"Land of Promise" Palestinian Film Here on Sunday

Maurice Samuel Will Address Workers' Rally and Film Audience

"The Land of Promise," the stirring film record of the remarkable achievements of the Jews in re-establishing the ancient land as their Homeland, will be presented next Sunday afternoon and evening at the Carlton Theatre, under the auspices of the United Palestine Appeal.

In its premiere in New York several weeks ago the film was universally acclaimed by the city's foremost critics. "The Land of Promise," directed by Julius Leman and provided with an unusually beautiful score of original music, portrays the dramatic rebuilding of Palestine.

Palestine of Yesterday
The opening scenes depict the Palestine of yesterday, slumbering in its backward, lethargic atmosphere. Then suddenly the Oriental background gives way to a thrilling, dynamic panorama of bustling activity.

The pioneers have come to reclaim the barren soil, to build new cities, to bring forth out of the neglected soil the rich fruit of "golden apples" and grain. Tractors and huge modern harvesting machines replace the primitive ox-cart and superannated methods. A new tempo pulsates the life of the land and Palestine lives again with the fervor and idealism of its builders, with the courage and heroism of its pioneers.

A valuable collection of Jewish manuscripts was destroyed. The synagogue, one of the oldest in Brooklyn, is a total wreck. Only the walls are now standing. The damage is estimated at $50,000.

Jewish Business Men Swear off Card-playing in Synagogue After Hold-up

Glen Cove, Long Island (WNS)—There will be no more card-playing in the vestry-room of Congregation Tifereth Israel. Eleven Jewish business men, all members of the congregation, were enjoying a poker game in the synagogue, when two bandits took a hand in the game by shouting "hands up." Ordering the players to disrobe in order to prevent them from escaping, the gunmen robbed the players of their watches and several hundred dollars in cash. The bandits escaped and the Jewish business men took an oath never to play cards in the synagogue again.

3 Anglo-Jewish Leaders Coming to Lay Plans Before U. S. Jews

London (WNS)—A sensational scheme by which world Jewry would finance the mass migration of 1,000,000 to 250,000 Jews from Germany to Palestine and other British territories, has been unofficially suggested to Jewish leaders by spokesmen for the Nazi regime, and is to be laid before American Jewry by Sir Herbert Samuel, former High Commissioner to Palestine; Viscount Bearsted, head of the Shell Oil Company, Ltd., and Simon Marks, English chain store magnate, who are leaving for the United States on January 16th, it was learned here.

The proposed plan involves three points: Jews must get credit facilities to permit this huge number of German Jews to be transferred to Palestine or British territories; 2—Jews leaving Germany under this plan will be able to take their capital with them only in German goods, just as Jews going to Palestine from Germany are allowed to do; 3—world Jewry is to raise the money required for liquidating the German exports which the emigrating Jews would take with them.

Involves Mass Exodus
Although no details of the plan could be obtained from any authoritative Jewish quarter, spokesmen for Jewish organizations here, while loathe to discuss the project, which (Continued on Page Four)

Roosevelt Flays Nazi Autocracy

Says Racial Persecution is Menace to World Peace

Washington, D. C. (WNS)—Lashing out against autocracy, racial and religious persecution and aggression abroad as a menace to world peace, President Roosevelt, in his annual message to Congress, flung a challenge to dictators ruling lands by declaring that the United States has "sought by every legitimate means to exert our moral influence against repression, against intolerance and against autocracy and in favor of freedom of expression, equality before the law, religious tolerance and popular rule."

Mincing no words, the President denounced "those nations which are dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression," and, although he mentioned no names, made it plain that he holds Germany, Italy and Japan responsible for "jeopardizing world peace."

Declaring that "it is idle for us or for others to preach that the masses of the people who constitute these nations which are dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression" (Continued on Page Three)

Askan, who is an Aryan, married Jennie Fischer, a childhood sweetheart, who is a Jewess, in October, shortly after their arrival in this country. Forced to return to Germany where they face imprisonment under the new laws, the couple later decided to annul the marriage in order to return to Germany singly. Later they plan to re-enter the United States under the immigration quota and to re-wed here.

Lashes Nazi Policies

sion are out of sympathy with their rulers, that they are allowed no opportunity to express themselves, that they would change things if they could," the President pointed out that "that, unfortunately, is not so clear.

