TWO JEWISH WOMEN AUTHORS were awarded stipends by the Netherlands for Education, Art and Culture. The recipients, Mrs. Helma Wolf-Catz of Amsterdam and Mrs. Josephia Mendel of Paris, both writers of well-known novels and essays.

THE BRISTOL, ENGLAND, FOOTBALL CLUB rejected a request by Sir Oswald Mosley's fascist Union Movement to hold a rally on the club's grounds. A Mosley spokesman in Bristol called the rejection a "contemptible ban on free speech." Bristol city officials previously had refused the movement the use of a hall in the City Center.

THE OFFICE OF SEPHARDIC Chief Rabbi Yitzhak Nissim reported in Jerusalem that it had received a New Year's message from Chief Rabbi Yehuda Leib Levin of Moscow. The message, which was typewritten in Hebrew, contained a prayer for peace. In reply, Rabbi Nissim extended greetings to the Jewish community in the Soviet Union.

MOSCOW'S MAIN SYNAGOGUE was jammed by 700 Russian Jews for Rosh Hashanah, Reuters News Service reported. Services were conducted by Chief Rabbi Rehuda Leib Levin. Two hundred persons stood outside the synagogue. Those who had seats inside were old or middleaged, but a few young people stood at the back or in the galleries. Moscow is believed to have about 200,000 Jews.

MOSHE SHARRETT, CHAIRMAN of the Jewish Agency Executive, reported last week that only 10 percent of all immigrants arriving since the start of the year have refused housing offered by the Agency, creating difficulties at debarkation. He added that half of the protesting newcomers finally agreed to accept the proffered housing. He was commenting on the recent incident in Haifa, where a number of immigrants were forcibly removed.

NORMAN INGNEY, SPECIAL correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor in Argentina, in a dispatch published in Boston last week confirmed earlier reports that Hussein Triki, agent for the Arab League in Argentina until last month, had left the country. The dispatch stated, however, that there is general speculation over whether Triki might return in the near future. In the last few months, Triki had been travelling around Argentina, delivering lectures which included sharp attacks on Judaism and trying to peddle the idea that the Jews were planning a "Zionist Argentina." His expulsion from the country had been requested on a number of occasions by the Argentine Jewish community.

TWO LEADERS OF THE CHILEAN Nazi party started serving 20-day jail sentences last week after their conviction of charges of having incited attacks against Jewish stores and homes in Santiago in January 1958 were upheld by the Chilean Court of Appeals. Franz Pfeiffer, former commander of the party, and his top aide, Luis Lazaro Maluenda, were sentenced to the jail terms shortly after their conviction, more than six years ago. Their appeals have been pending until now.

ISRAEL OPENED ITS PAVILION at the International Trade Fair last week in Istanbul, Turkey. Among those attending the opening ceremonies was the Turkish Minister of Trade and Housing. Some 70 Israeli firms are represented with exhibits featuring industrial goods.

Comedienne Phyllis Diller To Appear At GJC Women's 'Gala Plus Party'

Phyllis Diller, TV and night club comedienne will be the featured entertainer at the "Gala Plus Party" of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee which will be held on Oct. 22 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel Ballroom. It was announced today in an exclusive announcement made to the Herald by Mrs. Merrill L. Hassenfeld, president.

This event is open at no charge to all women contributors who have increased their gifts to the 1964 Campaign drive. Each woman who has given more than last year will receive a special card entitling her to admission. Mrs. Hassenfeld emphasized the fact that only those whose pledge cards show an additional gift will be admitted.

Mrs. John M. Sapinsley and Mrs. Norman M. Fain are co-chairmen of the affair. They are planning a program which will start with a Petite Luncheonette at 12:30 P.M. which will be followed by the program and Miss Diller's performance.

Phyllis Diller, at the time a 37 year old housewife with five children, went on the stage nine years ago. She has appeared on many television shows and has performed at many top night clubs throughout the country. Her 90-minute spectacular, which she wrote, created and booked, was a success. She has recorded three albums and has written a book, "Phyllis Diller Tells All About Fang," her husband, Sherwood Anderson Diller.

Touro Plans Dedication Of Building

By Celia Zuckerberg
 The building is almost unrecognizable -- inside and out. To anyone familiar with the neighborhood, it is practically unbelievable that the weathered, old beaten-up building could ever look like this.

Touro Fraternal Association, one of the largest men's organizations in the state, has found itself a permanent home for the first time in its 46-year old existence.

The old building at the corner of Congress and Niagara Streets started its life as the Niagara Street School, became the home of the Jewish War Veterans, and on Sunday at 2 P.M. will be dedicated as the home of the Touro Fraternal Association.

At a cost of approximately $90,000, its has been completely fitted, on the outside, with aluminum siding; the interior has been transformed with paneling, new paint, new inlaid linoleum, modern kitchen equipment and new furniture -- some of their original furniture has been kept and completely refinished and reupholstered.

The downstairs hall (undoubtedly the auditorium of the school originally) has been fitted out as a main meeting hall, and as the scene for future social affairs. It can hold approximately 200 members for a meeting -- a great many more for a dance or other affair.

An extensive AM-FM sound system connects all rooms in the building from a control room next to the business office on the second floor. Through this system music can be piped into the social hall, announcements can be made any place in the building, etc.

BUSINESS IS GOOD THIS SUMMER

We've moved to a new location, paid off last winter's fuel oil bill and some of the bank loans. The finance company returned the truck. Paid up my taxes to 1959. The light and telephone service hasn't been interrupted all summer. The help only had to take old fenders for their pay twice, and I now own my teeth. That is good business.

Arab League Intensifies Activities Against 450,000 Argentinian Jews

NEW YORK -- Leaders of the American Jewish Committee who have completed a tour of four South American countries said here last week that the Arab League was intensifying its activities against the 450,000 Jews in Argentina.

Morris B. Abram, president of the agency and head of the delegation, said that the Argentine Government, the press and the Roman Catholic Church had manifested their goodwill but that their "techniques" of opposing anti-Jewish activities were "ineffective."

Mr. Abram and the other leaders, who have just returned from a three-week 15,000-mile mission to four South American countries, spoke at a news conference at the agency's Institute of Human Relations here.

The agency, established in 1906, is devoted to safeguarding the civil and religious rights of Jews the world over.

Violent Actions Increase
Mr. Abram held that although the Argentine penal code outlawed the neo-fascist, anti-Semitic Tacuara and Guardia Restauradora Nacionalista last year, "there has been a proliferation of such groups and increased violent activities, with ineffectual enforcement of the law."

In this connection, Mr. Abram said there had been 150 incidents of violence against Jews in Argentina involving deaths, bombings and other outrages "which have been reported in the last three months without any arrests."

These incidents, he added, have resulted in 10 Jewish deaths, "yet the newspapers have underplayed these stories."

Last August, Mr. Abram reported, Deputy Juan Scallier introduced a resolution in the Chamber of Deputies providing that Argentina would not permit questions relating to differences in race and religion to arise.

"The resolution has not been passed," Mr. Abram said.

The Arab League, he added, "has given rise to extremist groups," and is making its presence felt in Brazil. The League, he said, is "sowing discord, disunity and distrust."

Mr. Abram termed of "prime importance" the passage of a statement defining Catholic-Jewish relations and stating that the Jews bore no guilt in the crucifixion of Jesus.

It's Like The Name Jew

Once You Get Over Trying To Escape It, You Begin To Enjoy It

NEW YORK-- They tried changing the name, the mission and the image. But in Brooklyn's Crown Heights, "The Maccabees" stuck.

