Expert Says Skeleton Is That Of Bormann

BERLIN — A West Berlin forensic expert said this week that he had established with near certainty that Martin Bormann, Hitler's aide, died in Berlin at the end of the war as Russian troops closed in on the former German capital.

The expert, Dr. Hans Jurgen Spengler of the Berlin Forensic Institute, said he had identified "with probability bordering on certainty" one of two skeletons unearthed here last December as that of Bormann.

Dr. Spengler said that he had been able to identify through a long series of tests the two skeletons as those of Bormann and of Hitler's physician, Dr. Ludwig Stumpfegger.

Whether the findings close the book on the mystery surrounding the fate of the powerful Nazi figure will not be known until West German legal authorities pass a final verdict.

Dr. Spengler said he planned to send his report to Wilhelm Metzner, the Hesse state prosecutor at Frankfurt, whose office has been in charge of pending war crimes procedures against Bormann.

The Nazi aide, who was last authoritatively seen alive May 1, 1945, after he emerged from Hitler's bunker, has been variously DANIEL REUBEN STEIN, four days old in the above photograph, was the first Jewish baby born in Rhode Island in 1973. Born at 4:59 a.m. on January 1, 1973, at the Providence Lying-In Hospital, he is the first child of Dr. and Mrs. Joshua Stein of 58 Union Street, Bristol.

Daniel weighed 7 pounds, 7 ounces, and was approximately 19 1/2 inches long at birth.

President Zalman Shazar Urges Spiritual Leaders Support Goren

NEW YORK — Israel's President, Zalman Shazar, urged Jewish spiritual leaders here to give moral support to the authority of the Chief Rabbinate's offices in Israel concerning religious questions in that country.

In an arduous day of appointments last week that began in the morning at the Pierre Hotel and lasted until late in the evening, the 83-year-old President discussed various subjects with Jewish spokesmen.

Focusing attention on a nettling religious problem, he referred indirectly to the recent criticism of Chief Rabbi Shlomo Goren for ruling that a son and a daughter of divorced parents were not bastards and could marry the persons they were engaged to. The ruling, which reversed a previous decision by a rabbinical court, was protested by Orthodox rabbis in Israel and in this country.

Speaks of Immigrants

Talking to Jacob Stein, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, and to Rabbi Israel Miller, president of the American Zionist Federation, Mr. Shazar cited the merits of newly arrived immigrants in Israel, including Russian Jews, and his nation's efforts to integrate them into the Israeli life.

Speaking in Yiddish, Mr.

Shazar recalled his meeting with President Nixon in Washington after he had attended memorial exercises for President Harry S. Truman. "He was gracious and friendly and, like President Truman, President Nixon said he also remains the same friend of Israel."

On one of his appointments, President Shazar, accompanied by security men, went to 770 Eastern Parkway in Brooklyn, the international headquarters of the Lubavitcher Movement, the religious organization of Hasidic Jews headed by Rabbi Menahem M. Schneerson.

Despite the cold, throngs of dancing and singing Hasidic Jews greeted Israel's President.

Leading the reception for Mr. Shazar was Rabbi Schneerson. It was not their first meeting. President Shazar, a follower of the Hasidic movement, was born in the Czarist Russian city of Lubavitch, where the movement was founded. On his missions to this country, he has unfailingly paid visits to the leader of the Lubavitcher movement.

At their meeting, both spoke of the problems that confront Jews in Israel and throughout the world, and underscored the spiritual significance of the Torah, the all-embracing document for the Jewish religious community.

Dayan's Proposal To Build City On Sinai Arouses Controversy

JERUSALEM — A proposal by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan to build a new Israeli city of up to 250,000 people on the rolling sand dunes of northeastern Sinai has aroused a controversy here and has split the Cabinet.

Acting as the minister responsible for the occupied Arab territories, Mr. Dayan ordered a team of architects and city planners to draw up a comprehensive master plan for a new town in the former Egyptian territory immediately southwest of the Gaza Strip.

The 10-month study was completed in September. Although it has not yet been formally submitted to the Government for approval, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir has already denounced it as the sort of "creeping annexationism" he believes will reduce the chance of reaching a negotiated peace with the Arab nations. He also argued that such an ambitious project would overtax Israel's limited economic resources.

The controversy reveals the thinking of Israeli leaders on the future border with Egypt.

The plan for a major new Israeli urban settlement in northeastern Sinai is an integral part of that territorial concept. As proposed by Mr. Dayan, the city would be built a few miles south and west of Rafah, the small Arab town that sits astride the former line dividing the Gaza Strip and the Sinai.

Judging from their public statements, there appears to be little disagreement among Israel's top leaders, including Premier Golda Meir, about the necessity of retaining the Gaza Strip. Even Mr. Sapir is said to concede the strategic importance of the area. But he is opposed, according to close associates, to "creating facts" by major Israeli development in the area prior to negotiation. He is also said to be concerned about the demographic threat posed by the inclusion inside Israel of 400,000 Gazans and about the economic cost of such a project.

The Dayan proposal would call for the development of a modern planned city. It would be expected to grow from an initial 5,000 settlers to 250,000 persons within 25 years. Only Tel Aviv, with an estimated population of 390,000, and Jerusalem, with 285,000, are larger than that now.

The economy of the city, tentatively named Yamit, which is Hebrew for "seaside," would be based on tourism, services and science-based industries. In the master plan, it is envisioned as the major port of entry for the southern part of the country. A much-needed third Mediterranean port would be established there, along with the country's second international airport. A new oil pipeline from Elath might also terminate there.

The only development on the site now is farms of several hundred Arab residents. Some actually live within the proposed site, and others have their homes in the nearby village of Sheik Zuwait.

One of the resident farmers, a wizened man who identified himself only as Mohammed, was bitter about the proposal for an Israeli city. "This is my land," he told a visitor to his mud-walled house. "I have farmed it for 40 years and I want my children to be able to do the same."

Mohammed said that his life had already been made difficult 10-foot-high security fence that the Israelis have constructed around a vast area known as the Rafah salient. This area, which lies to the south of the proposed site for Yamit, was fenced in last year, ostensibly to prevent terrorists from infiltrating into the southern end of the Gaza Strip.

The estimated 2,000 Bedouins who once lived inside the salient have been moved into a transient camp a few miles to the north, where the Israelis are constructing cement-block housing for them. The Bedouins are permitted to work their fields inside the salient during the day but must leave the area by sunset. Riding their camels and carrying palm fronds to roof their temporary homes, they form a stately procession each evening as they pass through the guarded checkpoints in the fence.

