

Jordan Reported Ordering British Fighter Planes

LONDON — The Jordanian Government has decided to order from Britain some $84,000,000 worth of supersonic Lightning jet interceptor fighter planes, subject to financial arrangements between the two countries, it was reported here. An official announcement is expected within a week.

If reports of the sale are confirmed, it will bring the value of exports of British arms to Middle Eastern countries during the last month to a record $374,200,000.

This news followed quickly on the heels of the disclosure that 50 to 100 U.S. tanks had been sent to Jordan and orders for $400,000,000 of arms for Saudi Arabia were being processed in the United States. In addition, a pact has been signed in Cairo between the United States and Egypt under which America will supply the Nasser regime with $56,000,000 worth of food in the next six months.

At the same time, it was reported here that Egypt and the Soviet Union have signed a five-year trade payments agreement, boosting the volume of trade between the two countries. Under the pact, which will run until 1970, trade between Egypt and the USSR will be increased from $182,000,000 to $280,000,000. The Soviet Union will export to Egypt various types of machinery and equipment, as well as oil and coal. The Johnson Administration is considering favorable action on Israel's request, made last October, for United States supply of $70,000,000 of wheat and other foods over the next two years. The last U.S.-Israel food pact, under which the United States supplied $76,000,000 worth of surplus foods, expired June 30, 1965.

Israel Ordered 30 French Missiles, Say Informed Washington Sources

WASHINGTON — Informed sources here say that Israel has ordered 30 surface-to-surface missiles from France, and has made a secret contract to buy more of the medium-range ballistic missiles, believed to be a military version of the Diamant rocket which France developed to launch space vehicles. The missiles, with a range of about 500 miles, could reach Egyptian targets.

The French may have given the Israeli contract in order to help offset their costs of development, said officials, who view the order as the beginning of a counter-force to the growing number of ballistic missiles being produced by the United Arab Republic.

In the opinion of American military observers, the introduction of missiles is not necessarily a disturbing step in the Middle East arms race since they could have a deterring and stabilizing effect. But the move raises in the minds of American analysts disturbing questions about Israeli nuclear ambitions.

Without nuclear warheads the missiles would have little military value since they need mass destructive power to compensate for their inaccuracy. The purchase of the missiles is seen as indicative of an Israeli intention to develop atomic warheads.

Officially, the Israeli Government maintains that it has no intention of developing atomic weapons. In the opinion of many American experts, however, Israel is keeping open the option to take the atomic step and is building up capability to produce atomic weapons if need be.

In her closely guarded reactor, built near Beersheba with French assistance, Israel has the capacity to produce enough plutonium for several atomic weapons a year. The appraisal of American officials is that Israel probably could produce an atomic device within two years, but without foreign technical assistance it might take her several more years to develop the advanced, lightweight warhead needed to arm a ballistic missile.

That Israel should have turned to the French, who are still in the early stages of missile development, is not too surprising since they have been one of her principal foreign sources for arms. With the exception of some Hawk anti-aircraft missiles, the United States has generally declined to supply arms to the Israelis and has encouraged them to turn to other Western sources. Indirectly, nevertheless, the United States may help subsidize the Israeli purchase with a pending surplus food agreement, since to the extent that Israel is able to obtain the food with her own currency, she will have more foreign currency reserves available for arms purchases.

In turning to France for missiles, Israel's obvious desire is to counter the missile buildup in the United Arab Republic, which, with the help of West German scientists, has developed three different types of medium-range missiles, with ranges extending from 200 to 600 miles. The current Israeli estimate is that the Egyptians have 80 to 90 missiles, with production still continuing at a manufacturing center reported to be near Heliopolis.

Israeli military authorities have not viewed the Egyptian missiles as too serious a threat since they are believed to be highly inaccurate. Furthermore, the United Arab Republic is far behind Israel in atomic capability.

On the basis of some experimental Egyptian use of poison gas in the Yemeni civil war, there is speculation in highly placed American intelligence and military circles that Cairo is considering the arming of the missiles with canisters of poison gas. As a military weapon, the missiles would have limited destructiveness, but they could be an impressive terror weapon in the highly unstable Middle Eastern situation.

French Say Israel Not Buying Missiles

PARIS — A Government spokesman said this week that private French companies had been authorized to provide Israel with "technical cooperation" on military missile development. He declined to say what companies were involved.

The spokesman denied a report that Israel was buying 30 medium-range missiles from France.

Other French sources said it was possible that companies here were providing data for eventual Israeli construction of the two-stage, solid-fuel Topaze missile, a variant of the Diamant that is being tested in the Sahara, but this could not be confirmed.

Officials in Tel Aviv, meanwhile, maintained silence on a report in The New York Times that Israel was buying medium-range missiles from France.

Evening newspapers gave the report banner headlines and carried angry reaction from Paris but not a word of local comment.

Kol Israel, the state radio station, said in a report attributed to its American correspondent that Washington had leaked the story to offset growing criticism of its arms aid to Arab countries.

B'nai B'rith Offers $1,000 Literary Prize

WASHINGTON — B'nai B'rith has announced establishment of the "Jewish Heritage Award," a $1,000 literary prize to be presented annually, in conjunction with its adult Jewish education department, to a writer whose published works "by their authentic interpretations of Jewish life and values make a positive contribution to contemporary literature."

The first presentation will be made April 13.

FIRST JEWISH BABY of 1966 in Rhode Island was Imre Noth, first child and son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Noth of 20 Taft Avenue, formerly of Tel Aviv, who was born at 5:19 A.M. on Jan. 5 at the Providence Lying-In Hospital. Mr. Noth is a second-year architectural student at the Rhode Island School of Design. Paternal grandmother is Mrs. Emerich Noth, and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Menahim Pitchon.

NAACP Names Newton Man To National Presidency

NEWTON, Mass. — Kivie Kaplan, a pioneer in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a civil rights leader for many years, was elected national president of the NAACP last week. The Newton resident succeeds Arthur B. Spingarn, a New York lawyer who has held the position since 1939.

Mr. Kaplan who is 61, participated in the historic march on Montgomery last year to dramatize the Negro cause. He is the fourth president of the 440,000-member group. He has frequently gone to racial trouble spots to be of service in the Negro's quest for equal rights.

Mr. Kaplan, once honored by President Kennedy for his civic contributions and for taking sides with the underdog, is former president of Colonial Tanning Co.

The selection of Mr. Kaplan continues the NAACP's policy of electing whites to the presidency of the nation's largest civil rights organization.

For a number of years Mr. Kaplan has been co-chairman of the NAACP's Life Membership Committee.

At the annual directors' meeting, Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive director, reported a drop in membership for the second year.

Yiddish Writers Union Celebrates Anniversary

NEW YORK — The 50th anniversary of the Yiddish Writers Union, the central organization of Yiddish journalists in the United States, was celebrated at a concert meeting at the Statler Hilton Hotel recently.

An audience of 1,000 heard prominent Yiddish writers including Dr. L. Hendin, A. Glantz-Leyfels, Moshe Rivlin and Leib Feinberg, discuss the role of the Yiddish writer in Jewish cultural life.

Membership fell by 20,000 to 440,000. Mr. Wilkins told a news conference he was worried by the decline from a peak of 535,000 in 1963 but emphasized that he did not regard it as trend setting.

He said that with passage of the Federal Civil Rights Act, some persons felt that "the war is over, or maybe the war isn't over, but they don't need me to mop up."

Leaders Of Reform Judaism Denounce 'Irresponsibility'

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The presidents of the lay and rabbinic arms of American Reform Judaism today sharply denounced as "callous irresponsibility" the statement of the president of the Jewish War Veterans after a recent government sponsored trip to Southeastern Asia.

At the same time, Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis expressed "shock and dismay" that the JWV president, Milton A. Waldor, should term "disgusting" statements by rabbis and United States Jewish organizations urging cessation of bombings and commencement of peace negotiations with North Vietnam.

Mr. Waldor said that he was "disgusted by those groups, Jewish or non-Jewish, so concerned about the right to dissent, about the rights of the peace-niks, that they seem not to recognize that freedom requires responsibilities. They are less articulate about our country's right and need to wage a vigorous war against communism in Viet Nam."

He is also quoted as saying that his group will seek "to mobilize and activate the American Jewish community to eradicate any doubts about the vital necessity for a decisive victory by whatever means required in Vietnam. We will challenge the appeasers, the naive and the confused."

