GJC To Launch 21st Annual Campaign

GJC Initial Gifts Dinner Meeting To Complete Plans For 1965-66 Drive

The 1965 campaign of the General Jewish Committee of Providence will be launched on Tuesday evening, Sept. 21, at the home of Merrill L. Hassenfeld, GJC president.

This year's fund-raising drive, the 21st annual campaign, is being conducted against a background of ever-increasing tensions in the mid-East and increasing needs of the 53 overseas, national and local beneficiary agencies of the GJC.

Serving as co-chairmen of the Initial Gifts Division are Leonard I. Salmanson and Edwin S. Sofor-enko.

Mr. Alperin said the Initial Gifts Division sets the tone for the entire campaign and it is important that it lead the way toward a most successful fund-raising drive.

An added factor in this year's campaign is the loss of reparations payments annually of seven million dollars from West Germany to the Joint Distribution Committee, one of the principal beneficiary agencies of the UJA.

For the past eleven years the JDC has received this sum an-

Mrs. Harry Elkin Named Principal Of Hebrew School

Bernard J. Margolis, chairman of the Community Hebrew High School of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Providence, announces the appointment of Mrs. Harry Elkin as principal of the Community Hebrew High School. As in previous years the school will be divided into two departments, the advanced and the regular.

The first class of the advanced department is open to all the students who completed the ninth grade at the Providence Hebrew Day School, or have an equivalent Hebrew background. The first class of the regular department is open to students who completed five years of study at an afternoon synagogue school.

The advanced department of the Community Hebrew High School offers 4 1/2 hours of weekly instruction. Classes will meet on Sundays at the Providence Hebrew Day School, 450 Elm Grove Avenue, from 9:00 A.M. to 12:00. The weekday session will be held on Tuesday or Thursday at the Bureau office, 76 Dorrance Street, Room 505.

The regular department of the Hebrew High School offers 3 hours of weekly instruction with classes meeting twice weekly. In addition, students meet on Sundays at their respective synagogues for a session in Bible and Jewish History. Three new first-year classes will be opened, one to meet at the Bureau office, and two at the Cranston Jewish Center.

The faculty of the Community Hebrew High School consists of the following: Joel Braude, Rabbi Nahman Cohen, Samuel S. Cohen, Mrs. Harry Elkin, Mrs. Stanley Kupinsky, Mordecai Shapiro and Dr. Aaron Soviv.

Classes begin Sunday, September 12, 1965. All students have been notified by mail about the time and place of their classes.

Canadian Nazis Mail More Hate Leaflets

TORONTO — Despite the ban on hate mail, Canadian agents of the international neo-Nazi conspiracy continued to use the mails to disseminate vicious and obscene anti-Semitic leaflets. The latest piece of printed dirt originating from Stockholm is titled: The Truth to the People. The sub-title states: No Gas Chambers.

The leaflet, printed by the Stockholm Boktryckeri in Stockholm, Sweden (1964), states that according to a certain Dr. Kautsky, "a Jew himself" who allegedly had spent seven years in concentration camps (including three years in Auschwitz), there were no such installations as gas chambers.

"The Jews," are warned that "the day will come when the bodies of your foul people will be simply low grade fertilizer."

Reorganize Drive Structure For More Effective Solicitation

The broader community phase of the 21st annual campaign of the General Jewish Committee of Providence will be officially "kicked-off" at the newly organized Community Solicitations Division workers dinner on Thursday evening, September 30, at the Colony Motor Hotel.

Steadily increasing tensions in the mid-East, the loss of seven million dollars annual reparations payments, increasing needs of the United Jewish Appeal to continue its life-saving programs and a continuing high level of immigration to Israel, combine to make this one of the most urgent campaigns in the history of the GJC.

Stanley Grossman, General Campaign Chairman, said the Jewish residents of Greater Providence not only are being called on to help the UJA meet its national goal of $109,400,000 but also to help defray the loss of the seven million dollars in reparations payment from West Germany to the Joint Distribution Committee.

Mr. Grossman and Harold Leavitt, chairman of the Community Solicitations Division, urge everyone to give generously to the 1965 campaign so that the Greater Providence area can contribute its just share to the UJA goal to help make up the loss of the reparations payments.

Associate Campaign Chairmen for 1965 are Joseph W. Ress, Judge Frank Licht and Joseph Thaler.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld, GJC president, noted that the UJA in 27 years has helped to save and rebuild the lives of more than three million Jewish victims of war and oppression. In 1965, he pointed out, the UJA is being called upon to help a total of 741,650 men, women and children in 30 countries.

In addition, Mr. Grossman called attention to the increased needs of the 13 local beneficiary agencies.

The campaign structure for 1965 was reorganized to acquire broader coverage of the Jewish community and to recruit new people for both the campaign and communal work.

The major change was the formation of the Community Solicitations Division headed by Harold Leavitt as chairman, and Harold Tregar as co-chairman.

The Community Solicitations Division covers Trades and Industry, Professional division, Area division, Service Organizations, Fraternal Groups, and the Young Executive Group. Each of these sub-divisions has its own chairman.

The newly-organized Young Executive Group headed by Lawrence Y. Goldberg and Milton I. Brier, co-chairmen, comprises young business executives and professional people.

GJC Women's Workshop Conference To Be Addressed By Henry Levy

Henry Levy, head of the Joint Distribution Committee's operations in Latin America, will be the guest speaker at the 1965 campaign Workshop Conference for the GJC Women's Division on Thursday, Sept. 14, at the home of Mrs. Leonard Granoff.

The Workshop Conference is being held for the Pace Setters, Initial Gifts and Vital Gifts Workers of the Women's Division campaign. The purpose of the workshop is to enable the workers to meet and become better acquainted with their chairmen and captains and discuss details of the 1965 General Jewish Committee campaign of the Women's Division.

Mr. Levy helped to liberate survivors of Nazi concentration camps and served as director of emigration at the Paris office of the JDC and also in Tunisia and Algeria. He also directed JDC's activities in Bulgaria and later on in Czechoslovakia.

The Joint Distribution Committee is a member agency of the UJA, and it aids Jews in 30 countries, including Israel.

Prior to accepting a post with the JDC following the Allied victory in World War II, Mr. Levy served in the New York City Welfare department after graduating from New York University. He later joined the American Red Cross as the Home Service Director for the U. S. Air Force in England.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld, GJC president, also will address the Workshop Conference. He will describe the needs of the local bene-fiary agencies of the GJC and the urgency of these needs.

The annual seven million dollar reparations payment by the West German government has been ended and the UJA has called upon the American Jewish community to make up this amount. Nationally, the Women's Division of the UJA has agreed to make up one million dollars of this amount. Contributors to the GJC Women's Division campaign are being urged to increase their gifts in order that the Greater Providence Jewish women can do their share in raising the added amount so that the needs of Jews in some 30 countries can be met.

GUEST SPEAKER — Bernard D. Grossman, of Boston, a member of the National Campaign Cabinet of the nationwide United Jewish Appeal and a leading New England industrialist, banker and civic leader will speak at a Blackstone Valley United Jewish Appeal campaign parlor meeting to be held Wednesday evening, September 15th at the home of Harry A. Schwartz, Initial Gifts chairman of the drive.

Mr. Grossman served in 1963 as general chairman of the Combined Philanthropies of Greater Boston, and is a member of its Board of Trustees. He is a director of the Northeastern Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews; a Corporation Member of the Jewish Family and Children's Service of Boston; a Director of the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center; and a Director of the Jewish Memorial Hospital.

Destitute Israelis Seek Aid In Bonn

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Government indicated its annoyance last week over the practice of some persons holding Israeli passports who have drifted, jobless, into Germany, where they demand repatriation to Israel. The issue was taken up Monday by the Foreign Ministry, in consultation with other government branches here, in an effort to halt the practice.

The number of indigent Israelis in West Germany has increased considerably since Bonn abolished the need for entry visas for those holding Israeli passports, as a result of the diplomatic relations recently established between the two countries.

Some Israelis who were stranded with no means of support in other European countries have sought refuge in Germany and, in many instances, have appealed to the German authorities on the basis of past crimes committed against the Jews. Israeli officials in Germany have reported that this approach has caused "much chagrin."

ATOMIC BOMB CAPABILITY
WASHINGTON — Israel is among a number of nations around the world capable of producing an atomic bomb, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, declared here recently.

Israeli Theoretical Physicist, Dr. Giulio Racah, 56, Dies

ROME— Dr. Giulio Racah, Israeli theoretical physicist and rector of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, died after a heart attack in Florence, the city of his birth, on Aug. 28. He was 56 years old.

Professor Racah had headed the Hebrew University's department of theoretical physics since his arrival in Jerusalem 26 years ago. He was the mentor of the generation of Israeli physicists that ran the army's research program, the nuclear physics department of the Weizmann Institute of Science and the secret atomic reactor at Dimona.

He began his work in atomic spectroscopy, the study of various atomic spectra from which information on the structure of the atom can be obtained, shortly after his arrival in Jerusalem.

At Oak Ridge, Tenn., at the atomic energy plant of Canada at Chalk River, at the Astrophysical Observatory in Tokyo and in other parts of the world, books of tables in use are based on the "Racah Coefficient," a geometrical quantity connected with the orientation of electrons in atoms or nucleons in nuclei.

Professor Racah had been visiting his mother in Florence when he died. He had been on his way to Amsterdam to participate in the Zeeman Centennial Conference on Atomic Spectroscopy.

He was a descendant of a Jewish family that traced its roots to Italy in the period of the Jewish dispersal from what was then Palestine in the first century. He showed remarkable gifts of scientific analysis and mathematics at an early age. He attended the University of Rome, where he studied under Enrico Fermi, who later constructed the first atomic pile at the University of Chicago. He also studied in Zurich under Wolfgang Pauli, the Nobel Prize winner.

