Dr. Israel M. Goldman

Rabbi Charles M. Rubel

Beth-Sholom To Install Rabbi Rubel Sunday

Temple Beth Sholom will officially install Rabbi Charles M. Rubel as its spiritual leader this Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Israel M. Goldman, formerly of Temple Emanuel of this city, and now of the Chizuk Amuno Congregation, Baltimore, will be the installing officer.

Principal speakers at Rabbi Rubel's installation will be Rabbi Saul Leeman, president of the Rhode Island Rabbinical Association, and Rabbi Jack Schechter of Boston, executive director of the New England Region of the United Synagogue of America. The United Synagogue is the national organization of Conservative Jewish congregations of which Temple Beth Sholom is a member.

Other participants will include Jack Dinin, president of the congregation, and Rabbi Rubel's two daughters.

The latter are Miss Sheila Rubel, head of the dramatics department at Woodmere Academy, Woodmere, Long Island, and a former member of the Atlanta Opera Company, and Mrs. Norman Feldman of Forest Hills, New York. Both will sing solos at their father's installation.

All members of the Rhode Island rabbinate have been invited to attend.

Workshop To Consider Inter-Religious Issues

PHILADELPHIA — A series of workshop sessions designed to aid Jewish leaders here in dealing with other religious groups in the community on important inter-religious issues has been launched by the Jewish Community Relations Council of Greater Philadelphia.

Sydney C. Orlofsky, chairman of the JCRC religious freedom and inter-religious relationship committee, who announced inauguration of the series, declared, "Where a conflict is caused by irreconcilable differences, such as those of faith and conscience, conversations in an atmosphere of common civic or religious concern often help to promote understanding, diminish prejudice and hostility, and facilitate parallel or cooperative action. The inter-religious dialogue also serves to keep discussion on the merits of particular issues without the injection of bigotry or impugning the motives of those who disagree with particular points of view."

In addition to theological questions, the sessions will prepare Jewish leaders to engage in interfaith conversations on social issues having implications for the Jewish community which require mutual understanding. Due to recent developments in church-state matters, Bible reading, prayers and other religious practices in public schools, Orlofsky added, there is a great need for Jewish leadership to be qualified to interpret to Christians the position of the Jewish community on all such sensitive issues.

To develop greater understanding among Jewish leaders, the sessions will be held in the various neighborhoods and suburban communities under sponsorship of the various JCRC neighborhood divisions. There will be four to six sessions in each series, on a weekly, bi-weekly or other regular basis. The sessions will not be lectures, but rather given to a group discussion of the particular subject.

U. S. Wants Refugee Action

Advocates Johnson Plan

UNITED NATION, N.Y. — American diplomats are making clear in private talks with Arab and Israeli diplomats that President Kennedy is determined to force a breakthrough in the 14-year old Arab-Israeli stalemate regarding the Palestine refugees, according to a report by Milt Freudenheim in The Newark Star Ledger.

Despite many other pressures, the report pointed out, the President has taken time out to attend several high-level meetings on Mid-East policy.

Interested diplomats have outlined U.S. strategy as one designed to take action now in the 110-nation General Assembly to prevent both Israel and the Arab nations from putting through measures to give either side the advantage and to effect pressure after the Assembly ends this month to push the Johnson plan for changing the status of refugees.

U.S. Pays 70%

It was pointed out that Washington pays 70% of the UN relief budget, which helps support over a million Arab refugees. Congress is reported weary at the lack of progress of the program which has cost the U.S. $300,000,000.

Freudenheim reported that plans are being studied that would put an end to the relief agency and transfer the U.S. aid to the governments of Jordan, the United Arab Republic, Syria and Lebanon. This would provide food and shelter, it is reasoned, and would lessen UN and U.S. responsibility.

According to a State Department spokesman, the Johnson plan provides for UN officials to canvass the region and determine which persons still want to return to their homes in Israel. The U.S., according to the Johnson plan, would help Israel

Check to United Jewish Appeal — Joseph Meyerhoff, right, newly re-elected national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, accepts a check for $100,000 from Merrill L. Hassenfeld, general campaign chairman of the GJC, representing the Providence Jewish Community. The funds come from the uncompleted 1962 campaign which has just passed the $600,000 mark. The presentation was made at the 25th annual National UJA Conference held at the Americana Hotel in New York City. Hassenfeld urged everyone who has not yet contributed to the 1962 GJC campaign to do so before the end of the year so that the annual fund-raising drive can reach last year's total of $650,000. He said that every effort is being made to complete the current campaign before the end of the year.

Says Some Arabs Seek Peace

LONDON — A number of the Arab countries feel that the time is coming when they have got to learn to live with Israel, Harold Wilson, Labor member of Parliament and the Labor Party's shadow foreign minister, declared here this week. He made the statement in an overall report on a visit to Israel, from which he had just returned, on the Hebrew service of the British Broadcasting Company's radio transmission.

Declaring that he gained the impression of Arab readiness to talk peace "from outside Israel as well as in Israel," Wilson said that each of the Arab states "is afraid to make the first step." "They are afraid," he declared, "that if they do that, intervention may come from another Arab state, leading perhaps to a palace or some other kind of revolution, and it would be dangerous to take the first step."

"Until some such step is taken," he added, "there would have to be a real awareness of Israel's security problem." The West, he said, "has a job to do, particularly in considering the Suez Canal blockade against Israeli ships."

Veteran Drive Leader Quotes Statistics In Blast At Giving

NEW YORK—Jews constitute 3 per cent of America's population.

They have 10 per cent of the national income. Twenty per cent of American millionaires are Jewish.

The best-paid profession is medicine. Jews are now approaching 20 per cent of all students in medical schools.

Law is also a lucrative occupation. Jews are estimated to exceed 10 per cent of all lawyers.

College graduates earn decidedly more than the general average. Jewish students comprise 10 per cent of the country's college population.

They spend a lot of money on vacations. The majority of people staying at the leading hotels in Miami Beach and Acapulco are Jewish.

Luxury liners and cruises are filled with Jews.

Around-the-world cruises on the most expensive liners are said to run one-third or more Jewish.

The national income of Jews is around 25 billion dollars.

In an article in the South African Jewish Times, Mortimer May, former president of the Zionist Organization of America, who is a Nashville millionaire, a veteran speaker at dinners of Jewish drives, asks "Now what about Jewish giving?"

