Peter Winslow Heads Delegation To Annual Model UN Conference

by Sandra Shapiro
Teen-Age Editor

When the Fifth Annual East Coast Model United Nations Conference meets in Montclair, N. J., Peter Winslow, president of the Moses Brown United Nations Club will be heading the school's delegation. In 1959 when the Conference was held here at Moses Brown, Peter was Secretariat; this year the twenty delegates from his club will represent Denmark, Belgium, and the Netherlands. When the meetings were held in New York, Peter was named Best Delegate from the United Kingdom to the Political and Security Committee; this Conference was very successful as some of the groups met in the U. N. buildings and the speakers were U. N. representatives. Going on to explain the purposes of the Club, he said that the speakers for the club meetings come from the World University Service.

This Moses Brown senior is president of the Forensic Society and a member of the National Forensic League; he was named Best Senator in the Student Congress. As a member of the Science Society, Peter is very much interested in chemistry; he also participates in the Independent Secondary Schools' Cooperative Effort in Oceanography which gives him the opportunity to travel to Wood's Hole on a boat purchased for the group by his school.

Peter Winslow

Besides being Associate Editor of his yearbook, the "Mosaic," Peter is high scorer on the school soccer team and a varsity wrestler. He also serves on the Chapel and Prom Committees.

When asked to comment on the Peace Corps, he felt that this is basically a good idea with much promise, but "people are making too much of it. The Peace Corps is replacing the missionary in a way; instead of preaching religion, they are preaching democracy." He believes that Civil Defense should publish information

U. S. Supreme Court To Hear Arguments On Constitutionality Of Daily Prayers In Schools

WASHINGTON — The United States Supreme Court is planning to set a date this month or early in April to hear arguments on the constitutionality of daily prayer recitations in public schools, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency learned here this week.

In the meantime Rep. Paul B. Dague (R., Pa.) denounced what he called "a militant minority" for seeking "to deny the majority the educational, non-sectarian advantages of a daily reading of the greatest book." He asserted that this "minority" wants to keep "all reference to the deity from our public schools."

Dague said that though he was a firm believer in the doctrine "that our public schools must remain free from all forms of religious indoctrination, to deny all reference to a supreme being, as many would have it, is to deprive the students of a great truth that is apparent to anyone who paused but for a moment to examine God's handiwork all about him."

Bishop John Wesley Lord, of the Washington Methodist Church Diocese, said in a statement that while he opposes public school religious observances that might embarrass or isolate children of minority religions, complete exclusion of religion from the schools would be "false to the religious tradition of America." He said that the Constitution bars religious indoctrination "but it does not require ignorance" of religion. Omission of religion, he said, conveys the negative suggestion that it is unimportant.

The Washington Jewish Community Council recently requested school boards in the Washington area to bar Bible reading and religious holiday observances of any kind.

Hebrew School Students Enter Bible Contest

The Third Annual Rhode Island Bible Contest sponsored by the Bureau of Jewish Education and the School Council will be held this Sunday morning, at 11:00 A.M., in the auditorium of the Cranston Jewish Center, according to the announcement of the Chairman of the School Council, Rabbi Saul Leeman. Over twenty students from the religious schools of Rhode Island and Massachusetts are expected to participate in the program.

All contestants will be given a preliminary written examination in advance of the oral program. Participants are expected to be at the Cranston Jewish Center library, at 9:15 A.M. to take this preliminary examination the aim of which is to give each contestant a better opportunity to answer more questions.

At the present moment students from the following schools are expected to enroll as contestants: Beth Am, Beth David, Beth Israel, Beth Shalom, Cranston Jewish Center, Emanuel, Providence Hebrew Day School and Fall River Hebrew School. Additional schools from the Massachusetts area may also join the program.

Top winners in the contest will be presented with awards. The first winner will receive a prize presented by Archie and Leonard Chaset in memory of Henry Hasenfeld.

Irving Brodsky, President of the Bureau, will present special certificates of recognition to all students who participate in the Bible Contest, which is sponsored nationally by the Department of Education and Culture of the American Zionist Council and the Israel Bible Society.

Local Bible winners will have an opportunity to participate in the Regional and National programs in New York, where a trip to Israel and a Jewish Summer Camp scholarship will be National prizes.

Parents and their children are invited to attend the Bible Program. The National Board of Sponsors of the Program include: Chairman, Dr. Joseph L. Lookstein; Co-Chairmen, Dr. Azriel Eisenberg; Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, and Dr. Simon Greenberg.