From 1950 to 1951 he attended the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton University. When Albert Einstein died in 1955, Dr. Racah said at a memorial meeting in Jerusalem:

"Now with Einstein's death we do not know how much time must elapse—perhaps hundreds of years—before another genius arises who will realize the last dream of the genius of our generation."

Professor Racah was referring to Einstein's unfinished researches on electric and magnetic forces as well as inertia and gravitation.

At the age of 28 he was appointed professor at the University of Pisa but his Italian academic career was cut short in 1938 when the Mussolini Government adopted its anti-Semitic policy. The following year he went to Jerusalem where he was engaged immediately by the Hebrew university.

In 1961, he was elected rector. His term of office was to expire in October. One of his first moves was to provide for the teaching of medical courses in English and French for the benefit of African and Asian students trained in those languages.

Before the establishment of Israel, the physicist combined scholarly activities with underground work.

During the Palestine fighting in 1947-48, which resulted in the separation of the Hebrew University campus on Mount Scopus from the rest of the Israeli sector of Jerusalem, Professor Racah was deputy commander of the Haganah, the Jewish underground, on the mount.

Professor Racah was chairman of the science section of the Israeli Academy of Sciences and Humanities from 1960 to 1963.

Lachish Celebrates 10th Anniversary

KIRYAT GAT — The Lachish regional development area, which extends over nearly 400 square miles midway between Tel Aviv and Beersheba, recently celebrated its 10th anniversary at a ceremony attended by Prime Minister Levi Eshkol here.

Lachish was Israel's first large-scale experiment in integrated regional settlement. It today comprises over 60 cooperative or collective villages, half a dozen rural centers and the central town of Kiryat Gat, with a regional population of almost 30,000. Most of the inhabitants of the Lachish area are new immigrants.

The Kiryat Gat "Development Company," initiated by the Histadrut to encourage local industrial development, has been instrumental in the city's growth from a semi-rural townlet into an industrial, administrative, commercial and cultural center for the whole area. Kiryat Gat's leading enterprises include the country's largest sugar refinery, processing beet grown in many of the region's agricultural villages, a large textile factory, a cotton spinning mill and cotton gins, a diamond-cutting plant, and electronic equipment and adhesive tape factories.

Catholic Layman Heads Maccabiah Backers

JERSEY CITY, N.J. — A Catholic layman served as chairman of a committee started by the "Jewish Standard," local English-language Jewish weekly, which raised more than $3,000 to enable two New Jersey athletes to take part in the Seventh Maccabiah Games.

The athletes were Richie Levy, miler of Bayonne, and Ira Wolfe, a hammer thrower from North Bergen, who qualified in Hudson County competition. When the "Jewish Standard" learned that funds to send athletes to the games were raised through contributions, it began a campaign to raise $3,000. Al Bundles, president of the Newark Archdiocesan Federation of Holy Names Societies, directed the drive.

ELECTED PRESIDENT
PAWTUCKET — Samuel M. Shlevin was elected president of the Blackstone Valley unit of the American Cancer Society. It was announced recently. The president of Presco's department store in Pawtucket, Mr. Shlevin, was the Blackstone Valley Unit's 1965 Cancer Crusade Chairman. He is president-emeritus of Henry Friedman Lodge, B'nai B'rith, Pawtucket; past chairman of the United Jewish Appeal D-day; member of Pawtucket Kiwanis and vice president of the Hebrew Free Loan Society, Pawtucket. Mr. Shlevin, 48, is married to the former Irene Labush. The couple have three children and live at 224 Raleigh Ave., Pawtucket.

News and Business Review

OUTLOOK FOR 1965
Improved foreign trade figures during the first months of 1965 were quoted when the Annual Report of the Bank of Israel 1964 was recently released. Governor Horowitz drew attention to the fact that the trade balance is determined to a large extent by the country's monetary policy. He had forecast last October that, if credit and purchasing power were kept in check, the shortage of liquidity created by the widened trade deficit would be an instrument for narrowing the gap again.

CONTROL OF LAND USE
Shocked by land speculation and the rising spiral of land prices, the Israel Government has voted to cease selling state lands, which account for over 90 per cent of the country's territory.

With the formation of the "Alignment", as a first step to a political merger between the major Government party Mapai and Ahdut Avoda — a faction imbued with the ideology of pioneering — the Cabinet has resolved henceforth only to lease and not to sell.

The policy is not altogether new. The Jewish National Fund was created when Zionist settlement first began, in order to buy up land acre by acre for the Jewish people. Israel's agriculture is based to this day on nationally-owned land, leased to the settlers. Nor is there any intention of dispossessing existing landowners.

STANDARDIZING OUTPUT
In order to make possible longer production runs and achieve the accompanying economies of mass production, the Government is endeavouring to foster standardization wherever Israel's manufacturers are indulging an unnecessary proliferation of varieties.

A factory making doors is having to produce them in 34 different measures, because each architect imposes his preferences. A plant making barrels for paints, kerosene, insecticides, etc., has to produce 48 different sizes, though 12 would be ample, in the view of Avner Peretz, Chief Engineer at the Ministry of Commerce and Industry.

WHAT KIND OF CAR?
Although two plants are assembling cars in Israel, no serious attempt has yet been made to develop a viable local motor manufacturing industry. Leyland truck — and bus — manufacturing enterprise in Ashdod, which was granted in 1961 a five-year monopoly of the internal market undertook that it would achieve a 50 per cent added value by the end of that period.

Meanwhile the market for cars in the country has soared, from 3,600 sales in the year 1959/60 to 14,400 in the year 1964/65. Despite tariff protection, the locally assembled models — the Studebaker Lark and the Japanese Contessa 900, the Carmel saloon and the Sussita station-waggon — have not yet achieved between them as many as 3,000 sales a year. Israelis prefer imported models, even though the Contessa costs IL. 8,950 (including IL. 4,150 of tax) whereas a comparable imported vehicle like the Simca 1000 costs IL. 13,400 (including IL. 8,700 of taxes).

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS
A growing flow of traffic is beginning to press on the limits of Israel's road capacity, despite the five-year IL. 140 million highway construction project now being completed with the aid of a $22 million World Bank loan.

Vehicles density went up from 17.3 per km. of inter-urban route in 1955 to 42.8 in 1963. The real bottlenecks are nevertheless inside the big cities and, secondly, along the approaches to Tel Aviv and Haifa. A third problem concerns the re-routing of the country's internal traffic as the new port of Ashdod comes into operation. After over four years of construction, it will be ready to harbour cargo vessels this November.

Kibbutz Life Familiar To Marlboro Musicians

JERUSALEM— "Kibbutz life isn't all farm machinery," said Otto Cohen, a founder of 37-year-old Kibbutz-Givat Brenner, to Marlboro musicians last week. The soloists, whose visit was the hit of the Israel Music Festival, took time off to visit the large, prosperous cooperative settlement.

When Mr. Cohen showed the musicians the centrally-posted work schedule, one of them said, "Just like ours."

"We try to give people the kind of work they like," Mr. Cohen said. There was a ripple of laughter from the musicians, whose own work schedules range from K.P. to assignments for Stravinsky's "Les Noces."

"Do you live in dormitories?" asked another musician, seeking something to compare with conditions on the campus of Marlboro College.

"No, no, no, no," said Mr. Cohen indignantly. He took them past the four-family buildings that dot the kibbutz.

"They look like dorms to me," one of the visitors remarked quietly to a colleague.

Mr. Cohen recounted the history of the kibbutz movement, why it has succeeded ("Basically because it's voluntary — nobody is forced in.") and how it works. He waited until he was asked, however, before he discussed the cultural activities.

"We have a 60-member orchestra," he said. "We don't compete with Marlboro, of course, but we think we do well."

"We also have a mandolin orchestra, a choreographer, a dramatic teacher and a library of 40,000 books."

HUNGARIAN JEWS
LONDON — The Hungarian Government film studios have announced the start of production on a film which will depict the extermination of Hungarian Jews during the Nazi occupation, it was reported here this week from Budapest.

Pole Aided By Group He Saved

NEW YORK — Sixty New York Jewish men, women and children met recently in a Bronx restaurant to honor a Polish Catholic who saved eight of the adults from the Nazi annihilation program in occupied Galicia during World War II.

The eight adults were among 32 Jews saved by Staszek Jackow, 54, coachman of Stanislaw, who managed to hide the intended victims for two years in a cellar in his home, only a few doors from the local headquarters of the Gestapo. When the Russians liberated Stanislaw, the Jews left Europe and, later, settled in various parts of the world, including New York and Buenos Aires.

Last April, they arranged to bring Jackow to New York. Later his wife and three sons were brought to the U.S. with the aid of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. (D., N.Y.), to whom the rescued Jews appealed for aid.

Jackow has since been helped by an informal committee of the survivors, headed by Jacob Spiegel, owner of a New York neckwear factory. The committee has collected $12,000 to aid Jackow and his family with all the problems of adjusting to a new country. Jackow hopes eventually to become an American citizen.

Recently, the committee arranged for temporary residence for the Jackow family in a Manhattan hotel. Several weeks ago, he and his family moved into a Bronx apartment located by the owner of the restaurant where the meeting was held last week. The owner is one of the 32 who owe their lives to Jackow. Because Jackow is unable to work on his visitor's visa, the committee is paying his rent.

Mrs. Robert Louis Lubin

Rabbi Saul Leeman officiated at the marriage of Miss Karen Louise Saltzman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saltzman of 409 Montgomery Avenue, to Robert Louis Lubin on Sunday, Sept. 5, at the Cranston Jewish Center. The 6 P.M. ceremony was followed by a reception at the Center. Mr. Lubin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lubin of 64 Sargent Avenue.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory peau de sole gown. The bolero and front panel were appliqued in reemboirdered Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her sheath skirt swept into a full Directoire back, ending in an appliqued court train. Her silk tulle veil fell from a cap of imported mother of pearl flowers and leaves. She carried orchids and stephanotis on her mother's Bible.