"These figures are difficult to ascertain for the non-Jewish part of his contributions for obvious reasons, but we have rather good statistics on Jewish giving for Jewish causes, which would indicate that the total might approach $250,000,000 including capital funds. This is indeed a sizable sum by itself but when related to the total wealth and income of the Jewish community and particularly to its expenditures for the frivolities of life as we shall note does not by any means appear superficial."

What May appears to be saying is that a man's worth both to society and to himself should be adjudged on how big the figure is beside his name in the Blue Book in relation to his annual income.

There are dissenters who contend that because a man gives to charity does not necessarily mean his life is one of fulfillment and meaning. There are, indeed, other criteria.

This is particularly so when the charity figure is used as it is in many cases as a status symbol.

If the annual income of Jews is 25 billion, May says, the 75 million a year American Jews give to Israel is only one third of one per cent.

This is about $15 a year per

UJA Award to Truman—Silver candlesticks wrought in Israel were presented by the United Jewish Appeal to Harry S. Truman in recognition of his "many great acts of statesmanship and compassion" while President of the U.S. "in behalf of the surviving victims of Nazi tyranny." The award, which took place at the UJA's 25th Annual Conference in New York, was made by Murray Fenster (right) of Brooklyn, a concentration camp survivor who immigrated to the U. S. in 1946 under the Truman directive permitting the entry of 100,000 displaced persons, and who later fought, was wounded and decorated in the Korean War. Participating in the presentation was Joseph Meyerhoff (center) who was re-elected to his third term as UJA General Chairman.

Labor Leader Finds Birch-Nazi Tie Natural

BOSTON — A local trade union leader said this week that regardless of how often Birch Society leader Robert Welch might publicly disavow anti-Semitism in relationship to his organization, it is a rather natural development and no surprise for functionaries and leaders of the Society to turn up as supporters of the book store of Speros Lagoullis, Boston's leading backer of the American Nazi Party.

The statement relating to reports that Lagoullis would be the operator of the Joe McCarthy Book Store in South Boston was made by Julius Bernstein, Secretary of the Mass. AFL-CIO Civil Rights Committee in an address to a downtown Boston luncheon meeting of the Jewish Labor Committee's local Trade Union Council.

Bernstein, who is also Regional Director of the Jewish Labor Committee, said that "Birch Society extremists have never been the least bit reluctant to use reactionary supporters and backers in their projects, and there is no reason to assume they would shy away from such discredited individuals as Lagoullis."

"A perusal of the Council and the Committee of Endorsers of the Society reveals a clear pattern of interlocking directorates with a variety of reactionary and hate-spewing groups. It ranges from clearly anti-labor and anti-civil rights elements to outright anti-Semites such as the late Merwin K. Hart."

Bernstein also charged that closer to home "we find Robert Dresser of Providence is a member of the JBS Committee of Endorsers who has long been

Quarter Million Single Pledge For Philanthropic Fund

BOSTON — Boston Jewish leaders have signed "letters of intent" pledging nearly $750,000 to the Endowment Fund of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

That sum would be almost half of the total endowment funds received by the agency since it was organized 67 years ago, Lester S. Morse, chairman, reported. He added that in the initial public request for persons to sign letters of such intent, 36 men signed letters with pledges ranging from $1,000 to $250,000.

The chairman explained that a letter of intent is a statement indicating that the signer plans to include the CJP in planning his estate. He added that such a statement was not a legal document but that it implied a moral obligation that the signer would follow through on the pledge.

An active supporter of Hart and of anti-Semitic and anti-labor Joseph P. Kamp. Likewise we find in Massachusetts JBS chapter leaders with records of anti-Semitic activity who distribute Conde McGinley's hate-sheet "Common Sense."

The trade union civil rights leader indicated that "for some time there has been a tendency in some quarters to avoid pinning the anti-Semitic label on the Birch Society because Welch said he would not allow his group to become an agency for hate, but this disavowal of Welch's fails to hold water when one examines the record and sees that Welch's publication endorsed the American Mercury magazine and recommended it to his members at the height of its anti-Semitic policy under Russell Maguire.

Bernstein told the Jewish Labor Committee group that in recent years the JBS Bulletin has expressed the belief that Southern segregationists "deserve the whole-hearted support of every patriot in America." He said that: "The tie-up with Speros Lagoullis of the Nazi Party is just another nail in the Birch Society's hide, but it should be enough to make all responsible people refuse to accept the group's claim to represent 'conservatism'. The ties to the hate-movements are too real to be ignored."

Defends Action On "Ja Malke" Incident

NEWARK — Joseph Friedman, well known North Hudson attorney and orthodox Jewish leader, came to the defense of Magistrate George W. King of Secaucus, who requested an Orthodox Jew to remove his "yamalke" when appearing before him in a municipal court case.

Mr. Friedman, who has known Magistrate King for many years, expressed regret at the extensive publicity given the matter. He stated that Magistrate King has always respected all religions. The confusion, he said, came about due to the fact that the defendant was not wearing the usual type of "yamalke" but wore what appeared to be a piece of grey lining from a man's hat.

The case was given much publicity in the press as the result of a letter of protest to Gov. Hughes by Benjamin Epstein, president of the N.J. Region of the American Jewish Congress.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

IT'S STILL NOT GOOD ENOUGH!

Assume our economy continues to move ahead in early 1963 the way it has been moving ahead in 1962 -- and, mind you, in 1962 we have broken records on all sides.

This would mean that again we would smash records left and right. Our total output of goods and services would cross the $570 billion a year mark. Employment, incomes, profits would be at a new top. Spending by consumers for things and non-things would hit unparalleled peaks. So would spending by businessmen and by government.

Sounds good, doesn't it? It would be good. It still wouldn't be good enough to slash our unemployment rate, which after 22 months of expansion sticks above 5 1/2 per cent.

We would not be creating jobs on a sufficient scale to absorb the army of new workers entering the labor force in 1963 and re-absorb older workers whose jobs have been erased forever by the increasing efficiency of factories and offices.

It still wouldn't be good enough to spur industrialists to hike sharply their spending for essential expansion and modernization of our obsolete plants.

The latest government surveys indicate this spending will come to $37.4 billion in 1962, up 9 per cent from 1961. That appears fine on the surface, but it exceeds by only a tiny margin the previous peak of $37 billion, set way back in 1957. The most optimistic projection for 1963, as of now, is for another 3 per cent rise. This 3 per cent should be quadrupled and then some in view of the fiercely competitive era in which we are now living. No one is forecasting this.

