This Is The Year To Become Bar Mitzvah . . .

or so it would seem if you were one of the three boys from Rhode Island who will board a jet at Idlewild Airport on Tuesday.

Along with ninety-seven other youngsters from all over the United States, Steven Block, Robert Dreyfuss, and Bruce Sherman will make up the even hundred who will fly from New York to Amsterdam for a two day tour and then on to Israel for a Bar Mitzvah Pilgrimage that will last for six and a half weeks.

Their exciting adventure will be combined with an educational program and extensive touring, all designed to fully acquaint them with Israel and its people. The rich religious and cultural aspects of their visit will include receptions with leading figures in all walks of Israeli life including government representatives, rabbinical authorities and educational officials.

In addition to the varied cultural activities, attention will be given to a wholesome recreational program at Camp Alonai Yetzchak, located in Benyamina, where the group will be living while in Israel.

This unique project is planned and directed by Jewish educators in America and Israel. The special religious and cultural programs will have the active participation of the Israel Ministry of Education and other agencies. The boys and girls will be divided into four groups of twenty-five each and will be guided and supervised at all times by four educators and their wives.

One weekend will include a visiting period where the children may visit their relatives and friends in Israel or they may stay in a previously selected home in order to see exactly how the Israelis live and work. They will also spend a weekend on a Kibbutz.

Steven, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Block of 78 Bryant Road Cranston; Robert, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Jack B. Dreyfuss of 76 Weetamoe Drive, Warwick, and Bruce, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Sherman of 83 Rugby Street, Cranston, are all members of the Cranston Jewish Center.

The Center is perhaps the only temple in the country that has a "Summer In Israel" as a part of the regular program of its religious school. Rabbi Saul Leeman has explained that this program is set at the 15 year old level upon the completion of two years study in the Hebrew High School.

Banking Program
The religious school has launched a banking program with a Providence bank to finance the venture. It is known as the "Cranston Jewish Center Israel Pilgrimage Fund" and children at the age of seven are encouraged to make a deposit every Sunday in their classroom so that by the time they are ready for the pilgrimage, financial consideration will be reduced to a minimum.

Steven, Robert and Bruce are about to embark on an unforgettable experience and all children who were born in 1949 and have received a minimum of two years Hebrew education are eligible to apply for the Pilgrimage.

With the high standards set forth in the Rhode Island Religious Schools we will no doubt have many more than three on the Bar Mitzvah Pilgrimage in the years to come, perhaps even a few girls next year.

Israeli Officials Initiate Talks To Prevent Possible Yarn Embargo

WASHINGTON — Israeli officials here this week initiated talks with Washington authorities with a view to preventing a possible embargo on the importation of Israeli cotton yarn to the United States as a result of the new U. S. policy to curtail such imports.

The Department of Commerce said no freeze has as yet been imposed on Israeli cotton yarn exports to the United States. The Department noted that, in fiscal 1961, Israel exported 3,200,000 square yards of textiles to the United States. However, the effect upon Israel's cotton yarn industry may arise from Congressional attempts to provide relief from foreign competition to the American textile industry.

While no official action has been taken as yet, a joint Senate-House conference committee has reported other legislation that would empower the Executive Branch to take whatever steps may be necessary to reduce foreign import quotas. The legislation is designed to prevent "circumvention or frustration" of an agreement made under the Geneva Textile Cotton Arrangement of last July by countries that are not members of the arrangement, Israel is not a member of the Geneva Arrangement.

Half of Out Put
Israel, reportedly, has hundreds of tons of manufactured textiles awaiting shipment to the United States. Half of Israel's output in this field is exported to the United States.

According to the latest figures, Israel exported $7,000,000 worth of cotton yarn to the United States this year. The industry had planned on shipping 40 percent of its output to the U.S.A. in 1962. Editorials in Israeli newspapers expressed the hope that Washington would reconsider its ban and continue the policy of encouraging free trade.

The United States Tariff Commission meanwhile was urged to issue "without further delay" a report on its recent investigation of the effect of foreign textile imports into the United States including Israel-made products.

The call came from Republican Rep. Charles Jonas of North Carolina who complained that the Commission had been stalling on its report on which hearings were completed Mar. 26.

Some Jewish leaders in Rhode Island hailed the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court outlawing the use of official state prayers in the public schools as a reaffirmation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of church and state, while others were noncommittal, simply asserting that since the Supreme Court had made this decision, it was the law of the United

USSR Condemn More Jews To Prison, Death

PARIS — Five more Jews have been condemned to death in the Soviet Union recently for "economic crimes," according to reports made public in Soviet newspapers arriving here this week.

Two of the death sentences were meted out to Jews after a trial in Odessa, where two other Jews were given long prison sentences. This report appeared in Prava Ukrainy, official organ of the Ukrainian Communist Party.

