Rabbi Nussbaum Urges One Voice For American Jews

STRASBOURG — Rabbi Max Nussbaum, president of the Zionist Organization of America and chairman of the American section of the World Jewish Congress, called Monday for the establishment of a single organization to speak for the six million Jews in the United States.

"There is an urgent need for a unified voice of the Jewish community," Rabbi Nussbaum stated. The issue of who speaks and acts on behalf of the American Jewish community — the most influential and economically powerful in the world — is a major one at the meeting. It was a dominant theme of by Nahum Goldmann, the congress' president.

Dr. Nussbaum, who is from Los Angeles, said in a discussion of his proposal after the session that the American Jewish community was the largest outside Israel and at the same time the only one without a unified voice. The rabbi said it was "undignified" for a number of different organizations to be speaking on behalf of American Jews on national and international affairs.

To bring together 24 Jewish organizations in February, 1964, to discuss the plight of the Jews in the Soviet Union took about a year, Dr. Nussbaum added.

The rabbi proposed two possible forms a central Jewish organization in the United States could take.

One possibility, he said, is an assembly to which the major national organizations could send delegates. The framework of such an assembly exists in the Presidents Conference, he said.

This is an organization of the leaders of 21 major Jewish groups, formed about a decade ago and representing the large majority of organized Jews in the United States.

Another possibility, Dr. Nussbaum said, is a pyramid consisting of Jewish community councils at the bottom, state assemblies as an intermediary layer, and a national assembly formed by representatives of the 50 state bodies.

Name Pearlman New President Of Hebrew Day School

Thomas W. Pearlman, Providence attorney, is the new president of the Providence Hebrew Day School.

Mr. Pearlman, who has been actively connected with the school for the past six years, was elected at a meeting this week of the board of directors. He succeeds Archie Smith who was elected honorary president.

Malcolm Bromberg, Dr. Joseph J. Fishbein, Paul Levitan and Sheldon S. Sollosy were elected vice presidents. Lewis Korn was elected treasurer, Paul Chernov, financial secretary, and Irving Schmugler, recording secretary. Archie Smith, Max Brodsky and Joseph Dublin are honorary presidents. Mrs. Sheldon S. Sollosy was elected president of the Ladies' Association.

Federation Will Build Art Centers

NEW YORK — The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies has announced that it will construct 10 fine-arts centers at existing and projected YMHA-YWHA buildings in New York City, Nassau and Westchester counties.

Although original plans called for seven centers, a recent gift of $100,000 — half from James N. Rosenberg, retired lawyer and the other half from former High Commissioner of Germany, John J. McCloy — enabled the federation to plan for three additional arts centers.

Locations for the new centers were selected on the basis of shifting or increasing population. Each center is designed to include well equipped studios for painting, sculpture and the graphic arts and will maintain a program of art lectures and visiting artists. The facilities will be open from morning to evening to people of all ages.

Chief Rabbi Appeals To World's Jews For Teachers

STRASBOURG — Rabbi Moses Rosen, chief rabbi of Rumania, this week appealed to world Jewish leaders to send teachers and rabbis to serve in his country.

"Help us," Rabbi Rosen urged 100 delegates from 30 countries attending the executive assembly of the World Jewish Congress here. "Help us religiously and culturally. The time has come for closer relations between us."

Dr. Rosen, a short, stout man of Old Testament bearing and beard, is the first representative of Judaism in the Soviet bloc to attend a world congress meeting since the immediate period after World War II.

His plea was viewed here as possibly marking a significant turning point in ending the comparative isolation of the Jews of Eastern Europe from world Judaism.

First reactions among Congress delegates strongly favored strong action on Dr. Rosen's request.

The Chief Rabbi said that practical details of the international cooperation he appealed for would have to be negotiated. In an interview, he added that he had not cleared his request with the Rumanian Government.

Better conditions for closer cooperation of the Jewish communities of East and West have been created by the relaxation of cold war tensions, in Dr. Rosen's view. He praised Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the Congress, as "the symbol of the guaranty" that the cold war in the life of the Jewish people is coming to an end.

Dr. Goldmann, in a speech in New York last month, cautioned Jews against "extreme attacks" on the Soviet Union over conditions of Jewish life there.

The Rumanian rabbi's presence here, after 17 years of World Jewish Congress meetings without representatives from the Soviet bloc, was viewed as the probable result of Dr. Goldmann's position, which caused sharp controversy in world Jewish circles.

Qualified observers also saw a link between Rabbi Rosen's trip here and Bucharest's posture of greater national independence within the Soviet camp. Earlier this year the Chief Rabbi was granted permission for a coast-to-coast lecture tour of the United States under the auspices of Yeshiva University and a rabbinical group.

Dr. Rosen's appeal for rabbis and teachers for his community of 110,000 Jews came after he had described the condition of the Jews as "free and equal for the first time in the history of Rumania."

"I do not want to make propaganda or publicity for the Rumanian Government," said the Chief Rabbi, who represents the Jewish minority in the Rumanian National Assembly as a nonparty member, "but the truth must be said. There is no religious persecution in my country. Jews are free to worship and to practice their religious rituals."

The apparent paradox between religious freedom and a lack of those who practice it was explained by qualified Western sources as the result of the Rumanian Government's tolerance of Jewish emigration. Young Jews who take their religion seriously — the potential future rabbis and teachers — have taken advantage of Rumania's reasonably open door.

Three hundred synagogues and smaller temples function in Rumania, Rabbi Rosen said, but there are only three rabbis besides himself. One of them is more than 90 years old.

Because other Jews may perform the functions of religious leaders, Dr. Rosen declared, the shortage of ritual slaughterers is a more critical problem. He said there were only about 20 in the country.

As far as the Government is concerned, Rabbi Rosen declared, Rumania's Jews have the right to be as religious as they want. The only condition, he said, is that they do not use religious activities to cloak acts of propaganda against the Communist regime.

The country's leaders are materialistic and atheistic, Dr. Rosen said, "but they have given us our life and our dignity."

AJC Lauds Court Of Appeals Stand On State Prayer Ban

NEW YORK — The American Jewish Congress greeted a decision by a U.S. Court of Appeals last week upholding a statewide ban on prayer recitations in New York public schools as "a welcome and much-needed re-shoring of the constitutional wall separating church and state in American life."

Howard M. Squadron of New York, chairman of the AJCongress' Commission on Law and Social Action, said in a statement that the Circuit Court of Appeal's ruling handed down last Wednesday was "a firm reply to all those who have tried to treat the constitution's church-state separation principle as a dead letter."

The American Jewish Congress helped win the original 1962 Supreme Court decision prohibiting prayer recitation and Bible reading in the public schools. The Court of Appeals ruling was based on the 1962 decision.

Mr. Squadron in his statement declared:

"The American Jewish Congress greets the action of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in re-affirming the guarantee of church-state separation that is contained in the First Amendment to the Constitution. This action is a welcome and much needed re-shoring of the constitutional wall separating church and state in American life, a wall that has taken a constant battering all year long."