It still wouldn't be good enough to create the profits and paychecks to balance our federal budget.

While the size of next year's budget will be restrained, it'll be the biggest every anyway. Profits and paychecks would have to be in a much stronger uptrend than would be indicated by a moderate business advance to produce the taxes to cover next year's spending.

It still wouldn't be good enough to allow us to carry comfortably the enormous burdens we have taken on to defend the free world and help new, underdeveloped nations.

We are running a big deficit in our international accounts -- balance of payments -- because of these burdens and the year-after-year deficits are a constant threat to our dollar's stability. Our foreign commitments well may become an intolerable load unless our rate of growth is accelerated.

We are still growing. The advance which began in February 1961 is slated for a second birthday in February 1963. Moreover, it's obvious that since our successful showdown over Cuba in late October, there has been a marked improvement in psychology. Auto sales are an exceedingly bright spot. The stock market has rebounded. New orders received by manufacturers have advanced again.

But the hard fact remains. The advance is not at a pace sufficient to cut into our unemployment rate, spur large-scale modernization of plants, balance our international accounts and domestic budget.

It is against this background that support continues to spread through the administration, business, labor, finance, every sphere for significant across-the-board tax cuts in 1963 and 1964.

Will we get the reductions? A popular answer is that Congress will balk. Perhaps it will. Some of the most powerful men in Congress have stated their opposition to tax reductions unless we're actually in a recession or until the budget is out of the red.

Yet, questions which no one seems to be asking but which to me lie at the heart of this matter are:

Isn't Congress supposed to listen to the folks back home? With the folks back home in remarkable agreement that tax cuts are needed now, is it logical to expect Congress to go into a vacuum and ignore not only the pleas of the administration, but also of the voters?

Aren't our lawmakers as concerned as other leaders about achieving a prosperous America, a strong dollar, a competitive industrial plant?

The way I would answer these questions is implicit in my asking them. Of course, I'm not counting on tax cuts until they are law. But as of December 14, 1962, I'm certainly not counting them out either.

TOYNBEE CONTEST

LONDON — Professor Arnold Toynbee has offered in Jordan a prize of $112 for an essay on "the Danger of Zionism to the Arab World." The contest is open to all school children in Jordan. Toynbee is the historian who likened the treatment of the Arab refugees in Palestine to the Nazi slaughter of six million Jews.

A PARABLE FOR CHILDREN

By Beryl Segal

Chanukah and Christmas fall together this year and you will stay out of school a whole week.

In honor of this joyous event, I will tell you a story. It is not really a story. Rather it is a parable. Like most parables, the details do not fit in perfectly. But if you will guess the moral of this parable, mother will give you an extra plate of Latkes.

And here is how the parable runs.

Once there were two children. They had the same father and mother. They grew up in the same house, ate the same food, and drank water from the same well. And they dressed, both of them, in the tastes and styles of the times.

The father and the mother did not spare anything to make their children happy.

But the brother and the sister were not happy at all. They quarreled, they argued, and there was no peace between them.

The sister played the piano, and when she started to play, the brother ran up to his chamber upstairs and played his violin.

Each wanted to drown out the music of the other.

One could not stand the music of the other. And the parents? They were torn between them.

When they listened to the daughter's piano, the son would complain that they did not like him, and that they would rather listen to his sister's playing. When they listened to the violin, the daughter would sulk and would not be comforted.

The father and mother were distressed over their two children and said:

"What can we do with our children? How can we show them that we love them both and that they are both dear to us?"

One day a stranger passed by the house and stopped to listen. Out of the house came the most beautiful music. A violin and a piano performed in harmony. The music played on and the stranger could not tear himself away from his spot. He felt a desire to see the two players and to listen to them playing together. He wanted to shake their hands for a flawless performance.

The stranger went to the door and knocked quietly so as not to disturb the players. He said softly to the man who opened the door:

"May I come into the house and listen to the two players?" The man welcomed him and said:

"Come in, stranger, and rest a while."

The stranger came into the house and looked in wonder:

"I see the piano, but where is the violin?"

The man answered: "The violin player is upstairs in his chamber. Our two children cannot play together. When our daughter plays the piano, our son immediately runs off by himself and starts to play the violin."

The stranger could not believe his ears:

"But such harmony? How can they play so harmlessly together, each in a separate room of the house?"

"Do you come to laugh at us, stranger? Our children cannot listen to one another play, and you talk about harmony."

But the stranger insisted that the music sounded beautifully outside, and said:

"Come with me for a while and listen to them play."

The parents went outside and stood with the stranger in the shadow of the house and listened. Behold, the music came out of the room below and of the chamber upstairs as one harmonious song, so beautiful, so pleasant.

The two children played the same music on different instruments, but with perfect harmony.

So runs the parable. And the moral? You know what the moral is, and if you don't, ask your father and your mother and they will tell you.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

THE ROYAL VIEW: A few days ago, in London, Truman Capote lunched with the Queen Mother. Their talk ranged from Jan Austen, abstract painting and the Bronte Sisters, to tobacco, the sad season of the N.Y. Mets and Television. She said of TV, regretfully: "There is so much to shudder over and so little to laugh at."

The Queen Mother mentioned that she always had wanted to attend a law-trail, and even long fancied the thought of serving as a member of the jury -- although she probably would vote for acquittal, regardless of the crime. They discussed several recent British murder cases, and she said she sometimes thought of an easy way to commit a murder! It would be on a state occasion, when the Royal Family is driven through cheering crowds.

A murderer, she said, could commit the crime by shoving the victim under her car. His defense could be that he merely was helping the victim to get a better view.

THE CAMPAIGN: Recently Lyndon B. Johnson revealed that soon after he was nominated in '60 he sought campaign advice from Harry S. Truman, who'd had experience campaigning for the Vice-Presidency. Truman advised him that his first speech was most important--that he make it at a place and occasion as distant as possible from Texas and the Texas image.

Johnson, therefore, selected Boston for his first speech. As soon as he arrived, his Dem. hosts had him ride a horse, and gave him a 10-gallon hat to wear -- to look like a Texan.

THE TESTS: Casey told of a cruise on a new destroyer, whose wiring had been installed by an Annapolis specialist. The test-orders were relayed, buttons were pressed and responses came. Then the skipper ordered "Fire All Guns." The Annapolis man stuffed cotton in his ears, pressed a button -- and in rushed a Filipino messboy with a cup of coffee.

