Cranston Artist Who 'Paints With Stamps' On Exhibit Now At Old Slater Mill Museum

A collage, according to the dictionary, is "an agglomeration of fragments . . . pasted together and transposed . . . into an artistic composition of incongruous effect."

The postage stamp collages of Joseph Jagolnizer, on exhibit through Sunday at the Old Slater Mill Museum in Pawtucket, cannot be fitted into the definition above. They are paintings done not with oils but with stamps, rather than superimposed fragments of stamps forming an incongruous effect.

The Cranston artist has been working with stamp collages for about 35 years, ever since a neighbor showed him a greeting card from Canada. The scene, a little girl standing in a garden, had been done partly in water color and partly in stamps. The card intrigued Mr. Jagolnizer, a textile designer in New Jersey, who felt it had "tremendous possibilities for development, as each piece of stamp had not only color, but gradation of color, and cancellation marks giving movement and rhythm."

He began developing stamp motifs of all kinds. At first he saw possibilities in greeting cards, but it was such an exciting medium that soon Mr. Jagolnizer was doing things in collage that he would normally have done with paint.

Many artists make collages, said the decorator-designer, but "to me the usual collage doesn't have the virility and perspective you can create out of postage stamps. The entire gamut of colors in stamps is vast, and with new stamps constantly coming out, a new variety is always available. All over the world the finest designing you can find anywhere can be found in stamps."

"American stamps are well-designed, but their colors are crude compared to those of many foreign countries, who dared to go into multi-color." Certain categories of certain colors are generally in short supply, yellows and pastels particularly. Mr. Jagolnizer is also short of golds, browns, lavenders and purples just now, but the Slater Stamp Club of Pawtucket, which is sponsoring the philatelic exhibition, has asked its members to sell the artist stamps of no value to a collector but in the colors he needs.

A stamp collector once told him that it is sacrilegious to cut up stamps. "I don't knowingly cut up stamps of great value. The stamps I use aren't of any good to anyone else in the world, but I'm creating something worthwhile with them. I'm not a stamp collector and don't know their value. I'm only interested in the esthetic beauty of putting a stamp in the perfect position to create an effect."

Every piece is carefully cut and fitted next to another with no overlapping. After much experimentation with glues, Mr. Jagolnizer has found one which is colorless, very adhesive and lusterless. Each stamp fragment must be fitted with tweezers, so most of the collages are made before summer heat makes fans necessary. In the hot weather, he returns to painting landscapes in oils. Interestingly, Mr. Jagolnizer does a great deal of portrait work with stamp collage, but very little in paint, though he has been painting for 50 years.

He has taught the art of painting with stamps to a great many people. His older brother, Harry, "applied himself with such zest" that he has exhibited more often than Joseph Jagolnizer, and has a show now with the Rhode Island Philatelic Society at the Providence Public Library.

During the second World War, Mr. Jagolnizer was a Red Cross worker and taught stamp collage twice a week at the Brooklyn Naval Hospital. "It's a very clean medium for bedside, and wonderful therapy," he remarked. "I taught these boys the simplest form—a greeting card. A boy who had never created anything with his hands could turn out, in an afternoon, a scenic replica of his home town, or a bouquet of flowers."

Mr. Jagolnizer, who was born in Buenos Aires and came to America when he was three years old, became interested in art when he was about 12 or 13. At the age of 17, he started at the Rhode Island School of Design, where on June 5 he and his wife will be guests of the school, to celebrate his 50th year of graduation. He was a textile designer for "25 good years" until the Oriental Silk Printing Company, which designed and printed fabrics, succumbed to the Depression. Soon afterwards he came back to Rhode Island, and has his own business in Cranston. He has been an active member of many civic and cultural groups, and was very active in the Cranston Jewish Center "until the buildings were put up." He is a Past Grand Master of his Masonic Lodge in Brooklyn, N.Y., and an active member of the Rotary Club. For Rotary he designed a special certificate for guest speakers, in which he used stamp collage for a sunburst effect.

It is time-consuming, but challenging, to develop a technique in a new medium. Some of the stamp collages he has on display at the Old Slater Mill Museum took four or five months to complete. One, a horse's head, is in a mosaic design. Another, of a Korean woman with a child, shows a brocade skirt effect. His most recent piece is "Science Trimming the Lamp of Life," done with a single stamp in order to bring out the perspective of sculpture.

Mr. Jagolnizer's collages may have been done with stamps, but they are — for a layman, at any rate—paintings, single works of art, which challenge and interest the viewer instead of merely surprising him.

To Honor Rabbi Braude, Rabbi Bohnen

The Providence Hebrew Day School will present "Amudim" awards to Rabbi William G. Braude of Temple Beth El and Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen of Temple Emanu-El at the school's annual Scholarship Dinner on Sunday evening, April 25, at the school auditorium. Sheldon S. Sollosy, general chairman, announced that the awards, made for the first time by the school, are for "tireless and ardent support through the years."

The dinner will mark the school's 18th anniversary. During those years it has grown into one of the leading Hebrew Day schools in New England. In its modernistic new building, the school combines a program of intensive Jewish education with a progressive curriculum of secular studies. All teachers are approved by the state and city Boards of Education, and by the National Association of Hebrew Day Schools.

Dr. Abraham Cronbach, Reformer, Pacifist, Author, Dies In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI — Dr. Abraham Cronbach, educator, author, religious leader and pacifist, died here Friday at the age of 83.

Dr. Cronbach had served on the faculty of his alma mater, the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, from 1922 until he became professor emeritus of social studies in 1950.

He had served Reform Jewish pulpits in South Bend, Ind., New York City and Akron, Ohio, and had been chaplain to the Chicago Federation of Synagogues. At his death he was rabbi emeritus of the Valley Temple in Cincinnati.

Dr. Cronbach's concern for social issues propelled him to the national spotlight in 1953. He was one of three clergymen who urged President Dwight D. Eisenhower to grant clemency to Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, convicted atom spies.

After the Rosenbergs' execution, Dr. Cronbach officiated at their funeral service. Speaking before a large crowd Dr. Cronbach met angry murmurs of dissent when he pleaded for understanding of those who had carried out the death verdict.

"Our hardest task is to eschew hatred, to forsake rancor, and to keep our hearts clean of vindictiveness and retaliation," he said. "Let us not vituperate those who pronounced the verdict. Let us at least give them credit for this much: that they did what they thought was right."

Dr. Cronbach was a former vice president of the National Council for Prevention of War and was honorary vice president for the American Council for Judaism.

In "Judaism for Today," a book published in 1954 with a forward by John Haynes Hom, Dr. Cronbach proposed a religion similar to applied Quakerism, in which a constructive pacifism, with scrupulous sympathy and respect for others, would be an effective defense against aggression.

His other works were "A Psychoanalytic Study of Judaism," "Religion and its Social Setting," "The Bible and Our Social Outlook," "Autobiography" and "Reform Movements in Judaism."

Dr. Cronbach is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rose Hentel Cronbach; their daughter Marion, who is the wife of Rabbi Maurice Davis of Indianapolis, and two grandsons.

Purim Celebrated By Jews In Cuba

NEW YORK — A Zionist youth group held a Purim celebration in the Jewish Community Center in Havana, according to The New York Times. The report stated the Castro Government permits Cuban Jews to pursue cultural, religious and Zionist activities, and recently allowed three Cuban Zionists to attend a conference in Israel.

Cuba's Jewish population, which numbered about 10,000 in pre-Castro days, has now been reduced to about 2,500. Most of those who left came to the United States, the report said. It added that Jews in Havana still maintain five synagogues, but have no rabbi. They receive kosher meat and poultry from the Government slaughterhouses and matzoh from Canada.

"Judaism and the Hebrew and Yiddish languages are still being taught after regular classes in Havana's Albert Einstein School. This institution has been nationalized, like all other private schools, and only 60 of its 400 pupils are Jewish," the report stated.

Jewish Leader Surveys Attitudes Of Germans

BERLIN — A high-school student raised his voice to find attention. "I don't feel guilty for what happened under Hitler," he said. "I was not even born then, and anyway there is no such thing as collective guilt."

But another youth, also an 18-year-old, interrupted him. "Don't you feel," he asked, "that all of the Germans have to bear the responsibility for what the Nazis did to the Jews?"

The scene was a discussion panel on German-Jewish relations between the graduating class of a West Berlin School and Dr. Joachim Prinz, German-born president of the American Jewish Congress. Dr. Prinz had come to Germany to gather information on the frame of mind of young Germans.

At a news conference at the end of his five-day stay in Berlin, Dr. Prinz said he had been pleased to find young people "frank, critical, eloquent and wide open to world problems." Besides the high-school class, he met with two groups of university students from West Berlin's Free University.