The June 12 issue of that newspaper listed the condemned as Binyamin A. Gulko and Moshe A. Fuks. The newspaper reported that an eight-year prison sentence was given by the same court to Betya B. Rothstein, and a five-year sentence was imposed on Tzila G. Lapidus. All four had been accused, the newspaper stated, of "dealing in foreign currency."

Three other Jews were condemned to death after a trial at Dnepropetrovsk, which is also in the Ukraine. The men condemned, according to a Moscow dispatch, were N. Scachevsky, I. Stavisky and L. Kocher. All three have already been executed, the Moscow report stated. At least four Jews had previously been sentenced to death in Moscow.

States and as such was to be followed.

Rabbi Saul Leeman of the Cranston Jewish Center and president of the Rhode Island Rabbinical Association commented, "Jewish leaders for a long time have claimed that the meaning of the separation of the church and the state is just that. All elements of religion, whether they be holiday celebrations or recitation of prayers, denominational or otherwise, do not have a place in the classroom. We feel that this is a step in the right direction and trust that the school authorities will cooperate in every way to make it a reality." Rabbi Leeman continued, saying that the general sentiment for many years of rabbis and Jewish organizations has been that religion does not belong in the public schools.

The fact that prayers are not allowed in public schools, Rabbi Abraham Chill of Congregation Sons of Abraham feels, does not mean that we are "kicking God out of our lives." "The decision of the United States Supreme Court restraining prayers in public schools is a welcome reaffirmation of the fundamental doctrine of separation of Church and State," he says.

"Compelling children to recite a prayer even non-denominational in substance, is definitely a breach of this basic doctrine. However, I am frightened by the preliminary interpretation of this ruling that may have some far-reaching sordid implications.

"Already there has been talk that we are 'kicking God out of our lives' and that we are showing preference to secularization because of this ruling. This is totally, completely and thoroughly untrue. I do not know of any country that is more God-fearing and observing than the United States. Merely because the thinking of the early fathers, confirmed by the recent decision, was to gua-

Israel To Get $25 Million As Loan From West Germany

JERUSALEM — Israel has received a $25,000,000 loan from West Germany which has promised another loan of the same amount before the end of the current fiscal year, Maariv, the leading evening newspaper in Israel, reported last week.

According to the report, the loan is outside of the West German-Israel reparations agreement and was made in fulfillment of a promise given by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to Prime Minister Ben Gurion at their 1960 meeting in New York. The promise was understood to be for a $500,000,000 loan to be made over a period of 10 years.

The daily declared that sources in the West German Treasury Department said that he Chancellor's promise was not an unconditional assurance that the total loan would be made. Within the general framework of the commitment, the Bonn officials were reported to have said, the matter will be reviewed each year on the basis of specific development projects to be submitted by Israel.

Report Denied
JERUSALEM — A denial was issued here this week by the Treasury Department of a report that Israel had received a $25,000,000 loan from the West German Government. The report was published last week in Maariv, Israel's largest evening newspaper.

Expect Loan Approval
JERUSALEM — Approval by the World Bank of a projected $22,000,000 loan is expected soon, P. Gintzburg, director-general of the Transport Ministry said, last week.

The loan is slated for use in road development with priority for building and developing a road between Sodom and Eilat and roads in the Ashdod development area. A World Bank mission now in Israel in connection with the loan met with Israel Bar-Yehuda, the Transportation Minister and with Finance Minister Lev, Eshkol last week.

Rabbi Denies Complicity In Kidnap Charges

JERUSALEM — Testifying in his own defense, Rabbi Binyamin Mendelsohn of Kommerniut settlement, who with three others is on trial for alleged complicity in the abduction of Yossele Schumacher, denied that he had anything to do with the kidnaping of the nine-year-old boy who was taken from his parents because of fears that he would not receive an Orthodox education.

In a dramatic statement occasionally interrupted by choking tears, Rabbi Mendelsohn told the court that he had no knowledge of Yossele's whereabouts and had nothing to do with the abduction. He expressed sorrow that those hiding him did not heed the call of the rabbis urging his return.

Rabbi Mendelsohn branded as a malicious lie all the stories told by an earlier witness about an alleged meeting of rabbis at which it was decided to abduct Yossele and declared that such a fabrication was reminiscent of the "black libels" of which Jews in the diaspora were accused many years ago. "It is a terrible libel," Rabbi Mendelsohn declared, "an woe to me that I have heard such a lie told by a Jewish witness under oath." He concluded his statement by dramatically reciting the "Shema."

Want Re-Hearing In Rockwell Case

NEW ORLEANS — The District Attorney's office here said last week it is seeking a re-hearing of a ruling by the Criminal Distric of Appeals court which dismissed a conviction of American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell of disturbing the peace.

