Israelis Apprehensive As Kissinger Arrives To Conduct Negotiations

JERUSALEM: "They'll wake up the whole neighborhood," a security man said disapprovingly when protesters in soundtrucks tried to make themselves heard by Secretary of State Kissinger before dawn last Friday.

"You must be joking," a colleague replied. "Who's sleeping in Israel these days? They're all too worried."

Apocryphal or not, the anecdote reflects the mood of Israelis as Mr. Kissinger conducted his negotiations for an interim agreement between Israel and Egypt. The protests from opponents of a settlement are at a peak that this country has not known before, but the majority of Israelis are more worried than angry about an agreement that they feel is inevitable.

The sentiments of officials, who maintain a public attitude of being entirely free to reject what they do not consider good for Israel, is not much different. They, more than the public, believe that Israel cannot let Mr. Kissinger go home empty-handed as he did last March, and they, too, are worried about the agreement.

Their concerns are manifold. They know that Israel is about to surrender territory that would cost Israeli lives to regain and would have to be regained to avert catastrophe for Israel if war resumed. They know the price of the petroleum they must acquire to replace the production of the Abu Rudeis fields that will revert to Egypt.

Moreover, they feel that with the loss of the oilfields Israel will also lose a further measure of her freedom of action, because she will depend on the United States to assure her petroleum supplies.

Israelis believe that in return for further withdrawal in Sinai, Egypt will reluctantly make reversible political concessions and that Egypt's allies on Israel's borders retain the power to take actions that may make it difficult for Egypt not to reverse her concessions.

Beyond her relationship with her enemy, Egypt, Israel is worried about her relations with her most powerful friend, the United States. Nothing has more acutely dramatized Israel's increased dependence on the United States than the events since the breakdown in March, of Mr. Kissinger's last Arab-Israeli negotiations.

In the assessment of high officials, the United States humbled Israel in the eyes of the world and the American public by laying on Israel all the blame for the setback in the Secretary's diplomacy and by making it appear that Israel was haggling about minor pieces of territory. Officials assert that Mr. Kissinger assured Israel before leaving here in March that the United States would refrain from doing that and then reneged almost instantly.

They recall with pain the comments of President Ford, Mr. Kissinger and other officials and the withholding of military and other assistance.

"Tell Me the Alternative"

But, the officials indicate with unhappiness, Israel had to come to heel. "I tell my friends who complain, 'You're right, but tell me the alternative,'" an official said.

Reflecting on the proposed stationing of American technicians on the new truce lines and the huge American military and economic aid package of around $2-billion that Israel is likely to receive in return for accepting the interim agreement, another Israel official commented:

"I feel like we are being reduced from the status of a junior ally to the status of a junior client."

JFRI Women's Division Sets Goal At $1/2 Million

Mrs. Maurice Shore, general campaign chairman of the Women's Division of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island, has announced that her plans for the 1976 campaign have been approved by the Women's Division board of directors at a meeting held on August 18. According to Mrs. Shore, the major campaign effort will be to encourage each woman in the community to make her own gift and to stress the importance of each contributor increasing her gift as much as possible.

Last year, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Manfred Weil, who is now president of the Women's Division, Rhode Island women raised more than $400,000. The goal for the 1976 campaign is $1/2 million. According to Mrs. Weil, this $1/2 million represents "plus-giving," money raised from women by women. Mrs. Weil emphasizes that the value of these donations is not only monetary but symbolic.

According to Mrs. Shore the slogan of the women's campaign this year will be "As the world care less and less, we must care more and more."

Mrs. Shore and Mrs. Weil have also announced that all Women's Division campaign events will be concluded by the end of October, so that they will not conflict with the activities of other Jewish women's groups. The campaign will finish with a gala event, to which any woman who has increased her pledge, by any amount, will be invited. Guest speaker will be Sonya Hamlin, Boston television commentator, and the event is scheduled for October 30.

MEMBERS OF THE Jewish Federation of Rhode Island Women's Division board of directors meet to approve plans for the 1976 campaign.

The fifth season of the Providence Singers will begin on Tuesday, September 2, at 5 p.m. with auditions for all parts at the First Baptist Meeting House. An appointment may be made by calling 781-7895.

Charles Fassett, choral director at Wheaton College in North, Massachusetts, leads the group. Rehearsals are held once a week on Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Meeting House.

AWARD SCHOLARSHIPS

Twelve scholarships were awarded to Rhode Island students for the 1975-76 academic year by the Providence Section, National Council of Jewish Women, according to an announcement by Celia Adler, chairman of the scholarship committee.

These are partial scholarships and are awarded annually on basis of need and motivation, and recipients are recommended by their high school counselors. This year, the seven girls and five boys who received the scholarships will attend the Rhode Island School of Design, Simmons College, Boston University, University of Rhode Island, Harvard and the University of Hartford.