Dr. Prinz said he had held a "useful and successful" political talk with Mayor Willy Brandt, the Socialist candidate for Chancellor in the West German election scheduled for this fall. After leaving Berlin, Dr. Prinz is to visit West Germany before returning home.

A New Kind Of Murder

Persistent official Soviet anti-Semitism continues to be documented by testimony before the United Nations Human Rights Commission, meeting in Geneva. As Justice Haim Cohen of Israel's Supreme Court pointed out, Soviet officials have oppressed the one million Jewish believers in the Soviet Union even more than they have oppressed other religious communities.

The Russian Orthodox Church and the Baptists have been permitted to retain a church, monastery or convent for every 2,000 believers under the restrictive Soviet regulation of all religions. But there are only 90 synagogues left in the entire Soviet Union, Justice Cohen reported—only one for every 15,000 believers. Furthermore, unlike other faiths, the Russian Jews are not allowed to organize on a nationwide basis or remain in contact with synagogues outside the country.

These are charges the USSR can hardly shrug off as the acts of irresponsible people or as mere misunderstandings. They go far beyond the bureaucratic harassment of matzoh bakeries and snafus in the distribution of books in Yiddish. Only an actively pursued anti-Jewish national policy emanating from the Kremlin could be responsible. Nazism popularized the word genocide. Will communism be the cause for creation of a new word to describe the murder of a religion?

More Big Brothers Are Needed

Most charitable, philanthropic or social agencies have one big fund drive a year, and make no other appeal. Big Brothers of Rhode Island, Inc., a United Fund agency, is included in the once-yearly campaign, but unlike other groups makes a continuing year-round request for help, not in money but in time.

Neither the men who become big brothers, nor the members of the organization, nor the general public which contributes to United Fund may ever know how effectively they have helped the little brothers. These results, unlike the figures in a flu epidemic, are not easily tabulated. Only men who were left without fathers in their formative years can perhaps fully appreciate what it means to be a boy to have a "Big Brother."

The success of Big Brothers depends on finding men willing to give time, energy and affection to boys without fathers. Regardless of the funds contributed to the organization, Big Brothers cannot do its job without manpower. Throughout the year, boys who need big brothers are referred to the agency. Right now, despite many new recruits this winter, the organization needs more men who are willing to take on a new and younger relative.

Two Jewish boys need big brothers now — there are 15 Jewish big brothers and 17 little brothers. Since our community has a proud record of meeting all needs, as soon as they are known, we are sure these boys will soon have big brothers.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

What Is An American Jew?

By Beryl Segal

Studies of the Jewish population in various cities are quite common now. Every city with an appreciable Jewish community wants to know how the people feel, what they think, how they react, to what do they aspire as Jews? Cleveland and Rochester, Hartford and Indianapolis, Detroit and Providence, not to mention the cities on the West Coast, all of them have had one kind of study or another on their population.

Now we hear from another city, with a population of over 100 thousand Jews, and of a most interesting survey recently conducted there. Dr. Boris Smolar, who reports on the survey, does not reveal the name of the city. But it may well be Boston or Los Angeles, Chicago or Philadelphia, or Jersey City. The name does not really matter. What matters is the result of the study.

In that community the sponsoring agency wanted to find out once and for all whom the man on the street, so to speak, considers to be a Jew. What is one to do to be considered a Jew in the eyes of the other Jews? And by what means does one exclude himself from the community of Jews? In this study the question was not, To which group do you belong? Are you Orthodox, Conservative or Reform? The question was rather: Do you consider yourself a Jew, and if so what are the earmarks of a Jew in your opinion?

And so the question was asked of people aged 20 to 70: What is in your opinion a Jew? How do you tell whether one is a Jew? How does he act? What does he do, and what does he not do in order that you should call him a Jew?

The answer given by NINETY TWO percent of those questioned was that a "Good Jew must Act Morally and Ethically in all his Dealings with his Fellow-men."

Belief in One God was the prerequisite of a Good Jew according to EIGHTY EIGHT percent of the people.

That a Good Jew must belong to a Synagogue or Temple and must attend services was the opinion of SIXTY percent.

But the Good Jew is not required to attend the Shul too often, in the Opinion of the people surveyed. Only 16 percent indicated that a Jew should come to Shul at least once a week. Fifty eight percent thought that coming to the Synagogue or Temple three times a year is quite sufficient.

One is a Good Jew if he does not publicly deny his Jewishness, was the sweeping statement of EIGHTY FOUR percent. Every born Jew remains a Jew unless he refuses to be counted among the Jews.

Over SIXTY percent put certain requirements of an intellectual nature on the essence of a Jew. A Jew, in their opinion, must understand the fundamental principles of Judaism. The same number of people also thought that a Jew must elicit the respect of his neighbors. Obviously, if one does not know the meaning of his faith he cannot command the respect of his fellow men.

So far the American Jew has very few requirements of his fellow Jew. He would admit him in the Congregation of Israel on his say-so. But what about specific things? What about his obligations to Israel? His contributions to Jewish Charities? His involvement in Jewish affairs? His concern for everything Jewish?

Only a third of the people questioned demand of a Good Jew that he help rebuild Israel.

As to interest in and contributions to specific Jewish Charities, the percentage was even smaller. They thought that Jews must participate in general humanitarian causes and contribute to them their time and their money. Jews, in the opinion of this poll, ought to involve themselves in civil rights, work for the equality of all minorities, help to abolish poverty in the entire population. Only FORTY SEVEN percent said that it is "desirable" to assist Israel, but that it is not essential to being a Jew.

In order to get the full significance of this survey we must know that it embraced all Jews, of all shades of opinion, of all occupations. Business people and working men, professionals and executives, salesmen and small shop owners, all expressed their opinions. More than three quarters of the population in that city were born in this country, and more than half have lived in that city all their lives. That is approximately the population pattern of every city in America. Nothing is striking about that city, and the results of the study might well be taken as representing the general tendency among American Jews today.

If that survey is representative, then the various Jewish communities have a job before them. The Rabbis and the teachers, the agency leaders and all who are interested in a healthy Jewish community will have to teach and preach and educate. No one denies the duties of Jews to participate in general humanitarian efforts. But that does not exclude the duties that are ours as Jews. In general it must be made clear to the second and the third generation of Jews, and these now in the majority and they are the ones who gave their opinion in the study, that no conflict exists between a "Good Jew" and a "Good American." One does not exclude the other nor do they contradict each other.

And one more thing. Notice that nothing is said in the survey about study. That study is an obligation of a Jew does not occur to anybody. Study day and night, study when you are young and study when you get older. That is as much a sign of a Jew as is anything else that was said about him. Not study for the sake of "improving" yourself, to get a better job, to advance in the world. These are very important, but study for the sake of study, study when you get up and you lie down, study and meditate on what you were studying, that is very important to being a "Good Jew".

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

People You Should Meet . . .

Ruth Levy

'No Man Ever Stands So Straight As When He Stoops To Help A Boy'

The only woman on the Big Brothers' board of directors is Miss Ruth Levy of Rumford, whose special contribution is her professional knowledge of social work. She is director of Psychiatric Social Service at Chapin Hospital, where she has been employed since her graduation from Pembroke in 1936. Her graduate work was done at Simmons, Boston College and the Psychoanalytic Institute.

She thought it would be interesting to join the board, when she was asked in 1955 to become a member, and it has been. Being in on the beginning was fascinating. Although Big Brothers was established in Rhode Island in 1952, it took some years to "sell" the fact that there is an organization set up to provide a substitute big brother for boys without fathers in their homes. George Katz, first executive director of the United Fund agency, did a superb publicity job of establishing Big Brothers as a case-working agency known throughout the community, said Miss Levy. The intensive recruiting campaign conducted this year, and the tremendous response of prospective big brothers, are a measure of the agency's success in having sold itself thoroughly to Rhode Island.

Getting enough qualified, capable men to be big brothers is the basic problem of the group, not only in this state but throughout the country. The professional staff—an executive director, Benjamin J. Farrell, a case work supervisor and two case workers—selects the big brothers. A staff member interviews prospects and checks references (four are required). The executive director and the staff decide on applications. Big Brothers began with "very good screening practices, which have continued to be in effect," said the Board member.

As the only social worker on the board, she assisted in the preparation of the manual of job and personality qualifications needed for paid staff members. She has been chairman of the Personnel Committee for some time, and "uses her background in terms of professional standards." No other board member is associated professionally with social work; other members are mostly businessmen and clergymen.

The Personnel Committee acts to some extent as an advisory council for the professional staff. If there are staff changes, the committee must read applications, pass on qualifications and concur with the executive secretary and board before an applicant can be approved. If a paid staff member were dissatisfied, he could come to the five-member committee, which meets at least twice a year with the staff.

Each member of the policy-making board is active in the organization and has particular responsibilities. The men who act as big brothers have formed their own association, and the president is a board member; this group plans the annual fishing derby, and holds parties for the boys.

