Pioneer Women Continue To Aid Orphans

Mrs. Esther Adler (center) is being presented a plaque for contributing toward the maintenance of her 13th spiritual adoption. Edith Grebstein, chairperson of the Spiritual Adoption Program (right) makes the presentation while Frances Schwartz (left), president of Pioneer Women, looks on. This event took place at an Annual Donor Affair of the Pioneer Women of Providence, held at Temple Emanu-El, May 15.

After the 1967 war, Israel suffered a tremendous loss of young fathers, resulting in a large number of orphans who had to be taken care of. This is where Pioneer Women stepped in.

Beba Idelson (who has since passed on) was Secretary General of Pioneer Women's sister organization in Israel, called Moetzet Hapoalot. She pleaded in a letter, which was printed in the Pioneer Women's Magazine, for help, since these orphans were in dire need of care and love. Many mothers became mentally ill and consequently were unable to care for their children. Unfortunately, there were many such cases. Beba Idelson then started a program called "Spiritual Adoption," where an individual could spiritually adopt a child for the sum of $360. This money goes toward the maintenance of a child for one year.

In Rhode Island, Mrs. Edith Grebstein, who read this article in the Pioneer Women's Magazine, felt that something like this should be started locally. She collaborated with two other Pioneer leaders, Mrs. Chaya Segal and Mrs. Francis Schwartz, who encouraged Mrs. Grebstein to start this project in Rhode Island.

In 13 years, Mrs. Grebstein has raised enough money to support over 500 children. One of her greatest supporters is Mrs. Esther Adler, a resident of Cranston. She is an ardent Pioneer Woman and also a Life Member, who has adopted 12 children on her own. Mrs. Adler was presented with a Spiritual Adoption Plaque at an Annual Donor Luncheon Event, which was held on May 15, at Temple Emanu-El, Providence.

Mrs. Adler is known for her philanthropic work in many worthwhile organizations throughout Rhode Island and is also one of the Founders of Temple Beth Torah in Cranston. Her children, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Adler and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Adler, support her wholeheartedly in all her charitable endeavors.

Ida Pearlman To Receive University Heritage Award

Mrs. Ida E. Pearlman, of Providence, will be honored by The New England Friends of Yeshiva University at their annual Heritage Award Dinner to be held Sunday, June 1, at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel.

In making the announcement, Dr. Charles S. Naiman, research associate at the Center for Materials Science and Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and dinner chairman for the event, cited Mrs. Pearlman's years of leadership and dedicated service to the community as the reason for her to receive this prestigious award.

Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Levine, Benefactors of the University, are serving as honorary chairpersons of the dinner and Edwin Katz is co-chairperson.

Bernice Schwartz, president of the New England Region, is representing the Yeshiva University Women's Organization.

An outspoken friend of Israel and higher education, Mrs. Pearlman is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Michigan, and was the first woman to be elected president of the Ann Arbor Student Jewish Congregation.

Mrs. Pearlman's children reflect her commitment to scholarship and communal life. Seven of her eleven sons and daughters attended the University of Michigan, and others attended Amherst, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the University of Southern California.

Two sons, graduates of Harvard Law School and Cornell Law School respectively, are currently attorneys in Providence. Her other children are in the fields of business, education, electronics, engineering and real estate.

Mrs. Pearlman and her late husband operated a successful shoe business during their 57 years of marriage.

Kidnappings/Social Unrest Poses Serious Threats

NEW YORK (JTA) — The pattern of revolution and counter-revolution, Marxist terrorist kidnappings and social unrest in Central America poses serious threats to the continued existence of Jewish communities in several countries here.

This grave outlook was reported by Sergio Nudelstejer, director of the Mexican office of the American Jewish Committee, at the Committee's 74th annual meeting held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here.

Since Jews in Central American countries generally belong to the business and merchant community, they often are considered class enemies along with other business leaders, by Marxist and leftist forces, Nudelstejer said.

Similar social and political conditions in many of the Central American countries, moreover, gives rise to a spilling over of revolutionary ferment from one country to another, the AJCommittee official pointed out.

Thus, he continued, although overt anti-Semitism is not very prevalent, the Jews have become victims of the social chaos and political instability in some of these countries, solely because of their class association.

As a result, the Jewish community in some of the countries has either left or is in the process of departing.

In Nicaragua, Nudelstejer reported, where the long-time Somoza dictatorship was recently overthrown by the Sandinistas, the entire Jewish community of some 70 families (about 350 people) has vanished from the land.

Some Jews suffered from the earthquake which devastated the capital city of Managua some years ago. Others fled during the revolutionary conflict. A few have returned, probably to liquidate their holdings in the country, he reported.

Thus, he concluded, in spite of the fact that the Sandinistas have exhibited no anti-Semitism, the Jewish community there has just about ceased to exist.

In El Salvador, Nudelstejer continued, where terrorism and violence are almost daily occurrences and where the rightist government is trying to hold off leftist guerrillas, most of the members of the 80 Jewish families have left the country and only about 50 Jews, almost all males, remain.

The kidnapping and murder of a Jewish businessman and Honorary Israeli Consul, Ernesto Liebes, by a group of leftist guerrillas, in March 1979 shook the stability of the Jewish community, giving rise to the exodus of many. As a result, though there has been no evidence of overt anti-Semitism by either the revolutionaries or the government, and Jewish synagogues, the Jewish center and the Jewish cemetery have not been harmed, there does not seem to be much of a future for Jews in that country.

Rising Tension Gives Way To Strict Military Action

EIN SULTAN REFUGEE CAMP, Israeli-Occupied West Bank — In an effort to halt increased Arab violence against Jews, the Israeli-military government has begun to take stronger measures in order to bring about some measure of peace to the West Bank.

The recent terrorist attack on Jewish settlers in the Arab City of Hebron, coupled with the subsequent deportation of three Palestinian leaders from the Hebron area have prompted Israeli authorities, who now feel it is no longer safe for Israeli vehicles to drive safely through certain areas, to step up efforts to curb the increased violence.

A new policy brought about by the government now makes parents responsible for their children's actions. Summonses have been issued and fines imposed to these parents and, in two cases, entire families have been evicted from their homes and banished to the refugee camp near Jericho.

The army has also demolished several houses where they believe attacks have been originated and large numbers of Arabs are being held for questioning.

In a further move Palestinian politicians are allowed to make no political statements and Arab mayors have now been restricted to their cities and towns.

These same politicians have, in some cases, had their telephones disconnected and they have been instructed not to talk to reporters. Some of these Arab and Palestinian politicians have however, ignored the ban.

This new policy is in response to both the rising tension and to demands made by groups of Jewish settlers, who are most often the targets of stone throwings and gasoline bombings.

