UN Secretary General Chooses Envoy To Study Conditions In Jerusalem

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Secretary General Thant announced this week that he had appointed Dr. Ernesto A. Thalman of Switzerland as his personal representative to study conditions in Jerusalem under Israeli rule. Dr. Thalman is to report on his mission within two weeks. He is scheduled to arrive in Jerusalem Monday.

Dr. Thalman will go to Jerusalem to assess the effects of Israel's administration of the Old City and the possibility of enforcing United Nations resolutions that would prevent Israel's permanent annexation of the area.

From 1961 through 1966, Dr. Thalman was observer at the United Nations for Switzerland.

Mr. Thant's announcement said Dr. Thalman had been appointed "for the purpose of obtaining information" to aid the Secretary General in reporting to the Security Council and the General Assembly.

A spokesman for Mr. Thant stressed that Dr. Thalman would not be a negotiator. A written statement issued by the Secretary said: "His mission will be solely to obtain information and will not entail any negotiations in relation to the implementation of the General Assembly resolution."

The spokesman denied reports that Israel had negotiated restrictions on the special envoy's functions during the month since the Assembly called for the appointment that was announced this week.

He said the mission originated "in a proposal advanced by the Secretary General because of an obvious need."

"The resolution of the General Assembly on Jerusalem, adopted on 14 July 1967, calls upon the Secretary General to report to the Security Council and the General Assembly on the situation in Jerusalem as well as on the implementation of the resolution," the spokesman continued.

"The Secretary General concluded that a personal representative of the Secretary General sent to Jerusalem for a short time for the sole purpose of gathering information would be the best means of obtaining independent data."

The resolution of July 14 said that the General Assembly deplored Israel's failure to implement a resolution that called for her evacuation of seized territory and reiterated its call to Israel

"to rescind all measures already taken and to desist forthwith from taking any action which would alter the status of Jerusalem."

The resolution also requested that the Secretary General "report to the Security Council and the General Assembly on the situation and on the implementation of the present resolution."

Recover Gems Stolen From Jerusalem Church

TEL AVIV — Most of the gems stolen from a statue of Mary in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem on Aug. 2 were recovered earlier this week by the police in a carpentry shop here.

Three young Israelis were remanded in custody for 15 days by a Magistrate's Court here.

The three, Ephraim Yaffe, 20 years old; Pinhas Aloni Aloni, 20 and Avraham Reuven, 21, were arrested after a jeweler, to whom they had tried to sell the gems, informed the police.

The sacred objects included a gold halo with inlaid jewels donated by Queen Maria of Portugal in 1624, six gold hearts and a pair of platinum earrings. They were stolen from a glass case in the church in the former Jordanian sector of Jerusalem, now controlled by Israel.

The police said that the burglars had taken the halo and a tiara apart, but that most of the parts had been recovered. However, a precious stone from the center of one of the seven stars in the halo is still missing.

The police learned a few days ago that gold from the halo had been sold to a jeweler's store in Ramat Gan, a suburb of Tel Aviv.

Most of the pieces were found hidden in a locksmith's shop owned by Aloni's father in the Tel Aviv slum district of Abu Kabir.

east bank each day.

There was no indication of how the Israelis would tighten the security check on the returning refugees. They have announced that they will bar known agitators and convicted criminals.

The deadline for the return of the refugees seems likely to limit their number. None is expected to return before the end of the week because of the paperwork involved, and the Israeli press has estimated that not more than 6,000 people can possibly cross the wrecked Allenby Bridge in orderly fashion in a day.

It remains to be seen how many refugees will apply for readmission. The Amman radio reported this week that refugees began filling out forms in 164 offices on the east bank. The radio said a team of 500 Jordanian officials was assisting the refugees with the forms, which were distributed by the International Red Cross.

Dr. Warhaftig, the Minister for Religious Affairs, said he had met with Bishop Basilios, the Coptic Patriarch of the Old City, and assured him that the right of the pilgrims to visit holy places in Israel, would be preserved.

The Copts, who are members of an autonomous Christian church in communion with the church of Ethiopia, revere a number of sites in Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth. Traditionally, Coptic pilgrims visited the sites under Jordanian control in Jerusalem and in the west bank area during Christmas.

Despite the Israeli assurance that they may continue this practice, the Egyptian pilgrims will need the permission of the United Arab Republic. Dr. Warhaftig said he had no idea what Cairo would decide.

SNCC Newsletter Accuses Israelis Of Atrocities

Leaders of two major national Jewish groups scored accusations made by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee in its bimonthly newspaper, The S.N.C.C. Newsletter, in which the committee attacked Zionism and accused Jews of committing atrocities against the Arabs. This is the first time that the militant Negro organization, which advocates black power, has taken a formal position in the Arab-Israel dispute.

Nathan Perlmutter, director of domestic affairs of the American Jewish Committee, said that it was "interesting and ironical and sad that this outrageous attack is of a piece with a similar attack on the front page of the current issue of 'The Thunderbolt,' the official organ of the racist National Rights Party."

"Do you know . . ." the newsletter asks, "that the Zionists conquered the Arab homes and land through terror, force and massacres; that they wiped out over 30 Arab villages before and after they took control of the area they now call 'Israel'?"

A blurred photograph in the newsletter is labeled "Gaza Massacres, 1956," and carries a caption that says: "Zionists lined up Arab victims and shot them in the back in cold blood. This is the Gaza Strip, Palestine, not Dacca, Germany."

Anti-Semitism Charged

One cartoon in the newsletter depicts Gen. Moshe Dayan, the Israeli Defense Minister, with dollar signs — rather than stars — on his shoulders. And another cartoon shows a hand, marked with the Star of David and a dollar sign, tightening a rope that is fastened around the necks of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and Mohammed Ali, who is also known as Cassius Clay, the heavyweight boxer.

"This newsletter follows the pro-Arab, Soviet and racist lines and smacks very heavily of anti-Semitism," Irving Shulman, southeastern director of the Antidefamation League of B'nai B'rith, said today.

However, Ralph Featherstone,

the student committee's program director, denied that his organization was anti-Semitic. He said that the student committee was not interested in indicting all Jews, but "only Jewish oppressors," a category that he applied to Israel and "those Jews in the little Jew shops in the (Negro) ghettos."

Mr. Featherstone also said that while the student committee had requested and received information from Arab embassies in preparing its article on the Middle East situation, it had also done a "great deal" of research in Atlanta libraries.

He denied, too, that his organization followed a "Soviet line."

The student committee, he said, is drawn to the Arab cause because it is working toward a "third world alliance of oppressed people all over the world — Africa, Asia, and Latin America" — and considers that the Arabs have been oppressed continually by Israelis and by Europeans as well in such Arab countries as Algeria.

"Actually," he said, "the term 'third world' is just an expression like fifth column. Actually, there is only one other world in addition to the third world, and that's the white world — and Russia is a part of it."

In its newsletter, the student committee charged:

"That Israel segregates those few Arabs who remained in their homeland, that more than 90 per cent of these Arabs live in 'security zones,' under martial law, and are not allowed to travel freely within Israel and are the victims of discrimination in education, jobs, etc."

"That dark-skinned Jews from the Middle East and North Africa are also second-class citizens in Israel, that the color line puts them in an inferior position to the white European Jews."

"That the United States Government has constantly supported Israel and Zionism by sending military and financial aid to this illegal state ever since it was (Continued on page 11)

Israel To Permit Arabs' Return; Will Tighten Security Check

JERUSALEM — The Government decided this week to submit the Arab refugees who return from Jordan to a rigid security check, but not to prevent their return.

After an animated, two-hour discussion, the Cabinet voted to reaffirm its earlier decision to permit the refugees who fled from the occupied west bank of the Jordan River to go back to their homes.

The Minister for Religious Affairs also said that adherents of all faiths, including the Egyptian Coptic Christians, would be permitted to visit the sites in Israel holy to their religion.

"The political divisions between Israel and the Arab countries will not affect the right of free access to the holy places as far as we are concerned," the Minister, Dr. Zerach Warhaftig, said in an interview.

"We plan to permit all pilgrims, regardless of their nationality, to visit their shrines during the holy days they observe."

There had been heavy pressures from both inside and outside the Government to block the return of refugees to the west bank because of statements made earlier by the Jordanian Government.

"Several Cabinet ministers felt we should cancel the deal altogether," one Government source said. "And many people outside the Government — influential people who are normally liberal on most things — urged the Cabinet to prevent the return. The feelings ran very strong on the subject."

The Cabinet also ruled that the deadline for the return of the refugees would be Aug. 31. The deadline was first set for Aug.

