Despite Increased Soviet Arms Deliveries

United States Officials Say Military Balance Unchanged

WASHINGTON—United States officials declared last week they were satisfied that the military balance in the Middle East remained unchanged despite evidence that Soviet arms deliveries to Egypt and Syria had increased during the last three months.

They said that Israeli requests for more Phantom fighter-bombers were "still under consideration," with no indication when a decision would be made.

The officials declined to specify why they thought the military balance had not been affected by the Soviet arms, which United States intelligence specialists are currently describing as sharply increased. The officials asserted only that the question of balance was getting the "most serious, continuous consideration."

Israel has been pressing for permission to place an order for two Phantoms a month for an indefinite period. The last planes under existing contracts were delivered some time ago, according to Israeli sources.

The Israeli Ambassador, Itzhak Rabin, was understood to have pressed the issue of the planes with Joseph J. Sisco, the Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, in a meeting last week.

The Israelis reportedly would like a commitment on the Phantoms before they accept an American suggestion that Mr. Sisco fly to Israel later this month for talks with Premier Golda Meir and other officials. His visit would have the purpose of giving new impetus to the deadlocked consultations on an Israeli-Egyptian agreement to reopen the Suez Canal.

A State Department spokesman, Charles W. Bray 3d, described as essentially correct a report on the sharply stepped-up Soviet arms deliveries.

The report said that since September Egypt had received nearly 100 MIG-21 fighters compared with a total of 90 between June, 1967, and the middle of 1970. The report added that Syria, possibly under a new Soviet-Syrian military pact signed last February, had received 21 MIG-21s, 5 Sukhoi-7 fighter bombers and 22 Mi-8 helicopters designed for troop transport.

The figures on the Soviet arms deliveries were understood to have been part of an intelligence account submitted on July 3 to President Nixon. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and other top officials.

There was a flurry of speculation that the Administration might have changed its basic assessment of the military situation in the Middle East as a result of the new evidence of Soviet deliveries.

Mr. Bray declined at his regular briefing to give a direct answer when asked by newsmen whether there had been a shift in the military balance. In the past, American officials had always been prompt and emphatic in asserting—contrary to Israeli assessment—that neither the recent Soviet deliveries of arms nor the Egyptian-Soviet treaty had changed the existing balance.

The subsequent statement by officials saying that the balance remained unchanged corrected the impression of a possible shift in the Administration's view.

The unresolved issue of the Phantoms has been a source of considerable friction between Israel and the United States for several months.

Mr. Sisco and other American officials involved in efforts to bring about an interim Egyptian-Israeli agreement on the Suez Canal have repeatedly said that both Israel and Egypt must make concessions if the present deadlock is to be broken.

Against this background there have been charges in the Israeli press that the United States is using the Phantoms as leverage to exact concessions from Israel. American officials have denied this.

The Israelis, according to informed sources, are more concerned about the additional planes they would like to get from the United States than about other types of armament.

Israeli sources also stress the recent increase in the size and capability of the Soviet Union's own armed forces in the Middle East. They assert that there has been a major influx of Soviet forces in recent months.

American military analysts, on the other hand, are believed to feel that the Phantoms are only one aspect of the Arab-Israeli military balance and that Israel remains fully capable of holding her present lines.

As for the Soviet forces in the Middle East, American analysts tend to place them outside the Arab-Israeli conflict and to see them as an element in the global balance of power between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Intelligence Specialists Note Stepping Up Of Deliveries Of War Materiel To Arabs

WASHINGTON—The Soviet Union has sharply stepped up, in recent months, deliveries of jet warplanes and troop-carrying helicopters to Egypt and Syria, according to United States intelligence specialists.

The relatively large deliveries to Syria were seen here as a significant development in the Middle East situation.

Detailed accounts of the new Soviet aircraft deliveries began reaching Washington early this month. Last week the Israeli Defense Minister, Moshe Dayan, charged that Israeli forces did not have "a regular flow of arms because of pressure exerted by Egypt on the United States not to supply warplanes to Israel."

This reported United States denial of planes to Israel, combined with Washington's efforts to win Israeli acceptance of an agreement with Egypt for the reopening of the Suez Canal, appear to have soured American-Israeli relations.

According to United States intelligence sources, Syria has received from the Soviet Union in the last three months 21 all-weather MIG-21 fighters, probably of the latest model, 9 older-model MIG-17's, 5 Sukhoi-7 fighter-bombers and 22 Mi-8 helicopters.

Experts here said these deliveries may have resulted from a Syrian-Soviet military pact signed last February. They noted the relatively high number of the most up-to-date MIG-21's and the first known delivery of the big Mi-8 helicopters, which are designed to carry combat troops.

Intelligence sources reported that since last September Egypt has received nearly 100 MIG-21's from the Soviet Union, including eight delivered in June. They said that this total compared with only 90 MIG-21's delivered to Egypt from the end of the Arab-Israeli war in 1967 to the middle of 1970. Egypt, the intelligence experts

Israel Reaching Out To Solidify Relations With New Countries

JERUSALEM—Israeli diplomacy is reaching out, during the current lull in the Arab-Israeli peacemaking effort, to solidify relations with countries not directly engaged in the diplomatic maneuvering of the Middle East.

The purpose is to prevent the isolation of Israel from all major governments, except the United States.

The West German Foreign Minister, Walter Scheel, who was on a visit here, ended two days of meetings with Israeli officials providing assurances that the "special relationship" between the two countries would continue and that the European Common Market would not become an active force against Israel's interests.

Mr. Scheel was the fourth foreign minister from the six countries of the European Economic Community—France, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Belgium—to visit Israel in recent months. The Belgian Foreign Minister, Pierre Harmel, is due later this month.

Only with France have the Israelis not been able to find a sympathetic hearing for their position in the peacemaking process.

The persuasion campaign aimed at the European governments parallels a similar effort toward the African countries where Israel has long maintained quiet but significant technical cooperation and development programs. Foreign Minister Abba Eban visited eight African countries last month in a two-week tour.

For the immediate future, Israel is trying to minimize pressure that might build up in the September session of the United Nations General Assembly for new Middle East resolutions, pressure growing out of Arab frustration at the lack of progress in the peacemaking effort.

At the center of the Israeli effort are United States moves to prod Egypt and Israel into a compromise for permitting the reopening of the Suez Canal. Israel is awaiting a decision by Washington about whether the Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco will fly to Jerusalem this month as he has proposed. Officials here presume that the decision will depend on whatever progress is made in Cairo by two American diplomats now conferring with Egyptian leaders.

Mr. Scheel was the first West German Foreign Minister ever to visit Israel, though high-level visits have been exchanged between the two countries by other ministers, including former Chancellors Konrad Adenauer and Ludwig Erhard, ever since diplomatic relations were established in 1965.

Any such visit is sensitive to the historical background, the fate of six million Jews in Nazi-dominated Europe during World War II. Neither Mr. Scheel nor his Israeli hosts tried to avoid this issue during the current visit. Among the German minister's first stops was the memorial, Yad Vashem, commemorating the Jewish victims of the Holocaust. About two dozen right-wing Israeli youths demonstrated outside the stark stone monument, singing songs of the Jewish resistance, as Mr. Scheel toured the museum.

It is on this sordid past that the so-called special relationship between Israel and West Germany has been built. Israelis have been concerned in recent months that the Government of Chancellor Willy Brandt might be moving away from any special ties and tending to regard Israel as just another of the states with which Bonn has normal working relations. In his talks here, Mr. Scheel was said to have dispelled these fears, and pledged that economic and political ties between the two countries would continue to develop.

Kahane, Awaiting Sentencing, Says He Will Continue Violence Against Soviet Union In USA

NEW YORK—Rabbi Meir Kahane, the head of the militant Jewish Defense League, said this week at a news conference that he and his followers would not be deterred from using explosives or other forms of violence against Soviet installations in this country if they considered it necessary.

"We would not hesitate to use these methods because it is against a tyranny that doesn't allow any form of protest," he declared. "But we would not use them against Americans."

Rabbi Kahane made this statement despite the fact that he and two of his followers face prison terms of up to five years each for conspiracy to manufacture explosives, pleaded to the charge last week in Federal Court in Brooklyn and are scheduled to be sentenced July 23.

He announced that the league's executive board would meet at its Brooklyn headquarters to consider its future.

"I will suggest that we institute a new militant campaign against the Soviet Union," he said.

At the news conference, in the league's Brooklyn offices at 4002 New Utrecht Avenue, in the Borough Park section, Rabbi Kahane disclaimed knowledge of the 197 sticks of dynamite that were found near the Alpine Lookout along the Palisades Interstate Parkway in New Jersey.

An anonymous telephone caller who said he was a member of the league had called Federal authorities to tell them where the dynamite could be found.

"A lot of people have been using the name of the league in phone calls to claim that it was responsible for some act of violence," Rabbi Kahane said.

He asserted that the league possessed only legally purchased registered firearms at its camp in Woodbourne, Sullivan County, New York, as Federal agents would find when they paid a scheduled visit there.

As part of a deal between the defense and the prosecution in Federal Court, the Government agreed to drop additional charges of conspiring to transport firearms across state lines against the three defendants. In return, the league agreed to turn over to the Government any illegal explosives and firearms in its possession and to submit to an inspection of its camp.

The Government also agreed to drop all charges against 10 other defendants indicted with the three who pleaded guilty.

In a related development, the police this week roped off the East Side Airlines Terminal for an hour while they removed six blasting caps and 23 bags of black powder from a locker in the terminal at First Avenue and 37th Street.

The police had gone there in response to a phone call made

Miss Linda Schwartz was maid of honor. Other attendants were Miss Rose Lynn Finkelstein, Miss Emily Olshine, and Mrs. Mickey Drachler.

Arnold Finkelstein served as best man for his brother. Ushers included Arthur Levy, Richard Finkelstein and Russell Smith.

Following a wedding trip to Virginia Beach, the couple now lives in Macon, Georgia.

Rhodesia Monument Consecrated

WARREN HILLS, RHODESIA, —A memorial monument to the 6 million Jewish martyrs of World War II —an obelisk topped by a Star of David —was consecrated at the Jewish Cemetery here in the presence of the Deputy Mayor of Salisbury and 150 Jews of three congregations.

H. H. Gollop, chairman of the Mashonaland Committee of the Central African Jewish Board of Deputies, said it was "a murder memorial and not a war memorial," honoring those who had been killed by the Nazis "purely and simply because they were Jews, and for no other reason."

