

Bureau Of Jewish Education Dedicates Annual Meeting To Dr. Harry Elkin

Dr. Benjamin J. Shevach, executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Boston, will address the 12th Annual Meeting of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Providence, which is dedicated to the memory of Dr. Harry Elkin. It will be held in the meeting hall of Temple Emanu-El on Thursday, at 8 P.M., according to an announcement by Leo Sonkin, chairman of the Annual Meeting committee.

The meeting will also mark the first graduation of the Community Hebrew High School. Graduates are, in the Advanced Department: Michael Bohnen, Neely Egozi, Julius Gelade, Leslie Krieger, and Dina Sternbach. In the Cranston Branch they are Judith Drazin, Phyllis Greenberg, Robert Levin, Paula Litchberg, Steven Musen, and Tina Parness. Mrs. Naomi Burstyn is principal of the Community Hebrew High School. Diplomas will be awarded to each graduate by the chairman of the Hebrew High School committee, Bernard J. Margolis.

Irving Brodsky has been nominated for a fourth term as president of the Bureau of Jewish Education and heads a slate of officers and 35 board members who will be presented to the meeting for election by the chairman of the nominating committee, Abraham E. Goldstein.

Dr. Shevach will speak on "Jewish Education and the Jewish Community." He attended Boston University School of Education and attended Harvard University Graduate School. He is Educational Consultant, United Hebrew Schools of Metropolitan Boston. He is a member of the National Council for Jewish Education and a member of American Association of Arts and Sciences.

Also planned as part of the program are the awarding of certificates to students who have successfully concluded the Bureau's Sunday School Teacher Training Program and the Hebrew Teacher's Orientation Program, and the announcement of the Hebrew Cultural Council's scholarships.

Rabbi Robert Layman, who has completed a one year term as chairman of the School Council, will be honored at this time.

The slate of officers for 1964-65 includes Mrs. Alfred Jaffe, Sherwin J. Kapstein, Bernard J. Margolis, Dr. Herman B. Marks, vice-presidents; Abraham E. Goldstein, treasurer; Louis Baruch Rubinstein, secretary. Alter Boyman and Max Winograd are honorary presidents of the Bureau.

In addition to Mr. Goldstein, the members of the nominating committee are Mrs. Samuel Bresnick, Marvin A. Brill, Benjamin Hazen, Mrs. Alfred Jaffe, Dr. Harold Organic, Beryl Segal, Sheldon Sollosy and Leo Sonkin.

The evening's program will conclude with a reception honoring the graduates of the Community Hebrew High School. Serving as hosts will be the parents of the graduates.

Begin Fourth Series Of Meetings On Plans To Divert Jordan

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Arab technicians began a fourth series of meetings here today on final plans to divert the headwaters of the Jordan River to deprive Israel of the water.

Representatives of Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and the United Arab Republic were present at the meeting of the Council of the Authority for the Utilization of the Jordan River and its Tributaries.

The council was set up to carry out the resolution adopted by Arab kings and presidents in Cairo last January. They agreed to divert the Wazzani and Hasbani Rivers in Lebanon, the Yarmuk in Jordan and the Baniyas in Syria, all tributaries of the Jordan. This was retaliation for Israel's plan to use Jordan River waters to irrigate the Negev.

The Arab plan is secret, but is known to fall into two stages, one immediate and the second long-term.

The immediate stage involves diverting the headwaters at a cost of $20 million. Arab technicians hope to complete this stage within 18 months.

President Johnson Warmly Welcomes Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol To U. S.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson warmly welcomed Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel to the United States on Monday, declaring it was "not only possible but imperative" for Israel and her Arab neighbors to resolve their disputes peacefully. The President told the Israeli leader the United States had been proud to help in Israel's development and was prepared to continue technical aid to Israel. Mr. Eshkol, who arrived by helicopter from Philadelphia, paid the first official visit by an Israeli Premier to the United States. He was accorded full military honors and a 19-gun salute in a colorful ceremony on the south lawn of the White House. Mr. Johnson and Acting Secretary of State George W. Ball, toasting Mr. Eshkol at a State Department luncheon, dwelt on the fact that the Israeli Premier's visit was the first of its kind since Israel was founded in 1948.

This was interpreted as a demonstration of United States support for Israel in the face of continuing Arab pressure.

Mr. Eshkol's presence drew criticism from the press attaches of 13 Arab embassies, who issued a statement saying Mr. Eshkol's visit might have "serious implications for the future of Arab-American relations."

In a combined statement, the press attaches said Mr. Eshkol was here to "ask the United States for arms and the conclusion of a bilateral security treaty." Their statement asserted that Israel was already a threat to regional and consequently world peace and had no need for such arms.

Israeli and United States officials declined to comment on the Arab statement, but indicated that neither arms nor a bilateral security treaty had come up during the conversation between President Johnson and Premier Eshkol at the White House.

Israel 'Symbol of Courage'

"Today, Israel is a vital, prosperous land, a symbol of the courage and strength of her people," the President told Mr. Eshkol during the welcoming ceremonies. "The United States is proud to have assisted in this high enterprise," Mr. Johnson said. "We are prepared to continue our contributions to technical advancement in Israel, particularly in the field of desalination of water.

Turning to the political tensions in the Middle East, President Johnson said he was aware of adjustments that Israel faces with her neighbors.

"We know that you want to live in peace with those neighbors, and we believe it not only possible but imperative that those problems be peacefully resolved, bringing justice to all as well as security for all.

The 68-year-old Israeli leader praised the President as a man of peace and thanked him for "the aid and sympathy tendered to us by successive United State Governments.

His visit, he said, "is symbolic of the providential change which has taken place in the fortunes of my people, of the transition within so short a time from the tragedy which only two decades ago, en-

Arab Envoys Call On Rusk Concerning Eshkol Visit

WASHINGTON — Thirteen Arab envoys called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk last week to express concern over the visit here of Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel.

The Ambassador of the United Arab Republic, Mostafa Kamel, said later that the diplomats had indicated their fear that the Israeli leader would seek to "destroy Arab-American relations in order to have liberty of aggression in the Middle East."

The meeting with Mr. Rusk was arranged by Dr. Kamel, according to officials here. The Secretary told the Arab envoys that the United States was aware of Middle East problems and that it would keep in mind the Arab concern when Mr. Eshkol arrived in Washington for two days of meetings with President Johnson.

However, the officials emphasized that the Arab envoys had not delivered anything that could be construed as a "warning" and that the United States would pursue its Middle East policies from the viewpoint of its national interest and its desire to see peace preserved in the region.

The officials said that the Arab diplomats essentially came to convey their hope that Mr. Johnson's talks with Mr. Eshkol would not "upset" Washington's relations with their governments.

Those at the 22-minute conference with Mr. Rusk were the ambassadors of the United Arab Republic, the Sudan, Libya, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, and Kuwait, and the charges d'affaires of Yemen, Saudi Arabia and Syria.

It was believed in diplomatic quarters that Arab concern over Mr. Eshkol's visit was based primarily on the fact that he would be the first Israeli premier to be received officially in Washington and that his talks here might alter Washington's reluctance to sell modern military equipment to Israel.

David Ben-Gurion visited Washington in 1961 when he was Premier, but his presence was considered "private," even though he met with President Kennedy. At that time, too, Arab diplomats conveyed their unhappiness to the State Department.

Invited in January Mr. Eshkol was invited by President Johnson last January, at the same time that an invitation was given to King Hussein of Jordan. But invitations were carried by Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, who visited Israel and Jordan on Mr. Johnson's behalf during the visit there of Pope Paul VI.

The invitations were issued as part of the United States policy of balancing its relationships with Israel and the Arab states.

Zionist Leader Discloses Cardinal Spellman's Role In Admission Of Israel To United Nations In 1949

NEW YORK — A leading American Zionist has disclosed that Cardinal Spellman had an active role in the admission of Israel to the United Nations in 1949.

Charles H. Silver said the Cardinal had been influential in swinging several South American delegations to the side of the struggling new nation.

Mr. Silver, a close friend of the Cardinal's, made the disclosure in introducing the Cardinal at Beth Israel Hospital's 75th anniversary dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Mr. Silver is president of the hospital.

A former president of the Board of Education and now an executive assistant to Mayor Wagner, Mr. Silver said he had kept the secret of Cardinal Spellman's participation for 15 years.

But, he said, "in this time of vindictive post-mortems and afterthoughts about the apathy of other faiths when the survival of the Jewish people was threatened, I feel that this story should now be told."

This was an allusion to the play "The Deputy" by a German, Rolf Hochhuth, which accuses Pope Pius XII of silence in the face of Nazis persecution of the Jews.

Mr. Silver said the story of the Cardinal's aid — "one of the most amazing stories of brotherhood and fellowship among men of goodwill you are ever likely to hear" — began in late April, 1949, soon after Israel had signed an armistice with the Arabs and applied for membership in the United Nations.

