1000 TO ATTEND DONORS FETE AT BILTMORE ON WEDNESDAY; HOME FOR AGED NETS $6000

Women's Group of Institution Sponsors Tea, Operalogue

Reservations Still Open

While reservations were still open, more than 1,000 women today had indicated their intentions of attending the operalogue-tea sponsored by the Jewish Home for the Aged Women's Association to be given Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the Biltmore Hotel Ballroom for the benefit of the Home. Approximately $6,000 will go to the maintenance of the Home.

Mrs. Samuel Markoff is in charge of costumes and will be assisted by Mrs. David Sundlun. Mrs. Celia Parvey arranged the synopsis of scenes from operas which will be presented by Mrs. Caesar Misch in the form of operalogues with all artists appearing in costume. The stage presentation is in charge of Mrs. Samuel Starr.

In Receiving Line

In the receiving line will be a committee headed by Mrs. Isaac Woolf, first president of the Home, and the following women who have been interested in the institution since its inception in 1911: Mrs. Morris Berry, Mrs. Samuel N. Deutsch, Mrs. Jennie Goldsmith, Mrs. Samuel Ganzer, Mrs. Myer Guy, Mrs. David Kalnissky, Mrs. Isidore Low, Mrs. Lyon Marcus, Mrs. Morris Mellon, Mrs. Susan Pollack, Mrs. Ephraim Rosen, Mrs. Harry Shatkin, Mrs. Samuel Silverstein, Mrs. A. L. Sutton, Mrs. Leo Weiner and Mrs. Abraham White.

Mrs. Benjamin N. Kane is chairman of the general committee. Mrs. Samuel M. Magid, wife of the Home for the Aged president, has done excellent work in interesting donors for this project. The operalogue and tea arrangements were made by a committee headed by Mrs. Saul Abrams and including Mrs. David Adelman, Mrs. Bert Bernhardt, Mrs. Nathan Holotow, Mrs. Herman Feingold, Mrs. Jennie Goldsmith, Mrs. Henry Haasenfeld, Mrs. Julius Irving, Mrs. Benjamin N. Kane, Mrs. Louis I. Kramer.

WEDDING OF CHASSIDIM IN ROUMANIA ATTENDED BY 10,000

(Jewish Telegraphic Agency) CZERNOWITZ, Roumania, Nov. 29 — Ten thousand "Chassidim," members of the mystic Jewish sect which believes in worshipping God with joy, today witnessed the picturesque wedding ceremonies during which Rose Leiser, 21-year-old daughter of the Brooklyn, N. Y., rabbi, Itzcoek Leiser, was married to the 23-year-old son of the famous Nadwerner Rabbi, Meyer Rosenbaum.

The wedding celebration will last several days and will be an occasion for magnificent feasts, at which all the poor of the country-side will be entertained and fed. The marriage was arranged between the two rabbis during a trip to Roumania which Rabbi Leiser took about one year ago. The couple, however, met before the ceremony.

Chassidim attach great importance to the highly-colored mysticism of the "Cabala" and the "Zohar," mystic Jewish writings, and follow "Gooter Yid" or rabbis whose virtues go on from generation to generation.

Members of the sect from all parts of Europe and even a contingent of American Chassidim, who accompanied the bride and her parents, flocked to Czernowitz for the wedding. Famous Chassidic rabbis from Czechoslovakia, Poland, Austria and France, with their families, are also present.

Oklahoma Paper Attacks Jewish "Money Control"

Criticizes Appointment of Morgenthau, Jr., and Cites "Protocols"

Fears World Domination

Oklahoma City, Okla. (JTA) — The appointment of Henry Morgenthau, Jr., as Under Secretary and Acting Secretary of the Treasury by President Roosevelt is described as a long step toward complete "control of the money of the world" by Jews, in the current issue of The Silver Legion Ranger, weekly newspaper published here by William Dudley Pelley, violent anti-Semitic leader.

A front page story in the four-page newspaper says that in Jewish circles "it is possible to hear comments concerning world dominion of the Jews in the field of finance or economics. They have wound around curves of a long, long trail to reach this point."

The story quotes the notorious "Protocols of Zion," supposed international gospel for Jewish people in which plans are laid for the complete domination of world monetary affairs by the Jews.

"The world control of gold," continues the story, "by Jews is explained in Protocol Number 22 of the Protocols of Wise Men of Zion. 'We hold in our hands the greatest modern power—gold; in two days we could free it from our treasures in any desired quantity.'

Later in the article, the Silver Ranger writer says:

"The German people came under the economic slavery of Jewish bankers. By a system of financial pyramiding, interlocking directorates, allocation of spheres of influence, credit extended through state-subsidized

Noted Cantor to Sing at Sons of Jacob Synagogue

A distinct treat in musical fare will be afforded the Providence public Saturday and Sunday when Cantor Joseph (Yoselle) Shlisky, internationally famed tenor, comes here for a concert sponsored by Congregation B'nai Jacob, 22-24 Douglas Avenue.

Cantor Joseph (Yoselle) Shlisky

The only cantor ever to appear at Carnegie Hall, Cantor Shlisky won the unanimous praise of music critics with his concert there on March 13 of last year. He has also appeared as featured soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

While here, he will officiate at services tonight (Friday), and Saturday

Commander Claims Boston Jewish Vets Blameless In Riot

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF LOUIS FEINER

Rabbi Abraham Schechter Holds Services at Weinstein's Hall

Noted for Philanthropy

Members of Sons of Jacob Synagogue, Douglas avenue, and many friends took part in impressive memorial services this week in honor of the late Louis Feiner, one of Providence's outstanding Jewish leaders and philanthropists.

Rabbi Abraham I. Schechter, in his sermon, paid high tribute to his memory, outlining his long service to the city. Cantor A. Solotish chanted the memorial hymns.

Held at Weinstein's

The program was held in Weinstein's banquet hall, 216 Westminster street. Arrangements were made by a committee including Jacob Weiss, Harry Blazer, Louis Bernstein and H. Zuckerman.

Mr. Feiner was the founder of the Louis Feiner Benevolent Association of this city. He was an active member of the Hebrew Free Loan Association where he served in many capacities since its organization.

Aided Aged Home

He also was an energetic worker on behalf of the Jewish Home for the Aged, as well as many educational and religious institutions.

Adresses at the services were made by Harry Zuckerman, Julius Blazer, Jacob Bresler, former Senator Moses, A. Rosenberg and Hyman Koret. The last, as presiding officer, presented to Mrs. Etta Feiner a copy of document praising the services of her husband.

Six Arrested In Clash Over Pro-Nazi Address at Forum

5000 Battle With Police

(Special to The Herald)
BOSTON, Dec. 1—While Jewish leaders here today deplored the wild anti-Hitler rioting that attended a Forum address Sunday by Dr. Friedrich Schonemann, pro-Nazi professor of Berlin University, Commander George Leve of Boston post, Jewish War Veterans, refused press reports attributing the outbreak partially to Jewish veterans.

The clash between police and 5,000 demonstrators in front of Ford Hall resulted in the arrest of six persons, serious injury to one, and many bruised heads and scratched limbs. The disturbance was described by police as the worst in Boston since the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations.

Denies Vets to Blame

Declaring the organization he heads had no part in the clash, Commander Leve said: "The demonstration in front of or in Ford hall was in no way participated in, either officially or unofficially, by the Jewish veterans. Identification of those taken into custody by authorities appears to bear out his statement. Five locked up on charges of sauntering and loitering were booked as: Moishe Freedberg, 50, Roxbury; David Walba, 17, of Mattapan, a student at Boston Latin high; Fred Sousa, 21, of Cambridge; Harry White, 19, of Roxbury, and George Peters, 29 of Roxbury. Four of these could not possibly have been veterans because of their age alone. The sixth, Carl Kness, 35, of West End, was sent to the hospital with head and body injuries.

The demonstration was said to have been participated in by Jewish veterans, communists and Jewish sympathizers but responsible Jewish leaders here denied vigorously that it was sponsored by them as a protest against Schoenemann's address.