In their reply, Rabbis Eisendrath and Weinstein said, "These statements by the national commander of the JWV are profoundly disturbing. Bomb-rattling jingoism is no more tolerable from a Jewish source than from a militaristic general demanding that we bomb the 'enemy back to the stone age.' The bellicosity cries of the JWV fall somewhere to the right of the Pentagon and are totally inconsistent with the proclaimed policy of President Johnson and the vigorous American efforts to achieve negotiations and a settlement of the conflict. To demand 'a decisive victory by whatever means' is an outrageous statement of callous irresponsibility.

"This would seem to imply that the JWV can contemplate our use of nuclear bombs or chemical warfare or any other means with equanimity. We understand the words 'war' and 'veterans,' but we are at a loss to find out what is 'Jewish' about this position. The JWV statement will certainly give aid and comfort to those foolish and reckless enough to place their total reliance on military force in the solution of political problems. It will give aid and comfort to the extremists and those who are impatient with the right of dissent and protest and the tradition of civil liberties in American life.

"The deeper question is not whether or not the Jewish War Veterans are right on the substance of their policy. Any group of Americans or any organization is free to take whatever position it sees fit and there can be no doubt that there is a great divergence of opinion within the American Jewish community as within the general community. The arrogance of the JWV lies in presuming to speak for American Jewry at large and its effrontery in admonishing other Jewish organizations as to what they should or should not say about the Vietnam crisis.

"Let the JWV join the hawks if it so wishes, but let it have the dignity and the wisdom to respect the conscience and convictions of those who feel that the moral imperatives of the Jewish tradition lead to an altogether different course of action."

North Africans In Plea For Bigger Roles

PARIS — The Association of Jewish Repatriates from North Africa urged French Jewry to make possible greater participation by the repatriates in the work and responsibilities of Jewish institutions and organizations in France.

The association, holding its annual general assembly here, represents the majority of the 100,000 repatriates from Algeria and thousands more from Morocco and Tunisia. Its goal is to maintain close contacts among the Algerian newcomers and to further their integration into the French community.

The meeting was held against the backdrop of expert Jewish opinion that the integration of the 100,000 Algerian Jews into the French Jewish community has been one of the most successful in history.

Thanks largely to the work of the Fonds Sociale Juif Unifie, the major French Jewish welfare agency, and the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the repatriates have been integrated both culturally and socially.

Former Algerian Chief Rabbis David Ashkenazi and Rahmin Naouri, are serving as presidents of the association.

Pierre Attal and Maurice Ayoun, attorneys specializing in compensation claims, reported on current French legislation for indemnification for Algerian Jews for private and communal property abandoned in the former French territory and explained current legislative projects in that field.

The association is a member of the National Union for Indemnification which represents most repatriate organizations.

Chicago Philanthropist Florence Heller Dies

CHICAGO — Mrs. Florence G. Heller, Chicago philanthropist and president of the National Jewish Welfare Board, died on Jan. 5 at her home here at the age of 68. She is survived by three sons, two sisters and three grandchildren. When Mrs. Heller, a niece of the late Julius Rosenwald, was elected JWB president in 1964, she became the first woman president of a general national Jewish organization.

One of Mrs. Heller's major interests was professional training for social work and social work research. Her generous contribution made possible the founding, endowing, and housing of the Florence G. Heller Graduate School for Advanced Studies in Social Welfare at Brandeis University.

VANDAL CONVICTED
BAMBERG, West Germany -- Reinhard Woltzik, an unemployed dental technician, last week began a term of 18 to 42 months in the Juvenile Detention Center after being convicted of smearing 23 tombstones and monuments with swastikas and anti-Semitic slanders. The 20-year-old vandal admitted that his father had been a member of the SS and said that he was "ashamed" of his acts.

Mrs. Michael Comay, wife of Ambassador Comay, permanent Israeli representative at the United Nations, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee on Monday, Jan. 31, at 1 P.M. at the Garden Room in the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

MRS. MICHAEL COMAY

Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld, president of the Women's Division, also announced that a meeting of the board of directors of the Women's Division, in Room 1557, will precede the annual meeting.

A new slate of officers for the year 1966-67 will be presented to the annual meeting for approval by Mrs. William P. Weinstein, chairman of the nominating committee. Other members of the nominating committee are Mrs. Cyril L. Berkelhammer and Mrs. Harry T. Davis of the board of directors, and Mrs. Albert Cohen and Mrs. Burton I. Samors from members-at-large.

An authority on life in Israel, Mrs. Comay will speak on the immigration and refugee problems in Israel that must be met by the United Jewish Appeal.

Mrs. Comay was an active participant in the events preceding the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948. She served as a driver for the Haganah, as liaison officer with the British authorities, and as assistant to a team of South African medical specialists caring for wounded soldiers and civilians.

Ottawa UJA Chairman Says Jews Should Give By Income

OTTAWA — New methods of contributing to the local United Jewish Appeal, and new standards of giving, have been suggested by Arnold Litwick, general chairman of the 1965 UJA drive here. He reported that the 1965 goal had been 10 per cent above the amount achieved in 1964, but that actual results will not exceed a total of $332,000, which is 7 per cent less than the amount raised in 1964.

He proposed "a move away from the pattern of family giving, which is often resented, and results in less money."

He proposed that standards of giving be based on a percentage of each Jewish contributor's total income. He suggested the following ratios: Those earning up to $8,000 a year should give 3 per cent to charity, of which 2 per cent would be for Jewish causes, and 1 per cent for other causes; earners in the category of $8,000 to $15,000 would give 5 per cent, of which 3 per cent would be for Jewish causes; earners of between $15,000 and $20,000 would give a total of 6 per cent, with 4 per cent going to Jewish causes; "men in the $20,000-and-over bracket should be able to take advantage of their full 10 per cent allowable deduction, 7 per cent to Jewish and 3 per cent to non-Jewish causes."

Explaining the reasons for higher giving by Jews to Jewish causes, he told the community: "I am sure you are all aware of our responsibilities to our fellow Jews, not only here in Ottawa, where Jewish education must be made available, but also in Israel, where those of our people who have suffered discrimination in North Africa, the Soviet Union, Latin America and elsewhere must be settled, retained and integrated into a new way of life. For these needs, we have no one to turn to but ourselves. In Ottawa, there is no tax support for the Jewish school system. And if we do not support the State of Israel, who will?"

United States Judge Rules Nazi Insignia Are 'Tools Of Trade'

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service has no right to put a man out of business, even if his business is running the American Nazi Party, U. S. District Court Judge Oren R. Lewis declared last week.

Orders Test For Swastika Painter

BRUSSELS — A correctional court ordered recently a psychiatric observation of Pierre Van Avermaete, 26, who was arrested in connection with the swastika smearings of a number of Jewish owned shops here a few months ago.

The accused is generally considered by police as leader of a three-man group involved in the smearings. Reports on the psychiatric observations were ordered by the court to be submitted before Dec. 31, the date set for announcement of the verdict.

Ben-Gurion Calls Final Parting Of Mapai-Rafi

TEL AVIV — There is no chance of a reunion between the Mapai Party and Rafi, the Independent political group formed by ex-Premier David Ben-Gurion when he broke away from Mapai last summer, according to a statement by Ben-Gurion.

Writing in the Rafi organ, "Mabat Hadash," Ben-Gurion repeated a call for Mapai-Rafi reconciliation issued by "Davar," the organ of Histadrut, the Israel federation of labor and backbone of Mapai. In his negative reaction to "Davar's" reconciliation proposal Ben-Gurion also renewed his personal attack against Prime Minister Eshkol.

The judge presided at a hearing in Alexandria, Va., on a government motion to dismiss a $100,000 damage suit brought by George Lincoln Rockwell, party leader and three followers against Treasury Sec. Henry H. Fowler, IRS Director Sheldon Cohen, and two other IRS officials.

Rockwell charged that the IRS acted without due process of law Dec. 3 when it padlocked the party headquarters in suburban Arlington, Va., and seized the property inside for nonpayment of Social Security and unemployment taxes of $3,489. The Nazi leader contended the seizure made it impossible for the party to continue operations.

The IRS scheduled a tax sale of the property, which includes typewriters, mailing machines, stationery, Nazi flags and insignia, for this week, but deferred it pending outcome of the court's action.