During the summer, three children from the Mt. Pleasant Children's Center were each given two week camperships at Beach Pond Camp and day camperships were given to youngsters attending Camp Ruggles for Mentally Disturbed Children and Camp Small Fry at the Jewish Community Center. Elaine Hoffman was chairman of this committee.

TO MEET

The Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, Rhode Island Chapter, has announced the appointment of Sarah Araujo as chairman of the raffle which will be held at the fall meeting of the group according to Irving D. Paster, chairman of the chapter. The meeting will be held at the Miriam Hospital auditorium on Sunday, October 5, at 2 p.m.

Proceeds from the meeting will help defray the cost of physician's fees, etc., at the new diagnostic clinic at The Miriam.

Examinations for Myasthenia Gravis patients will be made on the first Tuesday of each month under the direction of Dr. Michael Vulpe, a neurologist.

Further information may be obtained by calling Robert Colwell at 434-2269.

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

Default or Defraud?

Is the US Office of Education throwing away millions of our tax dollars to bail out delinquent students who have defaulted on government-guaranteed student loans? Or is the OE permitting a program established by our tax dollars to help students, to become instead a tool to defraud them?

Stunning questions, yes — but they are being asked now about the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, one of the five great student-assistance programs run by the Office of Education.

Since the program began in 1965, OE has paid $161 million in default claims, with the figure rising in a perpendicular line. In fiscal 1973, the amount paid in claims for student defaults was $31 million; in fiscal '74, $55 million; in just the first 10 months of fiscal '75, $63.3 million. As of the end of the fiscal '75 year, OE expects 18 per cent of student loans will be in the category of defaults against 14 per cent in '74.

Why? A first explanation lies in the way the loan program works. First, an authorized institution lends a student up to a maximum of $2,500 a year to enroll in an educational institution designated as "eligible" by OE. The Office of Education then approves and insures the loan. From nine months to a year after the student completes school or drops out, he or she is supposed to start repaying the loan to the original lender. If the student does not start repaying the loan and if the lender fails in a "diligent" effort to secure payment, the lender applies to OE for the balance. OE pays the claim (except under unusual circumstances) and the defaulting student becomes a debtor to the government.

To stabilize, if not cut back, on the soaring student default rate, Congress has appropriated more money for OE debt collectors — and there are now about 135 as against a mere three in 1972. This fiscal year alone, the collectors brought in $6.2 million, up 107.7 per cent over the total collected in '74.

But the size of the current default problem emphasizes that the collection sweep is not the solution.

Beyond the explanation of negligence, there are other reasons — associated with practices of the schools themselves.

By far the largest number of defaults is on loans to students attending private vocational schools. The Federal Trade Commission is now investigating this entire area, for among these generally good schools are those which have recruited students by promising them jobs which don't exist, supplied students with so low a standard of education that they can't get the jobs they had anticipated, or simply went out of business, leaving students stranded with debts the OE is required to collect.

It makes no difference that a student was defrauded and never got the education; that he was ill prepared to get a job for which he was supposedly trained; that he dropped out. Since the early 1970s, thousands of students attending about 100 proprietary schools have had to face the cost of their entire tuition — even after the schools had collapsed.

Many thought the US government's involvement was a sign of government endorsement. It was not.

Just in the past two years, 341 educational institutions have been removed from OE's eligibility list, reports Rerrell Bell, US Commissioner of Education; in the last year, recognition has been withdrawn from two agencies which accredit schools; many other important moves have been made to reform methods of making student loans.

Bell also is trying to eliminate disputed debts, to ease the burden on students who drop out.

But the rules will be meaningless if not strictly enforced. Also, informed critics urge the OE to notify students applying for loans of the obligations involved and to ask whether they still want the loans on such terms. An experiment with this in Dallas in 1972 resulted in 40 to 50 per cent of the students refusing the loans — with thanks for the warnings.

These and other reforms are imperative if a program with the magnificent aim of education is not to turn into a means of embezzling or impoverishing young Americans.

MERCHANTS OF DEATH

By DR. JAY N. FISHBEIN

World War I was the first global conflict and the terrible acts that were perpetrated against civilian populations were so revolting that anyone engaged in the armament traffic came to be held in disrepute, and referred to as "Merchants of Death." The greatest salesman of his time was Sir Basil Zaharoff, the agent of Vicker's company in Spain. Zaharoff, born in Turkey, lived from 1850 to 1936, indicating a greater longevity than his victims. He instinctively shunned the limelight and was considered a man of mystery, remaining virtually unknown, except to the chancelleries he dealt with.

The practice of the times was that when an armament sale was concluded, the sales list was immediately revealed to neighboring countries, who became concerned and placed similar orders. As these weapons accumulated, generals impressed with their destructive powers became unable to resist the impulse for a sudden, overwhelming attack on a neighboring country where plunder and additional territory could be acquired, usually referred to as necessary "living space."