DICKSTEIN TO OPEN LECTURES AT TEMPLE EMANU-EL, DEC. 17

The man who inspired a federal investigation which thus early in its work has uncovered a nation-wide network for dissemination of Nazi and anti-Jewish propaganda, Congressman Samuel Dickstein of New York, will speak at the opening Forum lecture at Temple Emanu-El December 17, under the joint auspices of the Men's Club and the Institute of Jewish Studies for Adults.

Congressman Dickstein's appearance and address will mark the first of four Sunday evening lectures which are part of the temple's adult education program. Chairman of the important House committee on immigration, a sub committee of which is probing Nazi activities and holding hearings in Washington, Congressman Dickstein will make a special trip to Providence for just two hours, in order to speak here, and is taking the next train back to the capital to continue his work.

Recalls Striener Talk

Incidentally, some of the disclosures accomplished by the mysterious Dr. Striener, who described his work as an investigator against Nazi propaganda schemes in America during a speech at the temple a few weeks ago, have been presented in the Dickstein inquiry. Several predictions made by Striener while he spoke here already have become fact.

Following Congressman Dickstein, Chairman Edward Goldberger of the Institute committee announced, will be Prof. George Bernhardt on January 7. Prof. Bernhardt is an outstanding German publicist and orator as well as an economist and statesman who enjoyed high confidence in the Reich before the ascension of Hitler. He was editor-in-chief of the "Vossische Zeitung" for 30 years, served in the German parliament and was influential in the inner economic councils of that nation, serving as a member of the Reichswirtschaftsamt.

Maurice Schwartz Coming

The third speaker will be Dr. Salo Baron, professor of Jewish history at Columbia University, one of the foremost Jewish historians and public lecturers in the world today. The appearance some time in April of Maurice Schwartz, famous Yiddish actor, will climax the series. Internationally known and perhaps the greatest figure on the Yiddish stage, Schwartz has appeared in and has produced scores of famous plays such as "Yoshe Kalb" and the "Dybbuk." He is founder and director of the Yiddish Art Theatre in New York.

Besides Mr. Goldberger, the committee includes Bertram Bernhardt, treasurer; Louis Abedon, Saul Abrams, Herman Aisenberg, Dr. Banice Feinberg, Dr. Milton Goldberger, Herbert Tieman, Dr. Eske Windsberg, Max Winograd, and Nat C. Cohen, ex-officio.

Many Converts Among Jews of Belgium

(JTA)

Conversions to Catholicism among Jews include many in the city of Antwerp, Belgium, according to the Belgian correspondent of the National Catholic Welfare Conference News Service.

"The conversions among Jews now being recorded in many European countries, particularly in large cities, include many in this city, where the Ladies of Sion conduct a boarding and day school," he writes.

"The apostolate among the Jews here is similar to that being carried on in London by the Rev. Arthur Day, S. J., who cooperates with the Fathers of Sion, who have their headquarters at the convent of Our Lady of Sion, in London. The Catholic Guild of Israel was founded in London in 1917, on the very day that Jerusalem was taken by the British troops."

Training of young German Jews in agricultural pursuits, now debarred from the professions and from a majority of urban pursuits by the functioning of Aryan clauses and anti-Jewish discriminations, has assumed an important position in the plans of organizations seeking to open up fields of endeavor for young Jews who, under other circumstances, would have gone into other work.

ROUNDABOUT

Those little private parties that certain so-called eligible bachelors throw are rather wildish to say the least . . . it's a wonder the neighbors don't send in a riot call to the police sometimes when the guests begin throwing bottles out the windows . . . and other pleasant little things . . . but he should be careful whom he invites . . . not talkative little dressers . . . they tell too much.

A certain young lady thinks the biggest joke so far this year is the new song "And I'll Be Faithful" . . . I guess she is right . . . it is funny.

Well . . . we get the orchid again . . . we predicted that divorce between those two youngsters who have been married just a couple of years . . . they live out East Providence way . . . now we hear that they really are going to untie the knot . . . all because the husband has a habit of wandering away from his own fireside . . . we don't know why, because his wife is one of the best looking girls in town.

If that young lassie doesn't hurry up and admit she did escape about a month ago we will publish the story ourselves . . . we might anyway . . . the story would make good reading.

We don't suppose you heard the story about what happened to the gang of lads and lasses who went to Boston for the Harvard-Yale game this last week-end . . . they all got so tight before they arrived at the game, that it looked like six football teams were playing instead of two . . . anyway . . . they were kicked out of a swanky hotel because they made too much whoopie during the dinner hour . . . and on the way home they were stopped by a state trooper . . . they were lucky and were not pulled in . . . but one of the girls got plenty h — from her father when she arrived home . . . she announced her arrival by pulling the lamp off the piano and her irate parent thought that that was celebrating the victory a little too strenuously.

We think Celia Parvey deserves the well known orchid for doing the fine job she is doing on the operatico for the Home for the Aged Tea to be held at the Biltmore December 6 . . . and Arthur Levy also deserves a bouquet for the hard work he put in on the Community Fund Drive.

One of the loveliest luncheons of the season was given last Wednesday at the Narragansett Hotel . . . by the Sisterhood of Temple Beth-Israel for Mrs. Morris Schusheim, wife of the Rabbi . . . Mrs. Jonas Goldenberg was chairman of the arrangements and she did an excellent job.

We wonder what the younger generation is going to do when Prohibition goes out December 6 . . . it won't be smart to go to speakeasies any more and it won't even be smart to be tight . . . it will just be stupid . . . so they will have to find some other places to go . . . what will it be now?

Mrs. Harry Shatkin is making an appeal to you all to attend the Ladies' Hebrew Free Loan Association dance to be held Dec. 5 at The Arcadia Ball room . . . this organization does a tremendous amount of good to alleviate the suffering among our people and this dance is a method of raising the necessary money to carry on their work . . . please give them your assistance by attending the dance.

Wedding bells will soon be ringing for the lovely blonde daughter of one of our well known physicians . . . she is marrying a young lawyer from New York . . . we promised not to use their names yet but if you are smart you can figure it out . . . there are not many doctors in town who have lovely blonde daughters of marriageable age.

Jean Rotman seemed to be having a gorgeous time at the Hillsdale Saturday night . . . and she looked sooo lovely . . . the gal ought to go on the stage . . . have you ever heard her sing?

Gladys Fishman Bass . . . a bride just a year ago . . . and her husband are coming in from New York to spend the holidays with Gladys' family.

Dear Thank You.

We can't tell you the name of the young dentist who is rushing that out of town girl . . . he may be the same man who is taking you out . . . and then again he may not be . . . why borrow trouble . . . as long as he does see you he can't be too interested in another gal.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lazarus came back Sunday morning from a six weeks' trip abroad . . . they visited their son Herman in Vienna and then went on to London to visit Mr. Lazarus' family whom he hadn't seen in 20 years.

Thanks every one for inquiring concerning Roundabout's state of health . . . Roundabout is entirely well once again and is able to do personal sleuthing as of yore.

YOUNG JUDAEO NOTES

INSTALLATION HELD

Miss Bertha Snell, of the Young Judean Council installed the following officers of the Daughters of Judea at a meeting held Tuesday in Temple Beth-Israel.

Gertrude Himmelfarb, president; Esther Travis, vice president; Jennie Friedman, secretary; Norma Kauffman, treasurer.

Topics on "Jew and Church," and "Jewish Phase of Armistice Day," were discussed. Current events, stories and songs were followed by refreshments.

PROGRAM AND SERVICES

The Chanukah program of the Zophim Club is rapidly nearing completion. A play entitled "American Chanukah Candles," has been written in Jewish by Martin Cohen, club leader, for presentation.

Dr. Abraham I. Schechter, Rabbi of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue will deliver the principal address and Israel Zukoff will entertain with instrumental selections.

The club expects to resume its religious services as soon as a choice of synagogue has been made.

All interested young men and women are particularly asked to watch for announcement of the opening date.

COUNCIL MEETS

The R. I. Council of Young Judeans met at Temple Beth Israel, Tuesday evening, Morris Block, presiding. Arrangements were made for Young Judean Chanukah Night at the Temple, Friday evening, Dec. 15.

