MRS. ARTHUR EINSTEIN

Mrs. Arthur Einstein To Receive Award

Mrs. Arthur Einstein of Providence will be the recipient of Rhode Island's second annual Israel Bond Woman of the Year Award at the sponsor luncheon of the Rhode Island Women's Division, State of Israel Bonds, it has been announced by Mrs. David Horvitz, chairman. She will receive the award for outstanding service to the Jewish community and Israel at a luncheon to be held Thursday noon, March 14, at the home of Mrs. Melvin G. Alperin of 400 Blackstone Boulevard.

A highlight of the program will be the presentation of the 1974 Sponsor Pin to women who purchase $1,000 or more in Israel Bonds. Pins are awarded in three categories: Golden Sponsor, $5,000; Jerusalem Sponsor, $2,500; and Regular Sponsor, $1,000.

Mrs. Einstein is an active participant in Jewish communal endeavors and has played a prominent role in the Israel Bond program since its inception in 1951.

She is Rhode Island's first recipient of the Woman of Valor Award, the highest honor bestowed on a woman volunteer by the Israel Bond Organization. A former co-chairman of the Women's Division, she presently serves as an honorary adviser of the Women's Division.

A life member of the Pioneer Women of Providence and the Jewish Home for the Aged, she is also a member of the board of directors of the Women's Division of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island and a member of Temple Emanu-El.

Jewish Organizations Protest Commercials

NEW YORK — WCBS-TV, Channel 2, agreed to stop showing Paramount's chicken commercial featuring Pearl Bailey because of protests from Jewish organizations, Albert I. Schmalholz, lawyer for the Brooklyn & Long Island Kosher Butchers Association has reported. The people at the station who could verify this were apparently tied up in meetings.

A number of representatives of religious, trade and employee organization interested in kosher food standards, Mr. Schmalholz said, asked that the station remove the spot because statements made in it are "false and misleading."

Although at the end of the

AJCongress Urges US Tax Reforms

NEW YORK — The American Jewish Congress has urged the Senate and the House of Representatives to adopt tax-reform legislation aimed at ending "windfall profits for oil companies as a result of the present shortage."

In a unanimous resolution, the human-rights group called for the abolition of the depletion allowance for foreign oil production and of tax deductions permitted to oil companies for the royalties they pay to foreign governments.

By these allowances, the resolution said, "American oil companies have been able to exempt the major share of their profits from the reach of the American tax system, and development of foreign rather than domestic sources of energy has been encouraged."

The action was one of a series on domestic and foreign issues as the delegates ended their bi-ennial convention and re-elected Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg as president.

The delegates called on the House Judiciary Committee to study, "promptly and judiciously," charges against President Nixon "and then take whatever action is appropriate to carrying out the responsibilities entrusted to it by the Constitution and rules of the House."

Immediately after the luncheon-session, 132 of the 500 delegates left for Israel to conclude their convention with an eight-day "leadership mission." The Israeli part of the convention — the first ever to be undertaken by the organization since its establishment in 1918 — includes a session with Golda Meir and with political, military and educational leaders.

Howard M. Squadron was re-elected president of the organization's national governing council and Stanley H. Lowell was re-elected national vice president. Theodore Bikel, Mrs. Jacqueline Levine and Theodore R. Mann were elected co-chairmen of the governing council.

AIR TRAFFIC BETTER

NEW YORK — Mordechai Ben Ari, president of El Al, Israel Airlines, told a press conference here that tourism and air traffic to Israel had recovered almost completely since the Yom Kippur War.

Green Dolmatch, Inc., commercial Miss Bailey says "this is not a kosher chicken," she earlier makes statements about her mother's kosher kitchen, and about the rising of kosher chickens that the organizations consider false.

Mr. Schmalholz said the groups plan to visit other stations showing the spot to make similar protests. Paramount chickens are produced by a subsidiary of Cargill, Inc.

CONTRIBUTES TO JNF

JERUSALEM — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — before he was appointed Secretary — contributed to a Jewish National Fund grove of trees.

Dayan Is Defense Minister

Mrs. Meir Will Complete New Coalition Government

TEL AVIV — Premier Golda Meir announced that she would complete the formation of a new coalition and that it would include Moshe Dayan as Defense Minister.

A statement from her office, issued after a special Cabinet meeting in Jerusalem, said that the Minister of Communications, Shimon Peres, had also agreed to serve in the new coalition. As recently as this afternoon, both Mr. Dayan and Mr. Peres had insisted that they would not join.

The dramatic switch occurred after the Cabinet meeting, which was attended by the chief of Staff, Lieut. Gen. David Elazar, and the director of military intelligence, Maj. Gen. Eliahu Zeira. Ministers leaving the meeting refused to say what had been discussed.

An informed source said after the meeting Mrs. Meir took Mr. Dayan and Mr. Peres aside and asked them to join the government. They accepted promptly.

Earlier, the governing Labor party, in a seven-hour special meeting, gave Mrs. Meir an overwhelming vote of confidence and called on her to complete the formation of a new coalition

Denial Of Soviet Ballet Urged By B'nai B'rith

WASHINGTON — B'nai B'rith this week urged that Soviet ballet companies be denied American tours until the "cruel treatment" of Valery and Galina Panov, the embattled dancers, is ended.

David M. Blumberg, B'nai B'rith president, accused Soviet dance groups of "indifference and silence" toward the fate of the Panovs, who had been principal dancers with the Kirov Ballet of Leningrad.

Valery Panov was dismissed from the company and his non-Jewish wife demoted to the corps de ballet after the couple had applied for visas to emigrate to Israel.

In a letter to Columbia Artists Management, Blumberg commended its decision to cancel an American tour of the Kirov company. But his organization was "puzzled and disturbed" by an announcement that Columbia will sponsor a tour of 40 members of the Bolshoi Ballet. Blumberg wrote to Ronald Wilford, president of Columbia Artists Management.

Although it advocates detente and cultural cooperation, B'nai B'rith "vigorously protests" the projected tour, Blumberg said. "The failure of Soviet ballet groups to oppose the treatment of the Panovs makes a mockery of detente and cultural exchange," he said.

Mrs. Panov quit the Kirov group in protest of her husband's dismissal. The couple has not been allowed to perform since.

Panov rejected an offer from Soviet authorities allowing him, but not his wife, to emigrate.

immediately.

The meeting had been called as part of a campaign to persuade her to retract the decision to give up her five-week attempt to form a cabinet.

Coalition Plan Backed

The party's 615-member central committee voted unanimously with four absentions to ask her to head the new coalition. However, her proposal to form a coalition comprising parties representing a minority in Parliament was approved by 238 votes to seven with 45 absentions.

Among those abstaining were Mr. Dayan and members of his party wing, the Rafi. They said a broad coalition that would include the hard-line right-wing bloc, the Likud, or the holding of new elections would be preferable to a minority government. The efforts to form a coalition have been under way since the elections of December 31, in which Mrs. Meir's party lost ground.

The Premier's office announced that she would present her new Government to President Ephraim Katzir.

The new coalition is expected to be an alignment of Labor, Mapam and affiliated Arabs as well as the Independent Liberals. Together they command 58 of the 120 seats in Parliament. Negotiations are proceeding for the inclusion of the National Religious party, which has 10 seats and would assure the coalition a majority.

At the meeting, there were murmurs of astonishment when Deputy Premier Yigal Alon said that for the present Mrs. Meir stood by her decision. He said reports that she had reversed her decision were incorrect and that she had merely been persuaded to defer announcing it to President Ephraim Katzir when her report would normally be due.

The party secretary general, Aharon Yadlin, said at the meeting that he would transmit the plea to Mrs. Meir, who did not attend.

Other party leaders said they hoped the solid support of her leadership expressed in the vote and speeches today would appease her. They said she had announced her withdrawal last Sunday because she had felt her backing in the party leadership had weakened. There had been sharp criticism of her proposals regarding the composition of a new cabinet when she submitted the list to a joint meeting of the party's parliamentary faction and leadership bureau. Her proposals were approved after she left the meeting.

Dayan Explains Stand

Mr. Dayan explained today that he was not formally proposing a broad coalition because of Mrs. Meir's opposition. He said he would rather forgo a broad coalition than Mrs. Meir's leadership. "Golda is the most suitable person in the Jewish nation to be Prime Minister," he said.

Most speakers today opposed a coalition with the Likud and argued that the hard-liners would obstruct efforts to reach settlements with Arab neighbors on the basis of territorial compromise. Mr. Dayan said he believed the Likud would not prevent agreement with Egypt or Syria.

Arab Oil Summit To Meet; Will Discuss The Embargo

CAIRO — Egypt has proposed that the oil ministers of Arab oil-producing countries meet in Tripoli, Libya, Sunday to consider, among other things, the easing of their oil embargo against the United States.

A similar conference had been scheduled for February 14 but was canceled at the last minute at the request of Saudi Arabia and Egypt, acting on behalf of Syria's President, Hafez al-Assad.

The Syrian President had asked the other Arab leaders to continue to maintain the pressure of the total embargo against the United States to strengthen Syria's hand in exchanges with Secretary of State Kissinger on military disengagement on the Syrian-Israeli front.

Egypt's proposal of next Sunday as a new date for the conference was announced by the official Middle East News Agency. It said Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Abu Dhabi had agreed to the date.

The Egyptian action was believed to be reflection of the fact that Mr. Kissinger, in his visits to Damascus and Jerusalem last week, was able to nudge the two hostile countries a step closer toward consultation on disengagement.

As a result of the Secretary's efforts in the two capitals, Syrian and Israeli representatives will go to Washington to explore each other's positions further in separate talks that each side will conduct with Mr. Kissinger.

President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt would not have suggested a new date for the conference if he did not have at least the tacit approval of Syria, Arab diplomats here said tonight.

ASKS SECURE BORDERS

BONN — West Berlin's Lord Mayor Klaus Schuetz has called for guaranteed and secure frontiers for Israel. Speaking at the 40th anniversary celebrations of the Children's and Young People's Aliya at the Axel Springer Publishing House in West Berlin, Schuetz declared: "We have called for secured existence for Israel in past years, and also at the outbreak of the Yom Kippur War, and we shall make the same call again and again."

U.S. Tank Considered Unsafe By Eagleton

WASHINGTON — Inflammable hydraulic fluid in the M-60 battle tank sent by the United States to Israel tended to incinerate Israeli crews after the tank was hit by Soviet-built Sagger missiles in the Yom Kippur War, according to Senator Thomas Eagleton (D.Mo.). Eagleton, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, made a year-end trip to Israel to investigate tank battles in the war. In an informal report to Pentagon officials, Eagleton said the Israelis told him the armor plate on the M-60 was too thin, though they liked the tank's mobility and firepower.

