Jewish Community Center Plans Discussion On 'Holocaust' Theme

"Holocaust" an original nine and one half hour dramatization, will be telecast on NBC over four consecutive nights this month, Sunday, April 16, 8 to 11 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, April 17 and 18, 9 to 11 p.m.; and Wednesday, April 19, 8:30 to 11 p.m.

In a concerted effort of cooperation, 15 major national Jewish organizations have produced a program kit of educational materials to help local agencies use the NBC broadcast as part of an educational program about the holocaust. Rhode Island community leaders are making use of this kit as a guide and as source material. At the Jewish Community Center of Rhode Island a 12 member committee headed by Carl Feldman has been working with Center staff member, Bobbie Carichner, to create a four part Holocaust program for this month as a beginning of what the committee sees as an ongoing educational effort.

The entire community is welcome to participate in any part of this program.

During the four evenings of the NBC telecast no regular Center programs will be held, as the community is invited to the JCC at 7:30 p.m. each evening to discuss and watch the docudrama. Discussion leaders for these evenings include Carl Feldman and Max Millman, who teach Holocaust studies to teens.

For those who watch the drama at home and for parents who will be guiding their children through this experience, the Center has printed the home viewing guide and guides for parents of young children and teens from the program kit. Copies are available at the Center.

One week after the broadcast on Wednesday, April 26 at 7:30 p.m. there will be a panel discussion titled "Holocaust: A Topic for Today," with Rabbi Joel Zaiman of Temple Emanu-El; Judith Sternberg Newman, Auschwitz survivor and author, and Carl Feldman as moderator.

The final program in the series, planned by the Center's young singles club, Mixers, will be a viewing and discussion of the film "Diary of Anne Frank" on Sunday, April 30 at 1 p.m. The discussion leader for the afternoon will be Edith E. Grant who teaches Holocaust studies at Temple Sinai.

FASHION SHOW: Mrs. Frederick Levinger, chairman, left discusses plans for The Miriam Hospital Women's Association's April 17 fashion show and luncheon at a kickoff meeting at her home. The event, entitled "Noon on Newbury Street," will feature fashions by Fiandaca, noted Boston couturier, and furs by Ludwig. It will be held at the Venus de Milo in Swansea, Massachusetts. Proceeds will buy heart monitors for the hospital.

Reservations may be made by calling 274-3700 from 9 to 11 a.m.

Appeals Court Passes Ruling On Nazi March

CHICAGO (JTA): A Federal Court of Appeals ruling here last week which ended a 45-day stay against a planned Nazi march in suburban Skokie left unaffected a Skokie village ordinance which will make it impossible for the tiny Nazi party to stage its march on April 20, Hitler's birthday.

The 6-to-2 ruling by the full court for the Seventh Circuit here reversed an earlier decision by a three-judge panel of the court which had sustained an injunction granted March 17 by Judge Bernard M. Decker of the U.S. District Court in Chicago.

Decker ordered the temporary ban on the march to allow Skokie officials time to appeal his earlier ruling holding unconstitutional three Skokie ordinances passed last year when the Nazis first announced plans to march through Skokie, wearing Nazi uniforms and swastikas, home of 7000 Holocaust survivors.

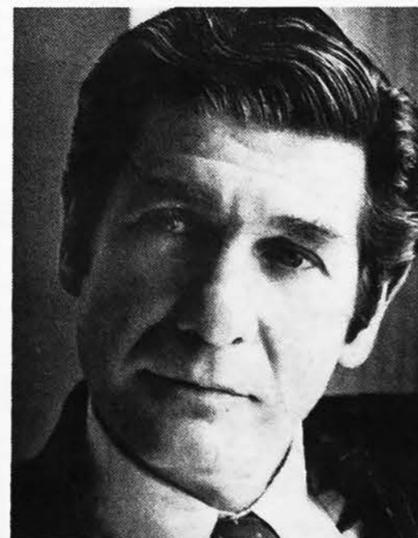

A Skokie Ordinance Not Rejected

But a Skokie ordinance which the Circuit Court did not reject, requires that applications for a parade permit be made at least 30 days before a march. At the time Decker ordered his stay, the Nazis had not applied for a permit and have still not done so. Sources here said that no matter what happens to all the legal tests arising from the projected march, it cannot be held without the Nazi 6 getting the required permit.

The contested ordinances banned groups that preached hatred or wore military style uniforms to march, or to pass out hate literature. and also required any group planning to demonstrate to have $300,000 in liability insurance.

The appeals court said in its decision it would rule within 30 days on the Skokie village appeal against Decker's ruling that the three ordinances violated constitutional rights of free speech, freedom of assembly and equal protection under law. The court took note of the fact that the Nazis had not applied for a march permit and said that the stay "appears unnecessary." The appeals court said it would hear all arguments in the case on April 14.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

DAVID R. SARGENT

Long Term Investing Pays Off
Q: My husband and I own 14 different stocks, some purchased as early as 1954. Even with the market decline, we still have sizable capital gains. Splits and dividend increases over the years are now giving us dividends that yield over 10% on our costs. Would you look over our enclosed list and tell us if we need to make any changes, or if we should just stand pat? H.T. Michigan

A: Yours is a living example of my investment philosophy. By buying good quality growth stocks and holding them, you can sit back and enjoy a gradually increasing flow of dividend income in later years. Among your holdings are such NYSE-listed stocks as Schering-Plough, which has achieved an annual dividend growth rate of close to 15% in the last decade, and International Business Machine with a 21% rate. All of your 14 stocks have shown consistent dividend growth ranging from 3% to 21% per year in the last decade. And, 12 of them have boosted dividends 7% or more annually. This process is continuing—Eagle Picher jumped its payment 12% in February and Phillips Petroleum raised its by 20% in January. I would certainly recommend that you stand pat and enjoy the excellent returns you are reaping on your portfolio.

Q: Is this a good time to sell nonconvertible preferred stock? I hold Indiana, Michigan $12, Niagara Mohawk $11.75, Kansas Power & Light $2.23, Pacific Gas & Electric $1.96 and Texas Eastern $2.87. Every time I buy a new issue as I did with Pacific Gas & Electric, it goes down. Why? M.R. California

A: With interest rates up substantially and possibly moving higher, this is not the best time to sell preferreds. Your holdings are all down about 10% from earlier highs made when interest rates were considerably below the current levels. When Pacific Gas & Electric M Preferred was initially offered, it was at a yield of 7.8%. It has dropped because rates have risen and, at the present price, it yields 9%, in line with the return on similar quality fixed income securities. Your other four stocks were initially offered in high interest times, consequently are still trading at premiums over their original issue prices. Why not hold and enjoy the very generous yield on your preferreds? It is more than would be available in other market sectors.