"Indeed, the church-state separation principle was buffeted, breached and beaten down this past year with a frequency and manner that are without precedent in American history.

"The House and Senate, federal agencies and state legislatures all took part as did the President and a number of Governors.

"Enactment of the Administration's federal aid-to-education bill has had the effect of opening the public purse to church-controlled schools.

"The Office of Economic Opportunity has been conducting the war against poverty as though it had never heard of the principle separating church and state by permitting federal anti-poverty funds to flow to religious schools and institutions in the form of grants for remedial reading and Project Headstart.

"The New York State legislature committed a serious breach of both the federal and state constitutions in adopting a bill already signed by the Governor which authorizes the lending of publicly-owned textbooks to parochial schools.

"Last week's action by the U.S. Court of Appeals should give pause to all those who have been trying to nullify basic guarantees of American freedom: the church-state separation principle which is the keystone of American religious liberty."

Interference By American Jewish Committees Cited

STRASBOURG — Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Jewish Congress, sternly warned the American Jewish Committee this week against failing to participate in joint action with other Jewish communities and against setting itself up as a protector of other weaker Jewish communities."

In a keynote speech at the opening session of the World Executtive of the congress, Dr. Goldmann accuses the committee of insisting "on acting on its own."

He charged that the committee acted "as if it were an international Jewish organization." It does so, he added, without being asked by the Jewish communities in other countries to take a hand in their affairs, and without being guided by their advice.

Dr. Goldmann's anger was believed to have been inspired by the committee's action last year in sending a mission headed by its president, Morris B. Abram, to Argentina and other South American countries. The mission followed reports of increased activity by extreme right-wing, anti-Semitic organizations.

Dr. Goldmann made his unusually blunt criticism before more than 100 delegates from 30 countries.

A report submitted to the meeting by the International Affairs Department of the congress complained that "In recent years certain American Jewish bodies have developed the habit of sending delegations to South America, which are highly publicized but unauthorized by the local representatives bodies."

The American Jewish Committee was founded in 1906 as a reaction to programs in Russia. It has 33,000 members in 91 chapters throughout the United States and espouses human rights causes not limited to Jewish affairs.

The American Jewish Committee has cooperated with other Jewish organizations in pursuing specific limited objectives, but has refrained from becoming part of any organization that purports to speak for American Jews generally.

The organization that Dr. Goldmann appeared to have especially in mind was the Presidents Conference, founded about a decade ago by the leaders of 21 American Jewish organizations for common action on Israel. In recent years the organization has concerned itself with broad international ques-

One of the things a writer tries to do above all else is communicate, and although it may seem that this goal is accomplished merely by "writing," that is far from the case.

Different people have different ideas, prejudices and idiosyncrasies, and it is difficult to make them think the way you want them to about an idea or thought to which they are hostile.

In the past two years, this column's summer series has been the vehicle for communication of a good many political thoughts and ideas; indeed, over the past two years, this was the main content of the series.

Most HERALD readers are within the readership of the regular Providence newspapers, and am aware, I am sure, that this columnist frequently contributes to the letters' pages of the local newspapers. Contributions of this nature to the papers have, while I've written the weekly summer series over the past two years, been less thorough, I think, than would otherwise be desirable; the letters which I have submitted have been rather complete, but I am left with the impression that too little attention has been given to too few major issues confronting us today.

Some of the summer series columns have been long political commentaries, as was a long series we did two years ago on The Evolution of Constitutional Interpretations of the Supreme Court.

Although these are interesting pieces, and although there will be a few political commentary columns this summer, their number will be less than in the past for one main reason: you're interested in less ponderous subjects during the summer; and when you get serious, you find political news elsewhere; and when you read the HERALD, you're after community news, not the stuff you get in the metropolitan dailies.

With this in mind, the summer series this year is in for a change. Generally, its subject matter will not be so foreboding as in the past. We'll cover stories of leisure, not work, because summer is supposed to be a time of leisure. The pace will be slower.

We'll be covering the following; these columns already are planned, while most leisure-time columns will be as-they-happen stories: Newport Folk Festival, hopefully including several interviews with the world's most accomplished folk artists; Collegiate Discontent, its cause and cure, including some hints for the college-bound on how to avoid the problems; a second look at the "customer is always right;" the Perils of Blue Devil; and an oddball list of weird ways to kill summertime boredom.

What about the political stuff? It will still be written, but will appear as detailed and thorough letters in the nation's newspapers; that way, people will find political commentaries in a place devised for reading for people who are motivated to it. In other words, if you're interested, there's always a place to look.

But the long process of reading through a lot of serious writing, won't be evident here... just some cool relaxation. See you next week.

Former Premier Dies In Israel

JERUSALEM — Moshe Sharett, acknowledged as the architect of Israel's foreign policy, died last week at the age of 71.

Death came after a long illness. The entire country went into mourning as soon as word came of Mr. Sharett's death. Flags on all Government and other public buildings were lowered to half-mast, and all of Israel reacted with profound sorrow. He was given a state funeral.

It was under his guidance that the delegation helped fashion Israel's first great victory at the UN. On Nov. 29, 1947, the General Assembly voted in favor of the partition of Palestine, giving the world organization's approval to the formation of a Jewish State in Palestine.

Industrial National Earnings Increase

The Industrial National Bank of Providence, Rhode Island, reported net operating earnings of $2,740,000 for the six months ended June 30, an increase of $459,000 over the same period in 1964. This was equal to $2.24 a share compared with $1.87 last year, an increase of 20 per cent.

Loans totaled $401 million on June 30 compared with $339 million a year ago, an increase of $62 million. Included in this total were $197 million in real estate mortgages, an increase of $29 million during the year.

Youngsters Spend Summer In Israel

NEW YORK — Two groups comprising 280 American and Canadian college students went to Israel recently to spend a Summer working in kibbutzim and studying life in the country for eight weeks. They represent 50 colleges located in 25 states and three Canadian provinces.

Last week, a group of 140 American high school boys and girls, emplaned for a camping season at Kfar Hayarok,

Although these are interesting pieces, and although there will be a few political commentary columns this summer, their number will be less than in the past for one main reason: you're interested in less ponderous subjects during the summer; and when you get serious, you find political news elsewhere; and when you read the HERALD, you're after community news, not the stuff you get in the metropolitan dailies.

With this in mind, the summer series this year is in for a change. Generally, its subject matter will not be so foreboding as in the past. We'll cover stories of leisure, not work, because summer is supposed to be a time of leisure. The pace will be slower.

We'll be covering the following; these columns already are planned, while most leisure-time columns will be as-they-happen stories: Newport Folk Festival, hopefully including several interviews with the world's most accomplished folk artists; Collegiate Discontent, its cause and cure, including some hints for the college-bound on how to avoid the problems; a second look at the "customer is always right;" the Perils of Blue Devil; and an oddball list of weird ways to kill summertime boredom.