Eagleton will make written reports on the matter to the Senate committee. It was also reported that American military experts have been in Israel evaluating the effectiveness of a variety of weapons systems and that they confirmed that there was a problem with the hydraulic lines and fluid in the M-6; tank when it was hit by the Soviet-built penetrating missiles.

Mideast Jitters

Neither the nervousness of the Israeli leadership nor the jockeying for influence by various Arab governments can obscure the essential point that the belligerents in the Middle East are moving, step by step, toward the brink of a political settlement that no one would have thought possible just a few months ago.

Israel's internal political crisis is far from resolved though Premier Golda Meir's morning-after retraction of her resignation threat will save the ongoing diplomatic efforts from paralysis at a crucial moment.

Secretary of State Kissinger's success in luring the long-recalcitrant Syrians into negotiations on a military disengagement is a promising step forward. It would, of course, have been more significant if the Syrians had agreed to negotiate directly with the Israelis, as the Egyptians did in January. But even the projected indirect Washington talks, to which Syria and Israel will send high-level representatives to negotiate through Secretary Kissinger, stand a better chance of achieving an accord than the Middle East has known for many years.

President Assad of Syria deserves commendation for overcoming the hardliners in his leadership who thought nothing of using human hostages, the Israeli prisoners of war, for extracting political advantage. Syria's submission — finally — of the prisoners' names and the clearance given for Red Cross visits solve none of the real issues, but these steps remove an artificially contrived point of emotional contention and permit a start on the genuine problems of disengaging hostile forces on the Golan Heights.

Similarly, the resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Egypt is a move of cosmetics rather than substance. As a symbolic gesture at this time, it confirms President Sadat's commitment to Secretary Kissinger's ongoing mediation effort. The Egyptian leader has gone far in "de-Nasserizing" his country's policies, and the disengagement along the Suez Canal has become a source of personal political strength for him, instead of the sign of weakness that any accommodation with Israel once would have seemed in the Arab world.

The area is not free from danger. The Arab leaders may merely be posturing to gain American favor, in the illusory belief that Washington is prepared to force a total Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories without any corresponding Arab move to accept Israel as a sovereign neighbor. The Palestinian extremists, moreover, are far from impotent as would-be wreckers — as continued monstrous hijackings and air terrorism threats demonstrate.

But so far, all the governments directly concerned in the old confrontation are coming forward with the kind of gestures that lead toward mutual confidence, the basic prerequisite to peace.

French Writer Fears Israeli POWs Dead

BRUSSELS — Simone de Beauvoir, the French writer, philosopher and fighter for women's liberation, said here that of the estimated 130 Israeli soldiers captured by the Syrians during the Yom Kippur War only 25 of them may still be alive. She made this statement at a press conference at the conclusion of the one-day International Conference for the Liberation of Israeli Prisoners of War in Syria, which she helped organize and which she chaired.

Ms. de Beauvoir told the press conference that of the 130 POWs "we are only certain that 25 of them are still alive, because they have been shown by the Syrians a few times" in newspapers, magazines and films. "The fact that the same group of prisoners is shown repeatedly only deepens our worst fears," she said.

Meanwhile, in addition to 15 American Nobel Laureates, academicians and internationally prominent members in the world of arts and letters who sent messages to the conference protesting the actions of the Syrian government and demanding that a list of POWs be released and International Red Cross officials be allowed to visit them,

Nobel Laureate Heinrich Boell, British playwright Arnold Wester and American actress Shelley Winters Boell who recently hosted the exiled Soviet novelist and Nobel Laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn, said in his message: "I wish success to the conference and I hope for the liberation of all the Israeli prisoners."

Bomb Explodes At Wailing Wall

JERUSALEM — A bottle filled with explosives blew up at the Wailing Wall in the Old City here, shortly after all worshippers and visitors had been evacuated from the area, the police said.

There was no damage to the wall and there were no casualties.

The explosive-filled bottle was discovered in a bag in the square before the ancient structure, sometimes called the Western Wall, which is said to be the last remnant of the Biblical Temple destroyed by the Romans in 70 A.D.

The wide square before the wall is usually crowded with worshippers and visitors but they were cleared before the explosion.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Purim, 1974

By BERYL SEGAL

You are walking on the street, any street in the USA, and you see a crowd gathering on the square. A man, obviously a member of a hate group, stands on the pedestal of a statue and spews poison on Jews.

"Jews are to blame for the Energy Crisis. Jews are responsible for the high prices. Jews make money, create shortages, and drag us into wars."

What would you do? You would tell him that he is a liar, that the Energy Crisis was predicted months and even years before the Jewish-Arab war, that Jews do not own the oil industry, the banks, the food packing houses, the meat processing establishments. And if all this does not help and he still continues his diatribe, you could tell the first policeman who sees and have him arrested for inciting to riots.

Now supposing the man is a Congressman and he spreads false rumors about Jews. You would send letters to Senators and Congressional Representatives of your state, and of your nation, and plead for the stopping of this defamation of a whole group because of the obvious grievances that this man has against a member of the group.

But supposing that the man is a member of the President's Cabinet, and he is influential in the policy making circles, and he makes it a habit of speaking in the name of the President. What would you do? What would the Jews do?

You would expose that man as a Jew hating scoundrel. You would join with other Jews and non-Jews in an effort to thwart every move of his, and to bring him down from his high position. You would do the same to all his followers, and you would not relent until the final downfall of this man and the movement he wants to start against the Jews.

That is exactly what the Jews did to Haman in the days of Ahasuerus, in the lands of Persia and Medea, some 2,400 years ago.

And this is why we celebrate Purim here in America, and in England, and in France, and in the Soviet Union, and in all the lands of our dispersion. The story is being repeated in every generation and in every land and in every clime.

Purim is, unfortunately, always an actual phenomenon.

Open the Book of Esther and let us read from the Megillah. Even though you remember the story, it would be well to read it again. Jews have read the story of Esther all these hundreds of years, on every Purim. They will read it again and again for as long as Jews survive. The story is the same, the solution is the same, and even though our enemies succeed somewhat in their schemes, at the end they are forgotten, and the Jews live to tell the world of their anguish and their eventual redemption.

What did Haman, the enemy of the Jews in Persia, say to the King?

"There is a certain people scattered abroad and dispersed among the people of your Kingdom. Their laws are diverse from those of every people. They do not keep the laws of the King . . ."

A familiar ring to Haman's words. Because we are different, it follows that we are disloyal.

The eternal logic of all Jew haters.

Child and Dependent Care

The rule that lets you deduct as an itemized deduction up to $400 a month of your expenses for care of children and disabled dependents can be extremely valuable to you. Below you will find a simplification of some of the rule's very complicated aspects and the latest 1973 developments.

In general, you can deduct within certain limits the amount you spend on household and similar care for your children under 15, or for a disabled spouse or other disabled dependent, in order to enable you (of if you are married, both of you) to go to work. Now come the technicalities.

Say you are a working widow with a 13-year-old child and a 15-year-old. You pay a housekeeper $400 a month to provide household services for your apartment so you can go to work. Is your child-care deduction limited to only a portion of the $400 a month because the maid's services are also benefiting you and your 15-year-old child in addition to benefiting your one under-15 child? The answer, says the Research Institute of America, is no. You can deduct the entire $400 without apportioning it as long as you have at least one dependent child in your household who is under 15. In 1973, the IRS made this point clear.

Can you take the child-care deduction if the purpose of your household expense is to enable you to do volunteer work or go to school? The answer is no. Your expense must be incurred in order to enable you to work or to look for gainful employment.

If you are a husband and wife and you want the deduction, both of you must be working or looking for work. It isn't enough that one of you is working and the other is attending school.

The deduction is allowed for household expenses for care of a disabled spouse or dependent. For this purpose, a person is considered disabled if he (or she) is physically or mentally incapable of dressing himself, or of providing for his hygienic or nutritional needs. Inability to perform any one of these three functions is sufficient to meet the test and the reason for the inability may be either physical or mental.

Neither your Form 1040 nor your Household and Dependent Care Form 2441 requires you to submit any proof of disability of your spouse or dependent if you take the deduction based on such care. But, urges the RIA, for your own protection should the IRS question your deduction, obtain and keep a certification by the attending physician regarding the nature and duration of the disability of your spouse or dependent.

You may have paid in 1972 for child care services performed in 1973, or you may have paid in 1973 for child care services performed in 1972.

For instance, a widow may have entered her preschool child in nursery school for a period from Sept. 1, 1972, through June 30,

Schukster, Joffe Are Names Of People Who Could Be Rich

TUSCON — A considerable "orphan fortune" is searching for collateral heirs of a family of Jewish ancestry which emanated from Vilna, Russia about the turn of the century.

This became known here when Gordon L. Cox, probate genealogist, 302 West Elm St., Tucson, Ariz., who specializes in tracing missing relatives to settle estates, took over the search with only early 20th century clues to guide him.

"What we know," Mr. Cox declared, "is that a gentleman named Isak Josef Joffe married a lady named Blume Schukster in Vilna, Russia in about 1900.

"At least one of their children, if not two, died with their mother in the Holocaust," Cox continued, "and our task is finding anyone in the United States, or elsewhere, who can trace their relationship to Isak Josef Joffe or to Blume Schukster."

"The decedent in this estate traveled from Vilna, Russia and arrived before World War II in the Helsinki, Finland area, where he did some preliminary work in the Habrew religion. Subsequently he went to London, England and it is reported he spent most of the years of World War II in that city. After World War II Joffe journeyed to Salt Lake City, Utah, then took a post in the eastern United States, from where he accepted a post in Texas, then in Kansas, and subsequently went on into Canada."

Mr. Cox said he is also searching for people who may have known members of the Isak Josef Joffe family or their relatives, and can give information concerning their whereabouts.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

I was dummy when I watched this hand being played so I saw and heard everything that went on. After it was over and I asked my partner why he hadn't taken a certain finesse he said that his left hand opponent had bid so strong that he was sure it wouldn't have worked. I advised him that if he had listened more carefully to the bidding and had taken better note of the cards that had already been played he would have thought exactly the other way, that the finesse would be sure to work. As I have stated before, too many players hear the bidding but do not listen to it and they see the cards played but do not look at them.