Some scoffed when the bearded Hasidic Jews adopted the ancient Hebrew warrior patrolling the neighborhood in radio cars to protect the residents.

"But while they were laughing, we were riding," said Rabbi Samuel Schrage, founder of the group. "Some people wanted to change us into a social club, but we rode."

Founder Sought Charge
It was Schrage who tried to change the name to "the Crown Heights Safety Patrols."

"It just didn't work," Schrage admitted. "The people like 'the Maccabees.' It's like the name Jew. Once you get over trying to escape it, you begin to enjoy it."

"The Maccabees" have grown to 400 and include 50 non-Jews. While "The Maccabees" were riding, they were also talking.

Political Action Hinted
"It's not a political group -- yet," said Schrage. "But I am very worried about Barry Goldwater and anti-Semitism. This man is supported by anti-Semites." He observed:

"This group is a nucleus. There are 400 people here deeply involved in community activity and we must keep that up."

The Bedford Stuyvesant rioting created some conflict in the predominantly Jewish neighborhood.

The adoption of such a statement, he added, would be highly effective in thwarting anti-Semitism in South America and would lead to the deletion of unkind reference to Jews in Catholic textbooks.

He contended that "if economic conditions continue to de-

"There were people -- some -- who blamed Negroes," he said. "Fools. It was hoodlums. I began thinking about anti-Semitism. Discrimination against Negroes means that all of us are in danger."

Plans National Group
Schrage -- who believes the American Jewish Congress may be important in obscure affairs -- is establishing the base for a national organization on a "grass-roots level to protect the interests of Jews and other minority groups." He has groups at work in San Francisco, Detroit and other cities.

"I personally will work to stop Goldwater," he said. "Maybe 'The Maccabees' will be political, cultural and something else. But for now, we ride."

teriorate as they have been in Argentina, Brazil and Chile, reactionary elements from within and outside the South American continent would find it relatively easy to use Jews as scapegoats."

By Jeffrey M. Berger

The nomination of Senator Goldwater by the Republicans, in and of itself, was enough to ensure a lively campaign. But the nomination, by acclamation, of Hubert Humphrey for the vice-presidential slot on the Democratic side, ensures it all the more. Humphrey is diametrically opposed to everything Goldwaterism espouses, and is perhaps more liberal than President Johnson.

Issues for the campaign will be tough coming for the Republicans. Their only issue of importance probably will be Civil Rights, for this is an emotional, rather than an unemotional issue. The place where Goldwater will get his votes will be the place where his appeal is to bigots, white supremacists, states-rights supporters, and other less sophisticated elements. His reckless, often irresponsible, usually tactless and misinformed charges against the administration, and the replies that will be made to them, will ensure a lively campaign, as if the race issue didn't ensure it already.

Goldwater should not be under or over-estimated; there is a white "backlash" which will get him votes, but there is a "backlash of moderation" which will inevitably cost him votes. With highly emotional handling of the race issue he does have an outside chance to land the white house, and for this reason, and for the fact that he is a very rough campaigner, he'll certainly be no push-over. But with history, political and philosophical, on his side, Johnson has the edge.

At any rate, it'll be an interesting campaign...

A few comments from Senator Pastore's Democratic Convention keynote speech worth recalling:

Remember the nuclear test ban treaty... a "treaty sought by President Truman... sought by President Eisenhower... opposed by the Republican nominee... and brought to fruition by our beloved president, John F. Kennedy..."

About Khrushchev and his withdrawal of missiles from Cuba: "For the first time, we saw Nikita Khrushchev pick up his marbles and go home... When Nikita Khrushchev looked down the barrel of that Kennedy cannon, he knew differently..." He knew of the power of the US, denied by Goldwater...

The power of use of the atom is in the hands of the President... "and that's exactly where it SHOULD be... and that's where we Democrats intend to keep it... keep it there, safe with Lyndon B. Johnson!"

"When I hear anyone speak glibly and loosely about whose finger should be on that nuclear button... I become concerned... Weapons of this magnitude... should be used only as a last resort... and then strictly and solely on (order of) the President of the United States."

Perhaps even Senator Goldwater saw the truth of these comments. At least, they were offered for his inspection.

And, as opposed to Goldwater speeches, at least they were facts.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

Kennedy-Johnson: "The Free Enterprisers"
 The mass defection of business and financial leaders who have been life-long Republicans to the Democratic presidential nominee in 1964 is without precedent in modern politics. Why?
 At the heart of the phenomenon is not just the commonplace answer that these Americans fear what Senator Goldwater's policies might mean. At the heart of the phenomenon is the fact that these men and women accept Johnson as a true "conservative," a sincere defender of our country's version of "free enterprise," a man who understands the crucial roles business confidence and adequate profits play in a prosperous economy. They are far more pro-Johnson than anti-Goldwater -- a complex point demanding objective analysis.

Toward Kennedy's policies businessmen generally were suspicious, even hostile, for they distrusted Kennedy as a strong-willed, young intellectual adventurer. Toward the same policies under Johnson they are openly sympathetic, for they trust Johnson as a mature man of action "you can do business with."

A profoundly significant fact inherent in business support of Johnson is that the Democratic administration of Kennedy-Johnson has done more for business than any other in memory.

In his book "The Free Enterprisers: Kennedy, Johnson and the Business Establishment," published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, Hobart Rowen pulls together the positive moves made in Kennedy's abortive term. This partial list will may stun those who think Kennedy deserved his "anti-business" reputation. Specifically:

- (1) A new investment tax credit and liberalized depreciation guidelines -- both extremely valuable concessions to business which are giving multi-billion dollar relief each year to businessmen investing in plants and equipments.
- (2) A private corporation to operate the communications satellites -- a step Rowen calls "an extraordinary transfer to private hands of infinite wealth and power that might have been, properly, a public trust" and "evidence that the Kennedy administration was not trying to affect the basic division of economic power between government and the private sector."
- (3) A reduction in transportation taxes and a program to reduce regulations on transportation -- just two indications that the "essence of Kennedy's philosophy" was a free market economy.
- (4) The trade expansion act -- designed to help U.S. business expand exports to prospering European nations.
- (5) The biggest personal and corporation income tax cuts in history -- along with stated agreement that if this fiscal policy restimulated inflation, the Federal Reserve System would be free to use monetary policy to put the brakes on credit and raise interest rates.
- (6) A long series of orthodox financial measures to protect the U.S. dollar, curb the outflow of gold -- and reassure the central bankers of the free world that our financial policies were sound.

Since Johnson took over, he has added aggressive programs to control federal spending, a crucial factor in business approval; unprecedented efforts to bring businessmen to the White House to help "in actually determining the economic future of the country"; pledges for future tax cuts, particularly excise tax cuts.

Rowen, an editor of "Newsweek," is a nationally respected journalist who has been reporting business news from Washington for two decades. He began this book not to defend Kennedy's conservatism but rather to prod the late President into being bolder in fighting for his original goals of a new economic era.

But the man Rowen "wanted most to read it is no longer with us." Johnson has fully taken over, is inspiring widespread business confidence even while he strives for policies which will maintain this nation's remarkably prolonged prosperity, curb poverty and make a "Great Society."

Rowen did not write this book to praise pro-business policies of Kennedy-Johnson. Yet the record he submits gives businessmen-for-Johnson one of their most powerful election weapons.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glazer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. -- A funny thing happened at the Riviera Hotel, Las Vegas, when producer Sammy Lewis inadvertently scheduled the opening of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" for Yom Kippur eve, when Jewish stay-a-ways would definitely have detracted from the glamor of the premiere. Not only that, but Dick Shawn of Buffalo, who plays the lead, and Jack Gifford of New York, who plays Hysterium, are two nice Jewish boys with an avowed aversion to working on the High Holidays.