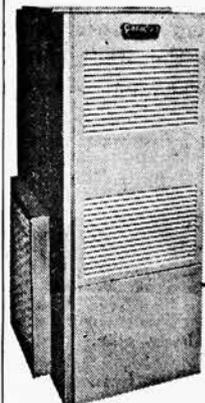

Rockwell was arrested here in May, 1961, after he and a group of his "troopers" wearing nazi uniforms with swastikas picketed the showing of the film, Exodus. They carried anti-Jewish and anti-Negro signs. A Criminal District court ruled against Rockwell but the appeals court held that the signs were not intended to incite to violence.

Rockwell came to New Orleans two weeks ago and said he would file suit in United States District court against Mayor Victor Schiro, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and police officials "for conspiracy to deprive" him of his "civil rights" and to have caused "false imprisonment." Subsequently he said he had dropped the idea.

PRODUCTION GOOD

JERUSALEM — Minister of Agriculture Moshe Dayan said that Israel's farmers can provide food "at reasonable prices." While beef and certain fruits are in short supply here, compared with the European consumer market, he said the Israeli farmer can make up the shortage by providing more poultry and eggs.

rantee the religious liberty of every group, particularly minorities — this does not constitute a denial of God nor the relegation of religion to an insignificant status."

Rabbi William G. Braude of Temple Beth El stated, "The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States represents the law of the land. Such decisions the citizen is not called upon to comment on or to condemn, but to accept."

A prominent member of the Providence school committee, Sherwin Kapstein agrees that a decision of the Supreme Court must be followed. He says, "One of democracy's chief characteristics and assets is its reliance on the rule of law. As the presidency and Congress each has its unique function under our form of government so does the Supreme Court. Recognizing the Court's unique function, law-abiding citizens will obey the recent decision handed down by the Supreme Court of the land relating to prayer in the public schools."

"I think it is a sound decision," says Dr. Harry Elkin, executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Education. "It is in keeping with the thinking of those who feel that the teaching of religion belongs in the religious school, the home, the synagogue or church, but does not belong in the public schools. When you go into teaching religion you often have to give a sectarian explanation, which could offend some religion. The decision is in keeping with the whole development of the constitutional approach toward freedom of religion in the United States."

Says Young Generations
Drift Apart

JERUSALEM — Minister of Education Abba Eban, who knows America well after years of service there as Israel's Ambassador to Washington and to the United Nations, warned here last week that the younger generations of both Israel and the United States are drifting apart.

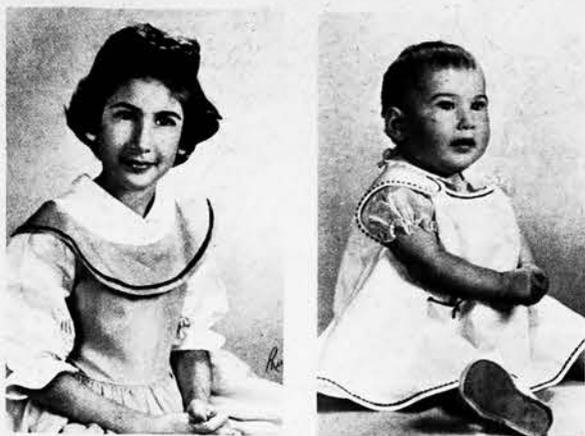

He was one of the principal speakers at the "dialogue" between representatives of the American Jewish Congress and top Israelis.

Eban said that "the beginning of wisdom" for Israel, in her relationships with world Jewry, especially American Jewry, involves the abandonment of "the premature and illusory pose" of absolute self-reliance. Instead, he held, Israel should stress "the unfinished character of her major problems." All Israeli actions and utterances, he stated, "ought to be directed toward evolving and strengthening the equal partnership" between Israel and Jewries abroad.

Eban suggested that Israel develop a new outlook in regard to American Jews, warning that Israel should "stop lecturing American Jewry about its insecurity." What should worry Israel, he said, is "not American Jewry's desire to 'intervene' in our affairs, but its occasional signs of disinterestedness and apathy. Generations are growing up in Israel and in American Jewry which are becoming alien and foreign to each other, sharing no memories, cherishing no common dreams."

Certainly, Ruth's faithfulness made her worthy of being the mother of the royal House of David; yet, at the cradle of the kingdom we find Naomi -- the Jewish mother-in-law.

Naomi desires nothing for herself. She refuses, at first, to accept the sacrifice of Ruth's decision to accompany her. She pleads with Ruth to "return to thy mother's house." Naomi wishes to bear alone the burden of her fate: "For it grieveth me much for your sakes, for the hand of the Lord is gone forth against me."

THE RHODE ISLAND HERALD, FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1962

The Biblical Mother - In - Law

The "Book of Ruth," which recounts the story of perhaps the most famous of converts to Judaism and Jewish commitment, is traditionally read on the festival of Shavuot, the "Season of the Giving of the Law." Ruth is not only the best known Jewish convert, but also one of the most appealing Biblical heroines. But is Ruth really the heroine of the Book that bears her name? A careful reading of the text must reveal to us that the true heroine is Ruth's indomitable mother-in-law, the long-suffering and ultimately triumphant Naomi.

