Begin Issues Invitation To Meet With Sadat In Israel

CAIRO—According to Israeli sources Prime Minister Menachem Begin has extended an invitation to meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in order to resume the stalled negotiations regarding Palestinian autonomy.

The invitation, according to reliable sources, was issued to President Sadat by Israeli Ambassador Eliahu Ben Elissar during a meeting held on Wednesday amid reports that Israel was threatening not to complete the proposed withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula unless an international police force was formed there.

Following the meeting Egyptian foreign minister Kamal Hassan was quoted as saying that although a summit meeting was not discussed, President Sadat was "satisfied" with the "clarifications" offered by Israel regarding the Sinai. He said it was "a closed matter."

Under the terms of the previous March

1979 peace treaty a United Nations peace force was to be created with the intention that it would patrol a buffer zone along the new Sinai frontier between the two nations.

The newly created UN force was to have been deployed when Israel pulled its troops back to the El Arish-Ras Muhammed line, located down the middle of the Sinai, last January.

The UN Security Council, however, has refused to set up a new force and, aided by American and UN observers, began both Israel and Egypt began joint patrol of the area.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Begin has emphasized, however, that Egypt had yet to agree to an international force due to the present cutoff of negotiations. The two heads of state have not met since their last series of talks were held in January, in the Egyptian resort city of Aswan.

Since then relations between the Sadat and Begin have been strained by the stalled negotiations on Palestinian autonomy.

Israel's next scheduled withdrawal is for April 1982, when troops are to pull back an additional 50 miles eastward. Israel had occupied this peninsula during the Six Day War in 1967.

According to the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram said, Begin had raised the issue because of recent internal problems created when Ezer Weizman, former Israeli Defense Minister, had resigned his post after accusing the Begin government of "marking time" in the settlement of the Palestinian autonomy negotiations with Egypt.

Resignation 'Internal Matter' According to U.S.

WASHINGTON (JTA) — The political turmoil widely reported from Israel stemming from the resignation of Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Premier Menachem Begin's response to his accusations of stymieing the autonomy talks received little public attention from the Carter Administration.

At the State Department, spokesman Tom Reston said he had "no comment" when he was asked if he had any reaction to the events in Israel. "That's an internal matter for Israel," he said. When he was asked whether the United States was concerned over the effects of the developments in Israel on the autonomy talks, Reston said:

"We have said repeatedly over the last several days that the governments of Israel and Egypt remain committed to continuing negotiations on the autonomy talks.

Nothing has happened which has changed that commitment as far as we know. We remain in contact with both governments about their resumption of the talks. We hope they will be soon, but I have no date to give you."

Reston said, with reference to reports that the Camp David formula is unsuccessful with May 26, the original target date for agreement on autonomy, having passed without agreement, "our position remains that these negotiations within the Camp David framework offer the only practical prospects for reaching a solution."

He said that the U.S. "continues to support these negotiations as a full partner."

Reston refused to discuss the results of the recent visit to Washington of Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak. He denied a report that a joint U.S.-Egyptian message had been sent to Israel.

Asked if he had a time frame for the conclusion of the autonomy talks, Reston said there is "no time frame" and "I have nothing on the target date."

CULMINATING A WEEK of Yom Yerushalayim activities, Rabbi Israel Miller presents Ariel David Blum, son of Yehuda Blum, Israeli Ambassador to the United Nations, with a special Bar-Mitzvah certificate signed by Leon Dulzin, chairman of the World Zionist Organization and Teddy Kollek, Mayor of Jerusalem. The certificates, prepared in honor of the 13th anniversary of Jerusalem's reunification, was distributed by the American Zionist Federation to almost 15,000 B'nai Mitzvah through 500 synagogues.

Attending the ceremony, held at a session of the A.Z.F. National Board were, left to right, Charlotte Jacobson, chairperson of the W.Z.O.-American Section; Rabbi Joseph P. Sternstein, president, A.Z.F.; Ambassador Blum; Rabbi Israel Miller, Carmella Carr, A.Z.F. executive director; Ariel David Blum, Moriah Blum and Efrat Hefziba Blum, the Ambassador's son, wife and daughter respectively.

Twins To Boycott Program

WASHINGTON (JTA) — Lynn and Susan Stein are twin sisters and valedictorians of their graduating class at Woodson High School in Fairfax, Va., but, being Orthodox Jews, they will not take part in the school's commencement exercises June 7 unless Virginia's Supreme Court orders the Fairfax County School Board to hold them on a date other than a Saturday. June 7 falls on a Saturday.

The twins are the eldest of seven children, five girls and two boys, of Dr. Jerome Stein, who practices medicine in the historic city of Alexandria, and Mrs. Evelyn Stein. The family came to Virginia from New York when the twins were infants. Fairfax does not have an Orthodox synagogue, the Steins are members of the Conservative congregation Olan Tikvah which is within walking distance of their home.

The twins plan to major in biology in college starting next fall, Susan at Brandeis and Lynn at Haverford.

Washington attorney Michael Hausfeld, who represents the twins, went into the Fairfax County Circuit Court to have the graduation date changed. He told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that the court was sympathetic to the girls' position but it held that attendance of students at a graduation ceremony is not mandatory and that the girls will get their diplomas.

The case is now before the highest Virginia tribunal.

Begin To Retain Post As Defense Minister

JERUSALEM — In a move to avert a possible Government shutdown over a proposed Cabinet shuffle, Prime Minister Menachem Begin has agreed to continue as his own Defense Minister.

With a number of factions of the governing coalition at odds over who should succeed Ezer Weizman following his angry resignation last week, it is reported that the Prime Minister has temporarily suspended his attempt to shuffle the Cabinet.