Confronted with internal problems such as the Gush Emunim, a movement of Israeli nationalists who advocate armed civilian settlers taking matters into their own hands in the event of what they believe to be the lack of strong measures by the government, and what officials see Arab assaults which have become less spontaneous and more organized, the army has been forced to take more drastic action.

According to one highly placed military official, "the problem of rock throwing has changed from a local problem to a regional problem. It may be the most serious problem that the military government has ever faced."

Tribunal Calls on USSR To Release Shcharansky

AMSTERDAM (JTA) — An international tribunal convening here found the Soviet Union guilty of a grave miscarriage of justice in the imprisonment of Anatoly Shcharansky and called on it to release the Jewish activist who was sentenced in 1977 to 13 years in jail for alleged espionage and anti-Soviet activities.

The 11-member panel, composed of distinguished jurists, diplomats, political and civil rights leaders from many countries, reached its unanimous verdict after a two-day review of the evidence in the Shcharansky case. The tribunal was chaired by Andrew Young, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Card of Thanks

The family of the late Sidney Pickar wishes to express their appreciation for the kind expression of sympathy during their recent bereavement.

HONOLULU (JTA) — The Hawaii Jewish Welfare Fund announced that it will "adopt" Hatzor HaGalilit, an immigrant township in upper Galilee earmarked for assistance through Project Renewal. To date, Hawaii has raised approximately $90,000 for the purpose and the trustees of the fund have set a goal of $250,000 during the next five years, the Hawaii Jewish News reported. Hatzor HaGalilit has a large population of Moroccan and Kurdish Jews, many of whom still live in makeshift housing erected in 1953 or in houses too small for their large families.

Thanks Shallot

Not to be confused with that famous Today Show movie reviewer, a Shallot is an onion that ain't. It's not exactly an onion. It's not exactly a scallion (which is an onion of Ascalon, however).

To be honest, we don't know what it really is, but if you do, please call and tell us.

We just know that it really spices up salads and dressings. And that it puts tang into cucumbers, tomatoes and rare roast beef.

This week we also have delicious peaches (soft, sweet and juicy), nectarines, cantaloupes and yummy strawberries.

There are Jewish organizations which are not afraid to publish sad news about Jewish life in America. Such an organization is The American Jewish Committee.

Established in 1906, the A.J.C. is the publisher of "The American Jewish Yearbook" in which various aspects of Jewish life are discussed.

One of these studies, by Professor Steven Cohen, is named "Tendencies in Jewish Philanthropies," and, according to Prof. Cohen, the campaigns of the Jewish Federations are almost at a standstill when, in the years of inflation, they should have increased.

Prof. Cohen believes that the reasons for this decline in Jewish giving caused by standing still during an inflationary period are many.

Everyone who is engaged in the campaign knows that when one giver of the older generation dies he leaves no heirs. That is, there are heirs but not in the devotion to giving for Jewish causes.

From Friday to Friday A New Approach To Jewish Giving

by Beryl Segal

ing for Jewish causes.

The assimilation among the third generation of Jews is devastating. That generation does not come to the Synagogue where the greatness of Tzedaka, Jewish generosity, Jewish sharing, Jewish concerns here and abroad is constantly spoken of.

Another reason given is the constant changes taking place among Jews. The fathers were manufacturers or businessmen, but their sons are in the main professions, i.e. doctors, lawyers, scientists, teachers, etc. and, need we repeat here how little we see of these same professionals at our meetings or taking part in our campaigns?

Perhaps, asserts Prof. Cohen, we need to gear our appeals to this new generation. We cannot bring back the zeal of their parents but we may be able to start new fires in the attitudes of their children.

Prof. Cohen laments the breakdown of family ties and notes that the number of divorces is on an increase. That number is even greater than the unaffiliated and the uninterested among us. Together they have an adverse effect on the campaigns. A single parent does not contribute and it has become a sad situation indeed.

Prof. Cohen recommends that the Federation must assume the functions of repairing the damage. He feels that the Federations should, in their own interest and in the interest of the Jewish community, attempt to stimulate the bonds between the generation of givers and those who have to be trained in the art of giving.

The Federations must appeal to the sons of the old businessmen, to the intellectuals and to the professionals who might not have their parents' feelings but who are the future of Jewish community life.

Prof. Cohen suggests quite a shift in the philosophy of the Federations and in their approach . . . but will they do it? Can they do it?

They must if we are to survive.

Prof. Cohen also reflects on the difference between the assimilated Jew of old and the new breed. In the old days assimilated Jews, rich and aloof from all that reminded them of their origin, nevertheless gave large amounts of money to charitable purposes. That was their way of expressing their being Jews.

In later days the Federations emphasized, in their campaigns, that Jews must also have strong ties with everything that was happening to Jews all over the world. They must be moved to tears when adversity befell them, and their hearts were filled with joy when good things happened to them. These were mostly the immigrants of the first generation and their children.

Now we are appealing to the third generation and even to the fourth generation yet our approach is the same. The Federation cannot expect to get the same response from the grandchildren of the first generation: their language is different, their attitude is different, and their understanding of giving is different.

Now there is nothing new contained in the studies of Prof. Cohen to those of us who are, day in and day out, immersed in Jewish problems. There is nothing new in the inroads assimilation makes in our youth. Nothing new in the falling off in Jewish giving from year to year and nothing new in the tragedies which divorces bring to the family and the lessening of the influence of the Jewish fatality.

What is new in Prof. Cohen's study is in the recommendations to the Federations in every city. He insists that the Federations in every city become what the family of the community once was. They must be the cement which will hold together Jews of the third generations and bring them back to the community.

For that the Federations will have to devise new approaches; a new language.

We hope they can rise to the new task.

How Crackdown on Credit Cards Is Working

Part I

A young friend, a newspaper reporter of excellent reputation, recently spent six weeks traveling abroad on assignment. When he returned to the U.S., he found a letter informing him that his bank credit card had been cancelled. Reason: While traveling, he had missed one payment.

An architect I know in San Francisco finished a meal with her husband and gave the waiter her credit card. A few minutes later, he was back to tell her the card was no longer valid; she had exceeded her credit limit. Furthermore, he had earned $25 for confiscating the card and returning it to the issuer.

Just these two examples underline the extent to which the business downturn, high interest rates and President Carter's credit control program have pushed lenders into tightening up. They are (1) issuing fewer credit cards; (2) limiting or reducing credit lines; (3) weeding out unprofitable or marginal accounts.

The impact on consumers has been extremely uneven. Generally, if you have a spotty credit history, you have been hurt by the crunch, but so, too, have some cardholders who regularly pay in full.