Judge Lewis emphasized that the IRS must give Rockwell's party impartial treatment.

"The Internal Revenue Service has no right to interfere with a man's business, be it gambling or propagandizing," he said.

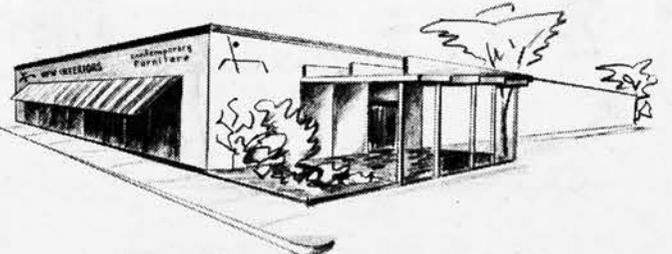

Over the objections of government lawyers headed by Levon Kasarjian, a Justice Department attorney, Lewis pointed out that the law exempts from seizure and sale the "tools" of a man's trade or profession up to $250 in value.

Kasarjian said he believed the "tools of the trade" did not apply to corporations like Rockwell's party. Lewis gave him 24 hours to submit evidence.

Prague Requests Nazis Extradition

BONN — West German officials were informed recently by Czechoslovakia that it will soon submit a list of former Gestapo officers now presumed to be living in West Germany with a formal request for their extradition to face war crimes charges.

Czech officials previously indicated that they wanted extradition of Gestapo officials who had been on duty in Czechoslovakia during the German occupation. Prague named four on the list. They are Franz Karmazyn, former SS Storm Troop leader, Ernest Gerger, Erwin Weinmann and Hans Ulrich Geschke.

The Prague move was considered here a response to the recent West German plea to all countries to provide available data on Nazi war criminals before the end of 1966, when the extended deadline in the statute of limitations on prosecution of such criminals takes effect.

Gerger was said to be responsible for the shooting of Czech Jews in Bohemia-Moravia during the German occupation. The charges against the other three were not indicated.

Mrs. John L. Bell

Miss Carol G. Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Young of Chelsea, Mass., was recently wed to John L. Bell, son of Mrs. Samuel Bell of Providence and the late Mr. Bell. Rabbi Kalman Lichtenstein of Congregation Agudas Sholom, Chelsea, officiated at the double-ring ceremony at the Aperion Plaza in Roxbury.

The bride wore a gown of white peau de soie with brocaded silk emphasizing the bodice and wrist-length sleeves. Her double-tiered headpiece was surrounded by seed pearls. She carried a Bible adorned with two white orchids.

Mrs. Morton Padulsky, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Janet Goff, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. They wore pink chiffon cocktail dresses with ruffled skirts. Their headpieces of the same material were fashioned after pill boxes. They carried pink bouquets.

The flower girls were the Misses Karen Padulsky, Laureen Young and Debra Nair, nieces of the bride, who wore blue and white dresses with flower headpieces of the same colors. Each carried a flower basket.

Nathan Bell was best man for his brother. Ushers were Paul Barbell, Frank Davis, Everett Kabalkin, Howard Nair, Morton Padulsky, Jordan Young, Neal Young and William Harris.

The ring bearer was Robert Padulsky, nephew of the bride. Barry and Stephen Kabalkin, nephews of the bridegroom, served as cake wheelers.

After a reception, the couple spent their honeymoon at Miami Beach, Fla. They are presently residing in Hyde Park, Mass.

The bride is a dictaphone-statistical typist in Boston. Mr. Bell, who attended Bryant College, is an automotive buyer in Boston. He served with the Armed Forces during the Korean crisis.

INDUSTRIAL NATIONAL UP

Net operating earnings of $5,579,982 during 1965 were reported by the Industrial National Bank of Providence, an increase of $701,157 or 14.4 per cent over the $4,878,825 earned last year. Earnings were equal to $4.29 a share, compared with $3.75 last year. Deposits climbed to $655,781,000 on December 31, an increase of $54,435,000 over the amount reported on the same date last year. Net profits of $58,000 on the sale of securities were transferred to reserves. Declared cash dividends totaled $2,487,500.

RESEARCH IN BRAZIL
RIO DE JANEIRO -- The Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany last year allocated a total of $22,713 for medical, educational, social and research projects in Brazil.

MCDONALD CHAIR
JERUSALEM -- The Hebrew University has established a James G. McDonald Chair in American History in honor of the first United States Ambassador to Israel. Funds for the chair included a gift of $150,000 from Benjamin Abrams of New York and a group of friends.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Today's hand illustrates many points, the most important of which is how a too hasty double almost forced Declarer to find a better resting spot.

Mrs. Arthur Bernstingle and Mrs. Howard Brown of Providence were North and South, no one vulnerable, with this bidding:

N	E	S	W
-	-	1C	2S
P	P	Dbl	P
3H	Dbl	3NT	P
P	Dbl	End

North		East
♠ 5, 2	♠ 7, 3	♥ A, K, 10, 9, 7	♥ Q, J
♥ J, 8, 6, 4, 3	♥ A, K, 10, 9, 7	♦ Q, J	♦ J, 9, 7, 2
♦ K, 7, 4	♣ A, K, 10, 9, 7	♣ A, K, 10, 9, 7	♣ A, K, 10, 9, 7
♣ A, 10, 5	♣ A, K, 10, 9, 7	♣ A, K, 10, 9, 7	♣ A, K, 10, 9, 7
West		South
♠ Q, J, 10	♠ A, K, 4	♥ Q, 5, 2	♥ A, 10, 5
♥ 9, 8, 6	♥ Q, 5, 2	♦ A, 10, 5	♦ Q, 8, 6, 3
Void	♦ A, 10, 5	♣ Q, 8, 6, 3	♣ Q, 8, 6, 3
♠ 9, 8, 6, 3, 2	♣ Q, 8, 6, 3
♣ K, 4

The bidding is quite interesting with South, the dealer, not quite strong enough to open 1 No Trump. West's 2 Spade bid was a preemptive jump overcall describing just about the hand held. This convention is becoming more and more popular and does much to disrupt communication between the opponents; it quite effectively stopped North from bidding. East passed and South reopened the bidding with a Take-out Double. West had said his all but North now showed her Heart suit but did not actually show any strength at all. East couldn't wait to double for penalties but his vehemence warned South that the Hearts were definitely stacked. Without the double the hand would have ended in some number of Hearts but forewarned, South used good judgement in running, for North's bid, being forced, might be a weak 4 card suit. West led the Spade Queen and on seeing the dummy South saw she was in for a trying time. She proved equal to the task, however, by timing her play to perfection. She ducked the first Spade, won the second and next played a small Club to dummy's 10 which lost to the Jack.

East, out of Spades, returned the Diamond Jack, a false card designed to fool declarer into finessing later for the Queen. South did not fall for the ruse, figuring no one would lead the Jack without the Queen. Now came the Club Ace dropping West's King, followed by another Club finesse to Declarer's 8. Declarer then cashed her high Club Queen and the 2 High Diamonds (the Queen, of course, dropping).

After cashing her high Spade and seeing East show out she now had 8 tricks in and knew exactly where to get her 9th as all of the opponent's cards had now shown up. East was known to have all the Hearts and no other cards so it was simple to play up to dummy's Jack and wait for East to present declarer with a Heart trick.

Moral: Before doubling what looks like an easy contract to set many tricks, make certain you can handle all possible run-out suits. A smaller profit is better than a loss.

Educator Says

Jews Facing

Social Problems

PHILADELPHIA — Social problems heretofore rare among Jewish youths are overtaking them, the president of the National Assn. of Temple Educators told Jewish Educators at a conference here last week.

"We often hear," said Max Frankel, "that there is less delinquency, crime, divorce and alcoholism among Jews than among non-Jews. But these statistics are changing; more and more we are becoming like the majority and have a moral decay, caused by the decline of the importance of the home and the changing pattern of family life."

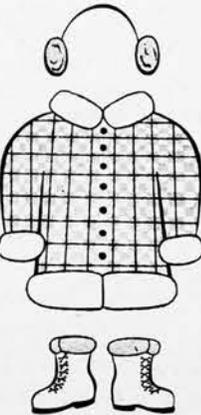

Mr. Frankel, principal of the Temple Emanuel School in Denver, Col., said religious schools must keep up with the times and make their teachings "applicable to daily life."