Her sister, Mrs. Paul Feldman of San Francisco, was matron of honor, and Miss Janie Aronson was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Feldman, Miss Suzanne Flint, Miss Brenda Gitman and Miss Luba Isreal. They wore long gold and peach chiffon gowns with matching headpieces.

Richard Saltzman, the bride's brother, was best man. Ushers were Steven Cotler, Sheldon Scollard, Robert Halpern and William Lewis.

After a wedding trip to the Nevele Hotel in New York, the couple will live at 64 Wood Street, Pawtucket.

WIDOW WITH $159 A MONTH
FINDS A GOOD RETIREMENT

Mrs. Noncetta Gephart is retired on an income of $159 a month, is quite happy with things, and is managing so well she doesn't bother to spend the interest she makes on her savings.

Which is going to upset a lot of wives who are yelling "Poverty!" When their husbands come home with $300 pensions.

Mrs. Gephart retired in 1961. She got Social Security of $99 a month and a pension of $60. "I own my own home," she says. "I live downstairs where I have four rooms and a bath. Upstairs I have an apartment and two sleeping rooms. Right now I have one room rented out and ask only $8 a month for it. I would keep the other rooms rented if I had a hard time. But I don't . . ."

Mrs. Gephart spends $265 a year for taxes on her home and $33 for insurance. She says she spends money about the same as she spent it before she retired and travels about the same. She has two grandchildren and buys things for them about as before.

"I had planned a trip earlier this year and it was to cost $300. I saved for it. But when the time came I decided to use the money instead to install new kitchen cabinets which I've wanted for years. If I had taken the trip, at the end of it I would have had nothing to show. But the kitchen cabinets I will enjoy as long as I live in this house."

She does her own decorating on the house, filling the plaster cracks and scraping the walls and ceilings before painting them. "I like the work," she says. She also takes care of a large lawn. This spring she rented a spreader from a nearby hardware store to reseed and fertilize it.

"I have never owned a car," she continues. "Always thought I couldn't afford it. People say that if you don't need a car to get back and forth to work it is a luxury. I lived, and still do, about half a block from where I worked."

"I certainly don't feel I am in the poverty class, even though I live on the $159 a month, plus the $8. I don't need to rush to the grocery to get my checks cashed. Sometimes I have on hand as many as four checks I haven't needed to cash. I earn interest of about $593 a year on savings I have. I don't need it and just add it to the savings."

Last Thanksgiving Mrs. Gephart took a trip to visit her brother and his wife. The fare was $30, by bus. On Christmas she made a trip to visit her grandchildren, again for about $30, and again by bus.

"I don't see any difference in my way of life since I retired."

To live happily in retirement on a $159 income, a single woman must have a concept of life that bypasses the Joneses and the folderol, and must know how to manage. Many people now retiring don't have the first and never learned the second.

Five Killed In Winery Explosion

TEL AVIV — Five persons were burned alive recently in Binyamina in a fire caused by an explosion in an alcohol fermentation vat in the Ellaz Wine Cellars. A Labor Ministry inspector said that it appeared the blast had been caused by ignition of alcohol fumes from sparks on a nearby welding operation. Eight persons suffered injuries in the blast, and two of them were reported still in critical condition.

The victims were a Jerusalem woman and her 14-year-old son, an 18-year-old girl and two male workers.

Herald Recipes

YASAI NO TEMPURA
(VEGETABLES IN BATTER)
1/2 pound string beans
3 medium-sized carrots
1/2 medium-sized eggplant, peeled
1 large stalk celery
2 large sweet onions
2 medium-sized sweet potatoes
1 medium-sized white potato
1 double recipe Tempura batter
All vegetables should be cut into 3-inch strips, washed, dried, and kept cold and crisp until ready to fry. Eggplant should be soaked for one half hour, changing water three times, then dried and cut. Dip in batter and fry as in Ebi No Tempura recipe.

NOTE: These are frequently served together with fish tempura. To serve such a dinner, set sauce out in small saucers for each person. Serve a bowl of fluffy rice to each person. The batter-fried foods are brought in on a large platter and served on individual rice bowls. Dip in sauce as desired.

NIMONO
(BOILED MEAT, FISH OR VEGETABLE, FLAVORED WITH SOY SAUCE, SUGAR, AND SHERRY)

1 onion, sliced
1/4 pound mushrooms, sliced
1 tablespoon oil
4 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons sherry
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons soup stock
6 slices boiled chicken breast
1/2 pound green peas, cooked
3 eggs
1 small can bamboo shoots, drained (optional)
Saute onion and mushroom slices in oil. Add seasonings, sherry and soup stock. Lay slices of chicken over this mixture. Add cooked peas. Cover closely and boil for ten minutes. Beat eggs well and spread over chicken. Cook until the eggs set. To serve cut into six portions as if dividing a pie. Serve one piece to each person in a deep bowl with some of the broth poured over each serving. Bamboo shoots may be added with the peas if desired. Serves 6.
Variation: 1/2 pound cooked string beans may be used instead of peas. Any light-flavored cooked fish may be used instead of chicken.

KNISHES
(COCKTAIL SNACKS)

Dough
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 eggs, well beaten
Fillings
Meat
2 cups ground cooked meat or chicken
1/2 cup bread crumbs
1 cup meat gravy salt, pepper
Liver
1 minced onion sauteed in oil
1 tablespoon chicken fat
1 pound ground cooked liver
1 egg
1/2 cup cooked kasha salt, pepper
Dough: Sift dry ingredients together. Form a well. Add water, oil and eggs. Form into a smooth dough. On a floured board, roll dough to 1/8 inch thickness. Spread desired filling over dough and roll up. Slice diagonally into 1 inch widths. Place on a greased pan and bake at 350 degrees until brown. Fillings: Combine ingredients thoroughly for each filling.

CAROLINA SALAD
1 cup raw cranberries
1 cup sugar
1 package kosher lemon gelatin
1/2 cup boiling water
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
1 small can crushed pineapple
Grind cranberries. Combine with sugar. Let stand for several hours. Dissolve gelatin in 1/2 cup of boiling water. Stir in orange juice, orange rind, and crushed pineapple. Pour into a mold. Chill. To serve, unmold and place on crisp lettuce leaves, garnished with mayonnaise. Serves 3 to 4.

Their Deeds Forgotten

"It is fitting that we should honor these forgotten men who gave their lives in the continuing war against Communist aggression," said a Young Americans for Freedom spokesman last week. The three men proposed for honor were Nazi soldiers of Russian descent, who committed suicide in a United States prisoner of war camp in 1945. They found suicide preferable to repatriation to Russia, where they would have been tried as war criminals.

Despite the fact that wartime makes strange allies, and that many Americans have been censured for their words and deeds when Russia was our companion in arms, this is the strangest rehabilitation on record. The three Russian Nazis, pursued by their own country, had been captured fighting American liberation forces in Europe. They were traitors to communism and to Russia. Now, in a democratic society, to call them "freedom fighters" is to use communist terminology in defense of fascists.

The memorial service for the three Nazis will be held on September 19, the very day when a week-long National Eternal Light Vigil for Soviet Jewry will begin. President Lyndon B. Johnson, earlier this year, said, "It is my hope that citizens and organizations of all faiths will join in an overwhelming expression of moral concern for the Jews of the Soviet Union."

So while thousands of Americans observe in Washington a vigil for Soviet Jews, a handful of other Americans will do reverence to three members of an army which committed atrocities against Jews.

New Auto Buying Plans At Peak
An estimated 14,118,000 men and women visited a new car dealer's showroom during the month of June alone, an additional 8,909,000 had plans to visit a new car showroom and 19,590,000 were "prime prospects" for cars, reports the market analysis firm of Sindlinger & Co.

If only a thin majority of the 19,590,000 actually buy, our record-smashing auto boom in 1965 could carry over into another record-smashing auto boom in 1966.

Who are those 19,590,000? Sindlinger's findings here are highly thought-provoking.

Only 5.6 per cent do not own a car now. A fat 62.7 per cent — 12,280,000 — own one car; 26.5 per cent own two cars; 4.2 per cent own three; and 1 per cent own four or more automobiles.

While 50.8 per cent are married men and 4 per cent are single employed men, a huge 42.8 per cent of all prime prospects are women. Most are married living with their husbands but a respectable 7.6 per cent are single, separated, divorced or widows.

They are evenly divided between blue and white collar workers.

Of the total, 91.3 per cent read newspapers on a typical day, 68.3 per cent listen to the radio and 63.3 per cent watch TV.

The average annual household income of the prime prospects is $9,010, the average age of the household head is 42 1/2 and the average size of the household is between three and four persons.

Now what does all this imply? Surely, a first giant implication stems just from the size of the numbers. With 1965 going down as the greatest year ever for new car purchases on top of other great years, the widespread assumption is that there must be a perceptible letdown in 1966. But maybe the assumption is not as valid as it has seemed. Maybe all the projections should be revised upward. In another study, Sindlinger finds that the Viet Nam war is distinctly influencing automobile buying plans — on balance favorably at this time. In households where a member is in the reserves, there is caution and some decrease in buying plans. But more buying plans are being increased in households which expect the arms build-up to increase prices, jobs and incomes.

A second key point is the extent of multiple-car ownership. The proportion owning three or more cars is 5.2 per cent — almost identical to the proportion of prime prospects owning no car. The proportion owning at least two cars is a whopping 31.7 per cent. In millions of homes across the country, two cars have become a necessity; in homes where there are teen-agers less than two cars is a downright hardship. Again, maybe all the projections on multiple-car ownership should be revised upward.

A third key point is the ever

The Newport Folk Festival, Part VII; Festival Future In Newport

"It all comes off in a panoramic sense...it's like a giant fair of folk music..." His name was Theo Bikel, and this is how he characterized the 1965 Newport Folk Festival.