Such credit cardholders are called "convenience users" . . . meaning they use their cards as substitutes for cash or checks and seldom if ever pay interest to the card issuer because they pay their bills well within the time limits each month. The card issuer makes no money on such "good" customers. In fact, these accounts cost the issuer money, which is why some "convenience users" (and they are usually among the more affluent) are shocked to find that their credit cards also are being cancelled.

But while you may have to search harder to obtain as much credit as you want, the credit is still available. The key is knowing the ways to maintain credit if you already have it and knowing when to obtain the money if you need it.

1. Don't miss any payments. If you're going out of town for any lengthy span of time, take the precaution of informing your lender.

2. Pay a little more than the minimum amount required, but don't press to pay off your entire debt. Let the lender make some money from your account by being able to charge you a minimum of interest.

3. If you're young or new to a community and haven't yet established a credit history or if you have a blemished record, try to obtain a passbook loan. Many banks and thrift institutions will permit you to borrow against an existing savings account. Your funds continue to earn interest while you repay the loan at rates which generally are a percentage point or two above the rate your savings are earning.

4. Some savings and loan associations are offering customers a variation of a passbook loan. It's promoted under a variety of names by different S&Ls. In the Washington, D.C., area, reports my associate Brooke Shearer, Guardian Federal calls it the "12 per cent Solution."

It works like this:

In return for opening a savings account with a minimum of $1,000, you can get a VISA card with a credit line of half this amount — at least $500. You pay an annual rate of 12 per cent interest with this sort of VISA card as opposed to the 18 per cent annual rate with a traditional bank or credit card.

But there is a slight hitch. You are charged interest from the day you make a purchase, whereas with a normal bank card, you are given 30 days in which to pay your bill and avoid any finance charges.

This type of arrangement is of particular benefit to the individual who finds it tough to pay his or her bills each month. There are no minimum monthly required payments, unless you exceed your credit line, and you don't need a good credit history to qualify. No credit check is made on you.

5. Another more obvious source of cash is your credit union, if you belong to one. Credit unions generally are restricted to charging no more than 15 per cent interest and they often make deep concessions to help members who are badly strapped.

If you are eligible for credit union membership and haven't joined, investigate the benefits.

6. Or, if you haven't already done so, you might borrow against the cash value of a whole life insurance policy you own. The rates can vary from as low as 5 per cent (in this era, too!) to 8 per cent. But if you haven't repaid your loan against your life insurance policy and if you die unexpectedly, your outstanding debt will be subtracted from the death benefits your policy will pay your beneficiaries.

Blumberg Outlines UJA Goals

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Herschel Blumberg, the Washington, D.C. builder soon to be installed as the new national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, has devoted the past few months to a detailed and intimate study of his new bailiwick. He is crisscrossing the country, meeting with lay and professional leaders on the national and local levels, and looking for areas where he can contribute new ideas, new input.

Soft-spoken and a systematic thinker, Blumberg, in an interview with the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, outlined three goals that he will set himself during his chairmanship:

* More workers: "There are lots of people who would want to help — but they just haven't been asked," he said. "Volunteering is indeed part of the way of life in America. But voluntary work for the UJA is often not sufficiently recognized."

* More gifts: The incumbent national chairman, Irving Field, set up a "New Gifts Task Force" which has submitted a long list of recommendations regarding soliciting techniques, Blumberg said. Mail, phone, press advertisements, and the personal approach . . . they have all been carefully examined in their myriad forms, and conclusions drawn.

Techniques evolving out of the committee's recommendations are presently being tried in three West Coast cities, and Blumberg said he intends to monitor the results carefully.

* Focus on big givers: "That is where the money is," the chairman-designate noted with disarming frankness. He said he intends "to use lay people on the national level more than before to make approaches to potential contributors on their peer

American Jewish Committee Publishes Questionnaire

NEW YORK — To help synagogues, community centers, and other Jewish communal agencies adjust to the changing fabric of American family life, the American Jewish Committee has announced publication of a "Jewish Family Impact Questionnaire."

The questionnaire, prepared by the AJC's newly established National Jewish Family Center, provides these agencies with a series of questions by which they can start to reevaluate the impact of their programs in the family area.

Yehuda Rosenman, coordinator of the National Jewish Family Center and Director of the AJC's Jewish Communal Affairs Department, said "The questionnaire will enable institutions to assess and evaluate the effects of their programming on families in their immediate community."

He also noted that "communal organizations program religious, cultural, and social events in various ways to meet the needs of their community. The questionnaire can be applied to a wide range of institutions and families, enabling them to be in a better position to program activities in the future that serve families and support family life."

level." Some people who themselves make handsome annual contributions would perhaps be ready to give of their time to UJA, too, to encourage others to give. But they have to be asked, Blumberg stressed.

Guide To Expand Understanding

NEW YORK (JTA) — An effort to help Catholic parochial school teachers to provide "new appreciation of Jews and Judaism" to their pupils is the objective of a curriculum guide published jointly by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

An ADL spokesperson said that the guide was being sent to Catholic Archdiocesan leaders throughout the United States, adding it was believed to be the first such publication for that purpose. "Abraham, Our Father In Faith," stresses the pronouncements of Vatican II that Catholics should combat anti-Semitism and engage in dialogue with Jews.

The guide was prepared by the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, under the direction of Rev. Michael Carroll, for instruction on Jews and Judaism by elementary and secondary level parochial school religion teachers.

Rabbi Leon Klenicki, co-director of the ADL interfaith affairs department, said the 57-page guide was a "tool that can both expand and deepen Catholic understanding of the Jewish tradition, the Biblical and rabbinic heritage, the Holocaust, the American Jewish experience and the establishment of the State of Israel."

According to its preface, the guide is based on: "Christian recognition of the continuing religious validity of Judaism; Christian reflection on its history of anti-Judaism; interest in the Hebrew Scriptures; a desire to come to grips with the Holocaust; and the need to understand the significance of the State of Israel."

An Open Letter to the Jewish Community

Four years ago, the Jewish people of this nation swung the vote in favor of the man who said that he supported Israel. His record speaks for itself. Massive arms sales to Syria. Fighter planes to Egypt. Voting against Israel in the U.N. Constantly pressuring Israel to give up more and more. And playing the game with the PLO and the Arab Oil Lobby.

On June 3, 1980, you will have an opportunity to express your opinion on these policies, by voting for Ronald Reagan in the Republican Primary. Reagan is strongly pro-Israel and we can depend on him. Never before has the choice been so clear. Never before has your vote been so important. The security of Israel and the economy and entire future of our country depend on it.

That's why I strongly urge you to vote for Ronald Reagan, by voting for Eileen J. Slocum, J. Colin Dawson and Thomas W. Pearlman as Delegates to the Republican Convention. We're for Reagan, because Reagan is best for our country.

