

Jewish Education Suffers From Lack Of Funds, Staff

INDIANAPOLIS — The annual cost of Jewish education for about 550,000 children in the United States has been estimated at $100 million by Isaac Toubin, executive director of the American Association for Jewish Education.

The faculty providing this education totals some 17,000 teachers, but many of them are part-time and badly prepared for such teaching," he said.

The education specialist spoke at a recent session on Jewish education at a meeting of the young leadership council of the Jewish Welfare Federation of Indianapolis.

He called Jewish education the largest single enterprise of the American Jewish community and one that suffered from lack of funds, staff and general interest.

"At its...best, Jewish education leaves much to be desired. We do not give it enough time. If we think that something can be accomplished two and a half hours a week for five years, we give the schools an impossible task."

Parents must shoulder much of the blame, he declared, partly for lack of interest in Jewish education and partly because their home life contains little that is Jewish. At the same time, he said, many adults who observe very little that is Jewish are active in Jewish community affairs.

He reported that 4,000 teachers are licensed to teach in Jewish education but that there are less than 100 principals licensed to supervise them. He noted that there are only 11 accredited Hebrew training schools in the United States which produce only a "trickle" of the teachers needed.

At the current rate of attrition, he reported, "we need 500 or more new teachers a year."

To close the gap, at least partly, 60 to 65 Israelis are "pressed into service" in American Jewish schools through an annual exchange program.

He said other Israelis who are here for study programs are also employed, if only to teach Hebrew, but many of them are not suited for general teaching.

He said, however, that if the Israelis were not available, some Hebrew schools would have to shut down.

He also reported that the emphasis now in Jewish education is on secondary, rather than on elementary courses.

He also cited a new development — summer camping programs combined with intensive Jewish education. He expressed hopes for creation of a national board of Jewish education to raise academic standards and vary programming.

He said many efforts are being made to modify the curricula, from Bible reading to history to Jewish values, in an effort to "find out what is wrong with Jewish education."

Soviet Magazine Attacks Goldstuecker As 'Zionist'

LONDON — Prof. Edward Goldstuecker, prominent Czechoslovak-Jewish writer, was attacked this week by a Soviet magazine on the same charges that brought him a death sentence, imprisonment and torture during the Slansky trial of the Stalin era 15 years ago, it was reported here from Moscow.

The Soviet Literary Gazette branded the 55-year-old head of the Czech writers union, now a refugee in hiding, a "Zionist." It charged him with having openly advocated pro-Israel policies during the brief liberalization in Czechoslovakia this year and said he was among those who "cover themselves with hypocritical calls to normalization in order to regroup the forces of counter-revolution" in Czechoslovakia today.

Prof. Goldstuecker, deputy rector of Prague's ancient Charles University, has been variously reported hiding in Czechoslovakia or in a Western capital. Reports last week said he was in London.

The Literary Gazette accused him of trying to rehabilitate the literary heritage of Franz Kafka, whose works are banned in Russia, of associating with other Czech writers who are under attack for liberalism, and of having given interviews to Israeli and West German periodicals.

The Soviet magazine also described as "a crafty maneuver" Dr. Goldstuecker's public reply last June to anonymous anti-Semitic letters he received from Czechoslovakian Stalinists. It charged that his aim was "to discredit the Communist Party."

Dr. Goldstuecker, a Communist Party member since 1934 and Czechoslovak Minister to Israel in 1950, was arrested in 1951, tortured for months and compelled to testify to involvement in "Titoist-Zionist-imperialist" plots at the treason trail of the former Communist Party general secretary Rudolph Slansky.

He was later tried and condemned to death with Slansky's brother, Richard, but the sentences were commuted to life imprisonment after Stalin's death and both were released in 1958.

Sources here that follow the Soviet press said the attack on Professor Goldstuecker was one of the strongest polemics to appear in the Literary Gazette since its June 26 attack on Alexander Solzhenitsyn, Russian author of a novel on concentration camp life which is banned in the Soviet Union.

Poll Shows Heavy Shift In Jewish Voting Patterns

PRINCETON — A "surprisingly high proportion" of Jews have shifted to the support of Richard M. Nixon for the presidency in a year that has shattered traditional voting patterns," Dr. George Gallup reported on the basis of a recent poll.

Dr. Gallup said, "Those of Jewish faith included in the sample have broken with past precedents."

The poll, released by the American Institute of Public Opinion, found that 31 percent of Jews now favor Mr. Nixon, 51 percent support Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, 4 percent are for George Wallace, and 14 percent undecided.

This contrasted with the disproportionately heavy Jewish support for the Democratic Presidential candidates in 1960 and 1964.

Less than 10 percent of Jews favored Mr. Nixon over President Kennedy and even fewer were believed to have voted for Sen. Barry Goldwater.

The Gallup Poll suggested that Mr. Humphrey lacks solid support from groups Democratic Presidential candidates counted upon in the past.

In addition to gaining heavily among Jews, Mr. Nixon has obtained a heavy shift in support by Catholics, who have favored Democrats since the Roosevelt days.