Israel achieved independence on May 14, 1948, but was immediately attacked by states of the Arab League. After the armistice, opposition to Israel's admission to the United Nations developed because of her refusal to readmit Arab refugees and because she had expanded her territory beyond the original United Nations formula.

He Tells of Meeting

The late Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, the spearhead of Zionism in America came to visit Mr. Silver on a special mission in April, 1949. He wanted Mr. Silver to obtain a statement from Cardinal Spellman supporting Israel's admission to the United Nations.

That same day, on an outdoor walk, Mrs. Silver said, he presented the proposition to the Cardinal.

"I will do something that may mean a great deal more," the Cardinal is reported to have replied.

The Cardinal, according to Mr. Silver, said he would call on delegates and persons of importance in the South American bodies and "share with them his fond wish" that Israel be admitted.

"Well, my friends," Mr. Silver said in his speech, "for a moment my heart seemed to stop beating. It was a terrific gesture of support. He had made it without a moment's hesitation — and it was much more than a gesture."

"The rest," Mr. Silver said, "is history. When the vote was taken, Israel became the 59th member of the United Nations, winning by almost exactly the number of countries to which His Eminence had gone for assistance in our cause."

In fact, the vote in the General Assembly on May 11, 1949, was 37 to 12 for Israel's admission.

Mr. Silver then introduced Cardinal Spellman, the guest of honor at his anniversary banquet, as "the great churchman whose unhesitating help changed the course of history and made Israel a nation among nations."

Mr. Silver also said that the Cardinal had made gifts to Beth Israel Hospital over the years totalling more than $200,000.

The hospital, at Stuyvesant Square and 17th Street, was founded in 1889 as a nonsectarian, voluntary institution. Its bed capacity under a present expansion drive is being increased to 650.

Mr. Silver is also active in the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation, which was founded by the Cardinal. This foundation raises funds for schools and hospitals.

Mrs. Robert G. Portman

Temple Emanu-el was the scene of the wedding of Alva Ruth Gerstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Gerstein of 387 Cole Avenue, to Robert George Portman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Portman of 333 Slater Avenue. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen assisted by Cantor Jacob Hohenemser, officiated at the 6:30 P.M. ceremony on Sunday May 31. A reception followed in the temple meeting house.

Wearing a Grecian style gown of light ivory silk peau de soie with a sabrina neckline trimmed with imported seed and crystalized pearls, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sheath skirt which ended in a chapel length court train was banded with matching pearls. An open crown of silk peau de soie and matching pearls held her silk illusion veiling, and she carried a prayerbook with Calla lilies.

Barbara E. Portman, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Her floor length sheath gown of mauve pink chiffon was styled with a beaded bodice and she wore an open crown of matching chiffon with silk illusion veiling. She carried a spray bouquet of Camhamiyana orchids and eucalyptus.

Bridesmaids were Donna Amaral, Ann Berman, Carol Berman, Ann Gerstein, Elaine Goldberg and Lois Rottenberg. Gowned in floor length sheaths of orchid chiffon with Sabrina necklines and short sleeves and a band of deep orchid velvet ribbon accenting the empire bodices, they wore matching velvet open crowns with silk illusion veiling. Their crescent bouquets were of white roses, clover and podocarpus.

Alan Gerstein, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Richard Ackerman, Elliott Brodsky, Peter Davis, Stanley Kaplan, Michael Thaler and Philip Weinstein.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length sheath gown of Paris pink silk satin fashioned with appliques of sequins, crystals and pearls. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in a floor length sheath of mauve pink crepe with a sequined top.

After a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will live in Smithfield for the summer, moving to Philadelphia, Pa., in September.

RECEIVES DEGREE — Julia Hazel Benjamin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Barnard H. Benjamin of 765 Newport Avenue, South Attleboro, Mass., received an A.B. degree from Vassar College at its 100th Commencement on Sunday.

A graduate of Hope High School Miss Benjamin centered her studies in Sociology. She participated in "Horizons Unlimited," the student tutorial enrichment project for area elementary school pupils. She was also a member of the Vassar Civil Rights organization and of Philosopher's Holiday, a faculty-student group which meets periodically to discuss philosophic topics presented by guest speakers.

Political Horse Sense

President Johnson's speech at Lexington recently was a fitting climax to his first six months in the White House. When he came into office - partly because of the tragic circumstances in which he did - it was feared on both sides of the Atlantic that his predecessor's vision and vigor would give way to narrow political expediency. These fears have proved groundless. President Johnson has been as clever a politician as Senator Johnson used to be; but he has abandoned none of Kennedy's policies - although he has sometimes displayed more political horse sense in the way he has pursued them. Now, in his Lexington speech, he has actually gone farther than President Kennedy ever went.

In his great speech at the American University last summer President Kennedy reminded us that Communists are human beings, too. President Johnson has now added the equally important reminder that Communists, like other human beings, differ among themselves. In the long run it will probably turn out that the chief significance of his speech lies in this reminder, rather than in the policy decisions he announced.

Since the cold war we have been taught not just that Communists wear horns and tails but that they wear horns and tails of identical cut. The Communist block has been seen as a single monolith of depravity, and international communism as a world-wide conspiracy manipulated from a single center. Few things have done more to prevent the West from taking advantage of the divisions which long ago began to appear beneath the surface of the Eastern block. Few things have done more to cripple American policy in Africa and Asia and in parts of Latin America.

President Johnson has not repudiated the myth of a Communist monolith in so many words, and it will take time for the full implications of his speech to sink in.

Nevertheless, no one can doubt what those implications are. What he is now saying is that Communist governments differ so widely from each other that it no longer makes sense to treat them as parts of a single whole and that, because of this, the mere fact that a country has a Communist government is no longer a sufficient reason for excommunicating it. In the short run this means that we can expand our economic contacts with Eastern Europe. In the long run it may come to mean far more.

For 16 years American foreign policy has been based on the proposition that no government could be worse than a Communist government and that even if communism could only be held back at the price of supporting reactionary allies the price was worth paying.

In the days when all Communist parties could be regarded as the agents of Moscow that policy was inevitable, and perhaps, desirable. President Johnson, however, has now demolished the assumption on which the old policy was based.

It would be foolish to expect the calmer and more flexible attitude to triumph all at once. Where United States emotions and self-esteem are deeply engaged, as in the Caribbean, the old policy will continue to hold sway. But if this lead is followed by others, the age of ideological fury should eventually give way to an age of political realism.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

The Promise Of A Superb Artists Series

By Beryl Segal

The Beth El Artists Series is ten years old and going on the eleventh year.

For ten years now, hundreds of people in Providence and vicinity have reserved the Wednesdays of the concert for the Artists Series. They have not been disappointed in the past. The coming season promises to be as rewarding as the concerts in the years before.

In trying to find some pattern in the choice of artists invited to perform in the Beth El Series, one is struck by one fact. That fact distinguishes the Beth El Series from all the other musical events in the community.

The artists invited to perform in the series are, in the main, young, little known in Providence, and therefore hold a greater surprise to the audiences.

The next season's concerts will give meaning to this statement.

Malcolm Frager, the first artist in the series is young and comparatively unknown in Providence. His performances in Tanglewood and in the Lewisohn Stadium were so brilliant that he is said to be the most sought after artist. That was in 1963. To have succeeded in bringing this artist to Providence a year later speaks well for the Artists Series.

In the spring of 1963 Malcolm Frager performed with the Leningrad Philharmonic during a tour of the Soviet Union. The news agency Tass, at that time:

"Frager demonstrated an unerring feeling for form and style. He played with temperament and captivated the audience by his forceful personality, beauty of sound, and spontaneity. The recital was a resounding success."

Malcolm Frager, pianist, will be the first artist to appear in next season's concerts at Beth El.

Leon Fleisher and Leonard Rose are to appear in a joint recital. Of the team we have the testimony of the New York Times and Christian Science Monitor. On the piano performance of Leon Fleisher the Times says:

"From beginning to end, the highest artistic level of playing."

And on Leonard Rose, the Monitor writes:

"An outstanding cellist. Leonard Rose has about everything one could wish for."

After his performance in Washington, D.C., Leonard Fleisher received this word of praise from the Washington Post:

"Fleisher is without any real rival among our younger American pianists today."

Leonard Rose appearing with Leon Fleisher is spoken of as the cellist who is "surpassed by no one", according to the Cleveland Press. And the Seattle Post writes: "Rose is certainly one of the best - if not the best - cellist. The range and clarity of his playing is phenomenal."

And in San Francisco he received this review in the Examiner: "Rose played with a stirring romantic passion, splendor of tone, and technical mastery. He is one of the country's and the world's best cellists."