Those present besides the president were Harriet Wimmerman, of Jr. Hadassah; Martin Cohen and Hyman Stein, Judean Leaders' Club; Mrs. Samuel Ernstof, Sr. Hadassah; Mrs. A. Einstein, Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood; Dr. Samuel Goldin, Bertha Senn, Nathan Ostrov, Mrs. Morris Shear, and Joseph Keller.

Discussions of financial and educational matters consumed the remainder of the meeting.

The committee arranging for Chanukah night includes Morris Block, chairman, Nathan Ostrov, Joseph Keller and Martin Cohen.

NOTES

Young Judeans were contributors to the Providence Community Fund.

The Blue and Whites have as their new leader, Joseph Gladstone.

Sydney Ballou and Harold Gelfman are two former Young Judean leaders now studying for the rabbinate at Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati.

One of the present leaders, Sarah Lasker, is leaving for Palestine very soon, where she will be married.

All leaders or prospective leaders are asked to mark the second Thursday in January as the opening of the Leaders' Institute in Temple Emanu-El, under the direction of Rabbi Goldman.

Agitation Against Jews Continues in Cuba

Three Jews under sentence of death in connection with the Cuban political disorders have been freed following the intercession of the Jewish Center of Cuba, the officers of the HIAS learned. A fourth Jewish youth, Moishe Sagalov, is still under arrest and efforts are being made to secure his release. The four were accused of firing on troops from hotspots in Havana.

The center is maintained by the HIAS, secured the assistance of the French embassy in obtaining release of the youths. It is expected that the fourth lad will also go free.

Although conditions in Havana have quieted down, according to a radio message received here, agitation against the Jews continues and alarm for their personal safety is felt by many Jewish residents.

LITTLE STORIES from REAL LIFE

"There is No Such Word" said Prue

Grandpa had taught her that "there is no such word as 'can't'!" And she had taken the lesson literally as well as figuratively, proving it, to her own satisfaction at least, by going to her dictionary.

Well, that's a pretty good lesson to teach. Of course, when Prue gets older, as a matter of practical fact, she'll learn that there are some things that we literally "can't" do. But too often, when many of us learn that, we begin to fall back on "can't" as an excuse for many of our own shortcomings.

If Prue can continue to challenge Life in the spirit of "there is no such word as 'can't'" . . . modified but not nullified by facts . . . she'll get on in this world.

Are you sure you really "can't" continue to save money?

"Can't" isn't in the dictionary.

CENTER BROADCASTS

BASKETBALL TEAM READY

Joe Schein, former Brown star and now the coach of the Jewish Center Senior Varsity Team, reports that the Center quintet this year will be very strong. The following boys have thus far reported and have been practicing diligently every Monday evening: Norman Feinberg, Albert Brown, Irving Harriet, Louis Kramer, George Katz, Louis Silverman, Al Levin, Leo Brodsky, Abe Gordon, E. Lerner, Herman Musnick, William Rosen, Harry Chase, Sy Chernesky.

A basketball game is being arranged every Saturday evening throughout the season, the first scheduled for Saturday evening, December 9, against the Newport Jewish Community Center. The Varley's Spa of Central Falls will appear on the Center floor Saturday evening, December 16. Other games are being arranged with Brockton, Fall River, Boston, Worcester and local teams.

OVER 300 HEAR KALLEN

An audience of over 300 heard a lecture on a German-Jewish situation Sunday night by Dr. Kallen. He made a profound impression on the audience with his interesting presentation. The women's committee of the Jewish Community Center took charge of a reception in the main building following the lecture. Tea was served by Mrs. Samuel Starr. Mrs. Louis L. Kramer, Mrs. Milton C. RELIGIOUS SERVICES

"The Inside Story of Hitler Activity in America" will be the subject of an address by Rabbi Abba Abrams, field-secretary of the American Jewish Committee, Friday evening, Dec. 1. This is the first time that the American Jewish Committee is permitting any of its official representatives to divulge its findings. This will be the Annual Thanksgiving Service of the Congregation and will be followed by a question and discussion period in the vestry. Sabbath Eve services will also be held in the Chapel at sun-down; Sabbath morning services at 9 in the Main Synagogue; Junior Congregation services at 1:30; daily services in the chapel morning and evening.

by Miss Kaplan and Miss Simon.

BAS MITZVAH

The first Bas Mitzvah service of the year will be held Saturday morning, December 2 at the regular Sabbath service at 9 o'clock. Ever since the ceremony for girls was instituted, many people have looked forward to these inspiring services. The following girls will celebrate their Bas Mitzvah: Elaine Guny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Guny; Helene Goldberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goldberger; and Shirley Sackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sackett. A reception will be tendered in the vestry after the service by the parents.

YOUTH CONFERENCE

"Judaism and Times Have Changed," is the subject decided upon by the committee as the theme for the Eighth Annual Jewish Youth Conference of Providence, to be held Friday evening, December 15 and 22, at a special meeting. The following members attended: Alfred Joslin, Russell Brown, Zelma Fisher, Lillian Price, Norman Zalkind, David Field, Elmer Rigelhaupt, Ruth Abedon, Dorothy Raphael, Fred Pobirs, Norma Gouse, Ethel Berman, Jerome Cohen, and Ellis Flink. Further announcements about the plans for the Youth Conference Committee will be made shortly.

SCHOOL NOTES

At assembly Sunday, Nov. 26, a Thanksgiving program was presented by Grade IV. Norman Bernstein introduced the program in which 14 other pupils of the class participated. At the assembly Sunday morning, Dec. 3, a program will be presented by Miss Grossman's Grade.

The sum of $19 was collected for the Community Chest through the Keren Ami.

FLORAL OFFERING

The floral offering for this Sabbath is the gift of the mothers of the Bas Mitzvah girls. They are Mrs. Louis Guny, in honor of her daughter, Elaine Guny; Mrs. Samuel Goldberger, in honor of her daughter, Helene Goldberger and Mrs. Morris Sackett, in honor of her daughter, Shirley Sackett. Two additional floral offerings for last Friday, Nov. 24, were the gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Pansy in honor of the Bar Mitzvah of their son, Norman Pansy, and of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Resnick, in celebration of the recovery of their child, Frank Israel.

AMERICA AND THE OLYMPIC GAMES

It is heartening to record the decision of the American Olympic Association adopted the other day at Washington. This decision, in the form of a resolution, expressed the hope that Germany would lift all restrictions against its Jewish athletes "so that the athletes of the teams of the United States of America can and will be certified for competition under the Olympic standard."

This phrasing was a modification, along the lines of mildness, of a resolution adopted earlier in the week by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States to boycott the 1936 Olympic Games at Berlin because of the attitude of the Hitler regime toward the participation of Jews in the native contingent. It was felt, when the A. A. U. resolution was presented at Washington, that its tone would antagonize the Hitlerites and get the beasts' fur up. But the main point is adhered to.

If the essence of the two resolutions continues to be maintained, whatever the differentiations in language, there is no doubt that either more complete guarantees of democracy will have to be made or else there will be no American participation in Berlin in 1936 and a World Olympiad without Americans would be very much like a Before Christian Era Olympiad in Athens without Greeks, for at the last Games in Los Angeles, the American contingent won, almost hands down.

Protestations of democracy have become perfunctory, but we believe that Germans do not realize that sport in America, professional as well as amateur, comes as close to obeying the rules of democracy as any activity practiced in America. Our poloists and yachtsmen may possibly be drawn from the limited upper social strata, because of the vast expense involved in practicing these sports, but otherwise there is as complete democracy in sport as can be imagined.

It is a subject for the gentlest railing that the lineup of football teams must reveal at least several jaw-breaking Polish names. No football coach, for example, will turn down a tackle-crushing back because he happens to be black. Colleges which are under denominational auspices are not ashamed to record victories that may have been won with the help of Jews. No good white Protestant American alumnus will refuse to cheer a touchdown because it is made by the son of Catholic Italian immigrants. Off the field, at office or mill, he may say hunky or wop or nigger, but the same man, as a good alumnus, will help put through his alma mater an immigrant Jew boy because he can play good football, or basketball, or hockey.