Prospects For Negotiations Soon In Middle East Problems Brighten

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The prospects for early, substantive negotiations toward a settlement in the Middle East are brightening, according to Arab and Israeli diplomats and to neutral United Nations delegates.

Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, Secretary General Thant's

special envoy, was reported to be considerably more optimistic and to believe that meaningful negotiations would be under way in the next three weeks.

In Amman it was reported that the apparently improving prospects of a settlement with Israel had increased tension between Palestinian commando organizations and Jordan.)

J.R. Wiggins, the chief United States representative, said that he felt "very hopeful about the prospects for peace in the Middle East" and that the "climate" was better now than at any time in the recent past. Mr. Wiggins made these remarks on the Today television program of the National Broadcasting Company.

The optimism is based primarily on the start of exchanges between Israel and the United Arab Republic through Ambassador Jarring.

Last week the Israeli Foreign Minister, Abba Eban, gave the Ambassador a 12-page memorandum that dealt with the 9-point program presented to the General Assembly by Mr. Eban Oct. 8.

Dr. Jarring passed the memorandum on to Mahmoud Riad Foreign Minister of the United Arab Republic, for his reaction. Mr. Riad told other Arab Foreign Ministers, but not Abdul Monem Rifai of Jordan, that the memorandum disclosed no change in the basic Israeli position but was more substantive.

At this stage in the exploratory talks a neutral diplomat noted, too much emphasis should not be placed on public comments by the parties involved. He predicted that "up to the end" the Arabs would abuse the Israelis and present an intransigent front and the Israeli would continue in public to dot every "i" and cross every "t" of their original position paper.

The process of discussion through Dr. Jarring, which cannot yet be called negotiation, has thus begun. He is testing the ideas of one side on various aspects of a settlement against the ideas of the other and listening to reactions.

Mr. Riad has said that his Government wants a "package deal" containing the provisions of the Security Council resolution of Nov. 22, 1967. This called for the withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territories, the end of the state of belligerency, the opening of international waterways, a start on the solution of the refugee problem and the creation of secure, recognized frontiers.

Neither the United Arab Republic nor Jordan, however, has yet made known its views on specific aspects of the settlement. For example, it is known that Israel, once her frontier with the United Arab Republic is established, would be prepared to negotiate the demilitarization of the Sinai Peninsula. Cairo has not reacted either in the form of a rejection or a counterproposal.

An additional element causing optimism is the strong impression given to Arab and other diplomats that Jordan is moving toward talks. Until now it was accepted that King Hussein and his Government would not so move without the approval of President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Now, however, a qualified source described Jordan as moving "with small steps in the direction of indirect talks with Israel through Ambassador Jarring."

PLAN BUREAU SERIES: Professor Benjamin Chinitz of Brown University and chairman of the Adult Education Committee of the Bureau of Jewish Education is shown here with Dr. Aaron Soviv, executive director of the Bureau. Rabbi William G. Braude of Temple Beth El will be the guest speaker of the fall lecture series of the Bureau according to Prof. Chinitz. The series which will start on Thursday, Oct. 31, at 8 p.m. at Temple Beth El. Rabbi Braude's lectures will deal with "Pesikta Rabati," an anthology of discourses on feasts, fasts and special sabbaths of the Jewish year. References to Rabbi Braude's recent translation of the anthology will be made. A story on the Adult Education series of the Bureau will appear in next week's Herald.

17-Year-Old Confesses Throwing Grenade At Tomb

TEL AVIV — Police reported that a 17-year-old Hebron high school student has confessed to throwing the hand grenade that injured 47 Israeli civilians visiting the Patriarchs' Tomb in Hebron this week.

The youth, identified as Addin Rashid Geit, was apprehended within 12 hours after the incident. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told newsmen that punitive measures were likely to be taken against several other Hebron residents known to have cooperated with young Geit.

Police said the student was arrested in the course of an investigation that began immediately after the blast and which resulted in the arrest and questioning of many Hebron residents. After his confession he cooperated with police and reconstructed the episode, police sources said.

In an address to Israeli war veterans, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol denounced the grenade attack as an outrage. Sheik Mohammad Ali Jaabari, the mayor of Hebron, echoed his sentiments, declaring that it was as much an assault on Arabs as it was on Jews.

The grenade was tossed over a six-foot wall and exploded on steps leading to the tomb which is located within the compound of the Ibrahim mosque. Twenty-one of the injured remained in hospitals. Eight of them underwent emergency surgery. Doctors at Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem said all were off the danger list.

Twenty-one of the victims were members of a tour group organized by the Israel Nautical College in Acre and one was a non-Israeli tourist identified as Esther Cohen, 32, of Panama.

In a radio interview Gen. Dayan urged Jews to continue to visit the shrine which was reportedly filled with worshippers. Gen. Dayan, who visited the site of the explosion, told newsmen that stricter security measures would be taken to safe-guard tourists and worshippers in Hebron. He said that guards would be posted on the roofs around the tomb site.