For the remainder of the cruise, the officer never dared press the button for calling the messboy.

THE COMPOSER: Some Americans who've just returned from Russia report that Shostakovich again is being viewed with official suspicion. Khrushchev criticized the Soviet composer for having stated: "Jazz deserves consideration. There is much in it that is contradictory, but it answers a real demand."

THE PRONUNCIATION: Bob Casey, the veteran correspondent who died recently, once was criticized by a Britisher for stating "I hope we make it on schedule." The Englishman said it should be pronounced "SHedule," not "SKedule," which sounds funny. "No, SHedule sounds funny," said Casey, "because that isn't the way we learned it at St. Vincent's Parochial School."

THE DEPOSED LEADER: James Caesar Petrillo, who after a 22 year reign, was defeated recently for re-election as head of the musicians union in Chicago, fancied himself a benevolent despot. When he attended a Screen Actors Guild meeting and heard its president denounced, Petrillo said: "In my union, someone speaks that way -- he automatically drops dead."

Once, in negotiating with the recording industry, he refused a settlement offer to set up a fund for educating musicians: "I'm not interested in future musicians. I'm interested in present musicians."

In making Pres. Truman an honorary member of his union, Petrillo warned him: "But if I ever catch you playing with a band, so help me I'll put you on the Unfair List."

THE PLAYWRIGHT: Marcel Achard, the French playwright, saw a performance of one of his long-running hits. Then he visited the leading man, who'd been ad libbing and altering the author's lines. Achard handed him a membership application for the Society of Authors, and said: "My friend, you've made so many changes, it's time you get credit on the billboards."

THE TAMER: The Sardi's customers the other night seemed startled at seeing me suddenly lift a chair and point its legs at the face of a man I'd just met. This is to assure them that I'd not been drinking. The man was Clyde Beatty, star of the Coliseum's circus. I just wanted him to know, for a change, how it felt to have some Lyons wield a chair at him.

MEMOS: Vivien Leigh is practicing a hot Charleston dance, for "Tovarich" . . . As soon as Orson Welles finishes editing his new film, "The Trial," he'll resume writing the long novel on which he's been working for five years . . . Jack Richardson, author of the new play, "Lorenzo," has written his first novel, "The Prison Life of Harris Filmore."

Mike Nichols and Elaine May insist they'll never work in nightclubs again. . . Last week's TV show, "Girl Talk," had Mrs. Jack Javits mention it was her 15th wedding anniversary. It wasn't. The Javits' anniversary was on Nov. 30, when the program was TV-taped. . . Perlan Conerly's "Backseat Quarterback," by the wife of the ex-quarterback for the N.Y. Giants, has been sold by Doubleday to a book-club as its Jan. selection. . . Ira Hirschmann's "Caution To The Winds" will be filmed in Israel.

FINANCE NOTE: "No Exit," the movie which has been winning prizes at Film Festivals, is from a play by Jean Paul Sartre. It was produced on Broadway by Herman Levin, who later produced "My Fair Lady." . . "No Exit" flopped on Broadway, but won the Drama Critics Circle Award for the best foreign play. Sartre never was notified about this prize. Levin cabled him, collect, about the Drama Critics Circle Award. Sartre wouldn't pay for the collect cable. Nor would Levin pay for it in advance, because by then the play had closed on Broadway, and the corporate books had been balanced and closed.

Jews Still Cannot Leave Hungary

PARIS — In spite of a general liberalization by the Communist regime in Hungary, Jews are still prevented from leaving the country, the influential Paris newspaper, Le Monde, reported this week. The report was based on the findings of a special correspondent Thomas Schreiber, who returned to France. The French Newspaper said that the Hungarian Government "has not changed its attitude on the emigration of its Jewish community."

The Paris newspaper reported that there were many Hungarian Jews who wanted to join close relatives abroad. It added that the Hungarian Government will take on the relatively minor issue of Jewish immigration and will give a new indication of the regime's attitude.

Miss Fredda Konisky Weds Robert Kirsch

The marriage of Miss Fredda Konisky and Robert M. Kirsch took place Sunday, Dec. 16, at the Cranston Jewish Center. Rabbi Saul Leeman officiated at the 6 P.M. candlelight ceremony. A reception followed at the Center.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Haskell Broadman of Pitman Street, and George Konisky of Payton Street. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kirsch of Worcester, Mass.

The bride wore a princess style gown of ivory peau de sole. The front of the bodice adorned with re-embroidered Alencon lace, seeded pearls, and crystals created a sculptured neckline. Lace appliques enhanced the front of the skirt panel, and ended in a cathedral train. Her bouffant candle light silk illusion veil fell from a Swedish crown of lace and crystal Aurora Borealis. She carried a Bible centered with an orchid and a crescent bouquet of roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Harvey Levin was matron of honor and Miss Judith Sobel was maid of honor. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Eileen Konisky and the flower girl was Miss Karen Blazer.

Jordan Konisky was the best man for his sister. The ushers were Irwin Weinstein, Harvey Levin, Joel Robbins, Richard Feldman, Ronald Meenes, Richard Seder, Edward Dworkin, and Richard Golub.

After a wedding trip to Ellenville, N. Y., the couple will reside in Worcester.

Nobel Prize Winner Recovers

NEW YORK — Dr. Lev Davidovitch Landau, the Jewish Russian scientist who won the 1962 Nobel Prize for physics and who has been hospitalized for nearly a year with critical injuries, has recovered his mental faculties, Medical World News reported here this week.

The periodical said that Dr. Landau "died" four times, when his heart quit momentarily since he was taken to a Moscow hospital after an auto accident in January. For a time, it was feared that he would never recover mentally or physically. He remains largely incapacitated physically.

Dr. Prinz Scores "Apologists"; Sees "Democratic Stirrings" In Germany

NEWARK — "Encouraging signs" of "democratic stirrings" in West Germany were reported last week by Dr. Joachim Prinz of Temple B'nai Abraham, president of the American Jewish Congress, who returned recently from a trip to Berlin.

Although he noted that "democracy in Germany today is only skin deep," Dr. Prinz said the wide uproar over the Adenauer Government's handling of the Der Spiegel affair indicates that "there is a nucleus of libertarian sentiment that will not stand idly by when democratic rights are violated."