A long war was never anticipated. Wars were expected to be fast, overwhelming and decisive. They were generally popular with the military as they afforded relief from the boredom of barrack life, with the thrill of adventure and the opportunity of battlefield promotions, where more could be achieved in a few months, than would normally be expected over a period of years.

Invariably these countries were impoverished and could ill afford the luxury of this stockpile of expensive weaponry, but what subject could be so craven as to deny his country the means of defending itself against aggression. Of course, the peasant farmer bitterly resented the wartime confiscation of his horses and mules, which seriously handicapped his plowing, but kept his resentment under control. Occasionally a recalcitrant farmer was hung, and protests ceased.

Zaharoff supplied the cannon; the realm supplied the cannon fodder. Recruitment presented no problem. It was necessary only to parade a squad of smart looking soldiers, in colorful uniforms, decorated with gold braid, brass buttons and plumed hats. The bands playing martial music never failed to stir up patriotic fervor. Those that enlisted early became the center of admiring females, which would help sway any hesitant farmboy. Death, wounds, or suffering were never thought of. The thirst for adventure, glory and service to the fatherland prevailed. Dreams of returning a decorated hero were stimulating. Also, the escape from boring farm chores was a strong incentive.

Stockholders of companies like Krupp and DuPont began to feel uncomfortable with the stigma attached to the unsavory armament industry. The fact that it was essential to the country's defense, as well as being profitable, failed to appease the troubled conscience of the populace or stockholders. To escape the odium, companies began to diversify into more acceptable industries.

As private industry abandoned this unpopular industry, it, of necessity, became the responsibility of the government. With the passing of time, munitions plants became huge, complicated and vastly profitable. Politicians, in or out of office, were sought after, because of their Washington connections. Aggressive lobbying became routine, with the huge sums involved in the sale of arms. Huge bribes called "commissions" were paid. These secret bribes are only now being exposed, with some embarrassment. The explanation offered is that it is the only manner in which such massive deals could be conducted, in the face of intense competition. These agents are the modern counterpart of Sir Basil, the new "Merchants of Death." It is in their power to decide who would receive arms and who would be denied; which countries would survive and which be destroyed.

Concerned about the magnitude and the seeming foreign policy contradictions of arms sales to all comers in the Middle East, Congress passed a law requiring the Administration to inform it of any proposed sale in excess of $25 million. When the Administration announced that it planned to sell Jordan $350 million worth of anti-aircraft weapons, consisting of 14 batteries of long range Raytheon Hawk missiles, eight batteries of GE 20mm Vulcan cannon and 300 General Dynamics Redeye missiles, opposition quickly formed.

Congressional critics stated that the only reason Jordan did not enter the Yom Kippur War was that it lacked the long range missiles. Having them would remove any excuse for failing to participate in the next war. Israel was hard pressed by the unexpected, fierce attack launched simultaneously by Syria and Egypt. Had they been forced to fight on a third front, a critical situation could have easily turned into disaster. Israel suffered over 2,500 dead. The country has still not released the number of wounded.

Secretary Kissinger demonstrated his "even-handed" policy by approving the missile sale to Jordan. When he did so in secret, without informing Congress, with the knowledge that the missiles would be beyond any doubt be used against Israel, he lowered the prestige of his office and dishonored himself and his country. Jordan has never been threatened by Israel and despite the unprovoked attack in 1967 when she was beseeched not to become involved; despite the terrorist attacks and repeated violations, has attempted to remain on friendly terms, keeping her borders open. When Syria sent an armed force to assist the Palestinian guerrillas in an attempt to overthrow his government, Israel was instrumental in having them withdraw.

Dr. Kissinger has shown his resentment of Israel repeatedly, blaming Israel for the breakdown of his shuttle diplomacy last March. Angered by what he termed Israel's "intransigence" he induced President Ford to "reassess" the US policy objectives in the Middle East. Arms that had been promised were withheld, and aid that had been approved was threatened to be reduced. When Kissinger went to Paris to arrange a "peace with honor" with North Vietnam, he won the Nobel Peace Prize, and the South Vietnamese lost their homeland. This must not be allowed to happen to Israel.

Secretary Kissinger flatly stated that he would refuse to return to negotiations in the Middle East until Israel became more cooperative regarding the occupied territories. The stick was accompanied by the carrot. The sum and substance was that if Israel yielded her defensive positions, she would be granted the arms promised but withheld. While the Israeli Prime Minister and his Cabinet were agonizing over the choices offered, of capitulation or annihilation, the public became aroused and protested vehemently. Negotiations cannot be considered as such when concessions must be made in advance. The so-called "even-handed" policy could more accurately be termed underhanded. Israel should not be forced to relinquish any territory without a comprehensive and lasting settlement with the Aran world.

As Senator Jackson observed: "It is hard to resist the conclusion that Israel was searching the road to peace while Egypt seeks the road to Tel Aviv." The Arabs follow Mao Tse-Tung's dictum that all power comes from the barrel of a gun. Moses believed in the power of the Law. Mohammed in that of the sword.