Mr. Justice Brandeis at 77

By ARTHUR SETTEL

The clear thinking and impartial judgment of a man in high office can do more to strengthen the sinews of a nation than a whole rack of laws. However keenly devised, these laws need the interpretive powers of a liberal mind to make them useful and pertinent. In Louis D. Brandeis, associate justice of the Supreme Court, whose 77th birthday was celebrated this week, are to be found such qualities.

On January 28 another anniversary will be commemorated by Mr. Justice Brandeis. It will mark the termination of 18 years on the bench, and little has happened during his term of office which has not added to his golden reputation.

It is a reputation that solicits tribute from opponents and supporters alike. Whatever errors in judgment the Justice may have made were not, even violent critics avow, made on account of flimsy knowledge or hasty deliberation. The two most well-known qualities which are the stuff and substance of the Brandeis fame are his wisdom and crisp logical faculties. On his 75th birthday anniversary, a leading metropolitan daily said:

"In the long series of Judge Brandeis's decisions on matters of labor or business, of public utilities, there will be many who have to disagree with him here and there. But his logic, his learning, the lucid order of his reasoning, the exactness of his language his extraordinary penetration of facts, his intellectual energy, have long marked him as one destined to be memorable in the front row of judges."

The facts of his life are not so well known. He was born on November 13, 1856, in Louisville, Kentucky, of Galician Jewish parents. After a two-year high school course there he went to Germany to pursue higher studies and returned, matriculating in the Harvard University Law School. At the age of 20 he was graduated with highest honors.

As a young man, Louis D. Brandeis went to St. Louis to practise law. After a few months of struggle he joined Samuel D. Warren, a brother alumnus, in the Boston law firm of Warren & Brandeis. Massachusetts henceforth became his legal battleground.

The career of Mr. Brandeis before the bar has been the brilliant record of a man whose interests lay with the people. One of his earliest victories was in connection with a series of suits against traction interests through which he succeeded in preventing long-time leases at the public expense. Then he won a fight for lower gas rates in Boston.

As in the case of President Roosevelt, a weapon of defense in common use by the young attorney was to bring a case directly before the people. He crusaded his causes and in simple language made the people of Boston his judge.

In 1905 he was appointed counsel to a group of policy-holders which was investigating insurance premiums then being paid by the working classes. The cause won Mr. Brandeis at once to its side; no better ally could be found to handle the case. In the face of violent opposition on the part of the insurance companies, Mr. Brandeis proceeded to conduct a searching investigation into the practices of insurance and the laws governing the underwriting business.

One commentator wrote: "He followed the usual Brandeis plan of injecting a new idea into the discussion. In this instance it was that the savings banks of Massachusetts receive payments on insurance, in order to save collection costs."

"With the aid of an actuary, he worked out a bill which seemed feasible, and published his views. A committee had been appointed in the Massachusetts Legislature to consider insurance reform. Of the fifteen men on the committee, only one favored the Brandeis proposal. But by the time he had stamped the State, the committee was converted and reported the measure unanimously. He fought proposed consolidation of the New England railroads as a dangerous monopoly. He championed labor reform and started the legal world by his lengthy statements in elaboration of a brief, in which he indulged in prolonged analysis of labor conditions and social questions.

There was fierce disapproval when President Wilson appointed Mr. Brandeis to fill the vacancy in the Supreme Court left by Joseph L. Lamar, in 1916. The appointed was described as a radical, as one who lacked the judicial temperament, as too intense a fighter, as too ardent a partisan.

Woodrow Wilson made the following comment after he had announced the appointment of Mr. Brandeis to the Supreme Court.

"I cannot speak too highly of his impartial, impersonal, orderly and constructive mind, his rare analytical powers, his deep human sympathy, his profound acquaintance with the historical roots of our institutions and insight into their spirit, or of the many instances he has given of being imbued to the very heart with our American ideal of justice and equality of opportunity."

Since he has been a gentleman of the long robe Justice Brandeis has carried to fruition his conviction of liberalism. He would "amend men's social and economic ideas" instead of amending the constitution. He looks upon property as only a means. He "would rather have clients than be somebody's lawyer." He believes first in human rights and secondly in property rights. He avows repeatedly his view that "to stay experimentation within the law in things social and economic is a grave responsibility," and that denial of the right of experimentation "may be fraught with serious consequences to the nation."

The same justice and equality is reflected in his philosophy of Zionism which Mr. Justice Brandeis has expounded on frequent occasions. "We should so conduct our affairs in Palestine that what we do will inure to the interest of all the inhabitants of Palestine, Moslem and Christian as well as Jews."

In November, 1929, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported that the Justice "broke the silence he had maintained since he ascended the bench of the Supreme Court" when he joined a committee cooperating in establishing an economic corporation in Palestine. The address delivered by Justice Brandeis at the Hotel Mayflower on the evening of the 24th emphasized his "unshakable faith" in the ability of the Jewish people to establish a national home in Palestine.

"Speaking as one who had lived most of my life apart from the Jewish people," he declared with feeling that "it is only a question of our will, intelligently directed, to make it so, to solve in a large part the Jewish problem for the whole world."

Jewish Day Nets

WOMEN MEN MARRY

By NINA KAYE

(Copyright 1933 by the J. T. A.)
"Isn't it amazing," Blanche Rivkin murmured to me, "the women men marry?"

Before I let my eyes follow hers across the gracious drawing room, I gazed, for a moment, at her.

Blanche is thirty, at least, and although she has straight black hair and a mouth like a gash, she's very proud and very sure of herself. For Blanche has brains. She knows it and everyone else knows it. She holds a high executive position in a large department store, she can talk shop with the men, knows all the latest books and intimate details about their authors' lives. She knows what's smart and new in fashions and she dresses exquisitely. She isn't married.

And every time I meet her at the Morris's home, she never fails to get me in a corner and say, "Isn't it amazing, the women men marry?"

I've often been tempted to say, "It isn't quite the thing, Blanche, to criticise one's hostess." I haven't let myself do so, yet. For I still have my private little chuckle. If only she and hundreds of others knew the real reason for the success of Al and Stella Morris's marriage! If, even Al Morris knew it!

Amused at my own thoughts, I let my gaze travel slowly past the groups of men and women, talking gayly, filled with good food and the pleasant atmosphere of the Morris's lovely home. There, in white chair, smiling pleasantly and apparently unaware that she was being neglected, sat Stella Morris. The woman Al Morris had married.

Further on, leading the talk among a group of men, stood Al Morris, looking every inch the successful lawyer he was. What strength to his carriage, what dominance and brain force in that leonine head of his! How carelessly, arrogantly, he carried that success of his!

Blanche moved swiftly across the room and joined him and his group. The men welcomed her with nods accorded an intellectual equal. Al Morris's face lit up as I heard him exclaim, "Here's Blanche. The only woman who doesn't think international finance is a new kind of puzzle."

Somebody behind me murmured an exclamation, "Why does he measure all women by Stella? Just because his wife isn't smart enough to learn how to play bridge, why does he think all of us are — well, not quite bright."

"But she certainly does know how to keep her dumbness inside her," someone more frank murmured in reply. "She can go through a whole evening without opening her mouth."

"She knows her place. Perfect hostess. Perfect wife for a successful lawyer. Perfect mother! Why, do you know, one of her maids told my girl that she's got so little brain she can shut herself away in her room all afternoon without doing a thing, without reading, without sleeping."

Irritation welled up inside of me. I moved across the room and sat down beside Stella.

She greeted me with a little smile and shook her head in reprimand. "Better not stay here by me too long," she said in a whisper. "If anybody saw me engaging your interest!"

"I don't know why you do it, Stella!" I blurted out angrily. "If you could only hear the way they talk about you! They come here and eat your food and bask in the loveliness you've gathered about you and do nothing but preen themselves at their superiority!"

She shook her head, "You know how little I care about their opinion of me. It's only Al that counts, here. It's only his success that matters." She sighed. "I would have liked it, if Al could have known,"

ZETA EPSILON PI MEETS

The Zeta Epsilon Pi Fraternity contemplated plans for annexing a sisterhood, Wednesday night at the regular meeting, held in the home of Joseph Golditch, 9 Arham Street. This group will consist of young girls who are in their high school and early college years. Recently, the executive committee visited a prospective sorority and submitted their survey to the fraternity.