"It might be true that the masses of the people in those nations would change policies of their governments if they could be allowed full freedom, full access to the processes of democratic government as we understand them. But they do not have that access; lacking it, they follow blindly and fervently the lead of those who seek autocratic power."

The President also indirectly attacked the Nazi regime's racial policy when he said that the autocratic nations have "impatiently reverted to the old belief in the law of the sword or the fantastic conception that they, and they alone, are chosen to fulfill a mission and that all the others among the billion and a half human beings in the rest of the world must and shall learn from and be subject to them."

PLAIN SPEAKING

Even his most inveterate political enemies are applauding President Roosevelt's slashing attack on the autocratic powers of Europe. Departing from the traditional stodginess of Presidential messages to Congress, Roosevelt called a spade when he denounced "those nations which are dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression." Hewing to diplomatic custom, he mentioned no names, but it was clear to all that he was referring, among others, to Nazi Germany, when he spoke of nations having "the fantastic conception that they, and they alone, are chosen to fulfill a mission and that all the others among the billion and a half human beings in the rest of the world must and shall learn from and be subject to them."

He also gave expression indirectly but plainly to American abhorrence of Nazi racial and religious persecution when he emphasized how the United States has "sought every legitimate means to exert our moral influence against repression, against intolerance and against autocracy and in favor of freedom of expression, equality before the law, religious tolerance and popular rule." To those who appreciate the significance of the President's words and the place in which they were uttered there can be no doubt as to where he stands.

REALPOLITIK

The reaction of the German government to James G. McDonald's letter of resignation as High Commissioner for German Refugees, in which he proposed concerted international intercession with the Reich on behalf of the persecuted Jews and other victims of the Nazi regime, is hardly surprising. When Germany told the League of Nations to mind its own business and declared that the way Germany treated the Jews was its own problem, political realists were not surprised. Germany knows that none of the European powers would intervene, and therefore she can afford to defy world-wide public opinion.

What the League of Nations will do is doubtful. Since the League is made up of states that have declined to interfere individually, it is hardly likely that they would do anything to intervene collectively. Unless the League suffers a complete change of heart it will probably content itself with some meaningless resolutions, the appointment of a new High Commissioner and then call it quits. That this callous indifference flies in the face of everything for which the League was credited will mean nothing to the statesmen in Geneva. Their concern is the maintenance of the status quo at any price. If that means sacrificing the German Jews, that's too bad. But that's realpolitik today.

New Law Will Force Closing of all Hungarian Talmud Torahs

Budapest (WNS)—All Talmud Torahs in Hungary will have to close unless the government exempts Hebrew from a new law which forbids the teaching of any language but Hungarian in any school. Leaders of the Jewish community have appealed to the government to make an exception for Hebrew only for the purpose of instruction and for the teaching of Bible.

To preserve a friend, three things are necessary: to honor him when present, praise him when absent, and assist him in his necessities.

A Letter to the Editor

Editor, "The Jewish Herald":
In my letter to you that appeared in the December 27th issue, referring to the non-Jews of Germany, I said, among other things, "These Amalekites were merely biding the arrival of a Haman who would permit them to spurt their venom over the Jews openly and un molested." Since then I was charged with making an injudicious imputation that the entire non-Jewish population of Germany is anti-Semitic. It is quite obvious that there are Germans who do not hate the Jews, but from the present outlook it is quite a problem to separate the chaff from the grain.

Let us look nearer home and see what we find. The Nazis in this country are giving a daily demonstration of stored up hatred against Jews. They hiss the name of the greatly loved American, Lindbergh, but applaud that of the murderer, Hauptmann, because the prosecuting attorney is a Jew. They camouflage their Nazism in the name of Americanism, but travel to the Saar to vote as Hitler in order to enable Hitler to disfranchise more Jews. And, mind you, they owe absolutely no allegiance to Hitler nor to his regime.

The Jews outside of Naziland are fortunate in not being a Shtraf-Koloss between Yehudim and Goyim by placing the Tiflim and the Tselem into the same category. And now we put each other on the back and say to hell with Hitler. But our German brethren are not so lucky, they have no non-Jewish friends, and no outlets for improved conditions.