NAVAL EXERCISES

TEL AVIV — Large scale naval exercises were conducted in the Mediterranean Sea by Israel's Navy today and the exercises were declared to have reached "high standards." Under the command of Commodore Yochai Bin Nun, Israeli destroyers and one of Israel's submarines participated.

To Relax Military Rule In Israel Border Areas

JERUSALEM — A relaxation of military rule in Arab-populated border areas of Israel is scheduled to be put into effect soon following a debate on the issue in the Knesset, Israel's Parliament. Prime Minister Ben-Gurion announced his agreement to the proposed measures after the debate.

They included the right of appeal for Arabs convicted by military courts, the lifting of night curfews where they still existed, the granting of freedom-of-movement permits good for a year instead of shorter periods, and the ending of all restrictions on movements in Druse communities.

Insisting that some form of military rule was still needed in the border areas, Ben-Gurion told the Knesset that he considered abolition of military government "an abandonment of the state to the intrigues of the enemy in the neighboring countries and the intrigues of those who hate Israel in this country."

He said military rule was necessary both to the security of Israel and "to the peace of the Arabs in Israel who wish to live in tranquility and hope for peace between Israel and her Arab neighbors." He said there were many Israeli Arabs who supported President Nasser of Egypt and who were still unreconciled to the existence of Israel.

Menahem Beigin of Herut and Yaacov Hazan of Mapam contended the government did not need such means to cope with security problems at the borders. Pinhas Rosen of the Liberal Party and Israel Bar Yehuda of Achdut Avoda said that depriving Israeli Arabs of their civil liberties hurt Israel's prestige.

The Knesset defeated five separate motions to abolish military rule with coalition lines scrambled in the voting. Ben-Gurion won the backing of one Arab deputy of his Mapai Party and one Druse deputy by agreeing to the list of relaxations, which he announced after the voting.

WILL AID ISRAEL

LONDON — An organization named British Friends of Israel has been formed here and has held an inaugural meeting, according to an announcement by its chairman, Moris Gershlick. He said the goals of the organization were "to act as a means whereby all who are pro-Israel whether Zionists or not can associate together in a common cause on behalf of Israel, to assist in creating a more informed public on significant matters relating to Israel."

Catholic Hospital Opens Kitchen To Serve Kosher Food

READING, Pa. — An $88,000 K kosher kitchen which will serve Kosher food to Jewish patients was opened formally here at St. Joseph's Hospital, a Catholic institution conducted by the Missionary Sister of the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, Rabbi Joseph F. Safsel of Shomrei Habrith synagogue was appointed by the hospital as the supervisor over the preparation of the foods in strict accord with Jewish dietary laws.

The step was taken, according to Sister St. Robert, administrator of the hospital, to provide "greater peace of mind" to those patients who are accustomed to Kosher food. "We know," said Sister St. Robert, "that a patient who is used to certain menus and to having his food prepared and served in accordance with his religious beliefs will find greater peace of mind at the hospital if he can obtain that food here."

Praising the step, Rabbi Safsel declared, "The hospital was wonderful in going to the extent that it has to provide that Kashruth Laws will be strictly observed in accordance with the highest standards."

New Economic Policy Defined

NEW YORK — The rapid expansion of American investment in Israel and growing trade relations between the two countries were predicted last week by Gideon Strauss, Manager of the New York Branch of Bank Leumi le-Israel, and Head of the bank's American operations.

At a lecture given in the Orientation Series for Business Executives at the New School for Social Research, the Israel bank manager stated "the new value of the Israel pound at three to the dollar aims at the improvement of the balance of trade. Moreover, the abolition of artificial means, which Israel was forced to employ during the transition period, will enable U.S. business to expand and diversify both trade and investment in Israel."

Mr. Strauss cited the gradual cessation of German reparations and the return of traditional sources of supply as an important factor in the intensifications of U.S. - Israel business ties. Equally important is the rapidly growing volume of American investment, including that of large corporations within Israel. This brings with it the sale of American equipment and adoption of American methods.

Investigate — Then Invest

The growing liberalization of currency and repatriation of profits; the fact that the Israel Government is divesting itself of major industrial holding, such as in the fertilizers industry; the absence of any requirement of local control; the impressive growth of American and other tourism to Israel, accompanied by the establishment of the Sheraton-Tel Aviv Hotel and the recent agreement to set up a Tel Aviv Hilton Hotel — all these are expressive of the favorable investment climate benefiting not only the Israel inhabitant but his foreign partner as well.