(In this celebrated case, the editor of Der Spiegel, an opposition magazine published in Hamburg, was arrested on unspecified charges of treason in connection with an article exposing West Germany's alleged military unpreparedness.)

'Not Popular Uproar'

Speaking of Strauss, who stood successfully for re-election to Parliament in Bavaria after the uproar over the arrests, Dr. Prinz said his victory "shows that the reaction of the student groups and others against the government's high-handedness is not a popular reaction but rather one of the elite."

He added that Strauss' victory "is an indication that German democracy is based not on the convictions of the German people but on the regime created by the Allies after World War 2. The democratic spirit in Germany is not the same as in America in 1776. To the average German, the main concern is not with building foundations of political liberty but with promoting economic prosperity."

Dr. Prinz is convinced that not only Jews, but the entire free world as well, should have an interest in German democracy. "Germany is important as a buffer state between the Soviet Union and France," he asserted, "and there cannot be a political vacuum there. As long as this is so, the more deeply rooted German democracy is, the better it is for the free world, and, of course, for the Jews in Germany too."

Dr. Prinz was in Berlin as a participant in the annual conference of the American Council on Germany, an organization founded to cement relations between the United States and the new Germany. A group of between 40 and 50 Americans, and a like number of Germans, participated in the conference.

The U.S. delegation was headed by educator James B. Conant, former Secretary of State Christian Herter and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special adviser on disarmament.

Dr. Prinz was a member of a panel on political education in Germany, of which Conant was chairman.

While in Germany, Dr. Prinz said, he noticed that the anti-Semitic feeling expressed in the swastika daubings of a few years ago has disappeared. In addition, the small Jewish community of 22,000 has consolidated itself, he said, and does not feel anti-Semitism is a problem any longer.

Success of Veterans

One disquieting indication, however, is the success of the newspaper published by the German war veterans, which Dr. Prinz described as "very reactionary and very anti-Semitic," and which now has a circulation of 100,000.

At a meeting of the Commission on International Affairs of AJ Congress in New York recently, Dr. Prinz charged that influential groups in Germany and the U.S. have launched a "systematic campaign to rewrite German history." He said the purpose of this effort is to "make it appear that Hitlerism was an aberration without roots in the German past."

"Some apologists for Germany claim not only that nazism was an isolated incident in German history," he declared. "They would forget the 12 years of the Hitler regime and have us think of Germany only in terms of what has happened since the end of World War 2."

"The new Germany now rising in Europe cannot develop strong democratic institutions for tomorrow by denying its own history. And the American friends of Germany who seek to build a bridge between the two countries do Germany a disservice by ignoring the Nazi era and the terrible lessons it holds for all of mankind."

Discusses East Germany

Dr. Prinz said it was "tragic that the menace represented by communist East Germany should have served to divert attention from the necessity of strengthening the ideals of freedom in West Germany."

"Whatever problems of anti-Semitism and excessive nationalism confront West Germany," he stated, "it must be recognized that they exist in greater degree and with greater urgency in East Germany. There the communist regime has adopted none of the positive steps taken by the Bonn government."

"East Germany has not only accepted but sought out the services of former Nazis whenever this course seemed to promise greater operating efficiency. Unlike the West German Republic, communist East Germany has rejected in summary and callous fashion the request that it make material amends to the victims of Nazi persecution."

"The development of a peaceful European community depends not only upon the political stability of Germany but even more upon the creation of a German government dedicated to humanitarian values and administered and led by men committed to the precepts of freedom," he said.

"The objective in Germany must therefore be not only stability and prosperity but lasting democracy. Toward the achievement of this end in West Germany, I am convinced that the force of public opinion in the free world can be effective and meaningful."

Charges Bias To English Schools

LONDON — Charges that discrimination against Jewish applicants is being practiced in a number of private schools in England, particularly in London, were voiced at a public forum here last week.

Mrs. Laura Grimond, wife of the Liberal Party leader and a member of the executive of the Women's Liberal Federation, told the forum that the bias was displayed not against the Jewish pupils who did get in but in the admission policies of the schools. She said that "in some cases there is a tacit quota of 10%." She added that legislation was not the remedy for such bias and suggested that enlightenment and education "in the widest sense" was the solution.

Martin Savitt, vice-chairman of the Association of Jewish Veterans, said that Britain was now a multi-racial society and it was the duty and privilege of all citizens to fight racial and religious hatred and discrimination which, he added, "usually starts with Jews and the next victims are the churches and trade unions and finally the whole fabric of democratic society."

Teen "Quiz Bowl" Finals On Monday

Semi-final and final rounds in the Jewish Community Center's 1962 "Teen Quiz Bowl" will be conducted at the East Side JCC building Monday beginning at 7 P.M., it has been announced by program chairman, Mrs. Abraham Adelman.

The Falcons will meet Judy Ann Leven BBG and Little Rhody AZA will face Narragansett AZA in the semi-final contests. Winners will meet for the "Quiz Bowl" championship.

The contest will be preceded by the lighting of the Chanukah lights by members of Dodeem BBG.

N. Y. Drive Shows Gain

NEW YORK — The chairman of the campaign to raise $22,500,000 for the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York reports that the drive is doing fine so far despite early fears that the May 28 Wall Street drop might hurt the effort.

Bernard J. Lasker reported that in the seven weeks of campaigning to date, pledges totaled $9,700,000 compared with $9,400,000 at the same time in 1961. He said attendance was up 7% at fund-raising events and pledges at such affairs were 10% higher.

He added that while attendance at federation functions had never been better, there were some signs that trouble was in the offing. He cited a recent cut in donations by heavy contributors and said that by intensive leadership solicitation, "we hope to head off any possible emergency by strengthening the campaign sufficiently to withstand whatever setbacks may lie ahead."

Life Of Einstein Published In Russia

LONDON — A new book on the late Albert Einstein, published in the Soviet Union in 25,000 copies, was sold out within a few hours after it was offered for sale, it was reported here this week from Moscow. Professor Boris Kuznetsov, a leading Soviet scientist, is author of the new volume. A second volume on Einstein is expected to be published in the Soviet Union.

Until recently, Einstein was in disfavor in the Soviet Union. The Soviet "Philosophical Dictionary" published in 1952, has no entry under Einstein's name and in its article on "relativity" attacked the Jewish scientist for "preaching nonsense."