Specialty Steelmaker A Risk Buy

Q: I have a good profit in Nucor Corporation (NYSE); should I take it? I am concerned that it will run into the same trouble that the big steel companies have faced. H.U. Indiana

A: Unlike the carbon steel producers, makers of specialty steel fared very well last year. The industry has benefitted from import quotas imposed in 1976 and extended this January. Nucor is the outstanding producer in this industry, dominating the steel joist market. Operations are concentrated in the fast growing Sunbelt and its plants and equipment are ultramodern. And, operating with a non-union work force, Nucor is the lowest cost producer in the industry.

Last year earnings surged 40% to $4.03 a share, allowing the company a 30% annual compound growth rate for earnings in the last decade. Management has predicted a substantial gain in first quarter profits. Full year net could surpass $5.00 a share. An eventual slowdown from this fast paced growth is inevitable. However, considerable new capacity, most of which was financed internally, and expansion into other product lines should enable future profits to make above average progress. I would buy rather than sell these speculative shares.

Q: Could you recommend a couple of good quality bonds with reasonable yields, selling below par? My intention is to preserve capital for about ten years and I would just as soon get some of the income at the other end as a capital gain. B.V. Wisconsin

Your proposal makes very good sense from a tax saving standpoint. By accepting less interest in the holding period and realizing a capital gain at maturity, you should pay less in taxes on this type of investment. Two AA-rated issues which fit your needs are GMAC 6 1/4s of 1988 and Pacific Gas & Electric 4 3/4s of 1988. The GMAC issue trades at around 86 to yield 7.3% currently and 8.3% to maturity. Pacific Gas & Electric 4 3/4s, at its price of 73, yields 6.0% currently and 8.4% at maturity.

Central Securities Market Slow To Materialize

Q: What has happened to the idea of a central securities market which I have read about in the past? Would this be a benefit to the individual investor? P.B. Montana

A: The idea, first presented by the Securities and Exchange Commission seven years ago, has been slow to materialize. However, some progress has been made toward the establishment of a national market. In 1975 Congress amended the securities laws mandating the SEC to move forward in implementing its idea. The general objective of the SEC is to establish a nationwide market system so that all investors would have their orders executed in whichever market provided the best price.

In order to meet this broad goal, the SEC set a September 30, 1978 deadline for plans to be brought forward by the industry on three major SEC objectives. These are: a nationwide system linking all existing markets; a method of routing all broker/dealer orders to all markets so that execution could be at the best possible price; and a central file linked to all exchanges and the NASD for the storage and best execution of all limit orders. There are numerous stumbling blocks in the way,

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

Remember!

By BERYL SEGAL

The National Broadcasting Company-TV is announcing a nine hour documentary named "Holocaust". It will be given prime time on affiliated stations in the U.S. and Canada and promises to be of utmost importance to the Jews and non-Jews alike.

The program comes at a time when our enemies here and abroad deny the Holocaust altogether. They call it an attempt of Jews to put the Nazi regime in a bad light. In books and in "scientific" historical papers they flood the market with "proof" that the Holocaust and the slaughter of six million Jews are Jewish propaganda.

The Ukrainians have a saying: "They hit me and don't even let me cry." We cry, oh, how we cry, all of us who are the survivors of the death camps of Germany, and all of us who had dear ones in Auschwitz and Buchenwald and Bergen-Belzen and in hundreds of small towns in Poland and Ukraine who are buried in common graves. We cry at the most unexpected times and places. And we cry even more at the desecration of the memory of the victims of the Holocaust at the hands of the heirs of the Nazis. We are not swayed by Nazi lies, not even when written by professors.

Let there are Jews who say maybe we exaggerate, and non-Jews who begin to doubt the horrors of the Holocaust, doubt them because the human mind cannot fathom the cruelty and inhumanity of it, and also for us who must not forget what the Nazis did to us, the series of the NBC-TV to be aired on April 16 through April 19 is a must. Find out when the local stations will present the documentary, and don't turn the dial to another station.

The Jewish Welfare Board has published a mimeographed guide to the special broadcast. You may obtain a copy of this guide either through the Jewish Community Center or through your synagogue. Perhaps you will want to see the program as it comes to your screen without previous preparation. But by all means see it, see all of it, and steel yourself to its horrors. It will not be an entertaining program. In fact, you may wipe away a tear, and feel ashamed and angry and curse everything and everybody in your helplessness.

A brief summary of the documentary is culled from various sources, some from people who had a preview of the broadcast.

"Holocaust" is the story of a Jewish physician and his family who are victimized by the Nazis. Paralleling the tragedy of this Jewish family is the story of a German lawyer and his ambitious wife who join the SS and become the planner of the extermination of the Jews. The Jewish physician's family is involved with another Christian family to whom they are related by marriage, their son having married the daughter of the Dorf family.

These are the principals in the play. The Weiss family of the Jewish physician, the Dorf family, the lawyer who joins the Nazi machine, and the Holmes family who suffer and perish because of their association with the Jews. Other characters weave in and out as the play unfolds, and each personifies the thoughts of the persecuted and persecutor in those horrible years between 1935 and 1945, a decade that will never be forgotten.

We will meet Moses, a Polish born brother of Dr. Weiss, who is joined with his brother in the Warsaw Ghetto.

Helena, a Czech partisan who saves the life of Rudi, the son of Dr. Weiss, teaches him about Zionism and the Jewish people, things he never heard at his father's house.

There is Inga Holmes, married to Karl Weiss, who will pay with her life for her love for Karl.

Among the "good Germans" is Kurt, the uncle of Mr. Dorf, the lawyer turned Nazi. He builds roads for the Nazis and uses his position to save some Jews.

Also Father Lichtenberg speaks out against the Nazis and is persecuted for it.

The play also presents Resistance Fighters which gives the lie to the stories about Jews being led to slaughter like sheep.

Now, we are advised to have our children see the TV series. The Jewish schools are teaching about the Holocaust. It will not be new to them. Let them see a play about the Holocaust in a family setting. Seeing it with you will afford the opportunity to discuss the Holocaust with your children.

Zechor, Remember, is a part of Jewish consciousness. Remember our enemies and do not forget our friends. This is how we have survived these thousands of years. This TV play may be one of the means of remembering.

A note of local interest:
 The Jewish Community Center is cancelling all activities during these broadcasts and welcomes all to come for a coffee, tea and pastry before the show goes on. A discussion on the subject of the "Holocaust" will take place preceding the telecast. The JCC staff will gladly give you the time and place of the discussion groups.

Are Tax-Exempt Funds For YOU?

Q: Are tax-exempt municipal bond mutual funds—popularly called munifunds—for you?

A: Yes. IF you report at least $16,000 in taxable income on a joint return or $12,000 on a single return, earn enough to maintain a regular investment program — AND avoid undue risks by restraining your greed for the highest possible annual returns and vow instead to invest only in quality funds.

