COUNCIL IS NAMED FOR GERMAN JEWS

Weizmann Leaves for London; 8 Members Constitute Council

Jerusalem (WNS-Palcor Agency)—The World Council for German Jewry, a small committee to coordinate plans for the emigration of 100,000 German Jews during the next four years, has already been informed, the Palcor Agency learned just before Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, left for London.

The Council, purposely small in order to be effective in carrying out a large-scale program, will consist of four Zionists and four non-Zionists. The seven members whose names are already available include Dr. Weizmann, Felix M. Warburg and Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York, Lord Bearsted, Simon Marks, Osmond d'Avigdor Goldsmid and Sir Herbert Samuel, chairman. The four latter are of London. It is believed that the eighth place is being left open for another Zionist of America, who is yet to be named.

To Help 100,000 People

The World Council for German Jewry is the culmination of the plans recently broached in England and the United States by a delegation headed by Sir Herbert Samuel. It aims to help 100,000 people, between the ages of 17 and 35, to leave Germany for other lands during the next four years.

Dr. Weizmann will remain in London about three weeks. His first important conference has been fixed for March 14th, when the leaders of English Jewry will assemble in London to adopt plans whereby they may contribute their share of $5,000,000 over four years to what is expected ultimately to be a $15,000,000 fund.

8 Arab Terrorists on Trial in Palestine

Jenin, Palestine (WNS—Palcor Agency)—With Arabs regarding them as patriot-murders and Jews believing them to be ruthless brigands, eight Arab terrorists went on trial here before Magistrate Clive Curry, four months after they are alleged to have committed a series of murders in an effort to "free Palestine for the Arabs."

The charges on which the eight, ring-leaders in a band that is said to have numbered about a hundred, are being tried are: firstly, conspiracy to murder members of the Jewish community of Palestine; secondly, murder on November 7th last of Sergeant Moshe Rosenfeld of the Palestine police; thirdly, murder of the British constable, Reginald Mott, and the attempted murder of constable Frank Reader.

Foiling its tense in this Arab town, reflecting the sentiment among many Arabs throughout the country who have contributed to a defense fund for the indicted terrorists.

Merchants with German Goods Will be Boycotted

Plans for an economic boycott against merchants and stores in the State of Rhode Island which are selling German manufactured goods are to be formulated at an open meeting of the Providence Jewish Council to be held in the Biltmore Hotel on Sunday evening, March 8.

The program for the boycott was presented to the Executive Board of the Providence Jewish Council by its program director, Archie Smith, at its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, and unanimously adopted by that body. Members of all Jewish organizations in the State which are interested in the boycott are invited to be present at the Council meeting.

To Disseminate Information

Other parts of the program adopted by the Executive Board were a committee to cooperate with the Rhode Island Tercentenary Committee for the purpose of disseminating information with regard to the part which the Jew played in Colonial Rhode Island history and the legacy of the Jewish

"TAX AND PAY" SAYS La FOLLETTE

Balanced Budget Necessary; Hidden Taxes Hit

A pay-as-you-earn and "tax-as-you-go" policy for carrying out a program of continuity that "would return to the way of life every man, woman and child in the nation" was advocated by Senator Robert M. LaFollette in his address last Sunday night under the auspices of the Jewish Community Center at Plantations Auditorium.

Steel Predicts Massacre of Jews by Nazis

New York (WNS)—Johannes Steel, foreign editor of the New York Post, who accurately predicted the Nazi blood purge of June, 1934, declares that another such purge may be expected in the near future, and that this time it will be accompanied by an extensive massacre of Jews. Mr. Steel bases his prediction on statements made by Hjalmar Schacht, German economic dictator, to the effect that "radical elements" in Germany will be taken care of shortly.

A picture of 42 children, happily preparing for life and living, while they enjoy a sense of security will be unfolded at the annual meeting of the Jewish Orphanage of Rhode Island, Sunday afternoon, March 15. During the business session, officers for the ensuing year will be elected and committee reports will be passed upon.

Walter Sundlun, present president, will be re-elected for his eighth term, it was announced today. And Archibald Silverman will be chosen as honorary president, a post given for the first time.