Sincerely yours,

Thomas W. Pearlman

P.S. Again, please remember to vote in the Republican Primary, June 3, 1980, second column, Thomas Pearlman, 2nd position; J. Colin Dawson, 5th position; and Eileen J. Slocum, 15th position.

Fellowship Offered At Wiener E C

NEW YORK (JTA) — A two-year post masters work-study fellowship is being offered by the Wiener Educational Center of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, according to Philip Hirsch, Wiener Center chairman. He said the Fellowship, which includes an annual stipend of $14,500 to $16,000, will be awarded to the chosen candidate with a Master's Degree in social work, or a related discipline, and with a commitment to service in the Jewish communal field.

He said the Fellowship program consists of three parts: a work assignment of the Federation; a work assignment at the United Jewish Appeal-Federation joint campaign, of which the Federation is a beneficiary; and a continuing educational program specifically created for the individual Fellow.

Hirsch said other criteria include superior performance in previous social work positions or field assignments, evidence of potential growth into future leadership, of ability to relate productively to staff and lay leaders, and willingness to undertake an intensive work and study program for two years. He said election of the candidates will be made by a special Wiener subcommittee on graduate school programs, in close consultation with Dr. Harry Schatz, director of the Wiener center.

Schatz said the purpose of the Fellowship is to encourage graduates of social work schools to seek opportunities for continuing professional education and intensified work experience. "Our ultimate objective," he said, "is to identify young people who have the potential for professional leadership in the Jewish communal field, and to provide them with the opportunity to grow and develop in theory and practice." He stressed that the Fellowship focuses on practical experience and professional education.

The Wiener Center was created 12 years ago to provide educational opportunities and resources for staff members of Federation and Federation agencies, and to provide professionally supervised field work experience in the Federation for students in graduate schools majoring in community organization and administration who have career aspirations in the Jewish communal field.

Second Menten Trial Begins

AMSTERDAM (JTA) — The second trial of Pieter Menten, whose first conviction and sentence on war crimes charges was quashed by the Supreme Court in 1978, opened recently in a Rotterdam district court. Witnesses from Israel, Poland, the Soviet Union and the United States are expected to testify against him.

Menten's new trial is the culmination of two years of tortuous legal maneuverings by the defense and prosecution in which rulings by one court were overturned by another. But the 80-year-old millionaire Dutch-born art dealer who served with the Nazi SS during World War II still stands accused of mass murders, mostly of Jews, in Podhorodze village in the Lemberg district of Poland in July 1941.

THE WORLD OF FINE FOODS

TED TAVERNIER
GOURMET'S GALLERY

Let's clear up a few of the myths about freezing food. First of all, food cannot be frozen indefinitely and still keep its flavor. Maximum storage time for most unground meats, for instance, is just 8 months. For ham, slab bacon, and certain smoked meats — no more than 60 days! For most bakery products, 3 months. Another thing — freezing does not kill bacteria. It only stops bacteria from multiplying, which is why strict sanitation must be employed when preparing food for the home freezer. Finally, some foods you should never freeze are fresh fruits and vegetables, cottage cheese, mayonnaise, and hard-boiled eggs.

Israeli Tennis Youths to Play in Providence

A team of eight Israeli tennis players ranging in age from nine to fifteen will be arriving in the United States on June 1. Led by 12-year-old world tennis champ Gilad Bloom, the five young boys and three girls will be presenting exhibitions and tournaments in the States and Canada, representing Israel's unique Tennis Centers program which now has over 2,000 youngsters participating.

Besides Bloom, the children who are members of the tour include: Tony Harris, 14, born in Rhodesia; Dalia Kuriat, 10, originally from Morocco; Savit Shalev, 14, from England and Shachar Gat, 10, an Israeli sabra.

Others in the group of youngsters are: Israeli-born Uval Hirsch, 9; Max Osheroff, 11, from Russia and Rakeffet Benyamini, 15, also a sabra. They will be accompanied by their coaches Shlomo Zoreff and Ronnie Sender, as well as Dr. William Lippy, ITCA Vice-President, and Dr. Ian Froman, ITC Executive Director.

These youngsters' achievements are representative of the unique Israel Tennis Center program which was initiated chiefly by American backers. Today, the program is supported by committees in Canada, England, Holland, France, South Africa and in Israel.

Three Centers — Ramat Hasharon, Jaffa, and Kiryat Shmona — are in full operation. Centers in Jerusalem, Ashkelon, Haifa and Arad in the Negev are now under construction. All these Centers are unique in that they exist primarily to serve the country's young. They are reserved for the thousands of young boys and girls who take part in a free, accelerated, introductory tennis program.

Divided into two teams of four, the youngsters will tour America and Canada exhibiting their tennis skills in more than fifty cities. In the East they will play in New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Washington, D.C.; Boston, New Jersey, Hartford and Providence.

Harold Landesberg, President of the Israel Tennis Centers Association, the American corporation which started the program, emphasizes the fact that the program teaches more than tennis. "We teach poise and self-assurance. We teach manners — how to meet people, how to shake hands, how to act on and off the court, how to dress. We give each of these kids, many from deprived backgrounds, a program of better eating habits and health care. We help them to become competitive and sportive and give them a touch of normal, youthful activities. The children are better for their experiences with the Israel Tennis Center."

Volunteers Are Honored

Over 66,000 hours of volunteer work for the Miriam Hospital were represented at a special recognition ceremony held recently at the Ledgemont Country Club in Seekonk. Two hundred sixteen persons were honored for what was described by Volunteer Department Co-Directors, Hinda Semonoff and Pauline Jacobson, as "so many hours of selfless giving."

The program featured greetings from Sidney F. Greenwald, Chairman of the Miriam Board of Trustees; Jerome R. Sapolsky, President of the Miriam Hospital; Mrs. Robert Bernstein, President of the Miriam Hospital Women's Association; and Jeanette Matrone, R.N., Miriam Hospital Nurse-in-Chief.

Among those honored were the following who gave over a thousand hours of service to the hospital:

Mrs. Rachel Rakatansky, Mr. Maurice Cohane, Mr. Jack Platin, Mr. David Wall, Mrs. Bertha Small, Mrs. Emily Cotton, Mrs. E. Successful Investing

Growth Stocks For The Eighties

Q. We are interested in growth stocks and, in fact, would prefer to have all our dividends reinvested, rather than get the income. At present, we hold Union Carbide and Ford Motor. What stock should we buy for our goals?