Realizing the all-round folly of the scheduled Yom Kippur bow, Sammy postponed the official opening two days to Sept. 17, and everything came off like peaches and cream cheese.

SHELLEY BERMAN didn't wait for the American Jewish Congress to invite him to head the list of stars performing at the Sept. 19 "Human Rights Award" dinner, honoring Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel and Rep. James C. Corman at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. Shelley invited himself, and that's a switch for entertainers who customarily groan under the weight of requests to play benefit performances.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY A Small Offering

By Beryl Segal

There is prosperity now in Israel.

People work, and the work is fundamental. There is no duplication of stores and offices and agencies. Factories are built and products, necessary products, are made in them. Pipes, big and little pipes, are piled up in front of the factories. Cars, and trucks, and vehicles of all kinds bear the legend, "Made in Israel." Emissaries from Israel are constantly on the go to Europe, to America, to Africa, to the Far East, in search for exchange. Israel exports what she has in abundance, and imports what she lacks.

Israel works. We have neither seen nor heard of any one who is willingly unemployed. Even the men and the women in the armed services do useful work.

Now, the question is, why do we still have to give every year, on every occasion, to the funds for Israel?

If it is true that there is prosperity, and no unemployment in Israel, why do we still maintain agencies for drives and committees for collecting of funds for Israel?

The answer to these questions is simple.

New immigrants. New arrivals. Newly rescued Jews.

The old settlers of Israel -- and a ten year period in Israel makes one an old settler -- do not need our help. They do not get a penny from all the collections anywhere in the world. On the other hand, the settlers in Israel contribute as much, and even more, than the Jews in America. Let no one imagine that the Jews in Israel sit around and wait for the moneys to come in from America, as some people, unfortunately, think. The settlers in Israel do not get, nor do they want, a single penny from the United Jewish Appeal.

The money that comes in from the United Jewish Appeal drives is all for the new immigrants.

A new immigrant to Israel is different from all other immigrants in the world.

In the first place, he is wanted. He is expected. Just as much as the immigrant wants to come to Israel, so does Israel want him. Israel wants him because the land is committed to gather all who are in need of a home and who are in want of a haven. Otherwise, Israel makes no sense.

But these immigrants come to Israel literally naked. No matter whether they come from the African countries or from Europe.

And not only do they come without any means, but the very transportation from the shores of the lands where they are not wanted to the shores of the Israel where they are welcomed, are provided by Israel. The immigrant is taken over by Israel the minute he leaves his house.

Such an arrangement is unique in the history of mankind. I doubt whether this was ever undertaken by any other land.

The newcomer arrives by boat at the port of Haifa, and at the very minute of his arrival, these things are given to him:

A home. Not a shack as before, but an apartment in a modern housing project. We have seen the shacks of the Maaboros and the new houses. What a difference!

Clothing. Not old clothes which we had to send in the years gone by, but new ones. New from head to foot.

Furniture. Everything that a home needs, even refrigerators and baths with cold and hot water. Conveniences which the settlers deny themselves, are given to the newcomer.

Jobs. The jobs wait for the newcomer. He does not have to go seeking for employment.

Education. Those that need it, are given instruction in the language so that they may be able to converse. Upanim, schools for beginners, special beginners, have been developed to a degree which reminds one of the days when immigrants were coming in droves to this country, and when classes for foreigners were held everywhere.

Food. The newcomer finds his kitchen shelves and his refrigerator stocked with products for an indefinite period of time. In a Kibbutz, the newcomers can come and eat as soon as the dust is off their shoes.

Retraining. Most of the newcomers either have no trade, or they have to be retrained to be able to fill a special job. The country abounds in trade schools.

All this costs money. For all of this we have to give. Our contributions help to finance this aid to newcomers. Think of what this will cost for one family. Multiply this by thousands, and you will see what a tremendous cost it is to the government.

So, when the call goes forth for us to contribute, when the United Jewish Appeal asks us to assume a share of the burden, remember that what you give will go for the settling of newcomers. Do not, please, for one moment assume that you give to aid the Jews of Israel. They will be insulted if you think that about them. I can assure you that the newcomer of today will not need our help in six months from this day. There will be others that will come and will need help. It is an endless process.

We have formed a bond with Israel. That bond involves an obligation and a privilege. The obligation is to bring in newcomers, to increase the production of Israel and to develop all the natural resources of the land. And the privilege is to give so that we may rightly say:

"We ourselves cannot go to Israel. But we have a share in the upbuilding of the land. We brought a small offering, a guilt offering, for that purpose. Let it be accepted."

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

THE STATUES: The marble quarries near Carrara are owned by the Societe Henraux. The quarries are where Charlton Heston portrayed Michelangelo in "The Agony and the Ecstasy." The company's headquarters are at Querceta, north of Pisa. And there, in a corner of the yard, are a pair of marble 20-foot-tall figures of Evita and Juan Peron.

When Peron ruled Argentina he ordered these two statues. They were promptly carved and paid for. But before the statues could be delivered, Peron was ousted from power in Buenos Aires and no one claimed the monuments. After considerable and anxious correspondence, the Argentine Ambassador ordered their heads cut off. The Notary Public signed a certificate stating this had been done, and then they both drove back to Rome.

The headless statues and the heads are still there, paid for, but unwanted.

THE ROLE: Kim Stanley left the Actors Studio Theater's production of "The Three Sisters" on Wednesday. Geraldine Page was approached about switching her co-starring role and taking over Miss Stanley's part by Friday. "Can you do it," she was asked, "on only two days rehearsals?" . . . Miss Page assured them: "I've been rehearsing this part for 20 years."

THE VOTER: In January '61, President-elect John F. Kennedy attended the annual meeting of Harvard's Board of Overseers. Paul C. Cabot, the investment-banker, said to him: "Senator, I didn't vote for you, guess I'll be sorry" . . . "Don't be sorry," said JFK, "just vote for me the next time."

Paul C. Cabot's name is on the just-released list of businessmen and financiers for LBJ.

THE STARS: Red Buttons sat in the Little Club, puzzled by the changes in show business. "Take Trini Lopez," he began. "His recordings are in the Top Ten all over the world. He started four years ago. The Beatles, world famous although they started about 20 minutes ago. They make millions. In my fourth year in burlesque I wept for joy when I was raised to $100 a week."

The comics depended on bookings at private parties--especially Bar Mitzvah, celebrating a boy's reaching his 13th birthday. "In those days," said Buttons, "we used to search the birth-certificate records at City Hall, 13 years back, to know what kind of season we'd have."

MEMOS: Charles Englehard, the millionaire host at the Democratic convention, is stuck with $10,000 worth of unused fireworks. There wasn't time to set them off for LBJ, because Danny Thomas took too long in his tribute. . . Arthur Godfrey may star in the film version of "Never Too Late" . . . It was JFK's inquiry to Dore Schary, in May '63 -- about the sudden rise of the Radical Right -- that inspired the new book by

EMANU-EL REGISTRATION
Milton M. Dubinsky, chairman of the School Board of Temple Emanu-El, announces that registration in the Sunday department of the Religious School will take place on Sunday from 10 A.M. to 12 noon.

Pupils who attended classes last year should register on Sunday, and new pupils should also register. Children who are five years old, or who will be five by Dec. 31 of this year, may enter kindergarten. Children, ages six and seven, may register for the first and second grades in the Sunday department.