Ira Letts, Speaker

Ira Lloyd Letts, jurist and orator, will deliver the principal address. Other features of the program will be the playing of several selections by the Children's Band, consisting of 21 pieces, coached by James Boylan, who will make their debut at this meeting.

This meeting which assumes the guise of "Children's Day" at the Orphanage, will mark a high point in the management of the institution. For it has been generally recognized that the Rhode Island home with its humane and intelligent direction has assumed a foremost place among the country's institutions. But all this can be better expressed by the superintendent, Maurice Stollerman, who, on commenting on the above phrase said:

DELAY TRIAL OF FRANKFURTER

Inquiry Will Not be Completed Until June

Geneva (WNS)—The protracted medical examination to determine the sanity of David Frankfurter, the young Jewish medical student from Yugoslavia who assassinated Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi leader of Switzerland, is expected to delay Frankfurter's trial until early in September. Swiss law provides for an exhaustive medical inquiry and from official sources it is learned that the inquiry will not be completed until June or July.

M. Kurti, who has agreed to undertake Frankfurter's defense, issued a statement here in which he denied a series of reports about Frankfurter published in the "Völkischer Beobachter, Hitler's official organ. Kurti denied that Frankfurter is a Communist, ridiculed the assertion that Frankfurter is now in the prison hospital and declared that he was in excellent health.

Insult to Hitler Sends Journalist to Jail

Alexandria, Egypt (WNS)—Because he sought to counteract some anti-Jewish articles in the Egyptian press with an article uncompromisingly to Hitler, Maurice Fargeon has been given a three-month jail sentence here, on the grounds that his article contained insults to the Reichsfuehrer.

ANTI-SEMITE GIVEN TREASURY POST

Explanation Refused and Protests Ignored

New York (WNS)—Paul J. Hughey, former unit manager of the payroll audit department of the New York City Emergency Relief Bureau, who was found guilty of anti-Semitic discrimination and allegedly improper payroll certification in August, 1935, now holds an important post with the United States Treasury Department, according to a report in the Brooklyn Jewish Examiner. The Examiner declares that 40 witnesses were heard and 462 pages of testimony taken in an exhaustive inquiry of Huguely's acts by the office of the Commissioner of Accounts. "Despite these violations," said the Examiner.

HARVARD ACCEPTS HEIDELBERG BID

Columbia Student Body Condemns Action of Authorities

Cambridge, Mass. (WNS)—Although Harvard has twice demonstrated its anti-Nazi sentiments by rejecting scholarship offers from Dr. E. F. S. Hanstaengl, Hitler's press adjutant, it has accepted an invitation to participate in the 550th anniversary of the founding of Heidelberg University.

In an official announcement it was declared that "the president and fellows, in accepting the invitation of the University of Heidelberg, recognize the ancient ties by which the universities of the world are united and which are independent of the political conditions existing in any country at any particular time."

A Harvard spokesman pointed out that the acceptance does not indicate any change in Harvard's attitude toward Nazism. He also declared that German universities have been invited to participate in Harvard's 300th anniversary this September.

Resolution Condemns

New York (WNS)—By a vote of 4-3 the student board of Columbia College adopted a resolution condemning the action of Columbia University in accepting an invitation to participate in the 550th anniversary of the founding of Heidelberg University. Fourteen members of the faculty have agreed to participate in a student mass meeting called to make a further protest.

New Anti-Jewish Drive Launched in Germany

Berlin (WNS)—With the last of the foreign visitors to the world Olympic Games safely out of Germany, the predicted renewal of anti-Semitic agitation got under way with a series of Nazi mass meetings and demonstrations throughout Germany. Julius Streicher's "Frankfurter Tageszeitung" sounded the keynote of the new onslaught against the Jews when it declared that whoever thought National Socialism's enlightenment campaign had gone to sleep cruelly deceived himself.

It was only a short pause, which must come from time to time. This is over and a new wave begins. Hundreds of additional meetings are scheduled for the next fortnight during which time Nazi orators are expected to whip up anti-Semitic feeling. Meanwhile the first ghetto restaurants and bars for Jews were authorized in Hanover and the official organ of the ministry of justice, "German Justice," announced that 703 Jewish notaries have been ousted in accordance with the Nuremberg laws.