T. F. Michigan

A. Both stocks now in your portfolio are cyclical in nature, that is, they tend to follow the ups and downs of the economic cycle. This feast or famine behavior is particularly true in the automotive industry. Ford will probably report significantly lower earnings again this year. Unless you are especially patient, I would favor selling Ford and reinvesting the proceeds in stock with greater near-term potential.

Union Carbide, with a broader product base, is in a less vulnerable position. Management expects earnings to be up slightly this year, reflecting accounting changes; operating net will be lower. Per-share net of $10 vs. $8.47 in 1979, seems a reasonable figure. This stock should be held.

As a replacement for Ford, I like Abbott Labs (NYSE). Abbott has three major worldwide thrusts in health care: nutritionals, pharmaceuticals and diagnostics. Aside from basic growth in these fields, the firm has scored steady advances in productivity, as measured by sales per employee (in constant dollars).

Earnings and dividends have grown an average of 24 per cent and 25 per cent, respectively, each year for the last five. Earnings were up 19 per cent in the first quarter and should reach $3.50 for the full year. The dividend rate is $1.20, and this plus cash may be reinvested through the company's dividend reinvestment plan.

New money should be used to purchase EG&G, Inc. (NYSE), a technological conglomerate that has parlayed years of experience in nuclear research and weapons testing into high-growth potential products and services. Effective financial controls and judicious acquisitions can also be credited for the strong profits gains of recent years. . . averaging 31 per cent compounded annually since 1975.

The components and instrumentation areas have spearheaded growth, buoyed by strong demand from defense, computer and industrial markets.

Management is counting on the company's advanced work in alternate energy sources, hydroelectric, coal gasification, solar, etc., to provide new growth impetus in the 1980's. EG&G offers shareholders a dividend reinvestment plan for adding to their holdings. Buy for growth.

Career Women's Affiliate To Hold Annual Meeting

Career Women's Affiliate of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island will hold its Annual Meeting on Thursday, May 29, 1980, at 7:45 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center in Providence. The Organization of Jewish Career Women is celebrating its first anniversary and extends an invitation to all women presently in careers — those re-entering — or those considering entering the world of work.

The speaker will be Walter Feldman, artist, educator and this year's recipient of the Governor's Arts Award for outstanding achievement in the visual arts. His address, entitled "Reflections," will focus on his sources of inspiration, his methods of work, and slides of his pieces.

Feldman, a faculty member at Brown University, has created works that are represented in many major collections in the country. In Providence, his mosaics are in the entrance to Temple Beth-El, and his stained glass designs grace windows in several buildings.

Feldman has received several commissions for murals; the most notable in this area is on the exterior wall of Union Paper Company.

The meeting will also include installation of officers for Career Women's Affiliate for 1980-19. The slate of officers includes: Anita Berger, president; Alice Goldstein, vice-president; and Maxine Kronish, secretary.

Bridge

by Robert E. Starr

"I was hoping that —" is a very common statement heard during a Bridge game, whether it be Duplicate or Home Rubber Bridge. Rather than hope in this game, you should go along with the odds. However, what makes the game even more interesting is that, sometimes, even the most forlorn wish does come true.

Unfortunately this does tend to keep these players doing it more and more. Today's hand is a good example of how the odds is better than the hope.

That really didn't matter, there was no one he could keep out as his only problem was to be able to score his needed nine tricks.

There are two suits, the two black ones, that might be able to provide those extra tricks. Spades is not too promising as even if it does break 3-3, against percentages, a trick has to be lost first. To add to nine, two Club tricks must also be cashed so before using that Spade Ace, the only entry, the Club King must also be cashed first to unblock.

Now, if the Club Queen doesn't drop on the Ace, the defenders can cash their odd Spade, the odd Heart and the Club Queen to set the hand.

More Declarers felt the Club suit, even though one card shorter, had better cards and might be a better shot for that trick. Here is where that "Hope" came in. Some Declarers led the King and then went over to Dummy's Spade Ace, the only entry, "hoping" the Club Queen would fall on the Ace and the whole suit be good. With seven cards out dropping the doubleton Queen is greatly against the odds. When it failed to drop, only two Clubs scored when four can be guaranteed as long as the odds still behave.

Going along with the odds all the way, assume the seven Clubs out will break 4-3, which they do. With but one entry to them you have to do something I know is against most players feelings. You must overtake the King with Dummy's Ace and then keep leading high Clubs until the Queen is taken. They can cash that last Heart but that's all.

You already have found by ducking Hearts that they also break. Even when East wins his Club and has no Heart to lead, you still have no other way to make any overtricks but at least the hand has been made.

Moral: If you played for money and it cost to flaunt the odds, I'm sure you'd learn them all and rarely go against them.

North was Dealer, both sides vulnerable with this bidding:

N	E	S	W
P	P	1S	P
2C	P	2D	P
3C	P	3NT	End

The bidding as shown is probably the way it should have gone. I am sure it didn't go that way at every table, although almost every pair did end in that same contract. The problem is to make the hand.

Even if South hadn't bid his Diamond suit I feel that West's best lead is a small Heart. A lead from four small cards is better than from four to the Jack. That Heart certainly did nothing to help Declarer, who usually held off his Ace until the last round.

Feldman to Receive Governor's Arts Award

On May 23, Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy will present internationally-known painter and print-maker Walter Feldman with the 1980 Governor's Arts Award in a ceremony at Brown University's List Art Center in Providence.

Feldman, who has been a member of the Brown art department since 1953, was selected by a committee from the Rhode Island State Council on the Arts. The award is given annually in recognition of the artistic achievement or contribution to the arts of a Rhode Island individual or organization.

Daniel Lecht, chairman of the Council and the selection committee, called Feldman "a creative giant and a humble man, who has devoted a major portion of his adult life to sharing with young artists his great talent and enthusiasm for art." Lecht and Gov. Garrahy will be joined in honoring Feldman by Frank Robinson, director of the Museum of Art at the Rhode Island School of Design.

Feldman has exhibited in Milan; London; Tokyo; Mexico City; New York City; Washington, D.C.; Boston; San Antonio; and Providence. His works are part of the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; Museum of Modern Art; Library of Congress; DeCordova and Dana Museum; Fogg Museum of Art; and Michener Collection.

He is also a print-making consultant to the Hope Arts Magnet Program in Providence and has taught at Yale University, Harvard University, University of California, and Dartmouth College.

Music will be provided by the Telos III jazz ensemble from Jamestown, with a special performance by Vincent Fraioli, composer in residence for the State Arts Council. Guitarist Fraioli will play solo works by Scarlatti, Bach and Julian Orbone.

Israeli Forces Enter Lebanon

TEL AVIV (JTA) — An uneasy quiet prevailed in south Lebanon after a weekend of artillery and mortar duels between Palestinian terrorists and Christian forces commanded by Maj. Saad Haddad. The exchanges of fire, described as the heaviest in months, followed pre-emptive Israeli ground and naval attacks on terrorist bases and other targets inside Lebanon.