10, then extended, but Government spokesmen have been persistently vague as to whether the deadline referred to the physical return of the refugees or the submission of their applications. It was made clear today that the deadline referred to the refugees' return.

On Tuesday, the Jordanian Finance Minister, Abdul Wahab Majall, urged the refugees clustered on the east bank to return "to help your brothers continue their political action and remain a thorn in the flesh of the aggressor until the crisis has been solved."

Mr. Majall announced that each refugee would receive a three-month supply of food and one and a half dinars (about $4.20) if he returned to the west bank.

Mr. Majall then announced that any refugee who declined to return would be refused further aid from the Jordanian Government.

The Finance Minister's statements infuriated the Israelis, who have never been enthusiastic about the idea of readmitting the refugees. The first decision of the Government, shortly after the war in June, was not to permit the return of those who fled the west bank after June 5, when the fighting began. The Government reversed itself on the urging of Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

In the wake of the recent Jordanian statements, significant pressure built up, particularly among the right-wing parties, to reverse the decision again.

Israel authorities estimate that the refugees number more than 150,000 though they dispute the Jordanian figure of 250,000. About 500 people continue to cross the Jordan River to the

Civil Rights Leaders Protest Attack Of SNCC As Anti-Semitic

NEW YORK — Civil rights leaders reacted with angry statements following the attack on Zionism and Israel made by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

These leaders, in protesting the attack, all used the term "anti-Semitism". They also called the committee an extremist group that did not speak for the American Negro.

The protests were directed at a bimonthly newsletter of the student group, which accused Israelis of committing atrocities against the Arabs and also charged that there was bias in Israel against dark skinned Jews.

Spokesmen for leading Jewish and Zionist organizations pointed to the sacrifices made by Jews in working for civil rights causes.

Rights leaders tended to emphasize that the militant Negro organization was not representative of all American Negro opinion.

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said that the views in the Newsletter resembled those of the American Nazi party on Arab-Israel relations.

"Negro citizens are well aware of the contributions made to the drive for equal rights by Jewish citizens. Negroes have been the victims of racism for too long to indulge in group stereotypes and racial hate themselves," Mr. Young said.

Mr. Young also said that students by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in big city ghettos had shown the Negro to be less anti-Semitic than other Americans.

Desperate for Attention
In a joint statement, A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and Bayard Rustin, executive director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, said they were "appalled and distressed by the anti-Semitic article." The two rights leaders said the statement reflected a "complete divorce from the opinions and aspirations of the mass of American Negroes."

Each time S.N.C.C. issues such statements, "the organization becomes less effective in the Negro community, grows smaller and becomes more desperate for attention," they declared.

The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who was in Atlanta, declined to comment on S.N.C.C.'s position on the Arab-Israeli dispute because he had not read the newsletter. He said he was strongly opposed to anti-Semitism and "anything that does not signify my concern for humanity for the Jewish people."

Harry Belafonte, the singer, who has been a financial supporter of the committee, said through a spokesman in California that he knew nothing of the newsletter and was surprised at the reports of its contents. The spokesman said Mr. Belafonte had been a supporter of Israel and performed at fund-raising benefits.

Development Loans To Jordan Delayed

AMMAN, Jordan — Informed sources said recently that the United States was holding up two development loans to Jordan because of uncertainty about the kingdom's future.

They said the outlook for the loans, and for the entire United States aid program here, which accounts for one-third of Jordan's budget, would depend on the kingdom's future policies and security situation and on the fate of the west bank of the Jordan River.

The sources also said it was possible that other Arab leaders might apply pressure on King Hussein to reduce his heavy reliance on American aid. The United States aid program, which has dispensed half a billion dollars in the last 15 years, is largely at a standstill as a result of the war and the tensions that followed it.

All but seven of the 80 Americans in the aid mission have been evacuated from the kingdom, and their superiors in Washington have indefinitely postponed approval of the two loans, which were to have totaled $31-million.

One, for $16-million, was to have financed a thermal power plant at the town of Zarka, 15 miles northeast of Amman. The plant would have filled the power requirements of the kingdom's northern region.

The other, for $15-million, was to pay in part for a plant that extracts potash, valued for fertilizer, from the Dead Sea. The Jordanian Government hopes to build the plant on the Lisan Peninsula, which juts into the sea from the east, and to truck the potash to the Gulf of Aqaba for export.

Blind In Los Angeles Join Sighted Classes

LOS ANGELES — During the past 12 years, there have been 134 Bar Mitzvahs and 20 Bas Mitzvahs among blind children attending Orthodox, Conservative and Reform religious schools in the United States, according to Dr. Jacob Freid, executive director of the Jewish Braille Institute of America.

Dr. Freid said that this has come about as a result of a campaign by the institute to enable the blind to join seeing children in regular classes, in contrast to the general practice, up until around 1950, of segregating blind children in specialized training classrooms. Dr. Freid presented this information in a report to the annual convention here of the National Federations of the Blind.

He said Los Angeles was one of several cities which were "pilot areas" where a breakthrough has been made in educating the blind during the past decade, both in public and in Jewish religious schools. The religious schools receive Braille textbooks without charge from the institute, he said.

Dr. Freid said that the first breakthrough in giving career opportunities to the blind has been in the intellectual and professional fields. He reported that in the past 15 years, the number of blind professors in colleges has risen from a handful to more than 50.

Pavilion Of Judaism Honors Braille Institute

MONTREAL—The Pavilion of Judaism at Expo '67 honored the Jewish Braille Institute of America on Aug. 9. Sam Steinberg of Montreal, president of the Foundation for Judaism which sponsors the Pavilion of Judaism, and Judge Emil N. Baar of New York City, president of the Jewish Braille Institute, were principal speakers.

One of the exhibits is the original manuscript of "The Diary of Anne Frank," which has been lent by her father. To supplement this exhibit there are reproductions of the diary in English Braille, in a book printed in large type for partially-sighted individuals, on a "talking book" disc and on a "talking book" tape. The tape recording, which is played continuously, uses the voices of two 15-year-old girls.

As part of the formal program on Jewish Braille Institute Day, there was a demonstration of some of the activities carried on by the Institute, the transcribing of Braille, a recording session in Yiddish with a playback, an excerpt from one of the Institute's recordings for the blind of the entire collected works of 16 volumes by Sholem Aleichem and reading of the Haftorah by a blind boy whose Bar Mitzvah was made possible through the Institute.

While Mark Jay Mirsky was working as assistant professor of English at Stanford University, he hesitated to answer my question, "Is it true that there still is no Jewish fraternity at Stanford?"

Mirsky authored "Thou Worm Jacob" (Macmillan) now in its second printing.

He now replies, "A yes or no answer would not really clarify the situation. There has been an increasing attempt on the part of the University to de-emphasize fraternities at Stanford."

"The most intelligent members of the student body either refuse to join or sign up in the one fraternity that has an open enrollment policy."

"Since Jewish students are rarely at the bottom of the class, their energies are less and less involved in fraternities, and more caught up in educational living experiments, which have been initiated on the campus."

"I was at Stanford as a graduate student five years ago. I must say there is now a much more intense Jewish life at the university."

"Services are now allowed on campus, which meant that an Orthodox minyan could be and was organized. It became feasible to walk to synagogue on Saturday."

"The Hillel is quite active and has drawn large crowds to many of its activities. There seems to have been a noticeable increase in the number of Jewish students and faculty. If you write to Rabbi Familant at Hillel, he may have the exact figures."

"This coming year, I shall be at the City College of New York (where there is no Jewish problem) as part of a program to experiment with writers as teachers of English."

Sincerely - Mark Jay Mirsky.
There's your answer, mom and dad, if you've been singing that lilting tune titled, "I didn't raise my boy to be a Stanford undergraduate."

Israelis Arrest Nathan

For 2nd 'Peace Flight'

TEL AVIV — Able Nathan, who created a sensation early last year with his flight to Egypt in an attempt to see Nasser for peace talks, has made another vain effort to see the Egyptian dictator.

Taking off from Nicosia, Cyprus, where he told airport officials that he was returning to Israel, the self-appointed peace pilot flew to Port Said where, after complaining of engine trouble, he was allowed to land. However, after ascertaining that there was nothing wrong with his plane, Egyptian airport officials ordered him to return immediately.

Returning to Israel, he was met by a "reception committee" composed of Israeli police who arrested him for making an attempt to contact the enemy.

ber, Tony refused to attend the Moscow Film Festival. He said, "Any country that encourages another nation to push Israel into the sea will never get my cooperation."

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Pictures Producers, argued that level heads are needed to hold diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union on an even keel. Tony took himself off the hook by accepting a role in the Mirisch Production, "The Night They Raided Minsky's." After the Moscow Festival had ended, call it coincidence if you wish, but Tony canceled out of "Minsky's."