Jack M. Queler is president of the Big Brothers' board, which has established—among other programs—a camping set-up for the little brothers, who need the experience of living with other boys. The agency finds mothers tend to be over-protective. They may want their sons to grow into strong men, but find it hard to allow them to grow up. Boys also use a lodge established near Nickerson House for getting away from women and into the outdoors with men.

Most little brothers are referred to Big Brothers by mothers, Family Court, schools or other agencies. Despite the unusual number of applicants for big brotherhood this winter, there will always be a need for more.

"We hope never to have an unassigned load of little brothers," said Ruth Levy. "If there should be no big brothers when we need them, we hope to see other social agencies take up the gap and not leave the boys neglected. This is a different relationship from most: it's a one-to-one relationship.

3RD SEDER SPEAKER -- Yosef Yaakov, Israeli consul in New York, will be guest speaker at the 39th Annual Third Seder Celebration on Sunday, April 18, at 8 P.M. at Temple Emanu-El, and Malka Silberberg Ofrat, Israeli contralto, will sing.

Mr. Yaakov was born in Shanghai, China, and served as a United Press correspondent in Nanking and Manchuria during the Chinese Civil War. He went to Israel during the War of Independence, and served two years with the Israel Defense Forces. He has served in the Prime Minister's Office and the Foreign Ministry of Israel ever since; this included a tour of duty as Deputy Director of News for the Israeli National Radio Network.

Consul Yaakov, a UNESCO Fellowship recipient in 1958, has been with the Consulate General of Israel in New York since 1962. He is Director of the Film, Television and Radio Division of the Israel Information Services in the United States.

GEFILTE FISH

NEW YORK — Mother's Gefilte Fish, certified Kosher for Passover by the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, is prepared in the traditional way, bathed in jelled or liquid broth. A large share of Passover ritual is symbolically associated with food. "The Haggada," prayer book for the festival, opens with the passage: "Let all who are hungry come and eat. Let all who are in want come and celebrate the Passover with us."

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Good bridge is played in many parts of Rhode Island with some of the finest in the northern part of the state. A typical example is today's hand with Mrs. William McInnes of Smithfield, North, and Mrs. Philip Finkle of Woonsocket, South.

North
 ♠ A, K, 7, 3
 ♥ A, K
 ♦ A, 10
 ♣ A, K, J, 6, 4

West
 ♠ J, 10, 9, 2
 ♦ J, 8, 6, 3
 ♣ 10, 8, 5, 2

East
 ♠ Q, 5
 ♥ Q, 10, 8, 6, 3
 ♦ K, Q, 9
 ♣ Q, 9, 3

South
 ♠ 8, 6, 4
 ♥ J, 9, 7, 5, 2
 ♦ 7, 5, 4, 2

The bidding:

N	E	S	W
P

North's opening bid showed a relatively balanced hand with 25 to 27 points. Mrs. Finkle felt that at No Trump her hand would be practically useless but at Hearts she might take a few tricks. She then proceeded to play the hand for all that it was worth. West led the Spade Jack won by Dummy's King.

Dr. Salten Appointed Federation Director

NEW YORK — The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York has announced the appointment of Dr. David G. Salten, a leading educational administrator, to a newly-created post as executive director. The Federation is the world's largest philanthropically supported health and welfare organization serving a metropolitan area.

Dr. Salten is currently School Superintendent of New Rochelle. A former School superintendent in Long Beach, N.Y., he was associated for 10 years with New York City public schools. Dr. Salten will assume his new post Oct. 1 and will hold it until December 31, 1966, when he will be elected sole executive vice president.

Two rounds of trumps were led, revealing the bad split, and now Mrs. Finkle saw that to make her contract she would have to make the trumps in her hand all good by ruffing. She played the Ace and King of Clubs and trumped a Club, went back to the Spade Ace and ruffed another Club with the Heart 9 with East discarding a Diamond. Now a Diamond to the Ace and another Club made her Jack of Hearts a certain trick.

East was unable to do anything about it as, if she trumped with the Queen, the Jack would still be the tenth trick. The timing on this hand had to be perfect and one slip would mean disaster but both the bidding and play were handled perfectly. 3 No Trump would not have been made on this hand.

Today's moral: Often, the weaker the hand, the more imperative it become the declarer. Aces and Kings will win tricks in any contract but little cards only if they are trumps.

You Know How To Make Gefilte Fish? . . . Then Try These Exotic Versions

NEW YORK — General Passover food restrictions govern all the days of Passover except for the ritual and special foods of the Seder on April 16 and 17. Fish plays an important role in Passover menus, and gefilte fish is a traditional holiday dish.

The makers of Mother's gefilte fish believe that there is no reason to limit serving the dish to plain hot or cold, with or without horse-radish. They have accordingly asked the chefs of three New York restaurants to develop for them recipes with an international flavor.

Three of these recipes are printed here. The Chinese one was worked out by the chef of Tom's Shangri-La; the Indian by the chef of the Ceylon India Inn, and the French by the chef of La Place.

GEFILTE FISH FOO YONG
 (Gefilte fish with egg sauce)
 1 cup peanut oil
 1 cup finely diced carrots
 1 scallion, finely chopped
 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
 1/2 cup water

1/2 teaspoon sugar
 1/8 teaspoon pepper
 1 can or jar (about 27 ounces) kosher for Passover gefilte fish, diced
 2 eggs, lightly beaten
 2 teaspoons potato starch
 Lettuce leaves.

1. Heat one-half cup of the oil in a skillet. Add the carrots, scallion and garlic and saute two or three minutes. Add one tablespoon of the water and simmer one minute longer. Stir in the sugar and the pepper.

2. Heat remaining oil in another skillet and add the fish; heat two minutes. Add the eggs and sauteed vegetables. Add the potato starch mixed with the remaining water. Heat, while stirring, until thickened. Serve in a deep dish garnished with points of lettuce.

Yield: Five servings.
AZUR GEFILTE FISH
 (Gefilte fish with cream sauce)
 3 egg yolks
 1 cup heavy cream
 1 cup sour cream
 2 tablespoons sherry
 3 tablespoons orange juice
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 Salt and pepper to taste
 12 stalks cooked asparagus
 5 matzoh squares

1 can or jar (about 27 ounces) kosher for Passover gefilte fish
 6 thin slices orange with rind, cut in half
 3 black olives, halved.

1. Beat the egg yolks with the heavy cream until thick. Fold in the sour cream, sherry, orange juice, lemon juice, salt and pepper.

2. Arrange the asparagus spears radiating out from the center of a round platter, with tips around rim. Place a ring of small matzoh squares over the ends of the stalks. Place a gefilte fish on each matzoh.

3. Pour the sauce over the fish and asparagus, leaving the tips of the asparagus protruding. Place under a broiler preheated to 450 degrees until hot, bubbly and lightly browned. Garnish with orange slices and black olives.

Yield: Five servings.
SPICED GEFILTE FISH
KACHORI
 (Curried gefilte fish cutlets)

1 onion, finely chopped
 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
 1 teaspoon butter
 1 can or jar (about 27 ounces) kosher for Passover gefilte fish

2 teaspoons curry powder
 2 eggs
 1 cup matzoh meal
 1/2 cup peanut oil
 1 tomato, skinned and sliced
 1 small stalk celery, cut into a fan shape
 Parsley sprigs.

1. Saute the onion and the garlic in the butter until lightly browned. Mash the gefilte fish with a fork and mix into the cooked onion.

2. Add the curry powder, eggs and matzoh meal. Mold into six oval cutlets about half an inch thick.

3. Heat the oil in a heavy skillet and fry the cutlets in it until golden brown on all sides. Serve on a warm platter garnished with the tomato, celery and parsley.

Yield: Six servings.

CHICKEN FARFEL CASSEROLE

 1 cup liquid from cooked carrots and celery
 1/2 tsp. salt
 Dash white pepper
 2/3 cup diced, cooked chicken or turkey
 2 cups cooked, sliced carrots

1 cup cooked, diced celery
 1 1/4 cups matzoh farfel
 Saute onion in fat until tender. Add soup, vegetable liquid and seasonings. Arrange chicken, vegetables, matzoh farfel and sauce in alternate layers in a 2-qt. casserole. Cover and bake in a hot oven, 425, for 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8. (Mrs. Manuel Bromberg)

Boil for 15 to 20 minutes, or until carrot is tender. Strain. Place ground fish and onion in a chopping bowl and chop until smooth. Add eggs, one at a time. Add salt and pepper, matzoh meal and enough water to blend. Line a loaf pan or other deep baking dish with aluminum foil. Spoon in the chopped fish mixture, leaving space at each end. Pour the strained broth around the fish and over it. Cover with foil if no lid is available. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 2 hours. Cool in pan. Chill. ### Evangelical Overtones Of Catholic Prayer Disturbing To Jews

NEW YORK — The Vatican's announcement of changes in Holy Week prayers that referred to the conversion of Jews met with little public response from Jewish leaders here last week.