And speaking of newly acquired non-Jewish friends—thanks to Hitler—one of mine asked me to give my conception what each, the Zionist, non-Zionist and anti-Zionist, is accomplishing for the world Jewry. I replied to his question with the best product of my limited faculty, for which no one else should be held responsible, as follows:

The Zionist, with the prophetic vision of centuries, is moving Heaven and earth, striving to build a Jewish nation in its own land, to take the place of ruthless persecution, to be a messenger to remind the Jew of his Jewishness. What he has accomplished thus far is history.

The non-Zionist is, to my mind, a Zionist at heart, but he lacks the courage of his conviction. He is in constant fear that an open declaration of his faith in Zionism might cause his non-Jewish friends or neighbors to question his Americanism. In other words, like our German brethren in years gone by, he lets George do it.

The anti-Zionist Jewish "hearer" is the opposite to the Zionist, as the wicker is to the builder. What mission he has in life is beyond the comprehension of keener minds than mine.

And now, Mr. Editor, please permit me to remind the thousands of readers of "The Jewish Herald" that Eretz Israel will be brought before their very eyes on Sunday afternoon and evening, January 12th, at the Carlton Theatre on Mathewson street, with the $60,000 "talkie," titled, "Land of Promise." Where is there a Jew in Rhode Island who would not want to see Israel's restored Yerushoim in all its glory, for the small sum of fifty cents?

BOOK NOTES

By Esther Levine

"A tale of two kings." By Saul Saphire and Lew Earl Winburg. (United Publishing Co., N. Y.)

Historical novels have a tremendous fascination for most people. Writers race to let their imagination loose among the bare facts of history, often with the most amazing results. A John Arskine produces a Hellen that Iroy never knew; a Robert Graves reincarnates a Roman emperor who proves himself less an idiot than those who called him so. Sometimes the purpose has been exposure; sometimes, a sugar coating to digest more easily historical fact.

"A tale of two kings" has gone back to the most dramatic book of all times for its source material. I mean, of course, the Bible. Where else can one find such a wealth of story material—battle and blood, loyalty and love, inspiration and excitement?

Among the most stirring episodes in the story of the building of a united kingdom, free from surrounding enemies, paying tribute to its own king and worshipping its own God—the building of the kingdom of Israel. The two authors, Saphire and Winburg (the latter a local writer) have presented in novelized form the lives of Saul and David.

The treatment is sympathetic. The authors have attempted to show these legendary figures as real people, with the weaknesses and strengths of human beings. There are some variations from the standard translation of the Bible but these are caused more by the desire to round out a characterization than to offer a new explanation.

The Jews are under the Philistine yoke and surrounded by enemy nations. They think that with a king of their own they will be better able to win their independence. They beseech Samuel, their spiritual leader, to name their king. He anoints Saul, who has been living quietly and happily with his family. Saul finds it impossible to continue his simple life. His position calls for a palace and a retinue befitting a king. The cruel demands of neighboring tyrants force him into continual warfare.

Abner, Saul's cousin, puts to good use all the military information he has amassed during his travels among enemy nations. Fortune seems to be with them. Jonathan performs the most astonishing feats and, as usual, his heroism almost upsets the less spectacular but wiser plans of his elders.

The triumph of David over the giant Goliath is matchless in its daring—one boy, unarmed except for his slingshot and five white stones, challenging a huge giant of a man, clad in armor and equipped with spear and sword. Small wonder that in later years David attributes his success to luck.

The rise of David makes a thrilling but a bloody story. Saul's insane jealousy of David led to needless bloodshed. David was a dreamer but he became a warrior. His personality and charm captivated his people. Even Joab, who lived for battle, bound himself to glorifying David with a loyalty and affection unusual in any era.

In this characterization, David is presented as somewhat the Don Juan. Apparently women found him irresistible and he made no objections. As Joab says to his men gathered for vengeance: "We may as well turn back . . . David's anger is over; he has no more to do with women."

READING SUGGESTIONS
"Discovery" by Richard Byrd (G. P. Putnam's Sons) Admiral Byrd's own account of the second Antarctic expedition. Exciting, well written and personal in tone, the book gives the various scientific experiments and discoveries. Reviewed last week.