Jordan Attack Termed Outrage

NEW YORK — "Acts of terrorism and violence against individuals or groups have no place in America or in the world," said Ivan J. Novick, president of the Zionist Organization of America, in a reaction of sympathy to the attack on Vernon Jordan, president of the National Urban League, who was shot in the back and severely wounded in Indiana last week.

Cling Jordan as "an outstanding citizen of our great nation," Novick and Paul Flacks, ZOA national executive director, said they hope Jordan, who "has been a voice of intelligence and moderation in the area of human relations," would soon be able to resume his important efforts as president of the National Urban League.

In order to forgo any attempt by Mr. Begin to force his new Cabinet appointments through, some members of the Cabinet had vowed to vote against any of Mr. Begin's recommendations.

Moshe Arens, conservative chairman of Parliament's Foreign Affairs and Security Commission was thought to be a serious consideration for the Ministry post however, he is a member of Mr. Begin's Herut Party and therefore would not satisfy the Liberals' demand for a man of their own in the job.

Mr. Begin, who had also held the post of Foreign Minister following the resignation of Moshe Dayan last October, is thought capable of holding the defense post for several months if necessary.

Kollek Cancels Tour

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Mayor Teddy Kollek abruptly cancelled a guided tour of Jerusalem with U.S. Secretary of Transportation Neil Goldschmidt after U.S. officials indicated a reluctance to have Goldschmidt visit East Jerusalem under official auspices.

An aide to the Mayor explained later, "We will not accept any conditional visits to united Jerusalem." Kollek had planned an hour-long automobile tour with Goldschmidt, visiting all quarters of the city, but he called it off rather than restrict the itinerary to the western portions of the capital.

JULIUS SCHATA, director of the American Jewish Congress Commission on Jewish Life and Culture, has been appointed by President Carter to serve on the newly established U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council.

The Council, created following recommendations made by the President's Commission on the Holocaust, will establish a memorial museum in Washington, D.C.

Obituaries

Joseph Riesman, Founder of Royal Electric Co.

BOSTON, Mass. — Joseph George Riesman of 111 Perkins Street, Boston, and Hatch Road, Vineyard Haven, Mass., philanthropist and retired electrical manufacturer, died June 3, 1980 at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. He was the husband of Sadie (Finkelstein) Riesman.

With his late brother Myer, he founded the Royal Electric Company, Pawtucket, which became the second largest producer of Christmas lighting in the world and the largest manufacturer of electrical plug fuses, as well as a major electric wire company. When the firm was acquired by International Telephone & Telegraph Company in 1956, Mr. Riesman devoted his full time and leadership thereafter to community, educational and philanthropic causes.

A trustee of Northeastern University, he was a member of the Executive Committee and its Board of Trustees, as well as the Academic Affairs, Student Affairs, and Facilities and Development Committees. He was a charter member of its National Council and its Husky Club Associates. He received in 1967 Northeastern University's Man of the Year Award.

He was also a former vice-president and trustee of the Beth Israel Hospital, a trustee of Temple Israel of Boston, and a trustee and member of the Board of Governors of Boston's Hebrew College. He was also a founder member of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine of Yeshiva University, a founding member of the Prime Ministers Club-State of Israel Bonds, a life trustee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Boston, and a friend of Brandeis University.

He was a founder of the Greater Boston Chapter of the American Technion Society and became Chairman of its Board of Governors, serving also as the national vice-president of the Board of Directors of the Society and on the International Board of Governors. In 1976, he was made an

When in doubt, a Herald subscription is the perfect gift.

Honorary Fellow of Technion University, Haifa, Israel, and was a life trustee of the American Technion Society.

Tangible evidence of his philanthropy can be found in the Riesman Auditorium and the Riesman Laboratory at Northeastern University, as well as the Joseph and Sadie Riesman Plaza at Technion University in Haifa, and the chair in Electrical Engineering endowed in their name by their children.

With his late brother Myer, Joseph Riesman founded the Riesman Dental Clinic at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston which has been the object of other of his benefactions. He was also a benefactor of the Hill Foundation at Northeastern University and Boston University. The Riesman Center for Harvard Radcliffe Hill in Cambridge is named for him and his family.

The son of Philip and Annie (Labinsky) Riesman, he grew up in Chelsea, Mass., attended the Chelsea schools where he was the president of his senior high school class, and served as a yeoman in the U.S. Navy during World War I. In 1918, he received a Bachelor of Science degree from Northeastern's School of Business. On June 15, 1980, he was to receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Northeastern University at its commencement exercises.

Besides his wife, Mr. Riesman is survived by his sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Markell of Cambridge, Lee Ross of Boston, and Ruth Titiev and Marion Singer of Centerville; his sons, Robert Riesman of Providence, Martin L. Riesman of Newton, Mass., and Eugene N. Riesman of Montreal, Canada, and seven grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Friday noon in the main synagogue of Temple Israel, Riverway, Boston. Burial will be in Sharon Memorial Park, Sharon. Memorial week will be private.

JOSEPH G. RIESMAN

The American Technion Society is deeply grieved by the death of a distinguished community leader and beloved associate of many years, Life Trustee of our National Society and an Honorary Life Member of the Technion International Board of Governors.

Joseph G. Riesman will long be remembered for his years of leadership in behalf of the Technion Israel Institute of Technology. He is memorialized by a chair in Electrical Engineering bearing his name at the Technion.

The recipient of many honors he was presented an Honorary Fellowship at the Technion and the Einstein Award, our society's highest distinction.

We extend our deeply felt condolences to his wife Sadie and sons, Robert, Martin and Eugene.

CALL MITCHELL AT 331-3337

FOR 24 HOUR SERVICE CALL COLLECT FROM ANYWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES

We've entered a new world.

Into this world are admitted only those who have lived eight decades and over on this earth. We have even a special name. We are octogenarians.