And another newspaper echoes the same sentiment: "Leonard Rose is a masterful cellist - doubtless the top ranking artist of his instrument in the country today," says the Houston Press.

This splendid combination of pianist and cellist will be presented by the Beth El Artists Series during the coming season.

The Societa Corelli is an ensemble of thirteen young Italian musicians. They are named after the famous Violinist and Composer Arcangelo Corelli of Rome, and are billed as the Chamber Orchestra. They play without the benefit of a conductor and are hailed as a remarkable organization of players of string music. They are touring the United States and Canada, and Providence will be one of the cities on their tour, thanks to the Beth El Artist Series.

Here is what one of the country's newspapers writes about the concert of these Societa Corelli: "Every now and then there occurs a concert that is played with such beauty and such loving kindness of music itself, in toto and in detail, that even case-hardened ed critics can only gush over their typewriters instead of beating on them with savage energy that all critics are supposed to have.

"Such a concert was the one given by the Societa Corelli yesterday. In ensemble and in solo, the beauty of the program was as much in the playing as it was in the music.

"The Societa Corelli plays without a conductor, but I don't think I have ever heard a string ensemble play with such delicate counterbalance of string tone and such a superb coordination in timing and tempo, even with a conductor beating it out for them."

This from the San Francisco Chronicle.

When the Societa Corelli played in Montreal, Canada, the Gazette wrote:

"The musical season may now be declared officially open, and it was done in a most promising way last night with a concert given by the Societa Corelli.

"These Romans number 13 string players and a piano, and have formed themselves into a superb ensemble. Their style is pure and direct. The ensemble work sounded faultless, the blend of tone remarkable, and the authority of playing absolute. These Romans have an impressive range of expression. They never sound heavy, they can be dramatic when drama is called for and the lyrical beauty of their music-making is striking."

The season is rounded out, as every season before, with singers. This season the Metropolitan Opera Tenor Leopold Simoneau, and the Coloraturo Soprano Pierrette Alarie will appear in a joint recital. They both come from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera, and need one say more about them?

Music lovers in Providence will do well to heed the call of the Beth El Sisterhood and reserve their seats to these concerts early. Seat locations will be assigned in order of receipt of reservations.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Rules for Moving

Within 60 days we'll be into the peak season of the year for moving to another house in another state or county or town or just a block away - and whatever our reasons for moving and whatever the distances, we'll make 1964 the biggest year ever both for the mover and the moved.

More than 35 million Americans will have moved by year's end, one in five of us. It's estimated we'll spend over $500 million this year for long-distance moving alone, many times that total for short hauls.

What's more, all today's records will be shattered in the years ahead, as our millions of war babies reach the 18-24 year age span - the big years for moving away from home.

Moving is one of the costliest routines we go through. Also, it's too frequently an experience blackened by expensive disappointments, delays, misunderstandings. As an illustration, a recent survey by Consumers Union turned up these alarming points:

Price estimates are understated 50 per cent of the time and actual prices at times turn out to be double original estimates.

Promises on delivery dates are broken 30 per cent of the time - adding hidden costs of hotel rooms and restaurant eating.

Claims for damage or loss must be filed in one of every four moves.

Effective July 10 there will be new rules by the Interstate Commerce Commission to deal with these problems - regulations calling for written estimates by carriers, advance notification on delivery delays, a boost in insurance coverage, etc. But meanwhile, how can you wade through the maze of estimates, insurance plans and contract fine print involved in any move? Here are key rules from Consumers Union and others.

(1) Before getting estimates, eliminate stuff you really don't need or want in your new home - particularly heavy items such as worn-out appliances. If you are just moving to another part of town, send out your rugs and drapes for

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

Mayor Wagner will go to Geneva in July, just before the Democratic convention, for a conference on automation. It will add an international tone to his ranking among vice presidential possibilities. . . The Kefauver Foundation will build a wing, in his name, at the University of Tennessee library. The late senator's papers, some of them dynamite-laden, will be housed there. . . The Warren Commission's report on the JFK assassination will be ready in two months.

Mischa Elman will play at the White House dinner for Prime Minister Eshkol of Israel. . . George C. Scott and Colleen Dewhurst did Irish readings at LBJ's dinner to Ireland's president. . . Maurice Evans will return to Broadway in "The Physicists." Richard Burton had been scheduled for it. . . Kim Stanley has agreed to star next season in William Hanley's "Conversations in the Dark." The play folded out of town this year.

Last week President Johnson saw Kenneth Keating R-N.Y., who's missed no opportunities in his campaign for re-election this year. LBJ said he'd been worried about Keating's health. The senator replied: "But my health's fine. What gave you the notion I've been sick?" . . . "Well," LBJ said, "there was a bar mitzvah in Schenectady, with 14 people, and you didn't show up."

Paul Newman and director Martin Ritt hope to find a major role for Sandy Dennis, star of "Any Wednesday," in their next film. . . Miss Dennis wore a simple dark skirt and jacket in accepting her Tony Award. She said she thought black meant only the men had to dress. . . ## Beth Sholom To Dedicate Organ Donated By Upshers

Temple Beth Sholom will dedicate the organ in its main sanctuary on Sunday at 8:30 P.M. The organ, which was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Upsher, will be dedicated in memory of Mr. Upsher's mother, Rebecca Upsher Minkoff.

Following the brief dedicatory prayers a concert of cantorial, Yiddish and Israeli music will be presented by Cantor Karl S. Kritz, baritone; Harriet A. Kritz, soprano, and Frederik Very, organist and accompanist.

As part of the program Rabbi Charles M. Rubel will give a lecture on "The History of Synagogue, Yiddish Folk and Theatre Music."

A reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Upsher will be held in the temple's social hall following the concert.

Alexander Gladstone is chairman of the organ dedication committee and is assisted by Rabbi Rubel, Cantor Kritz, Samuel Lapatin and Mrs. Sumner Woolf. Hostesses are Mesdames Jack Dinin, Julius Levin, Herman Weinstein, Martin Wexler and Mrs. Woolf.

Ushers are Samuel I. Cohen, Bruce Jacober, Morris Kritz, Morton Paige and Ben Rabinowitz.

ISRAEL KARTEN

Appoint Israel Karten
As Principal Of Sinai
Religious School

Israel Karten, for many years actively working with both youth and adult groups in the Rhode Island area, has recently been appointed Principal of the Religious School of Temple Sinai.

Mr. Karten has been a public school teacher for six years and has been teaching in religious schools for 28 years. He attended the International Conclave for temple educators and executives in Israel as a representative of the Bureau of Jewish Education in 1958, and in 1961 he acted as liaison guide to Israel for 35 members of the Jewish Community Center.

Temple Sinai's religious school, which was organized in 1958, is the fourth largest in Rhode Island.

The next board meeting of the organization will take place on Wednesday at 12:30 P.M. at the home of Mrs. Albert Max of Wilcox Avenue, Pawtucket.

TO INSTALL OFFICERS

The Sisterhood of Temple Beth Israel will install their slate of officers for 1963-64 on Monday at 7:30 P.M. Installing officer will be Rabbi Robert Layman.

A program, arranged by Cantor Arthur Yolkoff, titled "The Village Fiddler," based on the works of I. Peretz, will be performed by members of the USY. Elliot Markowitz will present cello selections.

Mrs. Hyman Schachter will be installed as president. Other officers are Mesdames Albert Krasner, Martin Feibush, vice-presidents; Bernard Labush, treasurer; Julius Lightman, financial secretary; Jack Cohen, Max Fishbein, corresponding secretaries; Parker Drazin, auditor, and Max Portnoy, recording secretary.

A reception and collation will follow the installation.

PLAN SECOND MIXER

The "Over and Under" Club, an organization of unmarried Jewish adults between 21 and 35, will hold its second mixer from 5 to 9 P.M. this Sunday at the Dreyfus Hotel's Mirror Lounge. A three-piece band will provide entertainment according to an announcement by Linwood E. Volpe, recently elected president of the group.

Other officers of the organization are Barry Cohen, vice-president; Brend Kirshenbaum, treasurer and Marcia Wolf, secretary.

Serving on the board of directors are Norman Elman, Sydel Cohen, Reeva Curran, Pauline Schwartz, Phyllis Marnis, Sonya Pomeranz and Avis Jacobson.

SENTENCE THREE

PARIS — Three Jewish brothers, two doctors and the other a historian, were given death sentences in the Soviet Union on April 30 for alleged economic crimes, according to reports reaching here.

One of the three doomed men is 44-year-old Joseph Klempert, a historian. The three were tried behind closed doors.

218,000 TOURISTS

ISRAEL — A total of 218,000 tourists visited Israel last year, nearly double the number who came in 1960. It is estimated that by 1970, 600,000 tourists will be visiting Israel annually.