"The Inquirer" by Hugh Walpole. (Macmillan) The background, Paul Macmillan, will be familiar to Walpole readers of the "Cathedral," "Harmer John" and "The old ladies." This book is part mystery and part melodrama and part satire. It is well done but not the best of Walpole.

Proposals Made

which would involve a mass exodus of unprecedented proportions in modern times, unofficially pointed out the numerous difficulties and obstacles involved in the realization of such a gigantic scheme.

In the first place Jewish support for this proposal would mean Jewish financial backing for Germany and a flagrant violation of the anti-Nazi boycott. Any Jewish move to give economic aid to Nazi Germany, would, it was pointed out, precipitate a storm of Jewish exiles. The doubt was also expressed that Great Britain would allow any such huge number of Jews to enter its territories.

A third obstacle is the huge cost the project entails. It is estimated that it would cost $1,000,000 to take one Jewish family out of Germany and settle it elsewhere, which means that the cost of transporting 250,000 Jews, or 50,000 families, would require $50,000,000. Other objections to the scheme cited are the probability that Roumania, Poland, Hungary, Lithuania and Latvia might object to Germany's example and demand that world Jewry remove Jews from those countries, that the plan makes no provision for all the German Jews and that it leaves the half-Jews at the mercy of the Nazi regime.

Nazi Threaten

It was learned that the Nazi emissaries who put this scheme up to Jewish leaders in Great Britain and France hinted quite plainly that if it were not accepted the Hitler government would proceed with even more rigorous measures against the German Jews. The Nazi agents are reported to have said that the delay in promulgating the decree restricting Jewish economic rights in the same manner as the Nuremberg laws curb Jewish political and social rights was motivated by a desire to afford Jewry an opportunity to act upon their offer. Should it be rejected, the decree will be put into effect.

Berlin (WNS)—The London report of a Nazi offer to allow the exodus of from 100,000 to 250,000 German Jews with their capital if world Jewry raised a fund to make possible the purchase of German lands is regarded in Jewish circles here as a Nazi trial balloon. Jewish leaders declined to comment on the report but intimated doubt as to the practicability of the plan. Nazi officials at the foreign ministry and the ministry of propaganda refused to discuss the report.

Hartford (WNS)—Solomon J. Kohn has been appointed the Republican member of the Hartford board of fire commissioners.

Prof. Scharfstein Praises Emanu-El Hebrew School

Prof. Zwi Scharfstein of the Teachers' Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York, who visited the various classes of Temple Emanu-El Religious School last month, in the first annual Jewish Education Day program, has written to Charles A. Backman, chairman of the School Board, as follows, concerning his impressions of the Temple Emanu-El Hebrew School:

"I visited your Hebrew School on December the 6th, and I think that you will be proud to tell me as to the achievement of the pupils."

"I saw two classes of the Hebrew School, one Grade 4, taught by Mr. Weiser, and the other a High School class with Mr. Kessler as teacher. I found the work of both teachers excellent. The pupils in the 4th Grade acquired an adequate Hebrew vocabulary and are able to use it both orally and in writing. They show also facility in the reading of the Siddur, especially of prayers which are used frequently."

"In the High School class, the texts used are the same as in the High School of the Bureau of Jewish Education in New York City. I brought with me my own reading matter which the students never saw before, and gave it to them to read. They not only understood the content, without any help, but were able to tell me in Hebrew. Taking into consideration the fact that your children have Hebrew sessions only twice, instead of five times, weekly, their progress is excellent indeed."

Sincerely yours,
ZWI SCHARFSTEIN."

Warsaw Jews Claim Yiddish as Mother Tongue

Around The Town

With JOSEPH M. FINKLE

A NEW YEAR GREETING

I always like to meet a man who greets me with a cheerful word and a smile. There never was a man or woman who did not have his or her share of troubles and disappointments. The difference is that some let their troubles ride them, while others refuse to be whipped . . . and though they may carry a heavy and worried heart, they greet the world with a smile and a word of cheer. I was invited in 1935 bring you all much happiness and inspire you to greater courage and cheer in your daily work.