Being an octogenarian has its advantages. At sixty you are afraid of the age of retirement. In the seventies you are constantly humiliated by the looks given to you when you ask for partial employment. But when you reach the eighties you throw aside all pretences and declare openly that you are eighty, and not everybody can claim that until he or she has reached that age.

The eighties are the years of contemplating. And remembering. Our memories go back so long, and span two continents.

We remember our childhood. Those were years without ever a cloud in the skies, and without a worry in our hearts. Tomorrows did not exist. Yesterdays were without a regret. All was well with the world, and the world was a small town without a telephone, without electricity, without automobiles, and without movies. The summers filled with trees and flowers and fruits all around us, and winters were white with snow and sleigh bells and spine-tingling stories by the light of a kerosene lamp.

We remember our brief adolescence interrupted by pogroms, by wars we couldn't understand, by world upheavals beyond our control.

We were sent, or rather driven, to fight an enemy we never saw, in a land not much different than ours, through towns and hamlets not unlike our shtetl Orin on the Ukraine, the shtetl we longed for with all our being, the shtetl where we knew everybody that passed by the street, every tree on the street, every house on the street.

Then followed revolutions, rowing bands, and internal upheavals, and we decided, my wife and I, to make the long journey to America. They were very busy years in the new land. Between studying, teaching, working in a hospital and writing

From Friday to Friday

Now That We Are In The Eighties

by Beryl Segal

This column, all at the same time, the eight years slipped by, and here we are in the eighties. In this column too we remember every detail of what passed over us, for better or for worse. But we remember them, and we laugh over them, as if they happened to somebody else.

But one thing we cannot visualize, the future. The future, even the immediate future, is hidden in a thick veil from us. At times, when the veil is lifted ever so lightly, we see ourselves as bystanders. The main events seem to be acted out by others.

It seems strange to us who were always in the midst of things, but then we tell ourselves that this is as it should be. A different order of a new music.

An octogenarian's main complaint is his inability to go places and see things. He reads the newspapers, of the things that go on in the city, things he would like to attend but he cannot. The eyes are willing to see, and the ears are never satisfied with hearing, but the octogenarian would rather sit with a book in his hands and let his thoughts take him wherever his fancy pleases.

Long distances frighten the octogenarian. Oh, he plans a trip here, a trip there, but it is all in the mind. He is happier at home, where ever thing is familiar, and he can be master of his surroundings.

The feet are the first parts of his body that tell him that things have changed. He is content with sitting on a nearby park bench and observe the colors of the leaves on the trees, listen to a bird as it twitters away, and, above all, to enjoy the quiet in the midst of children's voices in the distance. The octogenarian has not lost interest in the world. If anything it has intensified. He gets depressed when he reads about stupidities happening in various corners of the globe, and he fears for the welfare of his grandchildren who will have to live in that disturbed world.

The octogenarian has a curiosity about who is alive and who has ended his dance. He reads diligently the obituaries in the daily newspaper. When he finds a familiar name he reads everything about the deceased as if his life depended on it.

Our garden still grows as it pleases. Though another person planted it for us. We know that the radishes and beans will be plentiful, the tomatoes will be small but very juicy, and the cucumbers will be a disappointment. And lettuce will be eaten by the lettuce eaters, as every year.

But there is next summer. Always next summer. Only the octogenarian cannot be sure about next summer. The octogenarian lives from week to week, from month to month. Next summer is so far away. Every morning is a great surprise to him. And if the octogenarian is a religious person he is thankful for every new morning, for each minute, for every smile.

Holocaust Propaganda Becoming Major Theme

NEW YORK, N.Y. — According to Justin J. Finger, director of the Anti-Defamation League's Civil Rights Division, "the latest, and most sophisticated attempt by anti-Jewish and anti-Israeli groups to whitewash the crimes of the Nazi regime" is now being perpetrated by the Institute for Historical Review.

The group, established by Willis A. Carto, whose Washington-based, far right Liberty Lobby is "the largest and best financed anti-Semitic apparatus in the country today," according to information compiled by the ADL.

The ADL has revealed that at least one major national academic society, The Organization of American Historians, was deceived into giving its mailing list to an anti-Semitic front group set up to prove that six million Jews were not killed during the Nazi years and that the Holocaust was a hoax perpetrated by Jews themselves.

The new institute, according to Finger, is using the American Historians' mailing list of history teachers to promote subscriptions to its "Journal of Historical Review."

The ADL, according to Finger, has given documentation of the Institute's true nature to Dr. Richard Kirkendall, executive secretary of the Organization of Historians, which is headquartered on the campus of Indiana University. "Dr. Kirkendall told us the mailing list was turned over because it was assumed that the Journal represented a bona fide historical group," Finger said.

He went on to add that in another related incidence, Northrop University, located in Los Angeles was also duped by the Institute.

"Northrop let its campus be used over the 1979 Labor Day weekend for the Institute's first convention," Finger said, "because it had been told the meeting was to be a scholarly education endeavor."

"Instead," he declared, "it opened with an anti-Zionist polemic by Willis Carto, followed by papers from five leading figures in the Holocaust revisionist movement."

Finger, addressing ADL leaders gathered here for the agency's National Commission meeting, said the movement has three main goals.

—To undermine Israel on the premise that questioning the validity of the Holocaust weakens or removes the sense of contrition or "guilt" felt by some groups or

ADL Honors DiVito

NEW YORK — Anthony DiVito, a former official of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service who helped prepare the deportation case against an ex-Nazi concentration camp guard who was living a quiet life as a Long Island Housewife, was presented with the ADL "Pursuer of Justice Award" in recognition of his "extraordinary valor, dedication and self-sacrifice" in apprehending Nazi war criminals living in this country.

The former government investigator had assisted in compiling the evidence which was used to deport Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan, who is now on trial in West Germany for her wartime activity as guard at the Majdanek concentration camp in Poland.

