

Torch Of Liberty Award Honors Mrs. Dorenbaum

The Rhode Island Chapter of the Society of Fellows of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith will honor Mrs. Philip (Jennie) Dorenbaum of Providence with the Torch of Liberty Award in recognition of her many years of dedicated service to the Jewish community at a cocktail party and reception on Tuesday, September 28, at the Ledgemont Country Club in Seekonk, Massachusetts. The announcement was made by Irving Sigal, chairman of the Rhode Island Society of Fellows, which is the leadership and development arm of the Anti-Defamation League. The event will feature an important report on the impact of the Arab boycott and petrodollars by Abraham H. Foxman of New York, director of leadership development for the League.

Mrs. Dorenbaum is being honored by the Society of Fellows for her dedicated and tireless efforts in behalf of the Jewish community. She has been a member of B'nai B'rith for more than 50 years, also serving as the first president of the B'nai B'rith Women - District No. 1. She was the first president of the Women's Division of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island and now serves on its executive committee.

A long-time member of the New England Regional board of the Anti-Defamation League, Mrs. Dorenbaum has also been active with Israel Bonds, the Jewish Home for the Aged at Springfield, Massachusetts, and the Women's Health Club at the Providence Jewish Community Center. Her philanthropies include the Dorenbaum Library at the Providence Hillel Foundation.

She was the first woman to be named Woman of Valor by Israel Bonds.

She is a graduate of Boston University Law School and a member of the Massachusetts Bar. Her hobbies are her Jewish community work which has benefited the Jewish communities in Springfield and Holyoke, Massachusetts, as well as her home town of Providence.

The Rhode Island Society of Fellows is part of a national leadership organization of the ADL which provides guidance in the struggle against bigotry. In these challenging times, the League's major focus rests on combating and counteracting all manifestations of anti-Semitism; developing informed attitudes on Israel and the Middle East; opposing the Arab economic boycott by exposing compliance with boycott regulations by American government agencies, banks and industries and supporting new, strong federal legislation to ban United States participation in the boycott.

A special planning committee for the Society's event honoring Mrs. Dorenbaum includes Albert I. Gordon and Bertram L. Bernhard, honorary chairmen; Irving Sigal, chairman; Herman Selya, campaign chairman; Owen Kwasha and Samuel Shlevin, vice chairmen; and Bruce M. Selya, chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of Rhode Island.

Hadassah Sponsors Major Gift Giving

The Western New England Region of Hadassah, encompassing the Providence, Somerset, Massachusetts, Fall River, Massachusetts, Worcester, Massachusetts, Cranston and Newport Chapters, will hold a major gift giving function at the home of Mrs. Stanley Grossman, 70 Harwich Road, at 5 p.m. on Sunday, September 19. Wine and cheese will be served.

Mrs. Stanley Lieberman will be guest speaker. She is the national major gifts coordinator and past chairman of Founders and Special Gifts of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, Inc. A volunteer worker, she is a member of Hadassah's National Board, where she has served as National Hadassah-Month Chairman, and as chairman of endowments and annuity trusts before assuming her present post.

During her more than 30 years as a member of Hadassah, Mrs. Lieberman has held leadership posts in all phases of the organization's work. She was president of the New York Chapter for three years.

She applies her professional experience as a hospital administrator for Hadassah's benefit, as a member of the National Hadassah Medical Organization Advisory Committee, and of the Tourism and Wills and Bequests Committees.

MRS. STANLEY LIEBERMAN

She was a Hadassah delegate to the International Congress on behalf of Soviet Jewry in Brussels in February 1971.

Mrs. Lieberman is also a member of the national executive committee and a trustee of the United Israel Appeal. Most recently, she supervised the various Founders' events and dedications at the rededicated Hadassah University Hospital, Mount Scopus, in October 1975.

Mrs. Lieberman is a founder of the Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center.

Double-Barreled Legislation Will Discourage Compliance With Boycott

WASHINGTON: In a recent double-barreled move to discourage U.S. companies from complying with the Arab trade boycott against Israel, the Senate voted to prohibit domestic companies from refusing to do business with other American concerns as part of an Arab boycott demand, and to require reports from these companies, stating publicly whether they intend to comply with boycott demands such as selling goods to Israel.

The Senate's bill is also intended

CITATION OF MERIT: Rabbi Yaakov Usvitzky has announced that the annual Citation of Merit will be presented this year to Max Marks of Pawtucket on behalf of his work for Camp Shalom. Through the efforts of Mr. Marks, the camp had the use of a station wagon for transportation of the camp's children.

Mr. Marks has been a resident of Pawtucket for the past 26 years. He is the general manager of Paul Goldman Dodge, Washington Street, South Attleboro, Massachusetts, a position which he has held for the past twenty years. He is a member of Congregation Ohave Shalom of Pawtucket, B'nai B'rith, the Jewish Home for the Aged and The Miriam Hospital.

Mr. Marks will be honored at a reception on Sunday, September 12, in the vestry of Congregation Ohave Shalom at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

High Commissioner Condemned By CJC

MONTREAL: The Canadian Jewish Congress has protested the Canadian High Commissioner in London for validating certificates of Canadians seeking entry to Arab countries, claiming applicants were not of Jewish origin or were of the Christian faith.

In a letter to the Canadian External Affairs Department Secretary Allan MacEachen, Alan Rose, CJC executive director, declared that the practice was "obviously discriminating" against Canadian Jews and that the CJC was "very much concerned" that Canadian representatives in London participated in a practice repeatedly condemned by Prime Minister Elliott Trudeau and one which is "abhorrent to all Canadians."

Rose also said in his letter, "clearly the action of the High Commissioner's office in London to expose the acquisitions of U.S. businesses by Arabs and other foreigners, but American investors would have to comply with the tougher ownership reporting requirements as well.

Earlier this month, as part of its massive tax-revision bill, the Senate approved a provision denying certain foreign and export tax breaks to U.S. companies that participate in the Arab boycott or that bribe foreign officials. A House-Senate conference committee is in deep negotiation over this and other parts of the tax bill.

The Senate passed its new anti-boycott bill Friday by a vote of 65 to 13. The measure goes to the House, where the International Relations Committee is scheduled to start work on a counterpart version tomorrow.

The Senate's anti-boycott and investment-ownership rules are riders on an otherwise routine bill extending for three years the Commerce Department's power to regulate U.S. exports headed for Communist countries. That power lapses at the end of next month unless Congress extends it.

Companies on Blacklist

According to the Senate Banking Committee, more than 1,500 U.S. companies are on a blacklist kept by the League of Arab States, which refuse to do business with them.

Companies are placed on the blacklist generally for trading with Israel or because they have Jewish personnel. Among several kinds of demands made on nonblacklisted companies as a condition for doing business, Arab countries can insist that a potential U.S. supplier have nothing to do with American concerns on the blacklist.

The Senate bill would forbid U.S. companies from making such an agreement. American companies and individuals also would be forbidden to help enforce the Arab boycott by supplying information on the race, religion or national origin of people working for their suppliers or customers.

Existing law requires a U.S. company that gets a boycott demand to report it to the Commerce Department and say whether it intends to comply. The department had resisted congressional demands to make these reports public, for fear that companies intending to comply would suffer retaliation from Jewish organizations. The Senate bill would require that the reports be made public.

"This act may cost some business in Arab nations," said Sen. Adlai Stevenson (D., Ill.), its main sponsor. "If so, then it will be known that the sovereignty of the U.S. and its principles of decency and fair play are not for sale."

Country Club Is Charged With Institutional Discrimination

LOS ANGELES: The Pacific southwest regional office of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has charged that an exclusive country club in which some of Palm Springs' most prominent citizens are members engages in "institutional discrimination." According to Al Navsky, chairman of the ADL's regional office, "It was recently reported that the assistant golf professional at the O'Donnell Golf Club, David Ross, had admitted that applications at O'Donnell are carefully screened, 'otherwise, you'd have a lot of Jews coming in there all the time. We try to keep them down to fifteen percent.'"

Navsky pointed out that the ADL's concerns are increased "by the apparent involvement of the City of Palm Springs in the discriminatory policies of the O'Donnell Club. O'Donnell operates on a long-term lease from the City of Palm Springs on city owned property."

The ADL, Navsky stated, is considering possible legal action against the club and the City of Palm Springs because of Ross' "admission of the club's discriminatory policies." He added that the regional ADL has written to the mayor and City Council of Palm Springs regarding the club's policy, and has requested that a "thorough investigation of the club's admissions policies be undertaken. We have informed the leaders of Palm Springs that discrimination by a lessee of the city operating on municipal property implicates the city and its leaders. We have urged the mayor to determine what the club's policies are and take proper action."

Navsky noted that the Supreme Court has declared it to be a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment for an institution utilizing public property to discriminate on the basis of race, religion or national origin. According to the Supreme Court ruling in one landmark case, he continued, when a state leases public property, the proscriptions of the Fourteenth Amendment must be complied with by the lessee as though they were binding covenants written into the agreement itself.

Obituaries

HARRY BALL

Funeral services were held Thursday, August 26, at Gutterman Funeral Chapel in New York City for Harry Ball, 81, a textile industrialist, chairman of the board of directors of Balson Industries, Ltd., who died in North Miami, Florida, on August 25 after a 6-month illness. He was the husband of Harriet (Feinstein) Ball. Burial was in Long Island, New York.

Mr. Ball was the founder of Harry Ball and Sons, textile converters, in 1947. His entry in Rhode Island was with the purchase of the former Philip Lieberman Mill in West Warwick in 1954, which he operated until 1964. In 1964 he purchased the Joseph M.P. Ott Co. on Sabin Street, Pawtucket. In 1965, the corporate offices of Harry Ball and Son and Balson G. Corporation were moved from New York City to Rhode Island.

In 1972, he acquired the American Textile Mill on Eston Avenue, Pawtucket, for the purpose of expanding their quilting lines.