Dr. Aaron Klein, director of the school, will answer any questions which parents may have relating to their children in the school.

BETH EL BROTHERHOOD
The Temple Beth El Brotherhood will present Sporn & Dukoff in a program of light entertainment featuring musical selections of many ages and cultures, and featuring Jewish folk songs, at their opening meeting on Wednesday at 8 P.M.

SISTERHOOD TO MEET
The Sisterhood of Temple Beth Shalom will hold its first meeting of the season on Wednesday at 8 P.M. in the temple social hall.

Richard's Hair Fashions of Pawtucket will present a hair stylist show. Models will be Mesdames Bernard Gladstone, Burton Kelman, Alexander Gladstone, Irwin Soforenko, Martin Wexler, Morton Palge, Jack Denin and Joseph Fishbein.

Mrs. Burton Kelman will present a selection of songs. Refreshments will be served following the meeting. All members and friends are invited to attend.

TO ENTER BRANDEIS
Several men and women from Rhode Island will begin classes at Brandeis University on Wednesday.

Among them will be Elaine Eisenstadt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Eisenstadt of Cranston; Marjorie Louise Spitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Spitz of Cranston; Kenneth Edwin Smith, son of Prof. and Mrs. Warren Smith of Kingston; Bruce Robert Zetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Zetter of Pawtucket; Penny Ann Pressman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pressman of Providence; Myra Shirley Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Young of Providence, and Deborah Berntson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Berntson of Warwick.

JOINS STAFF
Mrs. Norman Goldenberg of Franklin, Mass., has joined the teaching staff of the Congregation B'nai Israel, Woonsocket, school. She will teach Sunday School I and II classes from 10 to 11:30 A.M. on Sunday, starting this Sunday.

BARRINGTON REGISTRATION
Registration for the new Barrington Jewish Center Religious School will be held on Saturday from 9 A.M. to 10 A.M. at the Barrington Congregational Church Meeting House, according to Mrs. Marvin Greenberg, co-chairman for the Center's education committee.

The Religious School which will be supervised by Rabbi Elihu Burkow, will hold classes every Saturday morning starting this Saturday at the Meeting House from 10 A.M. to 12:15 P.M. Instruction will be given in Jewish history, modern Hebrew, and the arts (music and dance, arts and crafts).

Classes in history and Hebrew will be taught by Rabbi Burkow, and the cultural courses will be conducted by Mrs. Herbert Malin, assisted by Mrs. George Graboy and Mrs. Leonard Rumpier.

The approximately 40 children attending will range in age from 6 to 12, and will be placed in three grades according to age.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Greenberg at 245-6462 or Mrs. Jacob Portnoy at 245-8062.

Supersol Scandal Shocks Jewry

TORONTO -- The Jewish community in Canada is shocked by the Supersol affair. The problem of Supersol (Canadian controlled supermarket organization in Israel) arose chiefly because of lack of supervision on the part of those to whom the shareholders entrusted their funds wrote M. J. Nurenberger, editor of the Canadian Jewish News.

Many on the North American continent (among them, leading rabbis of all religious expression) are considering gravely the manner in which some nationally recognized fund-raising institutions and campaigns are being conducted Nurenberger wrote. A leading member of this community candidly admitted that he has no say in anything pertaining to the affairs of an important and respectable institution. It is the fundraiser, the professional, he claimed, who sets the policy; the committees, the presidents, they are merely rubber stamps.

Health Facilities Need Much Money

JERUSALEM - The development of adequate hospital facilities over the next 10 years will require an outlay of IL300m., the Deputy Minister of Health, Yitzhak Raphael said.

Speaking at the World Assembly of the Israel Medical Association, Raphael pointed out that although there is no state health services law, the Government bears the brunt of the responsibility for keeping the population healthy.

time stringing for newspapers and wire services, covering sports events. Through his various high school and college activities, he managed to save enough money so that with a "publisher's advance" (from the distributor), an "understanding printer" (paid up at the moment) and a tight budget (he himself), he was able to put out Flip under the parasol (which he hopes to become a broad umbrella) title of Kahn Communications Corporation.

He aspires to branch out in a number of directions so that he can make "a comfortable amount of money doing what I like."

To those who suggest that Mr. Kahn is racing his motor he replies in hurt tones, "My crime is that I'm glib." Mr. Kahn tells of the teacher who once wrote on a composition of his the criticism "you don't dig into the meat."

Glib by Nature

"I can't help being glib any more than I can help being brown-eyed," Mr. Kahn said. "I like to talk, but glibness is not an asset anymore, it makes people suspicious."

One of his friends characterized him as a "mild-mannered, aggressive fellow," to which he replied, "I'm not simple; there

New York Law Student Starts Teen-Age Magazine

NEW YORK—Those who think young people an apathetic lot will be happy to hear about Stephen Kahn. At 24, Mr. Kahn is aggressive, energetic and positively bursting with initiative, according to a N. Y. Times article by Joan Cook.

He is the editor and publisher of a new, bimonthly teen-age magazine, Flip, financed largely with money he earned himself. A graduate of New York University, he concurrently attends New York Law School and expects to receive his Bachelor of Laws degree in January.

He is also responsible for two independent magazines (about the Beatles), two paperback books and countless free-lance articles for teen-age publications. Not the least of his accomplishments is his recent engagement to a comely Barnard student whom he plans to marry in December.

Perhaps one reason for his direction when so many others are Youthful entrepreneur Stephen Kahn is the editor and publisher of a new teen-age magazine and, at the same time, manages to attend law school here.

"I was an inquiring cub reporter for the West Side News at the age of 11," Mr. Kahn said recently. "From there I went into writing teen-age sport stories."

Singer's 'Boswell'

In 1957, while attending the Bronx High School of Science, Mr. Kahn ran into Dick Clark, the singer, who had just started with the "American Bandstand" show. Convinced that Mr. Clark had something, Mr. Kahn began plugging him in teen-age magazines to their mutual advantage.

"I must have written between 75 and 100 articles on Dick Clark," Mr. Kahn said. "You might say I'm his Boswell."

Mr. Kahn filled in his free are all sorts of sides to the kid."

Mr. Kahn describes his first issue of Flip, which is sold on newsstands for 35 cents a copy, as "bland." He says frankly that he wanted to get a couple of issues out before he took a stand on any issue that might alienate potential readers or advertisers, but that later he plans to introduce a note of controversy.

The son of German refugees, he describes himself as a "planned import," because he was born the year that his family came to New York. Both his teen-age fiancée and his teen-age sister are contributing staff members for his new magazine and Mr. Kahn states firmly, "I don't have anyone working for the magazine that I wouldn't have over for dinner."

Israel Appeals For World Repudiation of Arab Plan

TEL AVIV — Israel appealed Sunday for world repudiation of the resolutions passed in Alexandria last week at the Arab leaders' conference.

An official statement in Jerusalem assailed the announcement in Alexandria of a plan for joint action "to liberate Palestine from Zionist imperialism."

The announcement, the statement said, amounted to a declaration by 13 countries, members of the United Nations, of their intent to destroy the state of Israel.

"The world," the Israeli statement said, "would do well not to revert to the attitude of complacency, silence and lack of concern which it once evinced toward threats of aggression and war, accompanied by political and military preparations aimed at transplanting the threats into action."

The statement was issued after the Cabinet held a preliminary discussion on the meeting of Arab kings and heads of state.