West was Dealer, no one vulnerable with this bidding:

W	N	E	S
1♠	1♦	1♣	1♥

There is much to comment on the bidding: First, West's Pass as the Dealer. They were not playing Weak Two Bids or she said she would have opened that way. However, if one is not then I think I would open that hand One Spade. She felt she needed at least twelve points so she passed. That Pass should have been noted later by Declarer. North, playing five card Majors, opened one Diamond and received a one Heart bid from his partner when East Passed. Now West came into the act with an overcall and North, with his sixteen points (me) jumped to three Hearts with four card support. East might have bid three Spades but decided to Pass and South with his excellent distribution should have gone on to four but didn't. He was bailed out when West decided now to compete, a bad bid with so little defense for all she accomplished was to give South another chance which he took and now bid the game.

As the cards are, game not only should be bid but an overtrick made. West, on lead, plays two high Spades, the second ruffed by Declarer. Trumps are drawn in three rounds leaving Declarer out of them and now the Club finesse is taken. He might have taken it earlier but the end result will be the same. It will work but eventually West will win the King before all the rest of the Clubs are set up. When West did win that King she played another Spade, ruffed by Dummy's last Trump, in fact the last Trump still in any hand.

It was at this point that Declarer had his contract guaranteed. All he had to do was return to his hand with the Diamond Ace and cash the remaining Clubs but this will make but four and this is what he did. When I asked him why he didn't take the Diamond finesse his answer was, "West bid so strong I was sure the finesse wouldn't work." "If I take it and it loses I will go down when they cash Spades, I'm out of Trumps." I said, "If you think a little better you will be just as sure the finesse will work not lose. Remember West did not open the bidding so no matter how strong she bids later she does not have an opening bid. Yet what has she shown up with so far? The two high Spades and the Club King, 10 points. If she also had that Diamond King she would have had at least thirteen and definitely would have opened the bidding with a long Spade suit to boot." So now where does that Diamond King have to be? Also, one more thing. At least when you do play that Diamond from Dummy play the Queen. East just might cover it and even if you have no intention of finessing it costs nothing to try that."

My partner said, "Gee, I never thought of that. I really goofed, didn't I?" I answered, "No more than most players do. Most of them fail to think correctly about these things although they should." So with the help he received from the bidding my partner should have taken that Diamond finesse very confidently and made that overtrick.

Moral: Almost every bid made and card played gives some information, some more than others. Listen to the bids and watch each card. If you do and use the knowledge these give you will be amazed how much better you will do.

Egypt's Deputy Premier Promises Greater Freedom In Trading

CAIRO — Deputy Premier Abdel Aziz Hegazi promised greater freedom today for private merchants in imports and exports and the removal of some other limitations on the private sector of the economy.

The statement by Mr. Hegazi, who is also the Minister of Economics, came as other Egyptians predicted that the Government of President Anwar el-Sadat would enact a series of liberalization measures.

Mr. Hegazi indicated that, as a long-term goal, the Government was aiming at restoring the Egyptian pound to its status as a convertible currency — one that is traded on world markets — which it lost more than 20 years ago. Immediately, foreign experts remarked that in view of the weakness of the currency, that goal was still a long way off.

Guarantees for Egyptians
 The Deputy Premier made his statement about the private sector and general economic policy at the end of four days of consultation with managers of state-controlled concerns and financial officials.

The burden of his message, according to the press, was that Egyptian citizens with capital to invest must be given the same guarantees that investors from abroad enjoy — a concept not publicly emphasized previously.

The Government has been stressing the need of foreign capital, especially from the Arab oil-producing countries, and has asserted on many occasions that these investments will be safe. The Sadat Government, these assertions hold, has broken with past policies of nationalization and expropriation.

Large Saudi Arabian holdings in Cairo, including those of the Saudi royal family, were expropriated by the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

On another area of possible liberalization, Ali Amin, the new editor of the authoritative, semi-official newspaper Al Ahram, predicted that censorship of foreign correspondents' outgoing dispatches would be lifted except for topics touching on the army. But in response to questions from reporters, the censors said that they had not yet received any such

RECORD BUDGET
 JERUSALEM — The Cabinet approved a record budget of more than IL 36 billion for fiscal 1974-75 after nearly six hours of debate during which Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir promised there would be no new taxes. The proposed budget contains IL 14.5 billion for defense needs — less than the IL 16 billion in the current fiscal budget which was swollen by Yom Kippur War needs.

PHONES DISCONNECTED
NEW YORK — As the hunger strike of three Soviet Jews in Moscow entered into its fourth day the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry reported that most of the phones of Jewish activists in Moscow have been disconnected.

According to the SSSJ, the hunger strikers issued a statement declaring, "By cutting off conversation with the outside world the KGB plans to isolate us and minimize the meaning of our hunger strike." The statement appealed "to people who sympathize with us to demand connection with the outside world." The SSSJ said it obtained this statement by calling a Soviet Jew in Moscow whose phone was abruptly disconnected as he was reading a statement to the Soviet Jewry group.

IN AAU ATHLETIC MEET: David Rosen of Rhode Island, formerly University of Rhode Island long jump champion, came in second in the AAU New England Athletic Meet held last Thursday in the Moses Brown Field House. After running neck and neck in the first five jumps, Mr. Rosen was outjumped in the final jump by John Taft of Connecticut (Yale) whom Mr. Rosen had beaten in the 1973 meet. While at the University of Rhode Island, Mr. Rosen was the all-college (students and faculty) ping pong champion. He is the son of Rabbi and Mrs. Nathan Rosen of Providence and is associated with the Outlet Company.

Journalists Protest Israeli Blackout

TEL AVIV — The Israeli Journalists Association has expressed its anxiety over the decision of the Defense Ministry to "restrict the work of journalists in fulfilling their journalistic work" in covering the Israeli withdrawal on the southern front. The Foreign Press Association in Israel has also protested against the 72-hour blackout imposed by the army authorities on covering the Israeli withdrawal.

Dayan instructed the army spokesman not to permit the presence of journalists — Israeli and foreign — on the scene when Israelis began to withdraw because such a coverage would have given the impression of a one-sided retreat. The presence of journalists will be permitted, however, when the Egyptians start thinning out their forces on the east bank of the Suez.

This decision was attacked in editorials by Haaretz and Yediot Aharonot. They stated that hiding technical facts from the public would only increase the disbelief of the public in the government's information machinery. Moreover, it provides the world with an open field for Egyptian-inspired information. Both papers claimed this decision cannot be regarded as motivated by military considerations, but is rather a politically inspired decision.

Israeli Committee To Review Sharon

JERUSALEM — The committee of inquiry into the Yom Kippur War, headed by Supreme Court Justice Simon Agranat, will review complaints against Gen. Ariel Sharon, commander of the division that broke through Egyptian lines and established an Israeli bridgehead on the west bank of the Suez Canal.

The complaints have been lodged by Gen. Shmuel Gonen, Sharon's superior, who was the target of charges by Sharon published in newspapers and magazines here and abroad after the war ended. Sharp differences of opinion over the conduct of the war developed between Sharon and Gonen and other members of the Israeli high command. Sharon publicly accused the Israeli military leadership of making battlefield decisions on the basis of politics. He himself has been counter-charged with politicking and was relieved of his command on the Egyptian front recently. Sharon, founder of Likud, was elected to the Knesset December 31.

of 21 victories and a record that reads 22-1-0. And that is a most impressive record, eh!

WRESTLERS NEVER STUMPED: When it comes to innovations in the sports world, the professional wrestlers are never found wanting. Down through the years there have been some marvelous "grunt and groaners." You watch them and ask yourself, "Did he do that — or — didn't he?" There have been "Strangler" Lewis, Earl Caddock with the "Scissors," Frank Gotch, Gus Sonnenberg and others including Maurice Tillet the "Angel" and the huge Primo Carnera. Now the pros are presenting the "Giant!" Last Saturday on TV he wrestled two heavyweights, throwing them to the mat while merely flexing his muscles. It looked like a scene from Gulliver's Travels! Let me know when "The Giant" comes into this territory, please. I'd like to watch him. — CARRY ON!

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

TIZ, TIZ! Aint it awful, Mabel? There's so much going on in the sports world, you just don't have time to get excited about the Red Sox playing their first exhibition game of the season. They were scheduled to play on Friday of this week. That means that "Spring has come" and the birds are singing in the trees etc. "It's not the way I tell," says Pat Meschino in that little restaurant in Pawtucket. "I know it's Spring when the boatmen start stopping in here between repairs and painting. They've started!"

TV ANNOUNCEMENTS: Referring to the line concerning smoking that says, "It's a matter of life or breath," conserve your breath for you'll need it. You'll need it while cheering the PC Friars on in the big NCAA Tournament and — at this writing — you may need it for the excitement concerning a Brown U basketball team in the NIT. It surely would be great if two college teams from Providence could play in the two big tournaments. And you'll also need breath for the RI Reds in their hockey playoffs. And you'll need more as you prepare for the big Soccer season that will feature the Oceaners. It seems that McCoy Stadium will be an ideal place for presenting Soccer which is one of the two greatest of all games. Baseball is the other.

THINK: Each year the Rhode Island Jewish Bowling Congress acknowledges the outstanding Jewish Athlete of the Year. The "Wally Sundlun Jr. Award," emblematic of great achievement, is presented annually at one of the biggest award banquets in this section, held in June. Right now nominations are under consideration. Qualifications follow: The recipient must be of the Jewish faith; the recipient must be either a Rhode Island resident or currently matriculating at a Rhode Island school; the award to be given to the outstanding athlete, whether male or female. Last year's winner was Estelle Wolfson, the RI Women's Golf Champion. Any thoughts? Contact Geoffrey L. Green at 272-6225 or William E. Wolf at 434-3899.

MIGHT BE: A few weeks ago, there was a story here concerning Andy Cohen, a great little second baseman who filled a terrific spot while replacing Rogers Hornsby at the keystone position for the New York Giants. Wouldn't it be great if the RI Jewish Bowling Congress gave recognition to such an athlete who didn't get too much at the time. Maybe a sort of Hall of Fame for those who have accomplished so much down through the years? And maybe, for that one, the rules on residence could be relaxed.

AN OLD ONE! The 86th annual New England AAU boxing championships are coming up on April 15 at Boston Arena. Championships will be decided in eleven classes from 106 pounders right up through heavyweights. It is said to be the longest and oldest continuous event in the country, starting back in 1888. Competition is open to entrants from all New England states and Joe Celletti is expected to be there with a delegation of Rhode Islanders. Trials start on March 18 at Wonderland Ballroom, Revere.

PROFESSIONAL INTEREST: Interest in pro boxing is centering on two events, one being the heavy-weight championship match between the title-holder, George Foreman, and the challenger, Ken Norton, on March 26; the other being the title defense by Tony Petronelli against Beau Jaynes in Boston. Petronelli is rated tenth in the nation in the Junior Welterweight Division. He has a string

Because of today's shortages and high prices, it is naturally tempting for many companies to sell more of their product to the lucrative overseas markets. This is evidenced by the absence of several popular brands on your grocer's shelves. It is our policy, however, to supply as many American markets as we possibly can — First and Foremost.

