Hadassah Major Gifts Function To Aid Mount Scopus Facility

A Major Gifts function of Hadassah, originally slated for September 19, will take place Sunday, November 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Grossman between 5 and 7 p.m. The event is being held to assist in the financing of therapy and rehabilitation work at the refurbished Mount Scopus facility in Israel. A volunteer worker, and member of Hadassah's national board, she has served as national Hadassah-Month chairwoman and as chairwoman of Endowments and Annuity Trusts before assuming her present post.

Mrs. Lieberman is also a founder of the Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center.

Jewish Politicians Successful Overall

In this year's Bicentennial Presidential election, newcomer Jimmy Carter took an early lead over incumbent GOP President Gerald Ford. Before sunrise, November 3, it was clear that Carter had won the race by a narrow majority in what was one of the closest presidential elections of the century.

At the state and local levels, a number of Jewish contenders, from both the Republican and Democratic camps, took or held on to key seats. One exception was in the state gubernatorial race where former GOP Governor John J. Chaffee trounced political maverick Richard P. Lorber, leading by 16% at press time Wednesday morning. Chaffee has become the first Republican to win a United States Senate election in Rhode Island since 1930.

In another defeat, Lawrence L. Goldberg, Republican contender in the General Assembly-Senate race, lost out to John F. McBurney in Pawtucket's District 38.

Democrat Julius C. Michaelson retained his office as state Attorney General, running against Marvin Brill, a Providence attorney who is another political newcomer.

Successful General Assembly-Senate races included Lila M. Sapinsley, Providence District 2 Democrat, who beat Charles E. Casey, Democrat Richard A. Licht took over 5000 votes, running unopposed as a Senatorial candidate from Providence District 3. David Sholes of Cranston's District 11 also overtook his opponent, Republican Vito Parente.

For seats in the Rhode Island State House of Representatives, incumbent Democrat Victoria Lederberg, Providence District 4, gained easy victory over Marjorie Yashar in this East Side election. Also on the Providence East Side, in District 18, Peter K. Rosedale, Democrat, took the House seat over John E. Graydon.

Irving H. Levin, a Democrat from Cranston District 27, was also elected to the state House of Representatives, defeating challenger Thomas A. Iacobucci, Jr.

In a non-partisan race, Carol R. Brooklyn of Cranston was elected to the School Committee at large.

Leesona, Other R.I. Firms Complying With Boycott

It has surfaced this week that Warwick's Leesona Corporation is one of several Rhode Island operations which admits that it has gone along with demands by Arab nations to boycott business with Israel. Leesona has an annual sales of $115 million and has extensive business dealings in the Middle East.

According to Eugene Garner, assistant treasurer of Leesona, the firm on occasion uses letters of credit with restrictions concerning Israel. A letter of credit is issued by the buyer's bank, and it authorizes the seller to draw money from it and stipulates all bills are to be honored if the terms of the letter are followed.

Mr. Garner pointed out that some of the letters of credit which are given to Leesona stipulate that goods are not to be shipped on an Israeli vessel. He added, "if that's a boycott, that doesn't bother me."

One Rhode Island firm refusing to comply with the boycott against Israel is Teknor Apex, a polyvinyl chloride manufacturer in Pawtucket. Robert R. Rozzar, vice president of that firm, which likewise has extensive overseas business, said his firm has been asked to comply with the boycott.

He said that, "They requested information on the origin of shipments, ships, flag registries, routing. We refuse to comply with it. I feel strongly firms should not comply with the boycott."

According to Ronald A. Klemprer, counsel to a House Commerce subcommittee, American banks have processed nearly 12,000 so-called "tainted" letters of credit involving $743 (Continued on page 14)

Braille Group Sponsors Fashions For The Blind

On November 11th at twelve noon in the meeting house of Temple Emanu-El, the Braille Group will sponsor a luncheon and fashion show for blind men and women from all over Rhode Island. This type of entertainment has usually been reserved for the sighted.

The luncheon is an annual event for about 160 guests, recommended by the Rhode Island Association for the Blind. Their volunteers assist the blind and furnish transportation.

This year, instead of the usual auditory program, Barbara Sunderland, of the Barbara Model Agency, has graciously volunteered to be the commentator and supply models, who will give of their time gratuitously. They will mingle with the guests, answer questions and allow them to touch the garments.

Fashions will be shown by Mrs. Robinson's of Wayland Square, E/D's of Angell Street, Waldorf Men's Shop and Susan's Children's Shop of Hope Street. Lewis and Laurene Lassini, brother and sister, ages four and five, will model.

Mrs. George Goldsmith and Mrs. Herman Rosenberg are in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Haskell Frank is hospitality chairman and Mrs. David Horvitz, program chairman.

Also modeling will be Maureen Taylor, Lyn Saccoccia, Helen Stolzberg, Linda Leal, Melissa Towe, Kim Kaplan and John Brazil.

'BO' BERNSTEIN
Joseph M. "Bo" Bernstein, 66, founder and retired chairman of the board of the downtown advertising agency which bore his name for 34 years, died Wednesday, November 3, in St. Luke's Hospital, Houston, Texas.
Mr. Bernstein founded the agency in a small office on Custom House Street in 1941 and expanded it until it was one of New England's largest, with 110 employees and billings of more than $11 million annually.