Complacency Fought Partly, its purpose appeared to be to dispel a feeling of complacency here arising from apparent disunity among Arab leaders and the failure of efforts by President Gamal Abdul Nasser of the United Arab Republic to post Egyptian troops in Nordan, Lebanon and Syria.

"The state of Israel is, of course, resolved to repel and thwart any aggression against her," the statement said.

"Nevertheless, peace-loving states in the world, the United Nations and enlightened public opinion are surely not entitled to reconcile themselves to public announcements of aggressive intent and to declarations which violate the purpose of the United Nations Charter and the accepted principles governing relations between states."

The statement also dealt with the Arab resolution for the implementation of military and technical plans to divert the tributaries of the Jordan River and prevent the waters from reaching Israel.

Warning Repeated The Israeli Government repeated a warning issued last January after another Arab conference, in Cairo, had resolved to cut off Israeli sources of water. The warning said:

"Israel will draw water from the Sea of Galilee within the quantities allotted to her in the unified plan. Israel will oppose unilateral and illegal measures by Arab countries and will act to preserve her vital rights."

The "unified plan" for division of the water was worked out by the late Eric Johnson, President Eisenhower's special envoy with Arab and Israeli technicians, but was later rejected by the Arab League.

Israel plans to divert Jordan River water by pipe and canal to irrigate its arid Negev region, which covers half the country. The river, which flows into the Sea of Galilee, forms part of the border between Israel and Jordan. The first stage of the project involves drawing water from the Sea of Galilee.

BRIN RE-APPOINTED BOSTON—Dr. Alexander Brin, publisher of The Jewish Advocate, has been re-appointed by Gov. Endicott Peabody to a nine-year-term as a member of the Massachusetts Board of Education. Last year, the Massachusetts Teachers' Association honored Dr. Brin with its distinguished service award for outstanding work in the field of education.

ORGANIZATION NEWS

TO HOLD SYMPOSIUM
A Symposium on Intermarriage will be held at the first monthly meeting of the Hope Chapter, B'nai B'rith, on Wednesday at 8 P.M. at the East Side Center building.

Participating in the panel will be Rabbi Jerome Gurland of Temple Sinai of Cranston; Father John Walsh of Sts. Peter and Paul Cathedral of Providence, and Al Judd of the Unitarian Church in East Greenwich. A question and answer period will follow.

Mrs. Norbert Kiefer is chairman for the evening. She will be assisted by Mesdames Gerald Staub, program chairman; David Sloan and Stanley Fishbein, refreshments; Irving Glatt, publicity, and Milton Ettinger, ex-officio.

A refreshment hour will follow the meeting.

BOARD TO MEET
Dr. Aaron Soviv, new executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Education, will be introduced to the board of directors of the organization at its first meeting which will be held on Wednesday at 8 P.M. in the library of Temple Emanu-El.

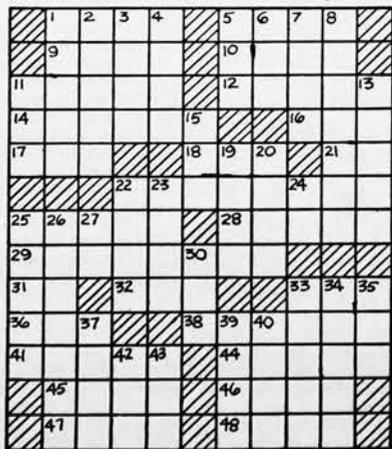

The report of the Grants Committee and the action of the board in awarding grants to the several schools will be considered at the meeting.

COUNCILETTE TEA
The Providence Chapter of Councilettes will hold a tea on Sunday at 2:15 P.M. in the Miriam Hospital auditorium. All students in the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades, who are interested in joining Councilettes, are invited to attend.

Kouffman - Wolkove
Miss Miriam Wolkove, daughter of Mrs. R. Wolkove of Montreal, Canada, recently became the bride of Marc Kouffman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Kouffman of Cranston. Dr. Louis C. Gerstein officiated at the ceremony which was held at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue in New York City.

Mrs. Cora Solomon was matron of honor, and Howard Kouffman, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Paul Isenman, Dr. Robert Greenberg, Sydney Wexler, Allen Skersky, Phillip Chavkin, and David Bogalsky. Bridal attendants also included Mrs. Fannie Kouffman and Mrs. Eva Landau, grandmothers of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of Sir George Williams College and McDonald's Teacher's College in Montreal. She is also a graduate of the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre in New York City. Mr. Kouffman was graduated from Williston Academy and Brandeis University.

Attend Wedding
Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Sugarman of Providence attended the wedding last Thursday of Mrs. Sugarman's sister, Miss Helene Avon, a New York model, to Jacques Coleman, Jr., New York socialite, yachtsman and Gillette razor heir.

Dr. Julius Mark officiated at the ceremony which was held at Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Mrs. Sugarman was matron of honor. Jacques Coleman, Sr., the bridegroom's father was best man.

A dinner reception was held at The Harmonie Club of New York, followed by an evening gathering later at The Little Club of New York and the El Morocco Club of New York.

Kartens Have Son
Mr. and Mrs. Morris Karten of 173 Chandler Avenue, Cranston, announce the birth of their fifth child and fourth son, Michael Allen. Mrs. Karten is the former Dorothy Kessler. Maternal grandmother is Mrs. Peggy Zakoff.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS
Girl Is Too Shy To See Boy Personally
By C. D. Smith

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I like a boy very much. My parents have never met him, and I do not want them to meet him. I am shy and afraid to see him in person. He telephones often and I find it easy to talk to him, yet I am still afraid to talk to him in person. He asked me to go to the movies with him and I turned him down. I am afraid to see him in person. What can I do to overcome this shyness?"

OUR REPLY: Shyness is quite natural for the teen who has never dated before. It is nothing to be ashamed of, yet something has to be done about it. I am sure that you have heard or read that even great athletes have moments of apprehension before a game or a contest begin. The same is true of many famous performers and orators. Nearly all of us are hesitant about new experiences, about doing new things, meeting new people.

You should begin by having a talk with your parents. Tell them about this boy, and about your shyness. If they allow you to date, they are entitled to meet the boy. Invite him over, when both your parents are home. You should feel more relaxed in the atmosphere of your own home, and you'll find that your shyness will soon disappear.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUB-URBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

OFFICERS WERE AWARE
MUNICH — An expert on Contemporary German history told a war crimes trial here that claims by former SS officers at such trials that they had never known anything about the nazi annihilation of Jews were "grotesque untruthfulness." The expert was Dr. Von Krannhals, of Luenberg, who testified at the trial of former SS Gen. Karl Wolff who is charged with the wartime slaughter of 300,000 Jews.

Israel Seeks Way To Use Uranium In Its Natural State

GENEVA — Israel is concentrating its nuclear energy research on combining natural uranium with heavy water in a search for means of utilizing uranium as it occurs in nature, Dr. Ernst D. Bergmann, chairman of the Israel Atomic Energy Commission, declared here last week.

Dr. Bergmann, who is chairman of the substantial Israeli delegation to the third International Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, under United Nations auspices, made the disclosure in a statement on Israel's activities in the field. Uranium, the key material in nuclear energy production, must undergo a complex and costly refining process for use in making such energy.

Dr. Bergmann also reported that six of the 11 papers by Israeli scientists, accepted by the scientific secretariat of the United Nations conference, will be presented orally. Five of the Israeli papers are included in the official archives without reading. Dr. Bergmann said the conference was of special interest to Israel because it was "about to enter the field of large atomic reactors, especially for desalting sea water."