He was a trustee of the Goldman-Goode Lodge of B'nai B'rith; a member of the board of directors of the East Side Jewish Center Orphanage, and the United Jewish Appeal, all of New York City.

He was born in Austria, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Ball. He was a Florida resident for four years, living previously in New York City.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three sons, Marvin Ball of Cranston, Robert Ball of Rehoboth, Massachusetts, and Jerome E. Ball of Merrick, Long Island, New York; three brothers, Max Ball of New York City, Louis Ball and Bert Ball, both of Miami Beach, Florida; a sister, Marigold Ripps of Los Angeles, California; eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

its Brotherhood. He was in the real estate business in the Fall River area.

Mr. Yoken held a law degree from Southeastern Massachusetts Law School.

He was born in Fall River, a son of the late Abraham and Lillian (Chavenson) Yoken. He was a lifelong resident of the city.

Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, Melvin B. and Stephen H. Yoken, both of Fall River; a sister, Esther Robin of Winston-Salem, North Carolina; and two grandchildren.

BESSIE FURMAN

Funeral services were held at Sugarman Memorial Chapel on Sunday, August 29, for Bessie Furman, 81, of 243 Smith Street, who died August 26 at Roger Williams General Hospital shortly after being admitted. She was the widow of Frank Furman. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Furman was born in Russia in 1895, a daughter of the late Jacob and Lissie (Lishenger) Zinn. She lived in Providence for more than 40 years.

She was a member of the Jewish Community Center and the Providence Golden Agers.

She leaves two sons, George Furman of Cranston and Julius Furman of Charlotte, North Carolina; and four grandchildren.

JACK N. WEISMAN

Funeral services were held Tuesday, August 31, at Sugarman Memorial Chapel for Jack N. Weisman, 46, of 12 Neptune Street, Cranston, who died August 30 at Rhode Island Hospital shortly after being admitted. He was the husband of Barbara S. (Mandell) Weisman. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

He was a bookkeeper at Colfax Packing Company in Pawtucket for about 23 years. He was a member of Temple Beth Torah, the temple's men's club, the Knights of Pythias and the Jewish War Veterans.

He was born in Providence, a son of the late David T. and Rose (Brown) Weisman. He had lived in Cranston 15 years and was an Army veteran of the Korean War.

Besides his wife, he leaves a son, David T. Weisman, and a daughter, Frances Ann Weisman, both at home.

MRS. KURT E. ROSE

Funeral services for Marguerite Rose, 60, of 67 Governor Bradford Drive in Barrington, who died August 24, were held at Temple Beth-El on August 26. Burial was in the Sons of Israel and David Cemetery.

The widow of Dr. Kurt E. Rose, an eminent psychiatrist, she was born in Haverhill, Massachusetts, a daughter of the late Arthur and Lillian (Morton) Avery. She had been a resident of Barrington for 17 years, having previously lived in Boston, Massachusetts.

A social worker, she had been with the Social Service Department of Rhode Island Hospital for one year, until she retired a month ago.

A graduate of Simmons School of Social Work, she had been on the staff of Boston Children's Hospital, with Judge Baker's Child Guidance Clinic in Boston and she had formerly been on the staff of the Community Workshops of Rhode Island for eight years.

She is survived by a son, Jonathan Rose and one daughter, Judith Rose, both of Barrington.

Mrs. Jacob Lake

Funeral services for Gita Basheba Lake, 75, of 1403 Warwick Avenue, Warwick, who died August 24, were held the following day at the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Born in Poland, she was a daughter of the late Zalman and Sarah (Pliskin) Diment. She had been a resident of Warwick for four years, previously living in Providence for 34 years. She was married to Jacob Lake.

Mrs. Lake was a life member of Congregation Shaare Zedek-Sons of Abraham, Pioneer Women, Cranston Chapter of Hadassah, The Miriam Hospital Women's Association and Mizrahi.

She was also a member of the Jewish Home for the Aged, the Providence Hebrew Day School and the Jewish War Veterans auxiliary of the Gerald Cleiman Post.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Irving Lake of Cranston and Harold Lake of Sharon, Massachusetts; one daughter, Leila Sock of Cranston; one sister, Pauline Hodosh of Warwick, and seven grandchildren.

MRS. SIMON SHATKIN

Funeral services for Carrie Shatkin, 77, of 670 Blackstone Boulevard, who died August 27, were held Sunday at the Sugarman Memorial Chapel. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

The wife of Simon Shatkin, she was born in Russia, a daughter of the late Charles and Ida Garber. She had lived in Providence for more than 50 years.

Mrs. Shatkin was a member of the Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood, the Jewish Home for the Aged, Meeting Street School, the Jewish Community Center, Providence Hebrew Day School and Hadassah.

Besides her husband, survivors include one son, Louis Shatkin of Cranston; two daughters, Lois Cohen of Providence and Selma Kopelman of Newton Centre, Massachusetts; one brother, Louis Garber of Providence; one sister, Beatrice Krieger of Flushing, Long Island, New York; eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

BEIT HAYOTSER

A small workshop which has expanded into a large, bustling factory is the success story of Beit Hayotser and its 3 founders. Uri, the general manager and organizer who supervises promotion and design; Moshe, marketing manager and Zvi the artist and designer combine their talents to form the excellent team which has made Beit Hayotser into what it is today.

The factory's 70 workers use most efficient methods, made possible by their spacious surroundings. This large setting however, has not spoiled Beit Hayotser's trademark of handmade, artistic work; a trademark which is well-known throughout the world. It does allow for the large selection of over 200 designs which are always available. Their artistic success over the years has been proven in the many exhibitions Beit Hayotser has participated in, where they have won prizes and acclaim for their distinctive styling and design.

Hand in hand, with their large capacity for production, which is expanding all the time, goes Beit Hayotser's conviction that each item must be unique enough to be found in a small workshop. The quest for new designs is a constant one, to ensure the continued reputation of Beit Hayotser as a symbol of the highest quality.

B'nai B'rith YO Founder Dies In Chicago At 75

WASHINGTON: Sam Beber, founder of the B'nai B'rith Youth Organization and a Midwest financier, died in Chicago on Wednesday, August 25, of pneumonia at the age of 75. The youth organization describes itself as the largest Jewish teenage movement in the world.

Mr. Beber is a native of Omaha, Nebraska. He was 22 and a magna cum laude graduate of Creighton University's law school in Omaha when he organized AZA as a Jewish boys' counterpart to the Greek-letter fraternities which, for the most part, denied admission to Jews. The letters AZA stand for aleph zadik aleph, the first and last letters of the Hebrew alphabet.

Two years later, in 1926, he served as the junior member of B'nai Brith's national board, persuading the Jewish service organization to assume sponsorship of the program which, with a girls' division added in 1944, became the B'nai B'rith Youth Organization.

Martin Buber House Is Saved From Demolition

BONN (JTA): A house in Heppenheim, West Germany, where Jewish philosopher Martin Buber lived for 22 years, has been temporarily saved from demolition, thanks to protests by a citizens' action group.

The Cultural Ministry of the Federal State of Hessen has declared the house a national monument but the Town Council of Heppenheim, a town of 24,000 residents situated 30 miles south of Frankfurt, is appealing the decision. The Council has owned the house since 1949 and used it as a youth center. It plans to erect a new district administration building on the site as part of an urban renewal program in the area.

In an effort to appease the protesters, the Council has offered to dedicate a room in the planned building as a "Martin Buber" reading or memorial room with a commemorative plaque outside.

Adds To Reputation

Buber lived in the house while a professor at Frankfurt University. During that period he and Franz Rosenzweig, the German Jewish philosopher, completed an Old Testament translation from Hebrew to German which won wide acclaim, as well as several other books and pamphlets.

Werner Wirt, 58, leader of the citizens' group, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that the house was a fine example of late 19th-century architecture with a beautiful garden, including three elm trees, each over 150 years old. Apart from aesthetic reasons for saving the house, Wirt said that Buber's name "adds to our town's reputation."

"As a history teacher," he added, "I am often asked by my pupils how the Nazis came to power and whether there were any Jews in Heppenheim. It would be very painful to me if the home of such a prominent Jewish person should disappear."

Japanese Emperor Wants Israel Film

RAMAT-GAN: An Israeli scientific film, which won a first prize at the International Conference on Scientific Films held recently in Japan, was ordered personally by the Emperor of Japan, and a special copy was sent to him recently.

The film, "The Tidal Clocks of Nabeg," deals with marine life along the coral reefs and tidal pools at the oasis of Nabeg on the Sinai coast some 160 kilometres south of Eilat. The Emperor, who is himself a noted marine biologist, found special interest in the film which he saw at the conference and which showed various forms of marine life alternately exposed and inundated by the flowing tides.

The film took three summer seasons to produce, according to Dr. Zvi Dubinsky, of the life science department at Bar-Ilan University. He initiated the film and was instrumental in producing it with the help of students from Bar-Ilan and the Israel Science Teaching Center. Many of the scenes in the film were shot underwater.

The first prize for the film, which was awarded in the conference's higher education section, was accepted by Israel's ambassador to Japan. The film comes with both a Hebrew and English sound track and has already been distributed widely to schools and scientific bodies.

Melech Ravitch Is Dead At 83

MONTREAL (JTA): Melech Ravitch, the dean of Yiddish poets, died August 21 at the age of 83. The author of more than 20 volumes of poetry, memoirs and cultural history studies, his first volume was published in 1912. He edited many important Yiddish journals and contributed to scores of Jewish publications throughout the world.

Born as Zacharia Chona Bergner in Radymno, Poland, Nov. 7, 1893, Ravitch went to work at an early age as a bank clerk. He served in the Austrian Army during World War I.

Deciding to devote his life to the culture and literature of Yiddish, Ravitch became secretary of the Jewish Writers Society and leader of the "Haliastra" (gang), a group devoted to experimental offbeat poetry. He founded several prestigious literary journals and was the author of a volume of expressionist poems.