Ever since I heard "If I Had A Hammer" the way Peter, Paul and Mary communicated it lyrically back in the summer of '62, I have liked folk music. I like all of it, from Dylan's "Like a Rolling Stone" to Tom Rush's "Panama Limited," which I think is the single most beautiful piece of guitar work I have ever heard.

And after being at Newport, I like it even more.

The folk musicians to whom I am most closely attached are those who sing three kinds of folk: ballads (Joan Baez and "Barbara Allen"); protest songs ("And The War Drags On," Donovan); and songs in a general category, like Pete Seeger and "Bimini," a sing-along; Theo Bikel's musings about sloppy shepherds, "schlephers"; Ted Barr and Steve McGinness' "Bricks In My Pillow Blues"; and Peter, Paul and Mary, "Puff."

That encompasses a great deal of music, but leaves out fiddlers and ethnic musicians. I haven't acquired any taste for American country and western music, but I definitely am entranced by people like Mississippi John Hurt, who is a fantastic human being. I am equally attracted to ethnic and traditional musicians; and although I prefer the types I mentioned in the last paragraph, I like the traditional and ethnic almost as well.

What all this indicates, I suppose, is that I like a greater variety of folk music than I had pre-growing importance of women in the auto market place. That 42.8 per cent of all prime prospects are women is astounding to me — yet, my personal observations suggest this is factual. In most families, the wife is a crucial factor in the decision on whether to buy a new car as well as what make to buy. "Having or not having female prime prospects can be the difference between profit and loss," Sindlinger remarks. While the automakers are acutely aware of the importance of women in the market place, perhaps here to the projections should be revised upward.

Finally, the average household income of the new car buyers and the balance between blue and white collar workers underline how middle class this market is.

The Sindlinger surveys flash a signal that another back-to-back-to-back auto boom year could be shaping up. If autos do continue to add power to our economic upturn, the whole outlook for 1966 will be brightened.

viously suspected. I don't go for fiddlers or for loud biblical/traditional stuff, like the Swan Silver-tones belted out in 1964, the "God Is Gonna Getcha If Ya Don't Watch Out," kind of somewhat fanatical religious music.

I suppose it boils down to an affinity, on my part, for music with a message; it could be peace, love, or something including both, or indicating neither, but having an impressive message nonetheless.

I don't go for overstatement, and in that area I am in agreement with Joan Baez, who says she more or less prefers rather great subtlety. I am repulsed by such sickening overstatements as "Eve of Destruction" which somebody made the mistake of recording. A well-expressed understatement of poignancy is much more effective than the "We're all gonna die and go to xxxx" idiocy of overstatement.

And, I suppose, that very point is one by which many folksingers of the type who "get" me live by, and it's why I am so very impressed by them. They have the ability to be very subtle, to explain something clouded by prejudice as if it were as clear as a midwinter sunset, and that ability is beautiful. They are very honest, simple, and wonderful people with a deep feeling for peace, love, life, and the world we all are living on. As Pete Seeger said, "We're all brothers," and despite the simplicity of that statement, it is as profound a thing as any man can say. And simple, profound honesty marks many of the people I met in Newport.

Joan Baez is a good example. When we talked, she sat like a little girl (some little girl) in the grass and dirt backstage. She looked about as peaceful as one person could possibly be. The difference between her and us is that she is, I think, intensely idealistic, or perhaps existentialistic. Things are good and other things are bad. And people can get rid of the bad if they love each other instead of fighting each other. That is the

The Lyons Den

Marc Chagall has agreed to do the designs for Walter Lowenthal's film production of a Sholem Aleichem story. The artist has a clause permitting others to finish it by referring to his drawings if he doesn't feel well enough... Frank Sinatra will fly here this week and stir some more controversy... Vice President Humphrey will be assigned by LBJ to make some trips abroad for him this fall.

When the 10 major abstract paintings from the Robert Scull's collection are auctioned at Parke-Bernet in Oct., there'll be simultaneous bidding at Sotheby's in London, via Telstar... Sophia Loren will fly here for the premiere of her Paramount film, "Judith"... Stanley Baker will spend a year in Africa filming "Where the Lion Feeds," after "Sands of Kalahari" opens here. Joe Levine again will finance and co-produce it.

Jane Fonda's hair now is blonde and windswept, the style fancied by her groom, Roger Vadim. She dined at Luchow's the other night with her father, Henry Fonda. His other guests were his ex-wife, Susan Wager, and their adopted daughter; Susan's husband, Michael Wager; Fonda's son, Peter, and Jane's new mother-in-law, introduced as "Mrs. Pleman-nikov."

That's Vadim's real name, Jane said: "I've just had my passport changed to 'Jane Pleman-nikov'." Gary Player has formed a company in South Africa to handle all his business activities, especially his new venture making sports equipment from fibreglass plastics.

Johnny Mathis recorded four songs recently. He had the publishers first submit songs to him anonymously — no names of songwriters or publishers on the sheets. Mathis tested 150 songs. Of the four he chose and recorded, three were from "On a Clear Day"... This is how intensely the creators work: Two weeks ago, when the show went into rehearsal, Mrs. Burton Lane, the composer's wife, dyed her hair reddish. Lane never noticed it.

Yesterday, his first day off from rehearsal, they started downtown, and Lane finally said: "You changed your hair."

The UN's military observer in Kashmir, Gen. Nimco, who came here recently to report to UThant, will fly back to Kashmir... Johnny Desmond, co-star of "Funny Girl," has written a book for young singers, "Vocal Callisthenics"... Jackle Vernon, the new heavy-weight comic at the Persian Room, described his careful dieting to lose weight: "I used so much saccharine that I developed a case of artificial diabetes."

And so, we close this seven-week Newport Folk Festival Series. What we tried to do was provide an insight into the minds of some of the most interesting people in the world, people who communicate through song. I said when we first started this series that I was fascinated by "the beautiful imagery of their (folk artists) minds;" and, through interviews and explanation, I think we've seen some of that imagery. To see and understand it fully requires, of course, that one listen to those people sing; they can't communicate their messages effectively by being interviewed, although this does reveal some of their personality. It is, I think, through their music that this "imagery" is best observed. That's what had me fascinated, and I am sure, will keep me that way for a long time to come.

And of future Newport Festivals? Folk will continue, and I think each of these will get fuller attention in much enlarged Festivals. That, it seems, will be inevitable.

And of other Festivals beside folk and jazz? George Wein is expected to announce shortly news of a permanent Festival "shell" for Newport. Under his direction, or under someone else's, I think we can look forward to seeing, in years hence, Newport Summer Music Festivals, which might be a week of jazz, a week of folk, a week of rock, a week of ballet, symphonies, operas. The future for Newport can be spectacular, and even if that overrated adjective isn't used, that future certainly is to be a beautiful one. All I know is that I'll never forget "Festival '65". It was a beautiful summer.

Next week, Campus View gets back to campus with "Collegiate Discontent," which anyone concerned with higher education should read carefully.

Jordan Held Blameless For Mine Incident

JERUSALEM — The refusal of the Jordan-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission to condemn Jordan for the mine-laying incident in which four persons were injured in the Jerusalem area three weeks ago was criticized by diplomatic sources here as stemming from "fine legalistic grounds." The Israel government assumes that the mine, which exploded under a border police command car near Kibbutz Netiv Halamed Heh, near Jerusalem, was placed by members of the terrorist "El Fatah" under Syrian orders.

The MAC chairman, Lt. Col. Huot, of Canada, caused the MAC deadlock by abstaining in the vote, although he had previously voted for a clause expressing regret at such disturbances of the peace and tranquility. Col. Huot explained his vote by saying that there was no proof that the perpetrators of the mine had come from Jordan, although there was evidence that they had fled there after the incident.

Let us examine the bidding. North certainly had a fine opening bid of 1 Heart. South also had an opening bid but was content to merely bid 2 Diamonds, a bid his partner could not pass. (A change of suit bid by responder forces opener to bid again). North looked at his almost solid 6 card Heart suit and decided that his hand was worth a 3 Heart rebid. We will not argue with the bid but would have settled for a 2 Heart bid ourselves.

On hearing North jump, South now envisioned a possible slam so he now started with Blackwood, his 4 No Trump being the conventional bid asking partner how many Aces he had. North dutifully responded 5 Hearts, this time not meaning Hearts but being the Blackwood response showing 2 Aces. Some sixth sense seemed to warn Dr. Felder that there was no slam. He could have passed the 5 Heart bid but decided that 5 No Trump would be a better place to play the hand but now how to get there.

In Blackwood, after bidding 4 No Trump, a bid of 5 No Trump asks for Kings and at the same time guarantees all the Aces. So in this hand that bid was useless as partner would not pass.

He would have bid 6 Diamonds to show 1 King.

To stop in 5 No Trump, the 4 No Trump bidder must bid the unbid suit between partner's response and 5 No Trump. When South bid 5 Spades, North simply followed instructions and bid 5 No Trump.

As the cards lie, in 5 Hearts a Club lead will set the contract, for East will show out on the second round and can obtain a ruff. 5 No Trump is the best result; 6 Hearts, 3 Spades and 2 Diamonds adding to 11 tricks, the opponents now able to cash but 2 Club tricks.

Today's Moral: Many players have learned to use the Blackwood Convention, but most use it erroneously. It should not be used to get you into a slam but rather to keep you out of a slam when you have enough combined strength but there are 2 Aces out against you.

Israel Plans Diplomatic Steps In Sabotage Responsibility

JERUSALEM — The Israel Government has indicated that it will take diplomatic steps to make clear it will hold Jordan responsible for further acts of sabotage originating from Jordanian territory. At the same time it was reported that Israel had started a similar effort to warn Lebanon of the dangers that could arise from Lebanese resumption of its share of the Arab project to divert tributaries of the Jordan River to deny its waters to Israel.