Among the subjects treated in the Israeli papers are new methods for removal of nitric acids from waste products of reactors, the chemistry of elements higher than uranium which have become available through operation of reactors, and the theory of fast reactors fuelled with plutonium. Dr. Bergmann said that successful combination of natural uranium and heavy water would yield plutonium as a by-product.

Vatican Draft On Jewish Relations Weakens Early Position, Rabbi Charges

ROME — Chief Rabbi Elto Toaff declared in his Rosh Hashana sermon that he regretted that the new version of the Vatican draft on Catholic-Jewish relations seemed to show a retreat from the positions in the first declaration. Jewish groups, he charged, have submitted to the third Ecumenical Council session opening next Monday, contains an appeal to Jews to convert to Catholicism, a charge denied last week by a Vatican spokesman.

A festive crowd which filled the Rome synagogue to hear Rabbi Toaff included Catholic priests and representatives of the authorities, as in former years. After the services, a group calling themselves Israeli Catholics distributed outside the synagogue gates missionary booklets in Italian and Hebrew printed in Britain. The distribution irritated the worshipers and sparked heated arguments.

Judge Sergio Piperno, president of the Union of Jewish Communities of Italy, also touched upon the Jewish issue to be discussed by the Ecumenical Council. In his Rosh Hashana message, broadcast over the Italian radio networks, he said: "Italian Jews trust that the Ecumenical Council will declare as unfounded the centuries-old accusations (oficide) which have cost the Jewish people so much blood and tears."

Referring to the fact that Italy is now observing the 20th anniversary of resistance to Nazism and Fascism, Judge Piperno said that the resistance movement "imposes upon the survivors the duty to realize the complete equality of religious minorities, and to enact laws against genocide, so that Italy may not become a haven for the perpetrators of the most horrendous crime against humanity."

$1,750,000 Spent By Arabs And Others On Anti-Israel Propagandizing In U.S. Prominent American Jew Charges

New York — The head of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee charged last week that 6,000 Arab students on American campuses were "trying to influence the minds of professors and fellow students" against Israel.

Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein, chairman of the committee, which has headquarters in Washington, also charged that Arab and other propaganda agencies in this country have spent $1.75 million on anti-Israel propaganda "among all segments of the American people including on university campuses."

Dr. Bernstein, who was a former adviser on Jewish affairs to United States Army commanders in Europe, spoke at the annual installation meeting of B'nai Zion, American Zionist fraternal group, at the New York Hilton Hotel.

A citation was presented to him testifying to the planting of a grove of 1,000 trees in his name in Israel in recognition of his services "to Israel and to the welfare of the Jewish people." The presentation was made by Dr. Harris J. Levine, honorary president of the Jewish National Fund of America. The meeting also marked the installation of Edward Sharf, New York lawyer, as president of B'nai Zion.

HOLD PROTEST RALLY
JERUSALEM -- Chief Rabbi Unterman and members of the Chief Rabbinate Council hit back at their critics at a protest rally of hundreds of rabbis. Formally called to protest against the burning of Chief Rabbi Nissim's effigy at a Bene Israel rally, the meeting heard Rabbi Unterman proclaim the Rabbinate's defiance of any attempt by any secular authority to impose its will in matters of halacha.

Touro To Dedicate Building

a smaller social hall, a library in which there is a television set, a small kitchenette, and the meeting room of the 15-man board of directors.

In the basement is a larger kitchen, and a lounge and game room. An electric dumbwater runs from the kitchen to the main hall on the first floor.

The building, according to Morton L. Coken, president, and Arthur Poulten, is for the use of the Touro Fraternal membership only. It will be open Monday through Friday for their use, and at other times for special occasions. There will be a steward and maintenance man at the building at all times when it is open.

Asked why the organization picked this location, Mr. Coken replied that since the membership of Touro comes from all parts of the state, with a very large number from Providence, that city was the most centrally located spot for all members. And in Providence, it was impossible to find another place, he said, which would have filled their requirements for location, price and size.

They have about 15,000 square feet of land -- which includes a parking lot. Also, on the streets on which it is located, on-street parking is allowed. This means that parking, which was difficult at their downtown location, has been made simple.

Touro, which has 1100 members, was chartered by the State of Rhode Island in 1917, and organized in 1918. It maintained headquarters for many years on Mathewson Street in a building which was recently razed to make way for a parking lot.

For the past two years, the association has held its regular meetings, every second and fourth Wednesday, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. Board meetings every first and third Wednesday were held at offices on Weybosset Street.

With the opening of their own permanent home, the organization is hoping to enlarge its membership, and bring about a more active association. Basically, Touro is a social organization which offers members an insurance policy and a plot. It is actively interested in community affairs, and although it does not have one particular charity, it helps several.

Mr. Coken says that he believes that with this new building Touro will be entering a period of rebirth. The organization has an extremely diversified membership, displaying a cross-section of the entire Jewish community. They hope to add to this membership.

The dedication will take place on Sunday starting at 2 P.M., and will be followed by an open house until 5 P.M.

Participating in the dedication ceremonies will be Joseph Engle, chairman of the Touro board of directors; Morton L. Coken, president; and Leo Greenberg, chairman of the building committee, as well as other members of the organization.

Sidney P. Cohen, past president, will offer the opening prayer.

Cantor Samuel Berditch, the association chaplain, will bless the building, and Mr. Engle will put up the mezuzah.

A plaque to be affixed to the outer door of the main hall with the inscription, "This building is respectfully dedicated to the members of Touro -- past, present and future," with the names of Mr. Greenberg, Mr. Coken and Mr. Engle, will be unveiled by Harry Horovitz, past secretary of the association.

Present officers of the Touro Fraternal Association are Morton L. Coken, president; Howard L. Lipsey, vice president; Charles Coken, secretary; Irwin Stone, treasurer; Mr. Poulten, faithful guide; Burton Fishman, inside guard, and Cantor Berditch, chaplain.

View Of Radical Right In Pre-Election Year Becomes More Influential In Political Spectrum

In the pre-election year embraced in the present review, the radical right became more influential in the ultra-conservative band of the American political spectrum. This was the consequence largely of political organization work by members of the John Birch Society and other radical right wing bodies, which openly or covertly gained effective control of or established controlling influence over some political party organizations at various levels. The extent of such consolidation of radical right political power will become more evident as a result of the forthcoming elections.

During the past year, on a much wider scale and more intensively than heretofore, the Birchites and others packed meetings, dominated debates, disrupted orderly proceedings and forced votes on their terms. They have worked much mischief locally in opposing school bond issues, reform of municipal governments, and the like, and in supporting drastic treatment of what they deem objectionable literature, censorship of textbooks and libraries, etc. Evidence of radical right influence on national legislation may be seen in the incorporation in the civil rights bill of a provision excluding members of the Communist Party, those whose names appear on the Attorney General's list and persons lacking security clearance from the protection of the fair employment portion of the measure. The late, widely beloved President Kennedy had been one of the principal targets of the vituperation and contumely that the radical right characteristically employs in lieu of debate. He was assassinated in the city that was one of the centers of radical right wing agitation and one of the major sources of its financial support. The shock of his death and the grieving that ensued were accompanied by a profound reaction against the excesses of hate and vilification which many Americans perceived as having created the moral climate that could have been interpreted by a weak or tainted mind as sanctioning the horrible deed.

PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN DINNER - The group of co-chairmen and captains shown above with chairman, Bertram L. Bernhardt, seated in the center, have organized teams of workers in connection with the campaign opening dinner of the General Jewish Committee. The meeting took place at the home of Joseph W. Ress, honorary president. Invitations for the dinner went out earlier this week.