Reds baseball team.
In 1941, he went out on his own, with only one other employe. First-year billings were $100,000.
"I decided that if I couldn't make it big in Providence, I probably couldn't anywhere," he said, explaining why he spurned opportunities in bigger cities.
Mr. Bernstein was named Rhode Island Advertising Man of the Year in 1967, in 1971 became chairman of the New England Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, and was a member of Alpha Delta Sigma advertising fraternity.

The growth in the agency, which once had a Boston branch, closely followed the growth of discounting in retailing. Bernstein's three big accounts were Anderson-Little, Zayre's and Warwick Shoppers World.

His public service campaigns brought him many awards, particularly the Stop Measles and Stop Polio campaigns on behalf of the state Department of Health. He also received United Way and Meeting Street School awards.
In 1956, he took a leave to serve as special advertising adviser to the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate.
He was married in 1936 to the former Alice Girard, who survives. His home was at 310 President Ave. His interest in art came from his son, Geoffrey, an artist in Sausalito, Calif., and his daughter, Laurie, who is married to the sculptor, Richard Graham, and lives in Carrara, Italy.

Mr. Bernstein was also a civic leader, an art collector and amateur sculptor, and the donor of several pieces of major art to Rhode Island's colleges and universities.

Besides building his own extensive art collection, he presented to Providence College the sculpture by Gilbert A. Franklin, the Rhode Island School of Design professor, which stands in front of the Slavin Center. He also presented a bronze sculpture, "The Performers," to the University of Rhode Island and a work by Chaim Gross to Brown University's List Art Gallery.
In addition to his wife, mother, son and daughter, he leaves two brothers, Harry Bernstein of Warwick and Victor Bernstein of Providence, and a granddaughter. Both brothers were associated with him in the advertising agency.
Funeral arrangements were incomplete at press time.

He retired 13 months ago. Just last month, the agency, much smaller now and relocated from the WPRO building downtown to Rumford, changed its name to LeBeau, Leicht & Santanagi, Inc.
He was born March 10, 1910, in Russia, a son of Mrs. Lilly (Rubenstein) Bernstein of Providence, and the late Morris Bernstein. The family moved to Providence when he was two and his father operated a Benefit Street tailor shop and was a Providence correspondent for the Jewish Daily Forward.

MRS. THEODORE ZILMAN
Funeral services were conducted at Sugarman Memorial Chapel on

Mr. Bernstein attended Hope High School, where he played quarterback on the football team, attended Providence College for three weeks, and spent a short stint as a Journal-Bulletin reporter.
In 1935, he joined the late Frank Weston's agency and handled promotion for the old Rhode Island Auditorium. He became close friends with Rudy Vallee, handled ice shows, flower shows, and the like, and somehow spent a season as home secretary for the Cincinnati

'Sit Down And Talk'

UNITED NATIONS (JTA): Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog called on the Arab countries to "sit down and talk" with Israel, as other adversaries do. "Has the Mideast not bled enough?" he asked in his right of reply at the conclusion of the General Assembly debate recently. "Do the speeches we heard (at the Assembly) constitute any kind of progress towards peace? Has the time not come for a change of heart and approach?"
Referring to statements about Israel made by Arab delegates during the course of the debate, Herzog declared: "Some of the statements ranged from the most extreme expressions of hatred to the utterly ludicrous. Many of them ignored the massive blood-letting in the internecine struggle of Arab against Arab in so many centers of conflict in the Mideast, most of them far removed from Israel and completely unrelated to the Israel-Arab conflict."

Jewish Groups To Aid Flu Programs

NEW YORK: The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has requested the cooperation of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds in carrying out its influenza immunization program.
The federations are being asked to make the information available to their local community centers, schools, homes for the aged and hospitals.

Israeli Officer Guilty For Death

TEL AVIV (JTA): An Israeli army officer was found guilty by a military court of responsibility for the death of Ahmed Dib Dahloul, secretary of the local Communist Party in Salfit village in Samaria last summer. Dahloul died of injuries sustained when he was beaten by Israeli soldiers following his arrest during Arab riots on the West Bank. The soldiers testified that they were under orders from the officer to beat up six detainees, including Dahloul, on the way to the police station. The officer's name and rank were not disclosed.

Tuesday, November 2, for Jean Zilman, 76, of 78 Warrington Street, who died October 31 in The Miriam Hospital. She was the wife of Theodore Zilman. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

She was born in Austria on June 16, 1900, a daughter of the late Joseph and Bertha Sass. She lived in Providence more than 30 years.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Joel Zilman of Canoga Park, California; a sister, Sarah Schweitzer of New York City; and three grandchildren.

TILLIE CHEILEK
Funeral services were held at Sugarman Memorial Chapel on Monday, November 1, for Tillie Cheilek, 83, of 86 Gallatin Street, who died Saturday, October 30. She was the widow of Joseph Cheilek. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

She was a member of the Providence Jewish Fraternal Organization.

She was born in Russia on August 25, 1893, a daughter of the late Zigmund and Anna Bernstein. She had been a Providence resident for more than 60 years.

She is survived by a son, Harold Cheilek of Washington, DC; two brothers, Daniel Bernstein of Cranston and Benjamin Bernstein of Providence; two sisters, Ida Dermer of Providence and Freda Bassow of Miami Beach Florida; and two grandchildren.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

A Mature Agency

By BERYL SEGAL

We have grown older. The Family & Children's Service is in its forty-seventh year now. We have also grown in maturity. Instead of several organizations helping people in need, we have an organization serving people in many situations, under diverse circumstances, and going about it in a professional manner.