Leaders of such organizations as the New York Board of Rabbis, comprising leaders of Orthodox, Conservative and Reform Judaism, and the American Jewish Committee and the American Jewish Congress, declined to comment on the changes, which were ordered by Pope Paul VI.

A spokesman for the American Jewish Congress briefly remarked that it would be inappropriate for a Jewish body to express any opinion or comment on "the content of prayer of another faith."

Among other Jewish leaders, mixed feeling was evident. The reaction centered on the change of one Good Friday prayer from "Prayer for the Conversion of the Jews" to "Prayer for the Jews."

On one hand, these leaders welcomed the elimination of such negative references as a plea that the Jews may be delivered from "blindness" or "darkness."

On the other hand, most Jewish leaders indicated a strong resentment to what they considered an emphasis on conversion in the new version of the prayer. They pointed out that Jews "could not be expected to rejoice" over a prayer that declared that Jews "may recognize the Redeemer of all, Our Lord Jesus Christ."

These leaders also objected to a reference to Jews as "once the chosen people."

This reaction recalled aspects of the controversy that developed last June when the text of the Vatican Council declaration on Catholic-Jewish relations was made public.

At the time, a number of American Jewish leaders and elsewhere objected that the text had strong evangelical overtones. The Jewish leaders insisted that Jews were not candidates for conversion.

Mrs. Joel Michael Medwin

Miss Sondra Gall Alberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alberts of 317 Bedford Street, New Bedford, Mass., became the bride of Joel Michael Medwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Medwin of 79 Eleventh Street, on April 4 at Temple Emanu-El. Rabbi Joel Zaiman and Rabbi Bernard H. Ziskind of Tifereth Israel Synagogue, New Bedford, officiated at the 6 P.M. ceremony. A reception was held at the temple.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white peau de sole gown with off-the-shoulder neckline, fitted bodice trimmed with seed pearl-studded re-embroidered lace, long pointed sleeves and full lace-bordered skirt with embroidered lace medallions and chapel train. Her bouffant, full-length veil of French illusion was fastened to a crown of seed pearls and crystals. On her Bible she carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

Matrons of honor were Mrs. David M. Korn, sister of the bride, and Mrs. James Stewart, sister of the bridegroom. They wore beaded blue silk peau de sole gowns and carried orchid bouquets.

James Stewart, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, was best man. Ushers were Norman Alberts, the bride's brother, Ronald Glantz, Marvin Jacobson, Stephen Jeffries, David M. Korn and Michael Marcus.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom wore beaded blue silk peau de sole gowns with orchid corsages.

After a wedding trip by car to Florida, the couple will live at 116 Dellwood Road, Cranston.

Produced Under Strict Rabbinical Supervision

You wouldn't think it happens among the kind of people you know. But it does. All the time. And because of it, retired people and others are losing millions of dollars a year.

Here's what happens:
 "I am a 64-year-old wife, with a 68-year-old husband who retired three years ago. My husband apparently has some secret savings which he has built up over the years. But he won't discuss the matter with me. He will give me no indication at all as to where the savings are held.

"I first learned of the savings when he made out our joint income tax return the year after he retired. He reported the interest he had received on the savings, but didn't report from whom. In the two tax returns he has filed since, the interest has grown. Apparently he has close to $20,000 hidden somewhere.

"Now, if he should be killed by a car, or should die suddenly from a heart attack or a stroke, how would I track down this money?..."

This wife's dilemma is not an odd one. It's quite common. The only unusual thing about it is that she knows some money is hidden. Most wives never even suspect it.

And so the husband dies, suddenly when he hasn't a chance to disclose his secret, or after a long illness when in firm belief that he will never die he stubbornly takes his secret to the cemetery.

The wife, if she suspects there was hidden money, can start a long, tedious search of banks, savings institutions, and safety deposit boxes looking for it. But the husband who would have hidden money in the first place would be just the one to hide it in an account under a false name, or a mix-up of his initials, or under false address.

The institution holding the money would willingly pay it over to the man's widow. But it might never know the man had died. If not, the account would have to lie dormant for a long period of time before it was investigated. Then, if the man's name or address were false it might be helpless in finding the rightful owner. Especially if the wife had never suspected there was hidden money, and hadn't spread the word she was hunting it.

So, in most states, the account in due time would be declared abandoned. And the money would be turned over to the county, the state, or some public body. One state last year got over $2,500,000 this way.

Men, who apparently have been hiding money since they invented it, once put it in the ground. A couple of generations ago they were hiding it between the studs in the parlor or in the sub-flooring of the barn. Now they've discovered savings institutions where it's even easier to die and lose it.

How can the wife whose dilemma is cited above track down her money? Her best bet is to talk to a good attorney and to an officer in her bank, and follow their cues.

Better Golf The E. Z. Way

By Eddie Zaretsky

Each week thousands of viewers watch a televised golf match called "The Wonderful World Of Golf." What a perfect title for a golf show. Golf can be everyone's game and that truly is what makes it so wonderful. Anyone, regardless of his age or size, can learn to play golf and play it well. The only thing that is required is some simple logic, an understanding of the difference between cause and effect, and intelligent practice. Ernest Jones, one of the masters in the art of teaching the golf swing, once said "Nothing is sufficiently learned unless it is sufficiently repeated." I agree with him. However, be sure you are repeating what is right!

Let us start off by understanding a few simple facts. You cannot expect to perform the act of striking a ball, (which incidentally requires about one second) if your mind is cluttered with three hundred pages of information from some golf book. You might be afflicted with the golfer's disease known as "paralysis through analysis." Nor can anyone learn to swing a golf club properly when he insists on knowing what he did wrong. You must learn and practice what is right. When you finally achieve what is right you will find nothing is wrong for there is nothing wrong with something right — double talk? Not at all, just a positive attitude with which to start off on the correct path to better golf.

One of the most common questions that pupils ask me after they hit a few golf balls is "what is wrong with my swing?" I sometimes answer them by saying "nothing is wrong with your swing - you don't have one." You cannot push and pull a golf club around and call that motion a swing. It is similar to someone drawing a diagram of a square and asking what is wrong with that circle?

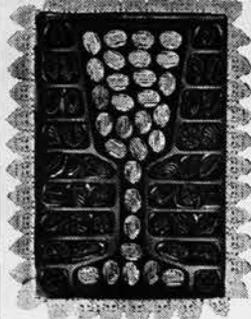

How do you go about learning how to swing? You must practice to acquire the "feel". The feel of what, you might ask? The feel of the most important thing in golf — the clubhead; for it is the only thing with which we are permitted to strike the ball. How will you know when the clubhead is swinging? Your hands will tell you. The only contact you have with a golf club is your hands. Therefore it is through this medium that you acquire the sensation of swinging the clubhead.

Try this simple experiment. Suspend a golf club in the air holding it lightly at the end of the shaft with your thumb and forefinger. Now close your eyes and gently move the suspended club back and forth. Feel the weight of the clubhead swinging? Although your eyes are closed you can sense where the club is at all times. You are now awakening to good timing and a sense of rhythm. That is a good beginning.

A subscription to the Herald is a good gift for the person who "has everything" else.

Jews Urged To Keep Institutions Sectarian

CINCINNATI — An authority on the American Jewish Community said that American Jews should join other forces in behalf of equality for all Americans but should not permit Jewish institutions to become nonsectarian.

Dr. Oscar Janowsky, professor of history at City College in New York and former adviser to the League of Nations High Commission for Refugees, spoke on "A New Look at American Jewry" at the American Jewish Historical Society's 63rd annual dinner meeting held at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion.

"The issue must be faced squarely, and the issue in Jewish communal institutions is non-discrimination, not nonsectarianism," he said.

"All Americans should be welcome in Jewish institutions but the character and justification for Jewish agencies must be their Jewish programming and orientation.

"I believe that Jews, like other liberal Americans, have the responsibility of cooperating in the effort to combat poverty and discrimination. As individuals, they should and do join with non-Jewish Americans in promoting the cause of freedom and equality for all, regardless of race, color, or creed."

Dr. Leon J. Obermayer of Philadelphia was re-elected president of the historical society.

When Parents Object To Boyfriend

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have a problem with my parents. My boyfriend has never done anything bad when he was with me, but my parents have heard things about him and will not let me date him. Every time he asks me, I have to refuse because they think he is bad. What should I do?"

OUR REPLY: You are bound to obey the wishes of your parents. The first time this boy did something "bad" in your presence might be enough to involve you in something you would regret for the rest of your life.