The inscription on the monument, in Hebrew and in English, reads: "In eternal and sacred memory of our martyred brethren, victims of the Nazi terror. Their names live for evermore." The City Council's Health, Housing and African Administration Committee had, barred the phrase "victims of the Nazi terror" but the full City Council approved it following considerable Jewish protest.

Mrs. Daniel C. Belin

The wedding of Miss Reesa Gene Millen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max S. Millen of Emeline Street, to Daniel Cary Belin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Belin of Miami Beach, Florida, took place on Saturday, July 10, at Temple Emanu-El. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Ivan E. Perlman officiated at the 9 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception in the temple meeting hall. "Wedding Music for Now" was played during the ceremony by a group which included an organ, flute and guitar. The bride is the granddaughter of Herman Swartz of Cranston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza styled with re-embroidered Alencon lace, crystals and pearls, and fashioned with a detachable train. Her matching headpiece held her veil of French illusion. She carried a bouquet of a semicascade of phalaenopsis orchids, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Miss Arlene Stein was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Shapiro and Mrs. Jay Niederman.

Melvin Belin served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Mathew Millen, brother of the bride, and Jay Niederman.

Following a wedding trip to Prince Edward Island, the couple will live in Boston, Massachusetts.

The bride is a graduate of Classical high school, magna cum laude, and is also a graduate of Simmons College, 1971. She is a candidate for a master's degree in French at Boston University, and will teach French at Lincoln Sudbury, Massachusetts, Regional High School in September.

Mr. Belin, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1968 with a bachelor's degree in Life Sciences, is a fourth year student at Harvard Medical School. He is a member of Phi Lambda Upsilon, national chemistry society, and Sigma Xi, national scientific honorary society.

Jewish Organization Must Face Problems Of Nation As Well As Its Ethnic Ones

ATLANTA —Two Jewish leaders said that American Jewish organization were so preoccupied with Jewish issues that they were neglecting other problems affecting the nation.

While both advocated continued intensive efforts by the American community toward alleviating the plight of Soviet Jewry and safeguarding the security and welfare of Israel, both declared that all Jewish organizations must face up to the problems facing the nation as a whole.

These opinions were expressed by Albert E. Arent of Washington, who was re-elected chairman of the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council, and Jordon C. Band of Cleveland, a former chairman. The two men spoke at the concluding sessions of the council's annual meeting, at the Regency Hyatt House.

The council is the coordinating body of nine major national Jewish organizations and 92 local groups engaged in intergroup programs.

Mr. Arent said there was danger of the American Jewish community's being propelled "by concern with the welfare of Jewish life into an isolationism from America."

Too many Jews, he said seem ready to fall in with a trend "among black Americans, Chicanos, Puerto Ricans, American Indians, Japanese-Americans and the so-called 'ethnics' " toward group separatism. He called this "profoundly disheartening" and said that even particularistic Jewish purposes were dependent on support by other Americans.

Mr. Band urged Jewish organizations to concern themselves more deeply with the problems of the cities, with "what is happening to our fresh air and our fresh water, with crime, and poverty and drug abuse."

Polish Jews Subject To Emigration Bars

SACRAMENTO —Polish Jews are being subjected to emigration restrictions and Rumanian Jews are being threatened by a shortage of religious leaders, the Sacramento Jewish Federation reports in the June issue of its Jewish Federation Bulletin.

There were an estimated 7,000 Jews in Poland in January, around 1,000 having emigrated last year, the Bulletin says, adding that more would have left but for "visa refusals, on grounds of 'State Interest.'"

Of the 7,000 total, it is said, "perhaps 2,000" are "of emigrable age" —though not all may want to leave —and the other 5,000 are over 60 years old, "mostly poor, sick or handicapped" and "in continuous need of assistance."

Rabbi Samuel Umen officiated on Sunday, July 11, at the 4 p.m. candlelight wedding of Miss Karen Lois Adelman to Gary Braden Wier at the Venus de Milo in Swansea, Massachusetts. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adelman of 23 Avon Road of Cranston, and Mr. Wier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Braden Wier of 76 Speck Avenue, Cranston.

Wearing a gown of white silk organza, fashioned with a high neckline and long full sleeves, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her A-line skirt was accented with Venice appliques and seed pearls and was styled with a cathedral train. A matching Camelot headpiece held her French illusion veil, and she carried a bouquet made up of roses and stephanotis.

Her sister, Miss Sharlene Adelman, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Susan Wier, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Paula Geller, Miss Sherry Geller, Miss Margie Geller, Miss Darya Hirschfield and Miss Erica Hirschfield were flower girls.

Robert A. Fish was best man and Lawrence Wier served as the usher.

Following a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will reside in Cranston.

Earnings Recovery Seen For Trucker

Q: What are the prospects for Cooper-Jarrett? I hold 100 shares bought several years ago at 13 5/8. —J.S.

A: A good recovery in earnings is looked for this year. In the first quarter net moved from an 11 cents per share deficit to a 22 cents profit. In 1970 this trucker was plagued by the Teamsters strike, poor business climate and the General Motors strike. As a result revenue fell 14% and earnings dipped sharply into the red. This was reflected in the directors' decision to omit the dividend. By year end retained earnings were $250,000 shy of the amount necessary for dividend resumption.

The outlook this year has been improved not only by the absence of strikes but by several operational changes instituted by management last year. A $2 million maintenance and break-bulk facility located on the new toll-free Interstate 80 in Pennsylvania was completed late in the year. This plant provides daily inspection of all tractors, a feat made possible by the new driver relay system. Some 40 local and satellite terminals are now part of the company's Line Haul Relay System. In addition to improving driver morale, the relay system will eliminate about $250,000 in motel and living expenses. A $4.9 million tractor replacement program was also inaugurated last year. Long-term potential for the shares appears to be above average.

Q: Should we sell St. Joe Minerals purchased in April 1970? If so what should we buy? —W.M.

A: I would sell, since the overall outlook for the company is not encouraging. The possible elimination of lead additives in gasoline could be a serious problem; the petroleum industry now absorbs 20% of total lead output. As a replacement I like City Investing trading in about the same price range on the NYSE. Since 1968, earnings have moved up annually, and for the year ended April 30, 1971 operating earnings of $1.50 a share fully diluted appear probable. City Investing has interests in insurance, real estate development and heating and air conditioning.

Recently Issued Preferred Offers Generous Return

Q: I am considering purchase of Commonwealth Edison but notice that their $1.90 preferred yields more income. I am not familiar with preferreds but need income. Which would you advise? —K.W.

A: The $1.90 cumulative preferred is an attractive income holding, currently returning 7.75%, about 2% more than available on the common shares. You should keep in mind, however, that the dividend rate on the preferred is fixed, whereas the common dividend can be raised. On the other hand, in periods of declining earnings the dividend on common shares can be reduced or omitted. On this preferred issue, which has preference over the common shares as to dividend payment, any unpaid dividends accumulate until paid.

Commonwealth has not raised the 55 cents quarterly rate on its common since 1967, when earnings reached a plateau from which no progress has been achieved. Full effect of a 4.5% rate increase granted in mid-1970 will be felt this year. A request for further rate relief has been filed.

The $1.90 preferred was offered to shareholders in April in combination with warrants. Commonwealth, which realized about $161.5 million from the offering, chose to raise capital using preferred rather than bonds in order to protect its AAA bond rating by reducing the debt to equity ratio to 56%. Your financial needs would be best met by these preferred shares.

Hub Bonds Highest Quality

Q: I am interested in knowing more about tax-exempt bonds and would appreciate your writing more articles on them. —M.K.

A: I am happy to comply. Of particular interest in the tax-exempt sector are the bonds offered periodically by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, popularly referred to as HUD. Ranked second only to direct obligations of the U.S. Treasury, these issues carry AAA ratings and are among the safest debt instruments available. Payment of principal and interest is guaranteed by the federal government and interest is exempt from Federal taxation.

In May HUD auctioned $196.9 million in bonds of 9 local authorities and these were sold to the public to yield 2.9% for 1971s up to 5.9% for 2003-11 maturities. The bonds issued in $5000 minimum amounts were available in both coupon and registered forms. Originally 19 local authorities were scheduled to offer $356.5 million long term bonds but this was scaled down and the balance is expected some time before Fall. Since 1951, HUD has sponsored 67 public auctions at which more than $7.2 billion long term bonds have been sold. Of these $6 billion are still in public hands. Proceeds from the auctions are used to reimburse the government for monies advanced to the local authorities for building low rent housing.

Q: I hold 100 U.S. Bank note shares costing 9 5/8. Do you have any information on this stock? —R.A.

A: This company prints and engraves stock certificates, stamps, foreign currency and other commercial and financial communications. With the fate of the stock certificate presently under discussion, these shares are trading under somewhat of a cloud. However, several new products introduced recently are in wholly diverse fields. An electronic temperature taking device for hospital use, a line of shoe care products and three noncombustible wall coatings are now in production. Although downside risk is minimal, shares have limited appeal at this time.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK: It was Gov. Rockefeller who gave permission for the Louis Armstrong last viewing to take place at the Park Avenue armory . . . President Nixon sent an aide, Leonard Garment, who once played clarinet with the Woody Herman orchestra, to represent him.

When Armstrong appeared at Basin Street for "a special 10-day engagement" he said there really wasn't anything special about it; "When any nightclub boss tags a booking as special it only means he wants to create an awfully big impression" . . . Bing Crosby said of him: "Armstrong is the only musician I know who can't be replaced by somebody."

Armstrong denied that he'd wear a kilt presented to him in Edinburgh; "My chops are fine but my knees are knobby." Elliot Elisofon flew to Tulsa to take a closeup photo of Armstrong for his book, "Color Photography." Elisofon noticed that Armstrong's cuffs were showing. He asked him to push them back. Armstrong instead tore off both shirtsleeves at the shoulder, saying: "You've come all the way from New York to take my picture, Pops. I got plenty of shirts."

Kay Graham, owner of the The Washington Post, will retain Edward Bennett Williams to defend her and her editors in case of prosecution by the Dept. of Justice . . . Joe Cullman 3d will become chairman of the Whitney Young Foundation . . . The reunited team of Lerner and Loewe may do a stage version of their film musical, "Gig" . . . Ted Allen's new screenplay will star Zero Mostel and be directed by Jan Kadar.

An authentic painting by Edward Hopper will be one of the works to be auctioned July 18 to Hudson House in Nyack for the benefit of the Landmark Preservation Foundation. Auctioneers will include Helen Hayes, Pat Hingle and Richard Kiley.