As the charming tale progresses, we discover that Ruth's role in the unfolding of the drama about her is a passive one. She takes no independent action. Everything that happens, happens to her or through her but not by her. Her one independent act was the brave decision to leave her home for the certain hardships of Judea. Nevertheless, she declares to Naomi, in the immortal words: "Whither thou goest, I will go."

True, the unhesitating utterance of these words was the most fateful act in Ruth's life and the most consequential. But from that point on, everything that Ruth does is done on Naomi's prodding. It is Naomi, not Ruth, who manipulates the events. Naomi plans everything. She goes about her purpose with care and tact. She figures out, down to the last detail, all the possibilities, risks and dangers. She anticipates Ruth's every step and action. She draws on her vast experience and knowledge of human nature to bring about the happy ending.

There is no doubt about it, Naomi is the motive force behind all the events and incidents described in the Biblical book that is called--not too accurately--the "Book of Ruth."

But what is the power that drives her? What moves this old woman, broken in heart and spirit, who has sustained the most grievous of losses, to embark on the plans and acts which we witness in the "Book of Ruth?" To this we can only reply: it was her innate goodness, her kindness, her love.

The Sages of the Talmud tell us that the "Book of Ruth" was written because of the quality of kindness (hesed) it portrays. But whose kindness?

We read about the kindness of Ruth. Boaz says to her: "Thou hast shown more kindness in the end than at the beginning." We are also told about the kindness of Boaz: "Blessed be he of the Lord, who hath not left off his kindness..." Even the kindness of Orpah is mentioned: "And Naomi said unto her two daughters-in-law: '...the Lord deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead and with me.'" But there is not a single mention of the kindness of Naomi.

Such, perhaps, is the fate of the Jewish mother-in-law, of whom Naomi is the highest example. She works and worries, suffers and sacrifices herself, but she remains discreetly in the background -- self-denying, self-effacing. As she is, so is her devotion -- unobtrusive and anonymous.

In our present culture, mothers-in-law generally serve as the targets for uncomplimentary jokes. But how unfair this is! Consider Naomi. How much goodness and love she displayed. How much warmth and devotion in her every word and deed. And how many Jewish mothers-in-law like her who, down through the generations, have worked day and night and endured great hardship and deprivation so that their learned sons-in-law might be able to devote all their time and ability to the study of the Torah. (One of the greatest commentators on the Talmud, the "Maharsha," bears there. Indeed, there would be no story and no "Book of Ruth."

But Ruth took the illogical step -- the right one, as we know now. She proclaims her fateful commitment -- "Whither thou goest, I will go" -- and what might have been the end thus becomes a beginning. What could have been the dissolution of a relationship submerged in disaster becomes the start of a moving chain of events which culminate in the Kingdom of David.

What prompted Ruth to forsake her family and country for Naomi? What so fascinated this young woman that she decided to give up her loved ones and her homeland?

The tragedy that had befallen Naomi was the cruelest that could happen to any woman -- the loss of her husband and sons within a short time of each other. Nevertheless, though she felt that "the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me," Naomi was not bitter. True, she had lost a great deal -- but not herself. Despite the calamities, she retained the charm of her goodness. She salvaged from the disaster her love of people and the will to help and to serve.

Even though she asked her countrymen no longer to call her Naomi (Naomi means "pleasant") but Mara (meaning "bitterness"), still, there was no bitterness in her. She deserves her given name, true even in her darkest hour. What is more, she had grown in her sufferings as had her goodness increased. It was this that attracted Ruth and determined her decision to cast her lot with that of Naomi.

And no sooner has Ruth uttered her irrevocable decision, than Naomi sets a new goal for her empty life: to secure happiness for her faithful, also bereft, daughter-in-law.

This now becomes the driving force in her life, the aim of her very existence. She acquires new energy and a new sense of purpose. From then on she takes matters into her own hands. She plans everything beforehand with foresight and shrewdness, she directs Ruth's every step. She rehearses every word to be spoken by Ruth, instructs her as how to speak it, and when. Care is taken not to hasten things, not to precipitate prematurely the flow of events. For correct timing is very important in such matters, as all good matchmakers -- amateurs and professionals -- know.

But apart from her clever management of events and opportunities, one factor, though unseen, is always present -- love. This is the force that directs and guides every step of Naomi's in her guidance.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

ONE OF EVERY SIX ADULTS HIT BY STOCK CRASH

At least 17 million of us have been directly hit by the stock market crash of 1962 to date. This is the all-time peak total of us who now own shares in the nation's publicly-help corporations, an increase of 161 per cent over the number of us who owned shares in 1952 and representing one out of every six adults in the country.