TO ENTERTAIN: Mel Simons, comedian, will entertain at the 10th Anniversary Installation Dinner of the officers of Congregation Mishkon Tfilah and Men's Club which will be held on Sunday, January 21, in the social hall of the synagogue. The cocktail hour at 6 p.m. will precede the dinner at 7 p.m.

Please Is Bavakasha

The two Hebrew words you need to get around in Israel are ba-vak-a-sha which is "please," and to-da ra-ba which is "thank you." You need not memorize them now, for they will be the first two words you learn upon arrival.

Every conversational exchange in Israel, whether it is paying a cab driver or discussing an itinerary with Mr. Landor at the Government Press Office, is preceded by bavakasha and terminated with toda raba, and sometimes in reverse. You can pay your cab driver with toda raba and as he makes change he will say bavakasha, as though you were both schoolboys parsing a sentence to find the predicate.

"Please" and "thank you" do not indicate the formal society. Indeed, the opposite is true in Israel. The only man in the country who would dare wear a jacket and necktie in the summer is Abba Eban, the Foreign Minister.

No, the Israelis are informal. They repeat "please" and "thank you" because, though they all suspect there are class distinctions, they want to pretend such distinctions do not exist.

The officers and men in the Army address each other by their first names. There is no need for spit and polish, of course, when not far to the soldier's rear is his own home. And almost every Israeli officer was at one time an enlisted man.

In the composing room of Ma'ariv the publisher addresses his typesetter by first name and the typesetter addresses his boss similarly. The request for locked trays or dummy layouts is included within the parenthesis of bavakasha and toda raba.

Behind the politeness, the informality of dress, the camaraderie of officers and men is the deep-rooted Socialist ethic. All work is honorable. Work confers dignity upon the worker. Money in Israel doesn't make that much difference.

The average Israeli family spends 1,000 pounds a month, which means the average Israeli family makes 1,600 pounds. Out of $110 a week, the taxpayer takes home $80. More money means a car but not a larger house. Most of the apartments and villas are built to the same scale. More money means a vacation in Greece, but not finery because no one wants to compete with the elegant Abba Eban.

One month of the year, the wage earner is in the Army reserves, for which he receives the better part of his salary through a special arrangement between his employer and the state.

But everyone in Israel, salaried or self-employed, executive or laborer, receives complete medical security, from eyeglasses to heart surgery, and not only for himself but for his family, for as little as $5 a month. The average Israeli can hardly afford an auto, but for another $2 a month, he can guarantee some of the costs of a college education for his children.

The Socialist ethic insures an absolute and universal equality. And the ethic makes a profound political impression.

The extreme conservative in Israel corresponds to the American who voted for Hubert Humphrey. The Israeli in the political center would vote for Lindsay as mayor on the Liberal Party Line.

On the far left there are only Socialists, not Social Democrats, not labor leaders (for everyone in Israel is involved in labor), not Communists (for there are few among the Jews here), but pure-bred Socialists who would think Norman Thomas knew what he was talking about.

But the same Socialists

Neo-Nazis Surface In Milwaukee, Wis.

MILWAUKEE — A neo-Nazi group, the National Socialist White People's Party, has surfaced in this city in recent months, according to a report by David M. Lushewitz, staff writer of the Wisconsin Jewish Chronicle. Racist fliers adorned with swastikas and filled with incendiary terms such as kike, nigger and Black pigs, have been placed in mailboxes in apartment houses, stuck under windshield wipers and slipped under doors.

A typical leaflet has a headline reading, "Race-Mixing Stinks..." The body of the leaflet states, in part: "The sick, depraved Jews who monopolize the motion picture industry can hardly wait to turn America into a mongrel cesspool. They are busy grinding out one obscene movie after another with race-mixing as the principal theme... All over America countless Jewish-owned theaters are showing movies depicting lewd relationships between Blacks and whites... If you're tired of seeing a bunch of rich Jews fatten their bankrolls on the proceeds of legalized pornography racket... then contact us."

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

Where The Engineering Jobs Will Be

The job outlook for engineers, scientists and technicians is brightening. The prolonged overall economic upswing in the US is now expanding career openings, pulling up salary levels.

Major US corporations report they plan to hire 42 per cent more graduates with bachelor degrees in engineering this coming June than in June '72, and 27 per cent more graduates with master's degrees.

Average starting salaries, according to the annual poll conducted by Dr. Frank Endicott of Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois, will be $905 a month for newly graduated engineers with a bachelor's degree and $1,059 a month for those with a master's degree. These are substantially above the levels of 1972.

"The acute depression is over," says Dr. Eli Ginsberg, director of Columbia University's Conservation of Human Resources project and a nationally respected authority on the nation's manpower trends.

If this is the career of your choice — or if you know a man or woman involved in the engineering, technical or scientific fields — here are the key trends and areas where job opportunities will be brightest:

* A real need has developed for those trained in the application of aerospace advances to earth problems — ranging from ill health to poverty and problems of the deaf and the blind.

* Cross disciplinary specialists will be in much greater demand than those trained in a narrow specialty, and this will apply particularly in careers relating to environmental protection. For instance, a combination in ever-rising demand might be for those with training in the social sciences and law as well as the usual basic fields.

* Industrial hygienists will be in demand to develop health programs throughout the US workplace and find ways to eliminate major occupational hazards and diseases. Also in demand will be specialists to help protect man from the hazards of excessive radiation.

* The ever-stricter health standards being imposed by federal regulatory agencies will require larger staffs to perform research and testing in private industries prior to the sale of new drugs and chemicals to the public.

* Food scientists and technologists will be sought in larger and larger numbers to find new ways to: store foods safely; apply computer techniques to food processing and marketing operations; develop new foods for dieters and others; test food additives such as flavorings and preservatives for safety and effectiveness; develop new food products such as "meats" made from soybeans and fortified cereals for the undernourished.

* There'll be many new and far out specialties. For instance, in need will be industrial meteorologists to probe the links between weather and specific human activities — including biological functioning — and to apply such knowledge to agricultural and industrial operations.

* Finally, a recent "skills conversion" study by the National Society of Professional Engineers in Washington turned up the following 11 fields now eagerly searching for scientists and engineers in the years immediately ahead. This can be an exceedingly valuable, money-making guide.

- (1) Heavy construction (bridges, skyscrapers);
- (2) Residential construction;
- (3) Research and development (any field);
- (4) Environmental systems;
- (5) Forestry;
- (6) Medical technology;
- (7) Electric power and utilities;
- (8) Industrial safety;
- (9) Transportation planning;
- (10) Law enforcement;
- (11) Traffic engineering.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

A New Year In Jewish Life

By BERYL SEGAL

We presume too much when we think that the earth stops in its course among the heavenly stars and planets on the last day of December and the first day of January and begins a new year. In time and space our years are of no consequence. They are, in the words of a popular comic strip, so many pieces of paper in the new calendar.