Kirk Douglas goes along with Jack Valenti. He has agreed to tour Arab nations. He feels we should make friends. He's convinced it can be done. Many agree with Douglas that it can be done in this country. They're not so sure it will work in the cannon's mouth. Especially, when it is the avowed purpose of the officials controlling the cannon to keep firing until Israel becomes one big hole in the sand.

Jordan Hampers Return of Palestinian Arabs

JERUSALEM — In talks with Secretary-General U Thant's personal representative, Israeli officials renewed proposals for direct discussion with the Jordanian authorities on measures to facilitate the return to the Israeli-held west bank area of the Arabs who abandoned their homes and fled to Jordan during the June fighting.

The proposal was made by Foreign Minister Abba S. Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan when they met with Nils-Goran Gussing, the Secretary-General's representative for humanitarian affairs. Mr. Gussing later departed for Cyprus and Egypt.

Jordanian officials thus far have refused to meet with the Israelis. They have also announced that they would not accept for distribution to the refugees in Jordan the identification forms which Israel requires of each applicant for return to Israeli-held territory.

In a compromise move, the Israelis had agreed to have the papers, which have the name of the State of Israel on them, overprinted with the Red Cross name, but this has not been accepted by the Jordanians.

As a result, preparations for the return of Palestinian Arabs to their homes on the west bank have been snaggled.

Mindful of the scope of Mr. Gussing's terms of reference, the Israeli officials raised with him the question of the treatment of the Jews in the Arab countries. So far, Egypt has refused to permit the International Red Cross to visit the estimated 600 Egyptian and stateless Jews held in Alexandria and Cairo prisons.

Reports from other countries, with the exception of Tunisia and Morocco, indicate that the Jews there continue to be in physical danger and subject to all forms of harassment.

Rumania To Buy Israeli Buses

JERUSALEM — Israel and Rumania are expected to sign a trade agreement here under which Rumania will purchase 82 buses from Israel at a cost of about $1,500,000. The agreement, a sequel to the general economic and cultural exchange treaty signed by the two countries two months ago, is expected to provide for the purchase by Rumania of 200 vehicles yearly for the next few years.

The buses will be built here by Leyland Ashdod. The engines will be supplied by the Leyland Motor Company of Britain, a partner in Leyland-Ashdod, but most of the components will be manufactured here and the assemblies will be completed here.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

One track minds are sometimes good provided they are aimed in the right direction. Today's hand is a fine example of this for the Declarers who persisted in one suit failed to make their contract whereas those whose main goal was to garner nine tricks and went about it correctly made a top score.

Diamonds? Actually, the Club finesse is only a fifty-fifty chance so he should go after the Diamonds, a better proposition. He cannot afford to lose the Club finesse for another Heart return would preclude him from ever winning any Diamond tricks. Now which is the best way to play the Diamonds?

West's Heart lead seemed to indicate length there even though our Declarer did not get the benefit of a Heart bid from West which would have guaranteed this length. Even so he decided that his best play was to go to the Dummy with the Spade Ace and lead a small Diamond to his Queen. This would insure his contract even against a four-one split unless West's singleton happens to be the Ace. The suit does break that way but East holds the Ace, not West.

If East should hop right up with his Ace to lead back a Heart, Declarer would be all set for now he would have four Diamond tricks and would make 10 tricks but the East in today's hand was not so obliging and apparently, by looking at the scores later, not many Easts were although most of the Declarers made the mistake of playing a high Diamond from their own hand first. Now they had no chance to make the contract.

Also, any Declarer who persisted in Diamonds, that one track mind I was talking about, found they had not enough tricks. Our Declarer, after winning his Diamond, again stopped to analyze the situation. Smelling a rat in the Diamond suit he changed his mind and turned his attention to the Clubs. If the finesse should lose, he still had his nine tricks, and if it should win, he could then return to the Diamond suit. When the Club finesse did lose and the next Heart was played knocking out his last stopper, he ran his nine tricks and was quite happy with the result.

Moral: In each hand, as something important happens, the situation might alter. You must learn to be flexible enough to take advantage of knowledge gained.

UN Building To Return To TSO Gen. Odd Bull

UNITED NATIONS — Israel recently agreed to return Government House in Jerusalem to Gen. Odd Bull, Chief of Staff of the UN Truce Supervision Organization.

Israel's permanent representative to the UN, Gideon Rafael, informed Secretary-General U Thant of Israel's consent to return the residence on the condition that "it is understood that in the view of the Government of Israel" the "concern of Gen. Bull and his staff is with those cease-fire resolutions of the Security Council and no longer with the general armistice agreement and the now obsolete arrangements of the past," Rafael said.

Rafael informed Thant that the building was severely damaged while the area was under heavy Jordanian fire during the fighting on June 5. Gen. Bull and his staff were evacuated by Israel to places of safety in Jerusalem.

After the cease-fire between Israel and Jordan became effective, Rafael informed the Secretary-General that Israeli authorities in Jerusalem undertook the necessary work to clear away the debris and to repair the damage.

Rafael, in his letter to Thant, described the difficult circumstances in providing adequate facilities to Gen. Bull and his staff to enable him to discharge the functions placed upon him. These included housing, office accommodations and facilities for communications.

"It remains the policy of the Government of Israel to continue to make these facilities available to Gen. Bull for that purpose," he said.

Cairo's Character Changed By Departure Of Foreigners

CAIRO—Weeks after the brief Arab-Israeli war, tattered posters with martial slogans and a smiling President Gamal Abdel Nasser still looked down on the people of Cairo, but the slogans no longer stirred the populace as they did during the fighting.

To be sure, most Arab youths still think in such uncompromising terms as "death or victory." Their elders, however, have been inventing "defeatist" jokes of the kind that the President, in a speech on July 23, branded as harmful to "national dignity."

"The world's gone crazy," says one Egyptian sergeant to another in a popular tale. "Every 10 years or so we are loaded on trucks and driven hundreds of miles into the desert. Then, suddenly, the convoy comes to a halt and we are ordered to walk back to base as fast as we can."

In a city like Cairo, with its heaps of sandbags, machinegun positions and blast walls, a good joke is something to be cherished. And there are those who say that as long as Cairenes vent their anger in jokes Mr. Nasser should be pleased.

The city was not damaged during Israeli raids on outlying military airfields, but the mass exodus of foreigners dealt it a devastating blow of a different kind: the onset of provincialism.

The loss of cosmopolitan luster did not start on June 5. The Arab-Israeli war merely accelerated a process that began 11 years ago, when the United Arab Republic nationalized the Suez Canal.

With the foreigners gone, a good part of Cairo functions without purpose, and it may be only a question of time until the neon signs in English and French, the foreign book stores and the foreign language papers cease to exist.

The Egyptian Gazette, Cairo's only English-language paper, is Most pairs ended in the same contract with some receiving the helpful bid from West of Hearts somewhere along the line which should have forced them to play the Diamonds correctly. Regardless, all did receive the lead of the Heart Jack. Against today's Declarer, East went up with his King, the right play if his partner had led from the interior sequence of the Ace, Jack, 10 etc. Declarer, of course, won this trick and stopped to weigh his chances.

He could now count five tricks in the majors and needed four more in the minor suits. He had loads of tricks available if he had time but he now had but one Heart stopper so he must try to win his necessary tricks before losing the lead more than once. Which suit should he attack, Clubs or in trouble already. Its two British editors decided they had had enough, and their Arab assistants have found it difficult to carry on.

The same fate befell the German-language programs of the Cairo radio. West German staff members were asked to leave, and the service now sounds more like Chinese than German. East Germans, who still abound in Cairo, probably find the programs ludicrous, though they have not been heard to complain in public.

Hardest hit by the foreigners' departure are the hotels, restaurants and nightclubs. Such big hotels as the Nile Hilton and Semiramis still appear to be doing business as usual because they cater to the needs of journalists and delegations from "friendly" countries.

In the Semiramis, for instance, nearly half of the guests are Soviet citizens whose gait and haircuts make it a fair assumption that they are army or air force officers. They consume large quantities of such "capitalist" pleasures as Cocco-Cola and American cigarettes.

Nothing could better illustrate the plight of the Egyptian tourist industry, which normally earns $70-million a year, than the banner headlines with which the local press greeted the first postwar tourists, about 70 Frenchmen.

Cairo's street life is back to normal, but the absence of Westerners makes the setting rather homely. A veteran correspondent in the Middle East remarked drily the other night: "If it were not for the Nile, you would think you were in Jidda or Daran."