Several Israeli newspapers warned against acts of reprisal by Israeli youth for the Hebron grenade incident. The newspaper Hatzofe, organ of the National Religious Party, claimed that part of the blame must be assigned to the Moslem leadership in Hebron which has objected to Jewish religious services in the mosque area.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

"A producer should make stars, not buy them," said George White. For his "George White's Scandals" he first signed Ray Bolger for $250 a week, Bert Lahr for $400, Kate Smith $250. He hired his rehearsal-pianist, George Gershwin, to write his second "Scandals" at $75 a week: "Shakespeare said 'The Play's The Thing'; he never mentioned stars."

The producer, who died in Hollywood early in October, used his own money in challenging Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll. He said each musical was his biennial way of making 4,950 enemies for himself: "5,000 girls respond to my chorus call, and I could only hire 50." He gambled high, on horses, and his hair was white, he said "from all those photo finishes."

When he went to Miami Beach and found he couldn't get a hotel reservation, he bought a home within an hour. The seller asked how soon he'd want possession. White said, "in eight minutes."

He bet Max Dreyfus, who published the 1926 Scandal songs, that at least three of the songs would sell over 500,000 copies. White had underestimated their popularity — "Birth of the Blues," "Black Bottom," "It All Depends on You," "This Is My Lucky Day" and "The Girl Is You and the Boy Is Me." Dreyfus paid the bet by giving White a Rolls-Royce.

When Ethel Merman was a secretary her employer, Caleb Bragg, gave her a letter to White, suggesting he hire her for $50 a week. White was too busy to see her. Years later White bought Merman's release from another musical, and paid her $1,500 a week to introduce the Scandals song, "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries."

In Hollywood he told Gabe Katzenbach, the producer, that the last line of his autobiography would read, "If I had it to live over again, I wouldn't change a moment of it."

Don Adams, star of NBC-TV's "Get Smart" series, has a weak memory — especially for names and faces. In Shreveport, La., he appeared at a concert and began signing autographs. One man said, "My name is Julian Goodman and I've always been an admirer of yours." Adams with pen poised asked him "What are your children's names?"

"No, thanks, all I want is to say hello," Goodman replied. "I'm the president of NBC."

Mrs. Richard Rodgers, author of "A House in My Head," will be the first non-member to address the New York Chapter of the National Society of Interior Designers, Oct. 29...Last month 1,500 Americans applied for charge accounts at Harrod's, the London department store...Eddie Foy decided against returning to Broadway, in Art Carney's "Lovers" role, and is going back to Hollywood.

After all these years in the same location the New Yorker magazine is seeking new quarters — perhaps in a building of its own...Joey Faye, the ex-burlesque comic, will succeed Irving Jacobson in the Sancho role in "Man of La Mancha"...Peter O'Toole's daughter, Kate, will have a leading role in U.A.'s film version of Nabokov's "Laughter in the Park"...The Queen Mother will install Peter Ustinov as first Rector of Dundee University.

For more than a generation Luchow's has been closed Monday nights. Jim Mitchell is changing that, and making Mondays his Festival Night...He tried to find out why the Monday closing. No, Founder Luchow had not died on a Monday. An old waiter solved the mystery.

In '42 Mayor LaGuardia made all restaurants stop serving meat one day a week. The owner closed Mondays, rather than offer a Luchow's without Sauerbraten und Wienerschnitzel.

"JOSH MCCLURE TURNED MY COMMONPLACE KITCHEN INTO ONE OF REAL BEAUTY AND EFFICIENCY," says Mrs. Elizabeth Stabile of Garden City, Cranston

"When my old home got too big for me, my son and his family and I bought our two-family home in Garden City. My second floor apartment was pleasant, but the kitchen was hopeless. Josh McClure ripped it all out to the bare walls and designed and built this lovely, efficient kitchen using superb Whitehall cabinetwork. It has all kinds of work-saving built-ins, including a Thermador Wall Oven, Kitchen Aid Dishwasher, and the famous Corning 'Counter-That-Cooks'." NEW YORK — Paul O'Dwyer, the Democratic candidate for United States Senator from New York, charged on a TV interview that the anti-Semitism of Southern legislators was the "overriding reason for the Senate filibuster" against the appointment of Abe Fortas to be Chief Justice of the United States.

Speaking on NBC-TV's "Page One" program, O'Dwyer said that Fortas' withdrawal was precipitated by the Southern block which has always held "that Jewish morals were inferior."

WE HAVE MANY DEPARTURES INCLUDING CHRISTMAS AND
NEW YEAR AND FEBRUARY 1969
SCHOOL VACATIONS

This Winter, Spend Summer in Israel.

Why Israel? Why here, in such a little place?

You can drive over it in a day or fly over it in an hour. In it are a sea where nothing swims and a desert where nothing grows.

As real estate, it's nothing much.

But here, in this little place, every ethic of Western man was born.

The Bible was written here, and every man has a root here, deep in Israel's stubborn soil.

Come to Jerusalem, to the wall of Solomon's Temple. For 1900 years, men have vowed, "Next year in Jerusalem." Solomon's wall is only one reason why.