For Secretary Kissinger it is apparently necessary to bring about a "peace" agreement to bolster his failing prestige. For President Ford, concessions must be made for the sake of "detente" with the Soviet Union. The public opinion polls indicate a decline in his popularity and securing the semblance of peace would serve to brighten his image. Plagued by continued recession, inflation and unemployment have posed a problem, with elections in the offing.

Representative Bingham, author of the House Resolution against the sale of weapons to Jordan, stated "that it makes no sense for the US to supply Jordan with US missiles and anti-aircraft guns to attack US aircraft supplied to Israel." The fact that Secretary Kissinger supported the secret sale to Jordan raised hackles in Congress, which is certain to push for even greater veto power over arms sales to foreign countries. Congress was also annoyed when it learned of the fantastic under-the-table deals with Saudi Arabia.

WARRANT REVOKED
 BQNN: Justice authorities in West Berlin announced they had revoked an arrest warrant against Walter Kutschmann, a former Nazi officer who had been living in Argentina under the alias Pedro Ricardo Olmo. The 18-year-old warrant against Kutschmann was revoked because a charge of aiding and abetting the murder of Jews in Poland during World War II had become void under West Germany's statute of limitations, a spokesman said. Kutschmann had been identified as a Nazi officer by Simon Wiesenthal.

Smile, Shorty, Smile

There is no doubt that the short fellow is at a tremendous disadvantage, not only in watching a parade but at every other level of our daily lives.

In a recent survey we find that bank presidents are 5 feet 10½, while the bank clerks are 5 feet 9 (it should happen to me already). They found that the sales managers were 5 feet 10½, while the salesmen were 5 feet 9. I am sure this is true in love, salesmanship or politics.

Colonel Harvey and the other Republicans in the famous smoke-filled room picked Warren G. Harding because he "looked like a president" more than any of the other compromise candidates. This was actually stated as one of the reasons for the choice of the Ohio Senator, God rest his soul.

When Daniel Webster stood on the platform and shouted, "If you dissolve the Whig Party, where will I go?" the delegates would have said, "What do we care where you go?" if he had been a little guy. But when they saw that magnificent head, those shaggy eyebrows, and that fine figure of a man, they said to one another, "Where indeed will he go?" And they kept the party alive for another few years.

The Library Stiff

I wrote an article for The New York Times Book Review in which I described how the tramps used to come into the lectures that were held free at the Cooper Union Institute.

These tramps used to come in to escape the cold but after a couple of winters of listening to Clarence Darrow and Will Durant and Eugene V. Debs and Margaret Sanger, these tramps were amazingly erudite — more so than many in the respectable audience.

About two weeks after this little piece appeared, I received a letter from a hobo who had read the article and wanted to introduce himself.

He was still happy on the road, he said, but he was what the Wobblies used to call a "library stiff." Most of the hoboes, he said, used to find out on what track the slow freight left at what time and make off to the poolrooms or the town bar until they could highball out.

But this made them easy prey for the "town clowns" (cops) who would daily raid these two places and "vag" all the hoboes. This fellow used to make for the library, where the cops never made an arrest, let alone thought a hobo was taking refuge there.

It was a good, warm place to sleep. But the curious thing that happened was that this fellow began reading the books he hid behind. He has spent much of his time in libraries all over the country and he recalled some of the famous ones. He was sorry to learn that the old Rivington Street branch of the New York Public Library had been torn down, but he was glad Cooper Union was still standing and flourishing.

Kissinger and the Mob

In 1967, Detroit erupted in the worst race riot in American in this century. Mobs of blacks and whites roamed the city, burning, looting, murdering. One of the photographers from the Detroit Free Press was cruising the city recording the pillage and anarchy with his camera.

On one of the streets he saw a milling mob of whites and he stopped his convertible, stood up and snapped a picture. At this moment, some of the mob saw him and charged his car. Before he could move he was trapped, but he kept his head and remained standing, clutching his treasured camera.

As these angry people surrounded his car, one of the men shouted, "This is a newspaperman. Let's kill him." Mobs do not like newspapermen who record their actions. This was a tough spot for the photographer — a tough spot for any man.

So the reporter barked, "Who elected you leader?" and in a trice he had turned the mob against itself and he lived to tell the tale and see his photo reproduced on the front page.

Henry Kissinger is in a somewhat analogous situation. He has been out mulling in dangerous precincts. And now people have turned on him. Not only have they turned on him, they have suggested six or seven men to take his place, an uncomfortable position for any appointed official. But we have to ask, who elected them leader?

Secretary Kissinger did not bring peace to the Middle East but at least he put peace on the agenda. No one else has come as close. Henry had some insuperable problems. He was dealing with powerful, though hysterical, Arabs and with brave and intransigent Israelis.