The change of the calendar, though, gives people an occasion to stop and look about them before they discard the December month of 1972 and begin tearing off the January sheet of the year 1973. The change to a new calendar year is also a time for the Jewish national organizations to sit in judgment of their own work and the impact it has on the Jewish communities they serve.

In general the efforts of the communities were directed in three broad areas.

1. Concern for Israel.
2. The Jews of the Soviet Union and their striving for freedom.
3. The American Jewish Community, particularly Jewish Education.

We are concerned with Jewish Education. The summation of the status of Jewish Education in America for the past year is not a happy one. Indeed it has not been happy for the past ten years. Unless we do something about the situation we may find our efforts to have been all in vain.

Fortunately, the responsible Jewish National Organizations are aware of the seriousness of the problem and they are determined to take the necessary steps.

One of these steps is the formation of an Institute for Jewish Life. The Institute will be under the auspices of the Council of the Jewish Federations of America. The Providence Federation is part of the council. The Federations have pledged the sum of two million dollars. The Institute will begin work immediately and it is hoped that at the end of three years we will know where we are and whither we are going. The Institute will engage the pooled resources of community personalities, Jewish scholars and social workers. Through surveys and in-depth studies the Institute will attempt to discover what is wrong with Jewish Education. What are we doing that is wrong? Are we doing enough? Are we big enough to say: This is not the way!

The facts about Jewish Education today are:

1. Of the six thousand pupils in 1960, we have today only four hundred and fifty thousand. The Institute will want to know: Why such a drop in attendance. Is it lack of children or lack of interest?

2. Of the four hundred and fifty thousand pupils enrolled in the schools only a very small percentage continue after Bar and Bas Mitzvah. The problem for the Institute will be to find the reasons for this attitude. It is clear that the Jewish school has more to offer than the chanting of a few lines in the Torah and the reading of a prayer or two in the Siddur. Why then are we satisfied with this teaspoonful of Jewishness for our children?

Let someone think that this is all there is to Jewish Education, let me hasten to add that there is an example as to what schools can do, and do, in our midst. At a time when the general school enrollment declined, the number of pupils in the Day Schools is on the rise. At a time when children learn so woefully little, the Hebrew Day School accomplishes so much.

I quote from the booklet published by Torah Umesorah, the Day School system with which our Providence school is affiliated, of November 1972.

According to the report by the National President, Mr. Samuel Feuerstein, the number of Hebrew Day Schools in the United States is now 402 in 32 states, with 80,000 students. The number of students has doubled since 1960, the same year that the enrollment in the community schools began to decline.

The Institute will have to look into this matter, too. There might be a lesson for us to learn.

Overseas Exchange Mixup Connects Tel Aviv, Beirut

TEL AVIV — "If you know whom you were talking to," the Israeli operator said, "you'd probably get the shock of your life."

"Not at all," replied the Lebanese operator. "It's a pleasure."

That was how what probably was the first civilian telephone conversation in 25 years between the two neighboring countries began here.

Mrs. Seule Speer, supervisor of the Tel Aviv overseas exchange, said one of her operators had called her over and said, "It's Beirut on the line," so I figured there must have been a mistake." She said that the Lebanese operator told her that she had been trying to get a number in Rome.

Regular contacts between Israel and Lebanon are limited to brief exchanges between security men at a border crossing normally closed to traffic. Lebanon signed an armistice but not a peace treaty after the war of 1948-49.

Mrs. Speer said that she and her Lebanese counterpart had spoken for "quite a while" and will also take a closer look at the students in colleges and universities throughout the land.

There are about four hundred thousand Jewish students on the campuses. Yet a very small number of them ever come to the Hill-ell Foundation functions, or form clubs and organizations of their own with Jewish content. Nor do they show any interest in the Jewish Community, and do not exhibit any interest to become associated with them.

Yet the Jewish students did not change overnight. They are as alert as ever, according to people who know them. They are as curious about their surroundings as the students that preceded them, and are among the most socially conscious on the campuses.

Most of these students attended Jewish schools of one kind or another. Why this change in attitude toward things Jewish? Is it true that their childhood education which we gave them, has chased them away?

Jewish Education, at the children's level or at the college level, must find a way to the hearts of these young Jews. They, the children and the college youth, are the future of the Jewish community in America. Crying about the high percentage of intermarriage on the campuses, or about the large number of Jesus followers among the students, will not remedy matters. We have been so busy with supplying the material needs of Israel and worrying about the fate of Jews in the Soviet Union, that we neglected our own garden. The garden is overgrown with weeds and wild grass. The Council of Jewish Federations is finally awakening the Jewish community and calling it to attend to the garden in its own home, on its own street, in the places where it lives.

Let no one say that campaigns for Israel are not important or that being on the alert for the welfare of Jews in the Soviet Union is not praiseworthy. But the need of the American Jewish community stares us in the face.

We cannot put it off any longer. We will watch the working of the new Institute for Jewish Life, and we will also watch for its impact here in our towns and cities in Rhode Island.

SUPPLIES ARMS

TEL AVIV — The Soviet Union has supplied Egypt with considerable quantities of their modern SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles since the expulsion of Soviet personnel from Egypt by President Anwar Sadat last July, sources here said. According to the sources, Egyptian units are presently training to operate the sophisticated equipment which was hitherto handled only by Russians. The SAM-6 missile is a highly mobile weapon designed to bring down low flying aircraft. The Egyptians are reportedly installing them around the major cities and at the Aswan Dam.

Jewish Students Visit With Hasidim In Brooklyn

NEW YORK — "Intellectual curiosity brought me here and I leave intellectually and emotionally involved after my first experience with living Judaism," remarked 19-year-old Jeff Marx. Jeff is a junior at Washington University, St. Louis, and a resident of Chicago. Like most of the 300 other students who spent a week here as guests of Hasidic families in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn, he had little knowledge of Judaism or Jewish culture.

The students came from campuses in the United States and Canada to stay with followers of Rabbi Menachem M. Schneerson, the spiritual leader of the Orthodox Lubavitcher movement.

Invitations had been extended to Jewish college youths through the Hillel Foundations of B'nai B'rith and other sources.

Visitors Join in Worship

During the week, the young people worshipped with their hosts, observed the Sabbath, learned the meaning of the Mitzvoth (religious commandments), and enjoyed the "fabrengen" (get together), with Rabbi Schneerson at 770 Eastern Parkway, the focal point of the worldwide Lubavitcher movement.