BARNEY WATERMAN

East Greenwich Native Purchases Company

Barney Waterman, an East Greenwich native and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isreal Waterman, recently purchased the Radix Wire Company in Cleveland, Ohio, along with three other present managers.

The company, which has been in operation for 29 years, was purchased from the Chesterfield Steel Service Company. Radix Wire Company specializes in the manufacture of high temperature insulated wire for appliances, lighting, air-conditioning and other electrical markets.

Mr. Waterman, who has been with the company for over 25 years, will be vice president/secretary in charge of manufacturing and development.

He is a graduate of the East Greenwich Academy and the University of Rhode Island where he received a BS degree. After graduation from URI he did research in colloidal chemistry at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and earned his master's degree in this field. He also furthered his studies in management at Western Case University in Cleveland.

Mr. Waterman was affiliated with General Dyestuff and Rhode Island Insulated Wire before going to Radix Wire Company. He now lives with his wife Rose at 4206 Silsby Road, University Heights, Ohio. The Watermans have one daughter, Mrs. Steven Cane, also of University Heights.

Another Rhode Islander to become one of the owners of Radix Wire is Walter Barney, formerly of East Providence. Mr. Barney will be president of the company.

URGES VIGILANCE

NEW YORK — The Board of Directors of the Council of Churches of the City of New York, in a resolution urging face to face negotiations in the Middle East, warned "our fellow citizens and particularly all church members, to be vigilantly on guard against the dangers of hate propaganda intended to set group against group in our country, in connection with tensions arising out of the present energy shortage."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

ROGER E. SPEAR

New Fund Name Stumps Holder

Q: A few years ago I purchased a mutual fund by the name of Berger-Kent Special Fund. Recently it has disappeared from the newspaper fund listing. Could they have changed the name? J.R.

A: Yes, in October 1973, this growth fund was renamed Fleming Berger Fund. Net asset value is currently about $8 per share, reflecting the 34% decline NAV during 1973, a sharper drop than the 22% recorded by the Lipper Index of 538 Leading Funds. No income or capital gains distributions were paid in 1973. Although the name of the fund has changed, the headquarters are still located at 899 Logan Street in Denver, Colorado.

Q: I have 100 shares of Winnebago (NYSE) which I purchased at $38. I heard a rumor that a major oil company is negotiating to buy them out. Should I hold or sell my shares? G.C.

A: Although the rumor you heard, to my knowledge, has no basis in fact, it is certainly an intriguing idea in view of the gasoline shortage. The recent sharp run-up in share price followed an announcement by the company of a newly instituted diversification program. Further fuel was added to the fire when Winnebago unveiled a prototype intracity bus model utilizing the Winnebago motor home chassis.

The company's new product orientation reflects the substantial decline in motor home sales. In the nine-month period ended last November, WGO reported a 29% drop in sales. The bottom line fared even more poorly; deficits in the 2nd and 3rd quarters pulled nine-month earnings down to 1¢ a share. WGO plans to fill new orders from existing inventory and concentrate its production efforts on filling orders for products not in inventory. A partial plant shutdown resulted. While the outlook is admittedly bleak, unless an early improvement in the oil and gas situation occurs, the shares have speculative potential from this low base. Management has demonstrated its ingenuity in adapting to these new conditions and I would hold the shares for the present.

Risks Varied In Reit Group

Q: A year ago I bought Larwin Mortgage Investors (NYSE), now quoted at half my cost. Should I hold, sell or buy more? R.S.

Q: What are the recovery prospects for MONY Mortgage Investors (NYSE)? I am a senior citizen needing income and security. J.B.

A: Recent adverse publicity on the real estate investment trust (REIT) industry has taken its toll in stock prices group-wide. While the currently unfavorable economic climate will doubtless cause a shake-out of the weaker trusts, some REITs have been less seriously hurt by industry woes than others. The single most encouraging development has been the recent drop in short-term interest rates. Both of the above-named trusts should benefit significantly from the easing in commercial paper rates.

MONY, at last report, had no problem loans while Larwin, as of 9/30/73, had less than 4% in default. However, since then a major developer on which Larwin had $5.4 million (3.6% of its portfolio) in land/leaseback equity investments, has filed under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act. While resolution of this problem may take time, eventual recovery of principal and interest is anticipated.

MONY is severely oversold, provides an excellent return and should be held. Larwin should be also held for the present. If shares sustain the current recovery move to the upper teens, sale would be advisable.

Q: Is it wise to continue holding 694 shares of Investors Variable Fund? The investment was made almost 20 years ago, but we are now retired. J.M.

A: Although you do not state your investment objective, I am sure it has changed in 20 years. Assuming that protection of capital and reasonable income are your goals now that you are retired, a change in funds would be advisable. Investors Selective Fund, a bond and preferred income fund yielding about 6%, seems to fit your situation. Your shares are exchangeable at net asset value free of charge.

New Accounting Aids Con. Adison

Q: A few year ago I bought 200 shares of Consolidated Edison at 25 3/4. My return has been about 7% tax-free on my cost. At the present market price the yield is over 9%. How sound is this? Also what is the outlook for higher interest rates on utility bonds? I.W.

A: There is no question that Con. Edison is feeling the pinch from escalating fuel costs and reduced usage by energy-conscious customers. The company reported that December earnings were $4 million in the hole and that top management had taken salary cuts. Subsequently the New York Public Service Commission allowed a change in accounting methods which created a profit for December. While the change in accounting, which permits fuel costs to be deferred to the month in which customers are billed, does not add to revenues, it more realistically deals with the rapid rate at which fuel and power costs are rising. Further indication of the PSC's recognition of the problems facing Con. Edison was demonstrated by the allowance in January of interim increases in gas and steam rates. The higher rates will add $16 million to revenues annually. Rate relief in 1973 added $190 million annually.

Based on the revised accounting method, preliminary earnings were $2.79 per share. Had the ruling been in effect in prior years, results would have been $2.34 a share in 1973 and $2.25 in 1972 when $2.07 was reported. The current dividend rate, which has been maintained since 1964, appears secure. Consolidated's capital needs, which will be heavy over the 1974-77 period, typify the dilemma faced by the industry. With stocks on the bargain counter, using equity to raise capital becomes less attractive, forcing more frequent and larger trips to the bond market. Because the visible supply of bond issues is large, prospective buyers are growing more selective. When supply exceeds demand companies are forced to make the offerings more attractive to the public, and higher interest rates are the result.

CAN LEAVE

NEW YORK — A leading Jewish activist in Kharkov, Mikhael Kurbel, 38, his son and his dying wife have been given permission to leave for Israel, the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry reported February 12. Kurbel is an engineer. The SSSJ said his wife, Adelle, is dying from multiple sclerosis, and before becoming completely paralyzed had repeatedly indicated a wish to die in Israel.

Radical Arab Editor Missing; Sheik Suspected Of Crime

JERUSALEM — At 12:30 A.M. on February 6, the 35-year-old radical editor of a muckraking Arabic weekly was dropped off by friends outside his East Jerusalem apartment.

He and his partner had just completed plans to convert their sensational weekly paper into a daily with which they planned to shake up the Arab establishment as well as the Israelis on the occupied West Bank.

But Yousef Nasr never reached his apartment that night, nor has he been seen since. His sister says that he has been kidnapped. The police concede that he may have been and say that there are no clues to his whereabouts. There is serious doubt whether he is alive.

Mr. Nasr's disappearance has stirred a political drama that reveals some of the tensions and crosscurrents on the West Bank of the Jordan. As an occupied area, administered by Israel and coveted by both the Palestinian resistance groups and King Hussein's Government in Jordan, it is a scene of perennial intrigue.

A Palestinian Nationalist

Mr. Nasr, a committed Palestinian nationalist, had sharply criticized the Israeli administration, the Jordanian Government and the West Bank's conservative Arab mayors, whom he often denounced as collaborators with the Israelis. The only political solution for the West Bank, Mr. Nasr had written, is an independent Palestinian state.

He was arrested and jailed twice by the Israelis on charges of incitement to riot.

A week before his disappearance, Mr. Nasr published in Al-Fajr — the name means The Dawn — an exposé of the allegedly corrupt administration of Sheik Mohammed Ali Jaabari, the Major of Hebron, the second largest city on the West Bank.

The article charged that Sheik Jaabari had placed many of his relatives on the city payroll and had diverted municipal funds to his own use. It also accused him of confiscating choice real estate and then selling it to a leading Israeli bank.

Close to Dayan

Sheik Jaabari, who has been Mayor of Hebron for more than 30 years, has established intimate connections with the Israeli administration. He has become a close friend of Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and recently was an honored guest at a reception for Secretary of State Kissinger in Mr. Dayan's home.

Sheik Jaabari reportedly was outraged by Mr. Nasr's article, and several of his supporters in Hebron are said to have promised to take revenge on the editor.

According to Mr. Nasr's associates, five of Sheik Jaabari's men came to the paper to threaten the editor and then, a few days later, to offer a reconciliation. The second meeting took place on the eve of his disappearance.

Mr. Nasr's sister, Mrs. Vivian Afaf Ajlouny, believes that Sheik Jaabari is behind the disappearance. Furthermore, she charges that the Israelis have not pressed their investigation because Sheik Jaabari is "Dayan's prize protégé."

She Lives in U.S.

Mrs. Ajlouny flew to Jerusalem from New York a few days after her brother disappeared. She and her brother were born and raised in Jerusalem, but Mrs. Ajlouny has lived for the last 16 years in the United States with her husband, an engineer. Mr. Nasr spent a decade in the United States and earned a master's degree in political science from the University of Illinois.

Since her arrival on Feb. 12,

Mrs. Ajlouny, who is convinced her brother is still alive, has pressed Israeli officials on his behalf. She has sought — and so far unsuccessfully — the intercession of Deputy Premier Vigal Allon, Mr. Dayan and Mayor Teddy Kollek of Jerusalem. She has also offered a $25,000 reward for any information of his whereabouts.

"The police say they have no clues," she said angrily in an interview in the newspaper's offices in Jerusalem. "I can't believe it. All the evidence points to Jaabari. But they won't touch him because he helps them keep the West Bank quiet."

Mrs. Ajlouny has met twice with Sheik Jaabari and says that he has demanded a retraction of the charges Al Fajr printed against him. She has refused.

The Israeli police say they have interrogated dozens of witnesses in the case but have no substantial clues. Police sources said that Sheik Jaabari had been questioned "unofficially."