Israel Earns $105 Million From Influx Of Tourists

JERUSALEM—Israel earned $105 million from a record influx of 437,000 tourists in 1970 despite a tense political situation, aerial hijackings by terrorists and a serious cholera outbreak in Jerusalem last fall. Minister of Tourism Moshe Kol said that the number of tourists was seven percent greater than in 1969 and the income from tourism 18 percent higher. He said it did not include $50 million spent on fares on El Al, the Israeli national airline.

According to Kol, 46 percent of last year's tourist traffic originated in the United States and Canada. Tourism from the U.S. rose by 13 percent compared to 1969, from Brazil 21 percent, from West Germany 24 percent and from Sweden and Belgium 12 and 15 percent respectively. But "Portnoy's Complaint" at the entrance to the Columbia building here the other day . . . George Barrie, president of Faberge, has applied for ASCAP membership.

Jimmy Ernst, the painter son of the pioneering Max Ernst, was at a party in East Hampton where a guest said to him: "I know your father." Ernst says: "After 50 years I finally figured out an answer: 'So do I . . .'"

Munoz-Marin, the former governor of Puerto Rico, is in Rome, writing his memoirs. At the Waldorf Rudy Vallee presented to Mrs. Douglas MacArthur the first album of "MacArthur's Legacy," containing all of her late husband's speeches. When someone asked Mrs. MacArthur which was the finest speech he ever made, Vallee interrupted:

"It HAD to be the speech where he asked her to marry him."

Frank Sinatra generated a stir at Raffles when he arrived with a young lady on his arm. But she was only his daughter, Tina.

Paramount signed Gene Saks to direct "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" . . . Peter Finch, who portrays the intrepid explorer Umberto Nobile in "The Red Tent," has refused to fly to the film's N.Y. premiere next month and is coming by ship.

The July 4 matinee of "Fiddler on the Roof" was for the senior citizen's Golden Ring Council, composed of former ILGWU members. A line that never got a laugh before suddenly was applauded that day, when Mottel said: "Even a poor taller is entitled to happiness."

Mary Pickford will be the subject of a 90-minute TV special . . . Frank Sinatra plans a series of stand-up lectures and seminars at colleges.

Meyer Lansky, who is suing for libel in Israel, once ran gambling casinos, in pre-Castro Cuba. He was proud of the plug when Steve Allen did a telecast from the Havana Riviera and described it: "Here we are in Havana, the home of sugar cane and Meyer Lansky."

the number of visitors from Britain, Norway, Holland, Switzerland and Austria declined, Kol said.

The Tourism Ministry said that 40 percent of last year's tourists were non-Jews, more than half of them Christian pilgrims. The average income per tourist was put at $214 compared to $199 in 1969.

Chanoch Glivon, director general of the Tourism Ministry said that Israel aims to increase its tourist traffic by 100,000 a year over the next three years. He said the Ministry has commissioned the Louis Harris firm in the U.S. to undertake a comprehensive market research project in that country and Canada and disclosed plans for an extensive promotional campaign by television in major U.S. and Canadian cities.

White and Black Dating

Life Magazine, in an article about interracial dating and marriage, concluded that interracial dating is inevitable and even foresees the day when mixed couples will be routinely accepted. Two-thirds of the public thinks that day is still a generation or more away.

My guess is that the racially mixed marriage as a commonplace in America is in the same state now that marriage between Jew and Gentile was 50 years ago.

I speak with some authority on the matter. When my father emigrated to America, the last thing he suspected was that one of his sons would marry a Catholic. I would doubt the thought ever crossed his mind.

Until he came to America, my father never met a Catholic, socially, he had never had a Catholic friend, he had no idea what Catholics believed. But this situation did not obtain for me. Indeed I did know Catholics, indeed I had a close Catholic friend, indeed as a Jew I much admired and married a Catholic. But that was not what everybody was doing.

When a Jew married a Catholic 50 years ago, he brought to the marriage something besides himself. Either his ambition or his talents or his opportunities were more aggregate than his Christian counterpart. And the same was true for the Gentile partner.

In fact, the mixed marriage between a Catholic and a Jew was usually a marriage contracted between people who were in the main self-employed. They were artists or actors or writers or owned their own business or were wealthy. Jewish garage mechanics tended to marry Jewish girls and Irish Catholic girls who were graduates of Vassar tended to marry Irish Catholic boys who were graduates of Harvard.

Jewish families in those years sat shiva for boys who married Gentiles and Irish Catholic girls who married Jews were excommunicated from the church unless they had obtained a dispensation.

Everyone warned about the terrible affliction visited by such marriage on the children. For everyone's information, the children thrived.

The big change in attitudes about such a marriage, or at least the change that came to see it as commonplace, occurred because of the widespread devotion to higher education. We catalogue people today not by whether they are Jews or Catholic or what have you, but by whether they are college graduates, high school graduates, or grammar school graduates. A college graduate reads more, is better informed, votes more often, and intends a priori to educate his children. The education graduation rightly or wrongly is enough to distinguish differences between men more fundamentally than any other.

At the point that the black has as many college graduates proportionate to his number in the population, so will a proportionate number of blacks marry whites.

Whites in Savannah may not like it nor hard hats in Duluth. But, Spiro Agnew to the contrary, Savannah and hard-hatted Duluth are not all there is to America.

As for the present-day marriages between blacks and whites, I think, too, they are contracted for the most part between partners who are self-sustaining by career.

New Benefits for Veterans

Are you, the post-Korean war veteran, aware that under a new law, you may be eligible for full GI benefits PLUS a full salary if you go into training under a federally subsidized training program of the Manpower Development & Training Act?

Are you, the veteran who has been ineligible for important educational benefits because you have served less than two years of active duty, aware that you may now qualify for substantial benefits if you were on more than 180 days of continuous active duty after Jan. 31, 1955?

Are you, the wives and children of totally disabled war veterans, aware that you also qualify for a full education-training allowance—if you take an approved apprenticeship or on-the-job training program?

Fewer than one in four veterans is now taking advantage of his valuable education-training benefits under the GI bill which went into effect last Christmas eve—even though the other side of the coin is that by the end of next year it's likely that 1,800,000 will be receiving benefits.

Sad as this is, it is even more appalling in the face of the fact that hundreds of thousands of returning veterans can't find jobs. The following points are vital:

You can go into these programs part-time as well as full-time; can combine work with study; may be able to get extra stipends if you have dependents; may attend an ever expanding variety of schools, training institutions and training programs. Moreover, your basic educational benefits have been upped 35 percent within this past year.

The best known type of educational benefits for veterans is the "institutional" benefit—permitting you to attend not only college but also any approved high school, vocational school, correspondence course, business school, etc., etc. If you want to attend an eligible institution, apply AT ONCE at the nearest VA office.

There are many on-the-job training programs in fields ranging from health to water pollution control. Programs must be state approved and employers must pay trainees at least half the salary they are expected to earn on completing training—PLUS your GI benefits.

Also covered by the GI bill: correspondence courses, on-the-job farm cooperative programs and flight training. Apprentices are eligible for the same benefits as on-the-job trainees. Vocational rehabilitation training benefits for veterans with service-connected disabilities start at $135 a month—if you have no dependents—in addition to regular disability compensation and costs of tuition, books, etc.

On top of this are new programs ranging from preparatory training prior to service discharge, to special tutorial assistance benefits, to special counseling and remedial services for the low skilled, disabled or disadvantaged veteran.

About 60 medical schools, hospitals, universities and other institutions are offering special training to veterans with previous experience in some health field for periods from 14 weeks to five years. The U.S. Office of Education has launched, in addition, a work-study program for veterans from low income families who want training for teaching jobs in low income schools. This training pays a weekly stipend of $90, along with GI educational benefits based on the number of hours of college work the student is carrying.

The list goes on and on, but surely my point has been made: You must not ignore or downgrade the full range of benefits available.

Make sure you have explored all the possibilities. Check immediately at your nearest "one stop" Veterans Assistance Center—of which there are now 71 located across the nation.

First Bedouin To Become Doctor Returns To Help Own People

JERUSALEM—the 25,000 Bedouin nomads in Israel's desolate Negev desert are bursting with pride over Yunis Abu Rahlah, their son the Bedouin doctor.

The 27-year-old Mr. Rahlah, is the first Israeli Bedouin to graduate from Jerusalem's prestigious Hadassah Medical School and take up the medical profession.

He plans to use his skill, obtained from six years of study, among his own people, where disease and illiteracy are rampant. When he returned to his tribe armed with his degree his people laid out one of the biggest feasts in living memory.

Heads of almost all 20 tribes under Israeli administration attended, along with notables from all over the Israeli-held West Bank of Jordan.

Top-ranking Israeli army officers and police officials were present, as were heads of the Hebrew University, to which Hadassah School is affiliated.

They had good reason to be pleased. For a case of a Bedouin making the transition from traditional nomadic existence to modern professional sphere is rare.

Mr. Rahlah began his climb toward the medical world seven years ago, when he approached the Government's Arab Affairs Department and told its education chief, "I want to be a doctor."

He had graduated from an Arab high school and had patched up his broken Hebrew with private lessons.

The Hadassah School fitted him in among African and Asian students studying under Israel's international aid program.

Once a month he would go home. He would ride a bus into the heart of the desert and get off at a pre-arranged landmark, where his brother would be waiting with a horse for him.

For 24 hours he would live a Bedouin existence with his parents, seven brothers and three sisters. Then he would travel back to the 20th century.

He won scholarships for three consecutive years of his medical studies and financed the rest with part-time work as a campus security guard, public relations officer and laboratory assistant.

He now begins his internship at the Negev Central Hospital in Beersheba, and intends to travel around the desert lecturing to Bedouins on hygiene and first aid. His chief goal involves breaking through one of the Bedouin's most ancient taboos—he wants to persuade Bedouin fathers to let their daughters attend school.

INTRODUCES BILL

WASHINGTON—Sen. Robert Taft, Jr., has introduced a bill calling for the issuance of 30,000 refugee visas to admit Soviet Jews to the United States. He said that the purpose of the bill was to bring more public pressure on the Russians to improve living conditions for Soviet Jews.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

We're back to defense today. A little thought should have been enough to enable the Defenders to combine in setting the game contract but only one player sitting East made the proper play. Before reading through this whole column, I will stop you at the right time and see if you are up to it. Obviously, you will be getting some help for before you do something automatically wrong you will be forced to think. You should then realize what should be done but admit to yourself whether or not you would really have done it in the height of battle.

Richard Bojar and Fredric Suzman were East and West, Defenders, East-West Vulnerable, East Dealer with this bidding:

			3NT

Most of the North-South pairs played the hand in the same contract, some with North the Declarer after that person responded to his partner's opening bid with a Two No Trump call. The play would be exactly the same after a Spade lead. One extremely foolhardy West even dared to make a vulnerable overcall in Spades. What this did was to lead the opponents into an unstoppable four Heart contract. We won't discuss that but are more interested in watching the best defense against Three No Trump with a Spade lead.