Above all we are doing it in confidence, being careful of the feelings of the people being helped by the Family & Children's Service.

This is the major principle of the FCS and cannot be overemphasized. We wish people would understand. They would be less reluctant in coming for help to the offices of the organization.

Nobody, either on the board of the JFCS, and even less in the community, knows who the person is in need of help and who the person is giving him help.

Such confidentiality is the first thing pounded into the heads of the social worker and the volunteer working on a project of the JFCS.

But here I want to write primarily about the Annual Meeting of the organization held recently by the Jewish Family & Children's Service.

Maturity was the keyword of the proceedings of the meeting.

There were no long speeches at the meeting. We began at eight o'clock and were out by nine. Those who wanted to stay at the tea and coffee hour, but the official meeting was over, thus the guest speaker had all the time to speak about the real problems facing the organization. That is a real sign of maturity when one remembers other times, other agencies dragging out the evening with greetings and remarks and references to years gone by, without leaving time to the invited guest speaker.

There were no praises. Even the recipients of awards were brief and received these awards almost apologetically. I was especially impressed with the booklet published specially for the Annual Meeting. Somebody had to write it. Some artist had to illustrate it. Somebody had to think about the format of the booklet. In vain will you look for a name, for an author, for an artist. And this too, is a sign of growing up, of maturity, of good taste.

I want to dwell on this booklet. It is small enough to fit into an overcoat pocket. It sets forth the purposes of the JFCS in brief paragraphs under various headings, each in concise, clear language, such as: Counseling, Homemaking Service, the Elderly, Tay-Sachs Program, Camp Jori, and so forth. Every page, every paragraph is beautifully illustrated. The whole booklet is printed in two colors, and can be read in the span of five minutes. I must repeat the urging of the president of the organization to obtain a copy. An agency dealing with such problems as disturbed children, families on the point of breaking up, people in need of Moes Chitum, has put out a cheerful

Saul Bellow Has Set A Milestone

Last week's headlines — of Saul Bellow taking the 1976 Nobel Prize in Literature — are now yellowing in rubbish piles and random scrap books across the nation. The fanfare has faded. At the same time, this high tribute will continue to stand fixed in our memories as another major milestone marking the world's recognition of yet another exemplary American author. Bellow is the first American to receive the Nobel Prize in Literature since it was awarded to John Steinbeck in 1954.

As a New York Times editorial noted, the Swedish Academy did not award a Peace Prize this year. In its stead, Bellow's anti-heroes can be considered anonymous men of peace, looking for it within themselves and within the small circle most of us inhabit, with only a slight stretch of the imagination.

As members of the Jewish American community, we may vicariously bask in the sun which shines upon one Saul Bellow. A Canadian-born American Jew who now calls Chicago his home, Mr. Bellow's early writings were cited by the Swedish Academy as having helped to emancipate the American novel from what had become the hard-boiled writing formula of the 1930's and to point a new direction in the postwar years for that universal man, the anti-hero.

Although most commentary sources have downplayed Bellow's Jewish heritage and stressed that the scope of his characters and his themes know no ethnic boundaries, it can likewise be argued that the large body of his work epitomizes the experience of the Jewish American intellectual in this country as well as the continuing struggle of Jews worldwide. Witness "To Jerusalem and Back," his new nonfiction journey in which he meditates on the meaning of mankind today and its civilized roots in the past. Witness Henderson, the Rain King in which his anti-hero seeks cosmic truth in most primitive Africa. Witness Augie March, Herzog, Sammler and Humbolt.

The Academy judges cited his characters as "men of courage trying to find a foothold in our tottering world," who realize "the value of life depends on its dignity, not its success." Are these not characteristically Jewish traits and pursuits? Does Bellow not have a firm foothold on his Jewish heritage? Does this not bear vestiges of the proverbial "wandering Jew?"

The author did see defeat in 1975, when he was a front-runner for the Nobel Prize last fall. Among his laurels, however, he won the 1976 Pulitzer Prize for Fiction for his novel Humbolt's Gift, published last year. He has also received the National Book Award three times, the French Prix Internationale de Literature in 1965, and the Jewish Heritage Award in 1968.

Herzog and Mr. Sammler's Planet, which won him the National Book Award in 1971, have been translated into Hebrew and were enthusiastically received by Israeli critics as well as the public.

Commenting upon his receipt of this most coveted honor, Mr. Bellow said, "the child in me is delighted; the adult in me is skeptical." This too seems most appropriate from that skeptic — an ironist and a knowledgeable Jew — Saul Bellow.

Gillette's Secret Service Entertaining Melodrama

William Gillette's Secret Service, first produced in 1895, is still an entertaining melodrama, at least in Brown University's Sock and Buskin production last weekend and this (November 4-7). Set in Richmond, Virginia, near the end of the Civil War, the play opens in the handsome living room of General Varney, who is off at war. Mrs. Varney is nursing a wounded son, 16-year-old Wilfred wants to enlist, and daughter Edith has fallen in love with Captain Thorne. The girl next door, Miss Mitford, sweeps in (in fine southern belle style) to invite Edith and her captain to a "starvation party" and Edith's discarded suitor Arrelsford, of the Confederate Secret Service, stalks by to announce that Captain Thorne is not what he seems.