If the things your parents have heard about the boy are true, it is their responsibility as parents to refuse to allow you to date him. Sometimes, parents are misinformed, or they hear things about a boy that are not exactly true. You should know the boy well enough to determine how much truth is to be found in the things your parents have been told about him. If your parents are wrong about the boy, try to convince them of this fact. But, don't decide you're right and they are wrong and use this as an excuse for not obeying their wishes. You have as much of an obligation to obey your parents as they are obliged to provide you with proper guidance and counseling.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

Although Dr. Oppenheimer insists the production would be an invasion of his privacy, the David Merrick Foundation will produce the play based on the hearings-transcripts, "The Case of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer" . . . Astronaut Scott Carpenter, who orbited in space, is about to make some historic deep sea dives off San Diego . . . Although Maria Callas' return caused the heaviest demand for tickets in Met Opera history, Rudolf Bling will bet she'll never be back.

Eddie Rickenbacker is checking his diaries and other papers before beginning his autobiography . . . ABC signed another five-year contract to televise the Academy Awards. It starts at $811,000, with 25 per cent increases . . . Century City, in Beverly Hills, has offered to build a new theater there for the Academy . . . The N. Y. state budget is being delayed by one committee chairman who wants it to include a '65 limousine for him.

Audrey Meadows has accompanied her husband, Robert Six, on several trips from their home in Denver to his house in Saigon. Six is head of Continental Airlines which operates some of the MATS flights to Viet Nam and Thailand . . . When Miss Meadows goes along on the flight to Saigon, she's listed on the plane's manifest as "Additional Company Material."

Shelley Winters' six projects include TV, movies, road tours and return to Broadway in Michael Gazzo's play, "What Do You Really Know About Your Husband?" . . . Leonard Spigelgass, who wrote "Majority of One" and "Dear Me . . ." for Gertrude Berg, is completing another play for her, to be produced here next season . . . Marcel Pagnol, the playwright-member of the French Academie, says: "Have you noticed that it's always the other fellow who is a snob?"

Richard Tucker, whose son, Barry, became engaged to Joan Kramer at a reception here Saturday night, flew to N. Y. to sing at Beth Israel Hospital's 75th anniversary. The Met star spoke of his sentimental link to Beth Israel, because his sons were born there . . . Then Cardinal Spellman spoke, and said he too had a sentimental link to Beth Israel — but for a different reason than Tucker's, of course: The hospital and His Eminence were born the same day.

Robert Evans, who retired from movie acting, will become a film producer, joining Mark Lawrence and Walter Wanger in presenting "Instant Gold" . . . Charlton Heston still considers himself primarily a N. Y. actor, despite his million-dollar fees in films. That's why the Hestons still maintain their apartment in Manhattan. They've had it 14 years . . . Ex-Mayor Impellerri's pension, highest in N. Y. history, is ten times higher than the Krushchev pension.

The N. Y. courts have been swamped with coram nobis writs — applications by convicts trying to get out on technicalities. There are thousands of such cases now pending. One criminal is making his 13th such application . . . Legislation will be requested limiting a defendant to only one such application, setting forth all his grounds and deemed to be waiving all others.

Producers from three continents rushed to the Riviera as soon as word spread that Picasso is writing a comedy, titled "Four Girls." They bid for it sight unseen . . . Zero Mostel, star of "Fiddler on the Roof," was able to obtain two seats for Justice and Mrs. Goldberg. The seats were not together . . . Omar Sharif, raised in the Sahara, sent a postcard last week from Lapland: "Greeting from 50 miles from the Russian border, where we're filming "Dr. Zhivago."

During the Selma march from St. Jude to Montgomery, there was a rumor about possible sniping in a 10-block area populated by the White Citizens Council. The target would be Martin Luther King. For these ten blocks, therefore, the marchers collapsed into a circle around King, with Ralph Bunche in the protective flank on the right.

Some Republican leaders now are urging ex-Sen. Keating as a possible candidate for mayor. He knows New York and would not be deemed a carpetbagger . . . Because the stagehands waived their overtime pay — due whenever the curtain comes down later than 11:29 — Buddy Hackett performed last night at "I Had a Ball" until 12:08 . . . LBJ is naming the dedicated and able Morris Novik of N.Y. to another three-year term with the U.S. Advisory Commission on Information.

Maurice Chevalier's Pipe Night at the Players Club was canceled when JFK died. The French star promised to return to another Pipe Night, on his first Sunday back in New York. This past Sunday night, 16 months later, Chevalier had a Pipe Night at the Players. Robert Preston described it: "Another distinction — the week's only event of consequence not attended by Sammy Davis Jr."

Larry Wien, the lawyer-philanthropist, set up a Jacob Potofsky Scholarship — celebrating the 70th birthday of the head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union — at the Fashion Institute of Technology here. He promised additional five-year scholarships for Potofsky's 75th, 80th, etc., birthdays . . . Sen. Dirksen is wearing a button, "BAIK." He says it stands for: "Boy, Am I Confused." When he's reminded of the "K" in "BAIK," he shrugs:

"See? Now, you know how confused I am."

12 Ben-Gurion Says Nasser Could Negotiate, But Won't

MUNICH, Germany - Former Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel has said President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic once told him that they could reach agreement in two hours in Jerusalem, but that then he could never return to Cairo.

Asked last week about Israeli efforts for settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, Mr. Ben-Gurion told the independent Munich newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung:

"Nasser is the only politician in the Arab world who has the capacity and authority to negotiate with us. But he does not want to. "I earlier sounded him out twice through the Americans. Once I got a clear rejection. The second time I let Nasser know I was prepared to meet him in Cairo but feared my safety was not to be guaranteed there.

"I offered that he should come to Jerusalem, where he would certainly be safe. My mediator later told me Nasser had said to him he knew his safety was not endangered in Jerusalem.

"He also knew that he could reach agreement with Ben-Gurion in two hours. But he also knew that he could then never go back. Well, I do not know myself how serious this is."

American Jewish Conference Leader Says USSR Newspaper Reviles Judaism

NEW YORK -- A long article in a prominent Soviet newspaper reviles Judaism as an enemy of the Soviet people, according to a coordinating body of 24 national Jewish groups. Label A. Katz, chairman of the steering committee of the American Jewish Conference on Soviet Jewry, said the article appeared in the Feb. 2 issue of Zviava, a newspaper published in the capital of the Byelorussian Republic.

The article, as translated by the Committee, charges Judaism with being "the enemy of human culture. . . the hotbed of a code of morality hostile to the Soviet Union." The author is listed as Ju Muraviev, a senior lecturer at the V. I. Lenin Byelorussian Titled the "Shadow of the Synagogue. . ." for the Verdict of Reason," the article says in part: "The shadow of the synagogue: It has shrunk and moved back but it still crosses our path. It is a reminder of the evil, heavy darkness that blinded thousands and thousands of people, poisoned their bright souls and stunted their bright aspirations. In our day, the servants of the synagogue strive to prove that Judaism is not an accumulation of harmful prejudices, but a 'form of culture,' not dead superstition, but 'living words.'"

State University.

The article declares that "efforts to disguise the true face of Judaism are doomed to failure." "Like all other religions, Judaism is the enemy of human culture, is in contradiction to science and is the hotbed of a code of morality hostile to us."

Mr. Katz described the article as "hysterical anti-Semitism" and said "its abusive character is obviously intended to promote a policy of suppression of Soviet Jewish life by intimidating the Jews of Minsk."

Minsk's population of 500,000 includes 30,000 to 40,000 Jews. There are about three million Jews in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Katz said the tone of the article was similar to that of other anti-Jewish material published in the Soviet Union "and bearing the Soviet imprimatur."

The article, Mr. Katz said, "conjures up crude and medieval distortions of Jewish ritual and practices and condemns Judaism as not only an out-moded religion but one that defends what is dead and rotten."

The article also scores the United States as the "center of contemporary Judaism" and adds that American Jewish groups are headed by "such leaders of big business as Guggenheim and Morgenthau, Harriman and Rockefeller."

The 24 Jewish organizations that assailed the article include the American Jewish Congress, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the Jewish Labor Committee and the National Council of Jewish Women.

$18 Million Invested In Israel By AMPAL

NEW YORK — AMPAL—American Israel Corporation reported last week that the company and its affiliate, Israel Development Corp., made investments and loans in Israel totaling $18,944,970 during the fiscal year which ended January 31.

Gross income of AMPAL and IDC rose from $3,121,475 in fiscal 1963 to $3,160,300, of which the former company's share was $2,088,428. AMPAL, which has paid a dividend on its preferred shares annually since its formation 23 years ago, has in recent years been paying 30 cents a share, or 6 per cent on its 4 per cent preferred. IDC shareholders received their tenth consecutive annual dividend, $1.25 in cash plus a tax credit of 33 cents a share.

During the year, the corporations also paid out $1.4 million in interest to their debenture holders and to banks. Net income, after all expenses and U.S. and Israel taxes, was $862,000, compared with $822,882 a year earlier. Combined assets of the two corporations at fiscal year-end stood at close to $45 million, compared to $43 million a year earlier.