Mount Moriah, where Abraham offered Isaac in sacrifice, is in Jerusalem. This is the city of David, and David is buried here.

Yet if Israel is only a dot on the map of the world, Jerusalem is only a dot on the map of Israel.

And wander where you will, every inch is history. (The Bible is still the best guidebook to Israel.) Hear the names: Ashkelon. Beersheba. Eilat. Sodom. Massada.

Even as you land at our airport, you are a stone's throw from Modi'in, the birthplace of the Maccabees. Here, in 165 B.C.E. Judah Maccabee led a victorious Jewish army to dramatic victory against overwhelming Syrian force. Chanukah celebrates that victory. And that victory is still celebrated here every year.

You are most welcome to join our celebration this winter. And you are most welcome to explore all of the modern Israel as well as the ancient one.

In a land of miracles, miracles are to be expected.

And so you will see us harvest chemicals from the Dead Sea where nothing swims and oranges from the desert where nothing grows.

You will find our cities sprawling, our people vital, our nightlife hectic, our weather mild, our beaches uncrowded, our hotels superb, our mood elated.

And in the middle of your winter, you'll find summer, here in Israel.

FRIDAY OCTOBER 25, 1968

Peace?

While in the UN and in the newspapers, peace prospects seem to be brighter for the Middle East than they have been since the end of the Six Day War, there are still the duels between the Arabs and the Israelis, the killing and wounding of both Arabs and Israelis by terrorist bombings.

Diplomats perform their wonders in strange ways - obviously. Or it may be possible that journalistic observers interpret their actions strangely.

An outsider can only glean his facts from newspapers, magazines, radio and television commentators. True, he can listen to many and try intelligently to reach what amounts to a consensus on any issue. But he is still listening to someone else's opinion, and in reality has no way of forming a true-to-fact opinion of his own.

The negotiations in the Middle East seem particularly appropriate. According to the newspapers (and this also depends on which newspaper you read) Israel and Egypt are slowly approaching the point where they may be willing to come to terms on a peace settlement. Also, according to the papers, Jordan may decide, and has so hinted, that she may be willing to make a separate peace arrangement with Israel.

Meanwhile, the papers also report that important members of the Arab world still insist on certain terms which everyone knows that Israel will not accept. Meanwhile, also, the clashes between Jordanian and Israeli commando units are becoming more frequent with heavier casualties. There are clashes between Israeli and Egyptian jets over the Suez Canal, there are border raids by Syrian terrorists, riots by Arabs against Israelis, riots by Israelis against Arabs.

Actually, even if the principals in all these negotiations, Nassar and Hussein and Dayan and Jarring and whoever else may be concerned do come to a peace agreement, will matters be helped very much?

Of course, there will no longer be official fighting - but then the fighting which is now going on is not really supposed to be happening. Supposedly, there is an armistice in effect, or a truce - anyway, there isn't supposed to be a war going on in the Middle East.

But what can the governments do about their extremists, their fanatics? What will they do about those who carry out the border raids, those who throw the bombs, those who start the riots? This, of course, is a question which the United States is finding difficult to solve, with her problem of inner city riots and protesting students.

More than a peace treaty is needed to solve the difficulties in the Middle East. The people of the countries must in some way be taught that cooperation would be more profitable and of more benefit to them than war. What seems to be needed everywhere are more teachers of good will and fewer teachers of ill will. Documents signed by leaders alone will do only a minimum of good, if the people of the countries concerned are not convinced of the need for peace.

I Saw Them

By BERYL SEGAL

"Molad" is a Bi-monthly magazine published in Israel. It is, of course, in Hebrew, and is comparable to "Atlantic Monthly," "Commentary" or "Harper's" in this country. Articles on a variety of subjects, literary criticism, a short story or two, and poems fill the pages of the magazine.

The current issue of "Molad" carries two poems by the Israel poetess Ylanna Shamir. One of them is called "Rotti Oton," (I Saw Them.) It is a poem born after the Six-Day-War, and "I Saw Them" refers to the soldiers returning from the battlefield. The phrases, the cadences, the mood of the poem have haunted me ever since I read it, and I wish to have you read it, too. This is really the only criterion we have to judge between a good poem and an indifferent one. Any verse that touches us deeply, that brings up images and visions, is as far as we are concerned, a good poem. I could not remain indifferent to "Rotti Oton" — "I Saw Them."

I saw the returning soldiers with the feeling of guilt, almost ashamed, that they are alive, while their comrades were left behind. I felt the same way dozens of years ago during World War One. They still feel the same way, the soldiers in all the wars up to Vietnam.

Here is the poem translated into English. The translation is not perfect, as every translation must by necessity be. But I hope the mood is there.

Arab Infiltrators Killed Near Jordan

JERUSALEM — The Israeli authorities reported last week that six Arab infiltrators were killed and six were captured in a skirmish in the northern sector of the occupied area on the west bank of the Jordan River. One Israeli was wounded.