For reasons not quite clear to observers untrained in military matters, many stone beaches along the Nile are surrounded with sandbags. Some of the bags, which once contained American wheat or other aid, bear the inscription, "Donated by the People of the United States."

Viewpoint

By Jeff Berger
The New Poignancy
In Popular Music

Throughout the centuries, one might observe, the Establishment has been forecasting the doom of humanity because the younger generation is rapidly "going to pot."

Until now, few took such observations seriously or literally, although there is a growing tendency among American youth now to experiment with drugs which affect the senses. One of those drugs is "pot," of marijuana, but this column doesn't deal with the proliferating use of drugs among youth.

A popular misconception is that American youth generally wants to disassociate itself from social responsibility. Despite thousands of Hippies living a communal love life, American youth cares about the world's problems and is socially responsible. The desire to eliminate racial injustice, poverty, and war from the international scene is strong among teens and is getting stronger as impatience with the nauseating status quo grows more intense. The Peace Corps and VISTA are two examples of people, largely American youth, working against social evils.

As the interest in social improvements increases among youth, it is reflected in popular music. The Beatles have for months been pointing out the loneliness of individuals in an insanely fast-moving, mass-oriented society. There is a monstrous double standard in this country and throughout the world permeating every phase of society. In "Eleanor Rigby," a Beatle tune popular a few months ago, the Beatles attacked the double standard by which some people demand others live when those doing the demanding hardly live up to their own requirements.

Perhaps the sharpest example of social history infiltrating popular music is to be found in the currently popular "Society's Child," a song lamenting prejudice against interracial dating sung by a 16-year-old girl.

The song begins as a young man whose "face is clean and shining black as night" comes to his white beau's front door to be greeted by the girl's mother who calls him "Boy" instead of his name, which isn't mentioned throughout the song. The mother becomes the first, in the girl's words, to say she can't see him anymore.

In school, girls tell their girlfriend to stick to her "own kind," a term vaguely reminiscent of the tragic cause of death of a leading character in West Side Story, if you're familiar with the plot.

Teachers preach equality but tell the couple to split, and the recurring "Can't see you anymore" — this time said by the teachers — comes back hauntingly.

After several rounds during which two-faced people make asinine cracks about a girl's right to date whomever she pleases, and sharp answers to each by the girl, the final lines go like this:

"But that day (the day when interracial dating won't be a target for anybody's pot shots) will have to wait for a while / Baby, I'm only Society's Child / When we're older, things may change / But for now, this is the way they must remain: / And I say, 'I can't see you anymore. . . .'" So a couple in love falls by the wayside, victims of intense prejudice.

And whom did YOU take pot shots at today?

Soviets Accuse Voice Of False Reporting

WASHINGTON—Soviet diplomats here accused the Voice of America of seeking to turn the Moslem world against Moscow by broadcasting false reports about the Arab-Israeli situation.

The Russians said the radio service had attributed to the Soviet Novosti propaganda service reports that Egyptian President Nasser was to blame for the Arab defeat and that Russia knew the Cairo charges about United States air intervention were false.

Voice officials said that such broadcasts had been made based on a Novosti published release obtained in Moscow and Pakistan. The report is still being broadcast but now carries a Soviet denial at the end.

The Prejudice Of The Few

The action by the SNCC (the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee) in publishing a story in its news bulletin calling Israel illegal and accusing the Israelis of atrocities against the Arabs reveals again that any organization which believes in violence (regardless of its name) as a method of securing justice can only end by using lies and nonsense to bolster its lack of reason.

The Negroes of the United States have good reason to be unhappy and dissatisfied with conditions as they are. Granted equality by the United States Constitution, they have been barred from enjoying a decent way of life because of prejudice.

Those Negroes with intelligence who truly wish for the growth of their people so that they may share what the United States way of living has to offer, have shown clearly that this is not their way of doing things.

A short quote from a letter sent by Theodore Bikel, actor-folksinger, long active in the civil rights movement and a veteran supporter of SNCC, to the organization, will perhaps show the results of their action more clearly:

"What you have wrought in this latest of a long line of missteps will be with us for a long time to come. It will not deter those among us who are secure in the knowledge that the Movement is bigger than your pronouncements and that it speaks responsibly and with reason. But many thousands not so secure will in bewilderment withdraw support from all civil rights causes because of your inconsistency and folly. Thus once again you will have harmed no one but the Negro himself.

"Not being able to turn my mind from your monstrous comparison of my brothers with the arch foe of my people — nay, of all people — I shall leave you with this thought: you may want to spit in my face for being White and a Fat Cat. But do not look to me for silence while you insult the memory of my people so recently martyred; you have no right to tamper with their graves. And think of Mickey Schwerner and Andy Goodman. You have no right to spit on their tomb; they died for a concept of brotherhood which you now cover with shame."

The one thing we must remember is, that although this organization has acted no better than a "Link" Rockwell has, it is only a small part of a group of people who need help. The stupidity of a few should not make us forget the majority.

Men, Machines And Color

The technicians at the IBM laboratories have invented a computing machine which not only plays chess but beats all the technicians. It is in the subsequent invention of such machines that the answer to our race problem lies.

For what, really, is the difference between a chess machine and a chess master? The essential difference, or so God's children are told, is that the chess master can make a machine and the machine cannot. Of course, there are machines that make machines but they do not play chess. (If they play, they play badly, probably.)

On that account, is the chess master better than the machine? I mean better in the sense that the chess master is more complex? I am not quite sure. For the machine will always fulfill its function; it will always play chess. The chess master will not. There are times when he will refuse to play chess because the game insists he follow certain rules.

For example, let us take a chess master from Albany, Ga., challenged by another master who happens, say, not only to be a disciple of Martin Luther King's nonviolence crusade but also happens to be a member of the NAACP. It is doubtful the challenger could get into Albany, but if he did, the town would insist that the two players adopt a different set of rules; namely, that the master from Albany get two moves while the colored man gets one.

This puts the colored man at a decided disadvantage. So decided a disadvantage is it, that the colored man begins to pray. The chess master interprets the bended knees and the clasped hands not only as a sign of weakness but of arrogance as well, and if the game continues it does so with the chess master from Albany outside the cell and the colored man inside and the board between them.

I submit this is no way to run a chess tourney. It would be a much better tourney if instead of two fellows, two machines took over the game and captured pawns endlessly. The machines will play a better game, and there will be praise because they haven't shot down unarmed people in prayer.

After all, two fellows don't have to play chess as long as there are machines to do it for them. They don't have to eat and drink either, if we can devote ourselves to inventing machines to do it for them. The invention of these machines will obviate the terrible difficulty we have in trying to see that every man receives an equitable paycheck. No one will even have to vote, if we can get a machine that will govern wisely and well. If we surrender the world to the machines, it will be easier on everyone.

HOW TO SPOT A DIAMOND GYP

The uniquely skilled diamond cutters of Israel are now back in full production. The fortunes in rough diamonds which were shipped out of the country on the eve of the Mideast war in early June for safekeeping in vaults in Europe and the U.S., have been returned. Israel, second largest producer of polished diamonds in the world, is once again finishing precious diamonds for export.

But the Mideast war — as wars and world crises usually do — has left its mark on the diamond's price. On the first Monday following the outbreak, the price of a large parcel of cut diamonds for sale in the New York Diamond Club was reported to have been jacked up 50 per cent; on the first Tuesday the parcel was withdrawn altogether. Israel's rapid victory abruptly halted the price surge, but as of today retail prices of popular-sized diamonds are up 3 per cent over May, according to Fred Goldman, president of Medco, Inc., the world's largest jewelry firm selling fine diamonds in 122 department stores across the country.

It's unlikely that you will buy diamonds as an investment — and unless you are a highly trained expert, you should not try to play against the pros in this game. It's also unlikely that you will put substantial amounts of your savings in diamonds.

But almost surely you will buy or own a diamond or two or more in your lifetime. More than 80 per cent of men in the 18 to 25-year age bracket in this country buy an average 1/2 carat diamond engagement ring for their fiancées. The average U.S. family is among the principal buyers of the world's diamonds.

But while the long-term trend of diamond prices is strongly upward, the market value of the stones you buy may be a fraction of what you pay — unless you keep out of the hands of the diamond gyps. What's more, no agency of the law — federal, state or local — or any business bureau or any jeweler's trade association stringently polices the individual sale of diamonds through retail outlets. Even so-called "reputable" jewelers have "palmed off inferior diamonds to an unknowledgeable consumer," warns the Jewelers Vigilance Committee, an association of jewelers created to regulate the industry's advertising — and, the committee adds, the deception may be hidden by incorrect and collusive appraisals.