What about the political stuff? It will still be written, but will appear as detailed and thorough letters in the nation's newspapers; that way, people will find political commentaries in a place devised for reading for people who are motivated to it. In other words, if you're interested, there's always a place to look.

But the long process of reading through a lot of serious writing, won't be evident here... just some cool relaxation. See you next week.

Former Premier Dies In Israel

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Today's hand illustrates a number of facets. First, it shows two very distributional freaks in the East and South hands. Second, some highly competitive bidding and third, after being forced to a grand slam, how South guessed correctly to make it.

North

♥ A, 10, 6
♦ A, J, 9, 6, 3
♣ 9, 6, 3

South
♦ ♦ Void
♦ ♦ Void
♦ K, 10, 8, 7, 2
♦ ♦ A, K, Q, J, 10, 8, 7, 2

Everyone was vulnerable with this bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1S	2C	2S
3C	4NT	Pass	5C
Pass	5S	6C	Pass
Pass	6S	7C	D

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baron, of Pawtucket, were South and North. The bidding was very interesting with many bids having hidden innuendos. East opened 1 Spade with a freak hand and merely awaited developments. Mr. Baron (South) held even a more distributional hand and decided that his best policy was to bide his time so he made a simple overcall of 2 Clubs, quite confident that with so many cards out he would have many more chances to bid. West's 2 Spade bid showed a weak hand with trump support and North, unaware of what was to come, raised her partner to 3 Clubs.

Brandeis President Stresses 'Self-Help' Needed For Continued Israel Prosperity

ROME — Dr. Abram Sachar, president of Brandeis University, warned here last week that the many indications of improved attitudes toward Jews in many parts of the world "should not lull us into abandoning the realism of self-help."

He spoke at a dinner which followed the closing of the World ORT Union Congress, attended by 400 delegates, guests and representatives of 20 Jewish organizations from Italy and other countries.

Dr. Sachar said the events which followed the proclamation of the State of Israel in 1948 were "only one of history's warnings" to Jews and that the realism he proposed was safer and healthier for Jews.

He added that few international Jewish organizations so sensibly followed the principle of self-help as did ORT which, from the beginning, has sought to reduce the "lufmensch" weakness of Jewish existence by teaching perfect craftsmanship to its students.

He also warned against "the decline of sensitivity among Jews active in communal endeavors," declaring that "too many of us have become quite tired, a wall of imperviousness is emerging, we are less responsive, our sensitivity has been blunted."

Rene Mayer, former French Minister, cited the "widely increased" tasks, particularly in France and Israel, which could be met by ORT only with the help of the Joint Distribution Committee and the Jewish colonization association.

He said there were now in France mixed Jewish-Arab slum areas where ORT was helping not only Jews but also Arabs and extending its activities to African countries and to Iran and India.

Dr. William Haber of the University of Michigan was elected president of the central board of the Union.

Robert Corris Named To 1965 Maccabiah Team

Robert Corris of 205 Laurel Avenue, a sophomore at Harvard, has been named to the 1965 United States Maccabiah Men's Swimming Team as a breast-stroker.

The announcement was made Monday by U.S. Maccabiah Swimming Committee Chairman Jack Abramson of New York City and Maccabiah and Yale coach Phil Moriarty, who said that the 21 swimmers and divers selected will compete in the Seventh World Maccabiah Games subject to the availability of funds and the maintenance of physical condition.

Mr. Corris was the winner of Harvard's High Point Scoring Trophy for dual meets. A 1963 Prep All-American in the breaststroke, he holds the Harvard freshman record in the event in 2:20.9. He was fifth in the Eastern Intercollegiate in 2:20.2 and fourth in the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:03.5.

Mrs. Ernest B. Schleifer

Miss Estelle Chorney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Chorney of 70 Edgehill Road, was married on Sunday, July 11, to Ernest B. Schleifer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schleifer of 162 Elmeline Street. Rabbi Eli Nathan Rosen, Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Ivan Perlman officiated at the 6 P.M. candlelight, double ring ceremony at Temple Emanuel. A reception followed in the temple social hall.

Wearing a peau de soie dome style gown with a princess line, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The gown was fashioned with a scoop neckline and three-quarter length sleeves, highlighted with Alencon lace, and with a flowing skirt ending in a chapel train. A pearlized pillow box of petals held her tiered veil of imported silk illusion. The lace prayerbook she carried was covered with white spider mums and stephanotis.

Mrs. Burton Fischman was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a crepe full-length sheath gown in a pink print on white with a boat neckline. She carried a spray bouquet of roses in shades of pink.

Mrs. Harold Goldstein, sister of the bride, and Miss Barbara Schleifer, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns similar to that of the matron of honor, and carried sprays of pink carnations. The mothers of the bride and bridegroom were dressed in pink and white orchids.

Louis Schleifer, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Nathan Bell, Edward Bochner, Murray Cerel, Burton Fischman, Dr. Harold Goldstein, Philip Irving, Bruce London and Charles Phillips.

After a wedding trip to the Nevele Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Schleifer will make their home at 63 Gould Drive, East Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Warren S. Edelstein

The marriage of Miss Rosalie Toby Kuperman and Warren Stanley Edelstein took place on Sunday, June 27, at Temple Beth Shalom. Rabbi Charles M. Rubel officiated at the 6:30 P.M. ceremony. A reception followed in the temple meeting hall.

The bride is the daughter of Morris Kuperman of Sumter Street and the late Mrs. Kuperman, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Edelstein of Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Paul Gregerman was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Chaika, Miss Sylvia Zukerman and Miss Enid Gregerman.

Anton Fredriksen was best man. Ushers were Paul Gregerman, Edgar Kaufman, Robert Headley, Jr., and Ross Sentz.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a crepe sheath gown with an Empire bodice trimmed with Swiss lace. She wore a mantilla of Belgian lace. Her bouquet was of roses, carnations and stephanotis.

After a wedding trip to the Appalachian Mountains, the couple will live in Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Howard A. London

Temple Emanu-El was the scene of the 8:30 P.M. wedding on Saturday, July 10, of Miss Elaine Marsha Goldberg, daughter of Mrs. Abraham Goldberg of 59 Eaton Street and the late Mr. Goldberg, to Howard Allen London, son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. London of 77 Huxley Avenue. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Ivan Perlman officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception in the temple meeting house. Morris Goldberg, uncle of the bride, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her brother, Bernard S. Goldberg, the bride wore a gown of light ivory re-embroidered Alencon lace on English net styled with a bateau neckline, short sleeves and a modified A-line skirt. A set-in band of peau de soie was accented at the empire bodice by a French bow, and the detachable paneled train was of peau de soie trimmed with matching lace. Her veil of imported silk illusion fell from an open crown of seed pearls and cut crystals. She carried a prayer book covered with orchids.