If West is on lead, as was the case most of the time, the Spade Queen was just about an automatic lead. It makes no difference whether Declarer ducks this or not as he can duck the next trick in the suit just as well if the Defense proceeds normally but now put yourself in the East position after North, Dummy, has won the Spade Ace and a small Club is played from Dummy. Stop right here and tell me just what card you would play. If you said, "Why, a low one, of course," you would be defending the way most of the better than average players would have defended for that is the normal thing to do.

Is that right, then? No, it's not. East should hop right up with his Club King to protect his partner's entry to that established Spade suit. If he doesn't, West must win the Ace, his last entry, and knock out the last Spade stopper but now, after the duck of one of the Spade tricks, East will have no more and when East does win that Club King, he will be unable to reach West to cash the other Spades.

How should he know to do this? If South has the Ace-Queen of Clubs it won't make much difference for the King is finessable anyhow. Furthermore, South's rebid of one No Trump limited his hand so West was known to have some high card other than the Queen and Jack of Spades. The opening lead had earmarked South with that King. Another thing, with all of the Club spots except for the King, Declarer would have probably led the Jack in order to stay in Dummy to finesse again if the first try worked. That is the usual procedure. Regardless, a good thinker on defense would rise both to the occasion and with that Club King and set Three No Trump for a top.

When this was not done, the Declarer was now able not only to make three but to make an overtrick, losing only one Spade and two Clubs. We had a hand something like this not too long ago when we discussed second hand low not being automatically

Moral: Every time your partner makes a bid or plays a card he tries to tell you something. Watch for it and govern yourself accordingly. When you infer that he has an entry to run a suit do everything in your power to protect it.

Fisher Says No Changes Made In Nixon's Middle East Policy

TEL AVIV —Max Fisher, President Nixon's advisor on Jewish affairs and chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, said here that there has been no change in the basic principles of Nixon's Middle East policy of no imposed settlement and maintenance of the balance of power between Israel and her Arab foes. Fisher, here to attend the first Assembly of the reconstituted Jewish Agency which was held in Jerusalem last week had his last meeting with President Nixon two months ago. He refused to confirm or deny that he was carrying a letter from Nixon to Premier Golda Meir. He said he found Nixon "more sympathetic than anyone could expect" toward Israel, adding, "I can only wish Israel had some more friends like Nixon." Asked by newsmen if the White House was acting on behalf of Soviet Jews, Fisher, who campaigned for Nixon in 1968 replied, "things are being done but I cannot speak about them."

At a press conference in Jerusalem, Jewish Agency chairman Louis Pincus said the Assembly represented nearly 2.5 million Jews, the largest Jewish body ever set up. He said about 1.5 million consists of contributors to the various fund-raising appeals for Israel and another 900,000 represented the membership of the World Zionist Organization on the conclusion of the world-wide membership drive. Pincus stressed that for obvious reasons the 2.5 million did not include Israeli-Jews or Jews from East European and other countries where the membership drive could not be conducted. He described the Jewish Agency's activities, apart from fund-raising, as immigration, settlement, youth aliyah, social welfare, housing, health, absorption, agriculture and education. Pincus announced that Dr. Israel Goldstein would retire as chairman of the Keren Hayesod-United Israel Appeal, having reached the age of 75. He said the World Confederation of General Zionists nominated Ezra Shapiro of Cleveland, Ohio as his successor.

TO DEFEND HERSHKOVITZ
WASHINGTON —Nat Lewin, a former State Department official and Assistant solicitor General in the Johnson Administration, will defend Avraham Hershkovitz in the trial of Jewish Defense League officials on conspiracy to violate gun control charges. Lewin, who is on the executive board of the National Jewish Commission on Law and Public Affairs (COLPA), will take the Hershkovitz case as a private lawyer, not as a member of COLPA. Hershkovitz is presently serving a five-year sentence for using a false support. The maximum sentence for the conspiracy charge is $10,000 or 10 years in jail or both.

We're back to defense today. A little thought should have been enough to enable the Defenders to combine in setting the game contract but only one player sitting East made the proper play. Before reading through this whole column, I will stop you at the right time and see if you are up to it. Obviously, you will be getting some help for before you do something automatically wrong you will be forced to think. You should then realize what should be done but admit to yourself whether or not you would really have done it in the height of battle.

Richard Bojar and Fredric Suzman were East and West, Defenders, East-West Vulnerable, East Dealer with this bidding:

			3NT

Most of the North-South pairs played the hand in the same contract, some with North the Declarer after that person responded to his partner's opening bid with a Two No Trump call. The play would be exactly the same after a Spade lead. One extremely foolhardy West even dared to make a vulnerable overcall in Spades. What this did was to lead the opponents into an unstoppable four Heart contract. We won't discuss that but are more interested in watching the best defense against Three No Trump with a Spade lead.

If West is on lead, as was the case most of the time, the Spade Queen was just about an automatic lead. It makes no difference whether Declarer ducks this or not as he can duck

the next trick in the suit just as well if the Defense proceeds normally but now put yourself in the East position after North, Dummy, has won the Spade Ace and a small Club is played from Dummy. Stop right here and tell me just what card you would play. If you said, "Why, a low one, of course," you would be defending the way most of the better than average players would have defended for that is the normal thing to do.

Is that right, then? No, it's not. East should hop right up with his Club King to protect his partner's entry to that established Spade suit. If he doesn't, West must win the Ace, his last entry, and knock out the last Spade stopper but now, after the duck of one of the Spade tricks, East will have no more and when East does win that Club King, he will be unable to reach West to cash the other Spades.

How should he know to do this? If South has the Ace-Queen of Clubs it won't make much difference for the King is finessable anyhow. Furthermore, South's rebid of one No Trump limited his hand so West was known to have some high card other than the Queen and Jack of Spades. The opening lead had earmarked South with that King. Another thing, with all of the Club spots except for the King, Declarer would have probably led the Jack in order to stay in Dummy to finesse again if the first try worked. That is the usual procedure. Regardless, a good thinker on defense would rise both to the occasion and with that Club King and set Three No Trump for a top.

When this was not done, the Declarer was now able not only to make three but to make an overtrick, losing only one Spade and two Clubs. We had a hand something like this not too long ago when we discussed second hand low not being automatically

Moral: Every time your partner makes a bid or plays a card he tries to tell you something. Watch for it and govern yourself accordingly. When you infer that he has an entry to run a suit do everything in your power to protect it.

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

TIM O'NEIL DAY: It is doubtful if any Rhode Islander has ever received the favorable publicity that has poured over the newspaper presses and flowed over the airwaves concerning T i m O ' N e i l, known—beloved—by thousands as "King of the Sandlots." The story, done so well by John Hanlon in last Sunday's Providence Journal "Rhode Islander," was a fitting tribute to the memory of the great man that is stamped so indelibly in the minds of those who knew him and is a wonder to those who have only heard of his deeds. Tim was called "Rhode Island's Most Valuable Citizen." Boys and young men who played baseball under his direction, that stressed good sportsmanship and insisted on good citizenship, numbered more than 40-thousand.

GOVERNOR LIGHT PROCLAMATION: Rhode Island will observe "Tim O'Neil Day" on Saturday, July 17. It has been proclaimed as such by Governor Frank Licht. It is a noble proclamation that carries sincere hopes that maybe some of "The Sandlot King's" teachings may again become infectious in these times when they are needed.

BIG GAME: One baseball league remains today, the Rhode Island Amateur League carrying on as an outgrowth of the Providence Amateur League. It is very much alive due to the tireless efforts of Tom Johnson, a young man of vitality and courage who predicts that it will grow bigger and bigger in the future. The Rhode Island League All Stars will play a game with the All Stars of the Sunset League of Newport starting at 5 p.m. on July 17 at McCoy Stadium. A regular Eastern League game featuring the Pawtucket Red Sox will follow in a most attractive double-header. It's a program that should attract a banner crowd—for the love of the game and for the inspiration to everyone for doing his best always, according to Tim O'Neil's teachings. Three members of Tim's intimate family live in Rhode Island. Joseph O'Neil, Mrs. Isabel West, and Mrs. Dorothy Lussler should receive special invitations and recognition on Tim O'Neil Day. It would make the "King" happy.

FOR WHOM THE BELL TOLLS: Beloved and with affection he was called "Eddie" by all who were acquainted with him. He personified the American boy's dream when he made it to the Major Baseball Leagues. He made it all the way to the top, association with the greats of the great game and never once forgetting those who were destined to remain in the shadows. He wore a winning smile and regardless of the event, be it the World Series or the All Star Game or Hall of Fame Day at Cooperstown, he always had time in a crowded schedule to stop and make old friends feel important and welcome. "Eddie" Doherty, associated with the Red Sox, the Senators and also the American Association, moved on to an even greater realm during the past week. Many of his friends and admirers were in St. Church for his Mass. Among them were General Manager Dick O'Connell of the Red Sox, Press Box Steward McCarthy from Fenway Park and the personable Johnny Pesky (who deserves Hall of Fame recognition). And, as John Donne wrote, "The bell tolled for us all."

LOOKING AHEAD: That's what hundreds of Little Leaguers are doing with their eyes focussed on Williamsport, Pennsylvania, where their own World Series will eventually be played. Right now championships in different sections are of the utmost important, one of many involving the Fox Point-East Side Little League with its target date set for July 21 at Lower Lincoln Baseball Field where an All Star game will be played. There'll be numerous potential stars of the future in action, one in particular who has attracted attention being Scott Press of the Arden Jewelry team, a short-stop of great agility and a lad who can "hit 'em where they ain't" like a budding Willie Keeler fame for that ability. Coaches Arthur Vincent and Steve Ferreira typify men who have unselfishly given of their time while helping the Little Leaguers play the game. Without a doubt, we'll see youngsters like Scott Press taking over in place of Aparicio or Petroscelli or some of the others in the future. It's a great game—Little League Baseball—and some great future leaders being developed in it.

FISH STORY: Is it "Ox's" or "Fox's" Ledge where Joe Gallo of A. & J. Auto Body and Sales caught so many Cod Fish? Joe makes the ordinary Cod (Sacred in Boston) sound so appetizing. He's getting ready for the Tuna Derbies but in the meantime will feast on Fillet of Cod.—AND WITH THAT—CARRY ON!