All the proper elements are here for good melodrama, and thanks to director Don B. Wilmet, they all work. There are some splendid little bits with Miss Mitford and Wilfred (whose aplomb, energy and skill as actors light up the stage when they are on). Gillette wrote this play for himself, so Captain Thorne has one of those scenes every actor adores, where he can take center stage and do as he will for a considerable period while the malevolent hordes wait outside to do him in.

There is good stage movement throughout. The chase scenes and those with small army units marching on and off are done with a particularly light touch. A noble speech about the Secret Service was, alas! too much allied by the audience with CIA attitudes to stand on its own merits, but that was the only real problem in meshing a period piece with an 80-years-later audience.

The trimmings were very good. John R. Lucas designed the pleasing settings and the lighting, and Barbara Garner the costumes. Cast members are Mrs. Varney, Debbie Greenberg; Edith, Laura Worthen; Wilfred, Bruce Tracy; Caroline, Kathy Morath; Captain Thorne, Rob Anderson; Henry Dumont, Leander McCormick-Goodhart; Arrelsford, Tim Hearn; Miss Kittridge, Julie Cooper; Martha, Portia E. Pinkney; Jonas, Raymond Gross; officers and soldiers, John Dukakis, Judd Silverman, Phil Sweetland, Charles Varon, Stephen Cerrone, Benjamin Magee, David Santoro; General Randolph, Jim Edwards; and messengers, etc. Marc Siegal, S.C. Warnath, Timothy Clapp, Jon Laskin, Tim Meinert, Michael O'Connell, Brian Simpson.

On The Spirit Of Giving

The Entebbe rescue mission is again a miracle; not a regular miracle — this time a very exceptional one. The paradox of the continuity of Jewish existence throughout generations is that it is always thriving on the miracle. A Jew throughout his lifetime is always bound to face the exceptional, the unheard of. And so, Entebbe is an elevated peak in the process of facing miraculous events: the establishment of the State of Israel, the 1956 Sinai campaign victory, the '67 war, and the initiative that Israel took during the Yom Kippur War to defeat her enemies that were out to obliterate her.

Entebbe proved that the Israelis are extricating the best of themselves, and normal day-to-day lives are characterized by constant sacrificial behavior on the economic, political and military levels. Entebbe is sort of a transfusion of life blood into the morale of Jews all over the world. If Israelis are asked to put their lives on the line and have not hesitated to do so, then let us put our money on the line.

The idea of giving for Israel, for Jewish causes and for our own community has to be transmitted in terms of giving as voluntary self-taxation. How fortunate are we to be able to choose between taxing ourselves on a higher or lower level. Each and every Jew has to allocate a certain percentage of his income for the survival of the Jewish people. Charity involves our very survival, and therefore, we cannot think in terms of just helping others; since we are helping ourselves we have to give meaningfully, having in mind our brethren in Israel that have no choice but to give sacrificially. Support for Jews overseas, in the United States and in our own community is a project of self support and a life insurance program for ourselves.

We have a special obligation to perpetuate our continuity by transmitting the message of life to younger people. Our problem is guaranteeing a continuity of a strong and viable Jewish community; and in this context, the Initial Gifts Campaign (of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island) assumes a tremendous significance. Our campaign has to evolve into a grass roots movement of commitment; it cannot and is not designed to be for a few people. It is the $500 giver who has the potential of giving substantially more on whom our community's vitality and its future thrive. Broadening the base is the prime goal of the Initial Gifts Campaign.

Here I have witnessed a great phenomena that my campaign has been blessed with — younger people, as exemplified by my cochairmen Dr. Alden H. Blackman and Harris N. Rosen, are step-by-step getting into the act of commitment in giving and leadership. In their undertaking people like my cochairmen express their concept of a dynamic Jewish community with a vision of a health Jewish future. This is the kind of job that has been entrusted in our hands and we are happy the younger generation of the community is joining us in this effort.

In our own community, we have to face many obligations that the Jewish Federation has to cope with: the aged, the youth, the educational institutions, Russian Jews the Jewish community as a whole — these needs are self evident. A strong community here in Rhode Island is a guarantee for a strong Israel.

On November 17, a unique event will take place in our community when the Initial Gifts dinner of the Men's Division of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island will take place. It will be our honor to have with us the Honorable Raanan Sivan, one of Israel's top diplomats who has represented the Jewish state in prime positions, and who presently is the Consul General of New England. We are particularly thrilled to have with us for the affair a man who played a major role in the Entebbe affair, the Chief Air Force Pilot of the rescue mission, Col. Joshua Shani. Col. Shani, leading the rescue mission was plunging into the uncertain and unknown when approaching the Entebbe airport in Uganda. What was at stake was the determination of the Jewish people to be treated as humans. By his heroic leadership, he made everybody proud to be Jewish.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

In Duplicate Bridge everyone plays the same hands or boards as they are called. However, they do not play them at the same time. The boards move from table to table and each has a folded score sheet with it that cannot be opened until after the hand is played. At that time the result of that table is added and the two pairs there can then see what the others had already done on the same hand. Obviously, each time there is another score to be seen. It is then that we hear the comments when what seems to be a strange result is noted. Or one might say, "Everyone made the hand but me; what did I do wrong?" Today's hand is a good one for apparently it cannot be made yet two Declarers did make it. The comment usually was, "I just couldn't make this hand the way the cards are, those two had to have help from the Defense." True, normal play will not succeed and one of the Declarers was aided by his opponent. However, the other did make the hand legitimately by reading the cards correctly and giving himself the only chance.