N. Y. Negro Girl Studies In Israel

JERUSALEM — Courses in Hebrew in Jamaica (L.I.) High School, the winning of prizes in the language and the desire to continue her studies led to the enrollment of the first American Negro woman student at Hebrew University here.

Joan West of St. Albans, Queens, 18, is continuing her studies at Hebrew University and hopes to teach Hebrew, according to Reuters news agency.

She is an outstanding student at the University, it was reported, because she is fluent in the language which she has chosen as her major.

She said her interest in Hebrew began when she was a student at Jamaica High School. Many of her classmates were Jewish, she reported, and she chose Hebrew as her second language. For three years she attended 40-minute sessions. She was twice winner of Hebrew language contests sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education.

Demands Doubled For Family Services

DENVER — The number of families requesting advice and counseling from the Jewish Family and Children's Service here has more than doubled in the last year. Dr. Alfred Neumann, executive director of the agency, reported, on the eve of the organization's 15th annual meeting, that the number of families requesting aid during the last year has gone up by 108 per cent.

"Social currents and the complexity of events," said Dr. Neumann, "frequently create extreme pressure and tension for the American Jewish family with which they have difficulty coping without professional advice and counseling."

A LOOK AT SPORTS

by LEON SAPERSTEIN

Now that the National Basketball Association has become solvent, it is still unwilling to acknowledge the debt it owes to Abe Saperstein. Especially is this true since Saperstein is the founder and commissioner of the rival American Basketball League.

However, it was Abraham Michael Saperstein who brought his Harlem Globetrotters to the far reaches of the world, who helped the NBA when it needed a boxoffice attraction to bolster its flagging attendance, who created the early interest in basketball for many who might not have otherwise seen a hoop contest. But the officials of the NBA are desperately interested in crushing the new league in order to prevent a weakening of its hold on professional basketball.

It is because Saperstein feels he was doublecrossed by the National Basketball Association that he started the ABL. The new league lost a million dollars in its debut last year. Despite this financial reverse, Saperstein is determined to stay in the fight, using his bankroll accumulated from his successful Globetrotter organization, to buck the power of the NBA.

Saperstein claims that because of his constant shifts of plans to bring the Harlem Globetrotters to various NBA cities aiding their box-office, he was promised the Los Angeles franchise. However, this was granted to the Minneapolis Lakers. He also expected later to secure the San Francisco franchise and instead saw the Warriors moved from Philadelphia to the Golden Gate area.

Whether the new league will fade or flourish is still very uncertain. But, Abe Saperstein, with almost fifty years of basketball experience, will not quit. Not when he has a million dollar enterprise with offices in New York and Chicago and a full time publicity bureau.

AFL TITLE GAME . . .

Game number one of professional football's battle for the title is to be unfurled this coming Sunday. At Houston the hometown Oilers will shoot for their third straight championship when they oppose the Dallas Texans. One point can be made now. The air will be filled with flying footballs.

Both Len Dawson, the Dallas quarterback, and George Blanda, the Houston flinger, are noted for their reliance on the aerial attack. Dawson led the league in touchdown tosses and accuracy percentage. He was recently voted the American Football League's Most Valuable performer.

Another award winner was the Texans' Rookie of the year Curtis McCClinton, the young fullback who filled in so well when Jack Spikes was injured in mid-October. Abner Haynes, the League's leading scorer of touchdowns, adds to the strong Texan running attack.

Houston will have to be at its best to overcome the expected onslaught from the Dallas delegation. And I feel that it will be Blanda's toe rather than his arm that will tell the difference.

The Oilers have a persistent habit of winning the must games and Sunday's game should find them at their peak of heroics. Blanda must receive stellar performances from speedster Billy Cannon and fireplug, Charley Tolar, to bring championship number three atop Jeppesen Stadium.

An exciting struggle is in order with both teams possessing fine defensive units with perhaps a slight edge going to the Texans. If Blanda is still troubled by interceptions, coach Pop Ivy may have to bring in Jackie Lee, who has rescued the Oilers on several occasions. But, when Houston is anywhere near field goal range, Ivy will call on Blanda, the AFL's clutch booter.

My prediction — HOUSTON 27 — DALLAS 24.

Two Orthodox Shuls Defaced

MINNEAPOLIS — For the second successive year, a spate of Nazi type synagogue desecrations has broken out here, with two houses of worship, both Orthodox, suffering defacements, police authorities announced here this week.

Worshippers coming to services here at the Ahavath Achmi-Beth Israel Synagogue found a caricature of Adolf Hitler in red paint on the white facade of the edifice. A two-foot-high swastika and some unintelligible writing had been scribbled around the Hitler likeness. Scrawls had also been painted on a rear door.

At Gemelus Chessed Synagogue on the same street, worshippers leaving evening services found a swastika painted. Rabbi George S. Sektor, spiritual leader of the synagogue said the desecration seemed to have occurred while services were under way. Chief of Police Calvin Hawkinson assured the Jewish community that every effort was being made to trace the perpetrators of the desecrations.

Bar Mitzvah — Marvin S. Wasser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wasser of 65 Mayflower Drive, Cranston, became Bar Mitzvah on Nov. 10 at Congregation Sons of Abraham.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Aron of Providence. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Wasser of Cranston.

Guests were present from Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey.

Seek Ruling On "Common Law" Status

JERUSALEM — The Israel Supreme Court began last week a hearing on a case involving the validity of a marriage abroad between a citizen and a non-resident Gentile. The principle involved affects a growing number of couples in Israel who are now regarded as common-law spouses. The ruling is expected to have far-reaching consequences.

The test case developed from a petition by Yisroel Schesinger after the Interior Ministry refused to give to the woman he married, a Belgian Christian, an Israeli identity card other than one listing her maiden name and describing her as a spinster. Schesinger asserted in his petition that his status is registered as that of a married person and he is so regarded for purposes of income taxes and national insurance.

Ziv Bar-Niv, the state's attorney, contended that Israel cannot recognize the marriage of an Israeli citizen contracted abroad which he could not contract in Israel. He added that Shlesinger, who took his fiancée to Cyprus for the marriage, could obtain a permanent resident's visa for her.

Because the Supreme Court tribunal is made up of five justices for the case, there will be no appeal from the decision. The hearing was adjourned after the preliminary pleas.

The Maker Of Israel

CHAIM WEIZMANN: A Biography by Several Hands. Edited by Meyer W. Weisgal and Joel Carmichael.