The teachings of Jewish schools, he said, should make clear what Judaism has to say about social problems.

Another speaker, Dr. Eugene B. Horowitz, professor of education at Hebrew Union College in New York, proposed that automated teaching devices be used in religious education as they already are in public education.

The suggestion drew criticism from Dr. William Chomsky, professor of education and Hebrew literature at Dropsie College, who contended that automated instruction was "sterile and impersonal."

The Tools Of War

The precarious peace of the Middle East, which has sometimes owed much to the lack of armament of its nations, is being threatened by an arms race in which Israelis and Arabs are obviously trying to outdo each other. In this aim they are being adequately assisted by the Western nations.

Saudi Arabia, wooed assiduously by United States and British manufacturers of weapons, has decided to give her business to both. She will buy British supersonic jet fighters and American Hawk anti-aircraft missiles, in a package deal totaling $400 million. In a secret agreement, made public accidentally, the United States entered into an arrangement to supply 50 to 100 Patton tanks to Jordan. Now Israel is reported to be buying from France medium-range ballistic missiles, similar in power and lack of accuracy to those being manufactured in Egypt. Neither country can yet equip the missiles with nuclear warheads, but the possibility of poison gas has been mentioned.

The United States at one time tried in every possible way to prevent the kind of arms escalation currently taking place. Now Washington authorities seem to have joined in the "selective" supplying of armaments to countries in that potentially explosive region. The Government probably sees no way out of doing this. A refusal of weapons would undoubtedly turn the nation requesting the tools of war toward Russia with her request. Coupled with this dilemma is the special pressure brought to bear by Arab governments when arms for Israel are projected by a western nation (recently, for example, in the case of tanks for Jordan, a direct outgrowth of the arrangement by which West Germany turned Patton tanks over to Israel).

The supplying of modern weapons to Middle Eastern countries is scarcely an omen of peace. That it may prevent a one-sided conflict is probable; that war will be prevented by the deterrent of non-nuclear armaments seems unlikely. Next on the list for these countries, it would seem, will be the production or purchase of nuclear arms.

With this probability ahead, it is to the interest of all the nations to stop the arms race, instead of assisting it. The recent war between India and Pakistan showed the dangers inherent in selling weapons to countries unable to wage a good fight without them. The Soviet and American efforts which ended that conflict could perhaps be continued and broadened into a general discussion of limiting arms sales. The Middle East would be a good place to start.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

WHY ECONOMY IS TIGHT TODAY

"We wouldn't be worrying about inflation now if we hadn't cut income taxes so much in 1964," said my long-term friend, a multimillionaire who has profited enormously from his business as well as his stock investments in recent years. "I warned you then that cutting taxes when we were running budget deficits would put too much money in the economy and encourage too much spending."

As I involuntarily whispered, "Oh, that's not it at all!" he shrugged me off and continued: "You have been writing for months that there are unhealthy pressures in our economy now and we've reached the point of actual shortages of some materials and worker categories. Why? Because the tax cut created the pressures. The slack we had in our economy was a good thing and your 'New Economics' killed it. Now you wait and see: they'll take back all the tax cuts. You said it yourself only yesterday. The President will 'reverse gears.'"

So there it is — the reopening on a new level of the wisdom of the new 1964 income tax reductions.

The obvious tightness in today's economy has again given a powerful voice to those who honestly believe, "A little recession is good for us." The reappearance of manpower shortages has given those who like it when unemployment is comparatively high (although they won't admit it out loud) a new reason to attack expansionist policies.

I hereby enter a vigorous dissent to my friend's arguments — and I refrain from snide comments on how he has prospered from the tax cuts. My points are:

(1) The pressures in our economy today are coming not from the tax cuts of 1964 but from the rapid buildup in Viet Nam spending piled on top of an already strong economy. Were it not for Viet Nam spending, we would now be debating the proper "mix" of more tax cuts and bigger Great Society spending in '66 to sustain the upswing.

(2) The pressures also are the result of the timing of the Viet Nam stimulus. Strictly from an economic viewpoint — and nothing else — we would have welcomed the stimulus in the early 1960s, when we were trying to pull the economy out of its slug-

By Beryl Segal

1. IN 80 YEARS FROM NOW.

Call it premonition. Call it prophecy. Call it guessing. Call it what you like. But here is a prediction of one man eighty years ago that came true.

In the year 1869 no Jews lived outside of the Walls of Jerusalem. The city grew within these walls, it was crowded. The streets were narrow and crooked. Donkeys going one way had to make way for the Camels going the other way by stepping on sidewalks. Jews were afraid to move out of the Walls because Bedouin tribes lurked outside and attacked and robbed every wayfarer that happened to pass by at a late hour. In fact the gates in the Walls of Jerusalem were locked and guards posted not to let anyone in or out after nightfall.

Then seven pioneering spirits founded a company which they called Nahlas Shiva, the Possession of Seven, for the purpose of building houses outside of the Walls of Jerusalem. That was a daring act. And that was also the beginning of what is now known as New Jerusalem. The New Jerusalem is a modern city with wide streets and avenues, and comfortable houses, and world-famous schools, and beautiful gardens and lawns.

That is how New Jerusalem is now. But the New Jerusalem of 1869 consisted of only seven houses, the first ones to be built on barren land. One of the first Jews to take possession of his new house was a man by the name of Reb Joseph Riblin, or as he was known throughout Jerusalem, Reb Yoshe Riblin. He was a man of learning and a speaker and a writer. His grandchildren are well known in all political and cultural affairs of the land. On the occasion of the opening of his house he said these words:

Today we laid the foundation stone (Yesod) for houses. The word Yesod is the sum-total (in Hebrew) of 80. In 80 years from now, I believe, that the foundation for something bigger will be laid here.

In the year 1948, eighty years after these words were spoken, the Republic of Israel was founded.

This fact was revealed in the collection of speeches and articles written by Reb Joseph Riblin, that appeared recently.

2. GIVE US YOUR TALENT.

Speaking of building houses, here is another story of Israel of today that relates to the Riblin prediction.

A representative of the Industry and Development Ministry of Israel visited New York recently. The representative asked to arrange for him a meeting of the most important Jewish builders and construction architects. Such a meeting was arranged and everyone was sure that the Israeli visitor will ask these contractors to invest in building in Israel. Such was not the case. All the Israeli representative asked of the New York contractors was...advice.

The Israeli explained it this way:

These contractors with their experience in the building industry can save us millions in advising us how to build. Even if we save only two percent of our cost because of their advice, we will have benefited by 30 million dollars of our total building costs. This is much more than these millionaires can give us if I were to ask for investments or contributions.

So it was. A group of fifteen American contractors will arrive in Israel in February. They will come and only give...advice. But that advice will be worth millions to Israel which is furiously building and developing not only houses and blocks but cities and ports and plants of all kinds.

3. HOW DOES THE SUN AFFECT US?

Where is there a better place to study the effect of the sun on human beings than in Israel?

The sun is a constant companion of man twelve months a year, with only minor interruptions in what are called "Winter Months," or rainy seasons.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington commissioned a study by the Technion of Haifa, Israel, on the effects of the sun on people in all kinds of clothing, in various conditions of work, and under a variety of diets.

The study is under the direction of the Department of Climate in the Technion.

The Lyons Den

George Jessel decided to give himself a fling before returning to Viet Nam. He took an attractive young lady to dinner at Shor's, then to the Met Opera to see Zubin Mehta conduct "Aida." At intermission Jessel asked some of the musicians about Mehta's repertoire, and was told the Indian conducts only "Aida." Nothing more.

"He'd better learn a few more pieces around here," said Jessel. "After all, suppose someone requests 'Darktown Strutter Ball'?"

At intermission he also addressed Kay Reid, the actress who'd just made a film in Spain. Jessel spoke to her escort, persuasively: for Act II of "Aida" they switched partners. "I'll tell you how the last act turns out," Jessel promised, and took Miss Reid to Shor's for supper.

Shor joined them, and spoke scoffingly of the film industry. He cited, as examples, some of the inaccuracies in the movie biography of the late Eddie Duchin.

"But a movie is not a Prussian officer's oath or a legal document," Jessel dissented. "It's a hunk of entertainment, that's all. Ziegfeld was short, fat and spoke with a whine. But he was portrayed by William Powell, and nobody minded."