Your fundamental guide is obvious: buy only from an established jeweler whose reputation you can trust. Goldman also suggests you may be able to detect an unscrupulous dealer if he tries to sell you:

(1) A perfect blue-white diamond. There aren't any in the whole world. In fact, the term "blue-white" is illegal and any jeweler who describes a stone as such, says Goldman, "is committing a fraudulent sales act."

(2) An artificially colored diamond. This is a genuine diamond of poor color. The diamond may be colored by an electronic treatment of atomic bombardment to bring up its brilliance and make it permanent, or the diamond's back may be colored with a blue dye which is not permanent. In either case, a jeweler must state in writing before the diamond is sold what treatment was used, under penalty of fine and jail. The first penalty was recently imposed in New York City, when a jeweler was fined $1,000 and jailed for 60 days for not notifying a customer in writing in advance of a sale of a diamond's artificial coloring.

(3) A piggy-back diamond. This is a small diamond placed in close proximity to another, with the mounting hiding the separations of the stones and making the two small diamonds look like one large one. Dishonest jewelers will try to sell this as, say, "one carat in diamonds" or some other deceptive advertising.

(4) A synthetic diamond which will look like the real thing. Its chemical term, though, will be "colorless synthetic spinel," or "colorless synthetic sapphire," or "synthetic rutile," or "strontium titanite."

A diamond's real value will be directly dependent on the four "C's": carat (weight), color, clarity and cut. These are standard yardsticks and reputable dealers usually will evaluate a diamond against these yardsticks at a similar price. Don't try to outwit the pros. Just get your money's worth, and over the years you'll come out way ahead.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

NAME: A young actress at P. J. Clarke's told Kurt Kasznar she planned to adopt a new name for her stage career. "I've decided," she said, "on a first name — Tara. Now what would go with 'Tara'?" "Ra-boom-dee-yay," replied Kasznar.

DOMICILE: James Jones, whose newest novel is "Take Me to the Widow-Maker," lives in Paris. He was asked if he's an expatriate. No, he's too young, he said, to belong to the Hemingway-Fitzgerald generation. Nor did he run away from America: "I simply came over here to live because I find I can work easier and more comfortably here."

Paris is a temporary residence, said Jones. "Everywhere I live, forever probably, is temporary."

SLOGAN: A group of Americans in London's Westbury Hotel met with a Frenchman just in from Montreal. He warned them: "De Gaulle's next speech will end with, 'Vive Louisiana Libre!'"

SYMPATHY: Robert Cohn, who'd been invited to show his "Young Americans" film at the Moscow Festival — the showing later was canceled — salvaged only one pleasant memory of the journey: on his way back to his Moscow hotel, he was given a lift by a Russian who expressed sympathy over his disappointment — Andrew Voznesensky, Russia's controversial poet.

RULE: Secretary of Willard Wirtz, who last week rescued a child from drowning, said he's created the Wirtz Law on Survival: "Never get in the water unless it's over the head of your opponent."

RESTAURATEUR: Mrs. Sidney Kaye, widow of the Russian Tea Room's owner, kept the place open last Monday night, despite his death earlier in the day. That's how he would have wanted it, said Mrs. Kaye — who was trained by him and will continue to operate the restaurant.

THOUGHTFULNESS: Kaye's elderly mother survives him. She once fell in her hotel apartment at 5 a.m. and in the hospital was questioned about her son. No, she insisted, she couldn't remember his phone number. . . . She later confided she did remember, and explained:

"Sidney works very hard. I didn't want them to wake him up with a call so early in the morning."

REHEARSALS: Director Harold Clurman told the Eugene O'Neill Memorial Theater workshop about Stanislowski, founder of the Moscow Art — a rich man who'd rehearse his cast for a year. Stanislowski said: "No matter how long you rehearse, you always need two weeks more."

SALES: Henri Flammarion, the publisher, was introduced at a convention of bookstore managers as "a leading member of our profession." He denied this: "There is a fundamental difference between us. Your business is to sell books; mine is to sell my books."

MEMOS: Lynda Bird brought Luci to McCall's to meet her co-workers. . . . Joseph Strick, who directed "Ulysses," will direct 20th-Fox's film, "Justine" . . . Sr Michael Redgrave

'Let Cemetery Be Place Of Grace... Not A Jammed Housing Project'

In the Lincoln cemetery, behind a high steel and barbed wire fence, below the railroad tracks and highway which surround our Jewish graves, lies what is left of a pond. Once a beautiful, generous and useful lake whose branches reached throughout the territory of the cemetery, now a dump and disgrace, it is every day being filled in with the fill from graves. Instead of acknowledging a graceful and gracious natural gift and consolation, we are cramming the space tightly and totally, and I am writing a last-minute plea to rescue, redeem, and RETAIN the little pond that remains in our keeping.

As recently as this spring, the spot was still a surprisingly charming and richly endowed little park, little wildlife preserve. Bracketed with lovely small trees, it harbors an amazing abundance and variety of birds: bright orange orioles, red-wings, warblers. I saw a beaver, chipmunks, and of course a marvelous proliferation of wildflowers. As a conservationist, member of national and local (Audubon) societies devoted to the preservation of natural balances, I know that even so small a watershed-wetland as this is highly valuable and precious.

Yet one sensitive to the imaginative claim of such treasures would be appalled and dismayed at the fate of the small swamp and garden: full of refuse, slabs and curbs, junk and garbage, it bespeaks our contempt for nature, our unforgivable participation in the great American abuse of the beauty of our American land. Concealed from view, it suggests our failure as Jews to respect God's designs, not merely our own practical schemes.

I am writing this letter, hoping it will be printed and read, to urge strongly that the fence be removed, the woodland and waterway be permitted to flourish, the dumped soil and waste matter removed. It is a great mark of disrespect for the dead to show disregard for the esthetic dimension of the experience of nature — and a mark of disregard for the living who mourn them. Let the violation of the water's right to be, let the stingy abuse of the rights of small animals, birds and even trees, be stopped. Let the cemetery be a place of grace and faith, not a jammed housing project for the rejected. To groom, open, protect and display the space would constitute a spiritual triumph.

Goldberg Hopeful Of Mideast Peace

UNITED NATIONS—Positive developments in the middle east toward an eventual peace settlement between Israelis and Arabs was seen by Arthur J. Goldberg, United States representative at the United Nations, on Aug. 7. He said that movement toward a settlement is going to be slow but there has been some progress and no retrogression.

Asked about reports that the Soviet Union was converting Alexandria into a permanent base for Soviet warships in the Mediterranean, Mr. Goldberg said that the United States was hopeful that a limitation on arms shipments to the Middle East would be worked out as part of a settlement.

United Nations officials are studying a report from Lieut. Gen. Odd Bull, commander of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization, which has posted cease-fire observers along the Suez Canal between Israeli and Egyptian forces and is supervising the cease-fire on the Syrian-Israeli front.

General Bull, a Norwegian, obtained the agreement of Israel and the United Arab Republic for cease-fire patrols by 32 UN military observers and suspension of small-boat movements in the Suez Canal.

This is considered here as an encouraging first step toward arrangements that could lead to further disengagement of forces under United Nations supervision.

Mr. Thant is also awaiting a report on the situation of the Arab refugees displaced from territories occupied by Israeli forces, from a special representative, Nils Goran Gussing of Sweden, who has been inspecting the refugee areas and talking with Israeli and Arab officials.

PLAYING AT URI — Paul Benedict and Josephine Lane appear in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" being presented on the University of Rhode Island Festival Stage through Aug. 27. The Theatre Company of Boston is staging the Edward Albee play which started its two-week run yesterday. Also in the cast of this final production of the season are Larry Bryggman and Lisa Richards. The play is directed by David Wheeler.

Israel Old Age Homes Accept Newly Homeless

NEW YORK—Aged men and women in Israel who were made homeless by the Arab-Israel war were immediately taken into old age homes operated by the Joint Distribution Committee, Theodore D. Feder, deputy director-general, said recently.

Feder, formerly a JDC director for Israel, told the board of directors at its semi-annual meeting at the Waldorf Astoria, that "a number of aged who were formerly self-sufficient, how many we do not know, will need our help because of the war."

"In some cases, the war has claimed sons or daughters who supported and looked after them; in others, homes or flats have been destroyed, particularly in the Jerusalem area."

Malben is a special welfare program established in Israel by JDC to care for aged, ill and handicapped newcomers to the Jewish state. It is a major United Jewish Appeal beneficiary.

During the war there was not a single death or illness reported among the 3,300 aged in the 15 JDC-supported old age homes in Israel. Normally during such a period there are from six to eight deaths and at least 300 requiring medical attention. "During those anxious days not only did death take a holiday but the effect on the aged was extraordinary."