The most important thing, in Mrs. Ajlouny's opinion, is that Israel continue efforts to find her brother. Her greatest fear, she said, is that the authorities will quietly drop the case.

"I know my brother was no friend of Israel," she said, "but just from the humanitarian point of view I hope they'll keep after this case."

JOINS WJC

LONDON — The Board of Deputies of British Jews, by a 224-28 vote, agreed to join the World Jewish Congress.

Zionist General Council Sets Anti-Propaganda Campaign

JERUSALEM — A special four-day session of the Zionist General Council ended with announcement of plans for a worldwide information campaign to counter massive anti-Israel propaganda. The session was called to study post-Yom Kippur War problems.

The campaign will stress the "absolute right" of the Jewish people to the land of Israel, Israel's aspirations for peace, and the link between the energy crisis with economic and political factors, rather than with the Mideast conflict.

The delegates noted "with regret" a drop in volunteers coming to Israel in recent months at a time when Israel needed more manpower and called on all Jewish youth to become volunteers, declaring it considered the volunteer effort a permanent program. Yitzhak Navon, chairman of the Zionist Council, declared that if the World Zionist Movement fails to organize mass immigration, "the State would be well advised to appeal directly to Jews abroad and help form groups of would-be immigrants."

The one discordant note was the boycott of the sessions by the World Confederation of General Zionists who notified the Jewish Agency that attending would conflict with their position of non-identification with political parties in Israel.

Leon Dulzin, acting chairman of the World Zionist Organization, delivered an urgent plea for aliya and improved Zionist information methods abroad.

"There can be no Zionism without aliya," he told the delegates. Referring to the "Aliya Months" currently being observed in various Western countries, Dulzin said that no one fooled himself into believing that they would lead to waves of immigration. Their aim was to put the issue of aliya squarely in the center of the consciousness of the Jewish people, he said. He scathed

REVIEW PACT
WASHINGTON — The U.S. government is reviewing the commercial agreement it signed with Saudi Arabia in 1933 to determine whether King Faisal's oil embargo against the U.S. is violating it. However, an early decision on the results of the review is unlikely. State Department spokesman Paul Hare, asked about the possibility of violations of the 40-year-old agreement that gives Saudi Arabia most favored nation treatment, said that "of course we are reviewing" the agreement. "But quite frankly," he added, "we don't consider a discussion at this stage will materially contribute to our diplomatic efforts with respect to the Geneva peace conference or the oil embargo itself."

Exorcism on the Lower East Side

The constant fear on the Lower East Side among the immigrant Jews was the fear of the evil eye, "en Horra" (representing the devil and other evil spirits), and they were always on the alert.

The major defense was to keep evil spirits safely misinformed and this soon became a constant reflex of the entire community.

One avoided mentioning the date of a birthday or the exact age of a person. When the census taker came around and asked about the age of the young son, the answer would be something like this: "He was born two days after Passover and a month after Gittel got married and a week before Uncle Shmul came to America," and leave it to the census taker to figure it out.

Also, one mustn't count because the evil eye would be listening. So when the maitre d' comes up to the banquet chairman and asks for the number of diners, the chairman counts, "not one, not two, not three," all to confuse the Evil Eye.

If a person must tell his age he would be likely to say, "40 to 120" meaning: "I am 40 years old and may I live to be 120 like Moses."

During the period before a baby is named, it is in special danger from Lilith, Adam's first wife, who wants to snatch all babies to make up for her own demon children.

If the child laughs during the night the mother must slap it quickly, for Lilith may be playing with it.

Nobody was supposed to look at the child except mother, father and granny; and if they do they must spit three times and say, "kein a horra" (no evil eye).

The evil eye could be attracted by too much staring at the baby, at its beauty or health. So if the neighbor praises the child too much he is warned by the parents: "Do not praise him too much, he may get the evil eye."

If a neighbor compliments mother on little Harry winning a prize in school, mother would immediately change the subject: "Look at the lamp, there is something wrong with it today." Or, any complimentary comment would be followed by the exclamation: "No Evil Eye."

If, in spite of precautions, a child seems to have incurred the evil eye, more drastic measures were taken. The professional exorcist would be called to talk away the "badness."

A good way to trick the angel of death is to change the name of the sick child, so when the angel comes to claim little Moysheleh he is not found. A child named Vigdor would be in Moysheleh's crib, death will not take that little one and the search will continue while Moysheleh recovers.

My mother was a sort of exorcist. If a neighbor unthinkingly said of me, "What a handsome little boy you have," I would feel my mother's hand tighten as she quickened her steps to get home. Once home she would spit three times, repeat "kein en horra," put a glass upside down and made a fig (the thumb between two fingers).

If I ran out of the house saying, "I'm going to the movies," my RECEIVES GRANT: The Miriam Hospital has been awarded a three year grant in the amount of $100,000 from the National Institute of General Medical Sciences of the National Institute of Health. The grant is being used to support studies of clinical and experimental shock and trauma, the leading cause of death in patients from the age of one to 44, and is second only to heart disease as the principal cause of death in terms of loss of years of life.

Dr. Robert W. Hopkins, above, associate surgeon-in-chief at The Miriam, is the principal investigator, and together with Dr. Fiorindo A. Simeone, chief-of-surgery, and others, has been studying clinical and experimental shock, particularly hemorrhagic and septic shock (shock resulting from infection), the metabolic changes which occur during shock and the effect of changes in the viscosity of blood on circulation and hemorrhage.

Worldwide Anti-Semitism Seen Different From Holocaust

BOSTON — Three decades after the Nazi Holocaust there is a "new worldwide anti-Semitism" based on insensitivity and indifference to Jewish concerns, according to the findings of a comprehensive study made public today by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

The analysis, written by Arnold Forster, the League's Associate Director and General Counsel, and Benjamin R. Epstein, its National Director, was released in Boston by Simon Scaff, Chairman of the New England Regional Board of the ADL, and Sol Kolack, Executive Director of the League's New England Regional Office. The analysis is based on three and a half years of ADL research. It reveals that the major difference between anti-Semitism today and the traditional kind is that the new anti-Semitism is not necessarily deliberate in character and is more often "expressed by respected individuals and institutions here and abroad — people who would be shocked to think themselves, or have others think them, anti-Semites."

This new anti-Semitism, the study also reveals, is compounded by anti-Jewish hostility from pro-Arab elements, the radical left, the radical right, black extremists, the Soviet Union, Arab nations, and movements in Europe and Latin America — all in addition to the remnants of a haterongering apparatus which has plagued the United States since the early 1920's.

The ADL spokesmen said that an apparent widespread indifference to Jewish rights was a factor in the Arab attack on Israel last October. Egypt, Syria and the Soviet Union, they said, read world opinion to be "at best openly anti-Israel and at worst 'neutral' in favor of the Arabs."

The ADL report describes the people and the politics contributing to "erosion of sympathy and friendship for Jews" and cites American domestic issues and the Middle East conflict as prime triggers of anti-Jewish hostility. It will be published next month as a book, "The New Anti-Semitism" (McGraw-Hill).

The ADL analysis states at the outset that "a clear potential for Nazi-like devastation does not exist in contemporary America." It goes on to say that even in Soviet Russia, "perhaps the world's greatest purveyor of anti-Semitism today, the situation of the Soviet Jews, onerous as it is, is a far cry from the mass physical destruction of European Jewish in the thirties and forties."

It points out, however, that Israeli Jews are in jeopardy because the Arabs' eventual goal is to destroy the Jewish State.

According to the League report, while it is possible to criticize elements of Israeli policy and action without being anti-Israel or anti-Jewish, those who call for or contribute to the destruction of Jewry's spiritual homeland are guilty of "the ultimate anti-Semitism."

The authors further suggest that "Jews have developed sensitive antennae — survival mechanisms — which warn them in advance that something is happening that is not good for Jews." They go on to say that the Jewish people today "is affected everywhere with a profound uneasiness."

The analysis includes the following as principal causes of this uneasiness:

- Anti-Israel statements, often from most respectable sources, which carry an anti-Jewish impasse; public utterances which pass for legitimate discussion of the Mideast situation but are the kitchen table, for two hours a day as an office-at-home to help with their teaching. IRS agreed that they used 20 per cent of their apartment as an office-at-home and that 20 per cent of their rent and utilities amounted to $492. But since they used the 20 per cent as an office for only two out of the 24 hours of the day, their allowable deduction was only 2/24 of $492, or $41.

The Tax Court said that IRS figured this wrong. Mr. and Mrs. Gino were away from home eight hours a day in full-time teaching jobs. They presumably spent another eight hours a day sleeping. That left only eight hours a day for possible use of the dining room and kitchen in which their office work was done.

Therefore, the proper ratio for the deductible expenses is two hours of office use out of eight hours of total use or 2/8 or $492, which works out to $123 — a lot bigger than $41 — of deductible office-at-home expense.

The IRS, ruled the Tax Court, is wrong in using the ratio of two hours out of the 24 hours of the day. The clear message to you is to follow the more liberal formula of the Tax Court in calculating your office-at-home expenses for the deduction. Also, assuming you are prepared to fight if the IRS audits your return and disallows your claim, try for this valuable deduction under the Tax Court's decision on reading-studying-working at home.

Your Money's Worth

1973. Say the tuition was $200 a month and she paid the entire $2,000 in September 1972. Only $800 of this would have been deductible in 1972 at the rate of $200 a month for the four-month period September through December 1972. The other $1,200 is treated as if it were actually paid in 1973 at the rate of $200 a month for the six months January through June 1973. It becomes part of her 1973 child-care deduction, therefore.

But now let's say that, instead of paying the $2,000 in September 1972, the widow had paid the entire amount in June 1973. In this case, she would treat $1,200 as payment at the rate of $200 a month for the period January through June 1973. She would then figure out how much of the other $800 she could have deducted in 1972 if she had paid it in 1972. Assuming she could have deducted the entire $800 in 1972 at the rate of $200 a month from September through December, she now adds this entire $800 from 1972 to her 1973 Form 2441 as a carryover at line 15.

She will deduct this $800 on top of all her allowable child care deductions for 1973. Countless hundreds of thousands of taxpayers can get great tax benefit from this deduction — with the above to guide you to its use.

Office-at-Home

If you are an employee and you read specialized literature at home to keep up with developments in your job field, this may help qualify you for an office-at-home deduction under a liberal 1973 Tax Court decision. While the IRS won't allow you, the employee, to deduct office-at-home expenses unless you are required by your employer to maintain this office, the Tax Court is one of several courts that do not insist on this employer requirement as a prerequisite for the deduction.