He also championed a foreign policy in Vietnam which went bankrupt. But if this is a time for reassessment instead of blame, as President Ford urges, I do not see why we should treat Mr. Kissinger as Lon Nol or Thieu.

The guarantee in the United States is that everyone is entitled to due process.

Even if a man has to stand and shout above the mob, "Wait a minute! Who elected you?"

By Robert E. Starr

Not one Declarer tried to make twelve tricks after the opening lead and return. Yet, as the cards lie it is "cold" and doesn't cost a thing to try. In fact, the split needed is normal. I guess they simply had a blind spot. Of course, a different lead or return could have stopped it but I watched as almost every Declarer received the same lead and return.

East was Dealer, no one vulnerable with this bidding:

P	4♥	End

Every pair ended in the same game contract in Hearts although I am certain the bidding was not always as shown. Some Souths jumped to three on their rebid. Actually that is not recommended for despite the tremendous length the South hand does not have too many high cards. Also, there is no danger of the North hand passing the two Heart rebid for playing correctly the responder should guarantee another bid once he changes the suit responding at the two level.

Regardless, whether South rebid two or three, they all ended in four and received the Spade 10 for a lead. I watched every East win the Ace and return a Trump presumably to stop any Spade ruffs or maybe because they felt they had nothing better to do. But this gave Declarer the timing he needed to make that elusive twelfth trick for it left the Spade king still in Dummy for a very welcome entry.

But now every Declarer, apparently goaded by the sight of that fabulous Trump suit and not wanting anything to happen to them, as if anything could, drew the Trumps. They then conceded a Diamond and settled for five. On examining the traveling score showing what the others had done they were satisfied that they had done as well as other Declarers, but had they done the best they could? Not with that defense.

Obviously, the two good suits made them lose sight of the only suit that could give them an extra trick, Clubs. Here is how. They can draw Trumps if they wish but not discard any Clubs from Dummy while doing so. Now play a Club to the Ace and ruff one. Repeat that procedure by leading to Dummy's entries twice more, the two high Diamonds will do, until now that fifth Club in Dummy is the thirteenth and good. Also, that Spade King or whichever entry had not been used yet is still right over there to now be utilized for cashing that little Club. All it took was a 4-3 split which is the normal split for that many cards. Had East returned a Spade at trick two, this would no longer have been possible. That fifth Club could have been set up all right but there would no longer be a way to get back to Dummy to use it.

Moral: Once the responder changes the suit at the two level on his first answer to partner's opening bid he should guarantee that he will bid at least once more. This way opener can rebid anything just to hear what his partner will say on his next bid.

Criticizes Distortions About So-Called Israeli Lobby

SAN FRANCISCO: The head of Hadassah, the largest Zionist organization in the United States, criticized what she termed "distortions and misconceptions" about the so-called "Israeli lobby" in the United States.

Rose Matzkin, president of the 335,000-member group, disputed some stated views that the Jewish communities' concerns for Israel were "the action of a monolithic bloc."

"If there is 'one voice' by Americans, Jews and non-Jews alike," she said, "it was in support of Israel's position as a free nation in that part of the world."

"And when the Senate and the House vote aid to Israel," she added, "it is not because they are coerced by a powerful Jewish lobby. It is because they are representing the conviction of the American people who are concerned about Israel's survival. It is a moral necessity."

Message from Ford

Her remarks highlighted the opening of Hadassah's 61st annual convention at the Hilton Hotel this week. Some 2,500 delegates from every section of the country, and Puerto Rico gathered for the four-day meeting.

President Ford, in a message to Mrs. Matzkin read at the opening session, praised the "humanitarian spirit of Hadassah that is manifested through its healing, teaching and research programs," and termed its works "a credit to our national heritage."

Hadassah maintains a vast network of health, social and educational services in Israel in addition to its programs in America.

In her address, frequently marked by applause, Mrs. Matzkin said that journalists, whom she did not identify, had created "the myth of a powerful Israeli lobby."

She contended that a distinction must be drawn between such "powerful special-interest groups as the oil lobby" and groups that back American support for nations devoted "to democratic ideals and principles."

"More Americans today," she said, "are persuaded that a viable Israel is an important contribution to the shrinking number of countries that make up the free world."

Support for Israel by both houses of Congress does not derive from the so-called Israeli lobby, she said, adding that Congress had frequently indicated the United States must assert its position "as the leader of the free world."

"It is time to see the power base of support for Israel rest on American popular opinion and not on manipulation of any so-called lobby," she said.

Leaders of various Jewish religious and secular groups have also denied the existence of an "Israeli lobby."

Most Senators and Representatives consistently expressed support for Israel. Last week, Senator Lloyd M. Bentsen, Democrat of Texas, urged the Administration to grant Israel preferential treatment and trade agreements.