An alert was in effect in Upper Galilee after a number of shells of undetermined origin exploded harmlessly in the area between Metullah and Kiryat Shemona.

An army spokesman has announced that Israeli units entered Lebanon in actions aimed specifically against terrorist targets. All Israeli forces returned safely to their bases. No details were given.

The operation was the second since the terrorist attack on Kibbutz Misgav Am last month, aimed at dislodging terrorists from their bases in order to prevent the organization of new assaults on Israel.

An Israeli patrol killed three terrorists last week who were trying to cut through the security fence on the Israeli border.

The terrorist radio in Lebanon reported that Israeli naval units shelled the Tyre area while Israeli artillery shelled the Nabatiyeh area in south Lebanon. A Lebanese newspaper reported that six terrorists, members of the Syrian-backed Al Saiqa group, were killed while trying to dismantle a booby-trapped radio transmitter left on the Lebanese shore near Sidon, apparently by Israeli commandos. The explosion also demolished the terrorist command post, the report said.

Israeli sources denied terrorist reports that Israeli artillery took part in the shelling between Christians and Palestinians. According to the sources, the terrorists precipitated the battle on Friday by shelling villages in the Christian enclave. They rejected a cease-fire demand by Haddad, at which point Christian artillery shelled Tyre and Sidon area.

Three Killed in Fire at L.A. Chabad House

NEW YORK (JTA) — Three residents of the Chabad Lubavitch House on the UCLA campus in Westwood, Los Angeles, were killed in a fire which swept through the three-story building in the early hours, Wed. May 14. Three of the six persons in the house at the time escaped by jumping through windows. One of them was injured as was one of the 55 firemen who battled the blaze. The Fire Department said the building was a total loss and estimated the damage at $1 million.

The fire started at approximately 1 a.m. Los Angeles time, reportedly in the basement, and spread through the stairwells. Twelve firefighting units were at the scene some 10 minutes later but by then the building was practically gutted, the JTA was told. Three Torah scrolls were burned, two of them beyond repair.

Judaic Institute To Be Held at SMU

A five day Judaic Institute entitled, "The American-Jewish Experience: From Immigrant to Suburbanite," will be held at Southeastern Massachusetts University from June 15-19 under the direction of Rabbi Bernard Glassman of New Bedford's Tifereth Israel Synagogue, and Dr. Robert P. Waxler, professor of English at SMU. The program is being sponsored by SMU's Division of Continuing Studies.

The purpose of the Judaic Institute is to explore the various dimensions of the American Jewish experience from an historical, a literary, and a sociological perspective. Issues such as the immigration from Eastern Europe, the creation of the state of Israel, and the Holocaust, will be discussed from the standpoint of their effects upon our country's Jewish and non-Jewish communities, with special emphasis on the events of the past seventy-five years.

The two noted scholars and authors, Dr. Howard Sacher and Dr. Irving Howe, will lecture and participate in classroom discussions. Rabbi Glassman and Dr. Waxler will conduct classes on the historical and literary themes of American Jewish history. In addition, a program on the music of the American Jew will be presented by Cantors Jeffrey R. Shapiro and Richard A. Wolberg. Film presentations and various displays will round out this five day Judaic Institute, the first of its kind at SMU.

For more information, call 999-8037, or write SMU's Division of Continuing Studies, North Dartmouth, Mass. 02747.

Minister Orders Seizures To Quell Arab Plots

JERUSALEM—Evidence uncovered by Israeli security officials indicates that small numbers of extreme right-wing Jews are organizing to conduct terrorist attacks against Arabs.

Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, concerned over these latest developments has ordered the arrest and imprisonment of Jews without trial under emergency anti-terrorist legislation aimed primarily at Arabs.

In the wake of this emergency legislation Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the militant Kach Movement and Jewish Defense League, was seized at the West Bank settlement of Qiryat Arba, near Hebron. Also taken into custody was another ultranationalist, Baruch Ben-Yosef.

Referring to Rabbi Kahane, an official stated that "he was planning a horrible crime," although the official declined to give specifics. He did go on to say, however, that "We are very cognizant of the possibility that something like this can become a trend. These things are contagious."

Since the May 2 terrorist attack by Palestinians on a group of Jews returning from Sabbath prayers in the occupied Arab city of Hebron, fear of Jewish terrorism has been mounting. Most of the terrorists who attacked the Jews were ultranationalist settlers who want to keep the West Bank forever in Israeli hands.

There has also been talk among their supporters of avenging the six deaths. Sixteen were also wounded during the ambush.

Appearing at a news conference held last week, Rabbi Kahane said that the Government should form a "Jewish terror group" that, he hoped, "would throw bombs and grenades to kill Arabs" to drive them out of Israel and the occupied territories.

It has also been learned, through unconfirmed reports which have appeared in the Israeli press, that Gush Emunim, a right-wing group dedicated to establishing Jewish

League of Women Voters Offer Car Care Program

In a program offered by the League of Women Voters in co-operation with participating service stations, free instruction in basic car care maintenance is now available to women motorists in Rhode Island. Last spring, 800 women participated in such clinics, which are principally designed for women by anyone over the age of 16 may attend.

Each clinic lasts 2 1/2 hours and will include an instructional slide show followed by a "hands on" practice in such basics as changing a tire, jump-starting a battery, operating a self-serve pump, checking tire pressure and inspecting fluid levels, under the supervision of a trained mechanic. A kit of reference material and a free tire pressure gauge which is small enough to fit into a woman's handbag will be given to each participant.

Kay Kaplan is the R.I. Car Care Coordinator for the League of Women Voters. Since each clinic is limited to 25 persons, reservations must be made. Phone numbers are: Cranston, 942-2991 or 943-0314; Warwick, East Greenwich, and West Warwick, 828-7742, 884-8977, or 885-0716; East Providence, 438-4291; Lincoln, 333-5625, 333-5008, or 723-6797; Providence, 751-6158, 272-0269, or 274-9895. Participants are advised to bring gloves and a folding chair.

settlements near Arab towns and cities, has decided to form its own paramilitary "security service." This service is being formed because it is believed that the Gush Emunim regards the army as too lenient with Arabs who stone Israeli vehicles and endanger settlers traveling to and from their communities. Virtually all settlers in Arab territories go around heavily armed.

During another incident which occurred late last week, police arrested two Israeli soldiers, Moshe Ben-Arye, an acting officer, and Corporal Arye Leibowitz, both age 20, in charges of stockpiling stolen weapons and explosives on the roof of a Jerusalem yeshiva. Police, who were summoned to the scene by the Yeshiva director, gave no indication that the two suspects were connected with the school.