William Klein, a 23-year-old graduate student at Cornell University, said he had visited the Lubavitch headquarters on previous occasions.

"When I have a low spiritual drag," he said, "I come here. I learn. I'm motivated to do Mitzvoth."

On this occasion, William had an opportunity to hear a favorite teacher, Dr. Irving Block, a professor of philosophy at Western Ontario University, a follower of the Lubavitcher movement.

"I heard him talk and draw for my satisfaction the distinction between pure knowledge for its own sake and the motivation toward religious commitment," Mr. Klein said.

In the library study of Rabbi Yehuda Krinsky, a member of the Lubavitcher movement's executive staff, 21-year-old Lee Skully of Cleveland State University remarked: "I am beginning to learn the meaning of Jewish identity."

A Meaning of Faith

Smiling with approval, Rabbi Krinsky remarked, "If we have implanted the meaning of Torah, what Judaism means into our young guests, we are happy. By and large these youngsters have been alienated from families, religious institutions, they are simply illiterate about their faith."

At this point, Rabbi Zelman I. Posner, a leader in the movement, and a lecturer on the Lubavitch philosophies, said: "They have a right to question things they do not understand. They asked questions. We respected those questions. Their reactions to our answers were a thoughtful nod. We feel we have accomplished much."

One student, who does not understand Yiddish, had his own translator along to take notes.

Basically, the Lubavitcher movement is an intellectual one, founded in the eighteenth century by Rabbi Schneur Zalman. The word, "chabad," is an acronym for the three general segments of the intellect, namely, chochma (wisdom), bina (knowledge) and daat (understanding). Its term was created by the founder of the movement and has become synonymous with Lubavitch.

The movement derives its name from the Russian town of Lubavitch where the movement was established. Rabbi Schneerson is a direct descendant of the founder.

Israelis Praise Thailand In Handling Of Incident

JERUSALEM — Israeli officials have repeatedly praised Thailand officials for their handling of the incident in which four Arab terrorists seized the Israel Embassy in Thailand recently and held six Israeli hostages for 19 hours before being persuaded by Thai officials and the Egyptian ambassador to Thailand to release the hostage unharmed.

"Fortitude, sangfroid, discretion, faithful, energetic patience, good judgment and unyielding firmness" were some of the phrases official Israeli spokesmen used to express Israel's feelings of gratitude. There also was some rather offhand appreciation for the Egyptian envoy in Thailand, Mustafa el-Essawi, but Israeli officials were obviously confused as to how to react to the Egyptian envoy's unexpected helpfulness.

The formal Israeli tone was set by President Zalman Shazar in a cable to Thailand's King, declaring that "by a combination of patience, good judgement and unyielding firmness, your authorities averted what might have been a human disaster of far-reaching implications." He cited the "admiration and appreciation of all of Israel." Premier Golda Meir cabled Premier Thanon Kittikachorn personally to express her deepest appreciation.

Chief of Staff David Elazar sent a cable to Kittikachorn in his capacity as Thai Army chief of staff, thanking him for the way his soldiers handled the incident. Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a radio interviewer that the Egyptian envoy had been one among "several factors" which had brought about the successful conclusion. Eban contrasted Essawi's mediation efforts with Egypt's flat refusal to help West Germany during the hectic hours in Munich which ended last Sept. 5 in the slaying of 11 Israeli Olympic athletes.

However, Foreign Ministry officials refrained from endorsing the more outspoken praise for Essawi from Israel's envoy to Cambodia, Shimon Avimor, who had been one of the six hostages. Commenting on Avimor's appreciative statements, the officials here said he was "speaking in the heat of the moment." The comments of Israel's envoy to Thailand, Rehavim Amir were considered here as "most appropriate." Amir said Essawi's behavior was "thoroughly proper and befitting a diplomat."

Israel's uncertain response to Essawi's mediation stemmed from the fact, sources said, that until last week, Cairo intelligence was known to be in close contact with the Black September group, of which the terrorists at Bangkok claimed to be members.

The question, officials here said, was whether there had really been a change of Egyptian policy or whether Essawi acted on his own without instructions, conceded to be highly unlikely. One consideration for withholding outright praise was a fear that it might deter the Egyptians from acting in a similarly humane manner in a future similar case.

Government Closes Cairo Universities

CAIRO — Egyptian university campuses were deserted in the wake of clashes between students and riot policemen at Cairo University and of the Government's decision to suspend classes at all institutions of higher learning.

The last 200 to 300 rebellious students who had occupied the domed main building of Cairo University were quietly evicted by policemen.

According to reliable sources, the police had orders to use force if necessary but none was needed.

Rocks Cover Street

The empty campus remained cordoned off. Black-uniformed regular policemen manned the metal barricades on all access streets to the university. The khaki-clad para-military riot policemen who fought the students with tear gas and bamboo staves remained at a distance.

The streets leading to the main entrance of the campus were covered for several hundred yards by a carpet of rocks and other missiles.

Minor clashes between students and riot policemen were reported outside Ain Shams University in suburban Heliopolis. A group of students had spent the night on campus but most or all of them left during the day, some climbing down an embankment into a deserted side street. By evening the police contingent outside the university had been reduced to a handful. Foreign diplomats remained doubtful that the show of force would benefit the Government in the long run.

Foregone that the arrest of more than 50 student leaders and the clashes had galvanized previously hostile student groups into joint action for the first time in a year.

LIVING COSTS
UNITED NATIONS — A new United Nations survey of the cost of living for international officials in 85 cities around the world shows that Tokyo is the most expensive of them all — 17 percent above New York. In Tel Aviv, according to this study, living costs are 24% cheaper than in New York; in Cairo — 31% less, and in London 15% less. Living costs in Washington, D.C. are still 11% lower than in New York. The European capitals of Paris and Bonn, however, are almost the same as New York. For Paris it is 3% more expensive, while for West Germany's capital of Bonn it is 1% lower.

Waldheim Ready To Help
In Mid-East Negotiations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Secretary General Waldheim said here that he was ready to take a personal initiative in Middle East peace negotiations including a possible trip to the area.

At his first news conference in four months, Mr. Waldheim declared that 1972 had been a "waiting year" but that now world public opinion expected a move, and he added, "I shall not hesitate to take the necessary initiative as soon as I consider it useful and helpful."

As for timing, Mr. Waldheim said that he was waiting to see if the United States succeeded in getting indirect or "proximity talks" started between Egypt and Israel on an interim agreement for reopening the Suez Canal, and said that he expected the situation to be clarified in the next few weeks.

Mr. Waldheim opened his news conference by saying that there could be no better beginning to 1973 than ending the "terrible conflict" in Vietnam, and said he was relieved that peace talks in Paris had resumed. He again said that the United Nations was "able and willing to play any part required of it."