Italian Neo-Fascists Stand By Israel Against USSR

ROME —Giorgio Almirante, whose neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI) scored the Italian right wing's largest electoral victory since World War II in the June 14 local elections, declared that he and his party were in complete solidarity with Israel's struggle against Soviet expansionism.

"We are in the same camp," said the 55-year-old former aid to Mussolini, stressing his party's anti-Communist stand and Israel's achievements. The presence of the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean, an area of vital interest to Italy, gives encouragement to the Arab countries and impedes peace, Almirante added to newsmen.

The rightist leader said of the MSP's attitude toward Jews that Mussolini had promulgated the 1938 racial laws under pressure from Hitler. He himself, Almirante said, had participated in Jew-baiting as a young journalist, but only because he had believed what he had been told about Jews by anti-Semites. Mussolini's anti-Jewish program was a great blunder, Almirante concluded, adding that he regretted his own part in it. The MSI chieftain said that Italian Jewry's repeated rejection of neo-Fascism since the war would not change his party's attitude toward Jews or other nations. Neither, he said, would Arab rejection of the Soviets, because the basic issue was Israel's right to existence, which he said he firmly supports.

Almirante contended that his party's political gains constituted "punishment" of Premier Emilio Colombo's Christian Democrats for their alleged tolerance of Communism. The Christian Democrats gained 27.2 percent of the votes in Rome, compared with 30.9 percent last year, while the MSI increased its vote percentage from 10.7 to 15.6. The results in other areas — a fifth of the country held elections — were similar.

Black Muslims Eat Kosher Foods; Dietary Laws Alike In Many Ways

NEW YORK—An increasing number of American Blacks are buying and eating kosher meat because the Black Muslim movement, which stresses consumption of fresh, clean food, equates the Jewish dietary laws with cleanliness, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency learned this week. Black Muslim-associated food stores and caterers are buying kosher delicatessen from wholesalers and individual Blacks patronize kosher butchers in many sections of the United States.

Brother Wayne, a spokesman for New York City's Black Muslim community, told the JTA that in the Muslim tradition, food is meant for healthy subsistence, not for indulgence. Followers of the sect, he said, eat only once a day and fasting is part of the Muslim dietary concept. But many Blacks who do not belong to the movement have been influenced by the Muslim emphasis on food which is, as Brother Wayne put it, "conducive to health."

The Koran, the Holy Book of Islam, includes the stipulation of the Jewish Scriptures that only animals which chew their cud and have split hoofs may be used for food, which means a ban on pork. Brother Wayne also reported that Black Muslims require their meat animals to be specially slaughtered. Before being killed, the animals must not be frightened or mishandled in a way which might require the injection of "impurities," presumably tranquilizing drugs, to calm them, the Black Muslim spokesman explained. Consumers of animals thus calmed might absorb the same "impurities."

Shell fish and other non-kosher fish are prohibited, as they are to observant Jews, but milk and meat foods may be eaten together.

To assure conformity to these standards, Black Muslims have farms in Alabama, Georgia and Michigan to raise cattle, sheep and chickens and they operate their own slaughterhouse in Chicago. But Brother Wayne said that Elijah Muhammed, the Muslim's Messenger of Allah, recommends the use of kosher food by Blacks because of the belief that the Jewish dietary laws assure the cleanliness of those foods.

Abe Golden, sales manager of Zion Kosher Meat Products in the Bronx, told the JTA that his firm began feeling the impact of such Black Muslim teachings three or four years ago as a growing of Muslim-affiliated stores and Islamic Temples began to order Zion products. He said that five years ago there were only a couple of such bulk customers but now he sells in quantity to about ten such purchasers.

The assistant manager of Lazar's Self-Service Kosher Meat Market in predominantly white Forest Hills in the Queens borough of New York City—one of more than a dozen such self-service meat markets opened in the last ten years—told the JTA that the store had "plenty of Black customers" because of their belief that kosher meat is clean. She said also that about 25 percent of the store's customers were Black and that the number of such customers was increasing "from day to day."

3,000 Israeli 'Black Panthers' Hold Orderly Demonstration

JERUSALEM—About 3,000 "Black Panthers" from all over Israel participated in an orderly demonstration here last week. Two hours of speeches, singing and marching were followed by the singing of "Hatikvah." The speakers emphasized the need for quicker governmental action on the roots of Israeli poverty.

For the first time, a poster depicting a clenched-fist salute was displayed; heretofore, there had been no identification by the Panthers, except in name, with the black militant organization in the United States. Asked about the poster, Panther leader Kovich Shemesh explained: "We copied it from the Jewish Defense League," which also uses a clenched-fist insignia.

Meanwhile it became clear here that housing is Israel's number one domestic issue. The Israelis care more about obtaining a new house than the fact that life in it may be made unbearable by aircraft noise.

A decision to halt building at Bet Dagon because houses there would lie across the flight-path of the Jumbo Jet now using Lydda Airport has resulted in an outcry from people waiting for houses in the district.

In a message to the Housing authorities they said in effect "give us the houses and to hell with the noise." Housing has now become difficult not only for slum dwellers and the underprivileged, but also for young couples seeking to set up a new home.

Ashdod has just given an example this week which may be followed elsewhere in the country.

They also agreed to cut the down payment and to make available easy mortgage terms. Young couples in many parts of the country have been banding themselves into associations to fight for the right to a home.

Patrols Scout Countryside Looking For Terrorists

TEL AVIV—Army patrols and border police aided by helicopters scoured the countryside today for the terrorists whose Katyusha rocket attack on Petach Tikvah last week killed a five-year-old girl and a 71-year-old woman and injured 19 other persons.

The woman, identified as Esther Vitas, was killed when a rocket scored a direct hit on Beth Tikva Hospital, an institution for incurables. Nine of the inmates, all elderly, were injured as they lay in their beds. A physician, two female nurses and a male nurse were also injured. An entire ward was wrecked.

Five-year-old Anat Darbashi was killed and her parents and two sisters were injured when a rocket struck their home in a densely populated part of the town of 80,000. Another private home and a schoolhouse were hit but they were empty at the time. Two classrooms were demolished.

The rockets were fired from a range that could have been anywhere up to 14 miles. Petach

Rabbi Asks Clemency For Conscientious Objectors

NEW YORK—Conscientious objectors to the conflict in Indochina who have gone to jail or to other countries to escape military service in a war that violated their moral convictions deserve clemency at the war's end, according to an eminent Orthodox Jewish scholar.

The scholar, Rabbi Emanuel Rackman, is spiritual leader of the Fifth Avenue Synagogue and past president of both the Rabbinical Council of America and the New York Board of Rabbis.

Rabbi Rackman's view is significant since Orthodox Judaism is generally regarded as the Jewish "right," sympathetic to the war effort.

The rabbi states his position in the current issue of Sh'ma (Hebrew for "hear"), a bi-weekly edited by Rabbi Eugene B. Borowitz of Port Washington, L. I. Sh'ma's editorial board represents all three branches of American Jewry—Orthodox, Conservative and Reform.

Rabbi Borowitz said in an interview that the sort of clemency advocated by Rabbi Rackman seemed to be favored in the Jewish community, regardless of "right" or "left." There is a "consensus," he said, but by no means "unanimity."

Opposition to the Rackman view was expressed by Rabbi Louis Bernstein of the Orthodox Congregation Young Israel of Windsor Park, L. I., who contended that "any clemency at this point would lead to disrespect for the law and would open the way to justifying the breaking of other laws than that of conscription."

"Current discussion of how to deal with 'fugitives' from justice in foreign countries because of a refusal to participate in a war they deem unjust is premature, unfair and possibly even demoralizing to those who are in the front lines of Vietnam," Rabbi Bernstein wrote.

"There are soldiers and officers who question American presence in Vietnam in fighting units who have placed the rule of law and democracy over their private convictions," he said. "Consideration of rewarding, exonerating and restoring to home and health those who have ignominiously fled their country at this time can only have a negative effect upon them," he declared.

In his argument urging clemency, Rabbi Rackman maintained that forgiveness now for war resisters would serve to strengthen respect for law, and, in the long run, improve civil order.

He also urged that the United States move to extend the right of selective conscientious objection in future wars.

"We must recognize the legitimacy of objection to a particular war even if it is based exclusively on moral grounds, and irrespective whether the objectant believes in God or is "committed to a divine will," the rabbi wrote.

On forgiveness, he had this to say:

"Clemency would be in order when courts or administrators are satisfied that the passive resistance—and the submission to the dignity of a jail sentence or the privations of flight—was nobly motivated.

"And the clemency need not be automatic and gratuitous. The state could easily provide substitute forms of service which would mean that the objectant does not altogether evade his duties and responsibilities as a citizen.

"And certainly the United States has many such forms of service which would have great appeal to those exiles who would want to return home.

"Most of them would delight in peaceful service to all mankind. Moreover, such a move would also induce a great respect for law insofar as citizens would know that strict law is tempered by mercy and the legal system is sensitive to the moral convictions of individuals."

The order was issued two years after women soldiers began wearing their skirts at mini length in defiance of an order that decreed helmets at no more than an inch above the knee.

U.S. Says Bergus Memorandum To Egypt Does Not Represent Administration View

WASHINGTON—The United States told Israel that a memorandum submitted to Egypt last month by Donald C. Bergus, the ranking American diplomat in Cairo, did not represent the Administration's view.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, in an hour-long meeting with Ambassador Itzhak Rabin, was understood to have said that the United States was not advocating a withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Suez Canal halfway across the Sinai Peninsula. The existence of the memorandum was disclosed last Saturday by Joseph Kraft, a Washington columnist in a report from Cairo.

Mr. Kraft, citing the Egyptian Foreign Minister, Mahmoud Riad, as his source, reported that Mr. Bergus submitted to the Egyptians a memorandum on May 23 calling for an Israeli withdrawal halfway across Sinai and for an advance of Egyptian forces to a line about 15 miles west of the new Israeli positions, with a United Nations presence between.

The Egyptian leader told Mr. Kraft that because Mr. Bergus had been vague about the source of the proposal, the Egyptians had reached the conclusion that it had come from the Israeli Government. Mr. Riad thus gave the memorandum a formal reply of his own, reacting favorably. The Egyptian reply was conveyed to Mr. Rogers by Mr. Bergus on June 6. Ambassador Rabin, upon leaving Mr. Rogers today, said that disclosure of the existence of the Bergus memorandum, had caused the Israeli Government "great concern." He added that he was "more satisfied" now that he had heard Mr. Rogers' clarification.

However, there has been friction between the United States and Egypt over the memorandum, which, according to State Department sources, had been written by Mr. Bergus without authorization from his superiors. The incident is conceded to have complicated already difficult American efforts to bring about an interim agreement between Egypt and Israel for the reopening of the Suez Canal.