The comic cited a biographical movie he'd produced, "The Dolly Sisters," and said: "They were a pair of dark-haired, odd-looking girls whose Hungarian accent was pickled thick. For me they were portrayed by June Haver and Betty Grable, who explained they once had a Hungarian uncle..."

Jessel then kissed Miss Reid, to demonstrate a scene from his film, and took her to El Morocco.

The traffic tie-up, because of the subway strike, was so complex that even Lena Horne—standing at Fifth Av. and 57th—couldn't get a taxi or car to give her a lift...Mel Ferrer is in Boston, seeing "Walt Untl Dark." He'll produce the movie version which will star his wife, Audrey Hepburn...Valentina said, at the Cote Basque, that the strike had made conditions here so deplorable that she's off to the south of France for 10 days.

"Sukarno: An Autobiography," as told to Cindy Adams, is in its fifth printing after only a few weeks. Mrs. Adams says: "Of course, I've got one heck of a captive audience that most author-esses don't have — Sukarno himself. He's ordered every one of his ambassadors in every country in the world to buy 25 copies out of his own personal pocket, and parcel them out to the 25 top leaders in the countries in which they are envoys."

Calls Columnist's Article Misleading, Inaccurate

TO THE EDITOR:

The article by Beryl Segal entitled "The Home and The Survey" published on December 31 is so misleading in its statements, omissions and conclusions, that we think it important for the sake of the Jewish Home for the Aged, the General Jewish Committee and other institutions in this community that the facts be made clear and plain.

Mr. Segal writes "It seems strange that a Study of the Jewish Community Services for the Aged in Greater Providence" was recently undertaken by Simon Krakow, of Boston. I have before me the 'Study' which was sponsored by the General Jewish Committee and am amused by the conclusions and recommendations of the author". The major theme of Beryl Segal is that the independence of the Jewish Home for the Aged is threatened. Significantly and in our opinion inexcusably he fails to state that the Study was undertaken at the special request of the Jewish Home for the Aged, that Simon Krakow is the Associate Director of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston and a nationally recognized authority on the subject, and that the officers, staff and Board of the Home cooperated completely in the Study and now as a result, are moving ahead with enthusiasm to improve the services of the institution.

Mr. Segal writes: "The survey lumps together the Home, the Jewish Community Center, the Jewish Family and Childrens Service and the Miriam Hospital in one group". The study does no such thing. On the contrary the study deals with the function and program of each in its own separate section with separate recommendations for each in its own separate sphere. The Krakow report concerns all of the older people in the Jewish community and emphasizes that when the GJC Population Survey was made in 1963 there were then about two thousand over 65 years of age and that this number will increase by almost 75% to nearly thirty five hundred within fifteen years. Only a small portion of all of these people will ever need the Jewish Home for the Aged, but those who do are entitled to have the best care which the community as a whole can provide. A great many of the hundreds of others will benefit from the differing services of Miriam Hospital, Jewish Family and Childrens Service, the Jewish Community Center and other institutions.

Mr. Segal complains that: "The survey recommends that the Center take charge of the activities and the recreation of the Home". There is no such recommendation, express or implied. Mr. Krakow does point out that the Jewish Community Center serves some hundreds of the older residents of the community and that these services should be expanded and improved.

Speaking of the Home, the Study finds that "there is no provision for social work services to deal with patient or family problems . . . Consideration should be given to providing casework services, preferably on a part time basis in relation to the Jewish Family and Childrens Service". From this Mr. Segal draws the conclusion: "The Family Service and the Home are two different kinds of agencies . . . and one agency cannot do the work for the other". No one has suggested that either agency do the work of the other, but Mr. Segal should have noted, if he read the report thoroughly, that the Family Service is officially concerned with the welfare of at least as many older persons as is the Home. We believe that there is a great deal of merit in greater cooperation between these agencies and we understand that the officers and the staffs of both institutions feel the same way about it. They are not "amused" as Mr. Segal is, at the idea that two or more agencies might work together to help old people in need

Home should consider the erection of 75 apartments under the auspices of the Home for the well aged who need a protected setting. This will permit the transfer of 45 residents out of the Home, and with appropriate changes in the Home, provide 45 additional nursing care beds." This thoroughly supports the view of the leaders of the Jewish Home for the Aged that a separate apartment building (not 40 or 50 additional rooms as Mr. Segal suggests) is the answer. Residents in their own private quarters will have available close by all of the medical, religious, social and other facilities of the Home, so far as they are needed. We understand that Government funds may be available for such a project. Many other cities are moving ahead with similar plans.

Mr. Segal apparently fears that the independence of the Jewish Home for the Aged is somehow endangered because the leadership of the Home (consisting mainly of the same people who are also leaders in all other institutions in the community) has turned to the General Jewish Committee and other institutions for discussion of future plans and has sought the advice of experts of national reputation. Of course, the Home should remain independent. But independence is one thing and blind isolation is something altogether different. All over the country Jewish institutions are carrying on cooperative planning activities. The result is better, more efficient, more economical and more useful services for all concerned. Referring to the history of the Jewish Home for the Aged, Mr. Segal points out that there have been three periods "three stages, each marking an advance over the stage preceding it". We believe that the "Study of Jewish Community Services for the Aged in Greater Providence" is the beginning of another new stage in the history of the Home. The General Jewish Committee is pleased and proud to be able to play a significant role in cooperating with the Home and the other institutions involved to help them elevate their standards of service for the sake of the people they serve.

Very sincerely yours,
Merrill L. Hassenfeld,

Feels Home Would Gain From Cooperation

Dear Editor:

As executive Director of the agency, most intimately connected with care for the aged, the Jewish Home for the Aged, I would like to comment upon Beryl Segal's article of December 31st. The first part of Mr. Segal's article was a fine presentation of the history and the present needs and problems of the Home.

In the second half, Mr. Segal offered some criticism of the survey on services for the aged in our community, conducted by Simon Krakow, Associate Director of the combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, who was engaged as a community planning consultant by the General Jewish Committee. The inference in the criticism, was that the recommendations of Mr. Krakow, would lead to loss of the Home's "independence". Those of us, who are close to the situation, do not see this in the least bit as part of the survey's recommendations. The General Jewish Committee, the Jewish Community Center, Miriam Hospital, the Jewish Family and Childrens Service, and the Home, are "lumped" together for the obvious reason, that they are all Jewish sponsored and supported. In cooperating with any or all of these agencies, the Home would not lose its independence, and in fact, would stand to gain in providing better service to the aged in Rhode Island.

The Home gains now, and will gain more in the future, from a cooperative relationship with the Community Center, because of what the very word "community" connotes. The aged do not want to be isolated, restricted to an institution, and feel that they can have activities only in the Home with only their fellow residents participating.

They want to be accepted by the whole community, to participate with the aged, who are not in the Home, in activities outside the Home. They would like to feel they are not pariahs, or so sick, that only relatives and volunteers can visit them. Why shouldn't they be host to groups of "golden agers" from the Center, who come into the Home and participate jointly with the residents in an activity? In fact, it may do the visitor some good in helping him overcome some misapprehension he may have about applying for the Home when the need arises.

There may come a time, when the Home will have its own recreation staff and facilities to conduct programs on a greater scale. There is, in fact, a great need for this right now; but it does not vitiate the argument for cooperation of the Center and the Home. In cooperating, neither agency will become "dependent" on the other and the expertise, one has in group activities and the other in care for the aged, can lead to greater benefit to the community.

In general, the same arguments hold for the relationship between the Home and the Jewish Family and Childrens Service. Neither agency will lose its independence, the aged can gain from their cooperation. It has become a common-places, and I see everyday that problems of the aged are not of one single old person, but a family problem. We who work in this area, frequently realize we are not just treating an old mother, but the whole family and how they relate to one another.

President Of Home For Aged Says Organization Dependent On Others

Dear Mr. Segal:

I read your article called "The Home and the Survey" and feel that as President of the Jewish Home for the Aged of R.I. I should try to set the record straight. I believe you have made erroneous observations and conclusions and that your readers and the public should be told the facts as I know them.

You state in your article "The Home will always be independent" and the last sentence of your article is "The Home must remain independent" and in between these two statements you complain about the "Study of the Jewish Community Services for the Aged in Greater Providence" recently undertaken by Simon Krakow of Boston.