A Democratic Presidential aspirant, he strongly recommended American retaliation if efforts backed by Arabs to suspend Israel from the next United Nations General Assembly succeeded.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard D. Hass

The wedding of Miss Shirley Ann Fishbein of Paris, France, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Fishbein of 21 Nottingham Way, Pawtucket, to Bernard Daniel Hass of Paris, France, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hass, was held Sunday, August 10, at Temple Emanu-El. Rabbi Joel H. Zaiman and Cantor Ivan E. Perlman officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the temple.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Honor attendants of the bride were Mrs. Sumner Fishbein, sister-in-law of the bride and Miss Giselle Hass, sister of the bridegroom. Dr. Sumner L. Fishbein, brother of the bride, served as best man.

The couple will live in Paris. The bride received her BA, with honors, in French from New York University and her MA from the University of Chicago. She received her teaching diploma, with honors, from the Sorbonne in Paris. She was formerly a commercial officer with the Canadian Consulate in Boston, Massachusetts.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Essec Graduate School in Paris, received his license in international law from the University of Paris; his MBA from Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, and is presently executive director of the Synprosruchum in Paris.

Rabin Believes Federation May Work

JERUSALEM: Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin told an interviewer last week that a confederation between Israel and Jordan may be one way to solve the Palestinian issue.

"There can be no lasting peace in the area without a solution of the Palestinian issue," he said. "I believe there are many ways to do it . . . including a federation with Israel or a confederation between Israel and Jordan."

The Israeli Prime Minister was interviewed by the Austrian television network's editor-in-chief, Hans Benedict, prior to the death of Pinhas Sapir, Israel's Former Finance Minister.

He later offered to retreat 19 miles from the present lines held by the Israeli Army, according to reports, in the interest of achieving an agreement with Egypt. It was not immediately known how Cairo officials reacted to the proposal.

A special session of the Knesset (now in recess) has been called by the Likud Party to debate the negotiations on an interim peace agreement.

The Likud, which opposes the government's policy of gradual withdrawals from occupied territories without firm peace guarantees from Egypt, forced the special session by obtaining the signatures of 30 parliamentarians on a petition.

Mrs. Wayne E. Keseberg

Miss Judy Misch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Misch of 39 Cambria Court, Pawtucket, was married to Wayne Edward Keseberg of Lenox, Massachusetts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Keseberg of 14 Bayberry Road, Schenectady, New York, on Sunday, August 24. Rabbi Leslie Y. Gutterman officiated at the 12:30 p.m. ceremony at Temple Beth El. A reception at the temple followed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk cloud satin fashioned with an empire princess bodice of Alencon lace, embroidered with seed pearls, long bishop sleeves with flounced cuffs and an A-line skirt. She wore a matching scalloped bridal hat and carried a cascade of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath accented with camellia foliage.

The bride's honor attendants were Miss Jo Ann Kantorowitz and Miss Elaine Dimpelfeld. Best man was Daniel Dwyer.

Following a wedding trip to Montreal, the couple will reside at 140 Housatonic Street in Lenox.

Interflora Directory Helps In Overseas Orders

By consulting a directory provided by the worldwide floral delivery network, Interflora, all members of Florists' Transworld Delivery (FTD) in the United States and Canada, can help local customers select and send overseas orders for flowers and plants.

Interflora, with a total membership of well over 40,000 florists in 130 countries, is composed of the 14,700 members of FTD as well as 26,000 florists in Interflora British Unit and Fleurop-Interflora.

Written in nine languages, the directory includes a glossary of more than 150 common terms used throughout the world; phrases and flower-giving occasions; monthly flower availability charts for many varieties in 94 countries, as well as the names of 50 different cut flowers and plants.

The directory also describes 169 national flag colors for use with ribbons, a chart for determining overseas time and the numbers from one to one hundred, also in nine languages.

The Interflora Membership List, containing the names, addresses and other information on the Interflora British Unit and Fleurop-Interflora florists, is also used by FTD florists whenever a customer wishes to place an overseas floral order.

ANTI-SEMITIC SIGNS

DETROIT: Anti-Semitic signs in downtown Detroit have created anxieties among Jews and embarrassment among some non-Jews, according to The Jewish News. The newspaper reported that anti-Semitic graffiti, abusive references to Jews and swastikas were painted on the fountain in Grand Circus Park and on several public buildings in the downtown area. Police are investigating. Leon Atchison, city director of parks and recreation, said there had been two incidents within three weeks and he believed the same person was responsible both times. Others, however, believe more than one person is to blame because the defacings were widespread.

What Is The Reason?

RABBI YAAKOV UVSITZKY

Why is Hallel not recited on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur?