Plans for the diplomatic actions emerged following a Cabinet meeting at which the sabotage raids and the resumption of the Lebanese diversion project were discussed.

In a related development, Chief of Staff Gen. Izhak Rabin declared that Israel might have to resort to force to convince the neighboring Arab countries that there would be no peace on their side of the Arab-Israeli border as long as the Arabs barred peace on Israel's side.

Premier Eshkol, in his review to the Cabinet, reportedly stressed the position that Jordan must assume responsibility for the raids by members of the new terrorist group, El Fatah, which has headquarters in Syria but is currently operating from Jordanian territory. The Cabinet was told that previously, Jordanian authorities had taken measures to curb Fatah activities but that it now appeared that such measures had been slackened.

The Premier reported that diplomatic efforts were being made in western capitals concerning Lebanon's resumption of diversion efforts. He said the western sources had been urging moderation in Israel's response, a course which Israel has been following. It was indicated, however, that Israel could not remain passive if the diversion work was continued, a view the Premier conveyed last week to United States Ambassador Walworth Barbour.

Mrs. Benson E. Gold

Miss Sheila Deborah Greenstein became the bride of Dr. Benson E. Gold on Sunday, September 5, in a 6:00 P. M. candlelight ceremony in Temple Beth Sholom. Rabbi Charles M. Rubel officiated, assisted by Rabbi Josif Kapp and Cantor Karl S. Kritz. A reception and dinner at the Providence Hebrew Day School followed.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myer C. Greenstein of 971 Reservoir Avenue, Cranston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gold of 18 Gallatin Street, Providence.

Escorted by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of white peau de sole designed with a Sabrina neckline, fitted bodice, and long sleeves. The semi-fitted A-line skirt, accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearls, was highlighted by a full detachable Watteau train. Her elbow-length veil of French illusion fell from a shell of matching re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis with a white Bible and an orchid.

Mrs. Robert Dwares, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and Miss Janet E. Greenstein was maid of honor for her sister. Mrs. Joseph Jay Fishbein another sister of the bridegroom, was a bridesmaid. Miss Shari Fishbein was junior bridesmaid and Miss Loren Dwares was flower girl.

Rabbi Newman Scores Birth Control Statement

NEW YORK — Rabbi Louis I. Newman, speaking at Temple Rodeph Shalom, criticized as "specious" the recent statement by the National Catholic Welfare Conference against Federal aid for the dissemination of birth control information. The conference represents the views of Roman Catholic bishops in the United States.

Rabbi Newman said the conference's contention that such aid would invade personal privacy was "a caricature of the truth."

"There is no invasion of personal privacy if a patient consults with a physician," Rabbi Newman said, "and by the same token it remains within the choice of the individual to utilize available information or to reject it."

Declaring that he was opposed to "obscurantism in religion" and to "medievalism," he said he was distressed to see some Episcopalians support the Catholic bishops. He said he knew that most Protestants agreed with the view adopted by Jews that birth control was a matter for marriage partners to decide.

"Unless we take a firm stand," he said, "this rigidity and benightedness will be imposed on all citizens and will impair their rights and the beauty and safety of life in our nation."

Mrs. Stephen Alan Rubin

Miss Irene Frances Tuch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tuch of 111 Fifth Street, became the bride of Stephen Alan Rubin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rubin of 113 Fairweather Avenue, Cranston, on Sunday, Sept. 5, at Temple Emanu-El. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Ivan E. Perlman officiated at the 6:30 P.M. candlelight ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the temple meeting house.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white peau de sole gown with empire bodice and kabuchi sleeves. It was embroidered with crystal beads, which also encircled the hemline of her sheath skirt. A detachable chapel-length train was caught at the bodice with two bows. Her pouf veil of silk illusion was attached to a matching headpiece jeweled with crystal beads. Her flowers, a cascade bouquet on a prayer book, were centered with two Georgiana orchids, roses and stephanotis.

Miss Ellen Linda Rodman was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Maureen Sue Levy and Miss Beverly Ann Rodinsky. Their floor-length empire gowns were fashioned with pink crepe sheath skirts and raspberry velvet bodices accented with raspberry satin bows. Matching velvet headpieces caught their bouffant veils. Their cascade bouquets were centered with a glabella and gladiola florets.

The bridegroom's brother, Neil Mark Rubin, was best man. Ushers were Dr. Arthur F. Tuch, the bride's brother; Joel Stanley Rubin, the bridegroom's brother; Lawrence A. Quintman, the bride's cousin; Carl Rubin, cousin of the bridegroom; Howard Coleman and Herbert Dawley.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of pink crepe with fitted bodice beaded with empire crystals. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink peau de sole floor-length gown with empire bodice beaded in pink crystals. Both wore white orchid corsages.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will live in Pawtucket. D. A. Gunning Photo

Youth Group To Pay Honor To Three Russian Nazis

WASHINGTON — Three Nazi prisoners-of-war, of Russian descent, who committed suicide at a P.O.W. stockade at Fort Dix, N.J., in 1945, to escape repatriation to Russia as members of the pro-Hitler, collaborationist "Vlassov Army," will now be honored as "freedom fighters."

A right-wing youth group "Young Americans for Freedom," supported and advised by a number of conservative members of Congress, will hold a special memorial for the Russian Fascists on September 19 at Finn's Point National Cemetery, Fort Mott State Park, New Jersey. Plans are being made for participation of "American youth and patriotic organizations and representatives of peoples enslaved by Communism," according to the announcement here.

(Jewish leaders here pointed to the "irony" in the fact that on September 19, the very day of the memorial for the three men, an Eternal Vigil will be launched in Washington by the American Jewish Conference on Soviet Jewry. Twenty-four Jewish organizations in the United States will join that vigil to call attention to Soviet denials of religious and cultural rights to Jews in the USSR.)

The three POW's volunteered for Nazi military service and were captured fighting against American liberation forces in France. They were adherents of Russian Gen. Andrey Vlassov who defected to the Nazi side in World War II, recruiting an army which committed atrocities against Jews and members of anti-Nazi resistance movements. All three had killed themselves to escape trial by the Soviet Union as war criminals. The U.S.

Army had agreed to turn them over to Soviet authorities.

The Y.A.F. press release lauded Gen. Vlassov and his followers. Of the three buried in New Jersey, Y.A.F. said, "It is fitting that we should honor these forgotten men, who, 20 years ago, right here in our own country, gave their lives in the continuing war against Communist aggression." A "pilgrimage" will be made to gravesite, and a Russian Orthodox religious service and "patriotic" speeches will take place.

The Y.A.F. is generally considered here to consist mainly of young Republicans to the right of the official Young Republican Clubs. The Y.A.F. made the announcement about plans to honor the Russian Fascists on the eve of the opening here of its fifth national convention with an expected attendance of 600 young conservative leaders from around the country.

TRADE GAP CLOSING
JERUSALEM — Israel made significant progress toward closing its foreign trade deficit in the first six months of 1965, official reports showed here

Due largely to increasing exports of citrus fruits, Israel's foreign trade deficit — the difference between total exports and total imports — in the period January-June of 1965 amounted to $172,000,000.

That figure is 25% below the trade gap in the comparable period of 1964.

It was also reported that 138,000 tourists came to Israel during the first six months of this year.

As we launch our 1965 General Jewish Committee Campaign, let us remember that we in this blessed land enjoy a very magical power — the power to give. The question, "How great is the need now?" will be asked of GJC workers. We answer with a question of our own: Would you condemn one Jewish human being to death or desperation? Not one but hundreds of thousands — still face those merciless fates today. And your help is their sole help. The need was urgent and great in 1948. The need is urgent and great now. Only you have the opportunity to spell out the magic that means rescue and rehabilitation to your fellow Jews throughout the world. GIVE GENEROUSLY!

Head Of B'nai B'rith Seeks Reappraisal

WASHINGTON — A reappraisal of the structure and programs of B'nai B'rith, to develop greater involvement of its membership, was proposed here recently by Dr. William A. Wexler, new president of the organization, in view of "the changing character of the American Jewish community."

Dr. Wexler made the proposal at the first administrative committee meeting of the new officers elected at the B'nai B'rith's recent convention in Israel. He called for a series of "task forces to probe aspects of B'nai B'rith's many programs, to develop new ideas responsive to the emerging modern pattern of American Jewry."

Dr. Wexler pointed out that B'nai B'rith with its growing membership and many programs, "clearly contradicts any view that the Jewish community life is diminishing."

He stressed the need, however, for the organization to be alert to shifting trends in the interests and composition of an American Jewry that is now largely native-born, college educated and more deeply integrated into American society.

"There is need for experimentation and innovation in organizational life, to activate latent Jewish interests and strengthen involvement in Jewish communal affairs," he declared.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glezer

Hollywood, Calif. — Nehemiah Persoff and Ed Spiegel own the film rights for Henry Roth's intriguing book, "Call It Sleep," a best seller two years ago although only a moderate success when originally published three decades previously. At this date, Persoff and Spiegel stand poles apart on the choice of film format.

Persoff explained his ambitious program. "This story concerns a Jewish family of approximately 1910 told from a young boy's viewpoint. If related on the screen with English dialogue it would completely lose its flavor, or as we say in Yiddish its ta'am. I prefer to uphold its dignity by having our characters speak in their own language."

He recalled the movie, "A Bell for Adano," in which John Hodiak portrayed the American major acting as liaison officer. "The producer made one horrible mistake," said Nehemiah with a dark frown.

"He had the local mayor plead the town's cause in English with a disenchanting accent while Hodiak, speaking perfect English, came off beautifully. As a result, Hodiak sounded like an intellect but the mayor, undoubtedly a man of excellent background and education, sounded like a complete idiot."

"Had the mayor spoken eloquently in his own language, he would have properly reflected his true intelligence and culture. Hodiak should have communicated with broken Italian."