Q: Are unit investment trusts—popularly called UITs—for you?

A: Yes. IF you, too, have at least the same level of income so tax-free investments make sense, plus enough of a nestegg to meet the minimum investment requirements of $1,000 to $5,000—AND you also strictly obey the basic rules on greed and quality.

If anything, my report to you today is belated, for in recent years, you have been pouring your excess cash in mounting volume into these funds rather than into funds that concentrate on stocks. What's more, the age of investors in tax-exempts has been falling steadily, dramatizing the fact that younger Americans with middle incomes have been switching to these investment mediums side by side with the traditionally older, wealthy investor.

In the past five years, for instance, a John Nuveen & Company study discloses that the average age of investors in its UITs has dropped a full 11 years, from 60 to 49. And these figures are almost surely conservative since the UITs are limited to investors who could meet the $1,000-to-$5,000 minimum investment requirement.

The trend toward younger ages is probably even more striking in munifunds because minimum investments in these can be as low as $100 for the initial investments with subsequent additions of $25.

The difference between the two types of tax-exempt investment mediums is fundamentally this:

*Each UIT is actually a separate trust, with a fixed portfolio of bonds. Though bonds may be sold from the portfolio, if creditworthiness is adversely affected, no new bonds can be bought to replace them. In short, once the UIT acquires the bonds, it holds them to maturity, thereby assuring you a stable rate of return.

UITs were established as far back as 1961. Leaders among the firms offering the units are Merrill Lynch, John Nuveen, Dean Witter, E.F. Hutton, Paine Webber. There are many others, of course.

*A municipal bond fund follows the basic strategy of buying and selling its investments, just as a stock mutual fund does. The funds are "managed" and your return can vary as well as the protection you are given against loss of principal.

Munifunds first appeared in late 1976 and immediately took off, with 34 investment companies in the field now and two new funds just developed—one by General Electric for its employees, another by the American Medical Association (AMA) for physicians. Leaders offering

PLANS FOR PASSOVER

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at Brown and RISD has offered its students three ways to celebrate Passover.

There will be a Seder at Hillel House which can accommodate a large group of students. The Campus Seders provide smaller groups of students with "portable" Seders to take back to their residences.

The third alternative is the home Seder, when residents ask students to their homes. According to Rabbi Richard Marker, director of Hillel, the idea of students participating in Seders at private homes in family settings, brings them closer to the real essence of the holiday celebration.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Sometimes the opponents defend in such a way that you have to change your normal way of thinking. Believe it or not quite often what you have now decided to do was really always the best line of play. In today's hand the lead plus the holding of certain key spots should have steered alert Declarers toward a better line of play. Had they considered all the facts they should have played the hand with that in mind all the way. Only one Declarer did and was justly rewarded for his fine effort.

played at four Spades. Two pairs did get there. The others were all over the place, some in two Spades, others in one No Trump or even three No Trump. Those who played the hand in Spades never came to ten tricks. They should have. They might have been better able to see their way clear if they were able to back up to replay the hand after they tried to draw Trumps. The play to make nine tricks now was the same they could have used early enough for their ten.

I grant that most players will not see what they should do. However, the opening lead of the Club King starts the proceedings in the right direction for Declarer even though he will at first become alarmed. Remember I have so often said ruffing in the hand with the long trump suit doesn't really gain any tricks. This is true unless a Crossruff comes in or what is called a Dummy Reversal. The latter means that you ruff in the long hand and draw Trumps with the short. Note what happens here if Declarer sets out to try to do that. He has the right cards in Dummy to do it but not to draw Trumps, rather to make one extra for him.

To make it quick and simple, Trumps will never be drawn. After ruffing that first Club with the 4, go over to one of Dummy's high cards to ruff another Club with the 9. Continue to do this until all five Clubs have been ruffed with all five of Declarer's Trumps. The Clubs happen to break evenly but even had they not, as long as the first two are followed to no one can overruff

Fortunately, some things never change.

The ancient traditions remain, generation after generation. And today, we observe Passover as our forefathers did thousands of years ago.

For almost a century, the old-fashioned goodness of Manischewitz has ushered in festive holiday dinners in Jewish homes all over America.

This year, once again, Manischewitz matzo, gefilte fish, soup and other delectables will grace any traditional table.

Treat your family and friends to a taste of tradition, too. And have a good Passover!

For traditional goodness you can count on.

Sakharov Threatened For Leading Demonstration Against The PLO

NEW YORK (JTA): Dr. Yaakov Kandinov of Tashkent has been sentenced to eight years of harsh labor for alleged "bribery," the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry (SSSJ) and Union of Councils for Soviet Jews (UCSJ) reported they had just learned. The trial took place last month. Kandinov, a dentist, was arrested last November, eight days before his scheduled departure for Israel.

According to the two groups, Kandinov, following official Soviet regulations, had brought two antique vases to the local Ministry of Culture for permission to take them with him and to obtain their evaluation for exit taxes. Several days later, while waiting for a reply, he was seized by the authorities.

The following day, the KGB broke into his home without a search warrant and destroyed many of his possessions. His remaining property was confiscated after his trial and his wife, Polina, and their three children remain in the Soviet Union, destitute. Kandinov's relatives in Israel assert that the "bribery" charge is false, the SSSJ and UCSJ reported.

Meanwhile, Nobel Peace Prize winner Dr. Andrei Sakharov has been threatened with punishment "under the full stricture of Soviet law" in retaliation for leading a march in Moscow March 12 in which Jewish activists demonstrated against the Kremlin's encouragement of the Palestine Liberation Organization which led to the terrorist carnage in Israel March 11 in which 32 civilians were slaughtered. According to the SSSJ and UCSJ, the warning was made by Deputy Procurator V.V. Nesterov who told Sakharov that his actions "bordering on hooliganism have provoked citizens to seriously violate the public order."

Traditional Jewish Quarters Taken Over By Lebanon Refugees

By Edwin Eytan

PARIS (JTA): About a dozen Jewish families are left in Beirut's traditional Jewish quarter, Wadi Abu Jamil, now taken over by thousands of refugees from south Lebanon. The synagogue, which survived intact the bitter fighting of the 1975-76 civil war, has been taken over by the refugees and turned into a squatters' home. The Alliance Israelite School, Ecole Tarrab, has become a first aid and refugee information center for many of the reported 160,000 refugees now in Beirut.

French reporters in the Lebanese capital reported that the remaining Jews are of modest condition and barely manage to survive under current difficult circumstances. Contrary to what happened during the civil war, when the PLO reportedly brought food to the area, the Palestinian organizations seem to take no interest whatever in what happens to the Jews of Wadi Abu Jamil.