Instead, the Tax Court will allow the deduction if the office-at-home is "appropriate and helpful" in performing your duties as an employee even though it's not required by your employer.

In the 1973 case, an IRS tax lawyer spent two or three evenings during the week and three to five hours on weekends at home reading various tax publications about current tax developments and completing work he couldn't get done during his regular working hours at the IRS office. The IRS didn't require him to do these things at home and, therefore, it barred his office-at-home deduction. But the Tax Court upheld his deduction because the technical reading he did at home plus his overtime work at home made the office-at-home "appropriate and helpful" in performing his job.

Countless hundreds of thousands of you similarly bring hom work that you want to complete and you also read various trade, technical papers and journals at home to keep up on developments in your job field. This 1973 Tax Court case would seem to support your claim for an office-at-home deduction even if such an office is not required by your employer.

A note of caution, though: you will have to fight for this deduction if you take it and the IRS checks your return, for the IRS will disallow your claim. Even a dissenting Tax Court judge in the 1973 case felt the decision went overboard because under it "there would certainly be no professional people and very few if any business people who would not be entitled to deduct as a business expense some portion of the cost of rental of a home or the maintenance of a house."

Under another 1973 Tax Court decision, the amount you may deduct as an office-at-home expense was liberalized even in cases where the IRS agrees office-at-home expenses are deductible. The court rejected the IRS formula for allocating the home expenses between personal and office use and substituted its own formula. The difference is best understood if you look at the facts and figures in the case itself.

Mr. and Mrs. Gino were both full-time teachers, living in an apartment consisting of a bedroom, living room and kitchen. They used 20 per cent of the apartment, including the dining room table in the living room and couched in anti-Jewish language or innuendo.

- Silent acceptance by public officials and the clergy of overt manifestations of anti-Jewish bigotry.

- Anti-Semitism among black extremists who scapegoat Jews for urban ills affecting the black community.

- The appointment or funding of recognized anti-Semites in public posts in education and in federal projects.

- Radical left assaults on Israel, Jews and Jewish concerns and institutions stemming from a view of Jews as part of the "Establishment," Israel as part of "Western imperialism" and both as obstacles to the totalitarian left's revolutionary goals.

- A revival of anti-Jewish stereotyping in the media and the arts.

- Apathy toward bringing Arab terrorists and murderers to justice in Western Europe.

- The Soviet Union's use of pure anti-Semitism to accomplish its anti-Israel political goals.

- The use of blatant anti-Semitism by Arab states intent on instilling hatred of Israel in their people.

- Anti-Semitic diatribes on the floor of the United Nations.

Common Market Countries Offer Long Term Cooperation To Arabs

BRUSSELS — The nine European Common Market countries made a joint offer of long-term economic, technical and cultural cooperation to the Arab world today.

The offer was announced as Secretary of State Kissinger arrived here from West Germany to brief representatives of the Atlantic alliance, eight members of which also belong to the Common Market, on his peace efforts in the Middle East. He left for Washington after being informed in detail of the Common Market's offer.

(Mr. Kissinger commented, according to The Associated Press, that the United States does not "claim a veto" on the Europeans' relations with the Arabs although it does oppose separate arrangements on oil.)

The Foreign Ministers of the Common Market countries, who made the offer to the Arab world, took pains to emphasize both to Mr. Kissinger and to the press that their initiative was not an initiative for oil.

The last Common Market declaration on the Middle East, made at the height of the oil crisis last November, was taken by many here and in the United States as an attempt to curry political favor with the Arab countries, which supply three-quarters of European oil.

In November, under threat of an oil boycott unless they remained neutral, the members of the bloc called on Israel and Egypt to return to the lines they held before Israeli forces surrounded an Egyptian army on the west bank of the Suez Canal.

The decision to offer long-term economic and other cooperation to the Arab countries was made with the tentative agreement of the British delegation in view of the political difficulties in London, where Prime Minister Heath resigned during the day and Harold Wilson took over.

The new Common Market initiative suggests the possibility of a conference of nine European and 20 Arab Foreign Ministers — but apparently not soon.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel of West Germany, who presided at the Common Market meeting, stressed that the proposal for long-term cooperation was not intended to interfere with Mr. Kissinger's current efforts to bring about troop-separation talks between Israel and Syria, nor with the follow-up to the conference of 13 major oil-consuming countries in Washington last month.

Split in the Bloc

At that conference France split with her Common Market partners — Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark and Ireland — and refused to join in setting up a coordinating council of senior officials to plan for a meeting as soon as possible between oil-producing and oil-consuming countries.

Mr. Kissinger arrived in Bonn last night on his way home from talks in the Middle East and conferred with Foreign Minister Scheel, who briefed him on the Common Market initiative. The Secretary was reported to have reservations about the plan.

After reporting to the representatives North Atlantic Treaty Organization here on his Middle East trip, Mr. Kissinger drove to the West German Embassy, and, according to Mr. Scheel, got an explanation of the "motives and intentions" behind the European initiative.

As the American Secretary of State headed for the airport to fly to Washington, neither Mr. Kissinger nor Mr. Scheel would say what the American reaction had been. This led to speculation that it had been sharp and unfriendly.

The European initiative proposes "long-term cooperation in all fields, notably the economic, technical and cultural," — not explicitly mentioning either political or oil questions, which the French had apparently wanted to do.

The plan proposes that the Arabs begin the process by sending delegates to Mr. Scheel in Bonn. Later the Europeans and Arabs would set up working groups in the fields under discussion. Eventually, if it seems worthwhile, a ministerial meeting might be organized.

The initiative to the Arabs, in preparation for weeks, was substantially agreed on at a lower level even before the energy conference.

Mr. Kissinger also came to Brussels to discuss the status of two declarations of relations between the Europeans and the United States — one being worked out in NATO, the other in the Common Market. Both are near completion.

The Secretary said he was quite optimistic about the NATO paper on security considerations, and Mr. Scheel said that American representatives would visit Bonn in the middle of the month to look over and possibly accept the latest Common Market draft, which he reported on to the ministers today.

Mr. Scheel left open the possibility that President Nixon might visit Western Europe this spring to sign the two documents with the appropriate ceremony.

There was a tendency here to interpret the Common Market decision today as a victory for the French, who support the idea of building on existing European organizations to create a dialogue with the Arab world.

Mr. Kissinger's unenthusiastic reception strengthened this view, but Mr. Scheel was careful to explain that any new initiatives would run parallel to and not interfere with the follow-up meeting, which is scheduled to be held here next week.

End of Embargo Favored

Saudi Arabia's Oil Minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said in Riyadh yesterday, as quoted by Dow Jones, that the Arab embargo against the United States had served its purpose and should be lifted. He said Arab oil ministers would probably meet soon on the issue, and he expressed belief that Arab oil shipments to the United States would be resumed.

Brezhnev Addresses Newfoundland Jews; Denies Restrictions On Emigration

MONTREAL — Soviet Communist Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev told a group of Jewish demonstrators at the Gander, Newfoundland airport that "as many Jews as want to go to Israel may go" and that "those who are forbidden to leave the Soviet Union are enemies of the State who want to give away State secrets."

The Soviet Ambassador to Canada, V. Miroshnicenko, who was with Brezhnev, told the demonstrators, in the presence of reporters and TV cameramen, "You are all a pack of fools and all misinformed." The encounter occurred when Brezhnev and his entourage landed at Gander enroute home to the Soviet Union after an official visit to Cuba.

He was met at the airport by 10 Newfoundland Jews who carried signs reading "Let my people go." The group was led by Dr. Avram Richler and his wife, Marsha, who is chairman of the Hadassah-WIZO public affairs committee in Newfoundland.

The Canadian Minister of Transport, Don Jamieson intervened on behalf of the demonstrators and Brezhnev came to the barrier to address them. He told them that "There is no such question as hundreds of thousands of Jews wanting to leave the Soviet Union. There are only 3000 of them waiting for permission to leave," he said, adding, "But we are bothered with all the Russian Jews who want to come back from Israel."

The Jewish delegation also asked Brezhnev to intercede on behalf of Silva Zalmanson, sentenced to 10 years strict regime in the first Leningrad trial in 1970, now seriously ill. Brezhnev responded by calling her an enemy of the state who committed a criminal offense in trying to hijack an airliner and, therefore, intercession was impossible.

Solzhenitsyn's Exile

The exile decreed by the Kremlin for the Nobel laureate Alexandr Solzhenitsyn was headline news around the world.

It was headline news because of Solzhenitsyn's courage. Courage is always news, but his is of rare caliber. He won all the honors a writer can win, and he suffered all the indignities and punishment most men can bear, and yet he persevered. He insisted on describing injustice.

Victor Hugo was banished from France by Napoleon III in the 1860s for his perseverance. Emile Zola took his life in his hands by exposing the perjured testimony and rigged evidence which convicted Captain Dreyfuss. But neither Napoleon III nor the French general staff were as ruthless or as misguided as the Communist hierarchy. Napoleon III knew the difference between benevolence and tyranny and disliked Hugo for pointing it out; and the French general staff knew the difference between truth and deceit and dreaded Zola's exposing that difference.

The Kremlin does not know the difference. Terror to the Russian autocracy is as natural a process as, say, employment is elsewhere.

Solzhenitsyn's exile is unique. Had he been Chinese, he would have been matter-of-factly murdered in a counter-revolutionary pogrom. He never would have written. Had he been American, French or Italian, he might never have been heard because the populace wouldn't have listened.

But he was Russian. Throughout Russia's long, sad history, as often as the ruler have tried to isolate the mass of Russians, so often have voices penetrated.

Because he is a Russian is the reason he was heard. The Communist bureaucracy had no idea that someone would say the things he said. Solzhenitsyn argued that the very processes of government have turned life into a nightmare. Many men elsewhere have argued as much, but only as a metaphor. Solzhenitsyn proposes nothing less than transformation.

That the Russians chose to exile this voice is no indication of their humanity. In the long run they stood to lose more by his murder than he did.

Exile to Russians is particularly cruel. Boris Pasternak, the last Russian to win the Nobel Prize for literature refused to journey to Stockholm to claim his honor for fear he could not re-enter his homeland. Once out of Russia, Russians experience a diminution of their energies.

Let us hope the Russians reunite Solzhenitsyn with his family and let us praise Solzhenitsyn for ennobling the race of men.

Italians View Israeli Peace As Recognition Of Palestine

ROME — Italy called on Israel recently to pay the "bitter" price of peace — withdrawal from all occupied areas and recognition of "the national rights of the Palestinian people."

In a report to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, Foreign Minister Aldo Moro said that Israel would win Arab recognition of her inviolable existence as the price for her withdrawal.