Record Keeping
Important
 Q: I cannot find the purchase slips on the few stocks that I own. In the event that I want to sell them, how am I to establish my cost figures and work out my profits or losses? E.E.

A: Your predicament illustrates one of my often repeated contentions: Investors should keep a written record of stock transactions in addition to saving their brokerage slips. These slips are very easy to misplace. A written account of all purchases and sales kept in a safe place is added insurance against such a loss.

If your stocks were bought on separate occasions your canceled checks will provide the cost basis for your tax return. However, if these checks are no longer available or if your securities were all bought at one time then perhaps your broker will be able to supply the required information. You may also do some research in your library's back newspaper files, that is assuming you know the dates these transactions were made. Your certificate will provide the stock transfer date. The prices you determine in this search will of course be only approximate and will have to be adjusted for any subsequent stock splits or dividends. Any odd lot fees and commission charges would have to be added in order to establish your full cost.

Q: I would like your opinion on Continental Corporation (NYSE) as a prospective purchase. R.B.

A: This insurance holding company is trading at only 9 times projected 1973 earnings. The very modest evaluation accorded these shares reflects investors' attitude to the industry in general as well as Continental's inability to generate new business (new premiums increased only 2% year to year in the September 1972 period) and continued losses from 88%-owned Diners' Club. The sluggish growth in new premiums is a temporary situation, however, reflecting sale of one subsidiary and the merger of another. The Diners' Club situation has improved with losses pared substantially. Shares are rated a buy for income and safety.

Effects of Court Order
Some Years Away

Q: My wife and I acquired 400 shares of General Telephone & Electronics (NYSE) during our working years. We are beginning to worry about this investment because of the recent unfavorable high court divestiture order. Should we sell or hold? S.W.

Q: Does a small stockholder need to be concerned with the stability of his investment in General Telephone in view of the court ordered breakup? At age 88, income is primary. D.J.

A: The divestiture order resulted from a civil suit brought against GTE in 1967 by Inter. Tel. & Tel. The company has been ordered to divest itself of its equipment manufacturing subsidiary — Automatic Electric — and certain telephone operating subsidiaries. All told, approximately one-third of the company's assets are involved.

The case, which is without legal precedent, will be fought by GTE in appellate court. It could be another three or more years before the appeal process is completed. If the final outcome remains the same, the courts will provide an ample period for the company to comply with the order. It is also safe to assume that should divestiture eventually be effected, shareholders would be amply protected by GTE. Shares should be held for their liberal and secure return.

Q: My portfolio is now worth just under $30,000. I have neither the interest nor the knowledge to manage these investments. How do I find and judge an investment management company? G.G.

A: Investment management firms are numerous and a satisfactory company should not be difficult to locate. You may obtain leads through advertisements in the various financial media, through professional people such as your broker, lawyer or doctor or friends.

As in any endeavor, there are both good and bad investment counselors, thus before choosing you should investigate a management firm thoroughly as to length of establishment and whether or not the firm's general investment objectives suit your needs. The customary fee for a $30,000 account is about $550 annually. This fee is a deductible expense on your federal income tax.

Reader Should
Exchange Shares

Q: Why is Glen Alden (NYSE) no longer listed? I would appreciate knowing whether I should continue to hold. R.M.

A: In November, 74%-owned Glen Alden was merged into Rapid American and became a wholly owned subsidiary of the latter. Your shares should have been surrendered at that time to the transfer agent, Chemical Bank, 20 Pine Street, New York City. You should take care of this now, however, so that you will not deprive yourself of any future dividends. Each of your Glen Alden shares is exchangeable for .35 shares in Rapid American plus a warrant to purchase one common stock at $35. At current trading levels for the common and warrants you will be receiving approximately $12.50 in securities for each Glen Alden share you now hold.

Q: Please explain ADRs. Particularly their voting and legal aspects and vulnerability to governmental interference or bank failure? A.C.

A: American Depository Receipts represent shares of foreign securities held in overseas depository banks. Receipts for these shares are issued by one of a handful of major US banks. The foreign and domestic banks involved are large commercial institutions and in very little danger of failing. The probability of governmental interference with ADRs or their underlying securities is no different than for the directly owned foreign security. And for that matter, shareholders in US corporations are not immune to losses resulting from expropriation of company property by foreign governments.

Direct purchases of foreign securities from a foreigner are usually subject to an 11.25% interest equalization tax. ADRs are priced equivalently higher than their foreign counterparts to reflect exemption from this tax. Because receipts are issued in registered form, foreign share ownership is greatly simplified for Americans. The issuing US bank has the responsibility of forwarding dividends, minus nonresident taxes imposed by many nations, payable in US dollars. Most overseas corporations issue only bearer stock with dividends paid in foreign currency and collectable at specified banks. Legal settlement of estates, divorces, etc., are also expedited when US dollars are the only currency involved.

NEW YORK — Charles W. Yost, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, said he believed all parties in the Mid-East conflict would agree to negotiations this year, but doubted that "any action by the U.S. can be decisive" because only the people in the area can bring about a settlement.

It's easy to say we have all the appliances we'll ever need. And all the electricity we'll ever need to run them. Easy for the "haves". But how about the "have-nots"?

Today, urban renewal and redevelopment programs are bringing new hope to thousands of New England families. And with it new standards of living.

This means more of the little everyday conveniences most of us take for granted. More refrigerators. More ranges. More washers and dryers. All requiring more electricity.

That's why we're working now to provide the kind of generating facilities that will best meet these growing demands and still satisfy our common environmental concerns. It can mean a better way of living. For all of us.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

As we promised in last week's column, here is another hand on Defense. Every pair but one played it in Three No Trump and were allowed to make it when they could have been set with thoughtful Defense. One pair decided to go to game in Spades and became the only minus score when that suit did not break evenly. That contract was easy to set but Three No Trump was just as settable had the hand on lead at trick three stopped to consider the chances.

sneak in one Spade trick which he might be allowed to do even if it was West who had the Ace. Especially if that solid Club suit was still hidden. East, of course, would wisely hold off his Ace until the second round or else an extra Spade trick can be made by Declarer but one Spade is enough to go with the six Clubs and two red Aces for nine tricks in all.

What should the Defenders do? Whichever of them won that second Heart should stop and think before putting that third Heart on the table. If East, he should say to himself, "Declarer must have a solid Club suit to go along with the Heart Ace which he must have and very likely at least the Diamond Ace, too. He also must have at least two Spades so if I lead back my last Heart when I get in with my Ace I will not be able to reach my partner to cash those Hearts. So another Heart won't do enough good but my Partner must have something besides just the King, Queen of Hearts; can that something help me more?" It certainly isn't in Spades and on the bidding not Clubs either which leaves Diamonds as the only place to pick up tricks to set the contract.