Chaim Weizmann was born of relatively humble parentage in a remote township in Eastern Europe in 1874. He died 78 years later in Rehovoth in Israel, President of the State of which he himself was the principal architect. Here is a story compared with which "From Log Cabin to White House" is almost humdrum: and it is told in this volume by a dozen writers, most of whom stood in very close personal relation with their subject. Sir Isaiah Berlin's concise biographical sketch written originally as an article for the new Hebrew Encyclopedia, is for that reason unexpectedly restrained, but none the less effective. It is followed by a succession of more detailed contributions devoted to various periods and aspects of Weizmann's activity.

Maurice Samuel begins by describing the traditional Eastern European environment from which he emerged and his progress into the Western world. I. M. Sieff writes from the closest possible personal knowledge of the Manchester interlude between 1904 and 1914. This was perhaps the crucial period of Weizmann's life. The fact that he had established himself in England was all-important when he elicited the Balfour Declaration (a process described here by T. R. Fyvel), but had he been living previously in London he would inevitably have been caught up in the somewhat ludicrous feuds which at that time rent the self-important body of English Zionists. Moreover, in Manchester the force of his personality brought into Zionist activity a handful of young men of remarkable practical genius (such as Lord Marks), ultimately with very important results both to him and to the movement. In Manchester too, though thwarted of the Chair which he certainly deserved, he became known as an eminent scientist whose discoveries had highly significant practical implications—an aspect of his work treated in a separate section of this volume.

The ebullient, confident, perhaps slightly overdressed Weizmann of the nineteen-twenties, whom so many of us remember, contrasted sadly with the Weizmann described in Abba Eban's superbly moving chapter on the period between 1939 and 1949. Old, almost blind, tired, bearded—his son Michael had been lost, flying with the RAF; weighed down (as all responsible Jews now inevitably were) by the appalling magnitude of the Jewish tragedy in Nazi-occupied Europe; for a great part of the time without any official position; he continued nevertheless to travel about from country to country and from continent to continent to interview statesmen and leaders of public opinion to cajole and to plead as only he could. After a long succession of heartbreaking disappointments, in the end he achieved a personal triumph almost more significant than the Balfour Declaration itself. For it was the impression made by the pathetic old doctor on President Truman that was largely responsible for the prompt recognition of the State of Israel by America—precisely when her official delegates at the United Nations were about to propose a reversal to the idea of Trusteeship!—as well as for the incorporation of the Negev in the new State.

Now, however, came the anticlimax. R. H. Crossman gives a pathetic picture of the last stage of Weizmann's life as "the Prisoner of Rehovoth"—honoured but deprived of real power.

The Fox and the Stork

One day a Fox invited a Stork to dine, but when she arrived she found the delicious dinner of soup served on such a shallow plate that she could barely wet the tip of her bill. So, a few days later, in return, she entertained the Fox at dinner, serving some finely-minced meat which she had put in the bottom of a jar with a very long neck. She could thrust her bill into this, but the Fox could get nothing but the drippings.

Chanukah Holiday Begins At Sundown

The eight-day Jewish holiday of Chanukah, the Festival of Lights, will be observed by Jews throughout the world beginning at sundown, Dec. 21.

The holiday marks the Jewish observance commemorating the first recorded struggle for religious freedom. As candles are lit each evening, Jews recollect the battle waged by Judah Maccabee and his followers against the tyrannical oppression of the Syrians and their ruler, King Antiochus. This tyrant, over two thousand years ago, tried to force paganism and hedonism on the Jews and desecrated the Temple in Jerusalem.

After a fierce struggle and numerous battles in which the Syrians utilized elephants, Judah Maccabee recaptured the Temple in Jerusalem, cleansed it, and rededicated it. According to legend, a cruse of oil containings sufficient fluid to light the menorah (candelabrum) in the Temple for one day lasted instead for eight. Thus Chanukah became the Festival of Lights; the Hebrew word "Chanukah" means dedication.

Candles are lit every nights of the holiday, beginning with one on the first night, two on the second, until finally eight candles blaze in a special Chanukah menorah. The holiday is celebrated with special services, prayers and hymns, in synagogues, homes and religious schools.

Children receive presents or Chanukah "gelt" (coins or money) for the holiday from their parents and relatives on each day of Chanukah.

Chanukah is known as the "Festival of Lights" and also as the "Days of Rededication." Its universal theme—the fight for religious freedom—has echoes in human history, particularly in the civilization of the western world, and is as meaningful today as it was in the times of Judah Maccabee.

Toil and trouble

There is room for argument as to the best course for North to take on the following hand after West, as dealer at love all, has opened the bidding with 1H:

North
 ♥—A K J x
 ♦—K J x x
 ♣—A J 10 x

West East
 ♠—A K 9 ♠—J 10 x x x
 ♥—Q 10 8 x x ♥—x
 ♦—A 9 x ♦—x x
 ♣—x x ♣—K Q x x x

South
 ♠—8 x x x
 ♥—9 x x
 ♦—Q 10 x x
 ♣—x x

Many players are of the opinion that to introduce an informatory double at this stage would be wrong, because North holds a singleton spade and too much in opponent's suit. I hold the view—which I am glad to say is shared by many of the experts—that it does not always pay to sit back on such a hand and wait for further developments. It very often happens that the hand is passed in 1H, and one probably scores 50 or 100 or even 150 points, which is still a small reward if game in no-trump could easily have been reached and made. The requirements for a game on such a hand are very small. West has an opening bid and therefore one can rely on finding most of the missing honour cards in West's hand.

I was North in this case, and following my principles I doubled—and got a very bad result. The bidding went:

|------|--------|------|-------|
| West | North | East | South |
| 1H | Double | 1S | Pass |
| Pass | Double | | |
| 2S | Double | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

As one can see, it was not difficult for East to make eight tricks for 170. South, my partner, a very competent player, argued with me that my second double was wrong because it must be interpreted as a "business" double. I agreed with him: it was a "business" double—but based on the fact that over 1S doubled he had volunteered a 1NT bid, although at that stage I must have made it clear I was anxious for him to choose between clubs and diamonds, unless of course he had some tricks in the suits bid by opponents. Had he held an honor in spades I could not see how opponents could make eight tricks. Having misinformed me by his 1NT bid, he had no right to leave the 2S-double in 3D by North-South is not a bad contract, and though 3S can be made, I do not think that either opponent could have bid 3S.