It is written in the Talmud: Rabbi Abahu said, "The angels said unto G-d, praised be He, 'Why does Israel not recite Hallel before you on Rosh Hashanah and on the Day of Atonement?' Therefore G-d answered, 'When the King is seated on the Throne of Judgment and the books where life and death are inscribed lie open to him, can Israel burst into song?' " The Talmud says (Rosh Hashanah 16b) that Rabbi Kruspedai quotes Rabbi Yohanan as follows: "Three books are opened on New Year's Day. One for the perfectly righteous, one for the very wicked, and one for those who are neither all righteous nor all wicked. The righteous are promptly inscribed and sealed for life. The wicked are promptly inscribed and sealed for death. As for the others, their verdict is left over from the New Year until the Day of Atonement. If they prove themselves worthy of it they will be inscribed for life."

Hallel is a hymn of joy and praise, and it is not proper to be joyful before knowing what sentence has been passed. As a result, since all of us are worried, we do not say Hallel on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

Why is the Shofar not blown until just before the Musaf Service?

By right the Shofar should be sounded during the morning service because religious acts should be performed as early as possible. However, it happened one time in a certain place that the Shofar was sounded early in the morning service and the enemy heard it. Mistaking the blasts of the Shofar for a call to battle, the enemy's men rushed to the synagogue, fell upon the defenseless Jews at prayer there and massacred them.

Since that tragic incident the sounding of the Shofar was deferred until the Musaf service. By that hour everyone might be expected to understand that the Jews have been praying all morning long, reading from the Torah and praying again, and that the sounding of the Shofar is just another part of the service that has continued all morning and not a call to battle.

When in doubt, you need look no further for the perfect gift. The Herald subscription is always appreciated for birthdays or holidays. Call the Herald at 724-0200.

Love May Triumph Despite Boundaries

TEL AVIV: True love may triumph despite buffer zones and boundaries.

An Austrian army officer attached to the United Nations Emergency Force on the Golan Heights, who was sent back to Austria and dishonorably discharged for taking a 19-year-old Israeli woman soldier on a ride into Syrian-controlled territory, is now in Israel and wants to marry the woman he loves.

Ernest Steinbauer, 25, said he wants to convert to Judaism and has gone to a Tel Aviv rabbi for preparations for conversion.

Steinbauer has taken a job as a bartender at a Haifa hotel to wait for the woman who is facing a court martial trial for associating with UN personnel and crossing the line into Syria without permission.

The girl's family has accepted Steinbauer and is treating him like a son.

Letters to the editor in Israeli newspapers have been urging the military court to consider the fact that the two young people love each other.

Vulcan Batteries Plans Israel Plant

HAIFA, ISRAEL: Vulcan Batteries, Ltd., and the U.S. firm, Globe Union, will build a plant for the manufacture of car batteries in a Galilee development town still to be selected. The American company has taken a 30% share in the investment of over $3.3 million, with the option to increase its share to 50%. Globe Union will supply modern equipment, know-how and training to Vulcan workers, and will set quality standards.

Vulcan's turnover was $3.5 million 1974, and is expected to reach $5 million this year. The company supplies 45% of the Israel battery market and meets almost two-thirds of the country's defense needs. This year the company will produce 140,000 batteries, compared with 120,000 last year.

Vulcan plans to diversify during the next two years. It will produce batteries for industry to be used in telephone exchanges and for computer drives. At present, 150 workers are employed in the Haifa-based plant.

El Al Finds Finances
Encouraging For 1974-75

BOSTON: El Al "almost" balanced its budget in the 1974-75 fiscal year, showing a deficit of only $1413,000, Moshe Eilat, district manager of El Al in New England reported to travel agents.

He said that this was a satisfactory achievement considering the world-wide drop in tourism and the increase in the cost of fuel, maintenance and other services. If not for the continued heavy expenditure on security, the company would have remained in the black.

Highlights from the balance sheet include a gross income of $19,174,449.392 — $16,999m. last year; a 1.8 decline in the number of passengers carried to 735,772, but an encouraging 23.3 percent increase in cargo, to 36,303 tons; and a 2 percent increase in seat occupancy rates to 68.3 percent.

El Al also increased to 51.9 percent its percentage of the total number of passengers carried in and out of Israel, in competition with 17 major international carriers.

Mr. Eilat said that compared with other airlines El Al had done remarkably well; Pan Am had lost $95m., Japan Airlines $91m., Air France $147m., SAS $58m., and KLM $27m. There had been a 20 percent decline in transatlantic traffic during the year under review.

Mr. Eilat noted that the present seat occupancy rate (68.3 percent) was the highest since 1968. In spite of the inflationary costs, El Al is trying to lower the prices of tickets to and from Israel to encourage tourism.

MOSHE EILAT

A nationwide campaign to revitalize tourism to Israel is now being executed by the Israel Ministry of Tourism North American Office and El Al Israel Airlines.

The campaign, which was officially launched June 15 when Israel Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Minister of Tourism Moshe Kol addressed a special New York conference on Israel Tourism, is now being followed up with a mass mailing to over 4,000 synagogues, congregations and organizations. The mailing is designed to enlist several thousand volunteer tourism representatives in the nationwide effort. I. Zuril is North American director of the Israel Government Tourist Office and has overall responsibility for the project.