The entire city has been taken over by the consecutive waves of refugees who have streamed into the north. The synagogue, which stood half abandoned, was one of the first buildings to be taken over by hundreds of squatters who now sleep and cook in the central worship hall.

The Lebanese forces, a French correspondent told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, have neither the means nor the time to deal with such "minor issues." The correspondent added that as far as he managed to ascertain, there have been no anti-Jewish demonstrations or any quarrels between the local Jews and the arriving refugees.

According to one French correspondent, the remaining Jewish families and the Palestinian refugees who have settled in the area seem to be getting along in a peaceful and neighborly way. Most of Lebanon's Jews fled the country at the time of the 1975-76 civil war, settling mainly in France. The French authorities continue to grant resident permits to those Lebanese Jews who now plan to join them.

US Answers Soviet Complaints

By Yitzhak Rabi

UNITED NATIONS (JTA): The United States replied to Soviet complaints concerning anti-Soviet demonstrations, declaring that the demonstrations "did not violate the provisions of the federal law on the protection of diplomatic personnel and official guests of the United States of America."

In a letter addressed to the Soviet Union Mission to the United Nations, Ambassador James F. Leonard, Acting Representative of the U.S., referred to Soviet complaints protesting against demonstrations held in the vicinity of the Soviet Mission by Jewish organizations February 26 and March 15 and by a group of Somali students February 27. The demonstrations by Jewish organizations were against Soviet treatment of Russian Jewry.

According to the American letter, all demonstrations ended without incidents. The letter added: "The United States Mission to the United Nations deplores all irresponsible actions by American citizens against USSR Mission personnel or its properties and we will continue to take necessary measures to prevent such incidents." But the U.S. also said that American law allows citizens to demonstrate peacefully.

MIXED MARRIAGES

JERUSALEM: Forty-five out of every 100 marriages by Jews in the Diaspora are of the "mixed marriage" variety, and 80 percent of Jewish youth are prepared to marry non-Jewish brides, according to a statement by Dr. De La Pergola of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. According to this view, the rate of assimilation in the smaller West European communities is about 60 percent. In the United States the figure is nearer to 40 percent, while in South Africa it is estimated to be no more than 15 percent.

MORE TOURISTS

JERUSALEM: Israel expects to boost its record of one million tourists last year by 20 percent in 1978 and is planning to bring in two million tourists a year within five years. Dr. Moshe Mandelbaum, director-general of the Industry, Commerce and Tourism Ministry said on Sunday.

Speaking to the International Association of Tour Managers meeting in Tel Aviv, Mandelbaum noted that the recent Sadat visit to Jerusalem has already created a favourable international climate necessary for promotion of tourism to Israel.

Money's Worth

munifunds are: Dreyfus, John Nuveen, Fidelity, Kemper, others.

In 1977 alone, a record $4.1 billion was invested in both types of tax-frees, almost $1 billion more than 1976's record $3.2 billion, and an even bigger jump from 1975's $2.4 billion.

Also last year, both types produced returns averaging more than 5 per cent—and that's tax-free.

If you're a couple filing a joint return on a taxable income in the $20,000-$24,000 bracket, a tax-free 5½% return is the equivalent of a taxable 8.09 per cent; if your bracket is the $28,000-$32,000 range, the 5½ is equal to 9.02 per cent. In the 50 per cent bracket, of course, it's equal to 11 per cent a year.

*But you must never forget that municipal bond funds can decrease as well as increase in value. As Frank P. Wendt, chairman of Nuveen, wisely cautions: "The cheapest fund may not be the most stable or the best managed; the fund offering the highest return may be investing in very poor bonds." You CAN LOSE money.

*Profits from increases in asset value are taxable as capital gains.

*UITs charge a one-time sales fee of from 2½ to 4½ per cent included in the price. In munifunds, there are both "load" and "no-load" funds, with load fund charges ranging from 4½ to 5 per cent and both loads and no-loads charging annual management fees and expenses ranging from ¼ per cent to 1½ per cent.

*Before you put up a penny, seek the advice of a reputable investment broker. Talk over your goals. And restrain your greed!

Yariv Criticizes Press, World Leaders For Underplaying Israel's Flexibility

By Maxine Wasserstein

WAYNE, N.J. (JTA): A leading Israeli official criticized the press and some world leaders for underplaying Israel's flexible stance in its peace talks with Egypt. Gen. Aharon Yariv, director of Israel's Institute of Strategic Studies, called attention to Israeli Premier Menahem Begin's recent conciliatory position in peace talks, pointing out that Begin has made a great many concessions and has shifted his position dramatically from the original platform on which he won the election. On the other hand, Yariv said, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt has not changed his position over the past year.

Yariv spoke at an Emergency Assemblage called by the Jewish Federation of North Jersey last week, in response to the apparent shift in United States relations with Israel. The assembly was attended by various elected officials, clergymen and high-ranking Israelis.

Blames Carter For Setback In Talks

The Israeli official commented on the timetable for genuine peace set by Begin at 2-3 years, saying that he himself would have proposed a longer period of time. "A genuine peace with open borders and a relationship of trust, takes years to develop. Until such a peace is developed, Israel's security is essential, its survival is at stake."

He explained that progress in negotiations suffered a setback when President Carter contributed toward hardening the Arab position in the negotiations; Carter's recent public statements along with his proposed sale of advanced war planes to Saudi Arabia and Egypt have interfered with the negotiating process as well, suggested Yariv. Nonetheless, he concluded on an optimistic note, saying that a lasting peace could be possible and even near as long as there are no obstacles in the negotiating process.

Yariv's speech was followed by pleas to the public, calling for political action in the form of mailgrams and letters to officials, and full support of the United Jewish Appeal. Various elected officials read messages opposing the proposed plane sale and expressing complete support for Israel and its people.

Carter Administration Quiet About 3 Israeli Air Force Bases

WASHINGTON, D.C.: Amid the furor over Israeli settlements in Sinai, the Carter Administration has kept very quiet about three Israeli Air Force bases in Sinai whose future deeply concerns strategic planners at the Pentagon. President Sadat wants the bases handed over to Egypt as part of a peace settlement. The Israelis have refused to relinquish them. President Carter appears to have been supporting the Egyptian demand, but the New York Times reported at the weekend that Defence Department circles insist that the US must retain operational rights over at least one of the bases, whether it is under Israeli or Egyptian control.

The bases are Eytan, on the Mediterranean coast, Etzion, near the Israeli town of Eilat, at the end of the Gulf of Aqaba, and Ofira, near Sharm el-Sheik, at the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba.

According to the New York Times, the US Air Force is now using these bases as a window from which to watch the increasingly heavy Russian military traffic in the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden, and the western areas of the Indian Ocean.

Etzion, which cost more than $4 billion to build, is particularly important to the Americans because it can handle high performance reconnaissance and combat aircraft.