It is believed that police are certain that there is also no link between that incident and Rabbi Kahane. They see the arms stockpiling as "a spontaneous and unorganized act by at least two and possibly more fanatics," in the words of one source with access to security information.

According to a report carried by Itim, the Israeli news agency, not all the stolen weaponry had been found on the roof. An unspecified amount is said to be still missing.

Due to these latest acts of violence Defense Minister Weizman is reported to have urged tough measures against right-wing militants considered capable of violence.

Knesset Votes on Olympics

TEL AVIV (JTA) — The Knesset Subcommittee for Sports has voted 6-1 to recommend that the Israel Olympic Committee (IOC) boycott the Olympic Games in Moscow this summer. The IOC is scheduled to vote May 22 on whether to attend the games.

The subcommittee's chairperson, Orah Namir, was the only one to vote against the recommendation, saying Israel should wait until the West European countries have made their final decisions. She noted that the European countries could decide not to go to the Olympics and then reverse their decisions and be welcomed with open arms in Moscow. But she said if Israel voted to boycott the Games and then changed its mind, it would be barred not only from Moscow but from other international athletic events.

The resolution adopted by the subcommittee called on the IOC to demand that if Israel did not go to Moscow the U.S. Olympic Committee and the committees of other friendly nations would not compete in other international athletic events from which Israel was barred.

Egypt-Israel May Resume Talks

Egyptian media close to President Anwar Sadat have hinted that Egypt and Israel may be on the way to working out means to resume the autonomy talks which Sadat has suspended. These indications in the semi-official daily Al Ahram and in the weekly magazine "October," followed a 45-minute meeting between Israeli Ambassador Eliahu Ben-Elissar and Egypt's new Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali, at the Foreign Ministry in Cairo.

It was the first such meeting since the Egyptians froze the negotiations for autonomy on the West Bank and Gaza Strip. It was also attended by the Egyptian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Butros Ghali.

Kol Israel Radio reported from Cairo that the Egyptians gave Ben-Elissar a message to convey to Jerusalem. The Israeli envoy refused to comment on this. He told reporters, on leaving the Foreign Ministry, that he had conveyed to Ali a message of congratulations on his appointment as Foreign Minister from Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

While there was no official report on the contents of the letter given to Ben-Elissar, Al Ahram said that it contained specific Egyptian proposals for resumption of the talks.

Sadat has suspended talks on May 8 because of "lack of progress" but he announced, during a four-hour speech to the Egyptian Parliament last week that they would be resumed at an early date.

Instead, the Egyptian Foreign Ministry announced that the talks would remain suspended because of Israel's recent "behavior." The reference was to a new "basic law" declaring united Jerusalem the capital of Israel, which the Knesset approved on first reading and sent to committee.

Anis Mansour, a journalist close to Sadat, wrote in the current issue of "October" that there was no choice but to resume the Egyptian-Israeli-U.S. talks on autonomy. Al Ahram reported that Egypt had received clarifications from Israel with respect to the Jerusalem bill in the Knesset. According to the paper, the Israelis explained that the Knesset acted to kill a bill which was proposed by an ultra-nationalist opposition faction (Tehiya) by passing it on to committee.

Sadat sent a cable to Premier Menachem Begin and another to President Carter after he ordered the talks suspended for a second time, the Israel Broadcasting Authority correspondent in Cairo, Ehud Yaari, reported. Sadat refused to disclose the contents of his cable to Begin and there was no confirmation of it from the Israeli Embassy in Cairo.

However, the Egyptian President did acknowledge the existence of the cable in a brief meeting with reporters Friday. Asked about the statement by Israel's chief autonomy negotiator, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, that the break-off of negotiations indicated "instability" in Egypt, Sadat retorted, "No comment." He also refused to say under what circumstances Egypt would agree to resume the talks.

However, he reiterated that the Knesset's decision on Jerusalem "was not in its place."

Kidnapping/Social Unrest

Similar conditions exist in Guatemala, the AJCommittee official declared, with murder, kidnapping and clashes between guerrilla forces and the army rampant.

Here too the Jews are targets as bourgeois. There are about 1500 Jews who remain in the country, down by about one-fourth from the previous year.

Nudelstejer stated that in Honduras, which is the poorest of the Central American states and which has about 200 Jews, officials are trying to prevent revolution by offering to hold free elections. However, he reported, here too the government is beset by political forces from both extremes.

Only in Costa Rica (2500 Jews), a country which has traditionally been democratic and stable, and Panama (5000 Jews), where the military are firmly in control, does the Jewish community presently feel secure, he declared.

But the overall unrest in Central America, Nudelstejer continued, has had an effect in Colombia, the northernmost country in South America. In that land, a country with a long and stable democratic tradition, leftist forces have been growing in size, recently seizing the Dominican Republic Embassy in Bogota, the capital of Colombia, for several weeks.

Contributions Aid Refugees

NEW YORK (JTA) — In a dramatic display of interreligious cooperation, the American Jewish Committee presented checks of $10,000 each to Catholic, Protestant and Jewish relief agencies working to aid Cambodian refugees and Vietnamese boat people. The $30,000 contribution was made by Richard Maass, outgoing president of the AJCommittee, at a session of the organization's 74th annual meeting here.

Maass explained that the funds had been contributed by individual members of the AJCommittee. In addition, he stated, AJCommittee chapters in many communities had forged interfaith coalitions, arranged for teach-ins and press conferences, undertaken fundraising functions, and called for state and local government response to the plight of the Indochinese refugees.

Territorial 'Compromise' Urged By Prominent Israelis

JERUSALEM — Five former generals and 20 current members of Parliament are among the 250 prominent Israelis who are urging that the Israel government seek security "through compromise" on territorial issues.

The group, which also includes four former Labor Party Government ministers, are publicly advocating "a return to mainstream Zionism" from the present policies which they described as being guided by "chauvinism."

In the formally prepared statement the group, although stressing compromise, did not formulate any clear program. The statement also did not contain any criticism of the Government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin on any specific issue.

Initiated by the Peace Now movement, the statement also included several well-known Israelis among its signers. This was the first time that their names had been identified with the organization.

According to Dodi Zucker, a Peace Now leader and one of the framers of the statement, the organizers "would wait to assess Israeli reaction before drawing up detailed plans." He did, however, list possible steps to organize groups within the major political parties or press the positions contained in the statement.

Listed among the signers were Gad Yaakobi, Haim Gvati, Aharon Yadin and Victor Shemtov, former ministers; and Amon Rubinstein, Uzi Baram, Micha Harish and Meir Talmi, all members of Parliament.