The two companies are part of the AMPAL Group of corporations, whose other members are Israel Securities Corporation, underwriter for the securities of the AMPAL Group; Israel American Industrial Development Bank Ltd.; CANPAL—Canadian Israel Trading Co. Ltd., which finances and conducts export and import activities between Israel and the Dominion of Canada, and Israel Purchasing Service, Inc., which purchases and ships U.S. machinery and other capital goods needed by Israel, as well as selling Israel products in this country.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

Hollywood, Calif. - Until a few years ago, reports persisted that Tony Martin would rather walk a mile than admit his Jewish faith. My repeated attempts to reach Martin by mail failed. Finally, I made contact at the Riviera Hotel, Las Vegas, where the vocalist drolled in his nose within two inches of mine and he proceeded to read me the riot act, beginning with, "Yes, I am Jewish and I have never denied it to anyone."

He said, "My name is Alvin Norris" and he stated his and his father's Jewish names and their synagogue affiliations. He made it clear that he had been Bar Mitzvah.

The air cleared and I became convinced.

In Martin's current act with his wife Cyd Charisse at the Riviera Hotel, he employed considerable Yiddishkeit and convinced me further.

When Cyd danced a Chinese number he referred to her as Madame Nu, commenting, "Nu, nu, vos hertzech?" He described a man who goes home and relaxes in front of his television set as "ausfarshprait."

When one of his femme singers soloed, he commented the proposition, "You may not get a husband but you can dahven in my schul anytime. And when Cyd whispered in his ear, "Tonila," he countered, "That was for Florida. It doesn't go here. Anyway my name isn't Tonila. It's Alvin."

He spoke of a girl's father having "nachas galore," toasted the audience with, "L'chaim," and when a male dancer made love to Cyd, he asked, "Say, how would you like a cup of poisoned borsht?"

Highlight of Tony's portion of the act was his version of the "Matchmaker," hit tune from Broadway's "Fiddler on the Roof" which found the popular entertainer singing, "Matchmaker, matchmaker, make me a match, find me a find, catch me a catch. Matchmaker, matchmaker, look through your books and make me a perfect match."

The veteran vocalist related how women used to block his way on public thoroughfares to ask for an autograph, moaning, "Now that I'm singing 'Matchmaker,' they say, 'Mr. Martin, you've been around and know a lot of people. I have a daughter who goes to Stanford so can't you find her a nice boy? I don't expect much - maybe a doctor or a lawyer?'"

DANNY KAYE introduced Diahann Carroll at her Coconut Grove opening with, "I love the way she tells a song." Personally, I love the way Danny sings a story.

EVERYONE loved when Eddie Fisher falls to record what he sings so naturally - beautiful Jewish melodies. Eddie speaks Yiddish with a ta'am and of course you know how well he sings. But he never sings Jewish melodies in public nor has he ever recorded them.

Whenever we cross paths, I love to hear Eddie singing low, as if to himself, snatches of Jewish songs. I wish some recording company would capture them in album form instead of letting Fisher sing them to the four winds.

PETER FALK, a nice Jewish boy who plays the title role in the pilot of the proposed television series, "O'Brien," wants to drop the name. Falk doesn't

THE 'SELECT SEVEN' STOCKS

Of the 1,300 stock issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange today there are only seven which rank among the favorite 50 in these four major categories: professionals managing institutional investment portfolios; little fellows buying stocks regularly under the Big Board's Monthly Investment Plan; stocks most actively traded in round lots in 1964; stocks most actively traded in odd lots in 1964.

Only a select seven made it in all four revealing categories. I'll not keep you in suspense. Here they are:

American Telephone and Telegraph; General Motors; General Electric; Standard Oil (N.J.); Gulf Oil; Xerox; Westinghouse Electric.

Of these select seven, only three made the favorite 25 in each of the four groups.

Again, not to keep you in suspense, the towering three are: General Motors, Xerox, Standard Oil (N.J.).

Another stock almost made the favorite 25; American Telephone. It ranked first in popularity among M.I.P. investors, first in trading in odd lots, fourth in trading in round lots—but it was in 29th place on the list of the investment company favorites.

Recently I asked William D. Horgan, editor of the NYSE's magazine, "The Exchange," to check what stocks were favorites across-the-board—popular with pros, amateurs and active traders. I was sure we'd come up with a fairly long as well as obviously fascinating list (a sort of Wall Street equivalent of the sports-writers' All American team), and Horgan was too.

So Horgan put together compilations of the 50 top stocks, ranked by value, in the portfolios of closed end investment companies on the NYSE; the 50 issues most popular with M.I.P. investors as of February 1965; the 50 most actively traded stocks in 1964 in round lots (blocks of 100 shares each); the 50 most actively traded stocks in odd lots (blocks of less than 100 shares each).

This past weekend Horgan and I placed the four lists next to each other—and to quote Horgan:

"It's just the opposite of what we thought we'd find! If you ask me, the story is that investor preferences are as richly varied and confusing as the tastes of individuals in cars, clothing or whatever product or service you mention. Through their choices of stocks, individuals express themselves and their personalities as much as they express their wants and objectives."

As a dramatic illustration, consider Chrysler. It's 49th on the list of M.I.P. favorites, in 2nd place in round lot trading volume, in 5th place in odd lot trading volume. But it didn't even make the favorite 50 list of the pros managing closed end investment company portfolios.

Or consider these contrasts. Each of the following stocks placed on three lists: M.I.P. favorites, round lot trading volume, odd lot trading volume. Sperry Rand; Ford; U.S. Steel; El Paso Natural Gas; Control Data; American Machine & Foundry; General Telephone & Electric; RCA. Not one, though, made the favorite 50 list of the pros investing the funds of closed end investment companies. (Another which made the three lists, but not the list of the pros; was that way-out stock of 1964—Communications Satellite Corp., or "Comsat.")

Still, Horgan and I have our Select Seven to submit to you. Here's their rank in the four categories:

Stock	Inv. Co.	MIP Inv.	Rd. Lot Vol.	Odd Lot Vol.
A.T. & T.	29th	1st	4th	1st
Gen. Mot.	12th	2nd	7th	2nd
Gen. Elec.	40th	8th	34th	22nd
Std. Oil (NJ)	4th	10th	25th	14th
Gulf Oil	20th	18th	48th	46th
Xerox	14th	22nd	6th	4th

P. I. Yudalevich Reports On Dying Chinese Community

NEW YORK — A brief report from Shanghai not long ago carried the information that not more than 26 Jews are left in China today, from a community that numbered 25,000 twenty years ago. The World Jewish Congress wrote P. I. Yudalevich, chairman of the Jewish Community Council in Shanghai, for additional information.

Mr. Yudalevich answered that there are now only 24 Jews in China, as two left last December. Of these 24, two are under 20 and the average age of the others is over 65. About 10 persons constantly need cash relief or special grants. Private tutors were engaged for the two youths; there are no other facilities for Jewish education.

The Shelter House formerly run by the community had to be closed down after the departure of two of its four remaining inmates. Rooms for the last two were found, and the council manages to cover their living expenses. The Shelter House, with 18 rooms, could accommodate 30 to 40 persons but had sheltered as many as 55 at a time. However, a minimum staff of four was needed to maintain the House and its kosher kitchen, so the Shelter House had to be closed for economic reasons.

Three synagogues, a school, a hospital and a club in Shanghai were abandoned by the community. The hospital compound was rented, and the hospital equipment sold in 1952 to cover the severance pay of 56 employees. The balance of the proceeds went into a medical relief fund. The Shanghai Jewish Club was placed under the custody of the Shanghai Real Estate Control Bureau on Sept. 26, 1960, and is now considered as a public property. One synagogue was sold in 1956 and another in 1957, for a total sum of 46,000 Chinese dollars. The money was added to the relief funds.

"At present," said Mr. Yudalevich, "we are negotiating the sale of the remaining Jewish school and synagogue to meet our outstanding debts. Our financial position has been bad and the only income of the council is derived from the rent of the Jewish school and remaining synagogue which are now leased by an organization. The net income is about 680 Chinese dollars per month which together with the proceeds from the sale of some surplus furniture in the former Shelter House and office are barely enough to cover our expenses."

Asked what happened to the equipment in the various Jewish institutions, Mr. Yudalevich replied, "In 1956 we sent to Israel 11 boxes of books from the former Jewish library of the Shanghai Jewish Club, and 16 cases containing religious books, and 14 Torah scrolls. At present we still have some religious books, silver ornaments for religious purposes and two Torah scrolls. All the archives and records are kept with the Council office. We are still issuing hundreds of Ghetto Letters and other certificates every year to applicants all over the world. Each applicant is entitled to receive restitution money of about U.S. $800 from the relevant German and Austrian Governments and Municipalities on presentation of the Ghetto Letter issued by this Council. The requests for Ghetto Letters are coming in without interruption. It is estimated that the work will not be concluded for some years.