The Arab group had crossed the river cease-fire line, the Israelis said, when they engaged an Israeli patrol eight miles north of Jiftlik, near the Damia bridge.

The incident was the latest in a series of clashes between Israeli and Arab commando units. Recently the Israelis said, they exchanged artillery fire with regular Jordanian units in the northern part of the Jordan Valley.

The Israelis said that the American-made "Long Toms" used by the Jordanians had dropped 30 to 40 shells into El Hama, in the occupied Golan area and into Israeli settlements south of the Sea of Galilee.

According to the Israeli version, the incident began with Arab mortar shelling in the area. Israeli artillery replied by silencing Arab positions in Shuna, on the east bank of the Jordan.

Some of the shooting was heard by a group of 200 Americans, members of the United Jewish Appeal.

Visiting some of the settlements that had come under Jordan, the night before, they were told by Maj. Gen. David Elazar, head of the Israeli northern command, that "a battle is going on right now south of here". There were gasps from the group, whose members could hear the staccato bursts of gunfire from the Damiya region. Israeli jets wheeled overhead.

The Israeli accounts of commandos working with regular Jordanian units would contradict reports from Beirut and Amman that the Jordanian Government was beginning to crack down on the irregulars.

I SAW THEM
I saw them returning silently.
The lips revealing nothing,
only the eyes speaking.
They walk in a world not theirs.
Sleepwalkers.

They met an angel face to face.
Ten times they wrestled and he touched them at the thigh, and a comrade fell nearby.

Now sit at home
doing nothing.
The newspaper and the book slip from their hands, with empty eyes they gaze through the wall into empty space.

When they leave home, their steps are turned toward the hospital, there to see once more
the heels of the angel:
A leg hacked off.
A staring socket.
A silent cry.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

Needed: Round-The-Clock Servicemen

You call the electrician and ask him to come to your apartment to do a small rewiring job. You explain that you're a working wife and that therefore nobody is home until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. He explains that he doesn't work after 5:30, or on weekends. You don't dare leave your house key under the doormat, so you end up missing a whole day of work, and possibly a day of pay, in order to be on hand to receive the electrician.

Or, let's say you trust your plumber enough to leave the key for him so that he can get into your house and fix a leak in a bathroom faucet while you're at work. But he misunderstands your telephone instructions and changes the washer in the wrong faucet. You must then call him back to do the needed job, and you end up paying for two service calls instead of one.

One of the most frustrating penalties for being a working woman today is that we can't get needed services as easily as non-working women because the people who are supposed to repair our homes, redecorate our apartments, fix our TV sets, lay our carpets and tune up our cars have the same work schedules as we do.

Working women must therefore either risk leaving their homes open while they're out or miss valuable working hours at their jobs. Even if they can manage to take time off from their jobs to explain what needs fixing to a plumber or a carpenter or a furnace repairman, the repairman seldom will tell you precisely what time he'll arrive.

As a result, I suspect, millions of women today waste tens of millions of hours each year simply waiting around their homes to greet repairmen who even then may not turn up.

Today, 37 per cent of married women in this country are in the labor force. In all, 28,000,000 American women, married and single, are working at jobs. In millions of cases, our homes are closed during our work hours.

they pick up courage and visit the mourner's house.
Their heart did never beat as fast
in battle,
as it does now.
And they knock knowing he will not return to bid them enter.

They sit as if guilty,
ashamed,
as the eyes of the picture
follow them,
like the face of the angel
they saw.
And youths become men
with open eyes.

The aftermath of the Six-Day War. The aftermath of any war. Young people who saw the face of the Angel of Death face to face can never erase the picture from before their eyes. They see him in every torn limb, maimed body, crippled soul. They will never forget the face of the angel.

Next time you hear of a returning veteran from Vietnam who cannot adjust himself to the routine of life, know that he must have seen the Angel of Death face to face and he cannot forget that face.

For years, major department stores, particularly in the large metropolitan areas and in the suburbs, have been keeping their doors open until 8 or 9 on at least a few weekday evenings, and on Saturdays mainly to fill our needs.

For years, supermarkets have maintained convenient evening hours three or four days a week, also primarily because of us. Their doors are always open on Saturday and sometimes even on Sundays.

Discount houses have tailored their hours too to working, as well as non-working, women and men, and often the big rush hours are in the evenings.

Why can't more of those who regularly sell us tens of billions of dollars of services match those who sell us goods and provide their services during their customers' non-working hours? Admittedly, a minority do, but most don't.

Why can't appliance repair and other service firms stagger workdays so that there are always some servicemen available on Saturdays and evenings? Admittedly, some firms offer this as "premium" service, but even if you will pay the extra charges, finding the worker is defiantly tough.

Many other types of workers, including chefs, hotel managers, movie projector operators, newspaper printers, bakers, truck drivers, airline pilots, building maintenance workers (and me), routinely work during evenings and weekends in addition to or instead of daytime and weekdays. In many cases there isn't even a premium for night and weekend services.

The worst sufferer from this service gap is the single working woman living alone and afraid to leave her home open to any stranger unless she is there to direct the worker.