Mrs. Bernard S. Goldberg and Mrs. Sheldon I. Goldberg, sisters-in-law of the bride, were matrons of honor. They were gowned in different shades of pink and wore pale pink matching veils. They carried bouquets of roses in varied shades of pink.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom wore floor length gowns in different shades of pink accented with jewels.

Melvyn J. London served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Robert W. Blazer, Sheldon I. Goldberg, brother of the bride, Jerome S. London, brother of the bridegroom, Melvyn S. Maldavir, Lawrence M. Radner and Michael A. St. Angelo.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside at 25 Nancy Street, Pawtucket.

Is It Possible?

For many years there has been talk about the advisability of having one Jewish organization which would represent all American Jewry. There has been talk, also, of a world organization as well.

The idea in itself has merit. Rather than having pronouncements come from 10 or 15 or 20 different sources on each occasion, one organization would say what was necessary — once.

Merit the idea may have — but not only is it not a practicable idea, it could not be implemented properly.

When it seems difficult for rabbis of the three different branches of the Jewish faith — Orthodox, Conservative and Reform — to agree on certain fundamentals, how will it be possible to blend together the members coming from the Zionist organizations, the B'nai B'rith, the Jewish War Veterans, Hadassah, Pioneer Women, etc., so that a single opinion will be forthcoming?

The most important problem however, is just how representative would such an organization be of American Jewry? Organizations are not joined in the same manner in which one becomes a citizen of a state or a country. A man may join and never attend a meeting; a woman may join a group and attend only the annual dinner meeting each year.

And then in this day of the fixed slate of officers for which the secretary casts a single vote for the group, the ordinary member, even if he or she is a working member, actually has very little say concerning the officers who are representing him. Since almost all organizations are run in this manner now — Jewish or non-Jewish — they afford the individual member little actual representation.

To set up a system which would more or less represent the communities throughout the country, as do town councils, would be cumbersome and seems impossible of accomplishment.

Although the idea seems right, under the circumstances, it seems a complete impossibility to form a single organization which will properly represent the Jewish communities of America.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

TEST OF UPTURN COULD COME IN 1966

A business upturn at a slower pace than in 1965's hectic first quarter is a clinch through the balance of this year. But 1966 could tell a different economic story — unless the federal government takes aggressive fiscal measures to sustain the expansion's pace.

Steps will be taken. A multi-billion dollar increase in federal government spending is a certainty to help swing the budget to the "stimulating" side. New income tax cuts are at least a 50-50 bet to help swell the buying power of consumers, particularly in lower middle income groups.

As of today, there are two major reasons for uncertainty about the 1966 business pattern.

First is the probability that the rate of rise in business spending on new plants and equipment will slacken and there will be adjustments in inventories too. This means the economy won't be getting the spur it is now getting from this vital type of spending.

Second is the prospect that, as matters now shape up, the federal government's own spending and taxing policies will be exerting a deflationary impact on our economy early next year.

At the risk of oversimplification, but with the aim of explaining this crucially important second point, here is a breakdown of the effect of the federal budget on the economy in early 1966.

The spending-taxing policies of the federal government will be pouring additional funds into the economy at an annual rate of $7 billion in the first half of 1966. Specifically:

$2 billion will be added because the personal income tax cuts voted in 1964 will be fully effective then. There will be a sharp increase in tax refunds; adjustments to the lower tax rates will be completed and many individuals will be making smaller tax payments.

$1.75 billion will be added because the second stage of the excise tax cuts just voted will become effective in January.

$3.25 billion will be added because of increases in "regular" government spending already scheduled in today's budget.

But, simultaneously, the spending-taxing policies of the federal government will be subtracting extra funds from the economy at an annual rate of $7.5 billion in the first half of 1966. Specifically:

$4 billion will be subtracted by the slated hike in Social Security taxes — even under the most liberal version of the tax hike.

$3.5 billion will be subtracted by the "normal" growth in the U.S. tax take at today's rate of rise in profits and paychecks.

While a "drag" of only $500 million in the first half of 1966 may seem minor, it would be on the deflationary side — and it could coincide with a slowdown in the rate of business spending and moderation in the auto and steel booms. With our labor force skyrocketing, even a "pause" in our economic advance would balloon our jobless rate.

So what do we do?

Even at this early date, the uncertainties of 1966 are being weighed with concern at the highest levels of government — and if you believe that to be forewarned is to be forearmed, this concern is in itself an anti-recession weapon.

People You Should Meet

DR. MYRON LIEBERMAN

Collective Bargaining Institute Meets At Rhode Island College

BY LOIS ATWOOD

The most comprehensive institute ever devoted to collective bargaining in public education ends today at Rhode Island College. Delegates from all over the United States and even from Canada came — but not from Pawtucket.

Pawtucket is caught in the same situation as many communities throughout the nation. A weak teachers' organization has nobody to bargain with. The school board doesn't control the money for public education, and the taxing authority has no legal responsibility for the teachers.

"The public may be the ultimate employer of teachers, but unless some person or agency representing the public has both the responsibility and the authority to reach binding agreements concerning school budgets, serious trouble is likely," wrote Dr. Myron Lieberman in a Nation article entitled "The Militant Mice." In 1962 Dr. Lieberman ran for the national presidency of the American Federation of Teachers, the national teachers' union.

Dr. Lieberman, chairman of the professional studies division and coordinator of faculty research at RIC since 1963, is institute coordinator for the college. The two-week institute, July 5-16, was jointly sponsored by RIC and Phi Delta Kappa, the professional fraternity in education. The institute's purpose was to provide a comprehensive analysis of the existing situation in collective negotiations and to clarify the issues and changes that lie ahead for all parties vitally affected by such negotiation in public education.

The Minnesota-born educator has probably written more about teacher strikes than anybody in the country. Long an advocate of greater militancy by teachers, Dr. Lieberman derided the notion that it is "unprofessional" for teachers to strike.

"Realistically speaking, most people think their field is underpaid and they should have more money. Teachers, like all public employees, are . . . restricted in advancing their objectives. If education is important, then it needs able people. If those already in the field are restrained in advancing their objectives, this has an impact on the kind of people who go into teaching. Who has a higher income level, those who can strike or those who can't?"

"Many people feel more money should be spent on education, but the restrictions they put on the teachers' organizations limit the kind of money and advancement possible for teachers."

Dr. Lieberman compared the doctors' strike in Saskatchewan to teachers' strikes. He pointed out that the Canadian strike's effectiveness depended on the inability of a non-doctors' organization to license physicians for temporary practice. Many educators' organizations are dominated by school administrators, he added, who not only can but do write emergency certificates when their teachers strike.