It was voted to conduct a debate in the near future, the following to take part: Robert Hartwich, Albert Gorden, Leo Swartz, Joseph Gladstone, George Kaufman, and Joseph Golditch. Hyman Cardon, who was accepted as a pledgee at this meeting, entertained during the social period. A good-and-welfare get-together will take place Sunday, December 3. David Salk, a member of the fraternity, presented play to the society written by himself.

The following members were added to the house committee: Herbert Feldman, Joseph Gorden and Joseph Golditch.

Malbush Arumim and Montefiore Merge

Announcement has been made that the Malbush Arumim (Hebrew phrase for "dressing the poor") has merged with the Montefiore Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Association.

The Malbush Arumim which was founded two years ago in memory of Mrs. Ida Zelda Feinberg who was an ardent charity worker in this city, functioned at the Sons of Zion Synagogue on Orms street.

At a meeting of the groups held last Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Edward Feinberg, president of the Montefiore addressed the members and explained the reason for the merger due to the fact that both organizations do the same work. The idea was expressed that the work would be carried on much better enabling the members to accomplish so much more when working in unison from one source.

The charter members of the Malbush Arumim were present and included Mrs. S. Riches, Mrs. I. Sidney Mrs. S. Malmet, Mrs. E. Cohen, Mrs. G. Zeldman, Mrs. I. Greenberg and Mrs. Louis Fishbein.

New Ford Freighters Makes Coast-to-Coast Distance in 71 Hours

From coast to coast in 71 hours, 12½ minutes, a total of 2945 miles in less than three days — that is the new truck speed record established by the Ford V-8 Transcontinental Freighter, in a run that ended at Los Angeles, Wednesday evening, November 22, according to A. R. Pease, Manager of the Ford Motor Company Somerville Branch.

The trip was not only a record breaker for speed, it also set up a record for economy, with an average of 9.15 miles per gallon and a total consumption of only five quarts of ture wardrobe to clothe that dolly. The adorable cuddly animals and teddy bears will delight the heart of any child, boy or girl. Take your children shopping there. They will find a child's paradise and the prices will more than please you.

The proper way to celebrate Thanksgiving this year is to have your dinner either at the NEW CROWN HOTEL COFFEE SHOP where the price is one dollar and a quarter a person or in the dining room of the hotel where the price is a dollar and a half. Then in the evening celebrate further by attending the Thanksgiving supper dance and dance to the strains of Pietro D'Alfonso and his inimitable orchestra.

Tuesday, December 5, prohibition sneaks out the back door of the nation and the NEW CROWN HOTEL will hold a celebration that will be the talk of the town. A real old fashioned bar has been set up in the dining room and a whole staff of bar tenders have been engaged to shake up those real pre-prohibition cocktails . . . anything you have ever wanted to drink you will be able to procure at the new bar. Make your reservations with Mr. Garo, the head waiter, by calling Dexter 8200 and you will be assured of a table for the peppiest dance you ever attended in your life. The charge will be two dollars a person and the supper will be extra-special. Dancing from 9 o'clock until the last merry maker goes home. Closing time will be as you desire. Make your reservations immediately.

THE ARCADE CURTAIN SHOP is the place you have been looking for. They carry a full line of every description of curtains and drapes and the prices will more than please you. The new casement curtains are very popular now and this shop will make them for you quickly and reasonably. Why not drop in and see for yourself. The address is 13 OLD ARCADE. They even have window shades, rods, Travers rods and the ordinary curtain rods.

At times during the police battle, nearly 10,000 persons either watched or took part in the riot. Mounted police continually were forced to charge into the surging crowds to drive the rioters down the slopes of Beacon Hill. Demonstrators cried "Down with Hitler!" and "Down with Fascism," milling around the hall long before the doors opened at 7 o'clock.

Has Police Escort

Dr. Schoenemann's arrival with Baron Kurt von Tippelskirch, German consul here, was a signal for boos, catcalls and jeers as mounted and foot police escorted the car in which he was riding. Once inside the hall, the doors were locked against the crowd and members of the Forum were unable to gain entrance for some time.

A reserve detail of 50 officers was hurried to the scene to aid the already strong force on duty, trouble having been anticipated. A mounted patrolman was thrown when his horse shied and slipped. He was hurried some distance but was not seriously hurt, being treated at a relief station.

Schoenemann, who is touring American cities and is notoriously a defender of Hitler and the Nazi government, addressed a capacity audience of 1300 on "Why I Believe in the Hitler Government." Plainclothesmen posted in the audience prevented any considerable heckling although there were sporadic outbursts. The speaker described the Nazi movement as a "popular revolution," minimized the excesses toward minority groups although he did not deny them but described the anti-Jewish horrors in the Reich as a "natural consequence of a revolution." Just as soon as the revolutionary enthusiasm "runs its natural course," he declared, any excesses there may have been will be rectified.

Leaving this city Tuesday afternoon by airplane for a speech Wednesday night in Baltimore—he already has toured 29 American cities during the past month—Dr. Schoenemann expressed bewilderment over the outbreak, adding only once, in Chicago, has he encountered any similar demonstration. He said he was impressed with the feeling of "good Jews" here for their comrades in Germany.

she said sadly, "That's the only thing that hurts, his opinion of me."

"But he couldn't have borne it!" I exclaimed. "He'd die of mortification if he imagined that your success overshadowed his!"

"I know," she replied. "That's my one regret, that he can't ever know."

My voice dropped to a faint whisper as I spoke of the forbidden subject. "I've a sheaf of new press notices in for you today. Coming over for them tomorrow!"

A faint flush suffused her cheeks. A tiny pulse beat in her throat. "Oh," she stifled a cry of joy, "are they good, are they good as the last?"

I nodded. "Better. The Times says 'Ballast' is your best book. They say they're sure S. Moire is the nom de plume of a man, that no woman has the brain to write a book like 'Ballast.'"

Her exclamation was lost to me, for at that moment Al came up. "They're making up some tables of bridge, dear," he said fondly to Stellla. "And the men are going to play poker. What about you?"

She smiled up at him with tender affection. "I'll be all right here, Al. I'll just sit and think."

It must have been an old joke between them, for he went off, boozing with laughter.

WALTER SUNDLUN FULFILLED AMBITION TO PRACTICE LAW

Neither Financial Obstacles, International Strife Nor Successful Business Could Deter Him from Becoming a Barrister

By SELMA LEVIN

When Walter L. Sundlun was eight years old he decided that it was time he shared the financial burdens of the family. One Saturday afternoon he ran away and found his way to the Outlet Company. There he prevailed upon the superintendent to give him a job as cash boy with a salary of fifty cents for the day. He carried his pay envelope around with him until the paper was completely worn out. Since that time Mr. Sundlun has not missed one day's work. All through his school days he helped the family financially by a varied assortment of odd jobs.

He was born in 1890, in Providence, attended the grammar schools on the east side of the city, and then entered Hope Street High school.

He established a precedent by making the debating team in his freshman year and was captain in both his junior and senior years. Even at that time he wanted to study for the bar, but when he graduated from high school the family finances did not warrant furthering his education. Mr. Sundlun had been supporting himself all the way through high school by working on the steam boats plying from Providence to Block Island. He had started at the age of thirteen, during the summer months, as a candy boy. After a time he acquired the concession for checking baggage and kept it until he graduated from high school.

Goes Into Jewelry Business

Instead of going to law school at this time he went to work for an Attleboro jewelry concern as their New York representative. After a short time he became eastern representative for the Manchester Silver Company. Around this time Mr. Sundlun met his wife, who was then Miss Jane Koltz of Woonsocket, and decided it was time he gave up the road and went into business near home. He went into the wholesale and retail jewelry business and soon had stores in Providence, Pawtucket and Woonsocket. His business places were called the "London Jewelry Stores."

Sisterhood Agudas Achim of Attleboro to Give Dance, Dec. 5

Final arrangements have been made for the annual dance to be given by the Sisterhood Agudas Achim of Attleboro, Mass., in the Elks Auditorium, Attleboro, Tuesday evening, December 5.

From the encouraging reports of the sale of tickets, a record attendance is expected. The public is cordially invited. The final meeting was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Irving Makowsky on Park street.