PASSING OF LORD READING

The death last week in London of Lord Reading to my mind was the most important Jewish news of the week. Lord Reading, one of the foremost names in the affairs of the British Empire during the present generation, died at the age of 75 and was born as Rufus Daniel Isaacs, the son of a Jewish merchant . . . he was Viceroy of India, Lord Chief Justice and British ambassador to the United States . . . the press of England and this country has likened him to Disraeli and considers him to have been one of the greatest men that Great Britain has produced . . . Lord Reading was a great Jew and also a great Englishman.

JEWISH FAMILY WELFARE DOING FINE WORK

It was our great pleasure and privilege to have been able to attend the annual meeting of the Jewish Family Welfare Society on last Monday night at the Carpenter Memorial Building on North Main street. This humane organization headed by Arthur J. Levy with Miss Jessie Josolowitz as executive director, is entering its sixth year of service to the community and what a fine work it is—assisting any Jewish family in any kind of trouble . . . the society supplies expert services in meeting family problems and offers sufficient means to meet immediate and pressing needs until a more permanent solution can be found . . . we know that we can take the liberty of expressing for the community its thanks and appreciation to the officers and workers of the Jewish Family Welfare for a work WELL DONE.

THIS AND THAT

Don't forget to see this Sunday, either afternoon or evening, the Palestine movie "Land of Promise" at the Carlton Theatre . . . this is without doubt the finest presentation, an epic, actually portrayed of the Holy Land . . . you cannot afford to miss it . . . Walter Adler and Mrs. Saul Abrams are heading the annual Membership Enrollment campaign for the Jewish Community Center which ends on Jan. 23.

Those horse lovers had a real splashing time during their canter on Sunday a. m. last if reports ring true—they tell me the horses found nearly every puddle and small brook around sections of riders were hardly recognizable at the end of the ride—the brave souls were Jack Temkin, Irving Fleishman, Syd Hanzel, Phil Kaplan,

Archie Fain, and Sol Rothstein . . . the Ed. Goldbergers are safely back in town after their honeymoon trip and looking very fine, thank you . . . Frank Shepkow, who is on a diet, got himself elected to the board of Governors last week of the Riverside Business Men's Association.

REPERTORY PLAYERS

Repertory Players next meeting will be held evening of January 15—features include a one-act play and a reading by Gerald Bronstein—next feature full length production by this talented group of the spoils will be the Broadway success "Success Story" which I believe the organization will present for two nights and which should attract capacity houses . . . Max Rosenhirsch, new financial secretary of B'nai B'rith is proving to be one of the hardest workers for that important organization . . . haven't seen Ben Rittenberg for many a day—speak up Ben . . . the Abe Goldsteins of Woonsocket way are receiving good wishes on their new home and at this time we say "the best of luck".

Many locals will attend annual installation and dinner-dance of Woonsocket Lodge, B'nai B'rith, Sunday evening . . . this live group to which nearly every Jewish male in Woonsocket belongs always provides a "bang up" affair and we well remember our enjoyable evening of last year . . . Ben "Mussy" Falk is scheduled to occupy the chair of President for the coming year and good wishes to him for a successful administration . . . the Dan Jacobs and the Art Grossmans were spotted in Boston on Saturday night last viewing the new "Ziegfeld Follies" while the Ed Grossmans also were in the Hub city on Sunday night enjoying a meal in Chinatown at The Den.

HERE AND THERE

Leo Abisch and Bernie Boas greeted us this week with their usual cheery smile and "Manny" Koplan dropped in to see us from his studies at R. I. State . . . Ben Agorick, although confined to his home while recovering from that "sym" accident which caused a broken leg—managed to direct his business and to keep smiling—we hope to see you up around real soon Ben and we miss you as we make our regular rounds about the town . . . thank you, Arthur Basok for that fine calendar which adorns one of the walls of our office.

Mel Koppe and Joe Pulver report a real fine time on that recent cruise . . . the Barney Kenners, William Weinsteins and Earl Mellions are a few of our "fortunates" who will soon leave for sunny Florida . . . Valencia Lapsitz is back in town and maybe Manny Somtom isn't happy once more, and why not . . . that gentleman from Warrington street had a real snappy time in Child's on New Year's Eve with two ravishing blondes, one on each arm . . . local young lady complains to me why eligibles from here always import fair ladies from other places to attend important affairs here

—she says "I'm right and something should be done about this important matter."