The RIC Dean made it clear during our interview that these are his personal views and that he was not speaking for the College. Being quoted as a College spokesman when the opinions he aired were his own has been an all-too-frequent problem for the articulate educator, whose books, "Education as a Profession" and "The Future of Public Education," were reviewed in Saturday Review, the New York Herald Tribune and Times, and Time magazine, as well as in professional journals. Dr. Lieberman's views are based on a background which included high school and University teaching, chairmanship of the Department of Education at Yeshiva University (1956-59), directing basic research for the Greater Cleveland Educational Research Council, and serving as educational consultant to the New Rochelle, N.Y., school system and as editorial consultant for Rand McNally Company. Holder of B.S. degrees in Laws and Education, and of a master's and doctorate, he was a staff sergeant in the Air Corps during World War II.

Dr. Lieberman thinks Rhode Island needs a strong teacher's group not dominated by school boards or administrators. "Right now there are about 15 states like Rhode Island where legislation has been introduced to provide for negotiation between school boards and teachers," he said, and added that introducing such legislation tends to clarify, for the public, the problems involved.

Local school boards in this state might well be abolished, said Dr. Lieberman, and pointed out how ridiculous it is to have 39 separate purchasers of school books, supplies, buildings, consultants, etc. The difficulties involved in getting from local school boards to a single state board are admittedly many: politics, the desire for local autonomy, and the prestige as serving on a school board are among the enemies of consolidation.

A possible intermediate step, he said, might be giving over to a single state board of education the functions which it can perform better and more efficiently, while retaining local school boards for functions which should be handled at a local level.

Part of the problem for public school teachers is that they cannot look to professors' organizations as a model, since most college teachers give allegiance to their discipline rather than to the profession of teaching.

"You have to get away from looking at the strength of teachers' organizations in terms merely of getting more money for teachers. There are other issues affected by the strength or weakness of

DUBLIN WEEKEND: — It's not a long, long way to Tipperary anymore: 5 1/2 hours by Pan Am jet to Shannon, and then Tipperary's only 38 miles away — as the blarney flies. But it's to Dublin that we came for the weekend, for Le Bal Des Petits Lits Blanc — with Princess Grace of Monaco presenting.

Her Serene Highness had led an array of 500 celebrants to The Ball of The Little White Beds, the annual charity event benefiting the children's hospitals in Ireland and France. Princess Grace, in coral gown and diamond tiara, swept into the first reception, at the Intercontinental, looking truly regal.

Years ago she's auditioned for a role in Frederick Lonsdale's play, "Yes, My Lord," but Lee Shubert decided she wasn't regal enough. Now, as the Baronesses and Countesses of Europe curtsied to her, she showed them all how stately and beautiful she can be.

It was a weekend fete, converting each of those July days into March 17: There were St. Patrick's Day-type parades, and reels and songfests. The Irish Jigs and four-hand reels were danced by costumed youngsters at the garden party given by Sir Basil and Lady Goulding. Then a fashion show — Irish wares on Irish models — at the vast Eniskerry home of Donald Davies.

And beyond the seafront and Kinsealy, past Portmarnock and Malahide, a rustic dinner was held in the huge barn of Cloghran Stud, whose owner bought the stud, "Above Suspicion," from the Queen of England. There were singers, dancers, and pipers — Irish pipers . . .

"Irish pipers," said our host, "squeeze the bags under their elbow. They're not blown, like Scotch pipes — so that they can save their wind for talking . . ."

The celebrants also dined at the Metropole's Gold Room, in whose ballroom upstairs a band-leader announced: "And now, a Quick-Step and a Ladies Choice," in which girls could choose their partners. Then, for the first time since 1941, King's Inn opened its hallowed rooms to ladies — for the luncheon honoring the visitors — below the plaques to "Justice, Prudence and Temperance."

The French delegation included Raoul Levy who produced Brigitte Bardot's films and whose newest movie, "Marco Polo," was shown as part of the Dublin fete. They were joined by Georges Cravenne, of the Cannes Festival. At the reception Prince Rainier conferred with Cravenne, who had told me: "I'll be helping run Monte Carlo's Centennial next year. You're invited."

Then, as dusk settled over County Wicklow, the ball began at Powerscourt Castle owned by Ralph Slazenger, the sports equipment manufacturer. Torchbearers lined the routes around the 34,000 acre estate. One Dublin observer said of the bejeweled ladies: "Tough night for burglars. If those ladies aren't wearing it tonight, they haven't got it."

The terraces, reminiscent of Versailles, had mosaic black-and-white pebbled approaches. There, amid the landscape and statuary, a team of French ballet stars danced, and then two other French stars performed a scene from Mo-Here. Just before midnight the 500 guests moved into the dining area set under one vast tent, the largest in Europe.

The buffet table, set beside the fountain, measured 250 feet by 6. It was adorned with flowers set in silver tureens, and silver-tinsel lobsters. Flunkies in wigs and livery poured the champagne.

Dawn started to break over Big Sugar Loaf and the Dublin Mountains. The rafters shook from the Watusi and Frug danced in the ancient hall where George IV once was entertained. Princess Grace started to leave. It was long, long past midnight, but her looks were real, her carriage no pumpkin.

She left the party regally. Even Lee Shubert and Frederick Lonsdale would have conceded that. (Distributed 1965 by The Hall Syndicate, Inc.) (All Rights Reserved)

Better Golt The E. Z. Way

By Eddie Zaretsky

One of the first rules for coping with trouble on the golf course, is — USE YOUR HEAD! You may not be in as much trouble as you think, but if the "panic button" rings, you will surely have problems. Study your situation, the specific problem, and how best to solve it. Should you play it safe or gamble?

If you choose to gamble, be sure it's worth the risk. In any case consider what other trouble you might get into if the gamble does not work out as planned.

There are many trouble situations that can arise during a round of golf. One of the most common, is playing a ball out of the rough. Make sure to take a more lofted club to get the ball up more quickly. Take one less (higher numbered) club than usual for the extra

Where Is Kadimah Street?

By JACOB P. RUDIN

The Jews who lived on Aviv Street in Haifa liked the name "Aviv". As far back as they could remember, their street had borne that name. Then one day, they were surprised and shocked to discover that the sign, "Aviv Street," had been taken down and a new sign, "Kadimah Street," had been put in its place. The inhabitants of the street didn't want to live on "Kadimah Street." They had always lived on "Aviv Street" and they had no intention of giving up the name. So they took down the sign "Kadimah Street" and put back "Aviv Street."

Did that settle matters? Of course not! We are dealing with a Jewish state, don't forget. The authorities declared that the street was "Kadimah" and not "Aviv;" and down came "Aviv" and up went "Kadimah." So the embattled dwellers left "Kadimah" up, but they put back "Aviv" as well. Whereupon, the municipality announced that it alone had the power to change the name of a street, and down came "Aviv," leaving "Kadimah" as

Zionist 'Terror' Is Tacuaran Claim

BUENOS AIRES — A leader of the local Tacuara nationalist movement charged at a press conference here last week that "Zionist storm troops" were making "systematic assaults" on Tacuara members.