Won't you who can help her do so once you recognize her problem?

George Robbo was South playing with William Ferris, East-West was vulnerable, North the dealer. The bidding:

N E S W
1S P 2H P
3H P 4H

The bidding presented no problem, the contract was practically automatic. The point involved was how many tricks had to be lost. Unquestionably, the two minor suit Aces were losers but I watched a few Declarers somewhere along the line take the Spade finesse and lose to the Queen. I said to myself when I saw them do this that they did not deserve to have the finesse work as they really did not need to take it. In other words, it could have been played a different, better percentage-wise way. Here is how Mr. Robbo played it:

He received the lead of the Club Ace but no lead made any difference. A Club was continued and here is where the players went wrong. They looked at those beautiful Spades and saw that if the finesse worked they had five tricks so on the Club Queen they discarded a Diamond. Subsequently they drew Trumps and then lost the Spade finesse as well as the two Aces. They could even have gone down if the Diamond honors were placed unfavorably.

On trick two, when the second Club was played, today's Declarer had already foreseen his solution. He was aware that the Spade finesse was just as apt to lose as win whereas the outstanding Spades, five of them, were much more likely to break 3-2. So instead of pitching a Diamond, he rid himself of his third little Spade. He then drew Trumps in two rounds and returned his attention to the Spade suit. If both opponents followed twice, he was all set. He played the King and then the Ace and they did. Now he ruffed a third Spade in his hand which made the other two in Dummy good.

The making of the hand was now assured no matter where the Diamond honors were. Next he played a small Trump to Dummy and discarded two Diamonds on the two good Spades. This didn't really help him any but he had eliminated his potential Spade loss so these were perfectly good tricks. Now came the Diamond suit which normally would have given Declarer a guess as to whether to play the King and hope the Ace was to his right or the 10 and trust that it was the Queen in the East hand.

In the actual hand, East had both so Declarer could not go wrong meaning that the Diamond losses were held to one. But had West had them both and the Spade finesse taken, the contract would have gone down. Percentage-wise, West is just exactly as likely to have both honors as East. Had I set up the hand to teach a lesson I would have placed both honors wrong; then the Declarers who went down would remember this the next time it came up.

Moral: A finesse is a wonderful way to eliminate a loser when it is necessary, but when a better way presents itself make yourself aware of it. The above is a better way.

Hospital To Serve East Jerusalem

JERUSALEM — Some 300 beds will be available in the restored Hadassah Hospital on Mount Scopus when it is reopened in 1970, according to Dr. Kalman Mann, director-general of the Hadassah Medical Organization. The hospital had been closed from 1948 when Jordanian forces seized the Old City of Jerusalem during the War of Independence and barred access to Scopus until June, 1967 when Israeli forces took the city.

Dr. Mann said that the renovated hospital will serve mainly residents of East Jerusalem in place of a government hospital in that part of Jerusalem. All members of the staff of the government hospital will be re-employed by Hadassah either at the medical center at Ein Karem or on Mount Scopus. This arrangement will bring to five percent the proportion of Arab personnel employed by Hadassah, Dr. Mann said.

NIXON'S ADVISOR
NEW YORK — Republican Presidential Candidate Richard M. Nixon has named Max M. Fisher, Detroit industrialist and leader of humanitarian causes, as his special advisor on urban and community affairs.

A well-known leader of the American Jewish Community, Fisher is president and former general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, the major agency aiding refugees overseas and immigrants to Israel.

'Keep A Boy in Sport - And Out Of Court'

THE SUBJECT WAS EXPANSION — The discussion was informal as members of the "Bijou Marching and Chowder Club" were assembling in the Waldorf. One of the more intellectually inclined individuals was upset about the major league baseball expansion. "If they keep up this suspension, they won't have players enough to go around," he was saying. "Lookit," he continued between puffs of a "roll-your-own," "They got Kansas City, Montreal, Seattle? An who else? Anyway, they go twelve teams in each league and if they don't look out, they'll have a dozen playing here and there and everywhere."

ENTER THE VP — It was there that Tony Petronella, self-appointed vice-president of the group, stepped into the picture. "Why don't you let us members of the executive committee discuss these situations," said Tony. "And it isn't suspension, it's EXPansion." The explanation concerned a previous reprimand by Petronella. "Once when I had my new suspenders on and when I called them expanders, you said, 'Say SUSpenders! So now you're telling me to say Expansion. So what's the point? EX or Sus, they got too many teams. Why, if Babe Root was playing, ya'd never see him play!"

GEOGRAPHY — "These meetings should be conducted in a more genteel manner," Petronella stated, "Just as though we were in the Waldorf-Astoria instead of just the Waldorf." "I know sumpin about Astoria, too," put in the controversial member. "Wasn't dere a guy who was a fighter who was the 'Astoria Assassin'?" "You may be referring to Paul Berlenbach and you do get around," answered Tony. "Have you ever been to Manilla?" He was going to tell about the time he judged a boxing bout there but he didn't have a chance because the answer came quickly. "Manilla? Huh. I used to hang up at Jennies Ice Cream Parlor and you ask me about Manilla?"