For that reason, a group of US Navy and Air Force officers are demanding that Israel keep control of Etzion in order to assure continued US use of the base.

Maritime Strike In Israel Ends After 80 Days

By Yitzhak Shargil

TEL AVIV (JTA): The container ship Zim Hong Kong sailed from Haifa April 8, the first Israeli-flag merchant ship to put to sea in 80 days, marking the end of one of the longest and costliest Strikes in Israel's history. An agreement between the shipping companies and the seamen's union was signed late April 7. But if Israel's maritime communications are functioning again, its international air services remained grounded for the fifth day.

The El Al management suspended operations last week as a result of a wildcat work stoppage by maintenance workers and is demanding new, individual contracts with all employees. The workers oppose this and are supported by Histadrut. They were joined by travel agents in applying to a Tel Aviv Labor Court for an injunction against management on grounds that the latter unilaterally and illegally broke its labor contracts. But the court refused to grant an injunction and set a new hearing in ten days' time. It ordered the workers back to their jobs.

El Al has refused to lift the suspension pending new labor contracts. However, it has asked employees in its computer and reservations departments to return to work to facilitate the transfer of El Al passengers to foreign carriers.

Odd Time For Crackdown

The airline, which has been plagued by strikes and work stoppages for the past two years, chose an odd time to crack down, in the opinion of some observers. It suspended flights at the peak of the pre-Passover tourist season, inconveniencing thousands of would-be visitors from North America, Europe and elsewhere. No estimate has been made public of the losses sustained by the government-owned air line so far but they are believed to be tremendous.

Fear has been expressed that the El Al shut-down will affect the entire tourist industry which depends heavily on the Passover influx of visitors. It is also injuring El Al's good will. A large group of Iranian students demonstrated at Ben Gurion Airport today demanding that El Al fly them back to Teheran before they miss class. But generally, stranded passengers have found seats on other carriers which have pressed jumbo jets into service to meet the sudden demand.

Histadrut, which has always supported management against wildcat strikes and work stoppages, says now that the airline is solely responsible for the present situation. El Al pilots hold the company's director general, former Air Force Commander Mordechai Hod, to blame. They accused him of applying Air Force tactics — "destroy the enemy" — to a civilian company.

The settlement of the maritime strike holds out prospects for labor peace on that front, at least for the next six months. The seamen did not get the wage increases they had demanded and will not be paid for their 80 days off the job. But the agreement provided for an arbitrator to work out a wage settlement within six months and the sailors agreed not to strike for that period.

Broadcast Reporters Still Out

Meanwhile, the blackout of news on radio and television continued for the second week. The Broadcast Authority has refused to be bound by the wage agreements that ended the newspaper strike a week ago. Broadcast journalists have demanded the same increases. In another area of labor strife, the teachers union warned that unless advance payments were forthcoming, it would call a strike of indefinite duration after the Passover holidays.

Soldier Killed Hitchhiking

JERUSALEM (JTA): Avraham Deutsch, a 32-year-old reserve soldier was killed by gunfire last week as he was hitchhiking near the Rockefeller Museum at the Old City's wall. A police spokesman said the shooting was done by "hostile elements," possibly terrorists. Security forces launched a widespread manhunt throughout the area in an effort to apprehend the killers.

According to an eyewitness, three men approached Deutsch and fired at him. He was shot in the head. Deutsch was rushed to Hadassah Hospital where doctors vainly sought to save his life. He died from his injuries shortly after being brought there. The museum corner has often been the site of attacks against soldiers waiting to get a ride in the direction of Jericho.

The following morning, some 11 hours after the fatality, an Arab resident of East Jerusalem was wounded by gunfire near the museum.

Assistant Secretary Of State Says Israel's Interpretation Of Resolution 242 Inhibits Efforts

By Helen Silver

ATLANTA (JTA): Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton declared here that Israel's "new" interpretation of Security Council Resolution 242 and its policy of establishing settlements in the occupied territories have "complicated efforts to make progress in the negotiations between Egypt and Israel" and also "inhibited efforts to broaden those negotiations to include other Arab parties."

Atherton, designated by President Carter as his Ambassador-at-Large in the Middle East with the task of furthering a comprehensive settlement between Israel and its neighbors, made his remarks in the course of a "status report" at a conference on the Middle East here attended by Jewish, Arab American and civic and union leaders.

The conference is one of a series sponsored by the State Department and various nongovernmental groups aimed at clarifying Administration policies in the Middle East. Co-sponsor of the Atlanta meeting was the Southern Center for International Studies.

Security Problem For Israel

Atherton told his audience that the Administration can talk frankly and openly about its differences with Israel which "testifies to the closeness of our friendship." He also observed that "We constantly have before us the very real security questions posed for Israel. We cannot conceive of any formula the United States — or Israel — could accept which did not make the fullest provision for these security concerns as part of a peace settlement."

He added, in that connection that the U.S. would be "prepared to consider whatever bilateral United States security guarantees Israel may consider desirable as part of the peace settlement . . . in close consultation with the Congress in full consonance with its Constitutional authority and responsibilities."

Basic Difference Outlined

Atherton said that the U.S. has "a basic difference with the Israeli government over the applicability of the withdrawal principle in Resolution 242 to all fronts on the conflict." He noted that "the authors of Resolution 242 and all the governments concerned, including the government of Israel, understood at the time that the withdrawal-for-peace concept applied wherever territory was occupied in 1967.

The present position of the Israeli government is that this concept does not apply to all fronts.

"Specifically, it has not so far agreed that, in the context of a final peace embodying commitments to normal peaceful relations and agreed security arrangements which can include agreed border modifications, Israel will withdraw from any of the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza — the parts of former Palestine lying outside Israel's 1967 boundaries.

"This new Israeli interpretation of Resolution 242 together with the policy of establishing Israeli settlements in occupied territory, has complicated efforts to make progress in negotiations between Egypt and Israel. It has also inhibited efforts to broaden those negotiations to include other Arab parties, in particular Jordanian and Palestinian representatives who, together, have an interest in negotiations relating to the future of the West Bank and its Palestinian Arab inhabitants."

He acknowledged that "the withdrawal-for-peace formula, as it applies to the West Bank and Gaza, and the Palestinian issue generally, are the most difficult for Israel in all our deliberations."

Continuing, Atherton said: "We know that our ideas — dealing as they do with the key issues for Israel of security, withdrawal, the Palestinian question, and the future of the West Bank and Gaza — require agonizingly difficult choices to be made. We hope, nevertheless, that our ideas will commend themselves to Israel, because we believe they offer the possibility — perhaps the only possibility — for renewing the momentum of the Egyptian-Israeli and ultimately the overall Arab-Israel negotiating process."