OBITUARIES

MRS. BELLA GORDON

Mrs. Bella Gordon, a resident of the Jewish Home for the Aged, 99 Hillside avenue, died Monday morning.

Mrs. Gordon was born in Russia. She had lived in Providence for about twenty-eight years. She leaves two sons, Meyer Gordon of this city and Barney Gordon of New York, and two daughters, Mrs. Rose Shaeffer of New York and Mrs. Sadie Rosen of Canada.

BAR JEWISH FIRMS AT TRADE FAIR IN SAXONY

Berlin (JTA) — All Jewish firms have been refused admission to the Brown Fair of Lower Saxony, which opened at Hanover. The exclusion order was issued despite recent decrees of Minister of Economics Dr. Kurt Schmitt, that Jewish firms be not discriminated against in the interest of German trade.

In 1914, he was married to Miss Koltz, settling in Providence. He immediately associated himself with charitable organizations and civic affairs. When the United States entered the war, Mr. Sundlun became associated with the Liberty Loan drives and organized two huge meetings to rally the sale of the bonds. At one of the meetings one hundred thousand dollars in bonds were sold. Because he was married, he did not see actual overseas duty.

Overcame Obstacles to Reach Goal

Through all these years, he had not lost sight of his original goal—to study and then practice law. When the armistice was signed he made arrangements to study law in the office of Judge J. Jerome Hahn who was then a practicing lawyer. After studying in that office for some time he decided that the plan was impractical and he would go back to school. But there seemed to be a detour he must travel before entering Boston University as he planned.

Since he had finished school, the entrance requirements had been changed and he did not have sufficient units to matriculate. However the Dean of the Law school made it possible for him to take examinations at the Lincoln preparatory school on the subjects lacking, as fast as he could prepare himself. Mr. Sundlun took 16 examinations in 16 weeks and then entered Boston University Law school in the fall of 1914.

Wife's Cooperation Plays Important Part

He commuted every day for three years and ran his business during this time. He studied every night until one o'clock in the morning and then arose the following morning at 5:30 to make his 7:15 train to Boston. These were strenuous years and Mr. Sundlun says that but for the cooperation of his wife he would never have been able to do it. She helped him manage his jewelry business and aided him in his study by being perfectly willing to forego social activities so that he might achieve his goal.

In 1922, he graduated from law school. He had taken the bar examinations the preceding March of that year and out of 28 men applicants, was one of the six who passed. In May he was admitted to practice law in the state of Rhode Island, but being all tired out from three years of intensive activity, he decided not to begin practice until the following January.

Becomes Associated With Baker and Spicer

Again his plans were changed. He became a member of the firm of Baker and Spicer in July, 1922, and is still associated with them. He had practiced ten days when he had occasion to attack the constitutionality of the Sherman Prohibition Act (the state Prohibition Law). The case attracted state-wide attention and was a momentous introduction for the young lawyer. Shortly afterward, Mr. Sundlun was appointed counsel for indigent prisoners by the criminal division of the superior court. He was counsel for the defense in the famous Amara trial, one of the most sensational murder cases in the history of New England.

In 1925, Mr. Sundlun became a director of the Jewish Orphanage and during all these years has been active in the association, being its president for the past six years. He has been a trustee of Temple Beth El since 1918 and a director of the Miriam Hospital since its founding, now being chairman of its staff committee. He is director of the Jewish Community Center, Jewish Home for the Aged and Governor of the Ledgemount Country Club.

Prominent in Civic Circles

Mr. Sundlun was a delegate to the last National Republican convention and was a member of the Credential Committee which seats the convention delegates from all parts of the country. He was also a candidate on the wet ticket to repeal the eighteenth amendment. He belongs to the Barneberry Merry chapter of the Masons, the B. P. O. E. Number 14, of the Elks, the Republican Club and the Touro Fraternal Lodge.

There are two children in the Sundlun family, Bruce G. who is thirteen and Walter L. Jr., who is nine.

Such is Life

Sitting in a Second Avenue cafe the other day with Manager Hoffman of the Jewish Art Theater. The usual noise of the cafe was heightened by a soap boxer on the corner, whose denunciations of capitalism mixed with the tintinabulation of the soup absorption and the general chatter in the cafe.

Near us, rather at the table adjoining us, sat a ring of Jewish chorus girls from the Yiddish shows surrounding one lone male — a man near 60, a somewhat vivid looking fellow if worn by time — a man who might easily pass as a newspaper man going into the sere and yellow stage.

The chorus girls were chattering and wise cracking as the lone man — we will call him Jacobus — was singing some songs of his own improvisation. How is this one? he would say,

Ta ra ra de boom ti boom

Ta ra ri boom ti boom

Ta ra ri ri boom

"That's not as good as the other one," one of the chorus girls objected, as all the others expressed their opinions also. "I like better."

"The capitalist is exploiting the workers. Rockefeller, Morgan," shouted the soap boxer from without. "O, you like the one that goes," said Jacobus,

Ta ra ri da da da

Ta ra ri doodle de doo."

"Workers of the world unite! We have nothing to lose but our breadlines," shouted the soap boxer's voice from without.

"Yes," cried the girls, "that's the one we like. Dance to it, Jacobus. Oh, he is so funny when he dances to it."

"Look at Russia. There is no unemployment there. The capitalists," cried the soap boxer.

Jacobus began to dance to the tune of his Ta ra ri doodle do. "This is the one you like girls, eh?"

"Yes, Jacobus, ain't he a how!"

"Machinery — overproduction — the capitalist class," shouted the soap boxer.

"But wait till you hear this one," began Jacobus.

"Say," I said to Brother Hoffman, "who is that fellow doing all these ta-ra-ra's and who refuses to be stopped by all that socialistic din outside?"

"Why that fellow Jacobus," replied Hoffman, "is the son of the man who was secretary to Karl Marx."

Go Mae West, Young Woman

It was Horace Greeley, I believe, who was reported to have uttered the counsel, "Go West, young man." He was not thinking of going Mae West, as the country seems to be going.

But what I wanted to say was that it was pointed out to me the other day, that Mae West's immortal saying, which will go down with Pershing's, "Lafayette, we are here," namely, "Come up some time" really comes from the Bible. The Hebrew phrase is "Soor nah alai" and it will be recalled that it is quoted in the Bible as having been used by a woman, not of the social register of Palestine.

Is That So?

The New York World-Telegram very indignantly objects to the American minister to Austria telling Austrians that persecutions of the Jews in Austria would arouse the ill-will of America. The Telegram declares that the minister to Austria has no right interfering in the internal affairs of Austria.

That's right. Then pray why did the United States interfere to the extent of declaring war, when Spain was charged with abusing Cubans? Did the atrocities committed by the Spaniards against the Cubans — did the oppression come anywhere near that which Germany is executing against the Jews?

Nations have an absolute right to protest and even go farther when the ordinary elementary rights of the people of any country are violated. And nations have always recognized this principle either directly or indirectly.

The only reason, for instance, that the Confederate States, during the Civil War, failed to receive European recognition, was the fact that the Confederacy was wound up with the cause of slavery. The actual sympathies, otherwise of the European nations, were with the South, but it was this matter of slavery which caused sufficient resentment among European nations, to prevent that recognition, which, if it had been given, may have likely resulted in a victory for the South.

And what according to President Wilson, did we go to war for in 1917? "To make the world safe for democracy." And what is democracy, but the principle of equal rights to all. Is there no infringement of equal rights, even the right of going out of the country, unless they leave it completely empty-handed.

Watch Them Come In

Abraham Goldberg, Jewish publisher, returning from Palestine, says that when you ask anyone in Tel Aviv what is its population he takes out his watch and says:

"Well, now it's 80,000. But in an hour from now, 80,100."

How we would like to be the broadcaster in Tel Aviv! We suppose he must announce it something like this.

Ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience. When the gong sounds, it will be exactly 82,000 in Tel Aviv or six o'clock by courtesy of the Dead Sea Mineral Deposits Co."

Food for Thought

Here is food for thought. Dr. G. A. Lowenstein, chairman of the Macabean festival is renowned chemist and one of the owners of two of the largest chains of restaurants in New York — the Willow and Stewart Cafeterias.