CENTER FORMAL

Local American-Jewish Congress, Junior unit, planning Leap Year dance in February and then males, watch out . . . next major social event of the year will be the annual formal of the Jewish Community Center to be held at Narragansett on Tuesday night, January 28—this year the event will be called "A night in the Mexican Tropics" with all the incidental atmosphere, and ragside tables, etc.—get your partners, boys and girls, and don't forget this is "Leap Year" . . . one of the finest personalities in town, that of Harry Gonyea . . . the Nat Cohens are another couple that I am always happy to meet . . . someone has said "Life is a place of service, and in that service one may suffer much, but more often experience a great deal of joy. That joy can be real only if people have a definite object in life aside from themselves and their personal happiness" . . . and with this may we remind you that we observe on next week our first anniversary as the writer of this column . . . it is really difficult to believe that with next week's issue we will have written this jumble of words for 52 consecutive weeks and we are happy to say that we have lost no friends in the process . . . see you again, one week from today.

State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations

A PROCLAMATION

By His Excellency

Theodore Francis Green
Governor

Whereas, in 1636 Roger Williams and a small band of followers came in exile to establish on our shores a new community, later to be called "The State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations", and now in 1936, three hundred years later, the people of this State propose to commemorate and to celebrate by various fitting exercises and remembrances the tercentennial anniversary of that far-reaching event, and

Whereas, out of favor with the forces of intolerance, Roger Williams became in his nature stature an enemy of bigotry and a champion of truth and freedom, and in this spirit established here under God the first truly democratic state, one where the equality of men and their natural rights in the manner of worship and the details of government were recognized, where all men fairly associated together for the good of all, and where each man was free in his heart and soul, and it is this spirit, suffusing the history of our State, inspiring the foundations of our Federal Government and shining uniquely as an ideal beacon in the world at large, that we would primarily celebrate in the twelve months to come:

Now, Therefore, I, THEODORE FRANCIS GREEN, Governor of the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations do proclaim and do invite all to join us during this year in enjoying and celebrating the fruits of that lively experiment undertaken three hundred years ago "that a most flourishing civil state may stand and best be maintained with full liberty in religious concerns."

I invite our sons and daughters who have gone elsewhere and our friends old and new of other states and countries to visit us here; not merely because of our three hundredth birthday, but as well because Rhode Island is a fair and good land, a favored part of rugged New England, sharing a part of that sea-swept coast which challenged the newcomers to America. It has its own unequalled beaches, its woodlands, lakes and countryside of a variety and quality of beauty far greater than its actual size would justify. Here, around the shores of Narragansett Bay, the visitor will discover that refreshment and that security which have made Rhode Island famed throughout the world as a resort, as an industrial power, and as a seat of intellectual and artistic endeavor.

I invite also our fellow-citizens of this State to recall and by their deeds to refreshen the spiritual values of Rhode Island's great past: that we may, in these times of uncertainty and experiment, take renewed vigor from the daring, the integrity, the truth-seeking, and the unerring tolerance which characterized our founders. Let us celebrate the great men and days of our past, not only in the pride of what has been done, but as well in the consciousness of what we are because of them, and in the faith of what, more nearly approaching their ideals, we may yet become.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the State to be affixed this first day of January in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, and of Independence the one hundred and sixtieth.

THEODORE FRANCIS GREEN,

Governor

LOUIS W. CAPPELLI,
Secretary of State.

Onslow Stevens, H. B. Warner at Fay's Today

Popular Favorites Are Seen in "Born to Gamble"

Can a fondness for gambling be inherited? This is the interesting and thought-provoking question that forms the theme of Liberty Pictures' production, "Born to Gamble," announced as the feature attraction at Fay's Theatre beginning today.

E. Morton Hough, author of the screen play which was suggested by an Edgar Wallace story, says the question can be answered affirmatively. "Ace" Cartwright, reckless adventurer and western promoter, transmitted his own taste for gambling to his daughter's four sons. It is with them that the principal part of the story is concerned.

All four boys give every evidence of following their maternal grandfather's eagerness to settle every point of dispute with a gambling wager. As boys they incurred the wrath of the neighbors because of their success in separating their playfellows from knives, marbles or money. As the lads grow into manhood, they appear powerless to shake off "Ace's" legacy... and their recklessness proves one of their salient characteristics. Their willingness to take a chance—even against great odds—brings with it a tragic end for three of the four boys. The fourth learns a bitter and costly lesson, through which he is subsequently able to find the happiness that his brothers never knew.