Israel Churches Introduce
Saturday Evening Services

HAIFA, Israel — Greek Catholic Churches in Israel have introduced Saturday evening services as an alternative to the regular prayers on Sunday, it was announced recently.

Sunday is not a national rest day in Israel.

Archbishop George Hakim, spiritual leader of the Greek Catholic Community in Israel, told a reporter this could be the first step towards a possible change in the Catholic Sabbath to Saturday in this country.

He said private discussions touched upon this possibility during the last session of the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council in the Vatican.

REUNION WEEKEND

Counselors-in-training from four associations will join for a reunion weekend at Camp Seaside, resident camp of the Providence YWCA at Jamestown, from Friday to Sunday.

Participants will start arriving at 4 P.M. today from Worcester YWCA, the Pawtucket-Central Falls YWCA, and the Providence YWCA.

Four workshops will be featured on Sunday, and there will be general camp activities including beachcombing and the first ferry ride of the city.

Inquiries and registration may be sent to Miss Patricia Magee of the Providence YWCA at 54 Jackson Street.

ANTIQUY SHOW TO OPEN

The Brockton Antique Show and Sale will open on Sunday at the Brockton, Mass., Fairgrounds.

Antique dealers from New England, New York and New Jersey will have 100 booths at the three-day show, which is expected to attract 10,000 persons. A wide variety of antiques will be on display and for sale. Reproductions have been barred.

The show will be held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday from 1 to 10 P.M. in the Exhibition Hall at the fairgrounds.

Sponsors are the Brockton YM & YWHA Community Center and Southeastern Shows, Inc. Ben Gerber and Bob Shephard are co-managers for the event.

Proceeds from a special exhibit will go to the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library Fund.

Young Israeli Artists Exhibit Modern Works

TEL AVIV — Young Israeli artists have much in common with their colleagues elsewhere in the world, as was obvious at a recent exhibition in a Tel Aviv museum. The exhibited works of 30 painters and sculptors indicated a definite tendency toward abstraction, antagonism to traditional forms and symbols and a search for new modes of expression.

The artists' wrath is most aroused by the "insensitive public" that fails to recognize or understand them.

"We wish to introduce a breath of fresh air into the country's artistic life," says Yehiel Shemi, a 43-year-old, member of Kibbutz Kabri in Galilee. He is said to be the only kibbutz (collective farm) member whose only occupation is sculpture.

Vienna-born Michael Argov, 44, who spent 10 years in Paris, believes that if there is anything specific in the art of a country like Israel it emerges naturally because the artist has lived there.

"Anything else would be artificial," he adds.

The museum in Tel Aviv has never shown such works before. A few weeks ago it housed "old masters" on loan from a French museum of Bordeaux. Today modern paintings on the wall and unusual pieces of sculpture on the floor produce puzzled stares from some viewers.

Yigael Tumarkin, an artist who abhors the conventional, contends that the public in Israel is not yet ripe for contemporary art.

KEY TO A FINE RETIREMENT IS TO PICK YOUR SUCCESSOR

This is to suggest that any man coming up to retirement—if he has a titled job—should do all in his power to pick his successor.

This one step can determine whether a man will be a hero or a bum to his company after he's done, and can set the stage for either pleasure or bitterness in his relations with his former co-workers.

Findlay W. Smith had become a vice president in his company by the time he retired. This was not so good as it sounds because there were vice presidents all over the place. But it was a good job. And Mr. Smith, by maneuvering 18 months in advance, was able to choose the man who would replace him.

The man knew this. Which is essential.

"The first advantage I got from this," according to Mr. Smith, "was that I walked out my office as a fine, honorable man in the eyes of my successor. Not as a ghost he would have to kill off."

"This is very important. When any man takes over your job he is naturally inclined to show he will be better than you were. But if he likes you and if he feels any moral obligation to you he will strive in a positive manner—actually to be very good. He won't start tearing you down."

"And tearing down, by any convenient means, is what most successors to retired men do. . . ."

The second advantage Mr. Smith got was that his successor started calling him about once a week for advice and counsel, which, Mr. Smith contends, "is about the most beautiful music a retired man ever hears on a telephone."

Mr. Smith's chosen successor sent him five specific invitations to come back to the office just to say hello to his old friends. This was in the first three months after he retired. Then he made arrangements for a desk and typewriter (with company letterheads) to be placed in a cubbyhole office at the company, exclusively for Mr. Smith. He could visit it as he chose, write letters, act important, tell his friends about it, and have mail addressed to him there.

"If you think that's not vitamins for a retired fellow, you just haven't been there," says Mr. Smith. "And it wasn't a big deal. Almost any responsible man in a company can set up something like this for a titled retired employee—if he really wants to."

Mr. Smith got a fine post-retirement story in the company's employee magazine, after his successor suggested it to the editor. He was put on the mailing list, free, of three trade magazines he had formerly read at the company. He was sent five bottles out of a case of Scotch that had been coming to his office as an annual gratuity for the last 10 years. He was issued a pass entitling him to enter the company any time he chose.

"Most important of everything, however, was attitude," Mr. Smith thinks. "When you retire and a new boss comes in, the employees have got to look to security . . . and be nice to the new guy. Very nice until they find out what's what."

"But if the new guy says right off that you were about the finest fellow who ever came down the pike—and that all he can hope to do is to be as good as you were—then a beautiful situation opens up. Old friends at the company drop by to visit of a Saturday afternoon, for instance. And when they write the company history they'll put your name in it. . . ."

BEN-GURION PORTRAIT — David Ben-Gurion was visiting Mayor Wagner in New York City. The photographers made some quick shots of the Mayor and Ben-Gurion and were cleared out of the room. But Senator Jacob Javits suggested to Ben-Gurion he pose for a Warman portrait. The Israeli leader sat down and said "What do you want me to do?"

New York Primary Draws Attention To Community Of Arabic Jews

NEW YORK — The primary campaign in the 19th Congressional District of New York has drawn attention to a minority within a minority — the tiny community of American Jews whose origins lie in Arabic countries.

For weeks, the large Jewish population in the district has heard rumors that William F. Haddad, the Reform Democratic candidate is an Arab and therefore could not possibly be a Jew.

During the 19th century, several thousand Jews, including Mr. Haddad's father, came to the United States from Lebanon, Syria and Egypt. Their descendants often call themselves Syrian Jews.

Most of those in New York live on Delancey and Essex Streets in lower Manhattan and in the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn. Many of them belong to the Magen David Community Center at 34 Avenue P in Bensonhurst. Many are merchants.

Five years ago, the World Jewish Congress reported that small Jewish minorities still existed in most Middle Eastern countries, despite the intense hostility between the Arab states and Israel.

Israel Embassy Denies Bribery Allegations

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for the Israeli Embassy denied allegations in recently published State Department documents that Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Israel's first President, tried to bribe King Ibn Saud to win permanent control of Palestine in 1943.

The spokesman noted that Dr. Weizmann had brought up the charges of bribery and denied them in his autobiography, "Trial and Error," published in 1950 by East and West Library of London.

In the book, Dr. Weizmann refers to an encounter with Lieut. Col. Harold B. Hoskins, President Roosevelt's personal representative in the Middle East in the early nineteen forties.

"He said he had visited Ibn Saud, who had spoken of me in the angriest and most contemptuous manner, asserting I had tried to bribe him with 20 million pounds (sterling) to sell out Palestine to the Jews," Dr. Weizmann wrote.

"I was quite staggered by his interpretation put on a proposal which I had never made, but a form of which had in fact been made to me by Ibn Saud's representative — St. John Philby."

The charges of the bribe were included in a collection of documents relating to United States policy in the Middle East in 1943 and kept secret until their publication by the State Department yesterday. The charges by King Saud were mentioned in a memorandum by Colonel Hoskins.

The organization said that there were 15,000 Jews in Egypt, 5,000 in Syria, 10,000 in Lebanon, 80,000 in Iran, 4,500 in Iraq, and 50,000 in Turkey.

Birthplaces Listed

The term "Arab" is applied to the descendants of the ancient Bedouin tribes who lived on the Arabian Peninsula. Like the Jews, they are part of the Semitic subrace. Most are Moslems, but several other religions also claim Arab adherence.

One of Mr. Haddad's campaign brochures says that his father, the late Charles Haddad, "was born in Cairo." And another states that he was "born into the small Jewish community of Cairo."

The files of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, however, indicate that the elder Mr. Haddad was born in Aleppo, Syria, on July 14, 1896. The same date and place of birth are listed on his death certificate.

Asked to explain the discrepancy, Mr. Haddad said that his paternal grandparents, who lived in Cairo, had been vacationing in Aleppo when his father was born. He had listed Cairo as the birthplace, Mr. Haddad said, "to avoid confusion."

However, Mr. Haddad succeeded in generating considerable confusion, in the view of one practiced observer of local politics.