2 H	2 S	P	4 S

The bidding is quite normal with every North-South pair in four Spades. It is East's two bids vulnerable that should have alerted each Declarer how futile his effort was going to be. The play was the same at every table where the hand was set, three high Hearts won by East who then made the only lead that could not cost him, a Trump. I would say that it was unfortunate that there were three Heart losers in each hand but nothing could be done about that. So after winning the Trump lead and removing the rest I watched as South sooner or later took a losing finesse in either Clubs or Diamonds. Most of them played a few more Trumps first hoping something good would happen but nothing did.

When the finesse lost I heard another comment repeated at most tables. "I knew East had everything and that finesse would lose but at least it will cost for everyone else too." As you can see, both finesses do lose and nothing drops. How, then, can the hand be made without a Defensive error?

The Declarer who made the hand said that he could actually have claimed the hand as soon as the Dummy was seen as long as he could be certain East had both minor suit honors. At any rate he was going to play the hand accordingly. After drawing Trumps, he played the Club Ace making East's King good. Now he played all the rest of his Trumps as everyone had to discard. From Dummy he threw the other Clubs leaving the three Diamonds as the last three cards there. His own last three were two Diamonds and the Club Ten, the

Will Continue Russian String-Playing Custom

NEW YORK: A 15-member ensemble, mostly Soviet Jews who will be known as the New Russian Chamber Orchestra, has been organized under the direction of Joel Spiegelman. Most of them have emigrated to this country only recently, and the purpose of the group will be to maintain a unit that continues the Russian string-playing custom.

Expecting to be touring early next year, the group has already begun regular rehearsals. Performances for New York, hopefully, can be arranged for next spring, and the group will travel to Provincetown, Massachusetts, to conduct a series of summer concerts, recitals, seminars and workshops during the summer, if they are reading their cards right. Besides being a harpsicordist and conductor for the ensemble, Mr. Spiegelman teaches at Sarah Lawrence College, where he is director for the Collegium for Baroque Music and the Studio for Electronic Music & Sound Media. Scores of younger generation Russian composers have been introduced to the United States through his assistance.

George Cochran, a concert manager and currently the promotional director for Lincoln Center's New and Newer Music series, will be executive director of the New Russian Chamber Orchestra.

A PLC could be your budget's best friend.

With a PLC - Personal Line-of-Credit - your budget won't get swamped by bills and you won't miss out on bargains.

With PLC you can pay bills and buy things even when your budget's tight. And PLC gives you "spending power" to use whenever you want. You can use it to take advantage of sales and bargains, or even take a vacation. PLC is a friend your budget will appreciate and your family can enjoy.

Think of PLC as a loan you give your budget.

With a PLC account, you and the bank sit down and figure out how much credit you should have by figuring out what kind of monthly payments you can comfortably afford. Once your Personal Line-of-Credit account's established, we'll give you a book of PLC checks. Then you can write your budget a loan any time you want for any amount you want, up to your credit limit. You don't owe a penny until you write a check. When you do, we'll send you a monthly statement showing the amount you owe and the amount of credit still available. If you want, you can pay off your account in full at any time, or you can pay at the agreed monthly rate. Either way, a PLC can help you manage your budget better than ever before. To find out more, stop in at any Hospital Trust office and ask about PLC, we'll show you how it can be your budget's best friend.

Jews Gain Access But Barred Later

JERUSALEM (JTA): A small group of Orthodox and nationalist Jews gained access to the Temple Mount to pray and sound the shofar just prior to Yom Kippur October 3. But they were blocked by a police cordon when they attempted to return October 4 for the Neilah (closing service). Members of the group, headed by Gershon Salomon, a Likud member of the Jerusalem City Council, denounced the government for refusing to allow Jewish prayers on the site. The Temple Mount contains the El Aksa Mosque and the Dome of the Rock.

UJA CONFERENCE: On October 31, the Rhode Island delegation to the UJA conference in Jerusalem returned with the conviction that the conference was a unique experience for every Jew, whether or not he had been to Israel before. The delegation was headed by Merrill L. Hassenfeld, former national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and former president of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island. Pictured here, Mr. Hassenfeld is signing up for unity at the UJA conference in Jerusalem, October 21-31. Also heading the mission were Dr. and Mrs. Alden H. Blackman. The group was met in Israel by Mrs. Merrill Hassenfeld, national chairman of the Women's Division of the UJA, and by Mrs. Leonard Salmanson, vice president of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island.

Participants in the mission were Robert A. Riesman, president of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island; Dan Asher, executive director of the Federation, and Mrs. Asher; Mr. and Mrs. L. Saul Alpert, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Berlinsky, Eleanor Botvin, Mr. and Mrs. Cary Coen, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Foster, Marvin S. Holland, Arthur Kaplan, Mr. and Mrs. John Laramée, Jacob Licht, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Mandel and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Marks. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Messing, Sue Orenstein, Mrs. Albert Pilavin, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Pritzker, Milton Sapinsley and Mr. and Mrs. David Silverman.

Confrontation In Bronx Marked By Ethnic, Religious Charges

NEW YORK: A confrontation marked by ethnic and religious charges marked a recent incident in the Bronx produced by a Beame administration move to give a multi-million dollar affiliation contract to a Roman Catholic hospital instead of a Jewish medical college there.