At least 4.5 million of this total are either sitting with paper losses in their stock portfolios or have sold out and taken losses. This is the number who since 1959 have entered the stock market for the first time -- and with the stock market on average below the lows of 1959, with many of the most glamorous stocks violently de-glamorized, the odds are that this estimate of those with losses on paper or in fact is conservative.

At least 1.5 million of this total really have been socked in the pocketbook. This is the number who came into the market for the first time in 1961, when the market was touching its highs. Unless they were far more nimble than the most professional pros, they didn't retreat in time.

Another 120 million are being indirectly affected by the slump, on paper anyway. This is the total who have savings in financial institutions which in turn have put part of their funds in stocks -- and financial institutions haven't escaped this stock crack-up either.

Still another 35 million who don't now directly own stocks are on the threshold of investing or are interested in learning more about buying stocks -- assuming the action of the market doesn't scare them to the sidelines for an indefinite period.

The impact of Wall Street now runs across the nation, touches every state, cities both big and small, all occupations, all income groups.

These are just a few of the statistics and conclusions that leap out of the fourth and most comprehensive survey of stockholders in the U.S. yet undertaken by the New York Stock Exchange and released today. In this tale of the spread of stock ownership you can read one of the most dramatic social-economic developments of modern times.

Only a comparatively short time ago, stockholders were concentrated in cities in a few old, wealthy states. No longer. New York still leads with a shareowner population of 2,341,000 but my home state is losing its lead, now accounts for only 14 per cent of the total shareowner population against 20 per cent in 1956. California is in second place with 2,037,000 shareowners, is pulling up fast. Pennsylvania and Illinois follow, each with more than one million shareowners. Stock-ownership has been soaring in smaller cities, paralleling the rise of suburbia and exurbia.

Also, I'm sure the aggressive promotion of mutual funds throughout the nation has much to do with the skyrocketing number of stockholders. Nearly 2.2 million stockholders own shares in investment companies ONLY, up 75 per cent in just four years and now representing 13 per cent of the shareowner population against 4 per cent as recently as 1956.

Only a relatively short time ago, the typical stockowner was a fairly elderly man, at or past the peak of his earning power with money accumulated over the years and placed in stocks. That profile is obsolete. The average age of stockholders today is 48, the average age of stockholders who have entered the market for the first time since 1959 is 39.

Only a few decades ago, many individuals in the stock market were in with their entire nesteggs and borrowing to the hilt in addition. When they were taken to the cleaners, they were taken all the way. Not so today. Of all stockholders, 86 per cent also have savings accounts, 87 per cent have life insurance, 77 per cent own their own homes, 26 per cent own other real estate, 50 per cent have pension plans, 56 per cent own U.S. savings bonds, 10 per cent own other types of bonds. And, of course, most stockholders are not on thin margins; quite the contrary. The number caught in the late May collapse who were over-borrowed was a minority.

The key message shines through every statistic. With so many millions in all classes in all parts of the nation involved in the stock market, what happens in Wall Street now is sure to affect what happens in the economy in general.

It's another warning to Washington not to shrug off what Wall Street says, for this new Wall Street can help make true its own forecasts.

FORT DIX — Lt. Col. Metr Engel, post chaplain at Fort Dix, was honored at an Oneg Shabbat last week by representatives of the Jewish communities of Philadelphia and New Jersey, prior to his departure for a new post in Fort Ord, Cal.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

BROADWAY GAZETTE

DANCE DEPT.: One night recently, the owner of a dock-side nightclub on the Greek island of Hydra saw the yacht "Christina" come into port. Aristotle Onassis and Maria Callas were at the rail. The club owner asked his customers to start dancing, please, to attract the famed arrivals. The customers obliged, and Onassis and Mme. Callas stopped to watch. The dancers, who were doing improvisations of Greek steps, were Hal Prince, producer of "Take Her, She's Mine" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum"; Nora Kaye, one of America's foremost ballet stars, and Herb Ross, the Broadway director and choreographer. They stomped and twirled in their impromptu version of a native dance.

They were rewarded by hearing Mme. Callas say to Onassis, "So typical."

BOOK NOTE: U.S. Ambassador Stockdale gave a reception at the embassy in Dublin for the James Joyce Memorial Committee. Among the guests was Sylvia Beach, who first published Hemingway in Paris and first published Joyce's "Ulysses." Any Vanderbilt said to her: "It must have taken much courage to publish 'Ulysses.'"

"No," replied Miss Beach, "It was fun. Everything I've ever done in my whole life has been FUN."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Al Levy, the founder of Talent Associates, Inc., who died recently, once was Frank Sinatra's manager. He worked at that job with dedication. When Sinatra was released from the hospital after a siege of illness, the worried Levy said, "Frankie's been in the hospital-- but who'd you think has been doin' the real suffering?"