"When the word was passed in the district that Haddad's father wasn't born in Cairo, the observer said, 'people who were suspicious of the name Haddad anyway jumped to the conclusion that Bill wasn't Jewish, no matter what he said.'"

The source of the Arab rumors has never been established. Mr. Haddad has charged that his opponent, Representative Leonard Fabstein, who is seeking re-election, was behind them. Mr. Fabstein has repeatedly denied this.

Operated Restaurant

At the time of his death on June 9, 1958, Charles Haddad was operating the Charlesville Egyptian Restaurant in Madeira Beach, Fla., which specialized in Arabic foods.

Mr. Haddad's obituary in The St. Petersburg Times did not list his religion. He was buried in Knesses Yisroale (Assembly of Israel), a Jewish cemetery in Tampa. The service was conducted by an Orthodox rabbi, Dr. Samuel Mellinger.

Rabbi Morris B. Chapman of the Congregation B'nai Israel in St. Petersburg, who worked with William Haddad in the St. Petersburg Council on the Human Relations 15 years ago, said he thought the Haddad family to be Jewish, although they were not members of his congregation.

William Haddad said recently that he had always described himself as "an Arab Jew." Several newspaper men who knew him when he was a reporter for The New York Post have said, however, that he usually described himself simply as an Arab.

Mr. Haddad, who was born in Charlotte, N.C., conceded that he never had a Bar Mitzvah — the ceremony usually held to celebrate the coming of age of Jewish boys — but said he had often attended Jewish services of worship.

He also said he had attempted unsuccessfully as a teenager to volunteer for service in the Haganah, the most conservative of the underground groups that fought for Israel's independence.

Let's look at the RECORD(S)

BY LINDA NORRIS

That zany bundle of talent, Allan Sherman, has moved his headquarters to the Warner Bros. label and his new album for WB, Allan in Wonderland, is truly Sherman at his best . . . Probably the most hilarious of the parodies is The Drop-Outs March, inspired by the rising tide of high school drop-outs . . . It's just possible that Allan, through his satire, may reach these kids as no other approach can do and if so, the song not only provides good fun but a definite purpose.

He also does Skin (to the tune of Heart), Green Stamps, (to the tune of Green Eyes) and Holiday for Strings becomes Holiday for States as he rambles off all 50 states in rhythm and no noticeable loss of breath . . . Then there's Little Butterball, Good Advice, I Can't Dance, Night and Day and You Need An Analyst . . . They're all enjoyable and good party bait.

Also on Warners, Barbara Carroll, her piano and an orchestra conducted by Glenn Osser, comes up with the hit tunes from Hello, Dolly and What Makes Sammy Run, two big musicals fresh from Broadway . . . The title song of Hello, Dolly is already riding the crest of success and Barbara's rendition is terrific . . . the Kirby Stone Four swing out with their new Warner Bros. album, Things Are Swingin' . . . Songs in their repertoire this time out are Jeepers Creepers, Fascinating Rhythm, You're Driving Me Crazy, There's No Business Like Show Business, Hello, Dolly! (that does get around!), Thank Heaven for Little Girls and the title song, among many other swingers.

Still on Warners, Barbara McNair has a winning combination in her I Enjoy Being a Girl . . . Besides the title song, the talented vocalist does If I Had a Hammer, Hi-Lili, Hi-Lo, Irma La Douce, The Best Is Yet to Come and others.

Mrs. Maurice N. Finegold

At a home ceremony in Newton, Mass., Miss Muriel Ann Savitz, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry A. Savitz of Brookline, Mass., became the bride of Maurice N. Finegold of Boston, Mass., on Thursday, April 30. Mr. Finegold is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Finegold of Providence.

Mrs. Theodore Teplow, was matron of honor for her sister, and Miss Hannah Welner, sister of the bridegroom, was her other attendant.

Dr. David Korn was best man and Theodore Teplow was usher.

The bride is a graduate of Barnard College and holds a Master's degree from the Boston University School of Social Work. Mr. Finegold is a graduate of Harvard College and has a Master's degree in Architecture from the Harvard School of Design.

The couple will reside in Marblehead, Mass.

THROUGH SYNAGOGUES

LONDON — Hundreds of Jewish worshippers thronged to the two synagogues in Moscow on both days of the recent Shevuoth holiday, according to reliable reports reaching from the Soviet capital.

SETTLE 100,000

NEW YORK — Some 100,000 Jewish displaced persons and refugees have been settled in New York City since July, 1949, when the New York Association for New Americans was organized as an immigrant aid agency, it was reported here at the organization's fifteenth annual meeting, where Martin Kleinbard was elected president.

Accuse Arab League Of Trying To Wreck Pope Paul's Efforts

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y. — The Arab League was accused last week of plotting to wreck Pope Paul's efforts to improve relations between Christians and Jews. The charge was made by Arnold Forster, general counsel for the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish service organization. He spoke at the opening meeting of the 112th annual convention of District 1, B'nai B'rith, comprising New York and New England.

An authentic African print, in the oranges, yellows and browns of a Libertain landscape brings a new form to the American fashion scene. This hostess gown by Strega is bordered with native birds and flowers that look equally well in a modern setting thousands of miles from their home. Art imitates nature, and very often simply places it in the right setting. One trend is the use of furs and hides to lend new warmth and texture to rooms. This den owes its theme to Africa, and the scheme is built around a safari collection. Colors range from parchment to chocolate brown.

NEW YORK, N.Y. — A cynic once described fashion as "that which goes in one year and out the other." And for a long while this was partly true. Fashions in clothes changed from year to year because they were based on fads and fancies — not on principles of design. But that old definition goes out the window when designers use traditional art forms as inspiration. And today's designers are doing just that.

We're living in "one world" of culture and activity. Nowhere is it more evident than in the field of fashion and home furnishings. Hollywood set and costume designers, department store coordinators and consultants, couturiers and interior designers have all found that history is their most reliable assistant. They can be seen scurrying up and down the Nile, sailing among the Isles of Greece and burrowing deeper into the basements of dusty museums to unearth patterns, shapes, designs and forms. These traditional art forms will make news again for their artless, timeless look.

Professional designers in fashion and home furnishings have made the "one world" even smaller than have politicians and statesmen. No source of inspiration is too far away to swoop down upon, and it won't be long before fashions for the American woman, and colors for her boudoir will be the brilliant icy blue of the Arctic Circle with polar bear rugs and mittens, not to mention the boots, boots, boots. Each country has its own individuality and thanks to our light-footed designers, homes and homemakers across the country are dressed in a new, true, international fashion.

France has contributed elegance and formality to the American way of life, and U.S. Rubber has translated it into practical Naugahyde. This tri-color print is screened onto washable vinyl upholstery that is gracefully repeated on shades for windows and doors. At home in this setting is a gown that would make Marie Antoinette envious. Jane Derby's hostess dress has the piquancy and charm of an 18th century court, with none of the formal stuffiness.

appeals to the current American desire for privacy. And the classic flow and line of draped evening wear wins applause every year in Paris and on Seventh Avenue. France and Spain make their contributions to the "One World of Design," too. Spanish chests, with filigreed wrought iron ornaments, are moving off the furniture floor into homes, while women's and misses' dress departments are showing the feminine look of lace, ruffles, and gardenias.

Egypt, for example, is the cradle of civilization, and due to a very modern movie queen, the cradle is back in style. The striking colors of the original Lotus Land are popular in fabrics for dresses and draperies alike. Clover pink, palm green and sharp blue are news. The same stripes that Cairo residents still wear in their flowing robes appear in shifts and gazebos and awnings for dining room and patio. Of course, modern designers use modern developments. The ancient Egyptians undoubtedly would shake their fezzes at drip-dry fabrics and vinyl upholstery. U.S. Rubber's Naugahyde, for example, is impervious to sun, temperature or rain, not to mention the flooding waters of the Nile, brought by the Rain god.

Persia has become a focus of attention as combinations of vivid purple, orange and sharp green are due for an appearance, center stage, on the fashion scene. And drapery fabrics, with the domes and arches of mosques and minarets are coming off the drawing boards and onto the windows. Traditional art forms are translated into the easy comfort of 20th-century living. They've adapted to suit our fast pace and our pre-occupation with leisure. Women, for example, can zipper into their saris or shifts and needn't trudge to the river to wash them. A few whirls in an electric washer, and then drip drip.

Other countries bordering the Mediterranean provide more inspiration for the globe-trotting designer. Greece, for example, excited John Keats to write his famous ode, and the same source is prompting today's pace-setters to wax lyrical. Black and terra cotta colors appear in our homes, while the famous key design echoes on furniture, shades, and is printed on vinyl for walls. The Greek style of architecture with an atrium or garden in the center of the home

Equally astonished are the natives who come out of the bush to find strange creatures taking notes and snapping pictures of their flora and fauna, hearth and home. As countries emerge, designers help bring them into one world.