Reaching Out

As one of the world's smallest nations, Israel has begun to reach out overseas to create income for herself through trade contracting, shipping and foreign investments. American and other business interests have found it pays to link up with Israel enterprise overseas. This is one of the primary functions of Bank Leumi in its American operations, the speaker added.

Israel's favorable dollar reserve position will gain further from the recent devaluation move, and this will result in increased strength to buy from the United States.

Mr. Strauss, who has headed

Foresees Effects Of More Leisure

NORTH BERGEN, N. J. — The steadily decreasing work week and rapid rise of automation in industry will have such a marked effect on leisure time "that there is a strong possibility that compulsory training for avocations may become a reality," Rabbi Norman Lamm of New York told the Rabbinical Council of New Jersey at a meeting at Congregation Beth El here last week.

The Rabbinical Council adopted a resolution asking Dr. Frederick Raubinger, State Commissioner of Education, and school superintendents throughout the state "to take formal note of a recent decision by the U. S. District Court in Philadelphia which held that daily reading of the Bible in public schools is unconstitutional." Rabbi Leon Katz of Passaic council president, and Rabbi Zev Segal of Newark, chairman of the legislative committee were empowered to consult with Commissioner Raubinger relative to the court decision.

'Progress' Seen In Ending Bias

WASHINGTON — "Some progress" in efforts by the United States to break down discrimination by Arab countries against American Jews was reported last week by Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The report on American efforts to overcome Arab trade and travel restriction against American Jews was made in a telephone conversation with Rep. Leonard Farbstein (R., N. Y.), which was a follow-up to a meeting the two men held on the subject of Arab discrimination at the State Department last week.

The Secretary had promised, following that meeting, to advise Farbstein "shortly" about the status of continuing talks with Arab leaders.

That the State Department was continuing to look into the matter was made clear from the following statement which Rusk authorized Farbstein to release: "We are very much interested in the matter. We are working on it continuously. We are not discouraged and think we are making some progress."

No other details of the talks between State Department officials and Arab leaders — some of which apparently took place last week — were made available.

The couple plan to be married in June, 1963.

Israel Suffers Heavy Snow, Roads Flood

TEL AVIV — Bitter weather prevailed throughout Israel twice last week and snow fell in the Galilee. Israel's highest settlement in the north reported below zero temperatures and the road leading to it was snowbound and unusable.

While the snow which blanketed Jerusalem earlier in the week was melting and normal communications were restored, wintry blasts resulted in the cancellation of practically all social and cultural activities in the city including concerts of Kol Israel and the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra and lectures at the Hebrew University.

Even the Negev had some snow. The Ramon Heights in the central lower Negev were covered with deep snow. Some cars were overturned in the storm but no casualties were reported.

In the Judean desert near the Dead Sea, an archeological mission at Wadi Mishmar was forced to suspend excavations as roads and tracks were flooded. Heavy showers caused a deformation of the Dead Sea shores topography. Many new creeks were formed while others were filled with mud and rocks.

Israel's only operating port, Haifa, resumed loading of citrus after all work was brought to a halt by the first storm. The port was still crowded with unloaded shipments which continued to hamper operations.

AID ISRAELI PROJECT

COLOGNE — A total of 60,000 deutschemark ($15,000) has been contributed by West German Protestants to aid archaeological excavations near Shavei Zion, a cooperative settlement in northern Israel, the Israeli mission reported here last week.

The contributions were in response to an appeal by Dr. Heinrich Grueber, the Protestant clergyman who testified against Adolf Eichmann at the latter's recent trial in Jerusalem.

Syria Warns On Jordan Project

LONDON - Syria has warned the major powers that if Israel proceeds with plans for diversion of Jordan River waters, this would be a threat to peace and security, it was reported here last week from Beirut.

Syrian Premier Maarouf Dawalibi received the envoys of Britain, the United States, Rumania and Russia the only Security Council member states represented diplomatically in Damascus, to hand them a memorandum which asserted that Israel was continuing construction work to pump Jordan River waters from the Sea of Galilee into channels leading to the Negev.

The memorandum, as published later in a Foreign Ministry statement, recalled that Syria had resisted similar efforts by Israel in 1953 and would do so again. At that time, Syrian gunners repeatedly fired on Israeli workers.

Sees 'New Threat'

The memorandum said that the Israel-Syrian armistice agreement provided that neither party should achieve any gains by unilateral action. The memorandum argued that successful diversion of the Jordan River would enable Israel to absorb a few million people "thus causing a new threat to the Arab world."

Syria also contended that Israel could not, under international law, change riparian states rights by unilateral action and that the project would increase the salt content of the Sea of Galillee "thus harming Arab lands." The memorandum added that "the plan was no less dangerous to the Arabs than the creation of Israel."