ART DEPT.: A New York stockbroker tells of the day he went to solicit the account of Edward Gilbert, the financier who fled to Rio. Gilbert showed the broker his office, and said, "Do you like stamps? Look at these. I thought I'd better have some, so I told a stamp dealer to send me a million dollars' worth." Gilbert continued: "Do you like art? Look at these paintings. I thought I'd better have some, and sent to an art gallery for a million dollars' worth."

NIGHTCLUB NOTE: Sammy Davis Jr., recently finished his one-man show booking at Harrah's in Lake Tahoe. He stayed the next night to observe Lawrence Welk's opening. Davis watched Welk's huge revue cast crowding the large stage of the nightclub, and said: "When I started in show business, I often worked to fewer people than Welk has onstage."

FOOD DEPT.: Eddie Arcaro dined at the Four Seasons and ordered a series of rich dishes. "You can see I'm retired," said Arcaro. "I'm eating like a horse instead of like a jockey."

MEMO: Sargent Shriver, now head of the Peace Corps, may take over Fowler Hamilton's job as head of the foreign aid program.... James Mason, who'd intended to fly to London the other night, instead flew to Berlin for the premiere of "Lolita" there.... Frank Sinatra offered to put up all the financing of the Lindsay and Crouse-Irving Berlin musical "Mr. President" in return for the recording rights. His offer was declined.

Magnes Museum To Be Established

SAN FRANCISCO — Establishment of a Judah L. Magnes Memorial Museum, to honor the memory of the late president of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem who was born in this city, has been announced by a group of Magnes admirers in Oakland. The museum will be housed at Temple Beth Shalom, San Leandro, built in 1885 and one of the oldest synagogue buildings in the West.

A fund of $25,000 has been raised for the museum by an Oakland committee, of which Seymour Promer is secretary. Magnes memorabilia, including his writings and documentary material, are now on display at the Oakland Public Museum, and will be installed in the new permanent Magnes Memorial Museum.

Dr. Magnes was born here in 1877, the son of Rabbi David L. Magnes. He received his early education in Oakland and after a brilliant career in the American rabbinate, he became one of the founders and later president of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. He died in New York in 1948.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA--Star of "Bye Bye Birdie" at the Las Vegas Riviera Hotel is Elaine Dunn, one of the most talented dancers, singers and actresses I've witnessed in years. Cleveland born, Elaine attended Glenville High School. Her parents are Sam and Goldie Dombick. He's a commercial artist.

When she sings "I'm not Swedish, not British, not Yiddish, but Spanish," Elaine isn't telling the truth. She's Yiddish. She is married to Dean Shendal, a Las Vegas hotel executive, and has a son, Adam, 7, from a previous marriage.

"How'd I get into showbusiness?" the 5'3" attractive sensation mused. "My uncle, Bennie Ray, was with Olsen and Johnson for years. He got me interested and I did what apparently came naturally."

In the same delightful Riviera musical, which is creating a furore in Gambolton, Barry Pearl, 12, was asked if he intends to make acting a career. Replied the lad: "I'll give it a few years.

If I don't make it, I think I'll become a brain surgeon." Shades of Ben Casey's influence!

At the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas, famed vocalist Gogi Grant (Mrs. Bob Rifkind) discusses her daughter, Jeri, 19, who attends the University of Oregon. It seems that young Jeri is weary of the modern girl's makeup and ideas. She sneers it down as "pseudo sophistication."

Jeri's ambition is to go to Israel and live on a kibbutz and her mother is highly pleased. Jeri's best friend, Nancy, a UCLA student, also wants to go to Israel and work on a kibbutz which is quite commendable, thinks Gogi, because she's Christian.

However, Nancy can't afford the trip, but a certain source, which I am honor bound not to divulge, has promised to come up with the expense money.

Backstage at the Flamingo, Gogi also told me how Michael Blankfort, the famous screen writer and novelist, had sent one of his daughters to a kibbutz. The of his wife, is the new tennis champ at San Quentin.... Arbitrators in Paris are deciding whether James Jones will share screen credit with Cornelius Ryan on the Darryl Zanuck film "The Longest Day."

The Pat Suzuki-Sessue Haya-kawa film "Judo Tree," now being made in Japan, will have music by the Tokyo Symphony, with the King of Thailand playing the clarinet.... Jose Ferrer may play the title role in the London production of the musical "Kean".... Roman Gary's play "Johnny Coeur" opens in Paris Sept. 3.... Carson McClurrs left the hospital last week. She'll return to her home in Nyack to write a book of poems for children.

WALL ST. NOTE: The stock market crash added an inadvertent laugh to "How to Succeed..." In the scene where Robert Morse discusses possible giveaway items for the firm's TV, the line which now gets a laugh is: "I know what we'll give away--stock in the company."

DRAMA DEPT.: Edward Albee is completing his dramatization of "Ballad of the Sad Cafe." He resents it when he reads that his next play "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" is his first full-length play. It will run three hours. His "The Zoo Story" was one hour long, and his "The Sandbox" 12 minutes long. "But each of them" said Albee, "is full-length. A play has its own duration and is in itself its own full-length."