The Romans imitated the Greeks and spread their fame throughout the world. And now the whole world admires the Ancient Greeks for the purity of their sculpture and architecture. Cecil Chapman has chiseled the same look into a refined dress in black and white, which flows with graceful simplicity.

Say Defendants Played Major Role In Killing

FRANKFURT, Germany — Two Hungarian Jews, testifying at the trial of two of Adolf Eichmann's closest aides in Hungary, contradicted the defendants' contention that they had played only minor roles in the extermination of 437-000 Jews.

Baron Philipp von Freudiger, former president of Budapest's community of Orthodox Jews, said that both the accused, Herman Krumei and Otto Hunsche, presided with a third SS (elite guard) officer over the first Nazi-ordered meeting of Jewish community leaders in 1944.

Baron von Freudiger and Dr. Laszlo Petoe, the other witness, corroborated previous testimony that Krumei, then a lieutenant, was the acting head of the Nazi apparatus that carried out the herding together for death of Hungary's Jewish population. Eichmann played a "much less conspicuous role," they said.

Both men described Krumei as a "polite murderer," who preferred subtle terror and intimidation to the wild ravings and unveiled brutality of most of his colleagues.

Hebrew University Problem Is Secondary School Education

NEW YORK — The president of the Hebrew University in Israel said last week that the major problem of his nation, apart from security, was the development of secondary school education to integrate the heavy influx of immigrant youngsters from various parts of the world.

Eliahu Elath said the university was "bending every effort" to produce an increasingly large number of able teachers "without whom Israel cannot solve the critical problem of expanding secondary school education for the children of its citizens."

Mr. Elath spoke at the dinner session of the first national leadership conference of the American Friends of the Hebrew University in the Sheraton-East Hotel, Hebrew University, with a student body of 9,200, is the largest institution of higher learning in the Middle East.

Mr. Elath told more than 250 leaders of American Jewish communities that only through education made available for all of Israel's youth "can a united homogeneous society be created out of a people made up of immigrants from every part of the world and almost every level of culture."

He said that only through such education can his university in the future be able to maintain the present high standards of its student body. Mr. Elath said that the university, whose school of education supplies 90 per cent of

Softball League

Insurance Underwriters swept a doubleheader from Richard's Clothes by scores of 6-5 and 14-8. In the first game Calise had 2 home runs for the winners as they scored single runs in both the 6th and 7th innings to win the game. Kenner and Calise had two hits each for the winners. Silver had 2 hits for the losers. The highlight of the game was a leaping catch by the Underwriters Hoffer on over the fence bound ball off the bat of Awerman of Richards. In the second game 3 runs in the 6th and 4 runs in the 7th proved to be the winning margin as the Underwriters won the game 14-8. They were paced by Calise, who hit his third homer of the day, Goldenberg, Krasner, Kreger, Hoffer, Elman, and Wagner with 2 hits each. Kenner had 3 hits for the winners. Richards was led by Golden, Silver, Felt, and Chernack with 2 hits each. Silver hit a home run for the losers.

Hub Wholesale and Laren Insurance split their doubleheader, Hub taking the first 11-8 and Laren the second 4-0. In the first game Hub won the game with a 6 run 4th inning. Dressler led the winners with 3 hits and Rabinowitz, Land, Cohen, and Zawatsky had 2 hits each, including a home run by Land. Winn had 3 hits, Freeman, Haas, Silverman, Levine, and Mandell 2 hits each for Laren. Haas and Woolf had home runs for Laren. In the second game the one run scored in the 1st inning proved to be the winning run as Laren shut out the Hub 4-0. Laren was led by Hochman, Greenberg, and Mandell all secondary school teachers in Israel, "is determined to meet this challenging problem."

Vows to Meet Challenge
Mr. Elath, former Israeli ambassador to Great Britain, said the university had approximately 300 students from this country and Canada. He reported that the university's six faculties, embracing virtually all of the arts and sciences, are training specialists in vital fields.

Speaking at the same session, Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of the live virus anti-polio vaccine, said that Western and Communist "have" nations must join forces in developing "an entirely new philosophy" of international aid to poverty-stricken countries.

The scientist said that these nations "must come to realize that they have a common enemy in the poverty, hunger and despair of more than half of the world's population."

cleaning or your furniture for repairs and have the articles delivered to your new home.

(2) Make an inventory of what is left, then ask two or three known moving companies for estimates. Double-check the reputation of each — if possible by querying friends who have recently used the company's services.

(3) In getting estimates, find out exactly the services included (packing, insurance, storage at destination, etc.) and precisely what will be the terms of settlement. Since rates are regulated on long-distance hauls, estimates should differ only slightly. Thus, beware of the low bid, for it may be "bait" to get your job and may be way understated. Read all the fine print and study any contract before you sign. Be sure you show the mover everything that must be moved, including stuff in attics, basements, etc.

(4) In setting payment terms, be prepared to pay cash (and perhaps 50 per cent more than you had counted on) at the destination

RAID SYNAGOGUE

ELIZABETH, N.J. — Vandals raided the unused synagogue of Congregation Mishkan Israel here, scattered religious articles about the pews and floor, and ripped prayer books in the sanctuary.

Residents of Elizabeth complained to police after the vandalism was discovered, and the police department assured them that it will attempt to trace the culprits and bring them to justice.

of your household goods before they are unloaded. You might request a deferred payment — a sort of seven-day charge account — in order to retain some bargaining power if you want a bill adjustment later.

(5) Before shipping, check the loader's notes to make sure he doesn't list a new item as "marred and scarred." Otherwise, you'll have no case if damage occurs in transit. Count all boxes and barrels.

(6) At the destination, be present when the truck arrives. Your goods may not be unloaded until you have paid for shipment and you might be charged steeply for waiting time until you get there.

(7) Wait two weeks before filing any claim — or until you've examined all your goods. In estimating damage or loss, state the original value of the item and also note any expenses you may have incurred as a result of a mover's failure to meet a delivery date.

Bridge

by Revoke

The Polish bridge team has developed a very complicated system of its own. They believe they have found the answer to all the Italian and other artificial systems, including the "Little Major."

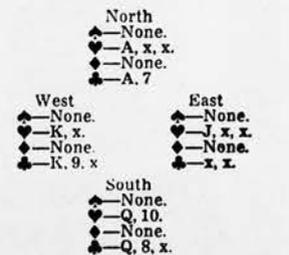

Here is a hand nicely played in 4S by South.

West led a small trump. Declarer played the 9 from dummy which was covered by East and won by South. He then entered dummy with the 10 of trumps and finessed the queen of diamonds. (It is important to play the queen and not the jack so that West is encouraged to take the trick; otherwise South may have to waste a precious entry in dummy to finesse again.)

West in fact took this trick and returned a diamond.

Considering this passive defense, South had good reason to assume that West held most of the missing key cards. He therefore cashed all his trumps, and West had to find three discards; he parted with one diamond and the jack and 10 of clubs, hoping, perhaps to get partner in with the queen or 8 of clubs. Declarer then played the ace of diamonds and West discarded a small heart. This was the picture after eight tricks:

South then played the queen of clubs, West covered, and dummy's ace took the trick. The 7 of clubs was played next from dummy and taken by West's 9, so that declarer came to a club trick to make his contract.

West can do very little to avoid being end-played in clubs. Declarer had given himself every chance after correctly inferring early on that West was holding most of the missing honors.

Repertory Theater To Present Two One - Act Plays

The Repertory Theater in the Square is presenting two unusual one-act dramas as its fourth presentation of the 1964 season, at the Trinity Square Playhouse in Providence.

Edward Albee's "The American Dream" and his "The Death of Bessie Smith" will be featured on the twin bill which will run at the Playhouse on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings for three weeks, ending Saturday, June 20.

Director will be Adrian Hall, whose first Repertory Theater presentation, Tennessee Williams' "Orpheus Descending", drew rave notices from audiences and the press.

Appearing in "Bessie Smith" will be Roz Goldberg, Joseph Fowlkes, Rick Williamson and Mary Wrubel of Providence; Victor L. Allen, of Cranston; Calvin Tilton, of Greenville, and Vernon J. Lisbon, of Newport.

The cast of "American Dream" will include Mildred Bailey, of Barrington, and Judith Schroeder, Editha Thomas, Tom Tezzullo and Milton Stanzler of Providence.

Tickets may be obtained at the Trinity Square Playhouse box office, Roth's Ticket Agency, Avery Piano Company, and Ladd's Music Store.