This illustration, according to Persoff, exactly mirrors the Jewish immigrant, a man of culture in his native land who can't express himself intelligently here with his limited grasp of English. To the American born, this intellect from a strange country shapes up as an ignorant interloper, a greenhorn with a jarring accent. To his family and cronies within his home or environment, he invites respect and maintains his intellectual image by speaking his native tongue with eloquence.

Persoff feels that a sizeable portion of the world's population still speaks and understands Yiddish. The remainder may easily follow the story line with subtitles in the language of their particular country.

He emphasized, "This is not a holy film. Although the special story deals with a special group of people, its success does not depend on a Jewish audience majority. We intend to hold to its spirit instead of watering down its magnificence just to cater to a wide audience."

Would he play the leading role of the father? Regrettably, Persoff said, "I would love to portray this beautiful part but my Yiddish can't handle it. My accent is heavily Litvak which I picked up from my grandmother while living in Jerusalem. My native tongue was Hebrew. So we'll have to hire someone who speaks much better Yiddish than I do — Yiddish that's geshmack."

Asked where he expected to find the proper Jewish locale, inasmuch as New York's old ghettos no longer exist, Persoff said, "Admittedly it isn't simple to find our 1910 Jewish immigrant atmosphere in New York. Even if we were lucky enough to locate today a reasonable facsimile, it would prove highly expensive."

"A heavy money backer would pay for such costliness but, with vast audiences in mind, he would insist on damaging story compromises. With our low budget, we can afford the luxury of retaining the original story and making our type of movie with complete freedom of speech and movement. In the final analysis, this type of film will play to a bigger audience and please more people."

Spiegel and Persoff have discovered their ideal Jewish backgrounds in Canada where, incidentally, their backer's money originated. Today, Toronto and even Montreal offer locales amazingly similar to old New York.

Announcing that the film company will shoot partly in Hollywood but chiefly in Canada, Persoff said he especially hopes to capture the scenic backgrounds of a section of Montreal called Oremont (meaning other mountain.) He recalled working there on location a few years ago. "While waiting for the company to set up, I observed many children wearing yamalkas at play. They were shouting to each other such things as 'Moysh, koom ahair.' I tried out my best 'Shalom' and the youngsters crowded around me, many answering in Hebrew."

"Other children and their parents quickly joined us and soon we were laughing and exchanging experiences and stories like old friends. I learned that Oremont has almost a total Jewish population."

Between shooting, Persoff and his newly made friends sang happy Jewish and Hebrew melodies far into the night.

Argentine Police Nab Eichmann's Son, Release Him

BUENOS AIRES — Neo-nazi Horst Eichmann, son of the late nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann, was among 400 right-wing and Communist extremists arrested here in a round-up by Argentine federal police.

Many of the right-wing extremists are associated with such groups as the anti-Semitic Tacuara. The arrests came on the eve of a parliamentary inquiry into extremist and Communist influence in Argentina's schools.

According to Interior Minister Juan Palermo, Eichmann, who appeared at a press conference here wearing a nazi armband emblazoned with the swastika, was released for lack of "substantial evidence."

A police spokesman said that a search of extremist hide-outs had unearthed quantities of arms and ammunition. The violent deaths in the last few weeks of three youths had aroused speculation that an underground war was being fought among Argentina's extremist groups.

TENNESSEE MAYOR JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — The president of B'nai Shalom Congregation, Mitchell Thorp, has been elected mayor of this city. Mr. Thorp is a prominent Jewish communal leader.

Torah Hidden From Nazis Among Gifts To Museum

NEW YORK — A torah hidden in a German cemetery during the Hitler era, two silver breastplates from the collection of the Central Synagogue of Moscow, and a 200-year-old shofar, or ram's horn, used by the so-called "black Jews" of Cochin, India, are among the items already donated to the International Synagogue, now under construction at Kennedy International Airport.

The objects were collected on a two-month world tour by Rabbi Israel Mowshowitz of the Hillcrest Jewish Center in Flushing. They will be displayed in a museum in the synagogue, one of three places of worship that will form a gateway to the country near the airport's International Arrival Building.

The torah, or holy scroll, was recovered from its cache after Hitler's downfall. It was donated by the Jewish community of West Berlin. The Jewish community of Mannheim, Germany, contributed a 17th-century Bible and other sacred books, also hidden during the Nazis' rule.

The breastplates were given to Rabbi Mowshowitz by the Chief Rabbi of Moscow, Yehudi Leib Levin. During his recent tour of the Soviet Union, Rabbi Mowshowitz said yesterday, he discerned improvements in the condition of Soviet Jews. He said he was told they had been promised the opportunity to print 10,000 new prayerbooks and to open a yeshiva, or religious school.

In addition to the three-foot-long shofar, the Cochin Jews donated a set of weathered copper plates listing their rights as citizens as inscribed by a fourth-century maharajah.

Jews in Hawaii contributed a silver torah pointer, given to the king of the islands by the Jewish adviser in 1860. The pointer is used in the reading of the scroll, which must not be touched by the hand.

Czechoslovakian Jews from the ancient community of Bratislava donated a ritual wine cup that holds the torah.

The Jewish community in England gave Rabbi Mowshowitz a photostat of a letter written by Oliver Cromwell to Rabbi Menasseh Ben-Israel of Holland, announcing that Jews would be readmitted to the country for the first time in almost four centuries.

Finnish Jews, descendants of cantonis — veterans of impressed service in the Czar's army in 19th-century Russia — sent lithographs of their first synagogue, built around 1860.

The Jewish community of Dublin promised a copy of a book written by Jews about the life of Eamon de Valera, 82-year-old President of Ireland.

Lox, Pickled Herring, Caviar . . . Lower East Side Shops Carry Everything

NEW YORK — Sunday is far from being a day of rest on the Lower East Side. Shoppers stalk the streets as if expecting to find a mink coat for a dollar, but finally settle for something more plebeian—such as one of the dresses that wave like bunting along Orchard Street.

Such sorties soon pique the appetite and direct the feet around the corner into East Houston Street, where hunger may be satisfied on the spot at such places as Katz's Delicatessen, 205 East Houston, "builders of a better mouth trap," or preserved and taken home along with smoked fish, pickles, and gigantic dried fruits from Russ and Daughters, at No. 179.

It is not only weekend strollers and local dwellers who frequent Russ and Daughters, however. People who now live far from the area return to the store like hungry homing pigeons whenever they are in town, or order by mail when they are not. And shopping alongside the occasional customer who has strayed from the nearby Bowery are such up-at-heel types as judges, employed actors and successful artists.

"The Baruch family are very good customers," Herbert Federman, one of the owners, said as he sorted through some orders. "Bess Myerson has also been in here — a very gorgeous woman, and what a head on her! Then we get a lot of judges, Park Avenue folk, Herman Wouk, the writer, and Molly Picon from the Jewish stage."

"We also ship all over the country," he continued, pulling out orders from Clovis, N. M., and Tulsa, Okla. "Here's one from Miami for a dozen whole grain caviar — we sell caviar practically at wholesale prices."

Outside of Nova Scotia salmon, which has become more popular than lox because "lox is more salty and everyone is diet-conscious," one of the best sellers at the store is the herring that is pickled on the premises.

"It was a pickled herring that lured me into this business," Mr. Federman said with a laugh. "Mother, who always used to shop here, arranged a blind date for me with one of Russ's daughters and persuaded me to go by saying, 'She's not only good-looking but has that pickled herring you're always eating.' Now there's even a third generation in the business — that's our son Mark selling candy."

Mark Federman was busy weighing out some outside apricots for a young man who had taken time out from a Fire Island vacation. "You must be able to get dried fruit in Pittsburgh, where we live," the young man said, "But mother insists on having it from here."

Mark then weighed some sour-apple drops and coffee-bean candy for a plumpish woman who departed with an armful of packages and the remark, "I've got to get out of here or I'll put on 35 pounds."

Her place was quickly taken by another woman, who purchased preserved kumquats ("The ones in Chinatown are full of water by comparison") and Hawaiian pineapple cores ("They taste so pine-apply") and then walked out chewing on a dried bean-like object known as St. John's bread ("It's biblical, isn't it?")

Mr. Federman gave several other customers a piece to taste and explained that this fruit of a tree native to the Mediterranean area was supposed to have nourished St. John the Baptist.

Decisions, Decisions
Meanwhile, at the smoked fish counter, the Nova Scotia salmon (99 cents a quarter pound) had run out and customers were being directed to lox (69 cents a quarter pound), kippered salmon, pickled salmon and smoked whitefish and sturgeon. Farther along, several people were having difficulty deciding which of the many forms of herring to buy.

"One of the reasons our smoked fish is so good is that it sells so quickly it doesn't get a chance to be anything but fresh," Mr. Federman remarked, as he sliced off some lox. "If you think this is busy, you should see us on Saturday nights. We stay open until 10 that night — 11 in the winter — and we're closed on Tuesdays."

Business was scarcely less bustling at Ben's Dairy Products next door. A realm rich in butter and cheese, it is ruled over by Ben and Mrs. Ben.

"What's outstanding?" Ben repeated a customer's question. "Everything's outstanding. Try this."

He stuck out the most enormous knife outside a French gullotine with a tiny piece of cheese impaled on its tip.

"That's Swiss fondue. Isn't it something?" he asked. "I make it up from Emmenthaler and natural Gruyere. You can reheat it or use it as is. Price? $1.79 a pound."

"Try this Roquefort spread,"

he continued, pushing forward another nibble. "That's made from cream cheese, Roquefort and a little Gorgonzola. Just leave it out and it will spread."

Mrs. Ben, who was weighing out some fresh butter, said, "This is one of the few places you can buy butter by the hunk." She added that they had cheeses from all over the world, but the most popular were the ones they "make."

"Try this," Ben interrupted. "Ever had farmer cheese? It's a pressed form of cottage cheese, 59 cents a pound."