I do not know what you intend to convey by referring to the independence of the Home. It is my opinion that no person or group of persons can afford to be independent. In community work especially, every person and organization are dependent on others for help and cooperation in order to do the most effective job for those people they serve. As an officer of the Home, I am interested in serving the Jewish aged and I welcome whatever assistance I can receive whether it be from an individual or from another community agency.

Now in regard to Mr. Krakow's survey, I wish to explain how it came about. You know that for some time the Home has been considering the erection of an apartment house to adjoin the present Home so that people over sixty-five years of age could enjoy the advantages of a private dwelling plus all the facilities of the Home including its synagogue, its kosher kitchen, its nursing and medical services, recreation, supervision, etc. Before embarking on such a venture, it was felt that a survey should be made of the present Home facilities in order to determine the nature, size, and facilities of any new addition and also its necessity. We found that the person best qualified to make such a survey was the "Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds" whose main office is in New York City and who have conducted similar surveys for many communities throughout the United States. However, the Jewish Home for the Aged could not call upon the Council for such a survey as it is not affiliated with the Council. The General Jewish Committee of Providence came to the assistance of the Home and made it possible for us to receive the complete cooperation and assistance of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. As a result Mr. David Zeff of the Council visited Providence twice to confer with representatives of the Home in regard to our project and Mr. Simon Krakow, a nationally-known expert in the field, was engaged to make the survey. Mr. Krakow spent all of last summer in gathering information and facts about the Home and other agencies serving the aged. He spent a great deal of time with Mr. Jack Esman, our former Executive Director. We at the Home all thought that his work was thorough and comprehensive and that his report as finally submitted was excellent.

The survey dealt with the Jewish aged in Greater Providence and how best they could be served not only by the Home but by every other agency which performs any service for them. Cooperation and mutual assistance should be the keynote of community planning. Our Jewish leaders do not confine their work and donations to one agency but they contribute their time and money to every worthwhile group. Therefore, I cannot understand the following statement made by you in your article:

"But the greatest absurdity is the relationship between the Home and the Miriam Hospital. The Hospital is a non-sectarian institution. It might as well make similar arrangements with all the other Homes for Aged in the city. But if the Hospital is to 'take over' the medical care of the Home, it would have to install its own standards which might not be suitable for the limited needs of the Home."

Mr. Krakow did not say in his report that the Hospital should "take over" the medical care of the Home. You have a right to express an opinion but you should not misquote. In your article you state that you have before you the "Study" of Mr. Krakow. There was, therefore, no reason why you should insert in the study words that were never there.

It is well known that Jewish Homes for the Aged throughout the United States have working arrangements with hospitals in their respective communities in order to better serve the aged. This is confirmed by the Executive Director of the Home, Mr. Bernard Entman, a former director, Mr. Jack Esman, and detailed in Mr. Krakow's survey by reference to specific communities. A most significant part of Mr. Krakow's report was his recommendation that the Home have its own medical director who would work in cooperation with the Hospital.

Contrary to the implications of your article, I believe that the Miriam Hospital will be very happy to cooperate with the Home in the improvement of medical care furnished to the residents of the Home. I have been in touch now for several months with Mr. Isadore Paisner, President of the Miriam Hospital, regarding this situation and very shortly committees of the Hospital and the Home will be meeting to discuss areas of cooperation between the two institutions. On July 22, 1965, before the report of Mr. Simon Krakow was submitted Mr. Paisner sent me a letter which reads in part as follows: "We welcome the assistance of the GJC and its consultant . . . The Hospital stands ready to do whatever it can to give the full benefit of the knowledge and contacts it has in the field of health to help you improve the health standards of the residents of the Home . . . I look forward with interest and enthusiasm to the growth and development of this project."

You are the only person from whom I have heard any criticism of Mr. Krakow's survey. You are

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Arnold Perl has announced plans to produce "The World of Shalom Aleichem" at Zagreb Studios in Belgrade. Perl owns the rights through the estate of the late author to all Aleichem properties, which have become classics in the Jewish theater.

He adapted the Aleichem story, "Tevya and His Daughters," for the Broadway musical hit, "Fiddler on the Roof," which he sold outright. Although the producers of "Fiddler" are planning their own movie and realize that "The World of Shalom Aleichem" is quite similar to their story, they have no control over Perl's plans. Naturally, they're completely disenchanted about "Shalom" beating "Fiddler" to the silver screen.

ARE YOU fully prepared for the comedy team of Marty (Hello Dere) Allen, the bushy-haired, stocky, little man and Steve Rossi, his handsome, singing straight man? They completed the final scenes for their first movie, "The Last of the Secret Agents?" at Paramount, which should make "U.N.C.L.E." as dull as "Z.A.Y.D.E." and should make "Honey West" stop pouring freely like frozen "Chicken Fat International."

LIKE JIMMY Durante and Danny Thomas, actor Harold J. Stone owns a prominent nose which has become his career trademark. Unlike Durante and Thomas, Stone uses his signature nose for serious acting.

As the result of his portrayals of a mob leader in "The Untouchables" plus many other distinguished appearances in films and television, Stone has established himself as one of Hollywood's most dramatic Italian stars, not an easy feat in light of his Jewish heritage.

A FAMOUS Hollywood star financed the construction of Youth House, a combination kibbutz-khan in Nazareth, where Israeli and Arabian kids can learn to live and play together. His name: Frank Sinatra.

ISRAEL starts its television program this year, with the opening of its first station. Avoiding Hollywood products, it begins strictly as an educational channel.

EAGER TO gain a foothold in the making of motion pictures, Israel will probably have to hire Hollywood technicians to get started. The young nation now has only one sound stage but it's well equipped. It also has a color film lab, gift of an anonymous donor.

A man named simply Topol is currently Israel's number one star. He will be seen soon in Mel Shavelson's "Cast a Giant Shadow" and will receive 100% billing along with Kirk Douglas and other U.S. stars.

AT THE RECENT Friars testimonial for Milton Berle, Toastmaster George Jessel referred to Gene Barry as "a Roumanian." Jumping to his feet, Barry shouted, "It's Vilna. That's where my folks come from" . . . After Jessel had paid homage to the backwoods inhabitants of Tennessee, Pat Buttram, hillbilly comedian, arose and tore the house down with this beautiful switch, "Mr. Jessel, thank you very much for being so nice to my people." About Milton Berle, Buttram said, "Millions of people have laughed at Milton — some even at his jokes."

Three Gentle celebrities at the Friars event said they are married to Jewish girls. Jackie Cooper said, "I wonder if I got invited tonight because I'm finally over 40 or because I'm married to a Jewish girl?"

Tommy Smothers, the funny brother who plays the angel on television, said, "When I married a Jewish girl in a westside synagogue, I stepped on a glass and got 9 stitches in my foot."

Italian comedian Pat Henry said, "I married a Jewish girl and we have a boy — half Jewish and half Italian. We keep wondering about his future. Will he buy a department store or rob it?"

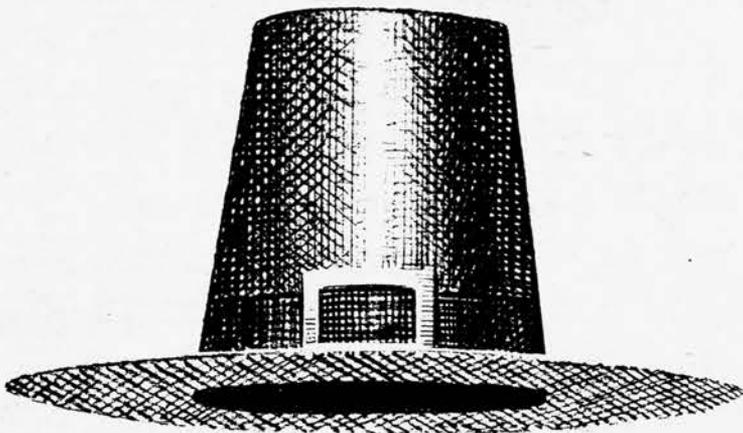

Jessel admitted, "I'll be 68 next April 2. Eddie Cantor was 8 years older." He added, "This is my 75th year of public life."

DALI WALL PANEL -- Surrealistic wall panel is one of three painted by Salvador Dalí for Helena Rubinstein, whose possessions will be auctioned in April by Parke-Bernet.