Dawalibi told newsmen that Syria had "other measures in mind to face the situation" but declined to elaborate.

WON'T PARTICIPATE

JERUSALEM - The Israel Government has disclosed that it had decided to cancel Israel's projected participation in New York City's 1964 World Fair.

The decision was prompted by the large expenditures which would be entailed under the new exchange rate.

Israel's Navy Reveals Its Power

TEL AVIV - Large scale Naval exercises were conducted in the Mediterranean sea by Israel's Navy and the exercises were declared to have reached "high standards." Gen. Zvi Tsur, Israel's Chief of Staff of Defense Forces observed the exercises in the company of Shimon Peres, Deputy Minister of Defense and other high officials of the Defense Ministry.

Under the command of Commodore Yochai Bin Nun, Israeli destroyers, and one of Israel's submarines, participated in various drills on the high seas. The exercises included the firing of torpedoes and the shelling of floating targets.

Elements of Israel's Air Force performed mock attacks against the Naval forces. According to the official report "direct hits were scored by all units" participating in the exercises.

Israel Seeks To Check Labor's Wage Demands

JERUSALEM - Following the successful conclusion of agreements with Israel's major manufacturers and importers over measures which will serve to ease the burden of the devaluation of the Israeli pound, the Government moved to head off demands by trade unions for interim wage increases which might cost the state some 5,000,000 pounds ($1,670,000) monthly.

Finance Minister Levi Eshkol, appearing before the Mapai central committee, reiterated his opposition to any tendency toward increased wages and announced that vigorous efforts were being made by the Finance Ministry to bring down any prices which might influence the cost-of-living allowances.

Housing Minister Giora Josephthal, meanwhile, called for "efficiency dismissals" of the transfer of unneeded workers.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

NEXT BREAKTHROUGH IN CONTROL OF SLUMPS

The next breakthrough in the control of business slumps in our country will come in the form of quick, temporary, practically automatic cuts in your personal income tax at the start of a downturn.

This tax-cut weapon is to take a top place in our anti-recession arsenal, is to rank side by side with such existing, powerful economic stabilizers as unemployment insurance, social security benefits, stepped-up public works spending, bank deposit insurance.

It is to warrant this high place because a tax reduction at the beginning of a recession would put billions of dollars in the hands of millions of families who would spend the money at once and by so doing, would give the economy a cash shot-in-the-arm at a critical moment.

It will may be that the instrument will be ready for use when the next recession threatens -- which could be in 1963.

These are strong statements and you may think they're without apparent justification at this date.

But the evidence is clear that the basis is being laid for the development -- and since it will mean so much to you as an individual and so much to our society as a whole, now is the time for you to recognize what is going on and to join in the debate about details.

In each of his three major messages this month, President Kennedy has asked Congress to give him stand-by authority to order prompt, temporary, across-the-board reductions in the rates at which individual incomes are taxed to combat future recessions. He proposed the step in his State of the Union message, repeated it in his Budget message, spelled it out in some detail in his Economic message. While the idea is not new -- it has been seriously discussed by economists for years, it has been urged by many of the nation's most respected businessmen, it was a key recommendation of the Commission on Money & Credit in 1961 -- this represents the first time a President of the United States has lifted the proposal to the national policy level.

There's not a chance Congress will grant his request now. Even though Kennedy also proposes his authority be subject to veto by Congress and he specified limits on the tax cut in percentage and duration, Congress is deeply jealous of its traditional "power to lay and collect taxes." It understandably rebels against yielding to a President authority given to it in Article I of the Constitution.

Congressional opponents have properly underlined the danger that such tax-cutting authority in the hand of a President could become a political come-on to attract votes to his Administration.

But the fact that Congress won't vote the proposal in the form asked by Kennedy doesn't mean that the move won't be made -- or that the theory isn't sound!

On the contrary, Kennedy's proposal has opened the way for a debate which should result in developing the device with essential safeguards against its abuse. As the non-partisan Committee for Economic Development puts it in a just-released report on precisely this subject, "What is desired is not to tip the balance of power between the President and the Congress but to obtain a prompt decision" on tax reduction "as an anti-recession instrument." If Congress just amended its rules so a presidential request for a tax cut could come up for a vote without amendment within, say, 60 days, this might make the device usable. Or if Congressional policy-makers and the Administration could discuss and reach agreement on the form and timing of a tax cut BEFORE the next recession hits, this might be all that is needed.