DiVito is a resident of Westbury, New York. John L. Goldwater, an ADL national commissioner made the presentation.

governments which have supported the Jewish state.

—To rehabilitate the reputation of Nazi Germany and its leaders, whose political and racial doctrines are much admired by right wing hate groups.

—To provide a new impetus for the dissemination of anti-Semitism.

The Institute is now in the process of planning its second convention, according to Finger. At last year's inaugural meeting, Arthur R. Butz, professor of Electrical Engineering at Northwestern University and author of The Hoax of the Twentieth Century, published in 1976 and which has become one of the fountainheads for the proliferating Holocaust denial movement, was one of the main speakers.

His remarks, as preprinted in the Institute's "Journal of Historical Review," claimed that the Nazi extermination camp gas chambers were "fictitious and that hundreds of thousands died in German prison camps because of disease."

Other convention speakers included Dr. Austin J. App, a former associate professor of English at LaSalle College in Philadelphia, who has been a Nazi apologist since the 1940's. In making his address App claimed that anti-German "vengeance" since World War II stemmed from "Zionist and Communist agitation about the Third Reich's alleged extermination of the Jews."

A self-proclaimed expert in analyzing "faked" photographs, Udo Walendy, also appearing at the convention, stated that virtually all photographs of death camp atrocities are hoaxes. With this Institute leading the way, Finger stated, propaganda denying the reality of the Holocaust has become a major theme of anti-Semites. He went on to say that such material now appears regularly in the publications of virtually all pro-Nazi and hate groups in America and the ADL hoped that exposing and documenting the anti-Semitic nature of the Institute for Historical Review would prevent reputable groups and institutions from being misled.

Living Index Up 10.2%

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The cost of living index rose in April by 10.2 per cent, the second highest ever monthly leap. The government had warned of a high jump for April, but even Finance Minister Yigael Hurwitz could not conceal his disappointment that the figure was as high as it was.

Your Money's Worth

How Solid Is Your Deposit Insurance?

As of a few weeks ago, a shocking 278 insured banks in the U.S. were in the danger zone... ranging from merely "problem" banks to institutions in real danger of failure...

The key for us in the cost of funds, says James Cousins of the National League of Savings & Loan Associations. "If the cost drops, we can make loans. If we can make loans, we can make money."

The thrift institutions' money market certificates with their pegged rates of interest "may soon be one of the most attractive deals around," predicts Lou Nevins of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

It is traditional for thrift institutions to attract additional deposits during business downturns. For as interest rates decline, deposits flow in partly because individuals tend to save more and thrift institution rates become more attractive.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. insures the overwhelming majority of banks and their depositors; the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. backs a smaller majority of federal charter S&Ls, with most other S&Ls backed by state insurance funds; the National Credit Union Administration insures all federally chartered credit unions and some state chartered credit unions, with other credit unions opting for other insurance alternatives.

The three main funds contain billions of dollars. All now guarantee your deposits up to a new high of $100,000.

"Banks mirror the economy," Edward Zito, the U.S. government's chief national bank examiner told my associate, Brooke Shearer. "There will be a fallout from an downturn."

The peril in 1979-80 has been the direct result of the explosion in interest rates which caught S&Ls and other so-called "thrift institutions" in a classic, vicious squeeze. As the cost of funds soared, the profitability of their old loans plunged, and high interest rates scared away new borrowers.

But now, with interest rates sliding almost as fast as they skyrocketed a few months ago, the signals are good news for thrift institutions as well as borrowers.

Also, as yields on U.S. Treasury obligations, money market funds and other high-grade, fixed-income securities slide, the lure of deposit accounts in thrift institutions and credit unions grows.

The pent-up demand for loans, particularly mortgage loans, is undeniable. What's more, both consumers and businesses have adjusted to loan rates of 12-14 per cent as "normal," rather than sky-high (as in the past) and once money becomes available, loans at these rates will may be snapped up.

REMINDER: Although most of our financial institutions are covered by one of the three federal insurance programs, not all receive this protection: Falling outside of the deposit guarantees are about 6,000 credit unions, 500 banks and 670 S&Ls. Generally, these are regulated by the state in which they operate and are backed either by state or private insurance plans.

Some insurance plans, such as that covering Massachusetts' savings banks, protect deposits in full. Others, such as the privately-run program backing Colorado's 122 industrial banks, insures individual accounts up to only $10,000, one-tenth of the U.S. level.

WARNING: Look for the protected institutions, disclosed by the label they must post on their doors, windows or ads. You have the choice. Deposit your money where it gets maximum protection!

NYC Hospital Agrees To Sabbath Job Requirements

NEW YORK (JTA) — Two Orthodox Jewish nurses, one of them fired and the other denied employment by the New York University Medical Center over their Sabbath observance time-off requests, have accepted a settlement under which the medical center has agreed to notify them about any vacancies occurring in the next 18 months in their nursing specialties, with assurance their religious needs will be recognized.

The final step in the three-year-old negotiations by Mirel Reich and Harriet Moskowitz was their approval of the settlement under which the medical center agreed to accommodate the religious needs of Sabbath observing nurses, other employees and applicants, including revising work schedules in some circumstances.

The National Jewish Commission on Law and Public Affairs (COLPA) initiated a federal Sabbath-observer class action lawsuit in 1976 on behalf of Ms. Reich, who had been dismissed. She was joined in the suit soon thereafter by Ms. Moskowitz, who was denied a job. Both claimed job discrimination in violation of federal law when the hospital refused to accommodate their need to refrain from work during the Jewish Sabbath. The American Jewish Congress joined in the action.

The suit was based on a 1972 amendment to the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which provides protection for Sabbath observers by requiring employers to make "reasonable accommodation" for such observers. The agreement with the medical center was reached in an out-of-court settlement.