The charge was made by Emiliano Barra, commander of the Buenos Aires Zone Tacuara, after a series of open attacks against Argentine Jewry. He said one of the attacks was made by 15 to 20 "men" against four Tacuara "youngsters" with "hard objects." He added that the injured youths were taken to a hospital and that one of the assailants, Daniel Spival, 22, was detained by police.

R.I. Hospital Trust Growth Continues

Net operating earnings of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company for the six months ending June 30 were up from $1,799,553 to $2,092,793, or 16.3% over the same period in 1964, equal to $2.99 per share, according to Clarence H. Gifford Jr., president.

Demand for loans continued to grow during the last six months, Mr. Gifford said, "and is a reflection of the good business conditions and almost full employment existing in the State of Rhode Island today."

New highs were recorded in commercial loans and discounts, real estate mortgages, total assets, demand deposits and earnings. Mr. Gifford said that although the bank's earnings are at an all-time peak for the first six months of the year, indications are that the percentage of increase in earnings for the full year will be at a more moderate rate.

Ben-Gurion Proposes Red China Parley

TEL AVIV — Former President David Ben-Gurion proposed that the Israel Government invite a delegation from Red China to come to Israel to see its achievements and problems as a move to ease Peking's hostility toward Israel. He said that the road to peace in the Middle East lay through Red China and asserted that Red China's influence was contributing to the instability of the region.

He also disclosed that, as Premier, he had been "personally involved" in four attempts at mediation of the Arab-Israel conflict with President Nasser of Egypt. He said one of the attempts was initiated by an American "emissary" of President Eisenhower "and another by a very high State Department official."

The third attempt, he said was made by a British journalist who interviewed Nasser and the fourth through "a friend of Tito," President of Yugoslavia, "who tried to establish contact when Nasser visited Belgrade." All attempts failed, Ben-Gurion said.

roll you will get when coming out of the rough. Strike down at the ball more abruptly with more weight toward the left.

Another typical problem is having the ball in a lie where your backswing is limited. In this case, because your backswing is restricted, take the club back slowly and deliberately as far as you can, keeping your head steady. Hit down firmly through the ball. Make sure the shot is not hurried and don't lunge at the ball.

Being tense and over anxious is the quickest way to destroy a smooth, well executed stroke. A friend told me recently, that he found a remedy for that straight-jacket feeling when making problem shots. He SMILES while he swings. Who knows — maybe it works.

the symbol of the victory of the state over the individual.

Maybe somewhere else: but not in Israel. There were no petitions, no mass meetings, no delegations to City Hall. It's a Jewish state, remember. So, on a single morning, every house on "Kadimah Street" sported a brand new identification plate. The one on the first house on the street read "Bet Aviv, 1." The second house was identified as "Bet Aviv, 2," and so on down "Kadimah Street," every house was "Bet Aviv" something or other. Children in school gave their addresses as "Bet Aviv;" letters sent to residents were directed to "Bet Aviv;" return addresses on letters were given as "Bet Aviv."

To this day, the street is still officially "Kadimah Street"—and there is a sign to prove it. But if you ask the people who live in "Bet Aviv, 1" or "Bet Aviv, 7" or "Bet Aviv, 10," "Where is Kadimah Street?" they will look puzzled, shrug their shoulders and reply, "Kadimah Street? Never heard of it."

"Grossinger's Has Everything!" is the world-famous slogan of the Grossinger Country Club, Grossinger, N. Y., and the resort lives up to that proclamation by providing activities and diversion for vacationers who just want to relax and take things easy as well as for those who want to be on the go all the time. One of the many popular features for more passive vacationers is the art instruction given by prize-winning artist Murray Schlam. His sculpting, painting, drawing, and ceramic classes are delighting vacationers who enjoy mild activity in a pleasant atmosphere with other congenial people.

Boston's Cardinal Cushing Backs Vatican Changes

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. — Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston said last week that he would do his best to "right the wrong of centuries against the Jews by Christians."

In a message from the Cardinal read at the four-state convention of the B'nai B'rith here, Cardinal Cushing said, "We are friends because we are children of the self-same God. We have much to say to one another, but this cannot be said by sociologists. It must be said by theologians."

Cardinal Cushing, who did not appear at the convention because he is recovering from major surgery, was given the B'nai B'rith presidential interfaith award.

Brandeis To Raise Tuition In 1966

WALTHAM — Tuition charges at Brandeis University will increase by $250, effective September, 1966, bringing tuition rate to $1,900 for a full academic year.

The University's policy of limiting tuition increase to no more than one increase during a four-year period will be continued.

Brandeis Dean of Students Kermit C. Morrissey noted that the increase is required to meet the rapidly rising costs of education. "All American colleges and universities," he said, "have been obliged to increase their tuition charges to preserve the quality of service which they offer."

"Educational costs are continuing to rise far faster than the cost of most other goods and services in the nation. This places a great responsibility upon colleges and universities to preserve the quality of opportunity."

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE

Hollywood, Calif. (TCNS) — Georgia Brown, star of David Merrick's musical comedy, "Oliver!" is one of the brightest young Jewish stars to come out of London's flats in the past few decades. Born Lillian Klot, Georgia first came to this country to appear in Merrick's production, which opened in Los Angeles and later went to New York, a strange but successful switch.

Entranced by her beauty, a well-known American painter asked her to pose for a panel, representative of the 17th Century American woman, for the Smithsonian.

"Can you imagine," laughed Georgia later, "a Polish-Russian Jew born at Mother Levy's home in London, named Lilly Klot, being chosen as the typical 17th Century American woman?"

Georgia never did sit for the panel, becoming famous instead as Nancy in "Oliver!" by lending a dedicated intensity to her role and belting out her famous ballad, "As Long as He Needs Me," effectively.

The young Jewish vocalist has a delightful sense of humor. Once, after visiting a barber in New York, she remarked, "He trimmed my hair, cut a little off the ends and for this he charged me $27 and asked permission to claim that he had created my shoulder-length hairdo. Imagine, after I had worn it that way for two years."

She also has her serious side. Although she hasn't made a profession of it, Georgia feels strongly about equal rights for members of all races and religions.

When the young star returned to England from her American successes, a reporter from the London Daily Mail asked how she felt about the United States. Georgia replied, "I feel loved there, much more than in London. Here, ladies of the theater have a great deal of trouble. No matter how good they are, they never get the chances given to men like Albert Finney, Peter Sellers and Peter O'Toole. In America, they regard me as an intelligent, articulate woman."

A few weeks later, one of England's leading film companies brightened the vocalist's opinions about her native land by offering her a $2,000,000 contract. Related Georgia, "They kept sitting around saying, 'What kind of image shall we give Miss Brown?' In the end they decided on a sexy image. Well, I don't mind that but I also wanted to be known as someone who can think for herself."

Polyinely, she rejected the offer.

Georgia grew up with two cravings — Billie Holiday records and chicken soup. She said she has never outgrown either.

How did she get her name? As a youngster, she used to sing, "Sweet Georgia Brown." The name stuck.