In the period between the two world wars, Ravitch travelled widely throughout the world warning that the Jews of Poland and Eastern Europe must flee to avoid the coming conflict that he foresaw. He came to Montreal in 1934 and for many years was the editor of the literary pages of the Jewish Daily Eagle. He also wrote a three-volume autobiography.

Ravitch long proposed canonization of a new bible which would contain the 2000-year spiritual history of the Jewish people just as the Old Testament and the Talmud were anthologies of the earlier Jewish experience.

OBSERVERS URGED

TEL AVIV: Tuvia Friedman, head of the Nazi Documentation Center in Haifa, said either the Israeli government or the Jewish Agency should have an official observer at all Nazi war crimes trials. He said the absence of such observers is interpreted as a lack of interest by the victims of the Nazis and may be the reason for the light sentences.

The Right to Life

By DR. JAY N. FISHBEIN

The United Nations in their infinite wisdom adopted a series of resolutions that would take action against governments seeking to violate human rights. We now witness these protective measures that were so carefully designed to protect small, struggling countries, being callously abused by the UN majority in the General Assembly to destroy the legitimacy of the State of Israel.

Jews have sat helplessly as the Soviet-Arab bloc aided by their Third World allies, make a mockery of all the United Nations is supposed to stand for. Bribed and coerced by the oil rich Arab countries, the rights of Israel have slowly but relentlessly been whittled away. At times the proceedings assume the panoply of a trial by the Inquisition or a vigilante lynching mob. Only the veto of the US in the Security Council has prevented the destruction of the State of Israel.

The Western countries followed along slavishly in the hope that by their subservience they could appease the Arab countries. That by bringing pressure on Israel to be more "accommodating" and less "intransigent" and yield to Arab demands, which they were well aware would mean the dismemberment of Israel, they could secure favorable terms for themselves. It was the total abdication of morality in favor of self-serving expediency.

France had cooperated to an even greater extent and was startled to find that despite her betrayal of Israel and subservience to the Arab cause, she also would have to pay more for oil. This once proud country found it necessary to plead with such minor Emirates as Abu Dhabi and Kuwait, who a few years earlier would have trembled at the sound of her voice.

The UN resolved that Racism was illegal. Influenced by the Soviet-Arab bloc, they came to the conclusion that therefore Israel is illegal. It would follow that being illegal, Israel has no right to exist and should be cast out of the international community.

Zionism has been recognized as one of the finest and noblest movements for the liberation of man in modern times. It is more than a political movement; it is a profoundly held spiritual conviction of Jewish belief in the Biblical covenant that links a people, a faith and a land into a religious and secular entity.

This unlawful and evil act of the United Nations has strengthened the extremist element of the PLO, Fatah, Black September and other fanatical terrorist groups. It has activated rioting on the West Bank where it did not exist at any time since the 6-Day War. Many of these Arabs are employed in Israel and as members of Histadrut, enjoy comforts not realized in any Arab country. For the first time most of them have conveniences never before enjoyed, such as piped in water, sanitation, electricity, phones, better highways and excellent transportation facilities.

The one state in the world that after much suffering and sacrifice was established as a refuge from racism is now attacked as the bastion of racism. Having failed to destroy the State of Israel during four bloody wars, the Soviet-Arab bloc hopes to accomplish through the United Nations Councils and Commissions what it failed to do on the battlefield.

Thirty years ago the UN Charter established the principle that violations of human rights in any country are a cause of international concern. They worked on the basis that human rights are natural rights. However, the rights of Jews in Arab lands have been consistently violated, yet this principle was never invoked. Jews still remaining in Arab countries are held hostage, subject to abuse, and denied the right to leave.

The United Nations claims that despite its own resolutions, it cannot interfere with the manner in which any country acts towards its own citizens. It seems inconceivable that 28 years after the creation of the State of Israel, with its outstanding contributions in the Middle East, as well as in many African countries, that 72 nations could vote for the proposition that Zionism is a form of racism.

What can be gleaned from the many meetings, councils and resolutions of the United Nations is the realization that Jews have no rights; that Israel is a Zionist State; that Zionism is Racism, and since Racism is illegal, therefore Israel is illegal and must be destroyed.

The values that led to the founding of the United States and have given this glorious country its special place in history, are under attack everywhere. The most elementary freedoms are denied to people in much of the world. So many countries are ruled by dictators, despots or military cliques, that human rights and civil liberties have been ruthlessly submerged.

Israel is the only democratic country in the Middle East where the US needs strength and stability and should receive our full support, and that of countries still free and independent.

Since the United Nations has failed to live up to the principles of justice on which it was founded, and is being manipulated by evil and corrupt interests, and has ceased to serve any useful purpose, it is time it was abolished. The newly emerging countries will one day learn that they are not immune; that if justice can be denied to one country, it can also be denied to others.

3 SYNAGOGUES DEFACED

TORONTO (JTA): Three synagogues here — Beth Shalom, Beth Am and Beth Random — were defaced late Friday night with swastikas and racist slogans, police reported Sunday. All were defaced with spray paint. Two large swastikas were painted in red on the main entrance of Beth Shalom. The synagogue is next door to a police station.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

KLM and Boeing 747

By BERYL SEGAL

In the late 1950s we took our first journey to Israel. We were flying with the Dutch Airlines, KLM, a relatively small airship accommodating about 150 passengers. The airplane was chartered by the American Jewish Educators Committee and we felt immediately at home as soon as we boarded the airplane. Though we did not know a soul in the whole teachers group, except for some who had published textbooks which we had used in school and others whose names we recognized from articles they had published in various education journals, we very quickly made friends with a goodly number of people, fellow travelers. These were people who dreamed about Israel all their lives. They taught about Israel to children and had read every printed word about the land, about its people, and yes, about the problems the people of Israel were facing.

They were all good and tried Zionists in the finest sense of the word.

The entire trip was given to debates about Israeli matters. And when they were tired of debating they sang. The airways were filled with songs the KLM had never heard before.

Then the word came through the loud speaker that on the left side of the plane, the land of Israel could be sighted. There began a stampede to the left row of seats, squeezing and shoving those who were fortunate enough to have been assigned the lucky side of the airplane. But soon we could see fields and houses and hills and the waters of Israel, and the entire group burst into a song of greeting to the land of their dreams. They sang and they wiped away tears, emotional tears, from their eyes. Middle-aged men and women were crying like little children.

That was in the 1950s on our very first trip to Israel.

But years passed by. Israel grew and developed, wars were won and lost, the novelty of going to Israel rubbed off.

In 1976 we made our journey on an El Al Boeing 747, a huge bird carrying over four hundred people at a clip. It was a very impersonal journey, a small town transported from New York to Tel Aviv under one roof.

And how different were the passengers.

The first thing we noticed was the large number of youthful faces on the 747. Young people going to Israel to study for a definite period of time. September was only a week away and they were anxious to see their schools, or kibbutzim, or moshavim, where they were to start a new life, a different life than they had known until now.

The second thing that the eye became adjusted to seeing was the goodly group of Hassidim and their striking dress. The men wore black clothes, their hair was almost shaved except for two peoth (side curls) which mingled with their black beard untouched by a razor. Their heads were covered with yarmulkes and black, wide rimmed hats.

The women were very young and pleasant looking. They dressed in a quite modern manner, except for the covering of their heads. They either donned white head kerchiefs or wore elaborate wigs to fit the color of their natural hair.

Both men and women spoke Hebrew and were obviously returning "home" from visits in the United States with relatives.

A third group of travelers were the young men and women who were walking around in stylish summer clothes, except that the men wore "token" yarmulkes. These were hand knitted, either by their mothers, or girl friends. They were perpetually loaded with cameras and spoke Hebrew. They were obviously Israelis returning home.

In contrast to the travelers on KLM of twenty years ago who sang and cried at the first sight of Israel, these passengers on the Boeing 747 neither sang nor rushed to catch a glimpse of the approaching land. They merely rushed to the overhead shelves, as the pilot announced the last fifteen minutes of the journey, to grab their sweaters and handbags, and lined up in the aisles to be first on the firm ground.

Your Money's Worth

Clinical Lab Tests How Accurate

Are you, a U.S. consumer, getting your dollar's worth for the $12 billion you spend each year for clinical laboratory services?

Do you know whether the lab which performs critical tests on your specimens is licensed, and if so, by whom?

Do you have any idea whether these tests are performed by qualified personnel and under conditions to assure accurate results?

Have you any notion of what these procedures cost in comparison to what you are billed?

No is probably your answer to all the questions. But the cost to you of this ignorance and apathy in terms of quality health care and health care dollars is tremendous.

To illustrate the devastating impact of substandard lab tests, in Illinois, a physician relied on a faulty blood sugar test result and prescribed the wrong medication for a diabetic patient who died. In Iowa, an improperly diagnosed RH negative baby was not given a blood transfusion and has become a severely mentally retarded child.

On top of the human suffering caused by faulty lab tests is the cost to the patient of all tests. Ten per cent of the total U.S. spends annually on health care goes for about four billion clinical lab tests. While general health expenditures have been climbing 11 per cent a year, lab fees have been rising 15 per cent.

Yet, the error rate for all types of labs — hospital, doctor-directed independents and independents operated by non-medical directors — is distressingly high.

In testimony before a Senate committee, Dr. Martin Goldfield of New Jersey's Department of Health reported that, between 1967 and 1973, 257 participating labs in New Jersey performed simple tests for hemoglobin levels in the blood — a basic clinical procedure done in every lab. Result: 28 per cent of the labs gave acceptable results 90 per cent of the time or more; 37 per cent were within acceptable limits 80-90 per cent of the time; 17 per cent performed adequately 70-80 per cent of the time. But a full 18 per cent were adequate no more than 70 per cent of the time.

Some labs in the state, accused Dr. Goldfield, "are run by individuals who aren't equipped by education or motivation."

Dr. Morris Schaeffer, former general director of labs for New York City's Health Department, assessed the clinical lab field "in simple qualitative terms. We say, yes, the quality of lab work has improved (since 1967). It has changed from horrible to bad."