THEATER NOTE: Geraldine Page, now one of the most sought-after actresses in Hollywood and on Broadway, dissented from a magazine's description of her as "an overnight success." Miss Page said: "A girl can't very well be called an overnight success when it took 10 years of study and acting to get there. It would be an awfully long overnight."

Free Rome Jew On Riot Charge

ROME — Angelo Terra-cina, a Rome Jew who was arrested earlier this month during a clash in the city's Jewish quarter with members of the neo-fascist Movimento Sociale Italiano was acquitted here this week by a Rome tribunal which dismissed for lack of evidence, charges that he had assaulted a police officer.

During his trial, Terracina admitted that he had struck a man who, he said, approved of a remark by a woman bystander that the nazis killed only 6,000,000 of them; they should have killed them all." The public attorney also conceded the strong provocation of the neo-fascist group which drove through the Jewish quarter.

young lady remained for a year, returned to this country, and then persuaded her fiancée to go back with her.

They were married in Israel and are still living there.

AT the Desert Inn, Las Vegas, Jack Benny remarked about Sammy Davis, Jr.: "He has so much talent, if he weren't of the same faith, I'd hate him."

JEWRY is very proud of the rising success of young Soupy Sales (that's a man's name) who performed quite capably as a recent fill-in on NBC-TV's "Tonight" show. What we like best about Soupy: when he throws his famous pies into the faces of suspecting celebrities, he does it the orthodox way -- never mixes meat pies with cream pies.

PAUL Winchell, the ventriloquist, maintains a home in White-stone, N.Y., but his pretty wife, Nina, and their three children usually accompany Paul in his show travels across the country.

Do they fly? No. They drive, using a U-haul trailer to cart their belongings. A tutor also goes along to keep the kids up with their schooling.

From wrong to right, the young students are April, 2, (she hasn't learned much except she gets what she wants when she cries); Vicki, 8; and Janet, 12. There is also Jerry, but he can't seem to learn a thing. He's a real dummy.

Twenty-point slam

The following hand was the last one played in this year's Master Pairs, and apparently the winning hand for Reese and Schapiro. Point-count addicts should take note of the bidding. This is an excellent slam with 12 points opposite 8.

North
 ♠—K J 9 6 5 3
 ♥—A 10 7 2
 ♦—None
 ♣—A 10 3

West East
 ♠—Q 7 2 ♠—10
 ♥—Q ♥—J 6 3
 ♦—A 9 5 4 ♦—K Q 10 8 2
 ♣—K J 8 6 2 ♣—Q 9 7 4

South
 ♠—A 8 4
 ♥—K 9 8 5 4
 ♦—J 7 6 3
 ♣—5

With both sides vulnerable and West the dealer the bidding went:

North South
 (Reese) (Schapiro)
 1S 2H
 4D 5C
 6H Pass

Schapiro took the wrong view of hearts but the right view of spades, so the slam was made. Reese's 4D was the key bid, since 3D would have been forcing: 4D was the unnecessary jump and was rightly understood by Schapiro as a slam invitation with hearts agreed. He therefore made a further effort by showing control of the club suit, and Reese, of course, again took the right decision in bidding the slam, because he could not expect his partner to do much more.

On another hand from the Master Pairs superior technique was shown by two declarers—Harold Franklin and Albert Dormer. This was the hand:

North
 ♠—A Q J 5
 ♥—A Q 5
 ♦—A 6 4
 ♣—A 10 3

West East
 ♠—10 7 6 2 ♠—8 4 3
 ♥—10 ♥—J 9 8 3 2
 ♦—Q 9 8 2 ♦—5
 ♣—Q 8 4 2 ♣—J 9 7 5

South
 ♠—K 9
 ♥—K 7 6 4
 ♦—K J 10 7 3
 ♣—K 6

At most tables South opened a weak NT and North raised to 6NT. The two of spades was the general lead and only Franklin and Dormer found the right way to make 7. They took three rounds of spades, discarding a diamond, and then tested the heart suit. When West showed out he was marked with eight cards in the minor suits. Both declarers therefore played a small diamond to the king and finessed the jack of diamonds successfully. A double squeeze now developed automatically and 13 tricks were made for a joint top—a reward for superior technique. This was the position with four tricks to go:

North
 ♠—None
 ♦—None
 ♣—A 10 3

West East
 ♠—None ♠—None
 ♥—None ♥—J
 ♦—Q ♦—None
 ♣—Q 8 4 ♣—J 9 7

South
 ♥—None
 ♠—7
 ♦—7
 ♣—K 6

When dummy leads the ace of spades East must discard a club and South can now throw his seven of hearts. West is squeezed with both minor queens.