The State Department quickly informed Egypt that the memorandum was not an official Government position, but represented Mr. Bergus' personal views.

The Egyptians apparently felt that they had been misled and made vulnerable to Soviet charges of having secret dealings with Washington.

Mr. Bergus, now in the United States, is due to return to Cairo soon, according to informed sources.

Calls Moorehead Proposal 'Premature'

WASHINGTON—A State Department spokesman termed "premature" a proposal by Rep. William S. Moorehead, Pennsylvania Democrat, to authorize President Nixon to give Egypt $55 million to help clear the Suez Canal.

The spokesman added, however, that there was "no reason" why the United States would not participate in financing such a project.

He noted that "if and when" an agreement is reached, no financial problems are expected, since "enough countries are interested."

Moorehead announced last Friday that he would introduce his bill, HR 8775, as an amendment to the Foreign Aid Bill when it reaches the floor at the end of this month. The resolution is co-sponsored by 12 members of the House, including three members of the powerful House Foreign Affairs Committee—Reps. Lee H. Hamilton, Democrat of Indiana; Seymour Halpern, Democrat of New York, and Bill Bloomfield, Republican of Michigan. A spokesman for Moorehead said that such aid, if accepted, "would be a greater buffer than any Phantoms or Skyhawks."

South African Government Suspends Fund Transfers

CAPETOWN —The South African Zionist Federation expressed regret June 15 over the government's decision to suspend all transfers of funds from South Africa to Israel. The government said the measure was a temporary one that would be reviewed when clarification was obtained on Israel's donation of $2,800 in food and medical supplies to the Organization for African Unity.

South African Jews have the world's highest per capita rate of support for Israel. Since the Six-Day War more than $28 million has been remitted to Israel with the South African government's approval. The Jewish population of South Africa is about 120,000.

The suspension of fund transfers reflected the anger aroused by the donation to the OAU, which Israel said it made on humanitarian grounds in response to an appeal from the United Nations Secretary General for aid to victims of natural disaster. The South African government regards the OAU as a terrorist organization.

The OAU, an umbrella organization that supports Africa "freedom fighter" movements opposed to colonialism and apartheid, has received aid and support from several Western governments.

The Israeli donation was bitterly condemned by Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster and by the South African press. The Zionist Federation and the South African Jewish Board of Deputies issued a joint statement deploring it as a "blunder."

The Zionist Federation's new statement expressed "confident hope, based on the government's sympathetic understanding of the humanitarian purposes for which the funds are used, that the suspension will soon be lifted."

Sen. Hatfield Asks U.S. To End Present Commitment To Israel

WASHINGTON —Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, who nominated Richard M. Nixon for President at the 1960 Republican Convention, urged this week the elimination of the President's open-ended commitment to military aid to Israel. The legislation, approved by Congress last year, authorizes the President to give Israel as much military aid as he feels necessary.

In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Hatfield asked that aid requests be handled individually to "see if each one is within our national interests." He added, "Our one-sided support of Israel to the neglect of her neighbors has had an effect similar to our overarming ourselves to such an extent that other sectors of our economy and our relations with other countries have deteriorated."

Hatfield, who has been critical of Israeli policy in the past and favors the internationalization of Jerusalem, in his testimony continued his support for Palestinian participation in direct Middle East peace talks by commenting: "Palestinians feel as though they have been severely wronged, and quite rightly. They live in virtually sub-human conditions in refugee camps and have little if any real expectations of regaining their homeland." Hatfield did not affix specific blame for the Palestinians' plight.

fulfillment of all provisions of the Nov. 22, 1967, resolution of the Security Council."

Discussing American proposals for an interim arrangement on opening the Suez Canal, the communique said: "It was noted that the problem of opening the Suez Canal for international shipping cannot be solved in isolation from other problems of the settlement and should be in context with an agreement on the withdrawal of all Israeli troops to the lines held before June 5, 1967."

It said that there should be "fixed deadlines for this withdrawal."

President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt has said he would open the canal after Israel agreed to a phased plan of withdrawal and carried out the first stage. He has been backed by the Russians on this.

The Soviet and Egyptian sides also praised the 15-year treaty, which they said "facilitates a further invigoration of relations between them in the political, economic, cultural and other fields."

The communique said: "The sides specially noted that the treaty deals a new blow at the plans of international imperialism that tries in every way to disrupt the relations of friendship and cooperation existing between the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United Arab Republic, based on the common aims of struggle for peace and social progress."

The treaty, which pledges the Soviet Union to supply Egypt with weapons and to train Egyptian forces, "is an important contribution to the cause of struggle for liquidating the aftermaths of the imperialist Israeli aggression and of normalizing the situation in the Middle East, of strengthening peace and security," it said.

USSR, Egypt Affirm Opening Of Suez Possible If Israel Withdraws

MOSCOW—The Soviet Union and Egypt affirmed that the Suez Canal should be opened only if Israel agreed to withdraw her forces from all occupied Arab territory.

A joint communique issued here and in Cairo after a five-day visit here by the Egyptian Foreign Minister, Mahmoud Riad, seemed to provide little optimism for United States officials still seeking to work out an interim solution that would open the canal to traffic. It has been closed since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Donald C. Bergus, the senior American diplomat in Cairo, who was in Washington for consultations, flew to Cairo with Michael Sterner, the State Department's Egyptian desk officer. They discussed the latest American thinking on the Suez situation with Egyptian officials, according to Washington reports.

Mr. Riad, who arrived formally to exchange instruments of ratification of the 15-year Soviet-Egyptian treaty of friendship and cooperation with Soviet officials, held meetings with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and with Leonid I. Brezhnev, the party leader while he was here.

The fact that Mr. Brezhnev took time off from the busy schedule caused by the death of the three astronauts while Mr. Riad was here underscored the importance the Soviet Union attaches to the treaty.

Mr. Gromyko reportedly assured Mr. Riad that the Soviet Union had no plans to seek reestablishment of diplomatic relations with Israel, despite some rumors to that effect abroad.

In fact, the communique contained the now familiar denunciations of Israel as well as a rather sharp attack on the United States' Middle Eastern policy.

The communique said: "The sides stressed that Israel's aggressive, expansionist course was the main cause of tensions and the absence of peace in the Middle East. They are convinced that without the political economic and military aid and support by the United States, the Israeli Government would not have been able to pursue its aggressive policy and to sabotage all attempts by peace-loving forces directed at a peaceful settlement of the Middle East conflict on the basis of the

Soviet Union, Israel May Decide To Resume Diplomatic Relations

WASHINGTON — Foreign diplomats have reported that the Soviet Union and Israel were engaged in active soundings "through various channels" on a possible resumption of their diplomatic relations, broken by Moscow in 1967.

It remained unclear whether the initiative for these soundings had come from the Soviet Union or from Israel, and there was further uncertainty over their present status.

But diplomats here reported that the Soviet Ambassador, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, had indicated at recent Washington social functions what they described as interest in the possibility of a "new look" at the state of Soviet-Israeli relations.

Mr. Dobrynin was not available for comment.

Furthermore, Soviet newspapermen here, in conversations with certain Israeli and American newsmen, strongly suggested that the resumption of Soviet-Israeli ties — or, at least, of contacts on some level — would represent a useful step in terms of middle Eastern realities.

The account of one such conversation was published in the Tel Aviv newspaper Haaretz. According to diplomatic sources, France, which has played a relatively neutral role recently in the Middle East crisis, was reported to have been informed of the Soviet-Israeli soundings. They said that France might be prepared to play a role in this situation should the current soundings move to a more formal diplomatic phase.

Informed diplomats portrayed Israel as ready to welcome Soviet gestures in the direction of restoring the relations interrupted by Moscow, along with all the Eastern European Communist countries except Rumania, at the time of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

They said they believed Israel felt that "nothing would be simpler" than a resumption of the relations without any "pre-conditions."

These diplomats recalled that on two occasions the Israeli Foreign Minister, Abba Eban, said he "would not be surprised" if Moscow chose in the future to "reach a positive conclusion" concerning relations with Israel.

Syria Breaks Off Negotiations With Iraq Petroleum Company

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syria has broken off negotiations with the Western-owned Iraq Petroleum Company in disagreement over royalties for allowing pipelines to cross her territory.

A statement by the Government in Damascus threatened "proper action at the proper time" against the company, which is owned by American, British, French and Dutch interests, with headquarters in London.

"The company knows from past experience that we stop at no limit to get our rights in full," a broadcast by the Damascus radio said.

This recalled the crisis in late 1966, when the Government seized all the company's property in Syria and shut off the flow of oil for three months. The property was released and the oil allowed to flow again only after the company had agreed to raise the Government's transit royalties by 50 per cent — from $24-million annually to $36-million.

Now Syria wants a new increase based on the 80 per cent increase in transit royalties she obtained last January from Tapline, the United States company that owns and operates the Trans-Arabian pipeline carrying the Saudi Arabian crude oil across Syria to the Mediterranean.

The Iraq Petroleum Company owns a pipeline that carries Iraqi crude oil across Syria to Banias, a terminal on the Syrian Mediterranean coast, and to Tripoli in northern Lebanon.

The pipeline is currently operating at full capacity — over one million barrels a day. It runs

State Department officials, who are aware of the reported soundings, said privately that the United States would welcome the resumption of Soviet-Israeli ties as a contribution toward the preservation of peace and stability in the Middle East.

Diplomats familiar with the soundings cautioned, however, that those efforts had not yet reached the stage of direct contacts on the diplomatic level, although carefully couched messages are known to have been exchanged through intermediaries.

They said that "it does not follow that the present soundings will lead to formal negotiations."

In the judgement of those diplomats, the immediate problem was to find a formula to allow Israel and the Soviet Union to set in motion direct confidential diplomatic consultations to determine how and when relations could be reestablished.

The impression here, however, was that such consultations, if initiated, would occur in a capital other than Washington.

Another impression held by qualified diplomats was that Moscow would be reluctant to be placed in a position of making a premature public gesture. Moscow's reason for the present soundings, these diplomats said, was to ascertain the Israeli responses.

Diplomatic specialists here speculated that Moscow might wish to resume relations with Israel for immediate tactical as well as for long-range reasons.

Tactically, they said, the Soviet Union may have concluded that the establishment of relations with Israel would serve as a deterrent against the eruption of a new Arab-Israeli conflict.

Along with the United States, diplomats said, the Soviet Union is becoming increasingly concerned over the maintenance of the Israel's-Egyptian cease-fire, which has been absent for the last 10 months.