It was back in 1967 that Congress enacted the Clinical Laboratories Improvement Act to upgrade lab services. The law applies, though, only to labs in interstate commerce — just 6 per cent of the nation's 14,000-15,000 clinical labs.

The states have not followed the federal government's lead. More than half have no laws governing labs; fewer than 12 states license clinical lab personnel; only five require labs to have a quality control program, employ qualified personnel, etc.

Intrastate labs are regulated if they participate in Medicare, but the standards are weak, enforcement is disgraceful. And of the 50,000-80,000 labs operated by doctors in their own offices, not one is now covered by prescribed standards.

Because of all the dangers, the Senate has passed (64 to 11) and a House Committee is about to mark up the Clinical Laboratories Improvement Act of 1976.

The legislation basically would require clinical labs (with some exceptions) to meet uniform national standards and licensing rules. The Secretary of HEW would administer the program, except in states with stringent standards. To aid states in setting up a program, the bill includes an authorization for $15 million of grants a year — from fiscal '79 to '81.

KAYE - STRAUSS

Miss Sue Ann Strauss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Strauss of 17 New Field Avenue, Warwick, was married to Steven Larry Kaye, August 1, at a 3 p.m. at a private ceremony at Temple Beth El. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Kaye of 425 Meshanicut Valley Parkway, Cranston. Rabbi Leslie Gutterman officiated.

A reception followed at the Great House in Warwick. In attendance at both the reception and ceremony were paternal grandparents Mollie Palow and Bess Konovsky.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory organza with sweetheart neckline, crystal pleated sleeves and attached train. The bodice was accented with reembroidered Alencon lace and seeded pearls. Crystal pleating accented the hemline of the train. A matching cap, trimmed with seeded pearls, held her veil of silk illusion. She carried a white Bible covered in orchids.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Thomas Fox III. Best man was Dr. William Kaye, brother of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will set up residence in North Providence.

The bride is now attending Rhode Island College and will be entering her senior year this month. The bridegroom graduated from the University of Rhode Island and attended Boston College Law School. He is presently an executive with the Gentry Shop of Rhode Island.

Clark Urges Levi To Aid Sov. Jewry

NEW YORK (JTA): Ramsey Clark, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, has urged Attorney General Edward Levi to reconsider the Immigration and Naturalization Service's recent denial of an immigration request for 2,000 Soviet Jews stranded in Italy in what Clark termed squalid conditions.

In a telegram to Levi, Clark, a former Attorney General, said "simple humanity and our history as a nation of immigrants, and one that aids refugees from oppression, argues that we allow this group of Soviet Jews to be reunited with their families in the United States."

Since he left the Justice Department in 1969, Clark has been active on behalf of Soviet and Syrian Jewry. In 1970, he led the delegation to the Soviet Union that sought to monitor the Leningrad trials.

Polish Scientist Shows His Thanks

BALTIMORE: The man responsible for the development of the tranquilizers Valium and Librium is a person of extraordinary tranquility. The most widely-used tranquilizer in the world, Valium, will net its makers, the Hoffman-LaRoche pharmaceutical company, about a half a billion dollars, but the inventor will not get a cent of that because he doesn't want it, because he doesn't need it, says the Baltimore Jewish Times.

The remarkable scientist is Dr. Leo Henrik Sternbach, a Polish Jew, a graduate of Cracow University who sped ahead of Hitler to Switzerland where he was engaged as a laboratory worker by Hoffman-LaRoche. Eventually Sternbach was transferred to the Nutley, New Jersey, lab, where he discovered Valium, which is non-addictive.

Although the patent for Valium was registered by Sternbach, he turned over the profits to his company out of gratitude to them for saving the lives of his family. Now retired, Sternbach serves as a consultant for drug companies, travels from convention to convention and is enjoying himself immensely.

Endowment For Jewish Studies

NEW YORK: Five resident lectureships in Judaic Studies will be endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society during the 1976-77 academic year in colleges in the Philadelphia area.

Teaching the courses will be Rabbi Merle Singer, of Temple Beth Or, at Gwynedd-Mercy College, Gwynedd Valley; Rabbi Alan Fuchs, of Reform Congregation Keneseth Israel, at Manor Junior College, Jenkintown; Rabbi Henry Cohen, of Temple Beth David, at St. Joseph's College; Rabbi Bernard Frank, of Temple Beth Torah, at LaSalle College; and Rabbi Laurence Rubinstein, of Temple Shalom, Levittown, at Rosemont College, Rosemont.

Lutherans Again 'Adopt' Soviet Jews

WASHINGTON: A Lutheran congregation in Washington, D.C., has, for the third time, "adopted" a Soviet Jew imprisoned because of his religious beliefs. The first two prisoners were released soon after the church members began to show an interest in them.

The church project is one of many across the country that has been sparked by the National Council of Churches' Office on Christian-Jewish Relations.

According to its director, William L. Weiler, the purpose of the two-year-old office is to "help Christians learn more about their Hebraic roots and to give the Jewish community a clearer picture of the activities and goals of the Christian churches."

By Robert E. Starr

The contract in today's hand was tenuous to say the least but it was a normal contract as far as the bidding was concerned. The least the Declarers already in this contract could do was to give themselves the best chance to make it. Most of the Declarers I watched failed when they committed that so common error, they drew Trumps too soon.

would have made this hand. Unfortunately, too many players have been brainwashed into thinking that the first thing they must do is draw all the opposing Trumps so the Defenders won't be able to make any small ones. Several Declarers did just that and immediately gave up any chance to make this hand. In fact they went down two.

The successful Declarers had to think this way: "I have eight tricks to start with, five Trumps, two Diamonds and one Spade. I can get another by ruffing one Club in Dummy if I go after that before drawing Trumps but that is not enough. Where can I get two more tricks? The only possibility is to be able to set up that Diamond suit in Dummy and then be able to cash it. For that to come about two things must happen. First, that suit has to break evenly. Second, if it does, there has to be an entry still in Dummy to be able to take advantage of those last two Diamond tricks. Obviously the only card for that is the Trump Jack. So now I must play accordingly."

The accordingly is to win the Spade Ace and immediately test the Diamonds for if they don't break the hand can't be made. You might say play two rounds of Trumps first saving that Jack and then play Diamonds. You could do that but the other way if the Diamonds fail a trick might still be resurrected from a Club ruff. But the Diamonds do break so after ruffing the third, draw Trumps making certain the last one is won by Dummy's Jack at which time those other Diamonds are cashed. This gives you the needed ten tricks. Actually the hand is easy if one looks at it correctly for there is only one way to enable you to obtain the needed tricks, the way shown.

Moral: True, the drawing of Trumps should always be considered, but then only done when there is nothing better to do with them.

South was dealer, East and West vulnerable, with this bidding:

1♥	P	2♦	P
2♥	P	3♥	P
4♥	End

The contract was a normal one because both parties had just barely enough to make all of their bids. That it was tenuous went without saying much because North's ten points included three Jacks, two of which were worthless. The third, however, would make the contract if used at the right time. South could have refused North's try for game as he really had but 13 points that solid five card Trump suit supported spurred them on.

Most Wests led the Spade ten for lack of anything better. This didn't help or hurt Declarer who now had to play the hand to make ten tricks. If every Declarer who now had to play the hand correctly, counts the tricks he has and then decides what would be the best way to get more, they all

Hebron Building Is Out Of Bounds

JERUSALEM (JTA): Defense Minister Shimon Peres indicated that the government will not allow residents of the Jewish settlement of Kiryat Arba and the Gush Emunim movement to take over the former Hadassah Hospital in Hebron for use as a synagogue. He said the building, which has been the target of several attempts by militant Jews to hold prayers meetings there, was given to UNRWA and Israel was committed to leaving it in UN hands.

Peres made his statement following a Cabinet meeting. The Cabinet issued a communique that no Jewish presence will be increased in Hebron without government approval. A group of MKs are scheduled to see Peres tomorrow to urge the approval for the use of three buildings in Hebron, including the former Hadassah Hospital which were owned by Jews until the 1929 Arab riot in which 63 Jews were killed in that city.

But Peres, who has been considered a sympathizer of Gush Emunim's settlement attempts, said today that with the prayer facilities in the Tomb of Patriarchs (Machpela) and the nearby Kiryat Arba there was no need to turn the former Hadassah Hospital into a synagogue, a use it also had in the past.

8 Activists Detained

Earlier in the day, eight Gush Emunim activists were detained in another prayer attempt at the old hospital building. One of those arrested was Hannan Porat, a Gush Emunim leader, who guided many of its illegal settlement attempts.

The eight arrested were among 100 men and women, most of them from Kiryat Arba, who gathered on top of the building at 1:30 a.m. to engage in a Torah study lesson. Police broke up the meeting at 4 a.m. This was the third attempt to hold a prayer meeting in the building. Last week a group of yeshiva students from Kiryat Arba left peacefully when police arrived, but another group of 15 were arrested the next day and are still being held.

Until 110 (Plus 8%)

JERUSALEM: Three prominent Israelis celebrated their birthdays last week. Teddy Kollek, the Mayor of Jerusalem, was 65; Itzhak Ben-Aharon, the controversial left-wing labor leader, was 70; and Yohanan Bader, doyen of the right-wing Herut Knesset members, was 75.

For the occasion a wag coined a new birthday greeting which is spreading fast. Instead of the traditional greeting of "until 120 (years)" he hailed the three with "until 110 plus 8 percent" because of the newly introduced eight percent value added tax.

Abzug Introduces New Legislation

WASHINGTON: Rep. Bella Abzug (D. NY) has introduced legislation in the House aimed at drastically increasing the penalties on nations which aid and abet hijackers. Her proposed legislation would tighten the regulations of the 1974 Anti-Hijacking Act and for the first time mandate suspension of U.S. foreign aid to nations cooperating with terrorists.