Last month, Capitol Records recognized Georgia's talents by releasing her first album, "The Many Shades of Georgia Brown." But one success after another still leaves her level-headed. For example, she talks about her mother Anne and father Mark as if they were famous and she didn't have a fan to her name.

She especially likes to recall her father's bookmaking adventures in his London betting shop. "He was my hero," she said proudly. "I thought he was a big gangster but he goofed because he was too emotional about gambling. He placed bets for himself instead of sticking to bookmaking."

Does she have the same urge to gamble? "That's not for me," said Georgia. "I'm sticking to the stage where the odds are much better."

Congregations Expelled For Kashruth Violations

NEW YORK — Two west coast congregations were disaffiliated from the United Synagogue of America last month for violating the Jewish dietary laws in their synagogues.

The action was taken at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the United Synagogue on June 28, following several months of negotiations with leaders of the two congregations in an attempt to persuade them to discontinue the serving of non-kosher foods in their synagogues.

The congregations against which the disciplinary action was taken are: The Pasadena Jewish Temple and Center, Pasadena, Cal., and the New Foothill Jewish Temple and Center, Arcadia, Cal.

The action was recommended by the United Synagogue's Pacific Southwest Region.

U.S. Officials Concerned About Jews Living In Iraq

NEW YORK — Expressing concern about "information . . . alleging discrimination against Iraqi nationals of the Jewish faith," an official of the International League of the Rights of Man has asked the Iraqi Government for "clarification of these reports regarding the violation of basic human rights."

Roger Baldwin, honorary chairman of the League, sent a memorandum on "Discriminatory Legislation and Practices Affecting Iraqi Jews with Respect to Citizenship, Property and Travel Rights," to Dr. Adnan M. Pachachi, Iraqi Ambassador to the United Nations.

In the memorandum submitted June 23 — the League urges that "the discriminatory legislation be repealed . . . that Iraqi Jews receive the same treatment as other nations . . ." and that those Jews "who have resigned themselves to the loss of their nationality should be helped to obtain alternative documents and should be compensated for their assets."

It is estimated that there are 3,000 Iraqi Jews residing in Iraq and 1,000 living in other countries.

The League, an international non-governmental organization accredited to the UN, is concerned with human rights. The memorandum said:

"It is reported that over a period of time the Government of Iraq has enacted a series of laws and regulations applicable specifically and solely to members of the Jewish faith.

"The culmination is a 1963 law requiring all Iraqi Jews, both within and outside the country, to apply for new identity cards, by August, 1964, or be denationalized and their assets in Iraq be frozen with retroactive effect to December, 1963.

"It is further reported that this law has been applied with great severity and in an arbitrary manner. Some Iraqi consulates have refused on a variety of technicalities and pretexts to legalize applications or to forward individual applications.

"As for the Jews presently residing in Iraq, even those who have been issued new identity cards have been made subject to special regulations restricting their travel outside the country.

"For instance, according to a July, 1964, regulation of the Ministry of the Interior, no Iraqi Jews, with the exception of students, may go abroad for more than one year, even for medical reasons; and in most instances the maximum allowed is four months or less.

"Those Jews who for any reason do not return within the specified period, incur loss of citizenship and freezing of property.

"It is reported that in recent months virtually no Jews have been allowed any travel at all outside Iraq, not even for purposes and for time periods within the limits of these discriminatory regulations.

"Finally, it is reported that not only have innocent persons been subjected to loss of nationality and deprivation of property, but Iraqi officials have on occasion inconsistently refused to provide even those Iraqi Jews abroad who have resigned themselves to loss of their nationality, with documents evidencing such loss, to enable them to obtain alternative travel documents from the countries in which they presently reside."

Students Hold Rallies To Remind Germans

JERUSALEM — Several hundred students met last week on the campus of the Hebrew University in silent demonstration of "spiritual stock-taking" in anticipation of the arrival of the first West German Ambassador.

The participants each wore a pin depicting six burning candles in memory of the 6,000,000 European Jews murdered by the Nazis with an inscription "We shall remember forever." University rector-elect Nathan Rottenstreich told the gathering that West Germany's move to establish diplomatic relations with Israel had been prompted by political and not ethical reasons. He urged his auditors not to forget the Nazi past, declaring that "It is easier to forget than to remember." He said that while Jews must not drown themselves in memories without looking to the future, "we must be rooted in the past."

ONE-BOWL YEAST DOUGH

1/4 cup luke warm water
1 cake yeast
1/2 teasp. sugar
dash of salt
1 1/2 cups luke warm water
1/2 cup sugar
1 teasp. salt
7 cups flour
2 eggs
3 teasp. oil

Combine first 4 ingredients in cup and stir till yeast is dissolved. Let stand a few minutes until mixture bubbles. Place yeast mixture in large mixing bowl; with fork, slowly stir in 1 1/2 cups water, 1/2 cup sugar and 1 teasp. salt. Add 4 cups flour, stir well. Add 2 slightly beaten eggs and oil then remainder of flour. When all ingredients are mixed, cover and place in refrigerator for at least 2 hours before using. Rises in refrigerator. (May be kept a week). When ready to bake, dab a little oil on hands, shape pieces of dough into any desired form, place on lightly floured pan, let rise until doubled in size, bake in 400 oven, 20 to 25 min. Slightly longer if brown roll is desired or preferred.

BANANA CAKE
1/3 cup butter
1 1/4 cups sugar
2 eggs, minus 1 egg white
2 cups flour
pinch salt
1 teasp. baking soda
1 teasp. baking powder
1/4 cup milk
1 teasp. vanilla
3 mashed bananas

Beat butter, sugar and eggs till smooth. Sift flour, salt, baking soda and baking powder and add to above alternately with milk and vanilla. Lastly add the mashed bananas. Grease layer cake pans and bake in 350 oven 25 min. Cover with following icing between layers and on top:

1 egg white beaten stiff; add enough confectioners sugar to spread; flavor with lemon extract.

Mrs. Israel L. Edelstein

GEFILTE FISH
(made from tuna)
2 cans tuna fish (with oil)
1 grated onion
4 eggs
4 tbsp. matzoh meal
little salt and pepper dash garlic powder
pinch sugar
onion, celery, carrots and parsley
1 1/2 cups water

In chopping bowl, place all items from tuna fish to sugar and chop fine. Place in refrigerator about 2 hours. Meanwhile, in about a qt. saucepan, simmer the onion, celery, carrots and parsley, cut up into pieces, in the 1 1/2 cups of water. Make small balls of the tuna fish mixture, place in the saucepan with the vegetables, add about 2 tbsp. butter or shortening, cover pan and cook about 20 min.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Can You Spell Mxlequatzke?

That's a hard one! But a newspaper encounters names that difficult every day. And there's only one way to make sure the spelling is correct . . . to check . . . and check . . . and sometimes triple-check.

Now Smith Is Easy . . .