Despite the hopes engendered early in May, when secretary of State William P. Rogers visited the Middle East, that an "interim" agreement might be worked out between Israel and Egypt on the reopening of the Suez Canal, these chances are believed to be dimming.

While the Soviet Union is Egypt's principal supplier of military equipment, diplomats here theorized that Moscow might be in a better position to discourage the Egyptians from resuming hostilities if it had relations with Israel. In such a situation, diplomats said, the Soviet Union might be able to act as an effective mediator, just as the United States, which supplies Israel militarily, had engaged in mediation efforts.

In the long run, diplomats said, the establishment of Soviet-Israeli relations may tend to solidify Moscow's political presence in the Middle East, going beyond its present role as the supporter of one of the belligerents.

Diplomats familiar with Soviet thinking expressed the view that Moscow had concluded that the time was ripe to deal directly with Israel rather than through such intermediaries as the United States.

They said that in terms of wider Soviet strategy, the new interest in relations with Israel was a logical consequence of the 15-year friendship treaty signed last month between Moscow and Cairo.

This treaty, they said, would offer Egypt any guarantees she felt she needed of continued Soviet military and economic support. Nevertheless, the diplomats said, "Cairo will need a lot of explaining" should the Russians resolve to resume ties with Israel.

United States officials noted that the reported Soviet interest in relations with Israel might fit into the larger framework of Moscow's current "peace offensive."

In recent months, the Soviet Union has made apparent concessions to the United States in the strategic-arms limitation talks.

earlier by Rabbi Kahane's defense counsel, Barry Slotnick, to Assistant United States Attorney Thomas Pattison in Brooklyn.

According to the prosecutor, Mr. Slotnick told him he had information that the explosive material was in the locker.

Acting United States Attorney Robert A. Morse of the Eastern District, said later:

"Having been advised later by a JDL spokesman of the location of the explosive, I must presume it to be part of a good-faith compliance with the court's direction that all explosives be turned in."

Rabbi Kahane, when asked at the news conference whether he would consider his jailing a form of martyrdom that would help his league's efforts to persuade the Soviets to let Jews emigrate, shook his head and said:

"Jail isn't a nice place for a nice Jewish boy or for anybody, and I don't want to go there."

How a minus on your paycheck can be a plus in your future.

Sound confusing? It isn't, really. When you join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside automatically from each paycheck. That's the "minus."

That amount will then be invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. That's where the "plus" comes in. Because you're automatically saving for your future, with one of the safest investments there are: U.S. Savings Bonds.

And, by deducting a little at a time from each paycheck, you don't feel the pinch financially. Before you know it, you'll have quite a tidy sum tucked away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Put a little "plus" in your future. Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Jews In New York Meet To Form New Council

NEW YORK —Jews from all over the city met to form a Council of Oppressed Jewish Neighborhoods which will try to use "Jewish power," especially voting power, to deal with problems such as poverty and reverse discrimination currently confronting Jews in this city.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the Jewish Defense League, told more than 70 people gathered at Congregation Adath Jeshurun in the Bronx that a movement of "grass-roots Jews" was needed to solve these and other problems which, he said, are neglected by governmental and established Jewish groups. JDL organized today's conference, but Kahane told reporters before the meeting that "we'll step out" once the Council is formed because it must represent the "general Jewish" population of the City.

Rabbi Kahane said that Jews are told to "give a damn" about other minority groups, yet although Jews comprise the third largest poverty group in the city after Blacks and Puerto Ricans, "no one gives a damn about the Jewish poor."

Need Scholarships For Those Without Means

TEL AVIV —Professor Ephraim Yochtmann reports there are now 40,000 enrolled in Israel's universities, of whom only 10 percent are students of oriental background. Of those who acquire academic degrees only 6 percent come from the so-called underprivileged classes. This figure is reflective also of the fact that only 6 percent of those enrolled in elementary schools are from Afro-Asian countries of origin.

Does this reflect a lesser aptitude on their part than for children of "western" families? Many educational experts are convinced that tens of thousands of qualified youngsters lose the chance of a higher education only for lack of financial means.

There is a desperate need for scholarships and subventions. But philanthropy from abroad seems to focus more on brick and mortar than it does on this crying need.

In the words of Professor Yehezkiel Kutscher, "It would be rather difficult to affix a plaque on the back of a student reading 'contributed by Mr. and Mrs. . . of California'."

Speaking at the annual convention of B'nai Zion, the Jewish fraternal order, Horan said that "the issue of Soviet Jewry helped put the American Jewish student movement on its feet" as the struggle of Soviet Jewry gave the Jewish collegian an issue "in which there was persecution greater than the Black or Puerto Rican endures in the U.S."

Discuss Issue of Soviet Jewry on David Frost Show

NEW YORK —The issue of Soviet Jewry took up virtually all of the July 9 edition of the 90-minute syndicated "David Frost Show." The television program, featured Rabbi Meir Kahane, national chairman of the Jewish Defense League; Dore Schary, playwright and honorary chairman of the Anti-Demefamation League of B'nai B'rith, and Prof. Hans J. Morgenthau, the political scientist of the University of Chicago and City College here.

Rabbi Kahane defended JDL tactics by remarking: "I think it's very easy for people who have lived in this country and do have freedom to sit back and say, 'Well, it's not nice to do certain things to Russian diplomats.' That's quite right. It isn't nice. A war is never nice. This is in effect a war between the Soviet Union and Jews. Soviet diplomats' lives should be made as bearable or unbearable as Soviet Jews' lives are." Denying that JDL members have ever engaged in bombing or spitting, Rabbi Kahane said that nevertheless, "I am in favor of any violence if it's necessary," even though "violence is ugly—of that there's no doubt." He explained that the Talmud advises: "He who has mercy on the cruel is one day destined to be cruel to the merciful."

Schary replied that this reasoning "is very strange to me," since "we really are not engaged in a physical war—we're engaged in a psychological war, a social war." He said he agreed with Rabbi Kahane on only one thing, "that Soviet anti-Semitism is a reality." Other than that, "I dislike his tactics, his methods, his philosophy. I don't think the Jewish community can gain anything by violence." Schary challenged Rabbi Kahane's criticism of the established Jewish organizations as do-nothings on Soviet Jewry until the advent of the JDL. "Jewish agencies have not really been as unaware, as the rabbi would have us believe, of what the problem has been," he said, "we have all worked very hard." Rabbi Kahane countered by asserting: "I have never said and never will say that it was the JDL alone that forced the Soviet Union into doing what they did (releasing Jews). But what I do say is that a militarist group tends to serve as a catalyst, pushing moderate groups to do what they would not have done . . . I'm not saying that Jewish groups did not care about Russian Jews. Of course not, Jewish groups do care. But they didn't do enough."

Morgenthau said he was "simply amazed at the nativete, if this is the right word, of thinking that by insulting Russian diplomats on the streets of New York you are going to sway the government of the Soviet Union." He explained: "While it is very easy to incite young Jews in New York to the kinds of misdeeds which we have witnessed, it is very easy to forget that three million Jews are hostages to the government of the Soviet Union. And the government of the Soviet Union can do with those Jews whatever it wants to. And this I think is a danger which is completely overlooked in those self-satisfying, narcissistic activities which we are discussing here, and which require absolutely no heroism."

On a lighter note, Rabbi Kahane described his protest to the New York Mets for having too few Jewish players as "a very, very big put-on." He told Frost: "We telephoned the Mets and we demanded 26.2 percent of the Mets' roster to be Jewish. We thought that Art Shamsky was lonely. And at the same time we also wanted a Bulgarian second baseman since apparently there were none around. It was a put-on. It was an absurdity which apparently was so absurd that everybody missed it."

B'nai B'rith Asks Investigation Of Alleged Boycott By Pepsico

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y.—The 2,600 delegates to the 119th annual convention of B'nai B'rith District 3—representing Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and West Virginia—called June 15 for an immediate investigation by the organization of an alleged boycott by Pepsico, maker of Pepsi-Cola, against the State of Israel. The group adopted a resolution calling for a "forceful directive to be obtained from Pepsico to provide a clear and concise declaration as to whether or not it is in fact engaged in an economic boycott of the State of Israel."

Norman Buckner of Philadelphia, District 3 executive director, said he had had a meeting and a number of written exchanges with executives of Pepsico. The discussion occurred after Pepsico "equivocated" on a franchise request for a bottling plant in Israel by a major St. Louis beverage concern, according to Buckner. He said that in his exchanges with Pepsico, it offered as an explanation for its failure to have a bottling plant in Israel the fact that its marketing research in that country was incomplete.

Pepsico franchises Pepsi-Cola beverages and owns and operates North American Van Lines, Wilson Sporting Goods and Frito-Lay products.

Tourists Strain Israel's Capacity

JERUSALEM—Israeli tourism officials have asked nearly 80,000 prospective foreign visitors not to come during the next two months because of inadequate hotel space. The country is in the midst of a tourist boom far exceeding all expectations and planning.

Hanoch Givton, Director General of the Ministry of Tourism, told newsmen the other day that the number of foreign visitors so far this year was 37 percent higher than last year—313,000 as of last Tuesday, with several thousand arriving daily. Nearly 100,000 are expected this month alone. About half are non-Jews, Mr. Givton reported.

The steadily growing flow is one of the country's most important sources of foreign currency—over $28-million in the first quarter of this year. The Government also considers tourism a significant political factor, exposing the country to large numbers who would otherwise think of it only as a trouble spot.

The general reduction of tension in the Middle East following agreement on a ceasefire last August is the main reason for the increase, but a

SUPPORT ISRAEL

OMAHA, NEB.—By a vote of 31-1 the Nebraska state legislature adopted a resolution in strong support of the State of Israel. Among other things, the resolution called for the mutual friendship of the people of Israel and the United States, condemnation of the Soviet Union for its encouragement of hostility in the Middle East and direct negotiations between Israel and its neighbors.

Harvard, Wisconsin U. Scored on Bias in Report

WASHINGTON—Jews are discriminated against by Harvard and Wisconsin Universities because they are visibly in the forefront of change, according to Dorothy Rabinowitz in the summer issue of Esso Magazine, a monthly on controversial social and academic topics supported by the Esso Education and Ford Foundations.

Kahane Promises Bombs if Necessary

NEW YORK — Claiming that he and his Jewish Defense League represented "a new type of Jew," Rabbi Meir Kahane said that violence was "the only way to persuade the Soviet Union to free its Jewish citizens."

Accusing the established Jewish organizations of having "gone to great lengths to smear us," he also blamed the media and the JDL itself for failing to explain JDL goals sufficiently. Kahane said that "the only thing that will put an end to JDL will be an end to Jewish suffering."