Onslow Stevens, Eric Linden, Ben Alexander and William Janney are seen as the four sons of the Cartwrights (H. B. Warner) and Lois Wilson. Maxine Doyle is the sweetheart of Henry, the surviving son, who later marries him and brings joy to their sorrowing father.

The action of "Born to Gamble" starts in the west in 1865 and is brought down to the present day. Phil Rosen is credited with the direction.

She outlined the effect upon the families in need of the change from the I.R.A. method of relief to the W.P.A. program of employment. In speaking of the Old Age Pension Law, which became effective during the past year, Miss Josolowitz reported that the society had filed 49 applications for eligible applicants and that up to this time, three persons in the group are receiving pensions and eight cases are being investigated.

Employment continues to be the chief cause which brings families to the society in need of major case work. The problem of lack of work was an important factor in 75.6 percent of the cases cared for during the year. According to the report, the care of the families in question has required close cooperation between various public and private agencies. Among the 302 families known during 1935, comprising 1,183 individuals, 147 of the families have also been known to one of the public relief organizations.

Mr. Levy in his annual report as president pointed out the decrease which has taken place in the funds available for relief during the past few years, due chiefly to failure of the public to contribute sufficiently to the Providence Community Fund. He gave the figures for the past few years of actual expenditures for relief as follows: 1931, $7,941.50; 1932, $8,632; 1933, $6,380; 1934, $5,886; 1935, $5,092.03.

On top of the decreases which have taken place during the past two or three years, Mr. Levy suggested, there will have to be a further very drastic curtailment again during 1936, when the amount available will be only $3,920, the smallest figure since the society has been in existence, unless some means is found during the year to augment the funds.

Reports were also given by Jacob S. Temkin, counsel; Mr. Fred Adler for Mrs. Milton Fuld, chairman of the clothing center; Jacob S. Temkin, chairman of the case conference committee, and Abraham Blackman, treasurer.

The annual address was delivered by Joseph H. Hagan, Chief of the State Division of Probation and Criminal Statistics. His subject was "Crime and the Family Fireside," and he dwelt upon the responsibilities of parents and family and home conditions as the most important influence upon juvenile delinquency.

A play, especially written for the meeting by Miss Maisie Fine, was presented by a cast of the Repertory Players, consisting of Dr. James C. Krastoff, Selma Smira Newman, Frances Smira Pribler, Jennie Melipio, Nathan Grossman, and Boris Pribler.

A cheerful disposition is more to be coveted than wealth.

BRUCE CABOT and ROCHELLE HUDSON in "SHOW THEM NO MERCY"

and EDWARD EVERETT HORTON in "YOUR UNCLE DUDLEY"

Horton is Star in Love Comedy at Majestic

"Show Them No Mercy" is Second Feature at Majestic

The debutante and matron in the small community who wants clothes that are modish but not bizarre, finds a number of practical hints in the gowns designed for the feminine principals of "Your Uncle Dudley," the Fox picture starring Edward Everett Horton and coming today to the Majestic Theatre.

The locale of the picture is a typical small community, and its comedy revolves about the mishaps that befall a small-town booster. But one of the principal attractions for the ladies are the gowns worn by Lois Wilson, Rosina Lawrence and Marjorie Gatsoun.

Miss Gatsoun appears in a startlingly effective outfit of silver lame with accents of rose-cerise. For the school-girl loveliness of Rosina Lawrence, a blue chiffon trimmed with tiny garlands of violets proves a perfect choice.

In "Show Them No Mercy," that thrilling 20th Century-Fox Department of Justice story, Edward Norris and Rochelle Hudson are co-stars in the Darryl F. Zanuck production.

Backed by a picked cast the story gets under way as Department of Justice men are hurriedly laying plans to trap four members of a gang who have quietly slipped out of sight. The scene shifts to the foothills of California where a series of absorbing adventures await Edward Norris and his wife, Rochelle Hudson.

Others in the cast include Cesar Romero, Bruce Cabot, Warren Hymer and Edward Brophy.