Arabs Proclaim Action Against Israel At Second Heads-Of-State Conference

CAIRO - The Arabs' second heads-of-state conference has ended with an out-pouring of proclamations about unified Arab action against Israel, but with scanty information on precisely what was being done. Although the conference had its achievements, it produced frictions over important matters such as military cooperation and the carrying out of the Arabs' water project on the Jordan River.

'Out Of Steam'
Indeed, one veteran foreign observer was prompted to remark that the Arab campaign to counter Israel's diversion of Jordan River waters earlier this year had "run out of steam."

The first five days of the conference produced so much wrangling over plans for military cooperation that President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic was provoked to remark that the delegates were "going around in circles."

On one hand, Syria's leader, Lieut. Gen. Amin el-Hafez, was sounding a call for offensive rather than defensive action against Israel. On the other hand, Lebanon was fending off proposals that she start her part of the Arab water project this month and be ready to accept other Arab forces on her soil to protect her waterworks against possible

Israeli reaction. The Lebanese, fearful that nothing could provoke Israel more than the presence of other Arab troops in Lebanon, insist that no such troops enter their country without advance permission from Parliament.

Lebanon Prevails
In the end, President Nasser had to bow to Lebanon's reservations. In addition, Lebanon, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, refused to go along with the Unified Arab command's recommendations that equipment of Arab armies be standardized along the Soviet lines.

On the question of Arab water projects, it is still not clear what will be done and precisely when, in spite of conference resolutions calling for immediate implementation of the program aimed at cutting off Israel's Jordan River water.

It appears, nonetheless, that the Arab leaders have hit on a way to take action to appease their own people without provoking Israel into war.

Attention is now focused on the project for the Mukheiba Dam in Jordan, which would have very little effect on the Israeli diversion program. It was Israel's plans to divert Jordan River water that revived war talk and prompted the first Arab heads-of-state meeting, held last January.

One of real accomplishments of this conference, in fact, was reaffirmation of the first conference's decision against going to war with Israel over the waters issue.

Potentially the most explosive action taken by last week's meeting was the decision to approve formation of a Palestine Army composed of Arab refugees. This awakened memories of Arab and Israeli commandos exchanging raids and sabotage before the Sinai conflict in 1956.

Nasser Appears Anxious
So far, President Nasser, among others, seems anxious to see the Palestine Army closely and out of the hands of any leaders who could touch off a war. But it remains to be seen how well this project can be controlled once it is begun and young Palestinians have begun volunteering in a campaign "to liberate their homeland."

The leaders also endorsed the new Palestine Liberation Organization as the legal representative of more than one million Palestine refugees.

But despite urging from General Hafez that they give this organization sovereignty and land, the heads of the Arab states refrained from pronouncing it a Palestine government-in-exile.

Perhaps most important from the Arab viewpoint, the leaders continued to develop mechanisms for cooperative action, such as the unified Arab command and a committee to follow up the conference's decisions, even though the leaders differed significantly on policy.

This second meeting demonstrated again that it is easier for Arab leaders to agree on opposition to Israel than on means to combat her, though they are steadily being forced toward action by their own rhetoric.

NAMED CHAIRMAN

Major General Leonard Holland, Adjutant General and Commander of the Rhode Island National Guard, has been named state chairman of the United Services Organization (USO) by Victor P. McDavitt, chairman of the USO Council of New England.

General Holland, a native of Rhode Island and a veteran of the war in the Pacific, has been prominent for many years in military, fraternal and civic activities throughout the state and particularly in his home city of Pawtucket.

BIBLE QUIZ

JERUSALEM -- Twenty national Bible champions speaking 11 languages will participate in the 1964 International World Bible Quiz in Jerusalem, on Sept. 24. Participants will include a Belgian army major, a New Zealand farmer, an Ethiopian girl student, a Canadian writer and actor, and a large number of clergymen. Questions in the world quiz will be restricted to the early and later Prophets.

ITEM: It's wise to have some property insurance although you can't afford all the coverage you need or wish to have. Some occurrences could cause major setbacks or wipe you out financially. Today you can buy many insurances in a package or separately. Before you buy, read policies carefully and know what protection each offers.

ITEM: Supermarket managers have found the best way to increase sales is to spot certain "power" items in different parts of the store. For example, 35 per cent of the shoppers buy paper products; 30 per cent buy cookies and crackers; 27 per cent, soap; 25 per cent, coffee. With a little maneuvering, these items are placed so the customer has to travel the entire store to buy the four of them—and many more items are picked up along the way.

ITEM: Most orchard men and landscapers prune trees by the latter part of March because the dormant season is the best for this work. Experts advise making clean cuts close to the main limb or trunk so they will not hold water.

His assassination produced widespread public revulsion against the radical right and some defections from radical right wing organizations. There is evidence that many of them lost some financial support, with a consequent waning of influence. But the effect appears to have been temporary.

In the case of the John Birch Society, the most publicized and apparently best organized of radical right wing organizations, the Kennedy assassination caused no more than a brief interruption in its campaign of hate, wild charges and irresponsible and unsupported claims.

Within a few months after the assassination, the Birch Society bulletin carried an article by a professor of classics in a mid-western university, rehearsing and embellishing some of the bizarre charges of complicity in a Communist plot to destroy American freedom that had been fulminated during the President's lifetime. The line was picked up, according to form, by other, lesser radical right publications and agitators. A move to have the professor-author of the piece dismissed from his faculty post was unsuccessful; adjudged to be performing his faculty duties adequately, he was — properly, in our judgment, though we abhor his ideas — protected in his fanatical political extremism by the principles of academic freedom.

The possibility, foreshadowed in our last Joint Program Plan, of a coalition of radical right and segregationist elements, took explicit form during the year. The John Birch Society, for example, promoted a massive letter-writing campaign in opposition to the federal civil rights bill; it and other radical right groups supported Governor Wallace's primary campaigns; and they have been the major channels for dissemination of the propaganda of the segregationist Coordinating Committee for Fundamental American Freedoms.

Most of the extreme right wing groups were united not only in opposition to the civil rights bill, but also in favor of amendment of the United States Constitution to overturn the Supreme Court's ruling on Bible reading and prayer — and in favor of reversal of Supreme Court judgments on other issues and the imposition of limitation on the Court's authority.

It can be anticipated that right wing extremists will find highly exploitable issues in the election campaign, in the tensions that lie ahead on the civil rights front, in the trying complexities of our nation's foreign relations, and in other areas.

We regard as cause for anxiety the evident commitment of the radical right to continuing and coordinated political activity on the national scene. This anxiety is only slightly assuaged by the fact that the year again passed without achievement of the organizational coalition of radical right elements that has been the aim of some extreme right leadership.

We perceive a growing threat to individual freedoms and to the American democratic process in the spreading scope of radical right influences. We regard this threat as enhanced by the apparently increasing conservative receptivity to radical right support — a receptivity epitomized by Senator Goldwater's acceptance of radical right endorsement for the Republican presidential nomination. Some conservatives share positions on various issues with the radical right, though they may mistrust its leadership and oppose many of its ultimate objectives. As a consequence of these and related developments, differentiation of right wing radicalism from legitimate conservatism has become increasingly difficult.

The criteria by which we have hitherto sought to distinguish radical extremism from legitimate conservatism have been largely criteria of methods and approaches. Thus, in our Joint Program Plan for 1962-63, we attributed to legitimate conservatism a reliance on "orderly public debate and political competition" for the furtherance of its aims; and to right-wing extremism a characteristic recourse to "character assassination, irresponsible charges, threats and intimidation," and efforts "to discredit and by-pass established processes of law enforcement, judicial review and political decision-making." Such criteria alone may not suffice in the present situation.