HONOR SHAI

GUATEMALA — Mariano Herrarte, Guatemalan Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Mrs. Herrarte, were hosts last week at a reception in honor of Joshua Shal, who was to leave Guatemala after four years of service as Israeli Ambassador. Invited guests at the National Palace included Cabinet members, jurists, members of the diplomatic corps and heads of local communities. The Minister praised the envoy's contributions to the strengthening of the friendly relations between Guatemala and Israel.

Jewish Leaders Reject Idea That Extinction Threatens American-Jewish Life

NEW YORK — Two American Jewish leaders last week rejected forecasts that American Jewish life was threatened with extinction because of intermarriage. This view was expressed by Label A. Katz, president of B'nai B'rith, and by Irving Kane, chairman of the board of trustees of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Mr. Kane, speaking at a B'nai B'rith administrative meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria, said that the increase in mixed marriages was a "growing problem" that needed further exploration. But he took issue with the "advertised fears of those who suggest that the Jewish community could become an ultimate suicide because of it."

He pointed to the enrollment of 150,000 Jewish youths in the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations at 250 colleges and universities that offer various programs of Jewish education and religion. He also cited the increased enrollment in synagogues, Jewish schools, and the growing popularity of Jewish adult education.

Mr. Kane, who spoke at the House of Living Judaism, 838 Fifth Avenue, rejected the "forecasts of gloom and doom," and deplored the talk of Jews being assimilated and the rise of intermarriage.

Mr. Kane called on the 657 Reform congregations affiliated with the union "to interpret this as a challenge rather than a death-knell."

The union's board adopted a budget of $2,777,986 for 1964-1965 to intensify its religious, cultural and social action programs, including a series of conferences, aimed at strengthening Jewish life, that will be conducted at Union camps throughout the country.

For a long time it was estimated that intermarriage among American Jews was about 7 per cent — considered the lowest among the three major faiths.

However, a recent study of the Jewish community of Washington showed that 1.4 per cent of Jewish immigrants married outside their faith. This percentage jumped to 10.2 among the first generation born in this country and to 18 per cent for the second generation.

Children Often Non-Jews

The study reported that more than 70 per cent of the offspring of interfaith marriages were being reared as non-Jews. These trends, coupled with a Jewish birth rate, which is below the national average, has led to fears that the Jewish community would suffer losses through assimilation. The American Jewish population numbers about 5.5 million.

BERNARD CHERRICK To Address GJC Annual Meeting

Bernard Cherrick, executive director of the board of governors of the Hebrew University, will be the guest speaker at the 19th Annual Dinner Meeting of the General Jewish Committee to be held Tuesday at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, Mr. Cherrick was educated in England.

Mr. Cherrick served as rabbi of the New Synagogue in London until the outbreak of World War II when he entered the British Army as a chaplain. After his discharge he became director of the Jewish National Fund and the United Palestine Appeal of Great Britain. In 1947 he settled in Israel and became associated with Hebrew University as its world director of organization and information.

A highlight of the meeting will be the election and installation of a new slate of GJC officers for 1964-65 and 32 new members to the board of directors for a term ending in 1967.

Merrill L. Hassenfeld, who has been active for several years in all phases of GJC work, will succeed Joseph W. Riss as president.

Depict States Rights Party As 'Home-Grown Version Of Nazis'

MADISON, Wis. — The National States Rights party based in Birmingham, Ala., is depicted as promoting "a home-grown version of Nazi racism" in the June issue of Progressive magazine.

The national monthly journal, published here, said it was presenting what it believed to be the first full-length, documented report on the party to appear in a magazine.

The article, "Hucksters of Hate—Nazi Style," said that the party claimed to be the third largest in the country and that it had units in 38 states, many of them in large cities, including Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Washington and Jacksonville, Fla.

The article, written by Edward Harris and Joseph Wilson, Alabamians who are freelance writers, said that in addition to the party's national newspaper, The Thunderbolt, which is published in Birmingham, the party had newspapers in New York, Florida, California, Ohio, Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri.

Coalition Formed in '58

The article said the party emerged from a coalition of the States Rights party and the United White party in 1958.

The party, the article said, has also absorbed the Conservative Party of America, the Constitutional Party of Iowa and other small groups.

However, the article said that the states' rights group that bolted the Democratic party in 1948 was not involved in the creation of the new party.

The States' Rights party was described as advocating "red-neck anti-Semitism, anti-Negroism and a strong undercurrent clan-type anti-Catholicism."

The party has succeeded so far in placing candidates for President and Vice President on the ballot in Arkansas and Kentucky.

It's Presidential candidate is John Kasper of Nashville, organizer of the White Citizens Councils, who has served three prison sentences for racist activity. The Vice-Presidential nominee is Jesse B. Stoner, former Imperial Wizard of Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Nazi-Like Attire Worn
 The party uses an attire reminiscent of German Storm Troopers, the article said. Its symbol is a lightning bolt similar, the article asserted, to that of the Hitler Jugend (the Nazi youth movement).

The party's platform, the article noted, calls for complete separation of all non-whites and certain other racial minorities. Its newspaper — The Thunderbolt — calls "Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona "a kosher conservative" and attacks the John Birch Society, the Ku Klux Klan and the American Nazi party, the article said.

The article also said that in 1960 the party, after nominating Gov. Orvil E. Faubus of Arkansas for the Presidency and Adm. John G. Crommelin, retired, for the Vice Presidency, managed to get the ticket on the ballot in Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Delaware, Tennessee and Florida. It said Mr. Faubus never campaigned for the ticket nor repudiated it.

Justices Are Condemned

The Thunderbolt has said that members of the United States Supreme Court were guilty of treason and should be executed, the article said. It also said that the party newspapers reprinted in June 1963 the May, 1934, issue of Julius Streicher's anti-Semitic Nazi publication, Der Sturmer. Streicher was one of the 11 Nazis hanged by the Nuremberg tribunal.

The party hopes to become a mass movement but its immediate danger "lies in its proven ability to infiltrate other groups and use to its advantage the fears of a community in racial crisis," the article stated.

"Crackpots, maybe, but not harmless crackpots as long as they can escalate hate into violence," the article said.

Experience Of Jews Can Provide Lessons To Negroes, Says Malcolm X

NEW YORK — The experience of the Jews in achieving an important place in American society within a relatively short time can, according to Malcolm X, provide valuable lessons to the 20 million American Negroes who are struggling for equal status.

The black nationalist leader expressed this view at a news conference recently, after his return from a pilgrimage to Mecca and a tour of many newly independent African nations.

Before journeying to Mecca, Malcolm withdrew from Elijah Muhammad's Black Muslim organization to form a new movement open to Negroes of all religions.

It is widely believed by members of the Jewish community in New York that Malcolm is not only an anti-Semite but is to a large extent responsible for the reputed anti-Semitism that is said to flourish in Harlem.

At his news conference, which was held in the Theresa Hotel in Harlem, Malcolm said:

"The American Jews have raised their own status in this country through their philosophical, cultural, and psychological migration to Israel."

Knowledge of Self

"In the same way, the American Negroes can raise their own status by becoming deeply involved philosophically, culturally and psychologically with the new African nations."

"The Jews have strengthened their own group consciousness and their own individual consciousness as Jews through their strong emotional attachment to the state of Israel. This close identification with Israel has intensified the individual Jew's personal identification with the great Jewish historical tradition, and he knows who he is as a man."

"This knowledge of one's self has enabled the Jew to become a highly effective man in this society and explains the psychological foundations of his tremendous success."

"This is an important lesson for the American Negroes who have no sense of cultural or historical identity because they don't know who they are. Their historic connections with Africa and African culture were destroyed by the slave owners."

"The result is that the American Negroes, ignorant of their African past, and therefore lacking in any justifiable pride in this past, are in a sense zombies because they don't know who they are."

The American Jews, Malcolm said, are heirs to one of the great traditions in history.

"They are conscious of this tradition, proud of it, and in a sense can never feel inferior to any other people," he said. "This is not true of the American Negroes, who don't know their past and are therefore made to feel inferior."

If Life Is Dull . . . Do Something About It!

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "Since I have entered high school last year I have been bored. I am not interested in cheerleading, which is the only activity that will keep students busy. The subject that I am most interested in is acting, but our dramatic club is a flop, because the teacher-in-charge doesn't make the club mean something. I have sent and received catalogs from various dramatic schools, but what should I do now?"

OUR REPLY: The individual who sits around and waits for something to happen can spend a lifetime being bored. No matter what activity one indulges in, one must be prepared to contribute if something is to be received in return.

Cheerleading can be great fun, this writer is told by several not-quite-teenage girls who have their own "informal" cheerleading club and who meet regularly in someone's back yard or basement to practice, to dream up new cheers and pep slogans.

Active participation is what leads to enjoyment in any undertaking. The teacher alone cannot "make or break" a dramatic club. The club will be a success if the members pitch in with enthusiasm, if individuals make suggestions and recommendations relating to club projects and activities and most any teacher welcomes and appreciates constructive ideas.