One bill introduced by Abzug would require the President to suspend U.S. air operations for at least one year to or from any country which in any way assists a terrorist organization that illegally seizes an airplane and to suspend air operations with any country which maintains its own air operations with a country that assisted terrorists. The bill also would impose a $10,000 fine, or up to two years in prison, to air carriers failing to suspend operations in such cases.

Phil Noel, the Democrat who proved he can get government working for the people.

Phil Noel is the Democrat who has brought Rhode Islanders together during the worst of times, and turned a period of threat into a period of progress for the people.

When the Navy was pulled out from under us, it was Phil Noel who created the Department of Economic Development that attracted new companies like Electric Boat. It was his leadership that brought about changes in the tax structure so business could create new jobs. It was Phil Noel who established the facilities to train skilled workers to meet new job opportunities. Under him, the government went to work for the people and the people went back to work.

But Phil Noel not only helped working people earn a decent living, he helped them keep the money they earned. He dramatically up-graded our health insurance programs, taking Rhode Islanders out from under crippling financial hardship with Catastrophic Health Insurance. He created new ways for Rhode Islanders to build and buy homes. And through it all, he fought month after month to hold the line on taxes.

Phil Noel fights and wins for you. Make him your Senator. Vote in the Democratic Primary, Tuesday, September 14.

JNF To Plant Trees In Galilee To

JERUSALEM (JTA): The Jewish National Fund plans to plant trees on an area of 10,000 dunams (2500 acres) in the Galilee, partly to prevent Arabs from seizing the land illegally.

The problem of unauthorized housing construction by Arab residents on land owned by the government has troubled the authorities for some time now. The concern is not only over large-scale violations of the building and planning codes, but also over the political implications of an increase in uncontrolled Arab settlements, especially in the Galilee where Arabs constitute half of the population.

A special committee, headed by Haim Kubersky, director-general of the Interior Ministry, is now studying the entire issue, including the aspect of illegal building by Jews, which is equally wide-spread.

However, the JNF decision is the first actual action taken to physically prevent Arabs from building on land owned by the government.

At the same time, the JNF is making large-scale investments to improve the land infrastructure in existing settlements. The Ministry of Agriculture and the Jewish Agency have decided recently to double the number of inhabitants in moshavim in the Galilee.

BRILL

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

MARVIN A. BRILL

By BARBARA WRONSKI

Marvin A. Brill, endorsed Republican candidate in the race for the seat of attorney general in the state of Rhode Island, has been a practicing Providence attorney for 24 years, dealing with all facets of law. To date, his political record is unblemished, as this is the first public office he has sought. In his May 28 announcement of his intention to seek the seat, he commented, "I was recently asked by my son, who is interested in government, why I had never sought public office. I explained to him that I had structured my life around the practice of law and, therefore, never had the opportunity to run for public office. We have often discussed matters involving government in my home and, on many occasions, I expressed concern in the areas dealing with the office of attorney general, especially involving the war against crime. The more we discussed this situation, the more I realized that I could not really do anything about my concerns unless I became involved personally."

Asked of the programs he intends to implement, should he be elected, Mr. Brill said, "I have made one recommendation as far as the situation involving prison sentences for people convicted of murder. It is my suggestion that the juries recommend, after conviction, whether or not the person is eligible for parole. All my programs will be prepared prior to November 2. They have not, as yet, been completely formulated. At the present time I am going out and meeting the people and I have a research team and we are working on these situations."

Of his current campaigning, he says he has been "very active. Many people in the state of Rhode Island don't know who Marvin Brill is, so it is necessary for me to go out and meet the people, tell them who I am and introduce myself. I'm trying to get out into all communities and meet people on a day and night basis."

Mr. Brill was asked to comment on the "Jewish factor" in seeking the office of attorney general, for which two Jews are contending. "I am running for the office of attorney general as a citizen of Rhode Island. I am Jewish, and I am proud of that fact. I am not running against Mr. Michaelson because he is Jewish and I am Jewish, or otherwise. Let's get that clear from the outset. I have not run up against any prejudice in my campaigning. As a matter of fact, I am quite pleased with the reception I am getting all over. I have resented the fact that some Jewish people feel as though this office of the attorney general is a so-called Jewish seat. It is an office in which I feel I can do a good job and I feel Mr. Michaelson is not doing a good job, on a man to man basis."

Internationally

Commenting on the international scene, Mr. Brill said, "I am very concerned about these things as a Jew and as a human being. I was proud of the state of Israel when they rescued the people (at Entebbe). I have a very busy schedule. Although I had other matters on my schedule, I was present at the tribute that was held on the State House steps by the Jewish Fraternal Association. As I told my staff, it was more important to me than my campaign at that time. I believe that anyone who has or does commit an act of terrorism — either Jewish or of any other country — should be punished severely. I support all the Jewish causes and always have."

Allegations

On August 13, in a press release, Mr. Brill charged Attorney General Michaelson with "side-stepping the issue, for political reasons," in a Warwick financial problem which had arisen. He explained to us, "Mr. Pearson, who is candidate for the office of mayor in Warwick, requested that the office of the attorney general investigate the financial situation in Warwick. Mr. Michaelson says it is not his job and I have said it is his job, because the state auditor has found that there have been irregularities of some sort in the way bookkeeping is kept. Since Warwick is a community in Rhode Island, this is under his supervision and control. If there are irregularities, it is the job of the attorney general to find out: 'yes' or 'no.' He says it is up to the city itself. It's more important than just that."

Regarding other criticism of the current administration of the office of attorney general, Mr. Brill added, "I have been talking about the fact that, with Mr. Michaelson, there is no leadership as far as crime is concerned. There are too many criminals who are committing crimes in Rhode Island who are not being dealt with by the office of the attorney general. When a crime is committed and a person is charged with the crime, he should be punished upon the finding of guilt. Instead, what is happening is that these people being charged with crimes are having their charges reduced, receiving probation or suspended sentences. The attorney general makes recommendations in plea bargaining to the court and the court usually goes along with the recommendations of the attorney general. These people are not spending any time in jail. If the person knows he can commit a crime and not go to jail and not be punished for it, he's going to continue to commit these crimes."

"A report from New Orleans, Louisiana, which I have seen shows that when plea bargaining is reduced, the crime rate is reduced. I feel there should be more leadership in this regard. There should be better leadership as far as preparation in prosecution of cases by his (the attorney general's) assistants. When cases do go to trial — and only about 10% of these cases are going to trial; about 90% are plea bargained — they are not being prepared properly. These attorneys are losing cases. I am not saying that all these people charged with crimes are guilty, but I feel as though the cases should be prepared. If a police department has charged a person with a crime, basically there is enough evidence to warrant a guilty verdict. These cases are being prepared in the corridors of the court rooms. They are not being prepared in advance. Police departments are not being contacted as to the disposition of the cases. The attorney general, in fact, controls charging of individuals by way of information charging, so the attorney general, himself, completely controls whether a person should be charged with a crime or should not be charged with a crime. This is no good. We have the second highest auto theft rate in the United States and we have a high degree of vandalism. We have a serious crime situation in Rhode Island and I feel this is important and the attorney general should make more effort to control it."

Consumer Affairs

Mr. Brill stressed his concern for protecting the consumer, and expressed dissatisfaction with Mr. Michaelson's work in this regard. "Consumers should be protected, as well as the victims of crimes, and that also requires a lot of work. I feel that it is not enough to collect money for people who have been defrauded by a business. If a deceptive practice has been dealt upon a consumer, or if there has been a fraud committed by a businessman, they should be charged criminally and they should be prosecuted. It is not enough to get the money, because this guy is going to go out and do it again."

"The attorney general has a department of consumer affairs which deals with deceptive trades and fraud by businessmen against the public. Mr. Michaelson has said he has collected $1,000,000 for the people of Rhode Island in 17 months or there about, and I'm pleased with that, but that's not enough. I think there should be more done with these people, such as criminal prosecutions against them. I don't think that even

ATTORNEY GENERAL

RE-ELECT
DEMOCRAT

By Barbara Wronski

Julius C. Michaelson, incumbent attorney general for the state of Rhode Island, was a state senator for 12 years and, he adds, "I was the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is the committee through which all of the laws pass which affect the legal system of Rhode Island and which affect the courts of the state of Rhode Island and which affects the people as consumers as well as laws which affect crimes. Commenting on his past achievements, Mr. Michaelson said, "I am now using the laws which I introduced and had passed. I'm also using the laws which I have worked on, which came through my committee; I am working in a court system which I helped to develop when I was in the senate. I was chairman of the committee which deals with the laws of the state of Rhode Island."

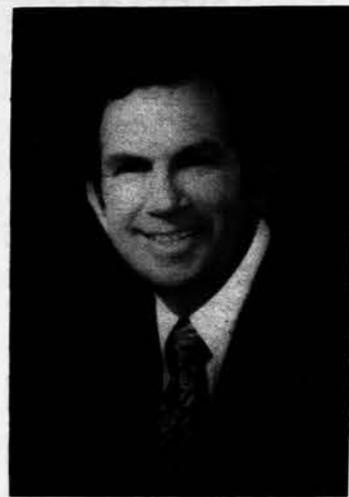

"I am a lawyer by profession. I was president of the Rhode Island bar association, 1972-73, which I think is the highest honor that lawyers can pay to their colleagues. I was also appointed by the Rhode Island Supreme Court as a member of the board of bar examiners, which means that for two years I was one of five Rhode Island lawyers who compared and corrected the exams and made the decisions as to whether students who would graduate from law school would be admitted to practice law in Rhode Island. That also was a high honor and a demonstration of confidence which the high court placed on my particular integrity and my particular legal skills."

Plea Bargaining

"I think that his time sequence is off; I think that we had made the formal statement (before that). I made a speech to the Fraternal Order of Eagles, on the occasion they awarded me with the Liberty of the Law award. It's a very high honor and it's one of which I am very proud because it recognizes that while we strictly enforce the law we are nevertheless concerned that everyone's rights be protected. At the time when I received the award I made an announcement that we were eliminating plea bargaining and I said that we were eliminating it on narcotics cases. It was published in a publication which my office puts out called Inquiry which we distribute to all law enforcement people, advising them about new rulings and the best way to prosecute cases and solve crimes from a legal point of view. It also appeared in a newspaper press conference, maybe two weeks before Mr. Brill made his recommendation, although I'm not positive about the time sequence."