We are committed to the fostering, through democratic means of equality of rights and opportunities without regard to race, religion, ethnic origin or nativity; of freedom of religious thought and practice; of freedom of opinion, expression and association; and of amicable relationships among groups on a basis of mutual acceptance with respect for difference.

Council Cautions Organizations On Backing Political Candidates

LOS ANGELES -- The Community Relations Committee of the Jewish Federation-Council of Los Angeles, issued the following guidelines to Jewish organizations:

1. Endorsement of individual candidates by Jewish organizations should be avoided.

2. Presentations of awards and citations by Jewish organizations to candidates or avowed candidates should be avoided.

3. If a Jewish organization wishes to conduct a discussion by candidates in the campaign, equal opportunity should be given to all major candidates or their representatives.

4. Individuals solicited for endorsement of campaign advertising should ascertain in advance the text of the proposed copy.

Individuals who permit their names to be used by candidates or campaign organizations should insist that no mention should be made in election context of their past or present affiliation with Jewish organizations.

6. Jewish organizations and individuals should make no assertions that a candidate's record implying antagonism toward Jews or to issues in which Jews have an interest, unless such assertions have been substantiated by a responsible Jewish agency.

The Los Angeles B'nai B'rith criticized Jewish Telegraphic Agency's reporting of the Republican Convention at San Francisco. The Messenger editorial observed:

"Now that some of the JTA-manufactured hysteria has slithered down, a long look at the GOP platform indicates that there is much in it that can be construed as favorable to Israel -- particularly those sections on foreign aid which are aimed at nations which bolster and sustain anti-American regimes."

Sen. Goldwater was asked at San Mateo how he felt about Israel. "The United States was responsible for Israel's creation and must be responsible for the country's protection," Sen. Goldwater said.

The JTA version of the Republican plank on Israel maintained that it had "been cut from the platform by the right-wing extremists who had seized control of the party;" that "the plank that was adopted makes no mention of Israel;" that "it is vague," that "Israel has been scuttled, knifed and mortally wounded."

The Zionist Organization of America reaffirmed the ZOA's "strictly non-partisan" stand and its "politically uncommitted" position in the national election campaign.

Zionists as individuals exercise their rights as citizens and vote for candidates of their preference, but ZOA said it "neither supports or opposes either of the major parties."

Every president from Wilson to Johnson publicly voiced approval of the establishment of a Jewish national homeland said ZOA president Max Nussbaum. "Israel has always had friends on both sides of the American political life," said Rabbi Nussbaum. "The American Zionist movement has always been non-partisan."

Dr. Emanuel Neumann, the dean of American Zionism, stressed that "as a Zionist organization we are concerned specifically with nurturing American-Israeli friendship."

Negro Jews Take Step To Unite In New York

NEW YORK -- Principally through the efforts of three white Jews, one a rabbi, the scattered and disunited Negro-Jewish congregations have taken a major step towards unity in their struggle to become full fledged members of the American-Jewish community.

The new trend was evidenced when about 100 Negro Jews from 10 congregations met for the first time and decided to support a newly formed unity committee, "Hatzaad Harishon" (The First Step).

He said that, recently, such aid was "used to underwrite the cost of the war in Yemen."

The Bill, H.R. 12298, was due on the House floor for action this week.

Bolton, said that, in the last few days, Nasser pressured the U.S. in connection with the evacuation of two American-leased airbases in Libya.

He also raised a question of Nasser's supply of arms to Greek Cypriotes to disrupt American and United Nations peace efforts in Cyprus.

He revealed that the State Department now is in "active discussion" in Cairo on a new three-year agreement

NAZI'S SENTENCE CUT SYDNEY, Australia -- The Sydney Appeals Court reduced last week a 12-month sentence imposed on a member of the Australian Nazi party to six months. Joseph Facer, 21, who was sentenced on June 26 together with three other neo-Nazis after a police raid on the party's headquarters, appealed the sentence.

THE TRUTH ABOUT FACIAL CARE

There's more to effective facial care than most women realize! At last the entire story is revealed in "Your Two Faces" -- a highly informative, completely illustrated booklet.

Move Made To Sever Shipments To Egypt

WASHINGTON -- A move to sever virtually all future United States shipments to Egypt, through an amendment to the Food for Peace bill now before Congress, was announced last week by Rep. Oliver P. Bolton (R., O.) who cited the continued warlike policies and military build-up of the Nasser regime.

Bolton stated, "It is ludicrous that our aid has enabled Nasser to divert other resources to pay for a crash program to develop short and medium-range ground-to-ground missiles for future threats to Israel."

He said that he had studied the use of American aid by Nasser, and found it "inconceivable" that over a billion dollars' worth of surplus commodity aid since 1954 was given to Nasser by the U.S. Government -- permitting Nasser thereby "to divert his economy and agriculture to grow cotton for export to the communists, to pay for over $1,000,000,000 worth of the most modern and lethal weapons."

Military Subsidized Bolton found it "intolerable" that the "Food for Peace" program was being used "to finance Nasser's aggressive adventures." He gave details on how U.S. assistance under both Republican and Democratic Administrations helped subsidize Nasser's military machine.

ASKS CONDEMNATION
 WASHINGTON — Rep. Donald Rumsfeld, (R., Ill.) last week asked the House of Representatives to condemn "the increasingly serious persecution of Jews within the Soviet Union."

He is the author of a pending resolution which would call on Russia to live up to its guarantee of religious freedom.

He said that his constituents called his attention to anti-Jewish developments in Russia.

Larry, who aspires to be an actor, earns the tidy salary of $15 per week. His dad told him, "Don't sneer. There were weeks when I didn't make that much."

I DON'T know if the line belongs in the original libretto, but when "Damn Yankees" played at the aforementioned Valley Music Theater in the San Fernando Valley, Brian Avery asked beautiful and glamorous Juliet Prowse what she was before she sold her soul to the devil. "I was the ugliest woman in Providence, Rhode Island," said Juliet. (Feminine readers of this column in the (Providence) Rhode Island Jewish Herald please take note if you're

GEORGE WELTNER, president of Paramount Pictures had this to say of Joseph E. Appeal For Conversions Concerns AJ Committee

The American Jewish Committee expressed concern yesterday over reports that a statement on Catholic-Jewish relations linked with an appeal for the conversion of Jews would be considered by the Ecumenical Council.

Morris B. Abram, president of the committee, asserted that such an appeal must be rejected by Jews.

"Any declaration, no matter how well intended, whose effect would mean the dissolution of the Jewish people as such and the elimination of Judaism as a religion, will be received with resentment by Jews throughout the world," he said.

The American Jewish Committee is devoted to safeguarding the religious and civil rights of Jews the world over, has been active in seeking the adoption of a Vatican statement that the Jews were not responsible for the crucifixion of Jesus.

A Roman Catholic Authority on Vatican affairs who asked not to be identified, said there was every likelihood that the draft, distributed confidentially to Roman Catholic bishops, would be revised or drastically rewritten at the third council session. He said the present statement reflected influences of the conservative Curia, the central administrative arm of the Vatican.

Words of Document

The original document on which action was postponed at the last session contained words: "Although a large part of the chosen people is still far from Christ, yet it is wrong to call them an accursed people." Leaders of the Synagogue Council of America at the time called this an oblique reference to conversion of Jews.

This document also said: "Yet the death of Christ was not brought about by the entire people then alive and far less by the people of today."