"If they could have, they would have enlisted in the army. There was a great deal of discontent because most of them were turned down when they volunteered to donate blood. In every home the impoverished old people contributed what little pocket money they had left. They taped the windows and cleaned the shelters. In one home they offered their beds and blankets for evacuees and volunteered to sleep on the floor."

Louis Briodo, JDC chairman, who presided, called for all-out support of the Israel Emergency Fund of the UJA. He urged upon the board members "that we pledge ourselves to do and to give our utmost for the rehabilitation of the needy, the handicapped and the helpless in Israel."

PUT YOUR VALUABLE PAPERS IN ORDER — WHEN 65 COMES

YOU WHO will be going into retirement during the September-to-December "retirement season" will need a job to do after your first few days of playing freedom.

Here is one. You should have done it long before this. But being mortal you probably haven't. The time is here.

The job is to put into order the complex affairs of your life. If you don't think they're complex, you will after reading this.

The best way to approach this job is to visualize the following:

You and your wife are turning into your driveway at night in the car, are struck by a hit-run driver. Your car is knocked against the side of your house, explodes, and the house burns. You and your wife die in the tragedy.

This is a bizarre situation — you are sure it can never happen to you, just as you're sure nothing else can — but it is a good one to emphasize the need to have your affairs in order.

Should the above situation happen to you, somebody would want to know at once whom to notify; where your money is; and your life insurance, fire insurance, and car insurance; and who's going to pay for the funeral.

How, in your case, would they find out?

So important have personal papers become in the life — and death — of today's citizen that one of the gravest obligations of the man who retires is to see that they are in order. Here's a list that will help you with the job:

1. Write an information sheet, in duplicate, telling whom to notify in case of unexpected tragedy to you and your wife; and where your money and valuable papers are kept. One copy can be kept in the home. The other should be outside the home, preferably in the files of your lawyer.

Put in a safety deposit box preferably, or in a fireproof, burglar-proof container at home —

Wills of yourself and wife

All life, house, car, and other insurance policies

All stocks, bonds, and other certificates of investments

House deed, car title, marriage license, birth certificates of both husband and wife, military records, pension papers

Income tax returns of the last three years

A written, and complete, list of every place you have deposited money — postal savings, savings & loan, checking accounts, savings accounts, credit unions, everything

A statement, over your signature, telling the name of the lawyer, relative, or whoever, you want to step in and take charge of your affairs if you become incapacitated, or die

Copies of all contracts you hold

Notes, signed by yourself, on any verbal agreements you have with anybody, and any moral obligations you have not paid.

Instructions, signed by you, telling where you want to be buried, and with how much folderol.

This list will give you ideas of other personal papers to get in order. The important thing is to realize that retirement is the time to get on with the job.

Now GOLDEN YEARS 36-page booklet now ready. Send 50¢ in coin (no stamps), to Dept. C5PS, Box 1672, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N. Y.

Hello Again!

Sports News By Warren Walden

THOUSANDS (AND YOU, TOO)—You'll all know more when you read this! The "Blue Ribbon Guy" is with us again. That means Joe Linsey, impresario, entrepreneur and the man behind "America's Blue Ribbon Track." And that means Taunton Greyhound Track which is, without a doubt, the finest in the land. The Greyhounds are schooling there these nights, getting ready for their big inaugural on August 26th. Mr. Linsey and Taunton are responsible in a big way for making Greyhound racing so popular. . . .

YOU DIDN'T KNOW THIS—Rhode Island Shriners Night will be observed at Fenway Park on Sept. 9th. Unfortunately "Smokey Joe" Wood wasn't named to the Hall of Fame this year but he'll be honored that night. He won 34 in the regular season, 16 in a row, and added three more in the World Series for the Red Sox in 1912. Tom Yawkey will also be honored by the Shriners. . . . Shirley May France, mother of five, celebrated a birthday last week. It is 19 years since she swam the English Channel. (I didn't say which birthday, Shirley) Gertrude Ederle was the first woman to accomplish the swimming feat back in 1926. And where did Gertrude go first when she returned to the U.S.A.? She went right to Fay's Theatre in Providence!

WHAT'S IN A NAME—Tim's name, indicating the field named in his honor in Roger Williams Park, is spelled incorrectly. It should read "O'Neill." I'm sure he wouldn't mind, but change it, will you. . . . The "Incomparable Lee Ann," organist superb, was playing "Cheer The Red Sox" when I drove past the other night. It's written by John McOsker of Providence. . . .

HISTORIC FIELD—The baseball field in Adamsville, R.I. is located right behind the Rhode Island Red stone plaque. Wonder if they call the team that plays there R.I. Reds?

NEW SPORTING DOGS—"Two new invaders are winning the nods of American Hunters," says Sports Afield Mag. They are the Basenji and Akita, the latter said to be a great fighting dog from Japan. (Pay attention to that J, Houston) Wonder if an Akita could beat a Bull Terrier? A new book out by Stephen Celler is titled "Pit Bull." It's about those White Cavaliers. . . . Another book that appears intriguing is titled "A Thinking Man's Guide To Baseball." It's by Leonard Koppett. Apparently you are not a thinking man while reading the others. . . .

GRASS IS GREENER—Did you notice that Bucklin Park or Dillon Field is covered with grass. When the big Providence Amateur League games attracted thousands there, it was all gravel. Too bad, too late. . . . When Babe Ruth was unung as a home run hitter back in 1914, a story tells that he hit one of the longest drives ever seen at Melrose Park. And they never had an idea about his future. . . . Those girls in the Outlet Service Dept. are in line for some sort of credit and congratulations for handling the unprecedented rush for Red Sox tickets. They've sold hundreds of them.

THE GREAT PULITZER—Pulitzer is said to have said that he'd print the street directory at least twice a year if he could. People would buy the paper to see their names in print and increase circulation. If you know any of the names listed here, tell everybody, will you. Also tell them to buy a ticket for the big Memorial Fund Benefit Show for the Earl T. King Fund. These are selling tickets: Manny Almeida, Albert Winters, Harold Wright, Harold Gomes, Patsy Apice, Joseph Antignamo, K.O. Brown, Ralph Pannone, Barry and Harry Bendrick, Anthony (Sharkey) Buonanno, Ralph Zannelli, Anthony Maccrone, Anthony Petronella, Anthony Del Guidice, Arthur Simonds, George Conley and others. The big benefit show will be held outside Manny Almeida's Fire-side Inn in Warwick on August 28th. Mrs. Bertha Butler is chairman of the committee in charge. Joe Cellert is working hard to put it over.

DON'T TURN YOUR BACK—On Soccer Football. So writes J. Shaw in the New York Times. And he writes from New Ferry, Cheshire, England. He says Americans are best at most sports and he calls Soccer the greatest game in the world. . . . NO MORE ROOM to write, so CARRY ON!

Scientists In Rehovoth Developing New Tomato

JERUSALEM—Scientists of the Hebrew University's Faculty of Agriculture at Rehovoth are in the process of developing a new type of tomato which is resistant to the sunscald disease that can destroy up to one-third of the tomato harvest in Israel.

A research project supported by grants from the Ministry of Agriculture and carried out by Dr. Nahum Kadar and Dr. Nira Retig, lecturers in Vegetable Crops, has established that certain physiological disorders frequently affecting the tomato plant are caused by heat and not by other effects of sun radiation. The scientists began breeding a new type of tomato, cultivation of which may reduce crop damage by five or ten per cent, an annual saving of close to 1,000,000 Israeli pounds.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have a problem I would like some help on. Please print it in the paper. My girlfriend and I have the same problem. We are both 17 years old and do not have dates. We have several dates with boys and that's about it. The boys like us and tell us that we are very cute and very nice. Our parents tell us that it is because the boys aren't ready to settle down with the nicer girls. What we want to know is, why don't boys go for the nice girls? Most girls are very forward, if you know what I mean. The boys we dated are nice and the kind we would like to date, but we never get asked again by them. When we have dates we are both kind and try to do the right things. Our parents tell us that when the boys are ready to settle down they will come looking for us. But we are tired of sitting around waiting and watching other people have dates. We want to have some of the fun other teenagers are having."

OUR REPLY: The girls who are forward appear to be much more popular. They really are not. If you take a good look, you will probably discover that boys do not take them out more than a few times. Then they have to find another boy to take them out.

Nice girls are not under any great handicap. There are enough nice boys around. The girl with a good personality, who is fun to be with, who is friendly and witty, will be popular. . . . and her popularity will last.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

Ben Gurion Proposes

Intensive Settlement

JERUSALEM — Former Premier David Ben Gurion proposed in Parliament last week that a belt of Jewish settlement be established around the Old City of Jerusalem as part of a program of intensive Jewish settlement of the area. He spoke during the debate on Foreign Minister Abba Eban's report on foreign policy.