Genuine Attempts To Come To Terms

He conceded that "the hopes of November (when President Anwar Sadat of Egypt visited Israel) turned to frustration and disappointment, to charge and countercharge." However, he said, "I would suggest to you that nothing has gone irretrievably wrong . . . What we are seeing today, for the first time in the history of the (Arab-Israeli) conflict are genuine attempts by the key parties involved to come to terms." He added that "We must not, we do not intend, to let this moment in history become simply another lost opportunity."

Attempt To Ease Draft Exemption For Women

JERUSALEM (JTA): Women who wish to be exempted from military service will find it easier to do so under a new bill passed recently on first reading in the Knesset.

The bill abolished the exemption committee which until now interviewed women who applied for religious deferments to determine whether they were observant.

If the bill becomes law, a woman will only have to declare before a civil or religious judge that her religious convictions or her family's way of life preclude her from doing military service. The bill, which was provided for in the Likud-Agudath Israel government coalition agreement, has caused renewed tension between the liberal and conservative wings of the Knesset.

The bill was referred to the Knesset

Security and Foreign Affairs Committee by a vote of 41-37. Democratic Movement for Change (DMC) Knesseters, including Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir, voted against the bill, along with the Labor Alignment opposition which led the attack. A bill becomes law after approval on the third reading. Former Education Minister Aharon Yadin said that "an automatic exemption is a national scandal. Religion will become a cover for staying out of a national duty." But Rabbi Kalman Kahana of Poalei Agudath Israel argued that in the early days of the State the Orthodox had been promised there would be separate army camps for men and women but that it was never implemented. He suggested that for those military tasks for which women are suited they should do as civilians.

NY Composer Sole American To Win In Music Competition

NEW YORK (JTA): Morris Cotel, New York composer and pianist, was the only American winner among the eight winners in a recent international music competition on "Holocaust and Rebirth" commemorating Israel's 30th anniversary. He was honored for "The Fire and Mountains," a composition scored for adult chorus, children's chorus, three soloists and a percussionist. It is based on a poem by the contemporary Israeli writer Israel Eliraz.

The competition was sponsored by the Reuben and Edith Hecht Fund at the Haifa University in Israel for music on the theme of the 30th anniversary, based on works by the three Hebrew poets: Uri Zvi Greenberg ("Holy of Holies"), Aba Kovner ("Rising Night After Night") and Eliraz.

Sixty-four scores were submitted, of which two had to be disqualified for not meeting the competition conditions. Entries came from the U.S., Canada, Mexico, South America, Israel, Japan, Hungary, Italy, France, Germany, England, Ireland and the Scandinavian countries. Five of the winners were from Israel, one from Italy, one from Mexico and Cotel. The jury in the music competition included Zubin Mehta, Antal Dorati, Juan Pablo Izquierdo, Gary Bertini, Mendi Rodan, Nathan Mishori and Gideon Rosengarten.

Cotel won the Prix de Rome in 1966 and won second prize in the International Arnold Schoenberg Piano Competition in Rotterdam in 1975. After 1968 he resided in Israel and in 1976 was asked to found the Baltimore Artists' Task Force for Soviet Jewry. He is a recipient of a recent National Endowment for Arts fellowship, several ASCAP awards, is a Fellow of the American Academy in Rome, and is a member of the faculty of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore.

Minister Sharon Gets Approval Of IL20 Million For Outposts

JERUSALEM (JTA): Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon got Knesset Finance Committee approval of an additional IL 20 million budget for development work at outposts in the Rafah salient of northern Sinai. But he won the grant only after sharp questioning by committee members and a bitter debate during which Sharon accused his political foes of "mercilessly spilling" his blood.

Labor Alignment MKs, joined by coalition "doves" wanted to know what point there was to invest money in an area the government has already announced it would return to Egyptian sovereignty. They demanded that Sharon explain the reasons for establishing the 13 outposts and questioned Sharon's contention that all the work he authorized in Sinai had prior approval by the Cabinet.

The outposts were established several months ago, after President Anwar Sadat launched his peace initiative, and created a severe strain in Israel's relations with the U.S. which regarded them as an obstacle to peace negotiations with Egypt. The outposts were seen as potential new settlement sites.

Sharon described them as centers of land reclamation. He said most consisted of a water tower surrounded by a fence. He claimed that the technique of "creating facts" in delicate areas had always proven right during his military career on all of Israel's fronts.

Sharon insisted that the Cabinet and Begin personally had approved the outposts but even then "the personal attacks against me continued. I decided to put the newspapers aside . . . They attacked me for ten consecutive days and I did not respond," Sharon said. "Not even one Cabinet minister got up and said this was a Cabinet decision. I waited patiently for the Premier's official statement."

Problems Of Ikrit And Birim Difficult To Solve

JERUSALEM (JTA): The latest attempts to solve the 30 year-old problem of Ikrit and Birim, the former Arab-Christian villages in Upper Galilee, failed last week when the Knesset's Foreign Affairs and Security Committee deferred discussion of the issue pending a decision by a ministerial committee chaired by Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, the most outspoken Cabinet "hawk."

Sharon asked the committee to postpone its deliberations on the matter until his committee completed its work. The committee, formed when the Likud government took office last June, has made no progress since then despite promises by Likud that a solution would be found.

Ikrit and Birim were evacuated in 1948 during Israel's War for Independence. The villagers claim that the Israeli army promised that they could return to their homes in a short time and have evidence supporting that claim. Instead, their lands were divided among Jews in neighboring settlements and the villages were razed, ostensibly as a security measure to prevent their use by terrorist infiltrators from Lebanon.

Despite numerous appeals on their behalf by many Israelis and by Christian religious leaders, the previous Labor-led governments refused to repatriate the villagers on grounds that to do so would establish a precedent for the return of other Arab refugees to their homes in Israel. The official policy was that Arab refugees should be re-settled in other Arab countries. The former residents of Ikrit and Birim were relocated in the nearby village of Jish within Israel's borders.

Despite Likud's promise, there is little sign that the present government will depart from the policy of its predecessors. The Knesset committee deferred to Sharon's request over the protest of MK Akiva Noff of the Democratic Movement for Change.

State Dept. Welcomes Terrorists' Conviction

WASHINGTON (JTA): The United States said that it welcomed the murder conviction of two Palestinian terrorists by a Cypriot court as a measure to curb international terrorism. The court in Nicosia sentenced the terrorists to hang for the February 18 slaying of Yousef Sabai, editor-in-chief of the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram, a crime aimed against President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative. The terrorists were seized at Larnaca Airport in Cyprus after an unsuccessful attempt to escape in a hijacked plane.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter, commenting on the conviction, declared "I would like to reiterate our view that anything which serves to curb or penalize terrorism, we welcome. Clearly this is such a step and we welcome it."