Whiteberg Ring

"In March, before Mr. Brill became a candidate, I talked with James Leavey, who is a special assistant attorney general. I recruited him from the district attorney's office in New York City. His job in New York City had been narcotics. I think that Manhattan has a narcotics problem as great or greater than any place in the nation, and he was the man in charge of the program there and had done a good job. I recruited him to come to work for me because he wanted to return to the New England area which is where his home is. I got a special grant to pay his salary and I put him in charge of a narcotics task force which I established after I became the attorney general. In March we began an experiment with hard core narcotics cases, to see what the effect of eliminating plea bargaining would be. He reported to me in April or May that — not withstanding the fact that plea bargaining was being eliminated — we were still getting guilty pleas, we were still disposing of the cases and we were still remaining current with all of our narcotics cases. We decided to make it an office policy and I announced that to my staff with a memorandum some time ago. I think that in Rhode Island we probably have the best record in the nation on narcotics. Now, that may be an extravagant claim, but we conducted a raid of a nationwide drug ring whose tentacles went out of the United States, in fact, into Canada and into Mexico. It involved airplanes, it involved a considerable amount of surveillance; it took us to several states and broke up a drug ring in Rhode Island known as the Whiteberg ring (that was the corporation under which they did business.) We think that as a result of that, which happened more than 12 months ago, there has been a significant diminution of the availability of hard drugs

JULIUS C. MICHAELSON

"Plea bargaining has remained partly because I inherited a 7000 case backlog here in this office. When I came into office, there were 7000 criminal cases which had piled up. Our court system can handle maybe 187 trials in the course of the year. The constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Rhode Island guarantee a person who is accused of a crime a speedy trial. If too much time elapses, they can come into court and say, 'we want our case thrown out because we did not get a speedy trial.' It was impossible to bring everybody before the courts within the time permitted by constitutional guide lines and standards without some measure of plea bargaining. But we were successful in knocking down that backlog. In Newport County we totally eliminated it. In Washington County and in Kent County, there is no backlog; we're very current. In Providence County, we've made a significant dent in that backlog, but in order to do that, if everybody had to have a trial, they would have piled up; so we had to get rid of that to stay current."

Warwick Finances

"The Republican candidate for mayor, Mr. Pearson, wrote me and asked me if I would investigate the abuses that may have occurred with reference to the city charter of Warwick and the way that the Democratic mayor of Warwick, Gene McCaffrey, who is now a candidate for Congress, was handling the situation. He said, if I recall this, that because of the ineptness and the general approach to fiscal problems in Warwick, the taxpayers of Warwick would be saddled with a significant increase in taxes; that he felt this required an investigation by the attorney general. Three months later, it turns out, the city of Warwick has a $640,000 surplus, and that there is no problem in Warwick. In any event, I wrote back to Mr. Pearson and told him that the attorney general has no legal authority to investigate how the mayor of any city — whether that mayor is a Democrat or a Republican — has done a good or a bad job. The legislature of the state of Rhode Island and the constitution don't give me that power. I don't have auditors and accountants who work in my office who could look into these things and I had similarly notified other individuals in other communities in those cases where the mayor happened to be of a different political party. They wanted to make a political issue out of this thing. Here was a Republican candidate for mayor asking a Democratic attorney general to investigate a Democratic mayor. I have had requests to investigate Republican mayors and how they handle their city. I have no authority to do that unless there is a crime, a violation of the criminal laws of the state of Rhode Island. In the final analysis, the people of any city decide if the mayor has done a good job or a bad job on election day."

"I might say that, not the Providence Journal, no newspaper, in the state of Rhode Island disagreed with the conclusion which I reached with reference to that Warwick investigation; neither did Mr. Pearson, who never even wrote me back."

Consumer Affairs

"I think our record is the best in the United States of America in consumer representation. We have returned on the average of $70,000 per month to consumers in either money or services. The first 17 months, it was $1,000,000. After, I think, 13

JERUSALEM (JTA): Defense Minister Shimon Peres told the Cabinet meeting today that Syrian authorities have agreed to set up a site in the Golan Heights buffer zone to serve Druze families in both countries. Peres said Israel has brought the issue up several times but this is the first time the Syrians have responded affirmatively.

collection of $1,000,000 is that good. We've talked about the number of people on the staff as compared to the staff that Mr. Israel had when he was attorney general. His staff was much smaller. His budget was much smaller, and he did equally as well as far as collecting money for the public."

Utility Rates

"Two years ago he (Mr. Michaelson) won on the promise to the people that he would lower utility rates. We know that he has not kept that promise. Utility rates have continued to rise in Rhode Island. He made that promise knowing full well that he could not keep it. When he does appear — which is not often — in front of the utility commission, he goes in, makes his statement and leaves. Which is good. It gets the headlines and it's nice publicity, but the people of Rhode Island deserve more than that.

"I can't promise to lower any utility rates in Rhode Island. I can say that I will make sure that I will make an effort to at least protect the people. People are looking for promises and they are looking for hopes, but you just can't lead them up the garden path.

"Mr. Michaelson, after he was elected, brought suit against the Narragansett Electric Company, and everybody told him he could not bring suit against them in superior court. He did that. He was thrown out of court. He never did anything again with the Narragansett Electric Company. He should have known how to start. He introduced a bill setting up the Public Utilities Commission when he was a state senator. He knew that he could only go to that arena to fight for the electric company. He didn't follow through properly. He has not done anything about it since, except making some headlines, and I feel that the people of Rhode Island are entitled to more than just promises. They need an honest effort."

Vandalism, Drugs

"I discussed just briefly vandalism in Rhode Island, and that costs the taxpayers of Rhode Island a lot of money, throughout the United States, but more particularly in Rhode Island. We have a situation involving young offenders, juveniles. And it's about time that these young offenders are dealt with, more importantly, that their parents are brought into the forum and either asked to contribute to the costs that are incurred or to the discipline, because I think the parents are responsible for the acts of their children in this respect. You can't say a parent is responsible for his child all the time, but if there is discipline that is required, the parents should be brought into this situation.

"Last April some people were charged with sale and delivery of hard drugs, they were out on bail or out on the streets and the trial didn't come up. Three or four months later the same individuals were charged with the same crime. If they had gone to trial quickly, they probably would be in jail and we wouldn't have gone through the same situation. We have laws. We have good laws in Rhode Island. They should be enforced. These people found with drugs and charged with the crime of dealing with drugs, should be brought to trial quickly and should be imprisoned. As far as programs involving rehabilitation of drug addicts, I am in favor of these. I am in favor of trying to help the unfortunate people who do use drugs, but we have to get the pusher off the street. There is a difference between the user and the pusher, of course. The pusher can't be dealt with lightly. He must be placed in jail. He must be taken off the street.

Plea Bargaining

"After I had suggested in May that there was too much plea bargaining in Rhode Island, Mr. Michaelson determined a few weeks after that there was to be no more plea bargaining in hard drug cases, which was something I advocated. I'm glad he finally decided to follow through on it.

"Mr. Michaelson also controls the charging of criminals, as I mentioned before, by way of information charging, so that he, in fact, determines who will be charged and who will not be charged. A case may not even get to plea bargaining; he could dismiss an action in his own office by himself. I think that's wrong; I think that the police department should know what's going on and should have a right to have a say in this matter.

"One of his (Mr. Michaelson's) chief assistants in the criminal division wrote a letter to all the police chiefs on June 23 involving plea bargaining in drug cases and also suggested that when the attorney general determined that a charge should not be brought, the attorney general will, on his own, not bring the charge. That takes away a lot of force from the police chiefs and the police officials in Rhode Island. I don't believe the attorney general should have that entire clout. Let the policemen do their investigation, arrest and charge. Then let the court decide the guilt or the punishment.

Dealing With Crime

I think that dealing with criminals and with crime is the most important function of the office of attorney general. I work hard; I'm not afraid to work hard; I'm not afraid to work with criminals. I can't just keep my suit coat on or my jacket on and deal with the banks, and deal with the utility companies and deal with the consumers and businessmen. You have to deal with criminals; you have to

In the next 12 months, we're going to change your mind about your body.

Your Blue Cross & Blue Shield Plans are caught in a squeeze. And just about everybody in Rhode Island is in there with us.

The first problem is the cost of medical care.

It's climbing at an alarming rate. The second problem is the demand for medical care. People are piling up record numbers of medical bills.

Last year Blue Cross and Blue Shield benefits and those benefits we pay for federal programs amounted to $213 million — $40 million more than in 1974. That's a 23% increase in a single year. We are nonprofit organizations, but last year we paid out $6 million more than we took in.

It's clear that something has to change. But our commitment won't. We will continue to develop programs that help slow down rising costs. Programs like the "prospective reimbursement" system for negotiating hospital budgets. And "usual, customary and reasonable charge" programs to provide subscribers with full payment of physician fees at reasonable cost. Programs such as home care, skilled nursing facilities, day psychiatric care, and same-day surgery programs must be expanded.

These programs help us keep our commitment to our subscribers to provide the best protection against hospital and medical bills at the lowest possible cost. Whenever you need the care.

But the key word seems to be "need."

Together, you and the health Plans and all the doctors and hospitals have to figure out how to reduce the need.

Because that's the only way we'll reduce the demand. And that's the only way we'll be able to curb the steadily increasing costs.

Reduce the need for medical care? Is it possible? Yes. It's not only possible. It can be easy. To do it we only have to get the cooperation of one person. You.

You who are overweight. You who smoke and drink too much. You who don't exercise. You who won't relax. You who don't take care of yourself.

In the coming months, Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Rhode Island will launch a public education effort to encourage all of us to take better care of ourselves. To prove the point that the best health care is self-care.