STYMFIED — "What's the use?" Tony laughed the interrogation. "They have twelve teams and if they don't look out, they'll have a dozen! What kind of mathematics do you call that? It's like the fighter, they tell about Peter Maher, I think it was. He was offered a purse of 12-hundred dollars but he held out for a thousand. It's also like Orlando Savastano's famous duck, Orlando referred to it as "he" and said, "He lays an egg every day - a dozen a week!" "Aw well, maybe I ain't so good in

Says Fires In Argentina Caused By Saboteurs

BUENOS AIRES — Latin America's largest newspaper, La Prensa, declared in an editorial last week that there are more than sufficient grounds to believe that anti-Jewish and anti-American extremist organizations are responsible for the fires that destroyed Israeli and United States exhibits in Buenos Aires in recent weeks.

The newspaper referred to the destruction of Israel's $2 million industrial exhibit on the Buenos Aires fair grounds two weeks ago and the earlier destruction of an American "Atoms for Peace" exhibit on the campus of Cordoba University here. The paper attributed both fires to incendiary bombs and said the case for sabotage was strong even though none of the perpetrators has been identified yet.

La Prensa's editorial in effect contradicted a statement by Argentine Minister of Interior Guillermo Borda who said a week ago that there was insufficient evidence to link the fire at the Israeli pavilion to a criminal act.

ROGER E. SPEAR

Bonds And Preferred Offer Stability And Pay Well

Q: I recently retired and could use more income. Have you any suggestion on the following stocks which I hold: Atlas Consolidated Mining & Development, Lorillard Corp., Keystone Steel and Wire, Inspiration Consolidated Copper and F.W. Woolworth? — W.P.

A: Sale of two issues will increase your yield and add stability to your portfolio. Although Inspiration Cons. Copper will probably report somewhat better earnings than in strike-depressed 1967, this could be the second year in which the dividend was not covered, leaving some doubt as to the payment's security. The second sale is Woolworth which, because of an improving outlook, has moved up in price, but at this level the yield is inadequate for your needs.

I like Atlas Consolidated Mining — a Philippine-based copper operation — which has upped its October quarterly payment to 89 cents a share after reporting a 78% increase in first-half earnings. A contract arrangement with Mitsubishi of Japan, negotiated in 1955 and expiring in 1972, has been beneficial to Atlas. This month daily production will have reached an annual rate of 100 million pounds, a target set two years ago. Increased production should help offset weakening in copper prices expected next year.

Directors of Lorillard have approved the merger into Loew's Inc. Under terms of the union you will receive for each Lorillard share held a $62 face value debenture paying 6.87% a year in interest. In addition you will receive a warrant to purchase — pending approval of a three-for-one split — one share of Loew's common at $35 for four years and at increasing amounts for the following eight years.

The prospects for Keystone Consolidated Industries (formerly Keystone Steel and Wire) depend on the company's success in expanding into new markets to offset the limited growth and intense competition in its wire business. Because recent acquisitions are promising and shares offer a good income, I would hold.

Purchase of either of these highly rated bonds is recommended: Georgia Power 6 5/8's of 1981 or Pacific Electric 6 5/8's of 1998. The balance of your funds should be used to buy American Can $1.75 preferred yielding about 5 1/2%.

Enviable Growth Recorded By Utility Companies

Q: We're in our late 30s and very conservative investors. We know we should buy growth stocks but have always settled for income instead. Have you any suggestions on investing the $10,000 we now have available? — G.D.

A: A carefully selected package of electric utility issues, representing areas of the country where population growth should prove most rapid, would be suitable for a conservative investor. The utilities have overall an enviable record of earnings and dividend increases but, because higher yields have been available elsewhere, the group has been in disfavor. As a consequence earnings multiples peaked out in the mid-60s and many fine growth utilities are obtainable today at reasonable levels.

The five companies reviewed below have been selected primarily for their strategic geographic locations and secondly for their growth records over the past decade. Each, with a history of annual dividend increases, currently provides an adequate yield.

Delmarva Power & Light furnishes electricity and gas to commercial, residential and industrial customers in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. Over the last 10 years earnings growth has been uninterrupted, averaging over 10% year to year.

Gulf States Utilities, serving Texas and Louisiana where oil and chemical industries predominate, is predicting a 12% long-range compound annual growth rate. Because of a greater number of common shares outstanding and increased preferred dividend requirements, a slowdown may be seen this year.

Long Island Lighting operates both in densely settled sections and also in Suffolk County where population should expand at an above-average rate.

Nevada Power, serving an area where two-thirds of the homes are all-electric should benefit from continued government-sponsored building programs for space and nuclear projects.

Public Service of Colorado is expected to maintain its 10% annual growth rate, particularly since its largest single customer — American Metal Climax — has opened a new mining operation.

Equal dollar amounts placed in these five issues should enhance your capital over the next decade while producing a moderate return.