The cheese, which the customer considered far more palatable than cottage cheese ever dreamed of being, is sold at Ben's in many forms — plain, with vegetables, with caraway, with scallions or with chives. It is also dried and baked and sold plain, with pepper or with caraway and sometimes with chives.

"The baked tastes like blintz, is low in calories and can be eaten cold or reheated," Ben said.

According to Ben, customers come from all over to the store.

Hadassah Votes $9,488,000 For Israel-U.S. Programs

CANDLE OF PEACE
WASHINGTON — "I go to New York to curse no one, but in my own way to help keep the candle of peace burning."
With these words, Arthur J. Goldberg placed his hand on an Old Testament and took the oath of office which officially made him the new U. S. ambassador to the United Nations.

NEW YORK-- Hadassah, the women's Zionist Organization of America, adopted a record budget of $9,488,000 for its 1965-66 programs in Israel and the United States, at its 51st annual convention here in late August. The 2,500 delegates also elected Mrs. Mortimer Jacobson to a second one-year term as president.

all necessary steps to implement its commitment to "support the territorial integrity and political independence of all countries in the Near East." This, the resolution declared, "is a decisive factor in creating the conditions necessary for peace in the Near East."

The budget includes $8,140,000 for the Israel programs, including $3,740,000 for the Hadassah Medical Organization, $2,100,000 for Youth Aliyah, $1,000,000 for the building fund of the Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center in Jerusalem, $700,000 for the Jewish National Fund, and $600,000 for Hadassah's vocational education program.

Hadassah urged the U. S. in this resolution to provide arms to Israel to prevent "a military imbalance" between the Arab states and Israel; to impress on the Arab states that "unlawful water diversion projects are and will be considered acts of aggression"; to continue economic aid to Israel; and to encourage the leaders and peoples of the area "to concentrate their efforts and their resources on regional co-operation and peace and to reject hostility to Israel as a national policy."

In a resolution on the Middle East, the delegates voiced "growing concern" over "the continuing flow of conventional and sophisticated arms from the Soviet Union to Egypt, and the continuing insistence of Egypt's President Nasser that war with Israel is inevitable."

Another resolution passed by Hadassah urged the U. S. to implement a new law aimed at protecting American business firms from being forced to engage in the Arab boycott against Israel.

The resolution called on the United States Government to take

The new law is an amendment to the 1959 Export Control Act, enacted into law earlier this year. It would protect American firms from being compelled to take part in any foreign boycott against countries friendly to the United States, but it leaves implementation to the President.

The resolution also called on local chambers of commerce throughout the United States to ask American firms "not to cooperate" in such "restrictive trade practices or boycotts."

The delegates also approved a resolution urging a continuing program of "public action and protest, designed to bring the acts of Soviet anti-Semitism to the attention of the American Government and people and to the attention of the Soviet Government."

Charging that "abundant evidence" existed that the Soviet Government is "still maintaining a policy aimed at the spiritual and cultural extinction of Soviet Jews," the delegates declared that despite some recent concessions, Soviet Jews are "still deprived of the means and institutions to maintain their cultural and religious heritage and to transmit it to their children."

The resolution added that "this violation of elemental human rights will not be accepted in silence by a generation that has in its own lifetime learned the fearful price of silence."

In another resolution, the delegates noted that the rebirth of Israel offered Jews "in free countries new paths for Jewish self-fulfillment" and that immigration to Israel was "one such path."

The resolution added that, while "not every Zionist will choose this expression of self-fulfillment" and Hadassah believes it is an obligation of the American Zionist movement to foster the idea of aliyah, to encourage those who choose aliyah and to help them attain their objective.

The convention called on all Hadassah chapters "to cooperate with official groups charged with facilitating the plans of those who have decided on aliyah to Israel, and to encourage support and understanding of aliyah within their communities."

Dr. Judah J. Shapiro, executive secretary of the Foundation for Jewish Culture, told the delegates that the real challenge to Jewishness "in our time is for it to learn to speak to America, rather than to the Jews of America, which further implies speaking to the whole Jew, not merely to the Jewish part of him."

He asserted that "the motivation for Jewish learning must be shifted from preparation for existence within the Jewish enclave, or against the possibility of Jewish catastrophe, to the conviction that such understanding will make more effective spokesmen for the attainment of social justice and world order to which the contemporary Jewish contribution is potentially powerful."

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey said that after seeing the Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center in Jerusalem, he wanted to see it again, and that he wanted more and more Americans "and other visitors of every faith and nationality, to see it and be inspired by it."

Humphrey said that Israel's medical research "has already enriched the world far beyond what would be predicted by some slide rule formula — by the size of her population, or the modest amount of her natural resources or brief length of her sovereignty."

He also declared that official United States assistance to Israeli research in dollars and in counter-part currency "is probably one of the highest dividend-paying 'investments' in history."

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller said it was significant and important that Hadassah had honored Humphrey with its 1965 Henrietta Szold award for his contributions "to the advancement of medicine." Another of the final dinner's principal guests of honor was Ambassador Michael S. Comay, Israel's permanent representative to the United Nations.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stanzler of 253 Freeman Parkway announce the engagement of her daughter, Esther Shirley Wax, to Robert Howard Lynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lynn of Worcester, Mass. Miss Wax is also the daughter of the late George H. Wax.

The bride-elect received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Boston University. Mr. Lynn, a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, is associated with Stone and Webster Engineering Company of Boston.

A November 28 wedding is planned.

Seized For Raid On Arab Sector

TEL AVIV — Manned police foiled an attempt recently by hundreds of Jewish youths to invade the Arab section of Ramla, and arrested 21 of the youths after they set upon Arab citizens in the streets. At least 12 Arabs, including women, children and elderly men, were injured in the attacks. Most of them were treated by Mogen David Adom ambulance crews, but three were taken to a hospital.

The incident began when rumors spread Friday that an Arab taxi driver was responsible for a collision between two scooters and his cab, in which a Jewish youth was killed. After the youth's funeral, police received a tip that "reprisal groups" were being organized in Ramla, and police reinforcements were rushed to the area.

Groups of Jewish young men began marching through the streets shouting "We don't want Arabs," and attempts were made to break into Arab homes. Jews stoned Arab shops and attacked passersby. Many Arabs stayed home rather than go to work.

Dead Sea Workers Win Special Awards

SODOM — Over 400 workers at the Dead Sea plant in Sodom recently received awards in recognition of special feats of merit or devotion to duty at a ceremony conducted here.

Labourer Avraham Maman of Dimona received the top award of IL 500. Maman invented a mechanical device to help unload a highly poisonous chemical compound used in one of the plant's manufacturing processes. He not only helped speed up unloading processes but also contributed to lifting safety standards.

The Dead Sea Works, which employs over 800 workers, is located in the most climatically difficult area in Israel, 392 meters below sea level, the lowest spot on Earth. It produces potash, salts and bromides processed from the mineral deposits in the Dead Sea and accounts for Israel's second largest export item, after citrus fruit. It is estimated that by the end of 1966 it will have reached a production rate of a million tons of potash a year.

The ceremony was attended by the Minister of Commerce and Industry, Mr. Haim Zadok.

Population Dispersion Proves Successful

JERUSALEM — The policy of "dispersing the population" propounded by successive Governments since the foundation of the State, must be judged a mixture of success and failure, says the Jerusalem Post.

Bringing immigrants to apartments constructed for them in Yeruham, Sderot and Hatzor is one thing. Keeping them there is another. Between 1961 and 1963, 108,000 people were settled in the development towns—yet the total population of these areas rose during the two years by only 60,000, the Jerusalem Post revealed.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir is blamed for having sponsored too many textile factories when he headed the Ministry of Commerce and Industry. He should conversely be credited with having leaned over backwards in his efforts to provide employment for the new townsmen of Galilee and the Negev, the Post commented.

Sapir's reward is Dimona, and one or two other places that have managed to become small industrial centers, sufficiently thriving to face a labor shortage.

But for every Dimona there is a Shlomi and a Ma'alot. Sapir said that a township cannot stand on its own feet until it has a population of 30,000.

Besides Beersheba there is not a place that size in the development areas. And apart from Ashdod few are likely to reach that size in the present decade unless something new is done. The Jerusalem Post said, "Under the present basically inconsistent policy, the coastal plan will become, with Government encouragement, one large urban concentration, with no open spaces, no breathing room, no relief, while the pleas for dispersal will fall on increasingly deaf ears."

The privileges of an "approved enterprise" will henceforth be granted only to companies located in the development areas. In certain cases, even transport and services undertakings will be eligible.

Loans on easier terms, including lower interest, will also be approved by the Commerce Ministry in these zones.

Prime Minister Levi Eshkol said that despite declarations to the contrary, new agricultural settlements will go up in Galilee this year, and two or three in the Bсор region as well. "You can count me among those who foresee some 40 new settlements in the country in the next four years. We shall see Galilee in its flowering," the Prime Minister stated.

Israel leaders expressed concern over the lack of manpower. Sapir pointed out that the number of immigrants over the next five years will not be as large as the previous. "We could absorb two or three times as many—even if we had to go back to two shifts in the schools.

About 10,000 old-timers have gone to the development areas,

"and we are prepared to see them as immigrants," Sapir said. We must build supermarkets and all the amenities of city life, so that living in Kiryat Gat, Sderot and Upper Nazareth will be no different from living in Petah Tikva or Herzliya.

Two or three teacher training colleges will be set up in the development areas, also public libraries. Visits will be encouraged by theaters and artistic groups. More stipends will be given to students undertaking to teach in the development areas. More Government departments and Army camps will be moved out there.

A drive will be made to do away with unemployment among youth, with the aid of youth centers that can be made instruments for mobilizing people into youth labor camps if necessary.

AJC Discusses Threat Of Neo-Nazism In World Today

BOSTON — Does Neo-Nazism pose a threat today? This question, among others, is discussed in one of the most comprehensive round-ups of data on Neo-Nazi activities just published by the American Jewish Committee, it was announced today by Norman S. Rabb, President of the New England Region.