From a budget viewpoint, an anti-recession tax cut is more conservative than a boost in government spending programs. The tax reduction would be temporary and it wouldn't swell the budget.

Since the catastrophic depression of the 1930s, we have made giant strides in the control of business slumps. We're on the way to developing another weapon -- and temporary, automatic tax cutting is it.

JORDANIAN BORDER INCIDENT

An incident that casts a curious light upon the men and nations of the Middle East is reported by The Israel Digest, a fortnightly publication of the Jewish Agency for Israel. According to the Digest's account, a three-and-a-half-year-old Israeli youngster named Amnon Mansour Haddad accidentally wandered across the Jordanian border near his home at a Yemenite village north of Tel Aviv. Three hundred Israeli policemen and 200 civilians searched the area, and officials informed Jordanian authorities, through the Mixed Armistice Commission, that the search parties would be in the border area.

Not only did the Jordanians accept the presence of the Israelis along the border, but they organized search parties on their side. And, as it turned out, it was a Jordanian policeman who found Amnon huddled in a field where he had been all night. The Jordanians took the child to a shelter, fed and comforted him, had him examined by a doctor, and returned him to the Israelis a few hours later. Israeli police officials in Jerusalem have formally expressed "warmest appreciation and thanks for the humanitarian efforts" of the Jordanians in finding and returning Amnon.

That's all there is to the story. We merely take note of it here for the momentary revelation it offers of the basic human sympathies which men share everywhere, and which one day will bring peace and friendship even in the Middle East.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY SCHOLARSHIPS FOR ACHIEVEMENTS

By Beryl Segal

New York State has a remarkable system. Every year, on the same day, at the same time, all the high schools have examinations. These examinations are given by the State Board of Regents in Albany, which is the capitol city of the state. The tests arrive sealed in envelopes and go back sealed to Albany. All the students in High School must take the examinations, and all the schools, public, private and parochial are involved in them. No one sees the examinations before the students get them and no one but the State Board of Regents marks them. Students getting good grades in the Regents of New York state do not have to take college entrance examinations.

This is done for two reasons. Uniformity. A state like New York with so many High Schools, and such a diversity of conditions of teaching would tend to differ in achievements. A High School in New York City would be different from a High School in the rural district. The Regents Examinations is the force that binds them together. It keeps them in line. Teachers must cover the same ground and do the same amount and kind of experiments in all the High Schools because the day of reckoning, the State Regents Examinations, will come around.

Standards. This is another reason for the Regents Examinations -- to keep up standards. The city students like his brothers in the rural High School must set before them the same standards, and they must be high. The Board of Regents does not favor one High School, nor does it exact high requirements from another. All must pass the minimum as set up by the State Board of Regents.

In addition to the Regents Ex-

GIVES MONEY

JERUSALEM — The Edmond James de Rothschild Memorial Group which has already given 6,000,000 Israel pounds for the construction of a new building for the Knesset, Israel's Parliament, has contributed an additional 1,700,000 pounds for the same purpose.

aminations, the Board also gives out scholarships to deserving students. All must pass the examinations, but those who are excellent in them are given awards for their efforts. The scholarships are not given for sport activities, nor for extra-curricular work in and around High School. They are given only on excellence in scholastic work.

Last month these scholarships were announced and a surprising number of Jewish boys and girls were among them. The scholarships range from 250 dollars to seven hundred dollars every year for four years. They are given to poor and rich alike, and are given to all High Schools, public, private and parochial.

But what interest us in this year's scholarships awards is the large number of students from the Yeshivas, the Jewish Parochial Schools, that were the winners.

The Yeshivas won 224 scholarships and 45 alternates, making a total of 269 students that in the opinion of the Board of Regents, did excellent work in High School. This is three times as many as five years ago, in 1957. In that year, the total scholarship winners was 88, from seven Yeshivas. Taking into account the small number of students in the Yeshivas this record is remarkable indeed. In the Yeshiva University High School, 90 students received the coveted scholarship. That makes out about 70% of the entire enrollment. And these students are good in the English subjects on which the Regents Examinations tests them, and they are also good students in the Jewish subjects to which their teachers can testify.

This fact is good to remember. So many parents object to the Hebrew Day School on the grounds that the Jewish subjects take away the time from the general school curriculum. Nothing is further from the truth.

Another thing is involved. There is talk of Federal aid to education, and the parochial schools are excluded from this aid. The ground is an old one. Separation of Church and the Public School. But as Rabbi Jerome Gurland, Assistant Rabbi at Beth El, has pointed out in one of his sermons, there are areas where this must be overlooked. These are the areas where the children are concerned. In such cases where separation would mean discrimination against children, we must reconsider our views about the whole subject.