It is easier for East to see this than West but even if West were to win the second Heart he, too, could see the futility in pursuing Hearts any further. As you can see, a switch to Diamonds by either at trick three would set the hand if both play the right card at the right time. If East leads the Diamond and Declarer ducks, West has no problem, wins the King and plays another, but if West happens to be on lead East must play the 9 not the Queen. The play of the Queen would make the Jack in Dummy a trick. With that switch to Diamonds the contract will even be set two if Declarer does not run his eight tricks but tries to steal that Spade trick first and East runs right up with his Ace. For now the Defense will score two Hearts, the Spade Ace and THREE Diamonds.

Moral: Sometimes setting a suit up will not do any good at all if there isn't an entry to allow its usage. When that is known to be the case, and a bit of thought will usually make that known, then something else should be done. This should be considered.

No one was vulnerable, East Dealer with this bidding:

One North, after her partner made the Three No Trump bid, decided to play the hand in Four Spades. When she was forced to ruff Hearts and the Trumps failed to break she went down when she ran out of Trumps. Every other pair ended in Three No Trump. West led the Heart King with East encouraging him with the 8 and South ducking, of course, for to take the Ace on either the first or second lead of Hearts would be fatal. Some Easts raised their Partner's overcall, some didn't, either way every West played a low Heart at trick two after seeing that 8. East won that trick with the Jack when Declarer again ducked the Ace and here is where the crux of the whole hand is. I watched every East hasten to lead that third Heart to establish the suit for his partner.

That all too automatic play gave the contract to the Declarer for when East got in with the Spade Ace he had no more Hearts to lead. As the play did go at every table, South held off that Heart Ace until the third round and then either ran his Clubs or immediately led a Spade. All he needed to make the contract now was to

 Important In Arab State

NEW YORK — Although virtually all of Yemen's 50,000 Jews emigrated to Israel via "Operation Flying Carpet" in 1949-50, the handful that remained behind includes a man who is today the most powerful figure in that Arab state on the southern end of the Red Sea. He is Kadi (Judge) Iriani, the Jewish adopted son of a wealthy Moslem family. The Kadi of Yemen is Chief of State and the First Among Equals in its collective leadership.

Iriani's Jewish background and the fact that he has relatives in Israel did not hinder him from rising to the top leadership of an Islamic country, according to Horst J. Andel, writing recently in the Austrian newspaper Salzburger Nachrichten. But Iriani has many problems. These include keeping in line both the mountain tribes loyal to the overthrown Yemenite monarchy and the tribes who fought for the Republicans. The tribes threaten to march on the capital and massacre the weak government.

But, under the Kadi, Yemen appears to be emerging from the dark ages, Andel reported. Although bitterly opposed by the feudal sheikhs, the country is now installing a modern communications system and an economic and social infrastructure more in keeping with the 20th century. A small army is being trained by Soviet instructors though partially with Western weapons.

US Jewish Group
 Opposes Settlements

NEW YORK — A group of college-age Jews asserting that they are "deeply committed to the welfare of Israel and the advent of peace in the Middle East," has launched an international petition campaign to protest "the Israeli government's policy of civilian settlements in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip."

The name of the group is "Yaish Breira" ("There is an alternative") and its headquarters is at the University of California in Berkeley.

Ian Lustick, spokesman for the group, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that the petition campaign "is a grassroots attempt to develop a consciousness-raising effort with respect to the entire Palestinian national question."

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

WORDS? While perusing Webster's Collegiate Dictionary for different definitions of the word "bowl," I came across "Boxing Day." It hasn't a thing to do with the coming match between Heavyweight King Joe Frazier and George Foreman. According to Webster, "Boxing Day" means "The first weekday after a holiday on which boxes are given to postmen, etc."

interesting points in Southern New England; actually invite planners of conventions to investigate what we have to offer."

ONLY ONE SUPER BOWL: A "bowl" can be a ball for rolling on a level surface, especially one so weighted or shaped to give it a bias. (What has happened to those "Bowling on the Green" games at Neutaconkanut Park?) And a "boll" can mean "the pod or capsule of a plant." The "Super Bowl" being discussed everywhere these days has nothing to do with a "concave vessel, usually hemispherical, to hold liquids" such as the one that held the clam chowder I just had. The hollowed or bowl-shaped structure where the Miami Dolphins will meet the Washington Redskins for football's biggest prize, the World Championship, on Sunday, is truly the "bowl of all bowls" — the "Super-Bowl." Which team will win? Which team's players will take home the winning $15,000 shares? "Explosive on the offense and rugged on the defense" could be said of each team. Anything can happen in a big game like this one. To prognosticate is guessing so I'll "guess" the Dolphins. One thing is certain. It will be a tremendous show with a super-tremendous audience at Los Angeles Coliseum — ahem, beg pardon — the "Super Bowl."

JAMAICA: And now exciting Jamaica is preparing to host a world championship boxing bout between the title-holder Joe Frazier and George Foreman who is said to be a worthy opponent. In boxing, opponents are always worthy. Paul Fitz Ritson, chairman of National Sports Limited of Jamaica, speaking: "It was important to Jamaica that it get this fight ... From the beginning, we have felt that a fight like this would serve as a massive self-Jamaica promotion — etc." Nuff said? The championship bout will be shown in Providence and Springfield as well as in Boston. In the Hub, Promoter Sam Silverman has lined up an attractive "live" ring show that will precede the television. Listed for action in the "live" portion of Silverman's presentation is a Golden Glove champion from Brockton named Tony Petronella. He is undefeated and has won five by knockouts. Such an impressive record goes with the name.

THE QUESTION: It went something like, "How'd ya get your girl friend to cheer for the team?" And the next question, "Ja make her?" Anyway, several months ago when a committee was seeking suggestions for advertising the new Providence Civic Center, this column suggested a world heavyweight championship boxing match. "The color-commentator could extoll the virtues of the new convention facility on television far and wide; advertise the Civic Center and Providence and Rhode Island; tell all about the in-

HALL OF FAME: There should be a Hall of Fame for those athletes whose deeds of unusual accomplishment are sometimes forgotten in the mists of yesteryear. Such was Johnny Diaz who passed on to the bigger league a few days ago. Some will remember the 18-inning pitching duel between Diaz of the Blue Hooks and Chick Jackson of the Pioneers at Bucklin Park. It was a game that should have been indelibly stamped somewhere, not only because of the pitching performances of the two youthful moundsmen but because it attracted one of the biggest crowds in the history of the Tim O'Neil Leagues on an open field. It was recorded that more than 8,000 were there. Unusual because it was played in one of the younger leagues — the Circuit League — which didn't draw fans like that! CARRY ON!