NEW YORK, N.Y. — In early January a swarm of workmen began to dismantle the bizarre Park Avenue home of the late Helena Rubinstein, whose ornate trimmings, exotic furnishings and rare art will be sold at auction in April. The contents of her 26-room triplex here will be combined with possessions from her London and Paris apartments and country home in Greenwich, Conn. Their reputed worth is several million dollars.

Miss Rubenstein, who died last spring, made a fortune on face creams. Her New York home contained an entire room of Salvador Dalí's work. Three surrealist wall-size panels formed an overwhelming background for 18th-century Venetian shell furniture.

She liked Picasso also, and owned a rare early painting of his, dated 1896. Picasso designed the tapestries in her Victorian drawing room, which were executed by a close associate, Marie Cuttill.

The elevator opened onto a foyer painted by Federico Pallavicini in dizzying sunbursts of orange and yellow. Her impressionist and modern paintings, sculpture and collection of African art—considered probably the finest in private hands—will undoubtedly stir widespread dealer and collector interest. Parke-Bernet, the gallery appointed by Miss Rubinstein's executors, plans to start sales April 20, but expects bidding to go on into the first week of May.

Miss Rubinstein's associates have noted that many of her possessions were bizarre, rather than beautiful, and demand a specialized interest for appreciation. She was, they add, apparently born with the collector's instinct.

She was not interested in a single object; she bought in lots, in bulk and apparently lacked the patience for the slow acquisition of individual prizes.

She also applied this wholesale approach to art collecting. As a result, she often triggered the success of aspiring artists.

A case in point was Eli Nadelman, the Polish sculptor. She arranged his first one-man show and her buying of the entire exhibition of 40 pieces, still part of the estate, launched Nadelman in the United States.

She wouldn't rest until she had eight small Renoirs to complete a grouping she had envisioned on one of the chimney breasts. At one time she owned 16 paintings by Renoir along with 20 Dufys.

Many of her other favorites were by Corot, Rouault, Kandinsky, Modigliani, Toulouse-Lautrec, Degas, Pissarro, Utrillo, Klee and Leger, among others. The bulk of the works will be included in the Rubinstein auction.

As a collector of furnishings, she managed to amass extensive collections of Victorian Belter furniture and Lucite designs she had made in the nineteen-twenties and thirties. The Lucite collection includes her bed with lighted head and footboards from which in her later years she conducted many business conferences.

The New York apartment on Park Avenue was seen publicly for the last time at a New Year's Eve champagne dinner dance given there for the benefit of the Children's Blood Foundation at New York Hospital.

ALIENS MUST REGISTER!

Every alien in the United States on January 1 is required by law to report his address, during the month of January, either by filling out a registration form from his local post office, and handing it in to a post office employee, or by going to a school where Americanization teachers will help him fill out a registration form. Aliens should bring with them their alien registration receipt cards.

Expects Renault To Buy Auto Parts In Israel

TEL AVIV — The Renault Automobile Company of France will buy auto parts in Israel for its assembly plant in this country, as part of the effort to re-establish the Israel market for its automobiles, it was revealed here last week.

Several years ago, Renault stopped assembling cars in its plant at Haifa, capitulating to the demands of the Arab boycott office. As a result of that move, Renault lost not only its Israeli market, but also suffered losses in sales around the world — without making any significant sales gains in Arab countries. Now the company is reportedly ready to try to recoup its market in Israel. It is assumed that it might advance that aim by buying parts from Israeli suppliers.

Meanwhile, it was announced here that another French automobile firm, Simca, is "interested" in assembling cars in this country for the Israeli market. The announcement was made by the management of Traffic Tools, Ltd., a firm here that builds trucks and has an assembly plant at Nazareth. Israel has four automobile assembly plants now. These put cars together for manufacturers of British, Japanese and American cars.

HONOR JEWISH SCIENTISTS
 WASHINGTON — Two Jews are among the 11 scientists announced by President Johnson as recipients of this year's National Medal of Science. They are Dr. Leon Max Lederman, professor of physics at Columbia University, and Dr. Oscar Zariski, professor of mathematics at Harvard University.

 Dr. Lederman has done important research on mesons, the particles that hold the atomic nucleus together. Dr. Zariski has gained world-wide recognition for his work on organizing algebraic geometry on a solid basis.

Trinity Mounts Rollicking Performance Of Shakespeare's Romantic '12th Night'

Anyone who wonders why Shakespeare is immortal should find the answer at Trinity Square Playhouse, where a rollicking "Twelfth Night" is currently being shown. The beautifully-mounted comedy is so superbly done that one wonders if period comedy is perhaps Trinity's forte. Like their "Tartuffe" earlier this season, the Shakespeare play has a sparkle and polish which no audience can resist.

A good part of the fun derives from Richard Kennedy's Sir Toby Belch and Robert van Hooten's Sir Andrew Aguecheek, whose every quiver of an eyebrow is subtly and hilariously timed. Marguerite Lenert, as the lady's maid, shares their joking with a robust abandon which finally came close to caricature. Feste, the wonderful clown who moves with detachment and song through the shifting scenes, was well played by Robert Moberly, who wore his own hair in a nice-American-boy fashion, the only incongruous style note of the production.

The evening also belongs to the other actors, first of all to Katherine Helmond as Viola, the resolute young woman who disguises herself as a youth; to Richard Kneeland as the self-important, puritanical Malvolio; to Barbara Orson, an unqualified delight as the mature woman who falls in love with a youth, and to William Cain as the love-weary Duke Orsino.

Part of the continued enjoyment of attending performances at Trinity lies in the variety of roles played by the resident members of the company. Mr. Kneeland has been more varied in his characterizations, and his makeup, than the others, but all have entertained not only by their ability but also through the piquancy of comparison. Thus, Miss Helmond was the saucy, stylized maid of "Tartuffe" and the young girl who egged on the witch-hunts in "The Crucible." The languid music-loving Duke Orsino, Mr. Cain, was the evil balliff of "Tartuffe," and Mrs. Orson, charming and good-natured here as Olivia, was the madam of the brothel called "The Balcony," in which James Barnhill, here the sea captain who rescues Viola's twin brother, was the tormented general.

Also responsible for much of the evening's charm is Sunny B. Warner, who has designed the costumes for "Twelfth Night" and for other plays this season. Her inspired creations include a brown suit with broad yellow bands in which Sir Andrew is irresistibly comic, and a magnificently becoming gown which Mrs. Orson occasionally seems on the point of shedding. Costume colors, textures, line and fabrics all contribute to the romantic and comic needs of this merry play.

Guest director Stephen Porter is ultimately responsible for a production which assures its audiences a continued supply of what Sir Toby calls "cakes and ale."

a member of the Board of Directors of the Home and unfortunately have not attended very many of its meetings. I think you should attend every Board meeting to ascertain exactly what is going on at the Home. I assure you that you will have an opportunity to fully explain and debate your views at these meetings. I also believe that Board meetings are the best forum to develop plans and programs for the future operation of the Home.

Sincerely yours,
 Herman J. Aisenberg
 President of the Jewish Home for the Aged of R.I.

cooperation is a two-way street, in which all can benefit, especially the aged of our community.

There is and should be appropriate debate over the relationship of any agency, especially the Home and any funding agency, as the General Jewish Committee. However, to consult, plan, and act together, for the good of a segment of our population, does not mean surrendering sovereignty. Community Planning should come from the agency that is geared for this function, the General Jewish Committee. Coordination of inter-agency cooperation should also come from them. Nowhere is a "take over" of the Home by the General Jewish Committee indicated. The Home, while not receiving funds from General Jewish Committee or the United Fund from which some of the Jewish agencies do receive funds, does not lose its independence by working together with these agencies. If, for some reason, obtaining service from these agencies, working with their officers on an inter-agency committee, or cooperating with them in any way, interferes with the independence of the Home, then, this can be satisfactorily negotiated, or the Home can always withdraw.

Sincerely yours,
 Bernard Entman
 Executive Director
 Jewish Home for the Aged

Western Republicans, Nazi Sympathizers, Resign From Party

LOS ANGELES—George King, Jr., president of the Long Beach Young Republicans, and Ray Drake, corresponding secretary, both of whom were charged with anti-Semitic views and actions, submitted their resignations from the local Republican party organization. Mr. King and Mr. Drake announced their resignations shortly before a resolution to oust them was adopted unanimously by the Los Angeles County Young Republicans.