LAUD YOUNG ISRAEL WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara paid tribute to the National Council of Young Israel for its community service programs "which exemplify Americans at their best."

The Biblical Mother-In-Law

(Continued from Page 6) ance and direction of Ruth. Ruth is sent to gather the gleanings of wheat in the field. But she reaps a greater harvest. She finds goodness, friendliness, kindness, as she is led by Divine Providence—working through the capable Naomi -- to her destiny. Ruth does nothing more than to implement Naomi's planning. She carries out meticulously Naomi's detailed instructions, automatically, passively. She does only what Naomi tells her to do—which is enough. "And (Ruth) said unto (Naomi): 'All that thou sayest unto me I will do.'" Naomi is the moving spirit.

One may well ask: why then is this tale called the "Book of Ruth" and not the "Book of Naomi? We know that our Sages were very careful to give credit where credit was due. What happened in this instance?

Apparently, this question also troubled the author of the "Book of Ruth" and he sought, therefore, to make up for his omission. So, as the story approaches its climax, Naomi, though deprived of the title-role, occupies the center of the stage. When the child is born to Boaz and Ruth, the happy parents step aside. The spotlight comes to rest wholly on Naomi.

The well-wishers come to offer their Mazel Tov. To whom do they turn? To Naomi. "And the woman said to Naomi: 'Blessed be the Lord, who hath not left thee this day without a near kinsman . . . And he shall be unto thee a restorer of life and a nourisher of thine old age; for they daughter-in-law, who loveth thee, who is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him.'" And the "Book of Naomi" concludes: "And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse to it."

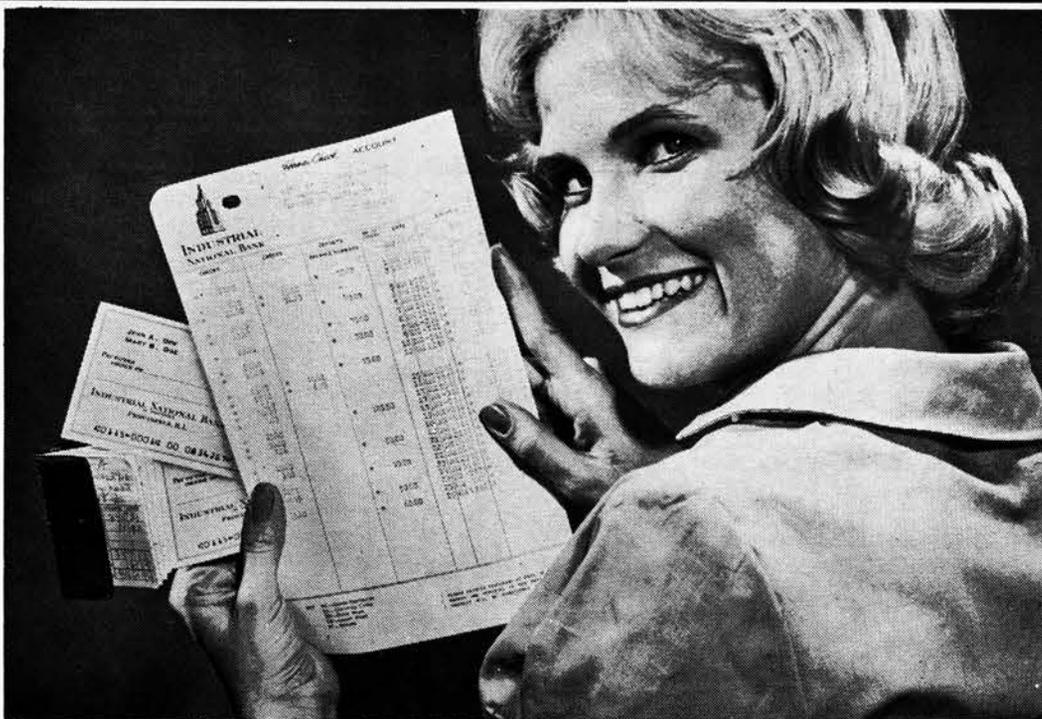

A rather too idyllic climax to a dramatic tale? But how moving is this picture of the good Naomi, once so stricken by fate and now, in her last days, so happy, coddling the infant, which is not even related to her by blood, yet is truly the child of her goodness. How fitting for her, and for the destiny of this child, that it was blessed to be the ancestor of the Kingdom of David. When Naomi rocked the cradle, she rocked the cradle of the Jewish kingdom, born not on the battlefield but of goodness—Naomi's goodness.

And who knows? Perhaps in the Psalms of David, singing the praises of goodness, there is an echo of the lullabies of Naomi.

SCHOOLS MERGE

CHICAGO — A trend to cut across Jewish denominational lines toward merger of Hebrew schools in neighborhoods with dwindling Jewish populations took form here when two schools, one conducted by an Orthodox congregation, the other by a Conservative synagogue, were consolidated into one.