Mr. Moro also defended Italy's policy, criticized by the United States, of seeking her own agreements with oil-producing countries in the Middle East. The state fuel agency has been dealing directly with Iran and the Arab governments since the nineteen-fifties, by-passing the multinational oil companies; such contacts have been stepped up since the October war.

France, Japan, the Philippines and other nationals have also decided to negotiate directly with Middle Eastern producing countries to secure increased supplies of crude oil. At the same time, responding to Arab demands, some of them have voiced support for the Arabs' position on the occupied territories.

Mr. Moro's statement reflected the Government's shift from "equidistance" in the Middle East to a pro-Arab policy.

Ending 'Unhappy Condition'

Discussing his call for reciprocal concessions, he said they might be guaranteed internationally, transforming the present truce in the Middle East into peace.

"A true peace," he went on, "would free Israel from her unhappy condition of being a powerful fortress besieged by an enemy becoming steadily more numerous, better armed and trained, and more determined, and would give her a chance for an important dialogue with a world no longer hostile to her."

The Foreign Minister said there might also be bitterness in the Arab camp because of the need to recognize Israel to obtain peace. However, he remarked, such an accord "would free the Arab world from the curse of a war without end, absorbing sizable technical, intellectual and moral resources."

He disclosed that Italy, had been urging Israel to reach peace with the Arabs. "What one has to give up," he observed, "is less than what one eventually finds."

Israel must yield all occupied land, Mr. Moro said, because territorial acquisitions by force are inadmissible.

Black Africans' Mid-East Position Questioned By Ivory Coast Paper

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — A columnist in Fraternité Matin, the local newspaper, questioned the wisdom of black African nations in siding with the Arabs on the Middle East conflict in exchange for the promise of an Arab oil boycott of Rhodesia, Portugal and South Africa. Similar ideas have been heard in several parts of black Africa in recent weeks.

Accents

The Fraternité Matin article titled "Treason or Calculation," raised the question whether "the Arab states have not deceived our countries and agreed among themselves that we are gullible."

Though a majority of the black African states broke relations with Israel last fall, it went on, they have felt the Arab oil embargo against the industrialized Western nations. These have included the African franc, which is used in 13 nations and is tied to the French franc, and a 30 per cent increase in petroleum prices.

The Government-owned newspaper issued a front-page disclaimer of the article the following day, saying, "This was a personal view and not the position of the Ivory Coast Government."

Not Official Policy

Doubts about the link with the Arabs are not proclaimed as an official position, at least in some cases, because the Governments put great store in African unity. But officials, diplomats and intellectuals have begun to question just how the Arab oil producers will keep their promise that black Africa will not suffer.

Their anxiety, reflected in the discussions and the occasional news items and in official visits to the Middle East and North Africa, constitutes a serious threat to the four-month-old Arab-black African accord.

A West African diplomatic source said: "We are hoping that the Arabs will do something fast, before things get out of hand." He noted that the black and Arab nations of Africa, having clashed bitterly over the Middle East conflict at an Organization of African Unity meeting last May, agreed six months later that it would be beneficial for black Africans to break with Israel in exchange for the Arab boycott against the white minority and colonialist-ruled powers in Africa.

On the diplomatic front, according to several sources, there will be serious efforts to make the Arab-black African coalition work. "It is important," one source said, "but we need more cooperation from the Arabs than we are getting."

Arabs Tour the Region

An Arab delegation has been touring black Africa in recent weeks, carrying assurances to the countries, most of which are poor. Although rejecting requests for price reductions, the producers have promised a grant of $200-million for development in the poorer countries that would help offset the higher costs.

In Abidjan, sources close to the African Development Bank, which has its headquarters here, are starting to complain that they have seen no signs of the promised grant. They say they would welcome a deposit of $200-million by the oil producers, which would mean "many positive things."

The Sudanese Foreign Minister, Mansour Khaled, who is chairman of the African group's oil committee, has estimated that black Africans will pay $1-billion for petroleum products in 1974, compared with $417-million last year. His prediction was made before the increase at the end of December.

The higher petroleum prices have hit the black Africans in conjunction with increased costs of imports and growing inflation.

African officials are wondering how much pressure can be brought to bear upon by people already committed to the Arab cause. Some are also worried that Arab countries might still be shipping oil to South Africa.

Meanwhile, the black Africans have stepped up their own searches for oil, many taking new looks at deposits found years ago but abandoned as too costly.

Israeli-Syrian Settlement Seen On The Middle Eastern Horizon

DAMASCUS, Syria — A sense that a settlement of the long conflict with Israel is now inevitable appears to be emerging here, despite the tough terms laid down for peace and the continuing outbursts of anti-Israeli feeling.

A visitor to Syria senses the expectation of peace in conversations with officials and citizens, even though most still express harsh grievances against the Israelis. Progress made by the Egyptians in achieving an Israeli pullback is considered a compelling precedent for the Syrian front. Rarely now do Syrians talk about the need to prepare for yet another war with Israel.

With Egypt out of the battle and shifting her priorities to economic and social development, it is conceded that Syria cannot fight Israel alone.

Kissinger Raised Hopes

Hopes were high among Syrians when Secretary of State Kissinger left here last week for Israel with President Hafez al-Assad's proposals for separation of the opposing forces on the Golan Heights and a list of Israeli pilots and soldiers captured in October.

The Syrian decision to turn over that list was considered a gesture of serious intent. The Syrians, hoping that resulting anxieties in Israel would weaken resistance to the Syrian terms for disengagement, had been reluctant to divulge the number and identities of the prisoners.

The Israeli response was short of what Syria had hoped for. But in announcing that President Assad had rejected the response, a Syrian spokesman emphasized that the President had submitted counter-proposals.

'Keep the Process Going'

After midnight, following the four-hour meeting between Mr. Assad and Mr. Kissinger, George S. Vest, Mr. Kissinger's spokesman, stressed that both men "had agreed to keep the process going."

The Syrians seem confident that in "the process," they will achieve terms more to their favor than those brought from Israel by Mr. Kissinger — withdrawal from the Golan territory overrun last October, Syrian civilian administration of the recovered area and a United Nations peacekeeping force on the Syrian side.

The Syrians insist on an Israeli commitment, in a final settlement, to quit all of the Golan heights; that is the maximum position. As a minimum, they feel they must at least recover the city of El Qunneitra, inside the territory taken by Israel in 1967.

A Shift on U.N. Resolution

An important measure of change in the Syrian attitude involves the United Nations Security Council's Resolution 242 of November 22, 1967, which calls for Israeli pullbacks and guarantees of territorial integrity.

Syria rebuffed the resolution after it was adopted. But Damascus policy now implies recognition of the resolution, which in turn implies acknowledgment of the existence of Israel.

Defense Minister Mustafa Tias has written, in a book being printed in part by the Beirut newspaper An Nahar, that since Mr. Assad replaced Nureddin al-Atassi as President in 1970, Syria has shown a new attitude toward Resolution 242. Since then, he wrote, she has discontinued the "hysterical stand that rejects any resolution adopted by the world community for the sake of rejection." Now, he adds, Syria takes "a mature stand based on the requirement of the present situation."

ATTEND CEREMONY

BUDAPEST — Seven top Communist Party officials, along with members of the Jewish community, attended a ceremony commemorating the Russian liberation of Jews from the Budapest "ghetto" in World War II. In what some observers called a rare happening in Communist countries, the party officials accompanied the group to the synagogue of Budapest, where the ceremony ended.

Income Tax Refunds are ready-made savings.

Your income tax refund is ready-made savings—ready to be tucked away as a nice lump-sum payment on tomorrow.

It's probably what you've had in mind all along, isn't it? Getting this far without missing the money, and then making sort of a giant step toward whatever it is you're saving for.

One of the easiest ways to make sure you really do it, of course, is to take your refund check and turn it into a Series E Savings Bond. (Or maybe several Savings Bonds!) Now E Bonds earn 6% interest, compounded semiannually, when held to maturity of only 5 years (4½% the first year). Your money is guaranteed safe—Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen. And, speaking of income tax, you may defer the payment of Federal tax on your E Bond interest until you cash your Bonds or they finally mature. (And the interest is exempt from state and local income taxes!)

So don't miss such an ideal opportunity to add to your savings. Turn your tax refund check into growing Savings Bonds dollars today. You'll be doing something nice for your future.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK — Jane Powell, star of Irene, discovered a pirate record label on which a collection of her songs from her previous albums has been released, without her knowledge or consent ... Lynn Redgrave, now rehearsing for her new Broadway show, My Fat Friend, described her happiest show business memory: "The day I got my first good notices for a film — and not one critic mentioned my sister."

The MGM lion, which appears at the beginning of That's Entertainment, the new musical retrospective, will not give his traditional roar. Instead, he'll sign — nostalgically ... John Avildsen finished directing Zero Mostel in the movie Four Play and will fly to Nashville for Burt Reynolds' next film, W. W. & The Dixie Dancekings. He told how he controlled temperamental actors on the set: "By yelling, stamping my feet and screaming."

"And if that doesn't work, I talk to them politely."

At Zero Mostel's suggestion, James Joyce's biography will precede his in the Who's Who in the Cast section of the Playbill for Ulysses in Nighttown which opens this month. It's the first time, Playbill says, the star of a show has not had the lead biography in a show's program ... Fred Kulow, importer of the new Swiss soft drink, Rivella, returned from a promotion tour in Miami Beach. "I always wanted to put a sea shell to my ear," he said.

"But instead of hearing the ocean, a voice whispered to me: '$50 a day without meals.'"

Terrence McNally, whose comedy Bad Habits is now at the Astor Place Theater, recently visited Yale, where he has a CBS fellowship in playwriting. His students gave him a new typewriter and a year's supply of memo pads, so he can begin work on a new play ... The producers of Fashion, written in 1845 by Anna Cora Mowatt, America's first woman playwright, are planning a party in her honor, and will invite leading Women's Libbers to the McAlpin Rooftop Theater.

Marshall Efron, who hosts a CBS-TV Sunday program for children, formerly starred on WNET's Great American Dream Machine show. He returned to the educational network to aid its current fund-raising drive. Efron, who helped raise $37,000 in a previous campaign, explained how he convinces people to contribute: "Whine and beg and cajole. If you do that long enough they'll donate — just to get you off the air."

Joel Grey, who opened at the Waldorf's Empire Room recently, played on the company's softball team when he starred in the stage version of Cabaret. During the game, Grey — who batted right-handed — posed for a cameraman hitting left-handed, saying: "It's my good side" ... When he later portrayed George M. Cohan in George M., he said: "I know I'm getting good in this role. I've received my first St. Patrick's Day gift."