There were four Jewish cemeteries in Shanghai, with a total of 3,703 graves. Three have been transferred to Chi An Public Cemetery in Chin-poo, a suburb about 15 kilometers from the town. "Appropriate arrangement will be made to take care of the Jewish cemeteries, when there is hardly a Jew left in Shanghai," wrote the Council Chairman.

Asked what is the structure of the Jewish Community Council now, he replied:

"After World War II, there were three Jewish communities in Shanghai: the Sephardic Jewish Communal Association, the Shanghai Ashkenazi Jewish Communal Association and the Juedische Gemeinde. Each was doing its own relief and migration work. After many mass migrations during the period from 1947 to 1949, it was considered convenient to form a centralized organization to take care of the remaining Jews, and in September, 1949, the Council was founded to manage the combined operation. With the continual departure of Jews from Shanghai, the activities and work of the Council have also reduced in scale. At present, the Council has only one local employee who has worked many years with the Jewish organizations. Simultaneously, the Council also deals with matters in connection

Coronary Thrombosis Rare Among Bedouins

TEL AVIV — A team from the Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center examined 510 Bedouin men, 30 years and older, in the Negev, and found only one case of coronary thrombosis.

Blood cholesterol is considerably below that taken as normal in Western populations and the cholesterol count does not increase automatically with aging.

Most of the 18,000 Bedouins living in Israel's Negev rely on periodic heavy rains to grow grain — mainly wheat and some barley — which they store for drought years.

These semi-nomads graze sheep, goats, camels and occasionally donkeys. The Bedouin lets it go sour, which is advantageous because harmful germs shun sour milk.

They scoop fat from the sour milk to form sammeh, a kind of butter. The milk is either drunk or boiled with salt to make hard cheese.

These Bedouins never eat fish and they consume few vegetables, fruits or eggs. Meat is eaten on special occasions when a sheep or lamb is slaughtered, an average of once a month. Chicken is eaten more often.

The Bedouin diet leaves much to be desired. But Bedouin men and women have no weight problems. Thin persons have a much easier time in the desert heat than the obese.

VANDALS ARRESTED

LONDON — The newspaper Prace reported that two youths of 18 were arrested in the town of Trebic, Czechoslovakia, on charges of having participated in the desecration of an old Jewish cemetery there. According to the local police, 50 tombstones in the cemetery, some dating back 600 to 700 years, had been overturned.

with the Sephardic Jewish Communal Association, the Shanghai Ashkenazi Jewish Communal Association and the Juedische Gemeinde."

Mr. Yudalevich, after concluding his report on conditions in an almost extinct Jewish community, states that as so many remaining Jews are in poor circumstances, the Chinese Relief Association has taken over the distribution of cash grants since March, 1961, and is presently paying a total relief check of approximately 300 Chinese dollars to the community.

The man who for so long guided the affairs of Chinese Jewry seems to be adjusted to the fact that he must, almost single-handed, close the book of its history.

P. I. Yudalevich, whose letters are personally typed in perfect English, is a former merchant, a widower without children, who has lived in China since 1922. His life and work have been devoted to the good and welfare of thousands of Jews whom he has seen come — and go.

Dr. Muffs To Lead 'Kallah' Program At Woonsocket Temple This Weekend

An unusual religious program, a "Kallah," will be held this weekend at Congregation B'nai Israel, Woonsocket. The ceremony goes back 2,000 years to the days of the Babylonian empire, when academies opened their halls of learning for a refresher course in the study of Jewish law and tradition. Today's Kallah has come to mean a special few days set aside for group discussion, prayer and study. Persons from all over Rhode Island have been invited to participate.

Dr. Yochanan Muffs, assistant professor at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, will lead the program. A well-known lecturer on Biblical and Near East subjects, he holds a Ph. D. in Near Eastern studies from the University of Pennsylvania, and has done additional research at Harvard and Brandeis Universities.

The Kallah will begin at Sabbath services on Friday night. Dr. Muffs will discuss "The World of the Patriarchs," and at Saturday morning Sabbath services, "The Humanity of God."

At special services beginning at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, he will speak on "A Psychological Study of the Prophets." The program will end Sunday morning with a breakfast followed by a discussion of "Partners in Creation."

Cantor David Lefkowitz of Providence, who participated in Congregation B'nai Israel's High Holiday services last year, will sing selections of sacred music. Allen Mehlman will accompany him at the organ.

Hosts for the various events will be the Ladies Aid and Sisterhood, the Woonsocket Chapter of Hadassah and the B'nai B'rith Lodge.

Rabbi Pesach Krauss, the Congregation's spiritual leader, arranged the program, with the cooperation of the adult education committee. Committee members are Dr. Oscar Z. Dasher and Richard Israel, co-chairmen; Martin Goodman, Lewis Z. Lavine, Samuel J. Medoff, Mrs. Arthur Robbins, Mrs. S. Robert Sadwin, Michael Silverstein, Mrs. Bentley Tobin, Mrs. George Woled and Zel Levin.

German Christians Build Synagogue In France

VILLEURBANNE, France — A new synagogue, built and paid for by Christian volunteers to atone for their German fathers' guilt, now graces this industrial city of 110,000 persons. A Roman Catholic architect who had never built a synagogue designed the synagogue, which serves the handful of Jews who live here.

The synagogue, opened last May, belongs to a community of German Jews who fled to the Lyons region during the Hitler era. The community was dispersed when the Germans marched into unoccupied France in 1942. Many of its members never returned.

Those who did return met for prayer in a ramshackle house. Unable to raise funds from French authorities for its repair, they turned, reluctantly, to the German consul in Lyons.

The consul, Count Paul Yorck von Wartenburg, enlisted the help of a German group that does volunteer work in countries that suffered under Nazi rule.

The group, Action Atonement, was created in 1958 by a Protestant clergyman, Dr. Lothar Kreyszig. It has built such projects as a children's home in the Netherlands, irrigations works in Greece, a mental hospital in Norway and a brotherhood church in France.

In November, 1962, 11 German youths and three girls arrived here. Ranging in age from 18 to 24, only two or three had skills related to construction. Most were students.

A local priest provided lodging in a former Catholic church. They took many of their meals in the homes of the 80-family Jewish community whose temple they were building.

Raymond Carpe, a local architect, designed the three-story building from photographs of other synagogues and with the advice, frequently changed, of the community's leaders.

The only professional on the building site was a foreman—supplied by a local contractor. In addition licensed workmen did tasks such as plumbing and electrical work. The volunteers did everything else.

The synagogue is a gray stone rectangular shell with floor-to-roof clear windows framed by red concrete ribbing.

"I imagined the entire facade like a door, to symbolize the synagogue as a place of refuge for the Jewish people," said Mr. Carpe.

The pews were presented by a German Evangelical church. Women are seated in the balcony.

Action Atonement contributed $80,000 to the project. The West German Government provided an additional $20,000 through its restitution payments for Jewish victims of the Nazis.

BEN-GURION'S BROTHER

TEL AVIV — Funeral services were held here recently for Michael Grin, the older brother of former Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, who died here this weekend at the age of 86. The former Premier recited the kaddish at the graveside.

Born in Pionsk, Poland, Mr. Grin settled in Tel Aviv where he operated a refreshment stand.

ARRANGEMENTS CHAIRMAN — Dr. Joseph J. Fishbein, Providence dentist and vice-president of Providence Hebrew Day School, has been named chairman of the Arrangements Committee for the annual Scholarship Dinner on Sunday, April 25, at the school. The appointment was announced by Sheldon S. Sollosy, general chairman.

Ehrenberg Appealed To Stalin For Jews

LONDON — Ilya Ehrenberg, famous Soviet novelist-journalist, revealed that he had personally appealed to Stalin, to investigate the persecutions from 1948 to 1952 against Soviet Jewish intellectuals, according to a Moscow dispatch received here. He did not reveal what, if anything, Stalin had replied.

Continuing his memoirs in the Russian literary magazine, "Novy Mir," Mr. Ehrenberg devoted several pages of his latest installment to the Jewish question. He detailed again the purge of the Jewish intellectuals, beginning with the murder of actor-director Solomon Michaelis, in 1948, and continuing with the execution of other leading Jewish intellectuals. He himself expected "the ringing of the bell," meaning arrest and possible execution, he reported. Finally, he wrote, he appealed to Stalin against the anti-Jewish actions by Soviet authorities.

JERUSALEM — Israel's Deputy Health Minister, Itzhak Raphael, resigned following a report by an inquiry commission into the circumstances of a contract to build a hospital. A deputy director general of the Health Ministry was convicted of accepting bribes in connection with the contract.