. . . but is it Smith or Smythe? It is spelled John or Jon? Is it Nelson or Nelsen . . . or Johnson or Johnston? Names are tricky, even the seemingly easy ones. Yet, hard or easy, a newspaper is expected to have them right.

Hundreds of Names Every Issue

All spelled correctly . . . Hladky, Parseghian, Bjornson, Prybsch, Laderfield, Prycha . . . on and on. Is it any wonder we make a mistake now and then?

But Accuracy Is the Watchword

We'll do all possible to spell your name correctly . . . and all the others . . . all of the time. That's one of the rules for a reliable newspaper. And we feel that our newspaper is reliable!

RHODE ISLAND JEWISH HERALD

Mrs. Allen S. Zenofsky

Rabbi Saul Leeman and Cantor Jack Smith officiated at the wedding of Miss Miriam Sue Margolis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Margolis of 71 Shippee Avenue, West Warwick, to Allan Sumner Zenofsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Zenofsky of 97 Summit Avenue, on Sunday, July 11. The 6 P.M. candlelight ceremony was held at the Cranston Jewish Center, and a reception followed at the Center.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza fashioned with an empire waist, elbow length sleeves edged with beads, and a slight A-line skirt which ended in a detachable Watteau train. The bodice was set off by a design of crystal beads. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion fell from a circular band of crystal beads. She carried a cascade of white phalaenopsis orchids and blue delphinium.

Miss Anita Louise Soltz was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Frances Lissoff, Miss Martha Margolis, Miss Marjorie Horn, and Mrs. David Bouthillier. The attendants were dressed in floor length gowns of silk illusion with scoop necklines, bodices flecked with appliques of flowered beads, and empire waistlines edged with velvet. They wore matching hats and carried cascades of white starlight Fuji mums and foliage.

Joel Zenofsky served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Lawrence Soltz, David Bouthillier, Steve Kirsner and Barry Glucksman.

After a wedding trip to Europe, the couple will reside at 184 Rochambeau Avenue.

teachers' groups — academic freedom, and racial integration, for example.

"The legislature must establish, as a matter of public policy, that school administrators shall not be members of teachers' organizations nor involved in policy making . . . We need this in education, so if there is abuse, the other side will be strong enough to bring it to the attention of the public. There is not enough of a division of power between the employees and the employer . . . you must restrict employer domination of employee organizations."

Dr. Lieberman said that he personally thought what the Pawtucket teachers were asking was quite reasonable. "To go fighting for tenure for married women at this time is absurd." He did not think the present situation is quite so simple as the "over-reaction" to a past history of political patronage which has been suggested. The teachers aren't very skilful in presenting their case, he added, but the basic procedure is faulty. The school board had no legal obligation to meet with teachers or their representatives, and this, the Dean thinks, is a situation that the public must realize. "We're lumbering along with a procedure way behind the time."

The National Institute on Collective Negotiations in Public Education may awaken Rhode Islanders — teachers and taxpayers alike — to what has been, can be and should be done by collective negotiation. Institute Director is Stanley Elam, editor of Phi Delta Kappa Publications; Assistant Director, Michael Moskow, consultant on employee relations, Philadelphia Board of Education, and Dr. Lieberman is RIC Coordinator.

Speakers were Charles Cogen, president, American Federation of Teachers; Donald Wollett, National Education Association attorney for teacher negotiations; Dr. Arnold Wolpert, NEA director of urban services; Tom Parker, executive secretary of the Nova Scotia Teachers' Union and past president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation; William H. Curtis, superintendent, Manchester, Conn., and vice-president of the American Association of School Administrators.

Officials Blame 'Madman' In Anti-Semitic Attacks

BAMBERG, West Germany — Additional anti-Semitic incidents occurred here last weekend, bringing the total of such actions to eight since the middle of June.

The latest acts included the dumping of paint over the memorial; daubing of yellow paint on a sign of the textile business conducted here by Herzy Rosenberg, president of the Bamberg Jewish Community; and the smearing of swastikas and nazi slogans on a wall of the United States munitions depot here.

In the latter action, the nazi slogan "Stieg Heil!" was painted; the emblem of the SS was superimposed, the American Army was denounced, and an inscription, in German, declared "We are the new German resistance movement and call out: Germany Awake. After 20 years, our folk demands a general amnesty. Our Fatherland does not need any Jewish tutelage."

Although Bamberg residents have offered $5,000 in rewards for the apprehension of the perpetrators of the outrages, no one to date has been arrested for these acts.

The police chief said that the new incidents must have been carried out "within a matter of seconds."

Asserting that police, augmented by volunteers, have been on guard around the clock, he said "It is impossible to guard every building."

Chief prosecutor Franz Ostheimer declared it is his belief that the actions are not the work of a group "but of a single madman."

Rudolf Hanauer, president of the Municipal Council, defended the general population of the city, stating that "nobody should be made responsible for the deeds of some madman and perverted criminal."

Nevertheless, there was disappointment here in the fact that, thus far, nobody in this city of 73,000 has been arrested in connection with the desecrations.

Last week anti-Semitic smearings included some aimed at Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Anti-Semitic stickers were pasted on the buildings and anti-Semitic scribblings painted on them. One of the scribblings read "This is for Erhard, the Flunkey of the Jews." The Chancellor visited Bamberg recently to condemn the vandalism.

The continued smearings in West German towns are being played down in press, radio and television coverage out of fear that publicity would stimulate more German youths to emulate the vandals.

Conversions To Reform Judaism Have Tripled

NEW YORK — Conversions to Reform Judaism in this area have tripled in the last decade according to a report from the New York Federation of Reform Synagogues.

A study, based on ten years of conversion classes conducted at the House of Living Judaism, 838 Fifth Avenue, shows that:

Conversions have become more readily acceptable in our social structure; converts are extremely devoted and dedicated members of the Jewish faith with a large majority joining synagogues; and that in Judaism, marriage accounts for 90% of the converts.

In additional interviews analyzing the ten years of classes, leaders of Reform Judaism continue to stress that Jewish religious groups will only convert non-Jews who are no longer identified with another faith. However, a number of Reform Jewish laymen and rabbis desire that the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, national congregational body of 660 Reform temples in the United States and Canada pursue a more aggressive campaign to win the unchurched and unsynagogued.

The Federation, a regional affiliate of the UAHC, conducts conversion classes for its 101 member Reform temples in the greater metropolitan area and eastern Connecticut. Reform temples in nearby New Jersey also send their converts to the classes.

The report, covering the years 1954-64, stated that the classes, which were initiated by the Federation a decade ago, had grown in enrollment from less than one hundred to more than three hundred annually.

This year, from January to the middle of June, 150 students entered the course — 45 men and 105 women. 91 of this group completed the nine week course in basic Judaism, and their conversion ceremonies are taking place during the next number of weeks.

EXPANSION PROGRAM
JERUSALEM — A new five-year $17,000,000 expansion program approved this week will enable the Hebrew University to increase its student capacity in the natural sciences by fifty per cent.