Don't lament the fact that life is dull. See what you can do to liven things up a bit.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUB-URBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

Abraham Schlonsky, Israeli Poet, Declares His Country Has Changed

NEW YORK — Abraham Shlonsky, one of Israel's leading poets, declares that a change has come over his country in recent years so that "you can walk and stand and even rest, and there is more emotional time to see things."

Mr. Shlonsky has been here since May 1 and plans to remain until June 11. He suggested the name of "Shalom" (Peace) for the new flagship of Israel's merchant fleet and received a round trip abroad in reward.

While here, he has given readings of his poems at Columbia University and at private gatherings.

Mr. Shlonsky's main intellectual passion is the evolving Hebrew language. He is a member of the Hebrew Academy of Language and is given credit by his countrymen here for great influence in developing the modern tongue. Speaking of poems and language last week in his room at the Westover Hotel, Mr. Shlonsky cast light on changes in Israeli life and psychology. Max M. Tamir, an authority on city planning here, acted as interpreter.

Mr. Shlonsky said of his own most recent book of poetry, published two years ago, that its form and content were different from his earlier work. He added: "Before it was poetry in a turmoil. Now there is a willingness to see with basic serenity, to view the world with a wisdom that is a sad wisdom."

Influenced by History
Mr. Shlonsky said the change in his work reflected Israel's history, from the time of settling and fighting to the recent period of stabilization. "A poet doesn't write just to say things, unless they are taken from the environment," he added.

He showed a book he had written for children that reflected another change in Israeli life. It was called "Miki Mahu," which although it sounds like "Mickey Mouse," means "Who is Miki?" Mr. Shlonsky explained the play on words, and his brown eyes gleamed. "It's a boy, Miki. Very wild.

He engages in nonsense and speaks nonsense. A fresh boy of words and deeds. I wrote this in their language, not as a teacher, but the idea is to teach them not to be embarrassed by being rascals. A poet is a rascal. I want to put over the idea that every child is a poet, every poet is a child."

He continued: "In the Diaspora, the Jew had no childhood. Our poet Chaim Nachman Bialik wrote 'They say there is youth in the world, where is my youth?' I mean in this book to supply the ingredient of gaiety to our youth."

Ancient Hebrew, Mr. Shlonsky said, was poetic and also a sacred language. "It is difficult to use such a language for secular poetry," he went on.

Visual Language Changed
"When the Jews went back to Palestine, Hebrew began to change from a visual language to a vocal one, from an eye language to a lip language. Bread was an abstract word in the Bible. Bread became a real thing you take to your child instead of a holy word."

He said words had to be re-made for use in living and in poetry: "Bamah, a holy word in the Bible meaning altar, was adopted to describe a theatrical stage. Then came bamal, a stagehand; bimui, staging, habimah — you know, the theater company — the stage. We made verbs from old roots and gave new, distinct meanings to words that used to be synonyms."

Mr. Shlonsky said that today, with the more flexible language, he and other Israeli poets were writing about the whole world, "but writing from a specific address, from our own stage, with our own glasses." He added, "I am affected by anything joyful or sad in the whole world."

He is pleased to be looking around New York but has one lament: "It's cruel, our time. You rob a man of his first surprise. Civilization gives us everything canned and frozen. I saw all of New York in the movies. It was secondhand, but I saw it; so there is no surprise."

TO INTRODUCE CHANGES
NEW YORK — Disclosure that far-reaching changes will be introduced in Israel's school system, beginning with next term, to speed integration and halt dropouts among the children of Middle Eastern and North African families, who now number 55% of the population, was made here at the meeting of the national executive committee of the National Council of Jewish Women.

TO RHODE ISLANDERS HE HAD A SPECIAL MEANING

He was our frequent visitor... our neighbor... our friend... in short, he was one of us. Ever since his tragic death all of us have asked how we, personally, can honor his memory. Now we have this opportunity by contributing to the John F. Kennedy Library to be built in Boston on a site he personally selected eight weeks before his death. The vision of the Library was best set forth by Jacqueline Kennedy with these words "... I hope that in the years to come many of you and your children will be able to visit the Kennedy Library. It will be, we hope, not only a memorial to President Kennedy but a living center of study of the times in which he lived, which will inspire the ideals of democracy and freedom in young people all over the world." The public has been invited to contribute toward the cost of building the Kennedy Library which will help to foster in young people an understanding of the ideals and traditions of democracy. All Contributions Will Be Directly Acknowledged By Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

YOU CAN PAY NO GREATER HONOR TO THE MEMORY OF JOHN F. KENNEDY THAN TO DONATE TO THIS FUND.

FDR Wanted Three Religion Trusteeship For Palestine

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt envisaged in 1943 a trusteeship for Palestine with three trustees — Jewish, Christian and Moslem — the State Department disclosed recently.

He suggested this approach to the Palestine problem after failing to arrange a conference between the president of the World Zionist Organization, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia to work out a solution.

Mr. Roosevelt's efforts to help solve the Palestine problem were disclosed in hitherto classified documents relating to United States policy in the Middle East in 1943, published by the State Department and made public recently.

The publication came at a time President Johnson was meeting separately with Arab and Israeli leaders in an effort to ease the Arab-Israeli controversy over Israel's diversion of Jordan River waters.

Dr. Weizmann, who became Israel's first President, and King Ibn Saud played the leading roles in the Palestine controversy in 1943. They were good friends of President Roosevelt. In 1943 the President met with Dr. Weizmann and other Jewish leaders in Washington and exchanged letters with King Saud.

He failed, however, to bring about a meeting of the Middle East leaders. One of the reasons for the failure was that King Ibn Saud contended Dr. Weizmann had tried to bribe him, allegedly with Mr. Roosevelt's backing.

This was shown in a memorandum from Lieut. Col. Harold B. Hoskins, who visited King Ibn Saud in the summer of 1943 under orders from Mr. Roosevelt to find out whether the king was prepared to meet with Dr. Weizmann or any other Jewish leaders.

The King's answers were "clear and categorical refusals," Colonel Hoskins reported.

The answers were based on religious, patriotic and political principles, he said, but also were attributable to personal grudges against Dr. Weizmann.

Colonel Hoskins reported: "His Majesty went on to explain, he said for the first time to anyone, the reason for his personal hatred of Dr. Weizmann. He said that during the first year of the present world war, Dr. Weizmann had impugned his (the King's) character and motives by an attempted bribe of 20 million pounds sterling.

"Furthermore, the promise of payment, the King was advised, would be guaranteed by President Roosevelt. His Majesty said he had been so incensed at the offer and equally at the inclusion of the President in such a shameful matter that he had never mentioned it again.

"He now explained it in detail and gave me the name of the intermediary, St. John Philby, so that I could understand more clearly his reasons for having nothing whatsoever to do with Dr. Weizmann or any of his associates.

"The conclusion, it seems quite clear from my visit to Riyadh, is that His Majesty's silence in regard to Dr. Weizmann's proposal put to him by Philby has been completely misinterpreted by certain British officials as implying a possible willingness on the part of the King to consider the proposal.

"Actually, I am convinced that there never was any possibility of acceptance and there is none today. The King may not feel he can prevent by force the establishment of either Palestine as a Jewish state or even a Jewish state in Palestine. He is, however, firmly opposed to both solutions and I see no possibility of this being of any assistance to the Zionists in their efforts to come to terms with the Arabs in Palestine.

"The President expressed understanding of the King's refusal to see Dr. Weizmann in view of the attempted bribe that had been made. The President also expressed surprise and irritation that his own name as guarantor of payment had been in any way brought into this matter, since there was of course no basis in fact for doing so.

"The only suggestion that the President had ever made that even bordered on this subject was, he said, in a talk with Dr. Wise (Dr. Stephen Wise, American Zionist leader) several years ago in which he had suggested that if the Jews wished to get more land in Palestine they might well think of turning arable land outside of Palestine and assisting Arabs financially to move from Palestine to such areas."

To Enlarge Smallest Synagogue In World

HONESTDALE, Pa. — Beth Israel Temple — once described as the smallest synagogue in the world — is about to be enlarged.

The house of worship, measuring 26 by 40 feet, will keep its structural lines, however. In order not to disturb its appearance a 60-by-21 foot addition will be connected to the temple by a passageway rather than being attached to the building.

The $25,000 addition to the 107-year-old temple will include an all-purpose room, a kitchen and rest rooms.

Beth Israel congregation will mark its 115th anniversary in September. It was organized in 1849 by 10 men, and the congregation is now made up of about 30 families living over a wide area. Too small to have its own rabbi, the congregation uses lay readers to conduct services, with visiting rabbis presiding at special services from time to time.

A subscription to the Herald is a good gift idea.