Fate Of The Smaller Company In Mergers

Q: Please explain what happens to the smaller company in a merger, like Lily Tulip Cup (Owens-Illinois); Davol (International Paper); Red Owl Stores (Gamble-Skogmo); Jones & Laughlin Steel (Ling-Temco-Vought); Agricultural Chemical (U.S. Steel). Do their profits go mostly to the larger company? — M.N.

A: You offer good examples to illustrate some of the different merger methods used to increase sales and earnings. Merger terms and accounting practices, though, are far from simple so I can site no general rule to cover the ultimate disposition of profits.

If fully merged under a single corporate name, the smaller company may operate as a division of the parent company with earnings consolidated, although it may retain its original name and managerial personnel. If publicly owned, its stock will no longer be traded because shares will have been exchanged for others of similar value in the surviving corporation. Lily Tulip Cup's planned merger illustrates this procedure.

On the other hand, Jones & Laughlin continues to trade because only 63% of its stock is owned by Ling-Temco-Vought. This provides an equity in the smaller company's earnings. Red Owl Stores is over 80% owned by Gamble-Skogmo which reports Red Owl's sales and earnings as part of its own operations. Red Owl trades as usual and is carrying out expansion moves of its own.

Your two remaining illustrations — Davol Inc. and Agricultural Chemical — were purchased for cash by International Paper and U.S. Steel respectively. Profits will be consolidated as operators of each are to become a part of expanded facilities being developed by the purchasers. Inter. Paper paid $98.5 million for Davol's assets which will enable IP to put into production a new line of nonwoven disposable hospital and health care supplies. U.S. Steel paid about $100 million to Armour to acquire one of its wholly owned subsidiaries — Armour Agricultural Chemical — because Big Steel is aggressively building up its chemical business to offset partially the inroads of foreign steelmakers.

170 U.S. Immigrants Bring Israeli Total To 10,000 In 3 Months

HAIFA — The end of the Jewish year 5728 was marked with the arrival of 170 settlers from the United States, which brought the total of immigrants for the past three months to 10,000 half from the "prosperous" countries.

The newcomers who landed in Haifa last week included scientists, teachers, technicians, social workers and twelve students. They were welcomed by Uzi Narkiss, head of the Jewish Agency's Immigration Department.

One group, which arrived under the auspices of the Ihud Habonim, has decided to live cooperatively in the town of Carmiel, in Galilee, forming a kind of urban kibbutz. Its members will find work in Haifa and the neighborhood, and will pool their earnings. They include teachers, psychologists and chemical researchers, and they will be joined in a year or two by another group now being formed in the United States.

Among the settlers were Dr. Peter Rudman, 39, former professor of solid state physics at Vanderbilt University, in Nashville, Tennessee, who arrived with his wife and three children to settle at Kibbutz Kfar Masaryk, and Rabbi Leon Katz, 31, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Rabbi Katz, who was accompanied by his Israeli wife and child, studied computer programming and operating in the United States. He said he was "looking around for a job that would be of use here."

IMMIGRATION ASKED

STOCKHOLM — The Zionist Federation of Sweden has adopted resolutions calling for increased immigration to Israel and greater Zionist information and educational activities in Sweden. The gathering was addressed by Abraham Schenker, head of the Jewish Agency's information department. Fritz Hollander was re-elected Federation president.

Yiddish Paper In Poland Asserts But One Opinion

LONDON — Poland's only Yiddish newspaper, Folkstimme, has taken issue with an official of the Polish Ministry of Education who claimed that the Yiddish language was having a diminishing influence in Jewish life.

That dispute was the only item of opinion or comment to appear in the latest edition of the paper which has been reduced to weekly status after having appeared four times a week for the last 22 years.

The edition of Saturday, Sept. 21, just recently received here, carried no column of Jewish news from outside Poland, formerly a regular feature. There was no editorial. The column of excerpts from the Polish press was devoted to reprints of an article from the Polish magazine "Literary Life" by Stanislaw Mauersberg, director of the department for minorities education of the Education Ministry.

Mauersberg dated the beginning of Jewish education in Poland from 1944 when Jewish schools were established as private institutions in Lublin. They were taken over by the Government in 1949, he said, at which time there were 18 Jewish schools in the country, five with Yiddish as their language of instruction and one with Hebrew.

According to the writer, there were only 11 Jewish schools in 1950, none of them employing Yiddish or Hebrew as the language of instruction. Folkstimme said, in comment, that Yiddish was "far from being a dead language."

The paper expressed surprise that Mauersberg cited Israel in support of his contention. "There must be other reasons for the abolition of Yiddish as the teaching language in Jewish schools," Folkstimme, said, than the fact that it is not the official language of Israel.

FOUND SHOT
LONDON — Mattiyahu Sharon, retiring press counselor at the Israel Embassy here, was found shot to death in his St. John's Wood apartment here Monday with a pistol beside his body. An investigation is in progress but police said there was no evidence of foul play.

Sharon, 42, a former major in the Israeli Army, was married last week to Varda Fodor, a secretary to the Israel Consul General. He was due to return to Israel shortly to take up a new post.