Ms. Reich was represented by Jacob Sushovitch and Simon Klein, volunteer attorneys with COLPA. Ms. Moskowitz was represented by Marc Stern of the A.J. Congress.

Judge Charles Stewart of the federal district court for the Southern District of New York who approved the agreement, praised the hospital for agreeing to accommodate Sabbath-observing hospital personnel.

The hospital is required by the accord to make regular inquiries of all staff nurses on whether they would be willing to exchange days off with Sabbath observers, to revise job descriptions, and to identify positions where Sabbath accommodations would not normally require any work schedule rearrangements.

The medical center also agreed to notify its personnel department about the accommodation policy and to advise all applicants for nursing positions about that policy. The medical center also agreed to a clause which assures that other employees or applicants will be able to institute legal actions of their own. According to that clause, "if, at any time in the future, any nurse feels that the hospital has failed in its commitment to explore and accept any reasonable method accommodation, that nurse shall be permitted to take whatever legal action or steps may then be available, either before administrative agencies, courts or elsewhere, to compel the hospital to accommodate under this agreement or under law."

Mrs. Ofira Navon Presented ADL Humanitarian Award

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Ofira Navon, wife of Israel's President Yitzhak Navon, and television news correspondent Marilyn Berger this year's recipients of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith awards, were presented their awards at a luncheon-fashion show held here on Wednesday, June 4.

Israel's First Lady, who received the Rita V. Tishman Human Relations Award of ADL's Women's Division, a native of Israel, has long been concerned with the well being of children and her country's disadvantaged. Formerly director of the Dept. of Psychology at Alyn Hospital for Crippled Children, she has also worked as a psychologist for the Assn. for the Rehabilitation of Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children. She has also taken an active role in the planning and programs in Israel regarding the International Year of the Child.

Mrs. Navor also served in the Israel Defense Forces as an army correspondent and instructor for illiterate soldiers and emigrants to her country. She also won the "Sabra of 1956" contest for the "Ideal Jeune Filles" and represented Israel at the Paris meeting of representatives of 21 countries. Marilyn Berger, who was presented with this year's ADL Communications Award, currently anchors "City Edition," the twice-weekly news magazine of WNET/Channel 13, was formerly NBC White House and national security affairs correspondent; has acted as anchor moderator of "The Advocates," on public television; and was anchor for "Special Edition," a WNET news series created during the 1978 New York City newspaper strike.

Mrs. Berger has previously served as a diplomatic correspondent for the "Washington Post" and "Newsday," covering the Middle East for the latter during the 1967 Six Day War.

While at the "Post," Ms. Berger reported all of Henry Kissinger's Middle East negotiating trips and traveled extensively in Israel on independent assignments.

Mrs. Lionel M. Levey, general chairperson of the Women's Division, presented the award to Mrs. Navon while Mrs. Alan Halpert, luncheon chairperson, presented Mrs. Berger with the Communications Award.

Previous recipients of the Rita V. Tishman Human Relations Award include Mrs. Gerald R. Ford, Elizabeth Taylor and Louise Nevelson. Previous recipients of the Communications Award include Barbara Walters.

Booklet To Aid Elderly Published By AJC

NEW YORK (JTA) — A new booklet to aid agencies which provide services for the aged has been published by the American Jewish Committee. The 50-page "The Aging Parent: A Guide for Program Planners," offers guidance on conducting conferences on the aging and summarizes the experiences of the AJCommittee intergenerational relations project for disseminating information to adult children of aging parents.

Recently completed, the intergenerational project was started in 1978 by the AJCommittee in conjunction with its legal advocacy program for the aged. The project organized 19 community conferences, organizational programs and individual workshops with 31 co-sponsoring agencies. AJCommittee officials said the project was funded by a grant from the Administration on Aging of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Today's hand is yet another that should have been simple but turned out not to be. If only the Declarers would take a bit more time before they played to the first trick to figure exactly what their problem was and the best way to solve it. And they wouldn't lead that much more time either.

Actually, the extra few seconds they used at the beginning would save them more than that later when they would have to try to figure how to extricate themselves from the mess they had gotten themselves into.

lead would have done irreparable damage.

I watched as every Declarer won the Club Ace and now most of them, usually without even giving it a second thought, went right after Trumps. They ended with the same nine top tricks they had started with and that's all they deserved.

Two Declarers tried to use the Diamond suit by drawing two rounds of Trumps and then trying to cash their three top ones hoping the player out of Diamonds would also be out of Trumps. At least this was worth a try but in this case didn't work when East ruffed the third lead.

There is one certain way to make the hand after the opening lead. Note the three small Spades in the South hand. Every Declarer should also have given them a much closer look than they did for that suit was where their tenth trick was going to come from. The timing is in their favor for a Trump lead by West would have ruined that plan. This is going to become a race between Declarer and Defender now for Declarer is going to try to ruff a Spade over in Dummy.

To accomplish his purpose no Trumps can be drawn or the same result would be shown that an opening Trump lead by the Defender would. At trick two a Spade must be played and now the Defense would wish that they had led a Trump. They will certainly switch to one but now it's too late for them. A second Spade lead will rid Dummy of its last one and even though a second Trump will follow, Dummy will still have one left to ruff the third Spade with. Only an opening Trump lead will foil this line.

Moral: The time you think you waste at the beginning thinking about the hand will more than come back to you later and be well worth the expense.

The bidding was almost automatic and although I wasn't able to watch every table with this hand I saw it enough times to see each group bid the same.

They didn't all play it the same, though. Even though they all received the exact same lead, a lead that actually helped them for it could have been a killing lead.