Celebrate Israel's Anniversary In Peru

LIMA, Peru (JTA): Dr. Jose Luis Bustamnte Y Rivero, who was President of Peru when this country voted in support of the 1947 United Nations General Assembly resolution for partition of Palestine, gave the toast of honor at a dinner celebrating the 30th anniversary of the State of Israel.

"Peace is the highest expression of the civilization of a people and it is also the condition for the survival of man," he said in his toast. Bustamnte expressed the hope that peace would come to Israel and "that the land continue to be as before, a land of promise."

Michael Michael, Israel's Ambassador to Peru, in his response paid homage to "the deep and true friendship between Israel and Peru." The dinner was attended by many prominent Peruvians in government, the arts, culture, academic world as well as local Jewish leaders and members of the Jewish community.

ANNOUNCE SELECTION: The Bureau of Jewish Education has announced that Joseph Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Davis of Providence, has been selected to compete in the World Bible Contest to be held in Jerusalem in May. A graduate of the Providence Hebrew Day School and a student of Temple Emanu-El's Midrasha, Joseph earned the privilege of participating in this world event by winning first place in his division in the National Bible Contest in 1976.

The seven young people shown in the photo above were selected from among 25 boys and girls who studied all year with Rabbi Saul Leeman, the Bible instructor of the Bureau of Jewish Education. They earned the right to participate in the Regional Contest held at Temple Beth El on April 3. They are Robert Satloff, Mark Wegner, Abigail Harris, Susan Harris, Carol Rakatansky and Rachael Shein and they will be competing for national honors in the National Bible Contest on May 21.

including NYSE Rule 390 which restricts trading of listed issues in the unlisted market. The role of the specialist would be severely reduced under such a central market.

A major step toward centralization is the NYSE-sponsored Intermarket Trading System, scheduled to begin operating this month. This links electronically the regional exchanges, the Big Board and AMEX and informs them of the best price in a stock. When and if the central market becomes a reality, the small investor should benefit. For the first time he will have equal access with the institutions to information on where and when the best price on a stock is available.

To W.W. California: I would suggest you write to the Secretaries of the States of incorporation for Diversified Computer Service and Diversified Computer & Management Services to ascertain whether their charters have been forfeited and if so, in what year. Once this is established you may claim the loss for the year in which the stock became worthless. Amended returns may be filed for seven years in arrears. The last price I was able to find for Crescent General Corporation was several years old and under 10¢ a share. The two market makers were Tyche Securities, 185 Cross Street, Fort Lee, New Jersey and Robert Tanney, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, New Jersey. You might get information by writing these firms.

CANINE HEARTWORM DISEASE

The Rhode Island Veterinary Medical Association would like to remind all dog owners of the impending heartworm season which begins in our area during April. Heartworm disease is a serious and potentially fatal disease of dogs.

Contrary to popular belief, the disease can be cured in the majority of cases but only if detected in time, prior to irreversible changes in the heart and lungs.

As with any disease, prevention is preferable to treatment. If your dog tests negative, he can be kept free by the daily use of a medication which will prevent heartworm disease even if bitten by an infected mosquito.

Heartworm disease has reached alarming proportions in Rhode Island. If not diagnosed and treated in time many affected dogs will die. For this reason THE RHODE ISLAND VETERINARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION recommends that all dogs 6 months of age or older be tested and negative dogs be placed on a preventative program. Positive dogs must undergo treatment prior to being placed on preventative medication. For further information contact your veterinarian.

Rabin Speaks on Problem At New York University

By Nancy Chanin

NEW YORK (JTA): The "heart" of the Mideast conflict is not the Palestinian issue, as the Arab nations contend, but "the lack of readability on the part of the Arabs to admit that Israel is a Jewish, sovereign state," according to former Premier Yitzhak Rabin. Speaking before some 500 people at New York University's Eisner and Lubin Auditorium, Rabin asked why the Arabs did not want a state on the West Bank between 1948 and 1967. "Because the Palestinian problem was and is used to bring about the dismantling of the Jewish state of Israel," he declared.

The Palestinian problem can be solved only after "a reconciliation with Israel," Rabin said. "The leaders in Judea and Samaria must participate in negotiations involving their fate," he said, adding that "no one" in the Israeli government or Labor Alignment opposition will negotiate with the PLO.

Stating that his remarks expressed the "main-stream of thinking among most Israelis," Rabin said that because his country never had any legal borders, "Israel has the right to negotiate boundaries that will meet our defense needs." The lines cannot be identical to those that existed before the 1967 war, he added.

The Most Misused Word
Calling peace the "most used and misused word," Rabin said that "real" peace must be "translated into daily life," which means "open boundaries and the movement of people and goods." The Arab countries have not accepted this meaning of peace, "but it might be that by his visit to Jerusalem, Sadat has come closer to this interpretation of peace," he said.

In the Mideast negotiations, Egypt "should focus on bilateral relations, not the other Arab countries," the former Premier said. "The better the prospects for peace (between Israel and Egypt) the better the prospects for Jordan to join" the talks, he said, adding, "I am afraid Syria will not join in the near future."

Referring to President Carter's statements on a Palestinian homeland and on Israeli withdrawal to the pre-1967 borders with minor modifications, Rabin said the United States' "specific positions undermine Israel's freedom of maneuverability. How can you expect the Arabs to want less?" Regarding the situation in Lebanon, Rabin said it is "more than doubtful" that the United Nations forces will succeed, because there is "no effective government in Lebanon to make an agreement with."

High School Seniors Intern At JTA In NY

NEW YORK (JTA): Carol Reichard and Maxine Wasserstein, Ramaz high school seniors, are interning at the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in its editorial department as part of the school's work-study program.

Ricki Bernstein, senior project coordinator at Ramaz, noted that this is the ninth consecutive year that the school is conducting a community-oriented program for senior class students during April and May. The purpose of the program, she pointed out, is to free the students "from their regular schedule of study to enable them to get first-hand experience on a volunteer basis in community agencies, educational institutions and areas of career interest."

Wasserstein and Reichard said they chose the JTA as their project because of their interest in journalism, having participated in journalistic activities during their high school years. They said that by working in the JTA they could combine their interest in journalism and the Jewish community. Since the Ramaz program began, a number of its seniors interned at JTA, doing rewrite, covering meetings and news events for the various JTA publications.

Mideast Conflict Brought Into Oscar Ceremonies

By David Friedman

NEW YORK (JTA): The Arab-Israeli conflict came to the Academy Awards 50th anniversary ceremony, if but briefly. It was injected by British actress Vanessa Redgrave, who, after winning an Oscar for best supporting actress in "Julia," praised the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for not being "intimidated by threats of a small bunch of Zionist hoodlums."