She Wants "In" With the F.B.I. But the F.B.I. Doesn't Want Her

WASHINGTON—When Sandra Rothenberg was graduated from the University of Miami Law School in 1968, she went to see the Federal Bureau of Investigation about a job as a Special Agent.

"I knew that you had to be an accountant or a lawyer, but I knew that I was a lawyer and didn't see any problem," she said recently.

But when her initial queries met with bemused smiles and questions such as "how fast can you type?" she continued her round of Government agencies, doing a brief stint as a Federal Communications Commission attorney before becoming the first woman legal intern in the Georgetown University Law

Center's two-year fellowship program here.

Now she is Sandra Nemser, 28 years old, unemployed, married to a Denver psychiatrist, reviewing for the Colorado bar exam later in the month, and about to file the first sex discrimination suit against an already embattled F.B.I. in the Federal District Court here.

"It's the F.B.I. or nothing," said the single-minded, auburn-haired young woman in a telephone interview from Denver recently.

Reasons given by the F.B.I. for not hiring women as Special Agents include the "hazardous nature" and the "strenuous physical exertion" of the work involved, and the "full and broad range" of "duties and challenges" that the F.B.I. says a comparatively small (8,400), unspecialized work force is required to perform.

Two months ago, the Civil Service Commission, the Government's personnel agency, ruled that "men only" and "women only" requirements must be removed from almost all Federal jobs, opening up a variety of positions to women, including law enforcement jobs requiring firearms.

The F.B.I. contends that its agents, however, like those in the Secret Service, fall under the excepted rather than competitive service of government, and are therefore not bound by the new regulation.

"I am convinced that they are wrong," the 5-foot 6-inch, 125-pound Mrs. Nemser said.

TEL AVIV—Israeli newspaper editors resolved this week to fight Government censorship "in order to insure the public's right to receive reliable information."

At its annual meeting, the National Editors Association criticized the Government for having tried to block publication of at least two recent news items—the visit to Israel of a Soviet journalist, Victor Louis, and his meeting with a senior Israeli official, and the visit of Richard Helms, the United States Director of Central Intelligence.

The editors noted that the public often learned of important developments through foreign press reports emanating from Israel and then sent back.

Israel's military censors are empowered to ban publication of anything they consider harmful to the security of the state, but this often leads to suppression of political news as well.

large number of visitors—particularly young people—seem to display a marked curiosity about the society and the Holy Land regardless of political factors.

Big Rise Among Europeans

Many Are Turned Back

Mr. Givton said that the large proportion of non-Jews was surprising considering, what he termed the "natural interest" of Jews in seeing Israel. The biggest increases—up 50 percent over last year—are from Scandinavia, the Netherlands and West Germany, countries where there are no significant Jewish communities.

The United States remains the largest source of tourists, 38 percent of the total. France has long been in second place.

Considering the importance of tourism, it was a difficult decision for the Government and hotel managers to turn people away. Planned tours have been canceled and travel agents report returning hundreds of checks from tourists who ordered accommodations for the busy summer months. "The alternative would have been chaos and unhappy people," a ministry official said. "Whenever possible, of course, we are trying to encourage people simply to postpone their tour until November or December, when the situation is easier."

"Last spring, when the Passover and Easter coincided, hotel overbookings got so far out of hand that confirmed reservations had to be canceled and tourists were warned away even after arrangements had been fully made. "So far this summer we have not had a repeat of that disaster," the official said, "since we are trying to refuse requests rather than confirm them and cancel them later on."

The reduction in tensions has opened package tours, combining Israel and the Arab countries, that the Middle East has not seen since the six-day war of 1967. A French travel club, Club Mediterranee, is offering a week at its holiday camp in Egypt and a week across the lines in Israel, with transit via Cyprus, Mr. Givton said.

Also revived for the first time in four years are Mediterranean

BUS DRIVERS QUIT
TEL AVIV—Gaza Strip transportation was severely affected when 26 of the 30 local Arab bus drivers employed by the Egged bus cooperative suddenly quit their jobs. They acted under pressure from Arab terrorists, who warned them of violence against them and their families if they did not leave the Israeli-owned company. The drivers said the terrorists explained that by working for the bus company, the drivers were freeing Israelis for Army service.

Seagram Founder Dies at Age 80

Samuel Bronfman, founder and president of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams Ltd. of Montreal and New York, died July 10 at his home in Westmount, Montreal at the age of 80.

Mr. Bronfman, who amassed a fortune conservatively estimated at $400 million, was a noted philanthropist and was also active in Zionist activities. At the time of his death, the company he founded was known as the world's largest distiller and had annual sales exceeding $1.3-billion.

He was born in Brandon, Manitoba, on March 4, 1891, the son of Yechiel Bronfman, the prosperous owner of a grist mill in Bessarabia, Russia. The elder Bronfman fled from anti-Jewish pogroms and settled in Western Canada as a firewood salesman.

After an education in the public schools of Brandon and Winnipeg, his son, at the age of 18, took a job as a manager of a small hotel in Winnipeg.

He entered the liquor business in 1915 with an interprovincial mail-order firm. When the Canadian Government decided to enter the liquor merchandising business, he decided to make his own liquor.

As the business grew and Mr. Bronfman aged, he turned more and more of his business over to his sons.

The family donates more than $1 million a year to charities and educational institutions, most of it reserved for Jewish causes.

Survivors include his wife, Saldye (Rosner) Bronfman; a brother, Allan Bronfman; two sons, Edgar and Charles Bronfman; two daughters, Mrs. Phillip Lambert and Baroness Alain de Gunzberg, and several grandchildren.

Fridays: Noon to 1 p.m., open swimming for adults; 1 p.m. to 1:30 p.m., Camp Small Fry swim; 1:30 to 5 p.m., open swimming.

Use of the Center pool is open to Center members and their guests. Information on pool regulations and guest fees may be obtained by calling the Center office, 861-8800.

Registrations Now Open For 2nd Camp Period

Enrollments open this week for the second four week period at the summer day camp of the Jewish Community Center.

Aaron Segal, Camp Centerland director, announced this week that openings in all age groups are available to boys and girls age 6 to 17 for the camp period which begins on Monday, August 2 and continues until Friday, August 27.

The Centers country day camps operate from two camp sites. Camp Centerland is located on the banks of the Pawtuxet river in Scituate, Rhode Island. The Centers new Langford Farm site, is located on Simmonsville lake in Johnston, Rhode Island.

Transportation to Center day camps is available from most areas of metropolitan Providence. The camp program includes such activities as swimming, boating, camp-outs, sleep-outs, athletics, music, arts and crafts, nature lore, and pioneering. Enrollment in Center day camp is open to all children. Information on registration fees is available at the Jewish Community Center office, 401 Elm Grove Avenue, Providence, Center family membership is required for all children in the Centers day camps.

Obituaries

MRS. SAMUEL ROSEN
 Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude Rosen, 73, of 624 Blackstone Boulevard, who died Saturday, July 17, after a two-month illness, were held Monday at Temple Emanu-El. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

An active club woman and wife of Samuel Rosen, president-treasurer of School House Candy of Pawtucket, she was a member of Temple Emanu-El, and a founder and honorary life member of the sisterhood of the temple. She was also a life member of Hadassah, Miriam Hospital Women's Association, the National Women's Committee of Brandeis University, the Providence Hebrew Day School and the Jewish Home for the Aged.

She was also a member of the League of Women Voters of Rhode Island, Pioneer Women, Bradley Hospital and the Ledgemont Country Club.

In World War II she received a service award from the Red Cross.

Both Mrs. Rosen and her husband received an award from the Jewish Family and Children's Service, with which they established a trust for the sunshine fund. They also established scholarships at Brandeis University, the University of Rhode Island and the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City.

She had been a lifelong Providence resident, a daughter of the late Isaac and Betty (Bassing) Woolf.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Harris N. Rosen of Providence; two daughters, Mrs. Saul Seigle and Mrs. Bertram M. Brown, both of Pawtucket; two brothers, Peter J. Woolf of Hollywood, Florida, and Herbert M. Woolf of Lynn, Massachusetts; three sisters, Mrs. Robert Shawhan of Claremont, California, Mrs. Joseph Adelson of Providence and Mrs. Henry Sulzberger of Dallas, Texas; 10 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Goodman

The wedding of Miss Andrea Joyce Peller, of 71 A Station Street, Quincy, Mass., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo R. Peller, of 800 W. Washington Blvd., Oak Park, Illinois, to Milton Lewis Goodman, of 105 D. Pleasant Street, Melrose, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodman, of 25 Foxcroft Avenue, Warwick, R.I., took place on Monday, July 5, at West Surberban Temple, River Forest, Chicago, Illinois. Rabbi Joseph Tabachnik and Cantor Harold Brindell officiated at the ceremony. A reception followed at Fontana D'or, Chicago, Illinois.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory peau-de-sole gown with matching lace and beading around the bottom of the gown and the train. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet with lily of the valley, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Mrs. Kenneth Clark was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Douglas Larson, Mrs. Robert Peller, and Mrs. Harold Bander. Flower girl was Susan Goodman.

Howard Goodman served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Robert Peller, Harold Bander, and Russell Rasche.

Following a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the couple will live in South Weymouth, Mass.

"The Boy Friend" Musical at Matunuck

"The Boy Friend", a hilarious spoof of the 1920's, will open on July 27 for a two week run (until August 8) at Theatre-by-the-Sea in Matunuck, Rhode Island. This show was recently revived on the Broadway stage to raves by the critics and audiences alike, and will be revived on this historic Matunuck stage after a nine year absence.

This British musical comedy by Sandy Wilson takes place in an exclusive girls' finishing school on the French Riviera about 1926 and delightfully captures the gaiety and abandonment of those flapper years. Among the many show stopping musical numbers are "Won't You Charleston With Me?" and "I Could Be Happy With You".

"The Boy Friend" will have the same asset of creative guidance as did the current long running hit, "Fiddler on the Roof", with Director Charles Kondek, Musical Director Kevin Farrell, and Choreographer Dean Roberts. The sets will again be designed by Jim Stewart. The costumes will be designed by Gloria Gresham, a name remembered from last season.

Curtain times at the Theatre-by-the-Sea are: Tuesday thru Friday evenings at 8:30; two shows Saturday at 6 and 9; Sunday at 7; and Wednesday Matinees at 2. Mail and phone orders are now being accepted for all productions. Write Theatre-by-the-Sea, Matunuck, Rhode Island 02879. Telephone (401) 789-0221. When driving, use the Matunuck Beach Road Exit from Route 1 and follow the theatre signs thereafter.