What about the doctors and the hospitals? They'll still be there and we'll still need them. But we hope our subscribers just won't be keeping them so busy.

To learn more about the challenges facing our state's health care system and the role of Blue Cross &

Blue Shield of Rhode Island in meeting these challenges, write or call for a free copy of our annual report, "To Decide... And To Act."

months, the previous administration returned $70,000. The staff is not necessarily larger, we have attracted to our office some very motivated people who work as volunteers at no cost to the taxpayer. We have some very educated women who feel they want to do something in the community which is meaningful to them, where they can make a contribution; we have some businessmen who come in and volunteer; we have a significant number of law students who come into our office and volunteer; we have a number of students from Brown University who volunteer. We have brought our office to the people. I have established four branch offices. The previous administration had an office in the basement of this building. I have an office in Woonsocket, an office in Warwick, an office in Peacedale and a large office in Providence. Some of the employees who man that office are SETA employees.

That is, the government developed a program whereby federal funds were used because of large unemployment in Rhode Island, to make certain kinds of white collar jobs available.

Budget, Staff

The offices we have we managed to get in buildings which are owned by the city or the state so that we pay no extra rent for them. There isn't an increase in budget. What there is is a dedication and a commitment to the problem of the consumer and, because of that, we have been immensely successful with consumer programs. That $1,000,000 over 17 months. $70,000 a month to the people of the state of Rhode Island, doesn't include what we have been able to save the people in other kinds of consumer problems. More than $30,000,000 dollars from their requested rate hikes have been reduced. No attorney general ever in the past did that, or was willing to do that; we did it. Another difference since the previous administration is that everyone working in this office is full time. I am the first attorney general who has insisted that all the lawyers work full time. The previous attorney general's department had part time lawyers.

Utilities

"First of all, I did not win on the promise of lowering utility rates. I won for a variety of reasons including strong support from a lot of good people in the community, the fact that there was more confidence in the program which the Democrats were putting forth, the fact that thousands of people and a very good organization throughout the state worked on my behalf. Secondly, what I promised was that I would fight the utility companies. I said that no Republican attorney general in eight years had ever fought the utility companies, but I was going to do it because I knew something about it, and I did.

"The utility rates have been lowered in Newport, they've been lowered in Tiverton, in Portsmouth, in Middletown, in Little Compton and in Sakonnet. Secondly, in parts of the Blackstone Valley, utility rates have been lowered. In the Providence area, which is serviced by the Narragansett Electric Company, utility rates have not been lowered to any appreciable degree. However, we have been able to hold the line and at a time when oil prices were going up (and oil is such a significant part of utility prices) and at a time when food prices were going up two, three and four hundred percent, we were keeping utility prices stable. We have knocked more than $30,000,000 down from what they were asking.

"We have enlarged beyond the utility rates. We have gone into insurance rates, in fact, just recently a 37% increase in insurance rates was turned down by the insurance department of the state of Rhode Island and we have recently appeared objecting to a significant increase which the Aetna Casualty Security Co. has sought.

Narragansett Electric

"Anybody who checks the press clippings of what happened at the time would know that (Mr. Brill's) statement is inaccurate. Everybody didn't tell me anything, because I didn't discuss what I was going to do with anybody except the people in this office. We brought suit contemporaneously in the federal court and before the Public Utilities Commission at the same time. We anticipated that if we went to court, the electric company would argue that we should be before the Public Utilities Commission, but if we went before the Public Utilities Commission, the electric company would argue in the Public Utilities Commission that we should be before the court. The question was not clear because one of the things we were looking for was a refund and that question had never been decided by the Supreme Court. We decided to call on both places at the same time. That made it difficult for the electric company to take inconsistent positions. They had to make the choice. The choice they made was that we had to be before the Public Utilities Commission. We fought for 18 months. We asked the Public Utilities Commission to eliminate the fuel adjustment cost. We won that and just last month, after a fight that lasted almost 16 months, the Public Utilities Commission ordered the electric company to eliminate the fuel adjustment cost as of January 1977.

Information Charging

Under the constitution of the state of Rhode Island, every person who is accused of a felony — and a felony is an offense for which you can be imprisoned for more than a year or for which you can receive a substantial fine — must have his case brought before the grand jury. That was a time consuming and an expensive procedure. The grand jury traditionally consists of citizens who stand between the authority of the state and the person accused of the crime. The grand jury decides whether there is sufficient evidence to charge the person with a crime; it doesn't decide whether he is guilty or not.

"The people of the state of Rhode Island about two or three years ago amended the constitution to eliminate the grand jury and permit information charging in all but the most serious offenses — in murder, rape, robbery, arson, etc.

As a result it has cut down the backlog. It has provided for more extensive and more efficient operation of the criminal justice system; and it has reduced the cost of grand juries. The people are very wise in passing that constitutional amendment in my opinion." In regard to Mr. Brill's allegation that the system leaves the police departments in the dark, Mr. Michaelson replied, "The police department always knows what's going on. It is kept constantly informed."

Team System

"I think that the won and lost record of this office is probably as good as any place in the United States of America. I think that the preparation which cases receive is probably better than it has ever been under any administration because we have full time lawyers. Thirdly, we have established a team system, whereby four or five lawyers work together as part of a team. If one lawyer is involved in a murder case, and hasn't finished and there is another case which is coming up to which that lawyer had been assigned, it can easily be handed over to another member of the team, since all members of the team are familiar with all of the cases, discuss them together and work on them together. That means that you don't need last minute preparation. It's a system which I think will be imitated elsewhere in the nation."

Backlog of Cases

"I was left with a 7,000 case backlog. We've eliminated that backlog. We've eliminated plea bargaining in drug cases and we have eliminated plea bargaining in rape cases. Gradually, we will move in that direction with all of our cases. We probably have done more to eliminate plea bargaining than any prosecuting office anywhere. The problem is that the number of new cases which come in, and the small number of judges available to hear those cases, permits those cases to get older and older and then there is a concern that an individual will be released because he hasn't been brought to trial quickly deal with the police departments. I'm ready and willing to do this; I don't think he is doing it.

"If a criminal commits a crime he should know that he is going to be charged with a crime, and he'll be brought to trial and he's going to be sentenced. These people know that, and I'm not going to do anything more than to uphold the laws of Rhode Island as they exist. No one can fault me for it. I'm not afraid of doing my job, no matter what it may be. I've worked since I was 13 years old; I'm not afraid of working; I will continue working and I'm not afraid of going out on the street and working hard. I've done it all my life. It's a great state and I like it here."

Marvin Brill is married with three children. His wife has a master's degree in library science from the University of Rhode Island, which she earned after raising their children. She received her B.A. degree from Syracuse University, New York.

He has one daughter in her third year at Smith College as a math major. His son, who was voted the outstanding senior in his class upon graduation from East Greenwich High School, will attend Tufts College, School of Government this fall. He also has a 15-year-old daughter at home who has been helping him with his research and writing. Of his miniature schnauzer, Tasha, he says, "She's being clipped this morning. When I get home, I always have to hug and kiss her."

enough. Plea bargaining has become a necessary evil all over the United States of America. It's a continuing debate. If there were 30 more judges, there wouldn't be any plea bargaining. We don't have those judges. Another problem, we don't have enough room in the jails."

Consumer Fraud

"You said something about Mr. Brill charging that we do not prosecute consumer frauds; that's not true. We have a person who was connected with a travel agency who was ripping off some people; I think he is in jail now, or he may be going to jail. We have put companies that were illegal and improper out of business, closed them down. We have prosecuted all kinds of consumer violators."

Repeat Offenders

"We have been very concerned with street crime. We have planned all kinds of solutions to that. I think we have made a significant impact. The crime rate in Providence has gone down, the crime rate in Pawtucket went down. We got a federal grant from the government of $192,000 to concentrate on repeat offenders. We were able to hire people and develop an intelligence network with the rest of the police throughout the state of Rhode Island, to identify and to locate these people. We established a priority about bringing them before the courts and trying them quickly. We prosecuted 72 repeat offenders who committed between them 405 crimes. In other words, some of those people were a mini crime wave all by themselves. We developed this repeat offender program so that people on probation, people on parole, the minute they break the law we bring them back before the courts as repeat offenders. We have a special program that we apply to them so that we don't have to wait six months or eight months or 12 months for a trial, and we get them off the street."

Auto Theft

"For the most part, this is an interstate operation. Cars are taken across state lines, serial numbers are changed, etc. Very often auto theft involves federal violations as well as state violations. The FBI is very much involved in auto theft; it has been very much involved in what happens in Rhode Island and Massachusetts and the interconnection. We can only prosecute those cases which the police bring to our attention when they catch somebody who stole a car or when they catch somebody who is involved in that kind of a ring. We don't go out and locate a car thief; we prosecute the cases. We have a limit."

The Record

"My personality is such that any kind of a political campaign which I conduct is a positive campaign. When I ran for political office two years ago, I developed a series of programs and I kept my faith with the people and all of the programs were put into effect. I like to talk about what I hope and plan to do for the people of the state of Rhode Island to make this office more meaningful and to make it more responsive to the needs of the community. I said that all my people would be full time, they would be able to work harder and do their job better; They're all full time. I said I would bring my office to the people; I have established four offices throughout the state, I have made my lawyers available on a full time basis, not only to consumers but also to the police departments. We have a lawyer that checks in with the state police almost on daily basis. We have developed a rapport with law enforcers so that they don't have to come all the way into Providence; we'll come to them. If they have an immediate problem we have a lawyer in their area that they can contact. We said we would establish a narcotics task force. We did. We said we would establish programs which would eliminate the crowded court calendar and permit us to address ourselves to serious crises at a time when they

ROSENSTEIN - BROMBERG

Miss Judith Ann Bromberg and Mr. Jay Neil Rosenstein were married August 29 at 6:30 p.m. at Temple Emanu-El with Rabbis Joel Zaiman, Eli Bohnen and Joseph Polak (of Boston University), and Cantor Ivan Perlman officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Malcolm C. Bromberg of Providence and the late Sylvia L. Bromberg. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Milton Cohen of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and the late Al Rosenstein.