Her remarks were ignored by the participants in the ceremony except for playwright Paddy Chayefsky who denounced her for using the nationally-televised program to air her own political views. "I am sick and tired of people using the Academy Awards for their own political views," he said. "Miss Redgrave winning an award is not a pivotal moment in history. She did not have to make a political proclamation. A simple thank you would have sufficed."

Chayefsky, who said he could not have lived with himself if he had not made his remarks before presenting the writing awards, was warmly applauded. Ms. Redgrave was also applauded although there were many "boos" when she used the words "Zionist hoodlums."

The controversial British actress was apparently referring to threats that the Jewish Defense League had made in protest of her nomination for her work in "Julia" because of her support of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Ms. Redgrave has been denounced by Jewish groups for her documentary film, "The Palestinian," which expresses a pro-Palestinian, anti-Israeli view.

Several hundred JDL members picketed

the Los Angeles Music Center where the awards ceremony was going on. They were kept separate from a small number of PLO supporters. According to a report, the only case of violence occurred when three JDL members jumped three men wearing Nazi uniforms. Two of the Nazis were reportedly taken to the hospital and two of the JDL members arrested.

The award to Miss Redgrave was the first in the three-hour program in an apparent effort by the Academy to get any problems over with immediately. Chayefsky's appearance did not come until the show was nearly over.

In her speech after receiving the Oscar, Miss Redgrave said: "You should be very proud that in the last few weeks you stood firm and you refused to be intimidated by the threats of a small bunch of Zionist hoodlums whose behavior is an insult to the stature of Jews all over the world and to their great and heroic struggle against Fascism and oppression." She declared that she would continue to fight against "anti-Semitism and fascism." In "Julia," which is based on a story by Lillian Hellman, Miss Redgrave plays a friend of Miss Hellman called Julia who worked in an underground movement before World War II helping Jews and others flee the Nazis.

On a non-political note, the best foreign language film award went to the French-made "Madame Rosa," directed by an Israeli, Moshe Mizrahi. He was also the director of the Israeli film, "I Love You Rosa." One of the five films nominated for the foreign language award was "Operation Thunderbolt," the Israeli made film on the rescue of hostages in Entebbe, Uganda in July, 1976.

Report New Center Established For Lebanon Christian Army

By Yitzhak Shargil

MARJ AYOUN, South Lebanon (JTA): This Maronite Christian village was a target of Palestinian terrorist shelling for two years. It suffered terribly. Now, Maj. Sa'ad Haddad, commander of the Christian Militia has proclaimed it the new center for the regular Lebanese army in south Lebanon.

Haddad told a large group of Moslem notables from surrounding villages currently under Israeli control: "I declare hereby the establishment of the south Lebanese army." He said that all men aged 18-25 will be conscripted and that volunteers would be welcome, Moslem and Christian alike. He said they would be part and parcel of the regular Lebanese army and receive the same pay once contact is established with the central government in Beirut.

Haddad declared that his army has tanks, artillery, troop carriers and other vehicles. In actuality it functions under the auspices of Israel's army which provides the weapons and other equipment. He promised that a civil guard will be established to protect the villages against terrorist infiltration. Should his plans materialize, he hopes to recruit up to 7000 men and would become a potent military factor in south Lebanon, numerically superior to the terrorists.

But while the Moslems, members of the Shi'a sect, nodded in assent as Haddad spoke, they were visibly uneasy at being under the protection of Christians. The blood feud is not wholly over. But circumstances have changed. The Israeli army controls the area and as long as it does, Maronites and Moslems will serve together against the common terrorist enemy.

Israel Apologizes For Using Cluster Bombs In Lebanon

TEL AVIV (JTA): Israel continued to maintain official silence on U.S. charges that it used cluster bombs (CBUs) during its incursion into south Lebanon last month. But it has apologized to the United States for employing the American-made anti-personnel weapon. Defense Minister Ezer Weizman met with U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis last week and they reportedly discussed that issue as well as Israel's plan for withdrawal of its forces from south Lebanon.

The State Department announced that Israel had violated U.S. restrictions on the use of cluster bombs in Lebanon and said it was seeking to prevent any further breach of the agreements which govern Israel's employment of weapons it receives from the U.S. A State Department spokesman said "Israel has told us they were used exclusively against military targets and specifically artillery targets."

According to other State Department sources, the limited independent information available does not contradict Israel's contention. Cluster bombs were one of the most controversial weapons used by American forces in Viet Nam.

ENERGY SAVING IDEAS
Helpful Tips

You can save energy cooling your house by using the same things that help you save when heating your house: storm windows. Kept on windows not needed for ventilation, they help keep cool air in, warm air out.

The Department of Energy has estimated that proper attic insulation can save up to 30 percent of heating and cooling bills, since heat tends to rise and escape through an insufficiently insulated roof. The same insulation reduces the need for cooling by keeping out the sun's heat.

You can find a number of energy-wise suggestions in a new booklet "Energy and Your Home." Edited by famed science writer Isaac Asimov, it's available from York Heating and Air Conditioning, Department 14, P. O. Box 1592, York, Pa. 17405.

Growing Movements Against Begin's Plan For Israel

By Yitzhak Shargil

TEL AVIV (JTA): A burgeoning grass roots peace movement urging the government to modify its policies and a counter-movement supporting Premier Menahem Begin's peace plan are emerging in cities and towns all over Israel. The growing controversy followed a massive "Peace Now" rally in Tel Aviv last week which Finance Minister Simcha Ehrlich denounced, saying it "stank of a military putsch" because the reserve officers who sponsored the demonstration styled themselves "officers for peace."

The reservists demanded that Ehrlich apologize for his "undignified attempt to deal with criticism of the government" and the Finance Minister has come under a storm of criticism from writers, journalists and various youth groups.

He refused to apologize, and Rafi Farber, secretary of Likud's Liberal Party wing of which Ehrlich is a leader issued a statement likening the "Peace Now" slogan to British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's "Peace in Our Time" statement after the Munich conference in 1938.

But black and red "Peace Now" signs are proliferating on billboards and vehicles and petitions declaring "Better Peace Than a Greater Israel" are being circulated by "peace pickets" on busy corners and are getting many signatures.

Meanwhile, a counter-slogan, "Secure Peace" has become the rallying cry of Begin's supporters. More than 2500 students at Tel Aviv, Bar Ilan and Beersheba universities have signed petitions backing the government.

The initiators of the counter-movement are also reserve officers. They informed Begin of their intentions but reportedly were advised by him not to campaign as reservists because it would be unseemly for two groups of Israeli war veterans to oppose each other as such. Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin said that the use of the term officers for or against government policies was unfortunate because it created the impression that military officers were engaged in political activity. Members of the reserve are civilians unless called to active duty.

NEWSPAPERS attract more active readership from teenagers in higher income families.