Mr. Drake was reported to have said that Hitler was a good man. He was also charged with attending American Nazi party meetings and picketing in Nazi uniform. Mr. King said that he was still doing research on Hitler.

Catholic Volunteers Assist Jewish Aged In Strike

and, on right, four volunteers help entertain two of the residents, many of whom need intensive care because of illness, blindness or the weakness of advancing age. The college students are, from left, Angela Clarke, Miss Sumerlong, May Finneran and Donna Ryan.

NEW YORK -- The transit strike, which has caused so many problems, has also brought with it many neighborly gestures of help, for which this city is not normally renowned.

At the Hebrew Home for the Aged in the Riverdale section of the Bronx, for example, where many of the 420 residents need intensive care, the 300 staff members depend mostly on subway or bus to get to work. The nearby Roman Catholic College of Mount St. Vincent received an appeal for volunteers, when the strike began, from Mrs. Elizabeth Staats, the home's director of nursing.

Some of the 800 students at the women's college had already been helping at the home in the evenings. More than 20 signed up at once to assist at the home, where they were urgently needed because of the strike.

"The girls do much more than just feed the patients," Mrs. Anastasia Cunningham, the home's assistant director of nursing, said. "They have a very good effect on the patients. They bring with them something young, something from the outside. The patients identify the girls with their grandchildren, and sometimes they will accept food from one of the girls after they have refused it from a staff worker."

Donna Ryan, a 20-year-old junior from Huntington, L.I., who is chairman of Mount St. Vincent's Hebrew Home Volunteer Committee, chatted with a New York Times reporter, about the girls' experiences as volunteer aides.

"The girls love it," she said. "It gives them a chance to do something important and also to get away from the campus after being in classes all day."

The other volunteers were Myrna Sumerlong, 19, a dark-eyed, diminutive economics major from the Philippines; Angela Clarke, 18, a freshman from Garden City, L.I., and Mary Finneran, 21, a junior from Richmond Hills, Queens.

Miss Ryan, a slender girl with bright blue eyes and light brown hair, is in her third year of volunteer work at the Hebrew Home. She was one of the first to respond when the home's executive director, Jacob Reingold, first sought help from the college.

The four girls were warmly greeted by patients and staff members as they arrived on the third floor of the Hebrew Home's infirmary.

Angela's brown eyes saddened when she was told that a woman whom she had often aided had died that morning. Silently, she removed her coat and walked down a corridor to the room of a 76-year-old woman whom she had been assigned to help with supper.

Donna, in another room, was gently coaxing an 86-year-old woman to sip the tomato soup and eat the mixed vegetables that were on the evening menu.

Myrna was chatting softly with an alert woman of 87, seated by the window in an upholstered chair with an attached tray.

"That's enough, dear, I don't want any more," the patient said and patted Myrna softly on the arm.

Fewer Tunisian Jews Need More Money

GENEVA -- The steady departure of Jews from Tunisia in recent years has left a welfare problem in which the Joint Distribution Committee is providing aid to 8,635 -- one third -- of the remaining 25,000 Jews in Tunisia, Charles H. Jordan, JDC executive chairman has reported. There were 75,000 Jews in Tunisia in 1957.

He made the disclosure in announcing the appointment of Albert Sheldon of New York as director of JDC services in Tunisia. He said the decline in the Tunisian Jewish population had not been matched by "a parallel decrease in needs."

HATE MAIL
WHITE PLAINS--Anti-Semitic and anti-Negro mail has been flooding Westchester County, of which White Plains is the center, according to a statement released here last week by Israel H. Moss, executive director of the Westchester office of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Inadvertently, the name of MRS. IRVING A. WIENER, past President of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah, was omitted from the Program Book of the Hadassah Donor Luncheon held last Tuesday. Mrs. Wiener was a "One Month Rehabilitation of a Child" Donor. The Committee regrets the error.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

18,000 AMERICANS RETIRE TO ITALY -- SHOULD YOU GO?

There are now about 18,000 retired Americans living in Italy, getting their U.S. pension and Social Security checks by regular mail.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Goodwin think they would like to join them when Mr. Goodwin retires early in 1966.

"We know Italy is a fashionable place to go these days," Mr. Goodwin says. "And it makes for a fine postmark on letters back home. But our reason for wanting to go is primarily financial.

"It has been pointed out to us that either Mexico or Italy can offer a retirement life that is both charming and cheap. Italy is more to our liking. If we can move there with an income of under $400 a month and live well on it, while at the same time we bask in the Italian sunshine and enjoy some of the finest shrines in Western civilization then it seems we would be foolish not to."

For the Goodwins, and any others with a yen to join the 18,000, here are a few facts of life on which to make a decision:

1. Italians are about the most delightful people in the world to live among. They are friendly. They like people and animals. They have fun out of being helpful. They are personality people.

2. Italians have been seeing foreigners -- in and out of wars -- for 2,000 years. They don't regard Americans as freaks. They don't shrink from them.

3. Italy is an economical place to live -- for Italians. Not for Americans who expect to maintain the normal American conveniences. A lot of nonsense has been broadcast about this. Costs in an Italian city, if food, housing, entertainment and conveniences are on the American scale, will pretty well balance the costs in any American city. And sometimes will be more.

4. Italy's climate ranges from cold and snow in the north to tropical weather in the south... about as in the U.S. It is a peninsula, with ocean water all around... about as in Florida.

5. A retired American couple moving to Italy might be surprised to discover that Italians aren't all country cousins who run barber shops and fruit stands. There are strong social classes in Italy. There are prosperity and affluence, mainly from Rome north. There are apartments, luxuries, automobiles, and plumbing fixtures Americans haven't thought of yet. An American couple moving to Italy with $350 a month will be rich Americans to many people because there is much poverty. They will seem poor Americans to many others.

6. Most of the 18,000 Americans now living in retirement in Italy aren't Irish-Americans, or Swedish-Americans, or just plain Americans. They are Italian-Americans -- Italians who came to America to work for 20 or 30 years and have now gone home to renew family ties, to revert to Italy's way of life.

7. A retired American couple, in my opinion, would not burn a single bridge in going to Italy to live. But, with bridges intact and return fare home salted away, they might go try it for six months -- and see.

Orthodox Leader Speaks Out Against Animal Friends' Ad

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Rabbi Israel Miller spoke last week for 900 Orthodox rabbis in the Rabbinical Council, and also "for the entire organized Jewish community," he said, in objecting to the "intemperate" advertisement of Friends of Animals, Inc., supporters of the Hausbeck Slaughter bill now before the New York State Legislature.

The president of the Rabbinical Council preaching at the Kingsbridge Jewish Center in the Bronx, spoke against the bill which attempts to eliminate the shackling and hoisting of animals to be slaughtered.

Rabbi Miller called the advertisement inflammatory, and said it would mislead an unwary reader into thinking the religiously-prescribed method of slaughter is inhumane and the bill advocated by Friends of Animals, Inc., is the only legislation concerned with humane treatment of animals to be slaughtered.

"They, and particularly their leader, Mrs. Alice Schmid, are well aware that the New York State Humane Association, which includes nearly all the humane groups in the state, have offered a bill which has the approval of all the national Jewish groups and which more than adequately covers the problem of humane slaughter. "We must conclude that this small group which is outside the mainstream of the humane movement has displayed an insensitivity to the religious commitments and practices of the Jewish community and is more interested in sowing the seeds of disharmony and religious dissension among the people of New York State than it is in promoting and safeguarding animal welfare.

Israelis Told Of 10 Egypt Missile Sites

TEL AVIV — Egypt now has at least 10 surface-to-air missile launching bases similar to those set up by the Soviet Union in Viet Nam. This was disclosed recently by Israel's Chief of Staff, Maj. Gen. Yitzhak Rabin, who warned that Egypt now was also expected to be receiving newer and better aircraft, new T-55 tanks and modern naval equipment.

Addressing the Engineers Club here, Gen Rabin said that Arab hostility toward Israel remains unabated, and Israel's basic security problems remain unchanged.

Referring to Israel's efforts to meet the challenge of the improved Egyptian armaments, Rabin said that, while he could not disclose publicly how Israel hopes to achieve superiority, "all I can say is that many vast efforts are being made. We are not content with leaving the balance as it is, but we intend to improve it further to our advantage."