Containing up-to-date information on the span of Neo-Nazi activity on the European scene and other countries, this latest issue of AJC's series, "Reports On The Foreign Scene" pinpoints the operations by various hate groups, their recent moves both overt and underground and the prospects for the future.

Among specific items covered are the impact of Israel and Nasser and the entire spurt of Arab schemings, the extent of Neo-Nazi international cooperation, tactics and ideologies, the appeal to rightist political parties, efforts to influence the Vatican Council deliberations and other moves.

Insofar as Jews are concerned, the report states, "In most European countries, Jews make poor targets today for a number of reasons." Deterrents include memories of the grisly record of Nazi Germany, Ecumenical Council deliberations which have "thrown into sharp focus certain theological roots of anti-Semitism, and spurred efforts to improve Christian-Jewish relations." There is also the added factor of too few Jews in most European countries today.

New targets now seem to include Algerian Moslems in France, colored peoples from Commonwealth countries, and a host of imported workers on the continent such as Italians in Belgium and Germany, plus Greeks, Turks and Moroccans on labor contracts in Germany. This has created a "definite increase in xenophobia and race prejudice. The newcomers are characterized as 'dirty,' 'brutal,' 'impolite' and, above all, 'not like us.' They are accused of making entire areas unfit for habitation and are blamed for increases in crime."

Drawing upon historical experience, the AJC report points out that periods of economic distress provide the fertile ground for a resurgence of Neo-Nazi type dangers. Though some observers believe that such activity is "currently in a period of hibernation from which they will one day emerge in force," there are others who doubt "that great numbers of supporters can ever again be rallied to such a cause."

Copies of the American Jewish

Committee's foreign scene report, "Neo-Nazism Twenty Years After Hitler," can be obtained by contacting the New England Regional Office, 72 Franklin St., Boston, Mass.

The report notes that "on the surface, the status of Neo-Nazism two decades after Hitler's defeat seems to offer its adherents scant encouragement... On the other hand, the themes, slogans and pseudo-scientific arguments of the radical right seem to exert a potent attraction for young people, especially the intellectuals. The rising popularity of publications and recordings ennobling Nazis and Nazism could indicate a growing receptivity to their basic ideology."

Indiana Intermarriage Rate Increases To Fifty Per Cent

INDIANAPOLIS — Almost one out of every two Jews who married in Indiana in the four years ending in 1963 married non-Jewish partners, the National Jewish Post reported on the basis of statistics at the State Board of Health.

In 1960, out of 175 marriages involving Jews, there were 81 intermarriages for a percentage of 46.3. Fifty-three of the mixed marriages were Jewish men with non-Jewish women and the other 28 were Jewish women with non-Jewish men.

The following year, 183 marriages involving Jews were listed, including 90 mixed marriages for 49.1 per cent. Fifty-nine of the mixed marriages were Jewish men with non-Jewish women and 31 Jewish women with non-Jewish men.

In 1962 the percentage of mixed marriages exceeded 50 per cent. Sixty-eight Jewish men married out of their faith while 36 Jewish women married non-Jews.

In 1963 there were 114 mixed marriages in a total of 232 for 49.1 per cent. Seventy-three Jews married non-Jewish women while on the distaff side, 41 Jews married non-Jewish men.

In the surveys conducted by Erich Rosenthal, mixed marriages in Iowa ranged from 36.3 per cent in 1953 to 53 per cent in 1959.

GERMANS SENTENCED
 BONN — Eight Germans received sentences ranging from 13 and a half months to 13 years, after conviction for helping in the murder of 152,000 Jews at the Kulmhof concentration camp near Lodz. Three others were freed. Judge Rudolf Bohner called the sentences "purely symbolic," since any of the 152,000 murders could have been punished by a life sentence.

Council Buys Paper In Tucson

TUCSON — The Tucson Jewish Community Council has purchased the Arizona Post, local Jewish newspaper, now in its 20th year of publication. Marvin H. Volk, president of the JCC, declared in an editorial in the current issue of the Arizona Post, that "editorials and columns will continue with independent thought that may or may not contain the views of the Tucson Jewish Community Council."

He said the publication, which is being expanded from 24 issues annually to 30 issues, would be operated "as an independent newspaper under council sponsorship," effective with the current issue.

Founded in 1946 by Rebecca and M. L. Rutz, the Arizona Post was purchased in 1956 by Mildred and Abe Chanin. Under Chanin's direction, the publication won six prizes for general excellence in the state-wide contests conducted by the Arizona Newspapers Association.

Chanin, now in his 25th year as sports editor of the Arizona Daily Star and also publisher of Collegiate Baseball, a national sports publication, said the sale had been made necessary by the growing pressure of other duties. He will continue as editor of the Arizona Post.

Volk named a publications committee for the new ownership headed by Jack J. Sarver, who served as chairman of a special committee that recommended the purchase.

NEW JEWISH MAGAZINE COPENHAGEN — A monthly Jewish magazine in the Swedish language for the thousands of Jewish families in Sweden and nearby countries has been started by the Scandinavian office of the educational arm of the Lubavitcher Hasidic movement. Rabbi Azriel Chalkin, director of the Lubavitcher educational unit in Copenhagen said that "Talks and Tales" is the only Jewish educational periodical in Swedish in the country.

To Complete Plans For Drive

 carry out its relief, rehabilitation and welfare programs on behalf of needy Jews in 30 countries overseas, including medical and rehabilitation services for aged, infirm and handicapped immigrants in Israel.

Rabbi Herbert A. Friedman, executive vice chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and a leading authority on Jewish needs overseas and in Israel, will be the guest speaker.

Rabbi Friedman has made numerous trips to Israel to confer with the democracy's top officials on the needs of immigrants and to plan how UJA-financed agencies working in Israel can best serve to integrate them into the country's life and economy.

As Chaplain with the 9th Infantry Division in Germany in 1945, he spearheaded efforts to help Jewish survivors of the Nazi death-camps

Mr. Alperin said the all-important role of the Initial Gifts division in the campaign will be discussed and reviewed at this meeting and plans will be completed for the Community Solicitations Division workers' dinner on Sept. 30 at the Colony Motor Hotel.

COMPLETES REQUIREMENTS — Stanley L. Freedman recently completed the requirements for a Master's degree in Music at the University of Connecticut. Mr. Freedman received his BA degree from Brown University in 1962 and is currently employed as a music teacher in the Providence School department. He is married to the former Phyllis Cohen and will conduct the Temple Beth Shalom choir for the high holidays.

Winnipeg Weekly Publishes Again

WINNIPEG — THE ISRAELITE PRESS — YIDDISHE VORT, the oldest and the only bilingual (Yiddish-English) Jewish weekly in Western Canada reappeared recently after having suspended publication for five weeks.

A statement signed by its new publisher, H.M. Margolis, says that in the interim "we were encouraged by the determined interest shown in many quarters in the revival of this newspaper." Editor will be Melvin Fenson. Noah Witman, who was publisher until the recent temporary cessation, remains as editor of the Yiddish section.

Pace Setters Luncheon, Telethon Planned By GJC Women's Division

The Pace Setters luncheon, the top major event of the Women's Division campaign of the General Jewish Committee, will be held Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 22, at the home of Mrs. Alexander Rumpel of 133 Hartshorn Road.

Mrs. Marshall Leeds and Mrs. Lawrence A. Paley, co-chairmen, pointed out that the Pace Setters division sets both the tone and pace for the annual campaign of the Women's Division.

Both Mrs. Leeds and Mrs. Paley said that the community is aware of the urgent needs of both the UJA for its life-saving work in 30 countries, including Israel, and the 13 local beneficiary agencies of the General Jewish Committee.

In addition, the local Women's Division of the GJC is being asked to help make up part of the seven million dollar reparations loss from West Germany by the Joint Distribution Committee of the UJA. The Women's Division nationally has agreed to make up one million dollars of this amount. The reparations payments ended the past year.

A member of the National UJA Women's Division executive committee will be the guest speaker.

The Telethon Workers Conference of the Women's Division Committee will be held Thursday morning, Sept. 23, at the Colony Motor Hotel.

Volunteers for the Telethon Drive which will be held next month will receive their instructions and will be briefed at the Workers Conference.

Telethon Drive chairmen are Mrs. Benjamin Mellon, Mrs. Sheldon S. Sollosy and Mrs. Harold I. Tregar.

Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen of Temple Emanu-El, who has just returned from a trip around the world including an extended stay in Israel, will be the guest speaker at the conference. He will describe the needs of Jews in various parts of the world and in Israel.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld, president of the GJC, also will address the conference. He will describe the urgent needs of the local GJC beneficiaries.

The Telethon replaces the one day house-to-house canvass of M-day of past drives and last year proved most successful. The Telethon chairmen said that each worker is being asked to contribute only about an hour of her time to man a telephone in contacting contributors on Telethon Day next month.

Reorganize Structure

Co-chairmen of the Initial Gifts division headed by Max Alperin are Leonard I. Salmanson and Edwin S. Soforenko.

Ralph Rotkin and Peter Bardach are co-chairmen of the Trades and Industry division, which covers all business and industrial firms in the Greater Providence area.

Martin I. Dittelman is chairman of the Professional division which covers doctors, lawyers, dentists and accountants.

Samuel M. Gerstein, last year's D-day chairman, heads the Service Organizations division. This group will cover organizations such as the B'nai B'rith, Jewish War Veterans and similar groups.

Sheldon S. Sollosy, Providence businessman and president of the Cranston Jewish Center, is chairman of the Area Division. This division covers the Jewish communities in Cranston, East Providence, Warwick, West Warwick, Warren, Bristol, North Providence, Johnston, East Greenwich and Barrington.

Milton Dubinsky is chairman of D-day, the annual one-day intensive house-to-house solicitation that winds up the annual drive.