The New York Board of Regents is showing that you can keep the parochial schools separate, but you should not discriminate against the children and their opportunities. No one can predict where the future scholars of America will come from. The recent Regents Examinations have shown that a large number of them come from parochial schools, and it is, therefore, the duties of the state to develop them wherever they are to be found.

A formula must be found by which separation will be maintained, and yet no discrimination against students of parochial and private schools shall be committed by the state.

There must, of course, be checks on the schools, parochial as well as public. These checks are solely concerned with scholastic attainments of the students. Not with administration, not with politics. And the examinations such as the New York State Regents, or tests similar to it, are the best guarantee that the students attain the same scholastic achievements, and deserve the same rewards for it by the state.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Brandeis University Plans Construction Of Mathematics Center

WALTHAM, MASS. — Brandeis University has announced plans for a new mathematics building to be ready for use next year within the University's proposed science quadrangle near the center of its Waltham, Mass., campus.

It has been primarily underwritten by a major grant from New York stockbroker Horace W. Goldsmith. Mr. Goldsmith, a member of the Brandeis President's Council, supplemented earlier gifts to the University to provide funds needed to complete the new unit.

Offices for graduate students working in mathematics will substitute for the laboratories of traditional science buildings in the $750,000 Horace W. Goldsmith Mathematics Center. Seminar, classroom and commons room facilities will be included.

Designed by Harrison and Abramovitz, the new science quadrangle will house the departments of biology, chemistry, physics and mathematics and provide a library-lecture hall all grouped around an attractively landscaped area.

The units will range to three stories in height and be constructed of red brick and campus stone with a reserved use of glass.

The proposed science quadrangle will rise adjacent to existing facilities now housing graduate and undergraduate programs in the sciences. The University's faculty working here carries more than $3,000,000 in research grants from private and government agencies, foundations and private individuals.

The eight-year-old graduate department of mathematics at Brandeis University has attracted many international scholars. Two professors, Maurice Auslander, and Professor Heisuke Hironaka of Japan both have been awarded coveted Alfred P. Sloan Foundation grants for research in mathematics.

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. William Mills of 89 Alfredstone Road, Pawtucket, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Lee, to Thomas Shapiro, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shapiro of Brookline, Mass.

East South West North

 Pass 3H Pass 4S
 Pass Pass Pass

North's 2S bid cannot be criticized, for this is one of those hands where the response must be either a slight underbid or a slight overbid, with little to choose between them. It is difficult to understand, however, why South stopped under 6S after the subsequent 4S jump by North.

This hand is one on which I would prefer to open 2S, and even a 2C opening could not be criticized. It is not difficult to suggest. North hands which enable a game to be made with this opening hand, but on which a 1S bid by South will be passed. For those who do not like a 2S bid on the grounds that the suit is not long enough or strong enough. I see nothing objectionable in a 2C bid. The points may be lacking but the distribution makes up for this. I know that majority expert opinion is against such bids but I believe they entail less risk than the underbidding of such hands. With big hands I favor the slight overbid at the beginning followed by caution later.

In the open room the bidding went:

East South West North
 Pass 1S Pass 3S
 Pass 6S Pass Pass

North's hand barely qualifies for the 3S bid and South's immediate response of 6S is understandable. Her partner could hardly have had less and yet the contract is not an unreasonable one. In fact South may well have felt that North probably had enough for a grand slam, but owing to the void the possibility of her having the right cards for it could not be explored.

In the closed room the bidding went:

Rabbi Asks Congregants In Moscow To Shun The Diplomats From Israel

NEW YORK — The New York Times described in a dispatch from Moscow, a scene in a Moscow synagogue in which the Chief Rabbi and a dozen lay Jewish leaders implored the congregation to shun contacts with visiting Israeli diplomats.

About 200 congregants, most of them fur-hatted elderly men, listened in resigned silence. But there were scattered bursts of applause and shouts of "That's right." The theme of the meeting, called to discuss an article published in Trud, the Soviet labor union newspaper, was that the synagogue is not being used for the purpose for which it is intended." The Trud article had charged that Israeli diplomats were using Russian synagogues to meet with Russian Jews for alleged purposes of espionage.

Chief Rabbi Yehuda Leb Levin opened the synagogue meeting with a plea for absolute quiet. Next a man stood up waving the issue of Trud and assailing the Israelis in Russian. The Chief Rabbi explained to the Times correspondent that since some congregants could not speak Yiddish, they could use Russian.