High Holy Day Services

A special service has been prepared for this ceremony.

TEMPLE BETH SHOLOM
Providence

Temple Beth Sholom has announced that Rabbi Nathan N. Rosen, Hillel director and Jewish chaplain emeritus of Brown University, will officiate as rabbi and cantor during the High Holydays. Rabbi Rosen will be assisted by Professor Alan S. Zuckerman.

Rabbi Ira A. Korff has been appointed to the faculty of Harvard University and so will no longer act as spiritual leader for the temple.

Selichos services will be held at midnight on Saturday, August 30. Coffee will be served at 11:30 p.m.

Rosh Hashanah services on Friday evening will start at 6:45 o'clock. Morning services on Saturday and Sunday, September 6 and 7 will be at 9 o'clock.

TEMPLE BETH TORAH
Cranston

Selichos services at Temple Beth Torah will be held on Saturday, August 30, at 10:15 p.m., led by the new Rabbi Gerald B. Zelermyer. A social hour will precede the services starting at 9:15 p.m.

Rosh Hashanah services on Friday and Saturday evenings, September 5 and 6, will be at 6:45 o'clock. On Saturday and Sunday mornings, September 6 and 7, services will start at 8:15 o'clock, followed by the Torah service at 9:15, the Shofar service at 10 o'clock and the sermon at 10:30.

TEMPLE SINAI
Cranston

Selichos, the service of penitential prayers, will introduce the theme of the High Holy Day season. It will be held on Saturday, August 30, at midnight. The hour of the service is based on Psalm 119, Verse 62, "At midnight I rise to praise Thee."

Immediately following the service, a breakfast, sponsored by the Brotherhood of Temple Sinai will be served.

The Rosh Hashanah evening service will be held on Friday, September 5, at 8:15 o'clock.

On Saturday, September 6, the children's service and the youth service (ages 8 to 12) will both be held at 9 a.m. The adult service will be at 11 a.m.

Rabbi Jerome S. Gurland will conduct the services.

UNITED BROTHERS
SYNAGOGUE
Bristol

Dan Asher, executive director of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island, will be the guest speaker at the United Brothers Synagogue at 205 High Street in Bristol, on Selichos evening, Saturday, August 30 at 11:30 o'clock. He will speak on "Confronting Jewish Destiny."

The Selichos services will be led by William I. Crausman, lay cantor of the synagogue, and he will be assisted by Jonathan Zimet.

The coffee hour will begin at 11:30 p.m. and Mrs. James Awerman, Miss Nancy Hillman and Mrs. Eugene Katzen will provide the refreshments.

Arabs May Drop 100
From Boycott List

CAIRO, Egypt: More than 100 companies, including Volkswagen and the British auto maker Leyland, have presented "satisfactory" evidence to the Arab Boycott of Israel office that they have severed relations with Israel, boycott commissioner Mohammed Mahgoub said here.

Mahgoub said boycott officials will decide at the semi-annual meeting whether to remove the companies' names from the blacklist that prevents them from doing business in any of the 20 Arab League nations. A number of large companies such as Ford Motor Company, Sony Corporation and Coca-Cola may remain on the blacklist even though they have presented documents, Mahgoub said, "because we believe their data are not fully satisfactory."

Originally, 2,000 firms were on the boycott blacklist.

Of Outstanding Offers and Opportunities

By Alan Shawn Feinstein

Remember that commodity trading system I mentioned to you last column that was claiming 75 straight winning trades? Well, I got it and here's what it's about:

System is simple. Buy a silver future; as soon as it goes up six points sell it. (At $50 a point that's a $300 profit.) Whenever it goes down, though, keep putting up more money to maintain your position.

Since you must put up $5000 to open a silver trading account, silver would have to go down 100 points before that money would ever be all used up. And chances are extremely slim silver would ever go down a hundred points before it went up six in any given trade, the author says. Especially with silver's long range bullish outlook.

What the author says is true. But the worst could happen. And with the fluctuating prices of silver, especially in the volatile futures field, it would take a lot of money and guts to stick out every trade until you realized that six point profit in each one of them.

If you're interested in learning more about commodity futures, you can get a free report "Pitfalls and Potential of Commodity Futures Trading" from Iris Kapp, Chicago Mercantile Exchange, 444 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois 60606. Mention my name.

Also, you might be interested in another, less volatile field of investing. And one that you can invest in without paying commissions... I'm talking about no-load mutual funds. For a free booklet "Facts and Fancies about No-Load Funds" write No-Load

Mutual Fund Association, 475 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10016.

Unless you are very wealthy and can afford to gamble, the most important thing in investing is safety of principal. If you write me I'll send you a free guide "How to Protect Your Savings and Your Future." Address request to Department 9, 41 Alhambra Circle, Cranston, Rhode Island 02905. Think you'll find this very worthwhile.

That's it for now.