Albert Einstein Medical College will be supplanted by Misericordia Hospital as the medical operator of the city's newly built Lincoln Hospital, under the action. Misericordia is operated by the health and hospitals division of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, while Einstein is supported, in part, by Jewish philanthropy.

In a recent interview, Msgr. James Cassidy, hospital director for Catholic Charities, said, "Catholics were tired of being pushed to the wall on this kind of thing."

He further commented that Jewish-supported hospitals and medical colleges had a large share of the city's lucrative medical affiliation contracts at municipal hospitals while the Catholics had none.

Monsignor Cassidy also insisted that the predominantly Puerto Rican neighborhoods in the South Bronx that were served by the new Lincoln Hospital "would much rather be treated by their own people" — that is, by a hospital that had an affiliation with a Roman Catholic hospital — rather than by one identified with Jewish support.

The emotional dispute is largely an outgrowth of another hospital battle in the Bronx, in which the city's Health and Hospital Corporation recently chose Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center, another institution with Jewish support, rather than Misericordia to run the new $100-million North Central Bronx Hospital.

'Blatant Political Act'
Monsignor Cassidy warned that if Misericordia was denied a major affiliation contract to replace the minor one it now had at Lincoln, the Beame administration would risk the opposition of Catholic voters in the Bronx.

In response, Dr. Ephraim Friedman, dean of Albert Einstein, said that the city's effort to force his college out of Lincoln in favor of Misericordia "had unleashed an ethnic and religious conflict that had not existed before."

Dean Friedman said that any move to oust his institution was a "blatant political act" to appease Catholic constituencies.

"But this one smells so bad that the bad stench from it will put a stop to it," he said.

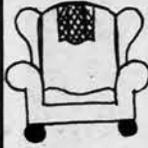

Although he said the city had the legal authority to cancel its affiliation contract with the college, after giving three months' notice, he contended that the college "had no intention of giving up its affiliation without a fight."

According to Dr. John L. S. Holloman, the president of the New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, the dispute between Einstein and Misericordia represents a "very real struggle" between the archdiocese and Jewish medical philanthropy for "the health-care dollar in this city."

Toward that end, members of the hospitals agency said privately that Mayor Beame, through his first Deputy, John E. Zuccotti, exerted intense pressure upon D. Holloman to arrange a new affiliation contract at Lincoln that would see Einstein essentially replaced by Misericordia.

The corporations's board members discussed the proposed switch on Monday and also took up a letter from Dr. Holloman to Monsignor Cassidy in which he said that any change in the contract would have to be approved by the board.

key card. West was out of it so we come to poor East and see his predicament. His last four cards were the three Diamonds and the Club King, so far so good but now he has to dispose of one of them and he simply cannot afford to. Whatever he does will give Declarer the hand. His only chance is to hope his partner has the Club Ten. Now that Club Ten and the two high Diamonds make the hand. This type of play is called a Vienna Coup. Not too many even good players would have made this hand.

and pleasant booklet, devoid of morbidity and of pulling of heart strings as one would expect.

Let me reprint a paragraph or two from the booklet:

"The family and the home have traditionally been the Heart of Judaism. In the spirit of this tradition, the professionals of the Jewish Family & Children's Service help people cope with the stresses and strains of daily living."

On the problems of parents and children we read:

"The agency helps parents who are having problems with children and children who are having problems with parents. Each is heard and counseled separately and in family sessions."

If you are inclined to minimize the importance of this procedure, or to question the existence of such misunderstanding between parents and children, you are mistaken. Ask your Rabbis and they will tell you.

Or the problems of the teenagers, the ill, the divorced, the widowed, the separated, that all "find skilled and sensitive counseling at the Jewish Family & Children's Service."

So much so that the JFCS is fully accredited and is supported by the United Way of Rhode Island.

The booklet sums it up: "The staff includes an Executive Director, and professional Social Workers skilled in all aspects of counselling. A Psychiatrist serves as consultant. All information is strictly confidential."

And on Friendly Visits: "The Jewish Family & Children's Service case worker visits, calls, talks, listens and offers help . . ."

How important all this is to the elderly, lonely person.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own and not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Ethiopia Receives 1st Hebrew Torah

NEW YORK (JTA): A Torah scroll, a gift of the Brotherhood Synagogue, Congregation Beth Achim of Manhattan, has been flown to remote Ambober in Ethiopia where it will be read for the first time on Simchat Torah in the Beta Israel synagogue there.

Rabbi Irving J. Block of the Brotherhood Synagogue presented the Torah last week to Dr. Graenum Berger, president of the American Association for Ethiopian Jews.

It is the first full-sized Torah written in Hebrew to come into the possession of Ethiopia's 28,000 Jews. Up to now, their Biblical readings were in Geez, an ancient Ethiopian language.

Asher Yadlin Issue Is 'Watergate' Of Israel

JERUSALEM (JTA): The Cabinet has deferred for two weeks a decision on whether or not to revoke the appointment of Asher Yadlin as Governor of the Bank of Israel. Yadlin, 55, an economics wizard and until recently chairman of Kupat Holim, the powerful Histadrut sick-fund, has had allegations of bribery brought against him in a report by State Attorney General Aharon Barak.