Every West, however, made the same normal lead of the Club King. Only Double Dummy could anyone fault that lead for certainly a lead from three touching Honors is almost always the best. In this hand a Trump

Successful Investing

by David R. Sargent

Reinvestment

Q—My wife and I wanted to invest in a conservative stock that would give us steady dividends, to be reinvested. Our purpose is to build up the shares through the years — we are in our mid-twenties — for our retirement. We chose Public Service Electric & Gas (New Jersey). Do you approve of our choice?
W. J. New Jersey

A—Because of this utility's lack of earnings growth and minimal dividend growth in the last decade, your retirement program may expand at a very modest pace over the years. As a countermeasure, you might begin a similar dividend reinvestment plan with one or two other more rapidly growing companies.

Another utility with a good record of increasing dividends is Southern California Edison (NYSE). In the last ten years, this company has seen earnings rise at an average rate of 7 per cent annually, compounded, with dividend growth at 6 per cent. The company has a dividend plan in which it not only absorbs all costs, but also reinvests dividends at a 5 per cent discount from the market price. The current dividend rate of $2.72 a share yields close to 11 per cent. Buy for growth and income.

Texasgulf (NYSE), a mining and chemical company, offers its shareholders a dividend reinvestment plan on the same discounted basis as Southern California Edison. Texasgulf's earnings for the first quarter were up sharply from the previous year, $1.97 a share vs. 69¢. A very strong performance in the phosphate, potash, soda ash, and sulfur areas contributed about half the gain. The company's oil and gas subsidiary is playing an increasingly important role in earnings. A profit of $6 a share this year, compared with $3.71 in 1979, appears possible. A growth buy.

Q—I own some IteI 9 5/8 of 1998 on which interest was due April 15. It has not been paid. Have they defaulted? What can I do about it?
J.K. California

A—Interest on these bonds and the IteI Finance 9 5/8 of 1998 has not been paid. In addition, $38 million in principal and interest due March 31 to a group of banks was also unpaid. A restructuring plan has been reached with the six largest bank creditors but is subject to the approval of other creditors, some security holders and the satisfactory resolution of IteI's claim against Lloyds of London.

Other than selling the bonds and accepting your loss, you have little of a positive nature that you can do in such a situation. If the debt restructuring works out and the insurance settlement is favorable, IteI could come through this financial quagmire successfully.

Hebrew U. Announces New Energy Breakthrough

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Hebrew University researchers have announced a new process for producing energy from oil shale that could supply all of Israel's energy for the next 15 years.

The system is in its advanced testing stages in a university pilot plant, according to the researchers, led by Dr. Zeev Aizenstat of the Energy Research Center, Geology Professors Lisa Heller-Kallai and Baruch Spiro, and Chemistry Professors Gerald Esterson and Dr. Moshe Pisman. "Our development of this process is especially important and feasible for Israel, which has oil shale deposits that could potentially supply all of this country's needs for the next 12 to 15 years," they announced.

Res Named To Board of Regents

Mr. Joseph W. Res of Providence was named by Governor J. Joseph Garrahy on May 30 to the Board of Regents along with Mr. Charles E. Shea of Pawtucket, Mrs. Monica Frappier of Woonsocket, Mr. Terrence Hassett, a student at Rhode Island Junior College, and Mrs. Maxine Bradford of Newport. (reappointment) The Governor will ask the advice and consent of the Senate for these appointments at their session.

Res, of 486 Cole Ave., is president of E.A. Adams and Son in Pawtucket. He is a graduate of Brown University (1926) and Harvard Law School (1929). A member of the Phi Beta Kappa Honorary Society, he received an Honorary L.L.D. from Brown University in 1966 and an Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from Providence College in 1971. He is a recipient of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Brotherhood Award (1966), the Roger Williams Award of the Greater Providence Chamber of Commerce (1972), and the Brown University Award for "Distinguished Service and Leadership to Medical Education in 1979.

Res is a former Trustee and Treasurer of Brown University, former President and present member of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Federation of Rhode Island; Former President and present member of the Executive Committee of Miriam Hospital; Chairman of the President's Council, Providence College; and Member of the Executive Committee, Temple Emanu-El.

Canadians Support Wallenberg Movement

TORONTO (JTA) — The B'nai B'rith's League for Human Rights has launched a massive Canadian effort on behalf of Raoul Wallenberg, the Swedish diplomat who helped save more than 100,000 Jews in Hungary during the Nazi occupation of that country and who was arrested by Soviet troops in January 1945 when they entered Budapest.

The move by the League followed a meeting with Per Anger, a former Swedish Ambassador to Canada and a leader of The International Committee to Save Raoul Wallenberg.

Wallenberg arrived in Budapest, Hungary in 1944, as First Secretary of the Swedish Legation. His job was to save as many Jews as possible from the Nazis. Reportedly, over 100,000 Jews escaped the Holocaust as a result of his efforts. In January 1945, Red Army troops entered Budapest, and Wallenberg was soon arrested by the Soviet military.

In reply to Swedish inquiries, in 1947, the Soviet government stated that Wallenberg was not in the Soviet Union and he was unknown to its authorities, contrary to earlier reports issued by the Soviet Minister in Stockholm to Wallenberg's mother. To this day, numerous witnesses have testified to having seen Wallenberg in Soviet prisons.

Marvin Meretsky, national co-chairman of the B'nai B'rith, told Anger that many people in Canada are concerned about the plight of Wallenberg, and their willingness and interest in creating a movement in Canada in his behalf. "As far as we are concerned," Meretsky stated, "we must do everything possible to apply pressure to the Soviet Union to free Wallenberg."

Anger said he believes that Wallenberg is still alive somewhere. He noted that "the next year is absolutely crucial. The important thing is to make as much noise as possible so that the Soviet government cannot possibly ignore the outcry."

Weizman Hopes For Positive Results

Referring to his recent resignation former Israel Defense Minister Ezer Weizman has expressed hope that the Begin Government will attempt to modify its policies and conclude an agreement on Egyptian-Palestinian autonomy.