The former generals who signed the statement included: Haim Bar-Lev, former Chief of Staff and Secretary of the Labor Party; Avraham Adan, a former artillery commander; Elad Peled; and two former intelligence chiefs Zvi Zamir and Yhoshafat Harkabi.

The text of statement reads as follows:

"Our way is not theirs: Extremists in the public and within the Government, guided by secular and religious chauvinism, distort Zionism and threaten its realization. They advance the vicious cycle of extremism and violence, which nurture each other.

"Their way endangers and isolates Israel, undermining the ethical basis for our claims to a life of peace and security.

"Their way leads to divisions within the Jewish people, alienates friends of Israel, and strengthens the extremists among our enemies.

"Their way undermines consensus within Israel over the reasons for fighting and dying.

"Their is the way of obtuseness and violence. Their way leads to a dead end.

"In Israel the Jewish people has sought to guarantee its physical survival, to build a sovereign Jewish society, and to create a spiritual center for the Jewish people.

"Peace is necessary for the full realization of this dream.

"Our way is the way of peace and security through compromise and partition of the land of Israel.

"Our way is the way of coexistence and of tolerance.

"Our way seeks to unite the Jewish people around its Jewish and humanist heritage.

"At this time all those whose way is our way must stand up and be counted. We must build a way to block violence and we must return to mainstream Zionism."

Solomon Schechter School of R.I. Expanding Into Its Third Year

The Solomon Schechter Day School of Rhode Island, moving into its third year this fall, will add on another grade for the graduating students to enroll into. In fall, 1980, the school will include grades K through two with 12 additional enrollees, bringing the total to 32.

Adding on a grade each year, they eventually hope to go through eighth grade. "After a somewhat fragile start, we are growing in size and taking a strong root in the community," said Sheila Alexander, the director of enrollment and development for the school. "We are even expanding our service area and taking a student from Fall River."

To compensate for this growth, the school has hired a full-time administrator and three new faculty members. The new administrator is Ada Beth Cutler, who is Assistant Director of the school.

Mrs. Cutler was the school's first kindergarten teacher and she developed the entire kindergarten curriculum as well as the curriculum for the first grade. She is a graduate of the Barnard College and attended the City College of New York.

A certified teacher, Mrs. Cutler has taught in New York public schools, and has knowledge of both general studies and Judaic areas of the curriculum, being a graduate of the Prozdor Hebrew High School of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

The school spends the morning hours teaching its students a general elementary curricula of math, science, social studies, language, etc., and devotes the afternoon hours to Hebrew and Bible study, understanding of prayer, reading and understanding the Hebrew language.

One of the new faculty members is Marilyn Zacks, a second grade General Studies teacher. Mrs. Zacks is a graduate of Boston University with a B.A. in Psychology. She holds an M.Ed. from Harvard University in elementary education, was an elementary school teacher in Winchester, Mass., for five years, and served as demonstration teacher for the Harvard Graduate School of Education. She was a coordinator for school art programs and Assistant Science Chairman for the Children's School of Science at Woods Hole, Mass. Mrs. Zacks is married and has three children.

The other new second-grade faculty member who is a Jewish Studies teacher is Shulamit Schoenfeld. She was born in Mexico and has lived in the United States for fifteen years. Mrs. Schoenfeld is a graduate of Universidad Nacional Autonoma de Mexico and received a teachers certificate from the Hayim Greenberg Teachers Institute in Jerusalem. She also attended the Hebrew Teachers Institute of Mexico.

Mrs. Schoenfeld has nine years experience as a Hebrew and Yiddish teacher in various day schools in Mexico and in Hebrew Schools in Rhode Island. She is married and has three children.

The third new faculty member is a first grade general studies teacher, Diane Preneta. Miss Preneta holds a B.A. in Elementary Education and an M.Ed. in reading from Rhode Island College. She received honors for student teaching. Miss Preneta has taught elementary grades at the F.J. Varieur School in Pawtucket, where she was also a reading specialist intern.

Of the teachers remaining, Wendy Garf is the Hebrew Teacher in the first grade, and she will be supplementing the kindergarten Hebrew Program.

Ms. Garf came from Long Island where she had been teaching in the Solomon Schechter School of Jericho, and a beginning Hebrew class in an afternoon Hebrew School. She was one of the pilot teachers for the new United Synagogue Curriculum. Ms. Garf studied in the High School department and in the joint program of the Jewish Theological Seminary. She then studied in Israel for a teachers diploma at the Hayim Greenberg Teachers Institute in Jerusalem.

During her five year stay in Israel, she held a number of teaching positions in the Israeli school system, teaching in the lower grades, and spent a year as the full-time second grade teacher in a Kibbutz school at Kibbutz Sde Eiyahu.

In addition to being a classroom teacher, Ms. Garf is a Youth group director and a camp counselor.

Ruth Ellen Berenson will continue to be the kindergarten teacher. She received both her undergraduate degree and her Masters in Education from the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. Mrs. Berenson also attended the Rhode Island School of Design and she is an accomplished potter.

After two years of teaching in Amherst, Mass., she taught for five years in the Rhode Island area. She taught kindergarten in North Rehoboth, and then became a head teacher at the Jewish Community Center Nursery School for two years, where she taught, trained aides, and was instrumental in designing parent workshops. She then became the head teacher of Orchard Place Nursery School.

Mrs. Berenson also does creative movement, modern dance, and yoga. She is married and has one child.

There are 60 Solomon Schechter Schools nationally; seven in New England. On June 19, the Solomon Schechter Day School of Rhode Island will hold its first Donor Reception Fundraising, with a wine and cheese tasting at the RISD/Brown Hillel House, which will be open to the community.

Terrorists Apprehended at Border Checkpoint

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — An Israeli patrol surprised and killed three heavily armed terrorists trying to infiltrate into Israel from south Lebanon recently.

The incident occurred at 9 p.m. local time when the three were caught in the process of cutting through the barbed wire security fence just east of the Rosh Hanikra border checkpoint.

Security sources said documents found on the bodies indicated that the men were members of George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and that their mission was to seize hostages at Kibbutz Hanita and hold them for the release of terrorists imprisoned in Israel.

The Israeli patrol suffered no casualties in the brief exchange of fire that marked the incident.

Meanwhile, a Tel Aviv district court judge imposed life prison sentences on two young Arab women and a man who comprised a terrorist cell allegedly responsible for the deaths of at least six persons and injuries to more than 130 others in a long series of terrorist acts, mainly in the Jerusalem area.

Those convicted were Jamal Yassin, 22 and Nadia el-Tyat and Nan Masieh, both 21.

A fourth member of the group, Aataf Yousef, 22, was sentenced to 20 years.