He also proposed that Hebrew University transfer at least half of its facilities to the former campus on Mount Scopus, abandoned when Jordan seized the Old City and its environs in the 1948 war. Ben Gurion urged also that housing be established on Scopus for teachers and students.

Ben Gurion proposed also that at least 20,000 Jewish families settle in the former Jewish quarter of Old Jerusalem which the Jordanians destroyed. He said his proposed belt of Jewish population would contribute to the raising of the standard of living of Arab residents of the area.

He emphasized that plans to give "Jewry's eternal capital" a Jewish character should not be realized by evicting the Arab population, "not even one soul." He said Jerusalem should be a hustling commercial and industrial center and the capital of Israel not only in name.

South Africans Form Native Jewish Community

JOHANNESBURG — South Africa's first African Jewish community has been formed in Dube township near Johannesburg—but its self-styled rabbi has failed to gain official acceptance for himself or his sect.

The rabbi, 39-year-old Vuyisile Jackson Msitshana, leads 27 Africans (15 adults and twelve children) in the Jewish faith, from the "Philadelphia Synagogue" in his home.

Mr. Msitshana, who has been a member of almost every religious denomination, said he finally chose Judaism after many years of searching for the truth.

He has a diploma from a Chicago correspondence school, which credits him with having passed a metaphysics course in Latin and a course in the Jewish Pentateuch Meditations in Aramaic.

Rabbi A. S. Super, of the United Progressive Jewish Congregation, said there were no recognized Black Jews in South Africa.

"Anyone can become a Jew, provided he makes formal application and is then circumcised and agrees to abide by Jewish law," he said. "From a purely theological point of view no problem exists, but, practically, I do not think that I would support an application from an African."

Rabbi Super explained that all Jews were entitled to the same privileges and were afforded certain amenities in their own communities. For obvious reasons inherent in the laws of South Africa, it would be impossible to absorb an African into the community in the same way.

List Of Wanted Nazis Sent Berlin By Dutch

AMSTERDAM — The Dutch Government's Institute for War Documentation, in cooperation with the West German war crimes investigation center at Ludwigsburg, has completed a supplementary list of 348 German judges and prosecutors who served in Nazi-occupied Holland in World War II and passed sentences of death on Dutch nationals.

This list was transmitted to the West German Government. Dutch officials pointed out that they do not know whether the wanted men are alive or not. They hope that the West German authorities will track them down.

Previously, the Dutch Government submitted a list of 310 Nazi wartime officials wanted in Holland for war crimes. Officials who served at the notorious Westerbork concentration camps were not included in either list. War crimes committed at that camp are the subject of a special judicial inquiry currently proceeding in West Germany.

Primaries On Holidays Banned By Connecticut

HARTFORD — A bill barring the holding of primary elections in Connecticut on any day that is a religious holiday has been signed by Gov. Dempsey and was enacted into law. The bill was introduced in the State General Assembly after observant Jews were unable to participate in the primaries last year because they coincided with Succos.

The new legislation follows enactment of a constitutional amendment in 1965 giving Connecticut voters the right to cast absentee ballots when a regular election falls on a religious holiday.

Egypt Rejects Holland's Gift

WASHINGTON — Reports from Cairo disclosed that the Egyptian Government has turned down a Dutch gift of $60,000 worth of powdered milk and medicine for Arab refugees.

Cairo newspapers said the Egyptian Foreign Ministry told the Dutch Embassy it did not want the gift because of "Holland's attitude against the Arab states and Dutch arms shipments to Israel during the recent battle."

Civil Rights Leaders Protest Attack Of SNCC As Anti-Semitic

A number of Jewish organizations, including labor and veterans' groups, joined those who criticized the newsletter.

Will Maslow, executive director of the American Jewish Congress said S.N.C.C. had "disqualified itself from any claim to be taken seriously in the struggle for human decency."

"There is no room for racists in the fight against racism," he said.

Rabbi Israel Miller, chairman of the American Zionist Council, called the views in the newsletter "crude and unadulterated anti-Semitism."

The Jewish Labor Committee charged that the student group, led by Stokely Carmichael and H. Rap Brown, has "now irrevocably joined the anti-Semitic American Nazi party and the Ku Klux Klan as an apostle of racism in the United States."

Bernard Katzen, vice chairman of the New York State Commission for Human Rights, called the charges "scurrilous" and said they represented a "desperation approach for sensationalism by a small discredited group," which was calculated to stir up domestic ethnic discord.

Dr. Martin Peretz, a director of the National Conference for New Politics, also attacked the statement as vicious anti-Semitism. The conference was set up 18 months ago as a coalition of peace and civil rights groups.

SNCC Newsletter Accuses Israelis Of Atrocities

forced upon the Arabs in 1948.

"That the famous European Jews, the Rothschilds, who have long controlled the wealth of many European nations, were involved in the original conspiracy with the British to create the 'state of Israel' and are still among Israel's chief supporters."

The newsletter also charges "that the Rothschilds control much of Africa's mineral wealth."

Some of the student committee's arguments on the Middle East situation paralleled those expressed in another recent publication. The Thunderbolt, The White Man's Viewpoint, which is published by the National States Rights party, a white supremacist organization that makes its headquarters in Savannah, Ga.

The organization has frequently denounced Jews, Negroes and civil rights organizations. But in this month's issue of the Thunderbolt it rushed to the defense of the Arabs with a cluster of attacks that charged: "Israel napped civilians," "Press suppressed atrocity news" and "Huge sums to Israel hurt American taxpayer."

Mr. Featherstone said that the "positions of the two organizations may look the same, but I think that you have to probe deeper and look at the philosophical concepts behind the positions."

He said that his organization had received no financial support from Arab sources, and that its financial position has worsened steadily in recent months.

In the same newsletter in which it attacked Israel, the student committee appealed for funds in an announcement that said "Help, help, we're sinking fast."

In taking up the cause of the Arabs, the student committee followed the lead of two of its favorite black power philosophers — the late Frantz Fanon, a native of Martinique who fought with the Algerian rebels against France, and the late Malcolm X, the black nationalist.

Both men were open admirers of Arab nationalism and thought that the destinies of Arabs and Negroes were intertwined in a common struggle against Western governments.

And like Mr. Fanon and Malcolm X, the student committee has come to advocate violence, rather than nonviolence, as a method of attacking racial problems. H. Rap Brown, the student committee chairman, recently endorsed the wave of Negro riots that has swept the United States this summer.

Arnold Forster, general counsel of the Anti-defamation League of B'nai B'rith, said that "it is a tragedy that the civil rights movement is being degraded by the injection of hatred and racism in reverse."

In the past, Jewish college students have taken part in freedom rides, sponsored by the student committee. Major Jewish groups have given financial support to Negro civil rights groups, including the student committee.

JWV Head Objects To 'Misstatements'

WASHINGTON — The outgoing president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein of Chicago, was sharply criticized here by National Commander Malcolm A. Tarlov of the Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A. for "deliberate distortions and misstatements of fact, particularly in his accusations against the JWV."

Rabbi Weinstein, in his keynote address to the CCAR convention in Los Angeles earlier, was reported in the press as criticizing "the Jewish War Veterans, who have objected to liberal rabbis using the pulpit to state opposition to U.S. policy."

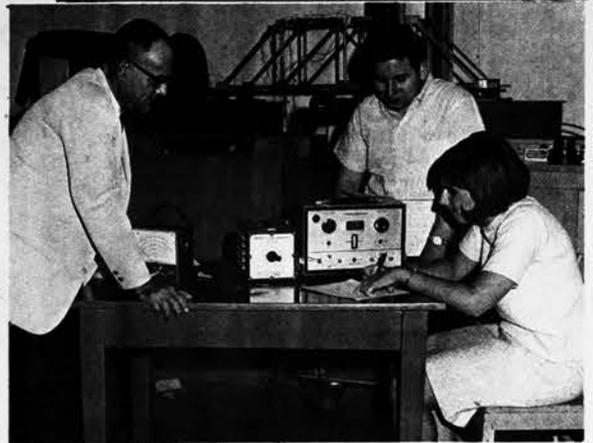

"This charge," said Commander Tarlov, "is completely false, as Rabbi Weinstein has every reason to know. The JWV, which has long supported U.S. policy in Vietnam, has coupled public expressions of such support with affirmation of the right of full and responsible dissent."