When questions as to whether future autonomy for Palestinians on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip was possible as long as Prime Minister Menachem Begin was in office, Weizman replied, "A very interesting thing could happen now. It could be that now I have decided to resign, they'll close ranks and say, 'O.K., let's go and prove to the world and prove to Weizman that he's wrong.'"

Weizman, speaking on the ABC News television program "Issues and Answers," also seemed to brush aside the assertion by Shimon Peres, the opposition Labor leader, that his recent resignation was the beginning of the end of the Begin Government.

"I hope it is the beginning of new policy," he said.

Mr. Weizman again spoke of his hope of replacing Mr. Begin as Prime Minister but he would not criticize him personally. His remarks, aimed toward the Prime Minister, were less bitter than those of a week ago, however, he did say that no truce between himself and Mr. Begin has taken place.

Mr. Weizman, did state that if he did assume the post of Prime Minister he would move faster to change the status quo on the West Bank by withdrawing part of the military government and handing over most of the power to the Palestinians living there.

He also favored allowing the West Bank and Gaza inhabitants some measure of authority in that they would elect an assembly and set policy over all areas of life, with these key exceptions: Israel had to retain control of its defense and security, there had to be a provision that Jews could live on the West Bank in the future, and Palestinians could not exercise an independent foreign policy.

Settlement Policy Due

GENEVA (JTA) — A major assault on Israel's settlement policy in occupied territories will be launched by the Arab states at the International Labor Organization's (ILO) annual conference which opened here June 2, with the prospects of a prolonged, bitter debate. The issue will pose a serious dilemma for the ILO, which seeks to avoid charges of politicization and for the United States which quit the ILO in 1977 after it adopted Arab-backed resolutions aimed against Israel.

A draft resolution, presented by Jordan, calls on the ILO to condemn Israeli settlements in the territories, including East Jerusalem, and demands their immediate dismantling. It also calls on member states to stop giving help to Israel that might be used to support its settlement policy and to assist the Arabs in countering the effects of this policy and of the Israeli occupation in general.

Tel Noar Lodge Holding Reunion After 30 Years

After more than 30 years, Tel Noar Lodge, a camp for young people between age 18 and 30, is holding a reunion June 6-8 for over 200 people who attended the camp during its brief existence between 1945 and 1949 as a young adult camp.

During a two week period there, campers were encouraged to confront their Judaism and examine the part that Judaism and Zionism should play in their lives. Many of them report an impact of that brief period which continues to influence them to this day.

Replies to ads placed in many newspapers announcing the reunion over the last year have brought responses from over 300 former campers, most attesting to the profound effect of their brief stay at the camp. Some emigrated to Israel, a number went into the rabbinate and other areas of active Jewish endeavor, but all cited lifelong influence of their experiences at Tel Noar Lodge.

The reunion has been organized to commemorate the 50th year in Jewish camping of Eli and Bessie Cohen and will include discussions of current Jewish problems as well as social activities and entertainment. Attendees at the reunion will come from as far away as Israel and California and will include members of the original staff, including Prof. Simon Herman of the Hebrew University. All will be guests of the Cohen Foundation Camp.

Eli and Bessie Cohen began in camping in 1930 when Eli was a founder and first president of Camp Baurcrest, a post he held actively for the first 15 years of its existence. Over the years, the Cohens started Camp Pembroke for girls and Camp Tevya, a co-ed camp originally begun as a camp for "underprivileged Jewish youth." Pembroke, Tevya, and Tel Noar are still operated as highly regarded Jewish cultural children's camps by a non-profit foundation now headed by the Cohen's oldest son, Arnold. The three camps have a combined enrollment of over 800 campers.

In addition, Eli Cohen also participated in the founding of Camp Naomi, the national JWB camp now operated in Maine, Camp Yavneh, the summer camp/school of Hebrew College as well as Camp Simcha, the day camp of the North Shore Jewish Community Center.

The Cohens' activities in Jewish life have not been confined to camping. They have also been founders and/or active participants in such diverse activities as the Combined Jewish Appeal of Lynn, Hillel Academy of the North Shore, Israel Bonds, North Shore Jewish Community Center, Temple Sinai of Marblehead, National United Jewish Appeal, Hebrew University, Wingate Institute, David Yellin Teachers College and the Jerusalem YMHA.

Israel Tourism Booklets Available in Arabic

One result of the recent normalization of Israel-Egyptian relations and the opening of the border and direct air service between the two countries, is the publication of the first tourist information booklet in Arabic by the Israel Government Tourism Administration.

The Arabic booklet will serve Egyptian visitors to Israel and will also be used by the 150,000 "summer visitors" from various Arab countries who annually visit Israel and the administered territories.

The Arabic booklet marks the twelfth language in which Israel tourist information literature is published. Other languages include English, Spanish, French, German, Dutch, Swedish, Danish, Italian, Portuguese and Afrikaans.

Richard Kellerman

Kellerman Named To Post

Richard Kellerman, former associate director of The Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society public relations department, has been named to head the new HIAS Department of Public Affairs.

In making the announcement, Gaynor I. Jacobson, executive vice president of the worldwide Jewish migration agency, said that "Richard Kellerman brings to his new post a wealth of professional experience in the public affairs sector."

Kellerman, who joined HIAS in January, has been active in communications and public affairs for 30 years. On two occasions he was called upon to serve as Deputy Commissioner for Public Affairs for the New York City Police Dept. during the late 1960's and early 1970's; has served as Information Officer and Special Assistant to Morris B. Abram and has also held the post of vice president of David Garf Associates.

Kellerman, who began his career as a reporter for the New York Daily News, has served as a United Nations correspondent, a political specialist, held the post of Director of News Planning for NBC News, and was Director of Public Relations for ABC News. A native of New York City, he is a cum laude graduate of Columbia University.