Dr. Lowenstein has done research work in the Rockefeller Institute and the Yale Laboratory. And now during the day, he feeds hundreds of thousand people gastronomically and at night, feeds others with Zionism.

PROVIDENCE JEWISH WAR VETS NOTES

At the last meeting of Rhode Island Post No. 23, Jewish War Veterans of the U. S. two new members were voted in, Harry Law and Bertram Petchesky.

All comrades of the Post wish to express their deepest sympathy to the following comrades in their recent bereavement: Max and Eli Viner, Harry Mincoff and Mrs. Samuel Michaelson.

On December 5, the social committee headed by Officer of the Day Reuben Blumenthal has arranged a public dance and entertainment to be held at headquarters, 100 Niagara Street. A large crowd is expected to attend.

The oil painting "Victory," presented to the Post by Mrs. George Wise, stands out very prominently in the new ballroom. The comrades wish to express their sincerest thanks to Mrs. Wise for this beautiful gift.

The committee in charge of the New Year's party to be held at the headquarters Sunday, December 31 is planning one of the best affairs in the history of the Post. Reuben Blumenthal is chairman of the committee.

The beautiful memorial board in the auditorium was made possible through the generosity of the Jewish Boy Scout Troop that meets every Monday night at headquarters.

Comrade Samuel Mistowsky was elected secretary and treasurer of the Allied Veterans Council which is composed of all the War Veterans in the state of Rhode Island. Commander Harry A. Hoffman was elected vice president and Trustee Paul J. Robin, chairman of the legislative committee.

Election of officers for the year 1934 will be held at headquarters Thursday, December 28.

Benton H. Rosen is Named Editor of R. I. State Weekly

Benton H. Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosen of Gallatin street, was last Wednesday selected as editor of the Sophomore number of the "Beacon," Rhode Island State College weekly. The special issue will be distributed at the Soph Hop, Wednesday evening, December 20.

Others on the executive board are Henry Spiegelblatt, Newport, managing editor; Miss Shirley Nemtzow, Newport, assistant editor; Norman Fain, Providence, feature and E. Harold Dick, Providence, sports.

War Veterans to Celebrate Repeal

Rhode Island Post No. 23 of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States will usher in the repeal of the eighteenth amendment with a dance and celebration at the Post headquarters, on Niagara street.

A gala evening is being arranged by the chairman Reuben Blumenthal.

News Written for the JEWISH HERALD by GEORGE JOEL

Question of Holding Olympics in Germany Opened Again

When everyone believed that the difficulties over the Jewish question in Germany in relation to the Olympic Games scheduled for Berlin, had been quietly shelved the Amateur Athletic Union threw the entire sporting world into an uproar by warning the Hitler government that America would not participate if German Jews were barred from competing for Germany. At a meeting of the Union held at Pittsburgh resolutions were passed and a surprising amount of human kindness for the Jew was in evidence. It was gratifying to American Jewry to realize that these were such fair minded men running athletics in this country. I happen to know that the A. A. U. arrived at its decision to take this step independently of the Jewish anti-Nazi movement.

What the outcome will eventually be I can't guess. As soon as the announcement of the stand was made a cable was received from Germany assuring Americans that Jews would be permitted to perform. Now the resolution will be forwarded to the International Committee on Olympics which will meet in Athens, Greece in May, 1934 and this body will take some action which will bind all the competing nations.

Joe Williams, whose sprightly comments on sports are a daily feature of the New York World Telegram, had the following to say about the resolution:

"This is a brave, gallant and altogether human resolution, and it will be interesting to watch just what effect it will have. By 1936 there may be no more Jews residing in Germany.

"In the same editions which tell of the action of the A. A. U. you read that the Nazis have confiscated all the properties of Albert Einstein, the distinguished scientist, including especially bank balances and other deposits."

"Reading this you feel fairly certain no German Jew is going to indicate a very aggressive interest in the Olympics if he knows — and he knows already — that it is the desire of the government that he remain meekly in the background.

"Such a situation, assuming its accuracy, would make it very simple for Herr Hitler to deal diplomatically with the American athletic heads; he can say yes to everything, knowing full well that when the Fatherland call is made there will be no German Jews on the field.

"And would that be the Herr's fault? After all, if the German Jews did not care to compete when invited, was it the duty of the government to employ compulsion? And what would the United States say to that? The United States would have to say something, and in the end it might find it necessary to say, "well, all right, if that's how it is."

"And yet it shouldn't. Such an evasion would be too bald. From the beginning the Olympics have been open to all races, creeds and colors. Germany's problems of state are peculiarly its own, and quite possibly of no intimate concern to any other nation. But the Olympics have nothing to do with problems of state. They represent something entirely apart.

Why Make it Tough?

"It is my belief that the Olympics should not be held in any country where qualified representatives of any race are barred. Germany has made it plain to the world that the native Jew has lost his birthright. That should be reason enough for this country and all other competing countries to insist that the games be moved elsewhere without qualifying provisions.

The A. A. U. is to be applauded for initiating a stand which it should not be persuaded to abandon by diplomatic evasions and compromises.

"Of course, I have no way of knowing whether Herr Hitler intends to placate the Americans, either by agreeing or pretending to agree to their demands. He may take the attitude that what Germany does is Germany's own business. And in

Only Few Were Willing to Bear Expenses of Conducting Services — Emergency Meeting Summoned to Revive Interest in Synagogue Movement

By HARRY ROSEN

"Stove-Pipes" Carried in a Box
I can't help but smile when I look back to that first Friday night when Simon Volke, who was the vice president, and I, who was honored as the president, wore high hats when we sat on the pulpit. We didn't dare walk through Willard avenue with them on so we carried them in a box and put them on when we got inside the synagogue!

The synagogue was packed to the doors that night. Many people came just out of curiosity. The services were all carried through in English and we had a job of getting prayer books but Rabbi Alsted had brought some along with him from New York and a few of the men were able to follow the services.

The following Sunday morning we held our first Sunday School and then for some reason, the Board decided that they did not care to permit any English-speaking Rabbi in their synagogue to hold services on Friday night. They consented to allow us to carry on the Sunday School for awhile, the teachers of which were Hattie Rosen, Nettie Paster, Fannie Paster and Fannie Borod, all of whom are now married.

Back to the Beginning

We were then forced to hire Freemont's Hall on Willard avenue, to hold our Friday night services. Rabbi Alsted used to come in on Friday afternoon and remain over Sunday afternoon. We carried on all winter and when the Passover arrived, we hired Bazar's Hall and held services there. Although it was a moral success, it was a financial failure due to the fact that there were only ten or fifteen of us willing to carry the burden. We saved the situation, however, by closing the services after Passover and telling the people that we would start again in the Fall of the year for the High Holidays, but when the Fall came, nothing more was done and the High Holidays found us back on Willard avenue at the old synagogue with the youngsters still outside and older folks inside doing the praying.

Every year before the Holidays, I would talk to the original group about re-organizing this movement but no one was willing to try it again. They considered it rather an expensive experiment and, try as I might, I could not convince anyone to join me in this mission. One thing that I did learn, however, was that in order for this movement to be a success when we re-organized, it must be away from Willard avenue, will be my job to interest the new-comers, those who lived out of the "Ghetto," probably around Broad street, Elmwood avenue and vicinity, because it seemed an impossibility to convince the Jews of Willard avenue to change their method of praying. It would have to be in a different location and with a newer and younger element.

Volke and Grossman Come to the Rescue

Some years later, I convinced my old standby and friend, Simon Volke, to try again, suggesting that we call a few men together at a meeting in his home to see if we could not revive "Conservative Judaism" in Providence. I knew that if I had called this meeting at my house that some of them would know what it was all about and perhaps would not come so I sent out fifteen letters, inviting them to a very important meeting at Simon Volke's and out of the fifteen, thirteen were present.