One after another the lay leaders stressed that the synagogue was a house of worship, not a social hall. They cautioned worshippers against having communications or dealings with Israeli visitors. Several speakers warned against taking from such visitors gifts of prayer shawls and prayer books.

The meeting ended with a resolution asking congregants to avoid dealings with Israelis and called on Israelis to stop giving presents to Russian Jews.

The scene was described by the Times as one of sharp contrast with that of the office of Aaron Vergelis editor of the Sovietische Heimland, the new Yiddish-language periodical.

Vergelis said plans were being discussed to boost circulation of the periodical from its present 25,000 and to convert it from a bi-monthly to a monthly publication. He laughed off suggestions there might be a resurgence of anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union.

"Unfortunately," he told Henry Shoskes, an American Yiddish journalist "there are Jews among the speculators and evidently some Jews have passed espionage information to Israelis. Such cases are a disgrace to the Soviet Jews. But it is not only Jews who are involved in such business."

He told Shoskes the demand for the Yiddish periodical had far exceeded expectations. Asked about other Yiddish cultural activities, Vergelis mentioned theatrical groups in various Soviet cities. He said many of these part-time groups had been formed around groups of former professional actors of the Yiddish State Theater which Stalin shut down in 1948.

Vergelis also dismissed as "not well thought through" the poem "Babi Yar" by Yevgeny Yevtushenko, which has been regarded widely as an attack on Soviet anti-Semitism. The poem deals with a ravine near Kiev where some 40,000 Jews were slaughtered by the Nazis in World War II. The poem lamented the failure of the Soviet government to erect any kind of memorial at the massacre scene.

Vergelis denied reports he planned to publish a Yiddish translation of the poem, declaring it had "weakness" and that it was really an attack on Fascism, the intent of which "has been twisted by many people."

Chairman — Mrs. Max Leach has been appointed chairman of the Donor Luncheon of the Ladies Association of the Jewish Home for the Aged, to be held on March 14.

Rockwell Member Dismissed From Job

WASHINGTON — Notice of the dismissal of Schuyler Ferris, an active member of George Rockwell's American Nazi Party, from his job with the Army Map Service was given last week in a letter from the Defense Dept to Congressman Seymour Halperin of New York, who has waged a campaign since last summer to have Ferris ousted from his post.

Rep. Halperin had demanded that Ferris be fired after it was learned that the map specialist had provided the so-called hate bus which toured the South last summer manned by Rockwell's followers.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA-- At the second annual International Broadcasting Awards here in the Hollywood Palladium (so help me, they are now handing out statuettes to commercials, oy vayz meer!), some of my best friends turned out to be Jews. I introduced Burt Metcalfe, the bridegroom in "Father of the Bride," to Lon Greene, "Poppa Cartwright" in "Bonanza," and it was an interesting meeting because they are both former Canadians.

Metcalfe was telling Greene how he, Metcalfe, used to listen to Greene on a Montreal radio series. At the time, Greene was known as the "King of Canadian Radio." In 1958, Lorne says he was booked as a French actor in a play and his French gradually returned.

"Yes," offered his new wife, actress Nancy Ann Deal, "and I hear that the next morning he ordered breakfast in French."

Metcalfe is from Winnipeg and Montreal. Greene is from Ontario. Oddly enough, as tall as Lorne Greene is, young Metcalfe topped him by a head or two.

At the same Awards, Mel Blanc, who survived a near-fatal auto accident, climbed onstage aboard crutches and once again received for a standing ovation. Said Jack Webb: "Thank God that this man, who has given so much entertainment to so many, is still with us."

Bill Dana, better known as Jose Jimenez, and even better known as Hose Himenez, related how he visited Israel and received the undying gratitude of the populace who told him: "You brought us what we needed most -- some new Sammy Davis jokes."

Then Bill did what comes naturally by intermixing his j's and h's and said: "While I was in Israel, I spoke Jebrew." Barry Sullivan remarked that the envelopes containing the names of the trophy winners reminded him of "an invitation to a Bar Mitzvah."

BENNY SENT ME

When I covered the opening of the bizarre pairing of Marlene Dietrich, 57, and Louis Armstrong, 61, at the Riviera Hotel, Las Vegas, on Feb. 19, I walked up to Marlene and Satchmo and said: "Benny sent me."

In this case, that means Benny Goffstein, the genial gentleman who tells everything at the Riviera Hotel how to run except the dice. It is to Goffstein's credit that he has booked some of Gambolton's top attractions into his hostelry and the current Dietrich-Armstrong teaming is hotter than Mr. K's collar.