Tarbutth Foundation Expands Jewish History Weekend Program

The outreach effort of the Tarbut Foundation in bringing to communities throughout the country period-presentations of Jewish history in an in-depth format will be considerably expanded next season, according to Dr. Abraham Goodman, President of the Foundation.

"Weekends With Jewish History" is the title of the series that up to now has featured "A Weekend With Juda Halevi;" "A Weekend With the Baal Shem Tov;" "Sanhedrin in Paris;" and "Jerusalem, Cosmos and Capital of the Jewish People."

A number of new offerings have been added to this initial series. They include prominently: "The Roots of American Jewry," a four-part sequence encompassing "The Sephardic Source;" "The German-Jewish Transplant in the 19th Century;" "The East European Base;" and "New Roots" dealing with the recent immigrations from Middle East lands as well as from Russia and lately from Iran.

Designed specifically for newcomers from Russia, another weekend program focuses on "An Encounter with Current Jewish History—Russian Jews in America Today" and is geared to a double-pronged purpose: to provide for an extensive togetherness of Russian and American Jewish families, and to expose the immigrants from Russia to Jewish values that for so long have remained eliminated from the consciousness.

A new approach will be attempted by arranging "Weekends with Jewish History" for Christians and Jews in joint attendance. A pilot project "Jerusalem, Diadem of the Human Spirit" is scheduled for early in the fall in New York City.

In commenting on the "Weekends with Jewish History" Dr. Goodman stated "The impact these Weekends have released in the hearts and minds of our people has been just striking. Many, for whom Jewish history has been a sealed book altogether or for whom it has been a compilation of facts and ideas scarcely understood, have been gripped by the drama and beauty inherent in the Jewish experience. I cannot think of any better way of creating instant access to an understanding of Jewish continuity, and to an empathy that leads to a reinforced Jewish self-identification.

"Weekends with Jewish History" are a cooperative undertaking of the Tarbut Foundation with congregations, community centers, and organizations. For more information on the availability of these programs, contact Dr. Emil Lehman, Executive Vice President, Tarbut Foundation, 129 West 67th Street, New York, N.Y. 10023. (212) 874-7837 is the phone number.

Dubrowsky Appointed To Camp Gan Israel

Rabbi Yehoshua Laufer, Director of Chabad Lubavitch of Southeastern New England, has announced the appointment of Sara Dubrowsky as Head Counselor for the Girls Division of Camp Gan Israel.

Over the past seven years, Sara Dubrowsky has led summer camp programs all over the country, including Camp Gan Israel affiliated in Cleveland, Ohio, New Haven, and Detroit. She specializes in designing and implementing a wide range of programs, from arts and crafts and athletics to singing and Jewish studies.

In addition, she is a fully accredited school teacher with a degree from Beth Rivka Teacher's College in New York.

Sara Dubrowsky will be heading up a staff of counselors and junior counselors who have been picked for their ability to relate to the needs of young girls, ages 3-12.

Camp Gan Israel is located in Lincoln, R.I., and is the only Jewish oriented camp in the area that offers four two-week sessions so the camp won't interfere with parent's vacation plans. Complete bus service is provided and scholarships are available for both the boys and girls programs.

For further information, call the camp's office at 273-7238, or write them at 48 Savoy Street in Providence.

Noted Lecturer Speaks On Soviet Anti-Semitism

NEW YORK, (JTA) — Modern day Soviet anti-Semitism is characterized by two basic factors: anti-Semitism is in the hands of the state and can therefore be turned on or off at will; it is now more racially oriented than before and this prevents Jews from assimilating into the mainstream of society because "according to religious and cultural views today there is very little difference between Russian Jews and Russian Russians.

This analysis was presented recently by Ezra Mendelsohn, senior lecturer at the Institute of Contemporary Jewry and Russian Studies at the Hebrew University and a visiting professor of history at the University of Michigan.

Mendelsohn was one of several guest speakers at the Conference of Problems of Soviet Ethnic Policies examining the status of Jews in the USSR and the impact of anti-Semitism. The forum, held at New York's Columbia University, was sponsored jointly by the Jacob Blaustein Institute for the Advancement of Human Rights, Columbia University Program on General Education, Columbia University Program on Soviet Nationality, and the Greater New York Conference on Soviet Jewry.

Speaking to about 150 people, Mendelsohn presented an historical perspective of Czarist and Soviet anti-Semitism. Under the Czars, although conditions were favorable for "collective Jewish expression," tolerance for individual Jews was very low as they were perceived as an "alien element in backward peasant society," he said.

Jews also found themselves in the middle of intense nationalist competition, especially in the Ukraine, "the hotbed of anti-Semitism in the pre-World War I period," which led to both social and religious anti-Semitism.

Also, Mendelsohn observed, during the late 19th and early 20th centuries, Russia was going through great political and social flux, a condition never considered conducive for minority advancement and/or acceptance.

The Soviet period, Mendelsohn continued, reflected a reversal in Czarist patterns. The new Soviet regime was dominated by forces hostile to Judaism but friendly to Jews as individuals. A secular culture based on Yiddish was allowed to flourish, and Jews were in positions of authority. Class loyalty was the important factor, and anyone, regardless of religion, who exemplified this loyalty was favored, he said.

According to Mendelsohn, this favorable treatment of "loyal Jews," which allowed them to assume positions of influence and stature in the community, began to be resented and the Soviets feared a takeover by these newly emancipated Jews. The peasant and middle classes were not strong enough to resist Jewish competition and the Jew once again found himself as the alien to be feared.

Since socially and culturally the Jews were much like the rest of society, modern day Soviet anti-Semitism had to add the new racial dimension to its policies, Mendelsohn observed. The purges in the 1930s and World War II brought about accusations that Jews were responsible for the social and economic ills in the USSR.