The Cabinet, which had been expected to act on the appointment, accepted a proposal by Justice Minister Haim Zadok to wait until an ongoing police investigation yields more substantive information. Yadlin himself has stated flatly that he will not step down voluntarily.

The Cabinet has published Barak's report — an unprecedented step in a case of this kind — and Yadlin's response and statements of innocence. Today's Cabinet session was devoted almost exclusively to the Yadlin affair and the five-hour debate was described as stormy.

Unless the Cabinet convenes in special session earlier, its action on Yadlin will come on Oct. 31, just one day before the new Israel Bank Governor is to assume his post. The Cabinet rejected a proposal to name a Deputy Governor immediately.

The case, which has occupied the news media for weeks, was described by some sources as Israel's "Watergate." The allegations of bribery were made against Yadlin by a former woman friend, identified as Chava Ehrlichman. What was originally dismissed as attempted revenge by a rejected lover began to unfold into a major scandal as police investigators probed events surrounding an unsuccessful project by a group of Latin American Jewish physicians to build a medical center in Israel.

The investors who ran out of money before the skeleton of the building was completed, managed to sell it to Kupat Holim for what was described as an excessive price. According to allegations by police investigators, part of the price was paid in kick-backs to Yadlin and others.

The charge involving the purchase of the uncompleted medical center is only one of six allegations against Yadlin. The others include possible violations of fiscal regulations and the acceptance of commissions — bribes — in connection with various transactions with Kupat Holim. There were also rumors within the Labor Party that Yadlin was instrumental in directing Kupat Holim funds to the party treasury.

The investigation has also spread to the financial dealings of Shikun Ovdim, Histadrut's housing company, which was headed by Avraham Ofer before his appointment to the Rabin Cabinet as Minister of Housing. Ofer, who has declared that he believes Yadlin innocent, says he can prove the legitimacy of all Shikun Ovdim transactions.

So far, no criminal charges have been filed against Yadlin as a result of the investigation and Yadlin has rejected all but one of the charges. He noted that he had cooperated fully with the investigators because he had nothing to hide. Yadlin's professional credentials for the job are not in question. A former member of Kibbutz Hammadiyah, he studied economics in the U.S.

and is regarded as a prodigy in that field.

TAX TREATMENT OF CAPITAL LOSSES

Q — For tax purposes, I would like to take a stock loss. I understand I should sell some time in December and re-buy 30 days later. Is that true? How much of a loss can I take? J.C., Washington

A — The sale may be made any time from now to December 31, 1976. However, repurchase must not take place until 30 days after (or before) the sale or a "wash sale" will result, disqualifying your claim of loss. Not only does the 30-day ban apply to repurchase of the identical issue which was sold, but also to any substantially similar issue. Under the tax regulations now in effect, a stock must have been held more than six months to qualify as long term. The six-month holding period begins the day after purchase and ends six months later. Shares bought June 6 are not counted as long term until December 7. A change in the required holding period to nine months will go into effect in 1977. In 1978, the long-term holding period will be extended to one year.

Short term capital losses are deductible against ordinary income on a $1-for-$1 basis. Long-term capital losses are applied on a $1-for-$1 ratio. The amount of ordinary income that can be offset by either is now $1,000. Next year, this will be increased to $2,000 and in 1978, to $3,000. Losses that are not offset by either capital gains or ordinary income may be carried forward from year to year.

Q — Is it possible to set up a trust (for my stocks and real estate) in such a manner that I retain control over it until my death? Also, a trust that could be administered by someone else, after my death. The assets could be distributed to my sons some time later, perhaps at age 50 when they will be wiser. If properly administered, the assets should grow in value. This trust would not be intended as a means of avoiding taxes but to permit the money to grow and to prevent its dissipation. J.M., Texas

A — Uncle Sam should be happy! The type of trust that you describe is entirely feasible and one that attorneys draw up regularly. Your own legal adviser should be consulted for the planning and drawing up of a trust that will best meet each of your requirements. Often trusts such as these include a provision for earnings to be distributed annually for educating grandchildren or some other legitimate purpose. But your own attorney is in the best position to help you with your trust.

Either Way He'll Lose

JERUSALEM: Jail or the wrath of the High Priest is the dilemma facing a member of the small Samaritan community living in Holon whose marriage to a Jewish woman, not of the sect, did not work out.

On divorce, the woman obtained a High Court order for maintenance, but this is alien to Samaritan customs and the High Priest has forbidden any such payment by the man.

So far, this headache remains unresolved. The Samaritan elders are seeking to avoid similar trouble in the future by advising their young men to exercise the utmost caution before marrying an "outside" bride.

The elders suggest that any prospective outsider should agree to spend up to a year learning about Samaritan customs before agreeing to marry.

BANKAMERICARD

MASTER CHARGE

Leasona Complying With Arab Boycott

million between last December 1 and April of this year.

Noting that the boycott is sometimes capricious, Mr.
Kempner pointed out that New York's Chase Manhattan Bank processes letters of credit with anti-Israel trade provisions, yet it serves as Israel's agent in handling government bonds in the United States.

An executive, who requested that both his name and the name of his firm not be released, said he processes letters of credit with conditions relating to Israel on a regular basis. He said some of those letters specify that a product, or even parts used to make it, are not to be made in Israel.

Seeing it as a "very minor, small thing," he added that, "any bank in Rhode Island would accept that letter of credit."