Watching the glamorous Dietrich onstage in her $30,000 dress with the 14-karat gold beads, it is difficult to remember her when she spent three years entertaining GIs in World War II, paying her own way, chomping on Army chow, and grabbing 40 winks in any shelter she could find, build or dig.

YIKE!

Patrons leaving the Pacific Palisades Bay Theater here, when the film "Hitler" plays the house, are in for a shock when they walk out into the lobby. They'll see a fellow named Albert Szabo standing around in a tuxedo and will immediately recognize him as the actor who plays Der Fuehrer's bodyguard and kills three people. Szabo only happens to be the theater manager.

GETS DIPLOMATIC POST

JERUSALEM — Shimshon Arad, former Israeli Consul in New York has been appointed head of the American Division of the Foreign Ministry. It was announced here last week. Arad also was a member of the Israeli delegation to the United Nations.

Community Center Opens 'Guys & Dolls' On Thursday, March 15

Weeks of rehearsal by scores of singers, actors, dancers, stagehands, and directorial staff members will culminate this Thursday evening when the Jewish Community Center opens a three-night run of its 1962 musical production, "Guy and Dolls", at the Rhode Island School of Design Auditorium.

Performances are scheduled on Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings, March 15, 17, and 18, with curtain time at 8:15 P.M.

Taken from the stories and characters of Damon Runyon, "Guys and Dolls" is the story of a Broadway gambling entrepreneur, Nathan Detroit, and his efforts to promote a "floating crap game" with Sky Masterson, a noted "surething" better. Foiled by his girl friend, Adelaide, a night club chanteuse, and Lieutenant Brannigan of "New York's finest", Detroit persuades Sky to bet on his ability to make a date with a mission lassie, Sarah. What happens is romantic history, interwoven with more than 20 hit show tunes by Frank Loesser.

Leading roles in the Center's production will be portrayed by Howie Holland, Rhea Goldstein Skolnik, Myrna Lapidés, and Lew Schwartz. There are also a couple of show-stopping performances in the making by Leonard Gammache, as "Nicely-Nicely Johnson", and Al D'Amico, as "Big Jule", the burly Chicago gambler.

Tickets to "Guys and Dolls" are available at the Jewish Community Center, Roth's Ticket Agency, Axelrod's and Muffet's Music Shops, and dozens of other convenient locations throughout the Greater Providence area. Reserved seat tickets are available for the Saturday night performance only.

Nevele Resort Gets A 'Two-Way' Dog

The Nevele Country Club of Ellenville, N. Y. year round Cat-skill resort, has just hired a new employee — a "two-way" dog.

The dog is a large German Shepherd named Buddy. The "two-way" designation comes from his training — he can be either gentle or vicious, depending upon his command.

Barton's Sponsors Writing Contest

Winners in Barton's National Creative Writing Contest will not only own stock in a leading Israel company engaged in developing that country, but they can also look forward to the added excitement (and financial reward) of receiving dividend checks for their shares.

First prize in Barton's Share-of-Israel Contest is 100 shares of G.U.S. Rasso Ltd., a company that concentrates on land, electronics communications and other industrial development in Israel. The stock is traded over-the-counter in America and on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange.

The contest is open to all children attending day schools, Talmud Torahs, or Synagogue schools. A grant of $250. goes to the school of the first prize winner for its scholarship fund.

This is the 9th Annual Creative Writing Contest sponsored by Barton's Candy Corporation, manufacturers of kosher chocolates and baked delicacies. Its purpose is to help bring children closer to Jewish living through Jewish education.

Contestants may write an essay story or poem on any one of four topics: 1. My favorite personality in Jewish history, 2. The Torah as a force for peace, 3. How Judaism can best be perpetuated, and 4. The American Jew's responsibility to the State of Israel.

Full details about the contest can be obtained at the Barton Department at The Outlet Company.

Excellent opportunities are in the Herald's Classified ads.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE

The Children's Theatre Series of the Jewish Community Center will present the Rockefeller Players in a dramatization of Washington Irving's, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" on Sunday at Nathan Bishop Junior High School Auditorium. Two performances will be presented, at 2 and 4 P.M.

This story of Ichabod Crane, the lanky schoolmaster, and the headless horseman has thrilled school children of many generations. The romantic interest of Brom Bones and the lovely Katrina lends a spark to the performance that excites both boys and girls. The Players' presentation of "The Legend" is an imaginative one, told in a truly exciting manner. Special choreography has been devised for the climax of this story and special music has been written in the mode of the Post Revolutionary period.