The bride's gown was an empire A-line silhouette of chiffonette with high collar, bodice of reembroidered Alencon lace and bishop sleeves. A matching cap of Alencon lace held the chapel length veil of silk illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of stephanotis, white roses and white miniature carnations with an accent of yellow apricot.

Maid of honor was Miss Ruth Flescher of Providence. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Howard Bromberg of Warwick, Miss Sheryl Marks of Pawtucket and Mrs. Michael Zimmerman of Billerica, Massachusetts. They wore apricot chiffon gowns styled with an empire bodice and capelet collar edged with self-ruffled trim. The self-ruffled trim bordered to the hem of the gowns, finishing to the side. A self-bow accented the side ruffle of the gowns. They wore apricot picture hats with maline veiling and carried colonial bouquets of yellow, white and apricot flowers.

Best man was Milton Cohen of Scranton, Pennsylvania. Ushers were Steven Bellin of Brookline, Massachusetts, Barry Bergman of Hartford, Connecticut, and Alan Yaffe of Shrewsbury, Massachusetts. Mrs. Benjamin Bromberg, grandmother of the bride, was escorted by Arnold and Howard Bromberg, brothers of the bride.

The bride is a cum laude graduate of Boston University with a major in biology, and is also a graduate of the Memorial Hospital School of Medical Technology in Pawtucket. She will be employed at The Miriam Hospital in Providence. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Boston University School of Management, magna cum laude, with a major in accounting. He also received an MBA with honors from the same institution. He is now employed by an accounting firm in Providence.

After a trip to Israel, the couple will reside at 40 Stenton Avenue, Providence.

have to be addressed, and we've done that. We have developed a diversion program where a youthful first offender who commits a non-violent crime under certain circumstances and can show that he truly regrets it, can get himself involved in a rehabilitation program. Jail is no place for that person, particularly if he is a young person who has never been in trouble before. We have developed a diversion program which is the first state wide program in the nation. We developed a major violators-habitual offender criminal program, in which we get the repeat offenders. We have become involved in representing the consumer, the person who gets ripped off in the market place and we have returned more than $70,000 a month to these people. We have returned in overpayments to utility customers over $70,000 and we expect that amount will significantly increase in the next few months. Everything I did when I was a candidate for office was to say to the people, 'this is what I will do if you elect me; this is what I will try to do; this is where I will conduct my fights; this is where I will wage my battles, — and now I am saying to the people, 'examine my record. I've kept my promises. I think I have done a good job and I think I deserve to be reelected.'

Mr. Michaelson is married and has two children. His wife comes from Woonsocket. Both of his sons will be in college this month. In concluding our interview, Mr.

Michaelson reflected on the recent Entebbe raid and other acts of terrorism. "As a person, and as a person who occupies this office and who is a little bit familiar with bomb threats and with terrorism, I was outraged by what happened and I think that the Israeli government deserves to be commended for the way that they handled it, and for the fact that they were able to rescue all of these people without any significant loss of life. Of course, if one person loses his life, that's significant, but I think that maybe the way that Israel handled it has caused that nation to become more respected in the free world — and I think Israel deserves far more respect in the free world. I think it gave a sense of pride to all freedom loving people, that Israel was able to accomplish this."

Royal Recognition Of A Belgium Town

ANTWERP, BELGIUM: A number of the leading members of the Jewish community here have recently been honored by King Baudouin, to mark the centenary of Royal recognition of the community.

Among those honored were the Chief Rabbi, Dr. Hillel Medalie, who received the "Chevalier de l'Orde de Leopold." As Dr. Medalie is a British subject — he was once a rabbi in Leeds — permission for him to wear this foreign accolade has to be given by the British sovereign.

NEW SEC'Y OF STATE
WASHINGTON: Knowledgeable political circles are saying that William Scranton, presently U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., will be named the new U.S. Secretary of State in place of Dr. Henry Kissinger who is not expected to last to the end of this year.

Veto Is Expected From Hamburg State Senate

BONN: A former Nazi judicial officer has been nominated for a high-ranking position in the Hamburg legal system. But if the nomination succeeds, the Hamburg State Senate is expected to exercise a veto. Guenter Schulz, 65, from 1941 to 1943 was assistant judge in a Hamburg lower court and is currently a judge in the Hamburg Supreme Court. He was nominated to be presiding judge of the Supreme Court.

During the war, Schulz participated in at least 15 "racial dishonor" (rassenschande) cases in which the crime of sexual intercourse between "Aryans" and Jews was alleged. In one such case — involving an artist and his Jewish fiancée — the court found that "the law for protecting blood is one of the fundamental laws of the Third Reich. All state organs must ensure with uncompromising strictness that this law — even when understandable human grounds for excuses are present — is properly carried out."

In nominating Schulz for the position of presiding judge, Hamburg's Supreme Court Judge President Walter Stiebeler described Schulz as "a person of integrity

Sleuth Is Example of Entertainment

Sleuth, the final Lederer Summer Theater production, is a good solid example of what theatrical entertainment is all about. William Cain and George Taylor, the major characters in the play by Anthony Shaffer, are excellent actors whose precision playing keeps an audience alert but comfortably at ease.

The stage set is handsome, a manor house in England with paneled walls, bright rugs, a balcony and a scattering of games—pool table here, chessboard there. The house belongs to Andrew Wyke (played by Cain), a mystery writer whose wife has fallen for Milo Tindle (played by Taylor). Wyke has invited Tindle over for a discussion of various matters, but finally narrows the whole question down to what might be called gamesmanship. As Tindle enters into the spirit of things, pretty much directed by his host, a fast clown scene winds up tensely. The next act begins with a rural but perceptive police inspector investigating the disappearance of Tindle. (One of Wyke's favorite beliefs is that the police are not nearly as capable as his own sleuth-hero, St. John, Lord Merri-dew, whom he has endowed with a pork-barrel of a body, and "a face like Father Christmas.")

The first act prepares the audience for Wyke's remark fairly late in the play, that he just wants somebody to play with. In Tindle he has found a good match.

Cain is, of course, well known to Providence audiences as a versatile actor. Taylor is also versatile, and their styles form a nice contrast. David Gustafson directed Sleuth. Peter Anderson did scenery and lighting, and the cast list also includes Tom Marcello and Rick Salome. The play will run through September 5.

Touro Annual Letter Reading Steeped In Bicentennial Pomp

An entire weekend of activity will surround the annual reading of Touro Synagogue's "George Washington Letter," which promises religious freedom to Jews and all other American citizens. The address was originally delivered by George Washington, himself, upon a visit to Newport's Touro Synagogue, oldest synagogue in America.

Edward H. Levi, United States attorney general, will be the keynote speaker at the Sunday, September 12, reading. He will replace John W. Warner, chairman of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, who was originally announced as the central speaker.

The Society of Friends of Touro Synagogue National Historic Shrine, Inc., which is sponsoring the Bicentennial weekend gala, will hold its annual business meeting and election of officers at the Newport Harbor Treadway Inn at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, September 12. Speaker will be Milton E. Mitler, USAF - retired, White House staff in charge of Bicentennial and special projects. Following luncheon, there will be a short walking tour from the hotel to the synagogue, past restored homes and historic buildings.

The annual letter reading of the George Washington address will take place at Touro Synagogue at 2 p.m. and will be delivered by Rev. Charles Minifie, Rector of the historic Trinity Church in Newport. Recognition will be paid to the Rhode Island Bicentennial Commission and observance will be made of the 30th anniversary of the designation of the synagogue as a national historic site in 1946 by the United States Department of the Interior.

Following the exercises, the planting of two dogwood trees will be part of the dedication of the new Patriots Park on the land adjoining the synagogue. A reception will follow at the Jewish Community Center, across the street.

Other weekend events in which members and guests are invited include Sabbath services on Friday evening and Saturday morning, September 10 and 11. Guest Cantor will be David Koussevitsky. Friday service is at 8 p.m. with Rabbi Theodore Lewis and Rev. Eli Katz officiating. Philip Noel, Rhode Island governor, will speak. Saturday service will be at 9:30 a.m., again with Rabbi Lewis and Rev. Katz officiating. Following both services, a Kiddush will be held at the Jewish Community Center.

On Saturday, September 11, from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. at Belcourt Castle, Bellevue Avenue, Newport, there will be a commemorative "Champagne Ball," recognizing the Jewish role in the American Bicentennial. Information may be obtained by contacting Samuel Friedman at 846-1900 or Rabbi Lewis at 847-1794.

and upright character." He noted that because of Schulz's "indisputable professional qualifications," he probably would have become presiding judge much earlier, "were it not for the fact that his participation as assistant judge in so-called racial dishonor cases acted as a hindering factor." Defending Schulz's actions, Stiebeler said all judgements in which he participated during the Nazi reign were in the framework of then-existing laws.

Hamburg's Justice Minister, Prof. Ulrich Klug, opposed the nomination. A Hamburg government spokesman said the position of presiding judge was one of the top posts in the state (as opposed to the federal) legal system. The vacancy had arisen because the present presiding judge had reached retirement age. Schulz's nomination was "all the more surprising" because he was due to retire in the next three years, the spokesman added.

The electoral committee, chaired by Klug, is composed of three judges, two Hamburg state officials, two lawyers and six representatives nominated by the political parties represented in the Hamburg State Parliament. A decision by the nominating committee was postponed to Sept. 1 because of "lack of time."

Fashion Show Touring Major American Cities

WASHINGTON: The 1976-77 Israel Fashion Show, which was featured at the opening session of the annual national convention of Hadassah, will tour the major cities of the country under the auspices of local Hadassah chapters.

The high fashion clothes are designed and executed by students of the Hadassah Seligsberg/Brandeis Comprehensive High School in Jerusalem. Proceeds of the fashion show will benefit the Hadassah Israel Education Services.