An informatory double must be treated with great care. Originally a double of a 1H or 1S opening bid expressed the wish to play the hand in one of the unbid suits. Experience has taught us, however, that we often hold a strong hand over an opening bid but have no means of showing its strength unless we make an informatory double, and the fact that it contains tricks in opponent's suit does not always mean that the hand loses its value.

It is now generally understood that if I first double an opening bid and then bid no-trumps, my strength is partly in opponent's suit. If I double first and then bid a suit I am showing a long and strong suit of my own. In the case cited, to bid 1NT on South's hand is sheer obstinacy. South really meant to say "I have nothing, and therefore I will not tell you anything about my D, Q, 10, x, x." The bidding should have gone as follows:

|------|--------|------|-------|
| West | North | East | South |
| 1H | Double | 1S | NB |
| NB | Double | NB | 2D |
| 2S | 3D | NB | NB |
| NB | | | |

The free raise by North in that position shows a strong hand with good diamond support.

Barrier To Civil Rights Progress Coming Down

NEW YORK — "Barriers to significant civil rights progress in the United States are coming down at an accelerated pace . . . however some southern states are still offering strong resistance to any school desegregation," it was reported here recently by the American Jewish Committee.

A. M. Sonnabend of Boston

president of the Committee made this analysis on the basis of the 14th edition of "The People Take The Lead." AJC's annual round-up of civil rights advances in the United States.

The People Take The Lead, which reviews legislative, administrative, judicial and voluntary civil rights advancements in the United States, is issued annually in connection with Bill of Rights Day (Dec. 15), which this year marked the 171st anniversary of the Constitution's first ten amendments.

Mr. Sonnabend said that while we still experience setbacks and much remains to be done, "it is safe to predict that in the decade of the 60's, America will come closer than ever before to the democratic ideal of equal opportunity for all."

Some of the highlights of this year's edition are:

1—Congress adopted a Constitutional amendment outlawing poll taxes as a voting requirement in Federal elections and sent the measure to the states for ratification.

2—President Kennedy issued an Executive Order banning discrimination in federally-assisted housing.

3—In the South, 49 additional school districts desegregated their schools during the 1962-63 school year, bringing the total to 957, while in the North, a number of cities moved to eliminate "de facto" segregation in the public schools.

4—The highest courts of several states upheld state laws barring discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations. State human rights commissions, strengthened by legislative actions increasing their scope and authority, took steps to make certain such laws are obeyed.

5—Government, labor and management in many parts of the country, accepted responsibility for assuring equal opportunity in vocational and apprenticeship training.

Attorney General Resigns Post

JERUSALEM—Attorney General Gideon Hausner has submitted his resignation to Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, it was disclosed here this week. The reason behind the resignation is a further deterioration in the relationship between Justice Minister Dr. Dov Joseph and Mr. Hausner, over the latter's status.

Endeavors made to reconcile the divergent views of the two Government leaders, including the appointment of a special committee of jurists by the Cabinet, failed to settle the matter.

Prime Minister Ben-Gurion replying this week to Hausner's letter of resignation asked the Attorney General to reconsider his decision. The Prime Minister expressed hope that a way could still be found to reconcile the views between Mr. Hausner and Dr. Joseph.

Would Affect Shechita Britons Debating Slaughter Bill

LONDON — The House of Lord last week debated a motion introduced by Lord Somers for a second reading of a slaughter of animals bill which would affect the free practice of shechita in England. The bill, if passed, would repeal certain sections of the Slaughter of Animals Act of 1958 which contained a proviso that the Act did not apply to the Jewish method of slaughter.

Lord Somers denied that there was any motive of anti-Semitism behind the bill. He said the bill would not trespass on the rights of conscientious Jews. At the same time he asserted that, in the Jewish method of slaughter, the animal was to a certain degree conscious prior to the slaughter. He stressed that the method of killing without rendering the animal unconscious had been abolished in Switzerland and other countries, and said the "time has come for us to follow suit."

Opposing Lord Somers' motion for a second reading of the bill, Lord Jessel said that, if the measure became law, shechita would be illegal and upwards of 200,000 persons in England would be unable to eat meat or chicken. Stressing that it had not been proven that shechita was a cruel method of slaughter, Lord Jessel said that "the tremendous weight of authority was against Lord Somers' arguments. While he did not believe there were anti-Semitic motives behind the bill, Lord Jessel said the measure was "misguided, sloppy and founded on ignorant prejudice."

Also opposing a second reading of the bill was Lord Oswald, Joint Parliamentary Secretary of the Ministry of Agriculture. He said that it was the Government's view that unless much more convincing evidence became available on whether shechita was more cruel than other forms of slaughter "and this had been proven by experiments," it would be "wrong to impose such hardships on a racial group which we had so much reason to respect and had been persecuted or imposed upon in so many countries but never in this." He said he "could not advise the House to vote for a second reading" on the bill.

Lord Cohen told the House that the bill was contrary to Jewish law and would affect "Jewish consciences."

RENA B. VECKER wishes to thank relatives and friends for their kindness and thoughtfulness during her recent illness.

Refugee Action

compensate other refugees who chose to resettle in Arab countries. Both Israel and the Arab countries have rejected the plan.

No Publication Yet
 Dr. Joseph E. Johnson, author of the plan, representing the UN Palestine Conciliation Commission, has kept the proposal alive by withholding publication of his ideas, according to reports.

Israel's position is that if the UN canvass of the refugees is taken there would be a demand by Arab refugees to return (or infiltrate) into Israel. Arab leaders, on the other hand, call the plan a ruse to erode refugees' right to return to former homes.

Freudenheim reported that in voting in the 110-nation Assembly Special Political Committee, the United States will attempt to block any effort by Israel to talk peace directly with the Arabs and also will attempt to block any Arab efforts to establish a "custodian" for their property in Israel.

The U.S., it is reported, is looking for renewal of the UN refugee relief budget for a year, to be followed by pressure moves to get the Johnson plan into action.

JEWS ASK LAW CHANGE

VIENNA — The Federation of Austrian Jewish Communities appealed to the Ministry of Justice to alter the statute of limitations according to which crimes are unpunishable after 20 years. Under the present law, it is feared, Nazi crimes committed in 1941 and 1942 which became known only now would remain unpunished. The Federation demanded that crimes against humanity committed between 1938 and 1945 not be subject to any expiration date.