Managua's Jewish Families Escape Injury In Earthquake

NEW YORK — Leonardo Hellenberg, secretary of the Jewish community in Managua, Nicaragua, estimated Jewish losses from the earthquake that devastated that city at $2-$3 million. Hellenberg, who is visiting relatives here, said Managua's 30 Jewish families escaped serious injury but lost all their property which included textile mills. Some were insured but others were not, he said.

He estimated that it would take at least eight months to rebuild Jewish community structures including the synagogue which was levelled.

Hellenberg, 27, who attended

Yehsiva Torah Vodaath in Brooklyn, Yeshiva University High School and Hebrew University in Jerusalem, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that he narrowly escaped death when the earthquake destroyed his home in Managua shortly after midnight Dec. 23. He said that he worked from 6 a.m. until noon helping the Nicaraguan Red Cross and then boarded a plane for the U.S. He said he planned the trip before the quake and had airline reservations.

According to Hellenberg, Managua's Jews have taken temporary refuge in San Jose, Costa Rica and Miami, Fla.

Israeli Citizenship Given Rabbi Kahane

JERUSALEM — The Interior Minister awarded Jewish Defense League leader Rabbi Meir Kahane Israeli citizenship on December 20. Rabbi Kahane had appealed to the high court which ordered the Ministry to show cause why it had refused to award Rabbi Kahane citizenship.

The Ministry spokesman said at the time that the citizenship papers were in the pipeline. In a letter to Rabbi Kahane from Mrs. Judith Huebner, who is in charge of citizenship applications, the Ministry said it had not intended to withhold or delay citizenship, but that it took time to approve applications "particularly in the

MEDIA TOUR

NEW YORK — Twenty-five prominent media personalities will be visiting Israel on a 10-day tour under the auspices of the American Zionist Federation.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK: UN General Assembly President Stanislaw Trepczynski will call a special session this spring for the admittance of the two Germanys ... UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is going to visit India and Japan in February ... New Year's night, Boston's Copley Plaza Hotel — recently purchased by the John Hancock Life Insurance Company from the Sheraton chain — served the same menu as on its opening day banquet, August, 1912.

A visitor from Paris said at Sea Fare of the Aegean that Christina, Ari Onassis' 22-year-old daughter, plans a career in journalism in France ... The restaurant has commissioned water colorist, Chen Chi — now visiting China — to paint a series of Peking street scenes.

Rod Steiger, star of the movie The Story of Lolly Madonna, was asked what he wanted on his epitaph. "You never know about life," said Steiger, "so I've chosen the words very carefully. All I want is

"I'll see you later" ... Mets first baseman Ed Kranepool told David R. Parker, Jr., president of the Hatteras Yachts, that he's interested in their exhibit at the New York Coliseum's National Boat Show, January 27.

"I'll use my 1973 World Series check as down payment," said Ed optimistically.

Billy Wilder, whose movie Avanti!, opened for the holiday season, was asked at the Ginger Man which was his favorite film. When he chose Some Like It Hot, Wilder was reminded of two of his other movies, regarded by many as classics, The Lost Weekend and Sunset Boulevard ... "I liked them too," he replied, "but in those days I wasn't getting a percentage of the gross."

When Lester Pearson, who died recently, was Canadian Minister of External Affairs, he conferred with President Truman about Korea, a matter then troubling the Canadian cabinet. Pearson, who later became Prime Minister, was asked by reporters after his meeting with Truman what they had discussed. "Korea," he answered. "Stop kidding us," said one newsman. "A Canadian would never have discussed Korea with the President."

Pearson repeated: "We talked about Korea," and left the White House. The next day, not a single newspaper carried a line about the conference. "It proves," decided Pearson, "that the best way to guarantee secrecy about a White House visit is to tell the truth."

Comedian Morty Storm appearing at Upstairs at the Downstairs, told singer Frankie 13, who is also on the bill, that the reason his career hasn't gone as well as it should have, is that his agent isn't too familiar with his line of work. "He just got me 14 bookings," said Storm. "I was delighted — until I found out they were for fights" ... Harper & Row is publishing Julie Andrews' new book, Last of the Really Great Wangdoodles.

Richard Roundtree is now in Ethiopia, filming his third Shaft movie, Shaft in Africa. He was granted a special audience by Ethiopia's Haile Selassie. A photographer recorded the meeting between the movie star and the Lion of Judah. The next day Roundtree received a copy of the picture. The name of the studio was The Soul Photo Service of Addis Ababa.