Singer-pianist Hazel Scott, who started an engagement at Jimmy Weston's March 4, recently returned from a tour of Israel where she entertained troops and disabled veterans. While she sane near one battlefield outpost, a soldier recognized her and yelled: "You've sung in as many foxholes as we've fought in. Now you're one of us" ... Walking Tall the new movie about a corruption-fighting Tennessee sheriff, will be made into a TV series for the 1975 season.

Singer Thelma Carpenter was at the Pub Theatrical, where pianist-singer Danny Apolinaire is now performing. The two entertainers, who hadn't seen each other since they worked together as child tap dancers at the 1939 World's Fair, gave an impromptu version of their old routine ... Ed Feldman, who produced Save the Tiger, for which Jack Lemmon was nominated for an Oscar, will next make The Other Side of the Mountain, about skier Jill Kimmont, crippled en route to the 1956 Winter Olympics.

Gloria Loring, the singer now performing at the St. Regis Maisonette, said she inherited her interest in music from her father, who played with both the Dorsey Brothers: "He played two things with them — the trumpet and poker" ... Chuck Barris, producer of the TV game show, Treasure Hunt, took his own photograph by remote control — for the picture on the dust jacket of You and Me, Babe, his first novel to be published by Harper's Press.

$120,000 Sought To Keep Peace Ship Broadcasting

NEW YORK — Abie Nathan sat in the commercial hotel off Times Square and smiled as he remembered the brief career of his Peace Ship in the Middle East last year.

"When I look back, it was a beautiful thing," said the ebullient advocate of love and moderation, talking of the floating radio station that broadcast to Arabs and Jews last summer and fall, and through the Yom Kippur war.

"Every night at sunset we had the classical hour," Mr. Nathan said, laughing softly at the thought of it. "We'd tell everybody to stop what they were doing and look at the sun and the sky and the sea. It's the greatest show on earth, and it's all free."

Friday nights there was rock music for the young people on both sides of the conflict.

"We found out the Arab kids and the Jewish kids like the same music," Mr. Nathan said. "We got requests for the 'Moody Blues' from Cairo, and we got requests for the 'Moody Blues' from Tel Aviv."

Seeking Funds Again

Mr. Nathan, one of the most quixotic figures produced by 25 years of Arab-Israeli fighting, is back in the United States seeking contributions to keep the Peace Ship afloat and broadcasting. He spent nearly four years here painstakingly raising the $300,000 to refit the 180-foot coastal freighter for broadcasting, and now fears he might have to give up his dream.

"It's incredible how little we need for what we can accomplish," he said. "For $120,000, we can keep the ship running for a year. That's less than one per cent of the cost of one fighter plane."

Mr. Nathan is a 46-year-old Israeli who was a fighter pilot for the British in World War II, than had careers in Israel as a restaurateur and art dealer before turning to peace. He first won attention in 1966 by flying alone in an ancient bi-plane from Israel to Egypt to try to convince the leaders of the two countries to sit down and talk.

Devoted to the Cause

Since then, he has devoted all of his time and much of his fortune to the cause. His view is that hard-liners on both sides of the conflict have been allowed to put forth their views on war and confrontation without permitting attempts at mutual understanding.

Broadcasting in Israel and in the Arab countries is controlled by the Governments, and Mr. Nathan regards the stations as nothing more than instruments for propaganda — what he calls "screaming and screaming." His white-painted radio ship is an attempt to provide a voice of moderation for both sides, encouraging dialogue instead of one-sided speeches.

It took Mr. Nathan four years to raise the money here and in Europe. Volunteers from peace groups helped, but often he found himself working alone in what seemed a hopeless cause. It took a hunger strike by him to attract attention and raise the last $48,000 needed to send the ship on its way.

Broadcast 3,000 Hours

The Peace Ship, with a volunteer crew, began broadcasting in the Mediterranean last May. Mr. Nathan estimates that its 50,000-watt transmitter can reach 30 million Arabs and Jews. The station was on the air for 3,000 hours before the money ran out last November.

The station pirated news from the international services and stations like the B.B.C. for re-broadcast with interspersed comments. During the war, Mr. Nathan said, he would try to lessen the tension by broadcasting funny items or news about Elizabeth Taylor or Princess Anne instead of concentrating on the fighting.

There was a lot of music. Once, the station broadcast 48 straight hours of the Beatles, followed by 24 hours of Israeli music and 24 hours of Arab music.

Mr. Nathan remembered one time when the Peace Ship was standing off Port Said during the mammoth tank battles in the Sinai Desert.

"Out there in the darkness you could see the flashes of the guns," he said, "and we were playing music and telling people that the generals and the politicians were just finding excuses to use their war machines."

Arab Guerrillas Admit Killings

CAIRO — Eight Arab guerrillas accused of killing the American Ambassador to the Sudan, his aide and a Belgian diplomat have confessed to the killings and will be brought to trial in the Sudan on Saturday, diplomatic sources said.

The diplomats were killed one year ago Saturday, 26 hours after Black September guerrillas took them hostage during a reception at the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum, the Sudan.

The guerrillas had demanded the release from jail in the United States of Sirhan B. Sirhan, the convicted killer of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, and several prisoners in Israeli, Jordanian and West German jails.

When President Nixon refused to negotiate with them, the guerrillas shot the United States Ambassador, Cleo Noel Jr.; the outgoing American charge d'affaires, George C. Moore, and Belgian charge d'affaires, Guy Eid.

They then released the Saudi Arabian Ambassador, Abdulla al-Malhouk, and the Jordanian charge d'affaires unharmed and surrendered to Sudanese authorities.

Ten Palestinian guerrillas were originally charged, but a driver and a radio operator for the Palestinian Liberation Organization were later released for lack of evidence.

A Sudanese Government spokesman reached by telephone in Kartoum today said that he thought the trial would be closed to the press and the public.

A diplomatic source in Khartoum said that all eight Arabs had reportedly admitted that they shot the three men. The source said that a magistrate had ordered a trial after a brief hearing today. Palestinian sources in Cairo also reported that the guerrillas had confessed.

One Sudanese source predicted that the trial would be delayed by further legal matters.

FLEET VANISHING

HAIFA — Israel's once proud passenger fleet is rapidly becoming a vanishing species, headed for extinction. ZIM's passenger services are to be discontinued, with operating losses for 1973 an estimated IL 9 million and projected losses for 1974 a minimum of IL 15 million. The prognosis for the future is even bleaker. Factors bearing on this picture are the escalating costs of fuel, labor and depreciation.

The Treasure Chest

Of Outstanding Offers and Opportunities

By Alan Shawn Feinstein

Hello, my friends, here's what I have for you this week: lots of good things you can get — and, for a change, none of them have anything to do with money. (Considering what inflation has been doing to it lately, I thought a rest from that subject and news about other fields might be welcome.)

First, for the young at heart: Did you ever wonder what makes some people so popular and well liked? For your free copy of Beauty Is . . . write to Sea Breeze Laboratories, Inc., 3126 Forbes Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15213.

Now, for mothers and kids: A recipe booklet that should interest you: Favorite Cookies from Other Lands. For your free copy write to The Nestle Company, Inc., 100 Bloomingdale Road, White Plains, New York 10605.

Now, for everyone: A first aid chart to hang in your medicine cabinet. Lists many first aid treatments and the supplies you should have. Guaranteed to come in handy. For your free copy write to Prudential, Box 36, Newark, New Jersey 07101. And one very inexpensive item you should have in your cabinet is baking soda. It has a veritable wealth of uses — from soothing burns to deodorizing to putting out fires and stomach aches. Want to learn about all its uses? Write to Mr. Theodore Sills, 777 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

Anyone in your family suffering from hay fever, asthma, bronchitis or tuberculosis? You can get a free booklet on how to combat these respiratory ailments by writing to National Tuberculosis Association, 1790 Broadway, New York, New York 10019.

That's it for now. But wait until you see what next month brings.

President Of El Al Sees Tourist Boom

NEW YORK — Mordechai Ben-Ari, president of El Al Israel Airlines, reported here that tourism and air traffic to Israel had recovered almost completely since the Yom Kippur War and predicted that Israel is "on the verge of a great tourism boom." He forecast a 15-20 per cent increase in Israel's tourist traffic in 1974.

Ben-Ari said the "tremendous upsurge of tourism" would come from the U.S. and Canada as well as Europe. He said that "tourists have become interested in Israel again on the assumption that a recurrence of hostilities is very unlikely" especially after the disengagement accord with Egypt. He reported that air traffic and tourism began to recover as soon as the Yom Kippur War ended and at a faster pace than after the 1967 Six-Day War.

According to Ben-Ari, the two major sources of the anticipated tourist boom are "groups and individuals of Jewish organizations who come to Israel to demonstrate their solidarity" and Christian pilgrims who "have an attachment to the Holy Land" and "believe in Israel" and its liberal policy with regard to the holy places of all faiths. Ben-Ari said the increase from the second group has so far exceeded expectations.

Tay-Sachs Screening Held In New York

NEW YORK — Screening for carriers of Tay-Sachs Disease continued Sunday at Congregation Adath Jeshurun, York and Ashbourne rds., Elkins Park.

The testing is part of the Tay-Sachs prevention program at Thomas Jefferson University, established in 1972 by the Delaware Valley Chapter of the National Tay-Sachs and Allied Disease Association.

The Tay-Sachs prevention program, directed by Dr. Laird Jackson, head of medical genetics at Thomas Jefferson University, includes screening in various communities throughout the area to identify carriers of the Tay-

Sachs gene, genetic counseling and follow-up service.

Tay-Sachs is an inherited genetic disorder in young children causing progressive degeneration and destruction of the nervous system. It is especially prevalent among Jews with Ashkenazic heritage. One out of every 30 Ashkenazi Jews is a carrier of Tay-Sachs Disease.

Volunteers to staff the testing will be needed in order to insure the program's success. For those interested in participating in this community testing, a volunteer orientation was held this week, at Adath Jeshurun.

Egyptian Jewish Cantors Recite Kaddish For Israelis

KANTARA, EGYPT — Two Egyptian Jewish cantors recited the traditional kaddish for a number of Israeli soldiers killed in the Sinai during the Yom Kippur War.

The funeral ceremonies were conducted by Aharon Yona and Menasseh Abraham Mori from Alexandria, under the watchful eyes and permission granted by Egyptian General Adli Sharif in the company of representatives of the International Red Cross.

Following the funeral rites, the bodies were delivered to officials of the Israel army for burial in Israel.

Israel is seeking the remains of some 90 of her men in Sinai who are still listed as "missing in action" as a result of the war.