Naturally when they arrived they wanted to know what it was all about. I explained to them and proved it to them that at the rate we were going, Judaism in South Providence was diminishing and that our children were growing up as Jews but did not know anything about the history of their people or their religion. They all agreed with me that something should be done but suggested that we wait awhile. Knowing then that I had to strike while the iron was hot, and that I might not have another chance to get them together, I suggested that

BY THE WAY

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Such is Life

Sitting in a Second Avenue cafe one day with Manager Hoffmuth of the Jewish Art Theater. The usual noise of the cafe was heightened by a soap boxer on the corner, whose denunciations of capitalism mixed with the tintinnabulation of the soup absorption and the general chatter in the cafe.

Near us, rather at the table adjoining us, sat a ring of Jewish chorus girls from the Yiddish shows surrounding one lone male — a man near 60, a somewhat vivid looking fellow if worn by time — a man who might easily pass as a newspaper man going into the sere and yellow stage.

The chorus girls were chattering and wise cracking as the lone man — we will call him Jacobus — was singing some songs of his own improvisation. How is this one? he would say,

Ta ra ra de boom ti boom
Ta ra ri boom
Ta ra ri boom

That's not as good as the other one," one of the chorus girls objected, as all the others expressed their opinions also. "I like better..."

"The capitalist is exploiting the workers." Rockefeller, Morgan, shouted the soap boxer from without.

"Oh, you like the one that goes," said Jacobus,

Ta ra ri da da da

Ta ra ri doodle de do."

"Workers of the world unite! We have nothing to lose but our bread-bags!" shouted the soap boxer from without.

"Yes," cried the girls, "that's the one we like. Dance to it, Jacobus. Oh, he is so funny when he dances to it."

"Look at Russia. There is no unemployment there. The capitalists," cried the soap boxer.

Jacobus began to dance to the tune of his Ta ra ri doodle do. "This is the one you like girls, eh?"

"Yes, Jacobus, ain't he a how?"

"Machinery — overproduction — the capitalist class," shouted the soap boxer.

"But wait till you hear this one," said Jacobus.

"Say," I said to Brother Hoffman, "who is that fellow doing all these ta-ra-ri's and who refuses to be stopped by all that socialistic din outside?"

"Why that fellow Jacobus," replied Hoffman, "is the son of the man who was secretary to Karl Marx."

Go Mae West, Young Woman

It was Horace Greeley, I believe, who was reported to have uttered the counsel, "Go West, young man." He was not thinking of going Mae West, as the country seems to be going.

But what I wanted to say was that it was pointed out to me the other day, that Mae West's immortal saying, which will go down with Pershing's, "Lafayette, we are here," namely, "Come on up some time," really comes from the Bible. The Hebrew phrase is "Soor nah alai" and it will be recalled that it is quoted in the Bible as having been used by a woman, not of the social register of Palestine.

NAZI ORDER EXPELS JEWS FROM BAR ASSOCIATION

Berlin (JTA) — The sweeping expulsion of all Jewish lawyers from existing bar associations, regardless of whether they are war veterans or descendants of war veterans, was ordered by Minister of Justice Hans Frank.

The decree also demanded that the bar organizations throughout the country surrender their independence and become units in the National Socialist Juristenbund. It is argued that since Jews are not admitted into the Juristenbund, whose enrollment con-

PROVIDENCE JEWISH WAR VETS NOTES

At the last meeting of Rhode Island Post No. 23, Jewish War Veterans of the U. S. two new members were voted in, Harry Law and Bertram Petchesky.

All comrades of the Post wish to express their deepest sympathy to the following comrades in their recent bereavement: Max and Eli Viner, Harry Mincoff and Mrs. Samuel Michaelson.

On December 5, the social committee headed by Officer of the Day Reuben Blumenthal has arranged a public dance and entertainment to be held at headquarters, 100 Niagara Street. A large crowd is expected to attend.

The oil painting "Victory," presented to the Post by Mrs. George Wise, stands out very prominently in the new ballroom. The comrades wish to express their sincerest thanks to Mrs. Wise for this beautiful gift.

The committee in charge of the New Year's party to be held at the headquarters Sunday, December 31 is planning one of the best affairs in the history of the Post. Reuben Blumenthal is chairman of the committee.

The beautiful memorial board in the auditorium was made possible through the generosity of the Jewish Boy Scout Troop that meets every Monday night at headquarters.

Comrade Samuel Mistowsky was elected secretary and treasurer of the Allied Veterans Council which is composed of all the War Veterans in the state of Rhode Island. Commander Harry A. Hoffman was elected vice president and Trustee Paul J. Robin, chairman of the legislative committee.

Selection of officers for the year 1934 will be held at headquarters Thursday, December 28.

Benten H. Rosen is Named Editor of R. I. State Weekly

Benton H. Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosen of Gallatin street, was last Wednesday selected as editor of the Sophomore number of the "Beacon," Rhode Island State College weekly. The special issue will be distributed at the Soph Hop, Wednesday evening, December 20.

Others on the executive board are Henry Spiegelblatt, Newport, managing editor; Miss Shirley Nemtzow, Newport, assistant editor; Norman Fain, Providence, feature and E. Harold Dick, Providence, sports.

Food for Thought

Here is food for thought. Dr. G. A. Lowenstein, chairman of the Macabean festival is a renowned chemist and one of the owners of two of the largest chains of restaurants in New York — the Willow and Stewart Cafeterias.

Dr. Lowenstein has done research work in the Rockefeller Institute and the Yale Laboratory. And now during the day, he feeds hundreds of thousand people gastronomically and at night, feeds others with Zionism.

NAZI ORDER EXPELS JEWS FROM BAR ASSOCIATION

Rhode Island Post No. 23 of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States will usher in the repeal of the eighteenth amendment with a dance and celebration at the Post headquarters, on Niagara street.

A gala evening is being arranged by the chairman Reuben Blumenthal.

urday morning, Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock is the time scheduled for Cantor Shlisky's grand concert when he will appear with his New York choir, comprising 12 exceptionally well-trained voices. A repertoire of the most beloved composers and songs from all languages will be sung.

Only Few Were Willing to Bear Expenses of Conducting Services — Emergency Meeting Summoned to Revive Interest in Synagogue Movement

By HARRY ROSEN

"Steve Pipes" Carried in a Box. I can't help but smile when I look back to that first Friday night when Simon Volk, who was the vice president, and I, who was honored as the president, wore high hats when we sat on the pulpit. We didn't dare walk through Willard avenue with them on so we carried them in a box and put them on where we got inside the synagogue!

The synagogue was packed to the doors that night. Many people came just out of curiosity. The services were all carried through in English matters of social customs and political philosophy he would, I suppose, be equating correctly.

I don't know, for example, what Mr. Roosevelt would say if, in rebuttal, Herr Hitler demanded proof that there was no such thing as racial persecution in this country. When a gifted Irish actor whose name happens to be Cohen there made reservations at a fashionable New Jersey hotel you get a small part of the idea.

But sports are something else. They have nothing to do with social customs or nationalistic programs. For they very immediately bring some people closer in cementing international bonds, averting wars and stimulating trade. They are just sports. Berlin was an unfortunate choice for the Olympics. There is ample time to make a change, and it should be made.

Beth-El Sisterhood

Will Meet Monday

The Sisterhood of Temple Beth-El will hold its monthly meeting Monday afternoon, December 11, at 2:30 in the Temple. The program will consist of the Study Lecture Course conducted by Rabbi William G. Braude and selected readings by Mrs. Hazel Brown Goodwin.

The board of directors will meet earlier at 12:30 o'clock.

land banks, control of cooperative societies and the machinery of distribution and marketing, social insurance schemes, money inflation, the Jewish powers attempted to stamp the German people."

The leading story on the front page of "The Silver Legion Ranger" carried the headline: "Russia Re-vised, Gates Opened Wide to Red Invasion" and is followed with the announcement that "Facts About Jewish Russia Would Cause Revolt at President's Action Toward Recognition If Accurately Known to Americans."

More than a dozen columns are devoted to Russian recognition, and "Jewish Communists plans to seize the food supply of the world." One after another assails "simple-minded American" who expect "red terrorists" to be "nice."

"The most dastardly tragedy ever perpetrated upon the American people is being enacted in Washington in these fraught weeks, with malice of forethought, by a set of political officials blithesomely entrusted by an adolescent electorate with the destinies of the American people," the Silver Shirt publication declares.