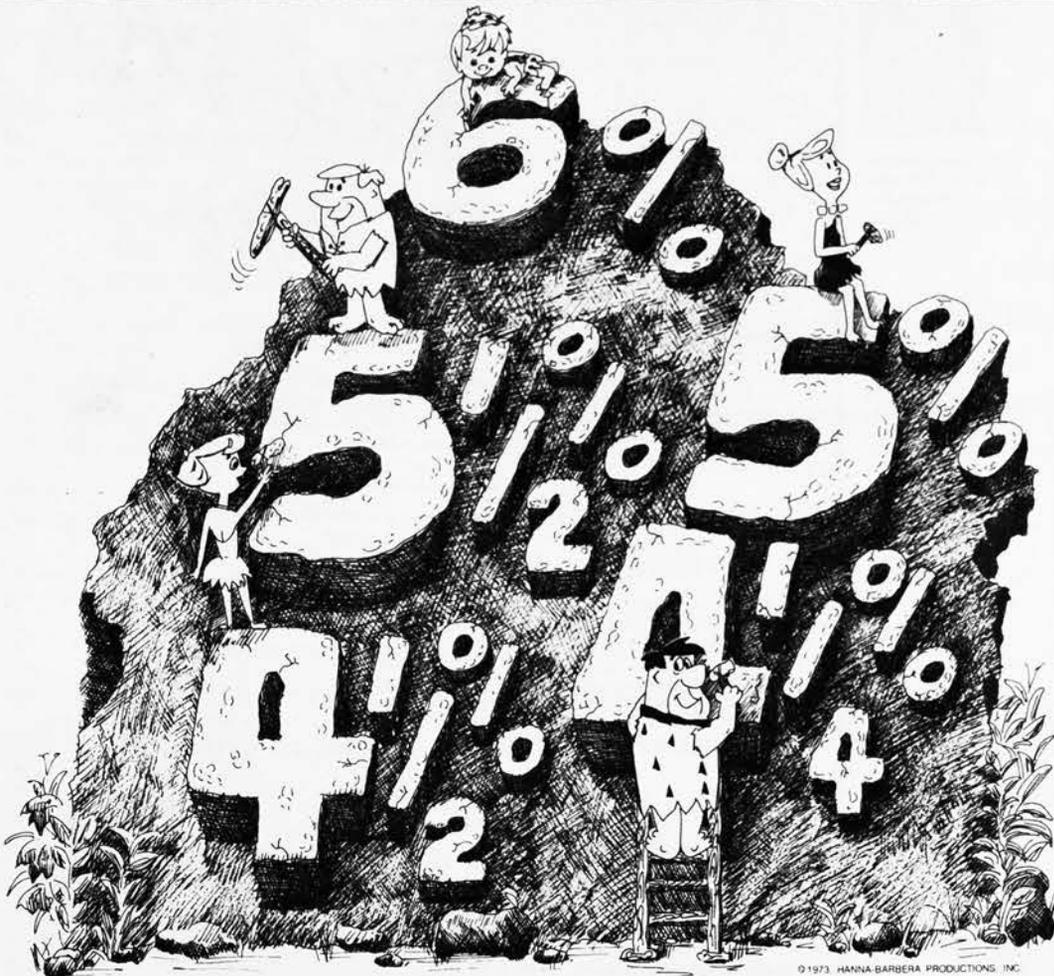

Selassie recently acquired a new pet, a 15-week-old Harlequin Great Dane pup, which was flown to Ethiopia at the cost of $500.

Ambassador Walter Annenberg expects to start a new magazine after he leaves his post in London, some time in April, dealing primarily with gourmet foods and cooking ... Ernest V. Heyn's Doubleday book The Wonder Workers, also based on the 100 years of Popular Science Monthly, the magazine he edited until 1970, and deals with the great inventors of the past century.

Paul Zuckerman, national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, recently visited Israel and, with no advance warning, was advised he would be required to say a few words after Mrs. Golda Meir's speech. "If anyone had told me, as a child, that one day I would follow the Prime Minister of Israel on the podium," he said, "I would have been too scared to grow up."

ROAD COMPLETED

JERUSALEM — The first road built specifically to connect villages on either side of the Green Line, the cease-fire lines established after the Six-Day War, has been completed. The eight-kilometer (five-mile) road links Kfar Kassen on the Israeli side of the line with Masha village in the Samaria district of the West Bank.

Israeli Chief Rabbis Continue To Disagree

JERUSALEM — Chief Rabbi Shlomo Goren published his controversial ruling in the Langer case but continued to withhold the names of the nine rabbinical judges who concurred in it, because of the "ugly atmosphere created by extremist elements." The ruling cleared Hanooh and Miriam Langer of the taint of bastardy, allowing them to marry their fiancés. It has created a furor in right wing Orthodox circles here and abroad.

The ruling cited four Halachic grounds on which Rabbi Goren contends the Langer children were free to marry. It stated that there was no evidence that their mother's first husband, Avraham Borokowsky, was properly converted to Judaism; that even if he was properly converted his reversion to Christian practices afterwards nullified his conversion; that there was no evidence that Mrs. Langer was ever married to Borokowsky; and even if they were married, Borokowsky's divorce of her after she remarried and bore children by her second husband nullified the original marriage bond.

Meanwhile, new trouble has developed between Rabbi Goren and his colleague Sephardic Chief Rabbi Ovadia Yosef. In an emotional speech to the Jerusalem Oriental community, Rabbi Yosef described Rabbi Goren as a "dictator," implied that he has twisted Halacha for his own purpose and begged the Shephardic community to support him in his confrontation with Goren. In a voice shaking with tears Rabbi Yosef said, "I live under a dictatorship. I am alone on the battlefield. I need your help to carry on. You do not know what is going on in the chief rabbinate. I am alone fighting every hour. I cannot sleep nights."

He alleged that Rabbi Goren imposed his will at chief rabbinate meetings by "banging his fist on the table and saying that is it." Rabbi Yosef made no direct reference to the Langer ruling. However, he said "I am opposed to extremism but I believe Halacha should be dispensed without publicity and without sensationalism." Rabbi Yosef's speech was greeted with shouts of approval and blessings from his followers. There was no comment from Chief Rabbi Goren.

Israeli Security Services Look For Missing Arabs

TEL AVIV — Israeli Security Services have started an effort to locate 600 Arab summer visitors who stayed behind in Israel or in the administered territories after the expiration of their visit permits.

There were some 137,000 Arab visitors during the summer and all but the 600 left in accordance with visiting conditions.

Police sources said that among the 600, there are some who are sick and in need of medical treatment, some are still making efforts through legal channels to receive permanent stay permits and some who simply decided to stay as long as they were not apprehended by the authorities.

Security sources suspect that a small number of the Arabs may be connected with sabotage activities that assumed some momentum during recent weeks but which were checked after the arrest of some groups of terrorists in the Samaria district.

BAR MITZVAH: Jay Tedlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tedlow of 74 East Bel Air Road, Cranston, became Bar Mitzvah on Saturday, November 4, at Temple Emanu-El. A Kiddush in his honor was held at the temple.

ON MISSION

NEW YORK — Dr. Emanuel Rackman, rabbi of the Fifth Avenue Synagogue, New York City, and Chairman of the Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy of the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), has left on a government mission to conduct a series of retreats for Jewish chaplains and Jewish servicemen throughout the Far East. Dr. Rackman's visit to many military installations in the Far East is being undertaken at the invitation of the U.S. Department of Defense.

Sadat Gives Up Hope In US Aid For Peace

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt was quoted here as saying that he had given up all hope in United States efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Middle East conflict.

"I have reached the limit of my patience" with the United States, he was quoted as having said in an interview with Milhem Karam, president of the Lebanese Association of Reporters and publisher of the Al Bairaqa. "I find it strange that certain Arabs have not reached the same conclusion at the time Israel is still flooded with United States assistance."

Mr. Sadat complained about the Arab failure so far to arrive at a joint plan to apply pressure to Washington to make it revise its Middle East policy.

"In certain Arab countries, United States interests today are more secure than ever before," he said, and added: "instead of forming a joint front to annoy Washington, we Arabs are eager to provide American interests with complete protection. Some Arabs have assured the United States of a smiling future in the area."

Mr. Sadat, recalling his contacts with Washington in 1971 on a peaceful solution of the Arab-Israeli problem, declared, "It was a test of peace, and Washington flunked the test."

Mr. Sadat asserted that Soviet-Egyptian relations had become normal following the visit to Moscow of Premier Aziz Sidky in October.
