided to paint a portrait of the other.

At one of these sessions, they talked of the artist's pleasure in creating. Hopkinson said: "Oh, we artists are all complete fools"... "Of course," Dufy agreed. "That's the difference between other people and us: We artists know that we are fools."

DRAMA DEPT.: Greer Garson was in Sardi's the other night after taping a DuPont TV drama with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Miss Garson was delighted at the chance to act again. "I came up here straight from my home in Texas," she beamed, "and tonight I really chewed up the scenery." "That, by the way, is my favorite dish—chewed scenery."

SPEECH DEPT.: Secretary of State Rusk addressed the President's Business Council Friday at the Homestead in Hot Springs. Gen. Eisenhower set aside his campaigning temporarily to address the Business Council on Saturday.

THE MOVE: Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen, who wrote the title song for the Carroll Baker-Van Johnson play, "Come On Strong," are writing a Broadway musical, "Hobson's Choice," with Ketti Frings. They left Hollywood and furnished apartments for themselves in New York. Then Cahn phoned Mrs. Frings in California to ask when she's moving to New York to work with them on the show.

"I'm not coming to New York, I can only work here," Mrs. Frings replied. "I wrote every word of 'Look Homeward Angel' here in California."

"Taxes Can And MUST Be Reduced"

We will scrutinize the expenses of every single department in city government. We are going to eliminate waste and inefficiency. And we are NOT going to hide government activities behind a veil of secrecy. Every nickle that is collected and every nickle that is spent will be fully itemized and reported in crystal clear language to every citizen of Providence.

All waste and extravagance of every kind and description will be weeded out. The erosion of Providence must be halted. We must shift gears and start moving straight ahead. And to do that we need a dynamic and comprehensive program of development — a program designed to meet the needs of the City of Providence for now, and in the years ahead.