The inquiry commission found that Mr. Raphael had concealed from the Public Works Department that he intended to have the hospital built by private contractors instead of by the department.

Truant Officers Suffer For Observing Sabbath

NEW YORK — Sabbath-observing truant officers claim they are no longer free, as in other years, to leave their jobs early Friday afternoon to perform religious duties, without a pay cut. The 25 Jewish truant officers, five of them ordained rabbis, have offered to compensate for the time lost on Friday by coming to work earlier on another day. The offer has been refused, although until this year it was permitted.

"It's not so much the money," one of them said, "It's the principle of the thing—the freedom to practice our religious convictions—that is being violated here."

Walter K. Wornick, chairman of the Attendance Bureau chapter of the United Federation of Teachers, agreed. "I'm a Presbyterian," he said. "When I take overtime or compensatory time, I take it with the permission of my supervisor. Theoretically, if I wished to take every Friday afternoon off, I'd have no trouble getting permission from my supervisor."

"But the restriction is placed only on Sabbath observers," he quickly added.

Wornick squarely placed the decision on the doorstep of the Director of the Bureau of Attendance, Arthur W. Clinton. According to Wornick, Clinton "admits he has the right to vary the hours of these employees, but refuses to do this on the grounds that these people are not truly religious but they are merely trying to get something that other attendance teachers don't enjoy."

When Clinton was questioned about this matter by The New York Post, he referred the newspaper to the Board of Education's Office of Public Information.

A spokesman for that office, after consulting Clinton, said that when truant officers became attendance teachers, they gave up their administrative status and became professionals. He explained that teachers do not have the privilege of making up time taken off. If they leave work early, their pay is docked.

Rabbi Charles M. Rubel has announced the Passover service schedule for Temple Beth Sholom. The Syum for first-born males will begin at 7 A.M. on Friday, April 16. Rabbi Rubel and Cantor Karl Kritz will officiate at services at 6 o'clock that evening.

Cantor Kritz will sing the liturgy and recite the prayer of Tal at 9 A.M. services on Saturday, April 17. Rabbi Rubel's sermon topic will be "The Plague of Frogs." On April 18 services will begin at 9 A.M., and the rabbi's sermon topic will be "The Plague of Darkness." Mincha services will begin at 6 P.M. All Chol Hamo'ed services will be held at 6:30 A.M.

TEMPLE EMANU-EL

The celebration of Passover at Temple Emanu-El will begin with services on Friday, April 16, at 6:15 P.M. Rabbi Joel H. Zalman and Cantor Ivan E. Perlman will conduct the services. Morning services on Saturday and Sunday, April 17 and 18, will begin at 9:30 o'clock.

On Sunday, April 18, at 9:30 A.M. in the Main Sanctuary, 14 girls will become B'nos Mitzvah. After the service, the parents will be hosts to the congregation at a reception in the meeting house in honor of their children.

TEMPLE SINAI

"The Most Beautiful Seder" will be the title of Rabbi Jerome S. Gurland's sermonette at Temple Sinai's Family Passover Service on Saturday, April 17, at 11 A.M. The evening service on the First Day of Passover, April 16, will be held at 5:45 P.M.

MODEL SEDER

Rabbi Jerome S. Gurland will lead a Model Seder for the entire school on Sunday at 10:30 A.M. at Temple Sinai. The Sisterhood will serve refreshments under the chairmanship of Mrs. Marilyn Patten.

Yeshiva University Wins Debate

The Yeshiva University debating team was the victor in the debate held last Saturday evening at Congregation Ohave Sholam, where they discussed with members of the University of Rhode Island debating team the topic, Resolved: That the Federal Government establish a national program of public work for the unemployed.

Steven Raskas, of University City, Mo., and Donald Davis of Montreal, Canada, seniors, took the affirmative side of the argument for the Yeshiva, while Steven Musen of Cranston, a freshman, and Lionel Peabody of Middletown, a sophomore, were on the negative side for URI.

Subjects for the debating teams, which are members of the American Forensic League, are given to them. The debating teams of the universities are broken up into two-member teams which travel to different cities to hold debates. According to the team from URI, their average in debates has been a 50-50 one; Yeshiva University has a record of 14 wins, 5 losses and 1 draw.

The teams for Yeshiva University cover cities throughout the country and in Canada. Their northern tour includes Canada, Michigan, New York State; the Midwest tour takes in Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin; the Far West, California and Texas, and the Southern hits Georgia and Florida (Mr. Raskas was still feeling the effects of the sunburn which he acquired in Miami). Their debates are held during the Purim season, and so they miss only three or four days of classes.

Since they attended the Yeshiva, it might be supposed that they intended to go into religious teaching or the rabbinate, but both Mr. Raskas and Mr. Davis have other futures outlined for themselves. Mr. Davis is majoring in Political Science and hopes to go on to graduate school and law school. Mr. Raskas, who attends the Teachers' Institute of the University, plans to go into business or law. He intends to take some time before that however to go to Israel to study for a while.

One of the problems which confronts the debaters from Yeshiva University (as well as other religious Jewish persons on debating teams) is the fact that most debates are scheduled for Saturday during the day. For this reason, Yeshiva University has to make special arrangements for meeting other teams.

Moes Chitim President Cites Need For Youth

Our ads have not been too effective among this group and short of a house-to-house campaign, I do not know how we can reach this group in our community.

The conception of Moes Chitim Passover Assistance is traditional in our Jewish heritage. Our parents who came to this country from overseas observed it religiously. The first generation American Jew as a rule is aware of the meaning and importance of Moes Chitim because he learned of it in his home while growing up. Unfortunately the second and third generation of American Jew considers the appeal of Moes Chitim as just another solicitation of funds with which he is continually being besieged. Although Moes Chitim is essentially a charitable purpose as far as the recipient is concerned, it has a far greater importance to our Jewish Community. It is part and parcel of our religious, ethical and traditional heritage. . . .

... The concept of Moes Chitim is to wither away as the older folks pass on, the torch must be picked up by the younger generation. . . .

In closing, may I express to you and to your staff the thanks of the officers and the board members of the United Moes Chitim Fund for your assistance in keeping alive the concept of Moes Chitim in our community. Also, our thanks are extended to all who have responded to our appeal and to those who will do so before the holidays are over.

Yours truly,
Edmund Wexler, President
United Moes Chitim Fund

'No Man Ever Stands So Straight . . .'

"When a man is interested in having a son, he will include the little brother as a member of his family. As it's a human relationship, some errors are acceptable. The man is a friend, and he's not case-working the little brother to death. He does, of course, have the help of professional people, and maintains a continuing relationship with the staff at the agency."

Big brothers coming into the program will work with their little brother for at least two or three years, the agency hopes, so a child won't feel bereft by losing a big brother just as he's really used to him. Now that big brothers realize they are actively encouraged to include the little brother in family outings, many more applications have come in from married men with young children. A wife, it seems, is much more receptive to including a little brother in the family, than to having her husband trot off to a ball game with him, and leave her alone with babies.

Miss Levy, who says her job at the hospital is so demanding that she "just doesn't have time" for much else now, is a board member (and past president) of the Rhode Island Association for Mental Health, and a past president of both the Rhode Island Conference of Social Work and the Rhode Island Epilepsy League. She is also the devoted owner of a calico long-haired cat, an ardent golfer, and an active member for many years of The Players, where she directed "Under-tow" last month for Greenroom Players.

Miss Levy's older brother, Walter, a Providence jeweler, was also a member of the Big Brothers board in its early years, but hasn't been on it since she became a member. Her enthusiasm about the organization, and her belief in its accomplishment of the goal to provide foster brothers for boys who need them, are apparent as she talks of their work. The motto of the agency "really appeals to people," she said, and it is apparent that she includes herself. The motto of Big Brothers is: "No man ever stands so straight as when he stoops to help a boy."

Kennedy Foundation Gives $1.4 Million To Retarded Center At Einstein College

NEW YORK — Yeshiva University's Albert Einstein College of Medicine has received a gift of $1,450,000 from the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation, to be applied toward building a center for the study of mental retardation and human development.

The Kennedy family has shown considerable interest in mental retardation for many years. One of their children, Rosemary, a sister of the late President, is mentally retarded and in an institution.

Speaking at a luncheon at the medical college, Senator Robert F. Kennedy said the application of "what we know would cut mental retardation in half. But we should all recognize that that application will require the elimination of poverty from our society." Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy said it is known now that mentally retarded children "can be taught to lead useful and happy lives."

The United States Public Health Service has already given a grant of $3.75 million toward the building of the center, and the city allocated the land on which it will be constructed.

The center will be built next to the medical college and linked to Jacobi Hospital on the grounds of the Bronx Municipal Hospital Center. The college is at Eastchester Road near Pelham Parkway.

In honor of Mrs. Kennedy, the center will be named the Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy Center for Research in Maternal and Child Health and Human Development.