"In a public debate on Vietnam between Rabbi Weinstein and JWV's national executive director, Monroe R. Sheinberg, before hundreds of delegates to a synagogue convention in Chicago several months ago, JWV's support of the right of dissent was again clearly and publicly affirmed," stated Commander Tarlov. "Thus, even if Rabbi Weinstein did not read of such JWV policy statements in our press releases or publications, he had personal knowledge of it."

Rabbi Weinstein warns against linking the Middle East with Vietnam, as he attempts to justify his position as a 'dove' on Vietnam but a 'hawk' on Israel," said Commander Tarlov. "What the Rabbi, who obviously speaks only for himself, is unable to hide is the basic fact that the enemy to peace and freedom in the Middle East, as well as the Far East, is Communism, which the U.S. is committed to oppose."

"The issue is not who happens to lead the government of a country under Communist attack in these troubled areas, but is the right of a people to live in freedom from outside aggression," concluded Commander Tarlov.

KLUTZNICK GETS DEGREE
CHICAGO — Philip M. Klutznick, former United States Ambassador to the United Nations and former president of B'nai B'rith, was awarded an honorary degree at the annual commencement exercises of the College of Jewish Studies. Dr. Rolf A. Weil, president of Roosevelt University, was also awarded an honorary degree.

PARTICIPATE IN SUMMER PROGRAM — Barry Novich, center, re-lays a reading to Prof. Charles Antoni, left, of the Department of Civil Engineering, Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y. Susan Buseck, right, of Erie, Pa., reads the strain gauge indicator. Barry Novich, a student at Hope High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Novich of 41 Sackett Street. He and Miss Buseck have participated in the National Science Foundation summer program for high ability secondary school students, "The Sciences in the Engineering of Air, Land and Water Public Facilities" at the University.

Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society Now Fights Cancer, Chest Diseases

DENVER, Colo. — The Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society was the subject of an article in "Family Circle" magazine last winter.

The society is now called the American Medical Center at Denver, though on its letterhead and publications appears the legend, "Founded as the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society in 1904." The hospital ("non-sectarian" only in its care, not in its support," said Harry Truman) now fights cancer and chronic chest diseases. It offers free unlimited treatment while it pursues basic, basis-clinical and clinical cancer research.

Dr. Charles Spivak was founder of the hospital, which switched to cancer when anti-tuberculosis drugs reduced the threat of that disease. The hospital's name changed then, too.

Today it is one of the foremost cancer centers in the nation. A recent report from the National Cancer Institute indicated that in the past 20 years scientists have tested more than 220,000 different compounds in the search for effective anti-cancer agents. They have found less than two dozen, but one of them, a synthetic hormone called medroxyprogesterone acetate, was perfected at the American Medical Center and is today the most effective treatment known for advanced breast cancer.

Patients from all over the country, many of them in the later stages of cancer, come to the center, where they get continued chemical treatment. One-quarter of these are discharged, able to live normal lives for varying periods of time. These are patients in the later stages of cancer, patients another hospital would have called hopeless, according to the article.

"Hopeless" patients have been accepted, treated and rehabilitated since the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society was founded 63 years ago; they are a tradition of the center, which gives free unlimited care without regard to race, color or creed to all who seek it.

Artist From Vitebsk Feted In France On 80th Birthday

ST. - PAUL - DE - VENCE, France — Under a star-dusted Mediterranean sky, Marc Chagall acknowledged a gala airfresco tribute to his 80th birthday, last week.

Two hundred invited guests turned out to honor him at the Maeght Foundation in this town on the slopes of the Cote d'Azur where the Russian-born painter has lived since the end of World War II.

"I am going to be modest this evening," he said after Aimee Maeght, the foundation's director, read a letter from Andre Malroux, the Minister of Culture, which was signed "your captivated Minister."

The party also inaugurated a 150-work exhibition that completes a Chagall festival stretching from the Louvre in Paris to the Kunsthau in Zurich, Switzerland, to the Musee Augustin in Toulouse.

Smiling and robust, Mr. Chagall looked pleased and a good 20 years younger than his age. He joked with photographers and gestured at canvases he particularly liked.

"Do you understand Chagall?" he asked a critic mischievously. "I don't. I understand other painters, but not Chagall. After all, when you sit down to a huge steak, do you understand it?"

The foundation, set up in 1964 as a center for paintings, sculpture, music and cinema, celebrated the evening with chamber music by Bela Bartok, whom Mr. Chagall knew, and by Maurice Ravel, for whose ballet, "Daphnis and Chloe," he had designed sets and costumes.

The evening also included the reading of several poems Mr. Chagall had written in his youth.

Shortly before his birthday, Mr. Chagall met with a group of friends in Paris. Suddenly he burst into tears.

"I am now 80," he said. "I am famous. I am in the Louvre. But it all means nothing to me because my parents have not lived to see it." The celebration brought only smiles and glad handshakes, however.

Mr. Chagall was asked about his first contact, before the war, with the Cote d'Azur, which subsequently played so large a role in his work.

"At first it was a wonderful shock," he said. "Matisse was already here and Matisse was a great master for me. But it was so hard for me to live here. I was—how shall I say it?—not rich. And then there was Hitler to think about."

The exhibition in St. Paul includes work of the last 20 years only. It begins with generally small and very rich canvases done about 1946 and goes on through two decades of the Chagall dream; its flying clocks and pale brides, its celebration of the painter's native Vitebsk and adopted France, its homage to the Old and New Testaments.

Explosives - Loaded Arab Crosses Border Into Israel

TEL AVIV — A 27-year-old member of the Palestine Liberation Organization was arraigned a week ago before the Haifa district court on charges of crossing into Israel bearing an assortment of explosives and instructions to use them to create maximum destruction in Israeli cities.

The prosecution said that Samir Darwish was arrested on May 8 posing as a British subject, carrying a collection of 122 plastic explosives, detonators, a specially-equipped camera, a gun and 17 letters addressed to Premier Levi Eshkol, former Premier David Ben-Gurion, Herut leader Menahem Beign and all editors of all Israeli newspapers.

On his arrest, he was found to possess a transistor radio and police asked him what he intended to use it for. He replied that he wanted to listen to Kol Israel (Israel's national radio) reporting on the results of his assignment.

On the day of his arrest, Damascus Radio announced triumphantly that Palestine Liberation Front members had exploded a bomb in a Haifa movie theater, causing "thousands of casualties." That apparently had been the suspect's first assignment.

Police said he carried a forged document purportedly from the British Embassy alleging that he was a British subject whose passport had been mislaid. He crossed the Jordan River into Israel, dressed in a fancy colored shirt and trousers to look like a tourist.

Police said that he had confessed his first assignment was to place explosives in Haifa and then go to Tel Aviv to repeat the action. Police said he was born in Acre and fled to Jordan during the 1948 war. Later he moved to Syria where he attended a university and joined the PLO.

Samir also was charged with intent to spy. He was given a defense attorney appointed by the court. Under existing law, he is liable to capital punishment, under one of the few remaining Israeli laws carrying that penalty on conviction. He was remanded to await trial.

HAIFA — Eight members of an Israeli Arab juvenile spy ring were sentenced in Haifa juvenile court to prison terms. Their ages averaged 14 years.

The ring-leader, described as a 14-year-old boy who had been active in obtaining security information for Jordan prior to the June war, was ordered confined for six years.

The seven other youthful defendants were given terms ranging from one to three years.

Meanwhile, police reported the arrest of an adult from an Israeli Arab village near Haifa, charged with having participated in an espionage ring which was smashed two years ago.

The suspect returned to Israel from a stay in Germany where he reportedly had contact with Syrian intelligence agents.

TEL AVIV — A former police sergeant in Israel was sentenced here last week to 14 years' imprisonment after being convicted of spying for Jordan. He is Jaudat Ismail Mathko, 41, a Circassian.

After serving with the Israeli Army, then in the border police, he joined the regular police force. He was found guilty of passing to Jordanian intelligence information concerning Israel's armed forces and National Water Carrier.

HAIFA — A 25-year-old Israeli Jew, Isaac Benzeev Davidson, was remanded a week ago by a Haifa magistrate on charges of espionage for Lebanon. He was arrested when he tried to make an illegal crossing into Lebanon. Police said he may be insane.

TO PROSPECT FOR OIL
TEL AVIV—The Lapidot Oil Company of Israel has undertaken to operate the Sinal oil fields seized by Israeli forces in last month's war and located mainly along the shore of the Red Sea and in some offshore areas. While some of the pumping installations were damaged during the fighting, most of the equipment is intact. The output of the Sinal oil fields is rated at 4,700,000 tons annually, considerably more than the 3,500,000 ton annual consumption rate of Israel. Young scientists at Hebrew University have been asked to register for summer work prospecting for oil in the Sinal fields.