Banks Comment

According to a vice president in Industrial National Bank's international department, Michael T.
Winters, the bank will not issue a letter of credit containing a boycott restriction against Israel. "We do business in the Arab world and in Israel, and don't see any conflict," he said.

Old Stone Bank has "no business dealings with the Mideast," and hasn't been approached about the boycott according to John J.
Grygiel, manager of the bank's international department. He added, however, that a decision to comply is "a matter of economics; it's up to each individual to decide where its best economic interest lies."

At Rhode Island Hospital Trust
National Bank, Jack J. Donnelly, assistant vice president in the international department, was quoted as saying he sees "nothing wrong" with credit letter restrictions concerning Israel. He added that,
"we did that in the Vietnam War," referring to restrictions involving trade with Hanoi.

Other Firms Cited

Commenting on his company's dealings with Arab nations, James A. Willis Jr., administrator of the export department at Anson Inc., a jewelry manufacturer in Providence, said, "The only thing they said, we couldn't use any of their blacklisted insurance companies." It turned out that Anson's insurer was not on the blacklist of either the League of Arab States or any of its 20 member countries, he pointed out.

In a later development, Olof V.
Anderson, president and founder of Anson, Inc., said his company does not comply in any way "whatsoever" with the Arab boycott of Israel.

"This is the first time I realized anything like the boycott existed," Anderson said in response to an article which had appeared earlier in the Providence Evening Bulletin.

James A. Willis, Jr., administrator of Anson's export department, commented that "from what I've seen of the boycott, I don't see why we can't go along with it."

He said that, "A letter of credit a lot of times will specify you are not using Israeli material (or that) you will not use a steamship that calls at Israeli ports before calling in an Arab country."

In his later reply Anderson said,
"I know what Willis said - about the boycott is different, but I'm the president of the company. We do not give information to Arab customers."

He added that Anson does business with about 80 countries, including Israel and the Arab nations.

Leonard Granoff, executive vice president of American Tourister in Warren, said his firm, which does an annual business of $30 million, has done business with Arab countries and encountered no problems regarding restrictive letters of credit. He added that their firm has no business with Israel because the country is not in the market for consumer goods.

Robert S. Eisenhauser, vice president of corporate relations at Textron in Providence, a firm with annual sales of $2.1 billion, indicated he would prefer not to comment on the issue. However, a recent issue of Fortune magazine cited Textron, along with such firms as McDonnell Aircraft, United Aircraft, General Electric and Hughes Aircraft, as either selling or having sold war equipment to Israel.

GIVEN ASYLUM

JERUSALEM (JCNS): Eighteen teenage Christian girls from a Greek Catholic convent near Beirut, who were smuggled out of Lebanon for their personal safety, have been given asylum in Israel.

They were first taken to Syria and from there to Jordan. Then the church authorities sent them to Israel. They are now at a convent.

Israel Issue A Priority

NAIROBI, KENYA: The general conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, currently underway here, has set Israeli participation, financing and press freedom as three priorities on their agenda, all of which should prove to be supercharged issues during this five-week session.

The first UNESCO conference to be held away from headquarters in 20 years, is being attended by 2,000 delegates from 130 countries. Also attending are 700 staff people, including technicians for a special satellite facility that provides instantaneous links with Paris through telephones, closed-circuit television and computer terminals.

World Press Pool

The nuts-and-bolts work will be to approve a budget for the next two years and establish priorities for projects to be carried out around the world. It is believed that the most peppery skirmish on this issue will come on the question of press and the third world, which is the subject of two points on the agenda.

One is a draft resolution submitted by Tunisia asking for the agency's assistance in the linking of third-world national news agencies into a worldwide pool. Some news agencies have opposed the essence of this resolution, but it is the other media issue, a draft declaration by nine third-world countries, that is stirring the most debate. It calls on countries, primarily developing countries, to control all news reporting — a reflection of the view that foreign reporters all too often emphasize the negative and ignore the positive.

The issue of Israel concerns whether it will be permitted to rejoin the agency's European regional grouping. It alone is not a member of any of the agency's regional groups, having been blackballed two years ago. The Arab states, which had the Soviet bloc's support at the last meeting, are pressing for continued exclusion.

The United States has strongly championed Israel's position. Backed by a Congressional resolution, the United States, which is liable for 25 percent of the agency's budget, has delayed its contributions and remains two years in arrears for a total of $38 million. It has paid just enough to retain voting rights.

The general issue of finances remains an overriding headache. A number of countries in addition to the United States, among them the Soviet Union, are behind in their payments.

Plan To Portray Labor Camp Life

TEL AVIV: A committee of young Americans has founded a project known as "Gulag America" with the aim of showing the world what life in a Soviet Labor Camp is really like. The group is composed of members of various youth organizations of all shades of opinion, blacks and whites, Jews and non-Jews, and different political parties.

An exact replica of a Soviet Labor Camp will be built on a site near Washington, with the same guards, clothes, rations, and facilities for daily living. Volunteers will undergo a mock Soviet trial and receive sentences. According to the number of years they are sentenced, they will serve an equivalent number of days in the American Gulag (for fifteen years, they will serve fifteen days).

The volunteers will live in the new Gulag and experience firsthand the conditions of camp life. After this, they will meet with former Russian prisoners and hear accounts of their sufferings. The volunteers will thus be able to bear witness in their various communities to what really goes on in Russia.

The American Gulag, when finally completed, will be formally opened by writer Alexander Solzhenitsin.