H., one pair of shoes and five pairs of stockings, Morse's Shoe Store; dinner at Narragansett Hotel for Queen and escort; a complete bed set, consisting of Celanese taffeta spread, draperies and scarfs from Gloraine Mills; six pairs stockings, Dr. Myron Keller's dental service, Dr. Benjamin Rouslin; Ineriec, Robinson; seven compacts, Foster Jewelry; one flat iron, Franklin Auto Supply; facial, Green Nook Salon; sterling finger rings, G. Nearly 400 Attend Annual Charity Donors' Luncheon

A delightful afternoon was enjoyed Wednesday by the large and representative gathering of contributors at the fourth annual donors' luncheon, sponsored by the Ladies' Association of the Jewish Home for the Aged. The affair, held in the Narragansett Hotel, marked the close of a campaign for funds lasting several months, and conducted through the large committee appointed by the auxiliary.

The main halliroom of the hotel was used for the occasion, and was made very attractive with table arrangements of gay spring flowers and greenery. The ceremonies commenced with the reading of the invocation by Mrs. Samuel Michaelson.

Mrs. Charles Brown, general chairman of the undertaking, welcomed the donors, and thanked them for having assured the success of the venture in their support. Dealing with the necessity of the help those who in their old age cannot care for themselves, she stated, "We can all be very content in the realization that we are contributing in some measure at least to making those unfortunate a little happier. After all, no one knows what is in store for our own tomorrow; charity is one of the greatest virtues to be found in any one, and the satisfaction resulting from the performance of a task such as this will remain in our hearts and minds for many days to come."

Mrs. Lidor S. Low, president of the organization, spoke briefly. She lauded the luncheon chairman for her enthusiastic leadership and devotion to the entire project, claiming that these factors played no small part in the attaining of the desired goal.

The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. John J. Kowlin who introduced Miss Nan Lagerstedt of Boston, in a series of character sketches. The latter's portrayal of an aged inmate at a charitable institution receiving a caller was especially well done, in a group which proved Miss Lagerstedt capable of some clever histrionic work. Mr. George Claron, a member of the French Opera Company, sang several tenor airs, accompanied at the piano by Miss Alice Claron.

The most exciting feature on the program came during the latter half of the afternoon, with the drawing of the 112 lucky number prizes. Some of the more valuable gifts went to Mrs. Everett Cowen, who won the cabinet radio; Mrs. H. Selya, winner of the floor lamp, and Mrs. David Dwears, recipient of a Bissell Carpet Sweeper.

On behalf of the executive committee Mrs. Charles Z. Alexander presented Mrs. Brown with a beautiful leather handbag.

At the head table were seated: Messdames Archie Albert, Charles Z. Alexander, Charles Brown, Morris Berry, David Dwears, Samuel Deutsch, Jacob Ernstof, Irving Fain, Jennie Goldsmith, J. D. Grossman, Bernard B. Goldowsky, Jerome Han, Maurice Haselman, Isidor S. Low, Samuel Michaelson, Samuel Marloff, Morris Mellion, J. Nutman George Press, John J. Roussin, Alvin P. Rice, A. L. Responses to Opening Bids of More Than One

In discussing responses to opening bids of more than one, it may be advisable to briefly review the requirements and meanings of such opening bids. You will remember that an opening two-bid is forcing upon partner to make a response no matter how weak his hand may be. This is so because the opening bid by such a demand bid virtually assures his partner that he has game in his own hand, and partner's response will indicate the advisability of going after a slam.

Opening Two Bids are made when the bidder has more Honors (Tricks) than losing tricks, and in most cases his hand will contain about 5 Ht, rarely less than four, although we ourselves held a hand recently which contained only 3 1/2 Ht on which we opened with a demand bid and eventually went to seven. Such freaks are rare. The hand was Sp AQxxx, Ht AKQJxx, D xxx 3 1/2 Ht with about three losers. When partner responded to our two heart bid with two spades, the only thing we wanted to know was whether he held the Ace of Diamonds, which was ascertained by using the Four No Trump bid.

To get back to, the average demand bid will contain from 5-5 1/2 Ht, and bidder wants to know if his partner holds more than an average of the outstanding Ht, namely about 1 1/2 Ht. So when your partner has opened with a two bid of a suit, you will respond as follows:

(1) Holding less than 1 1/2 Ht REGADESS OF BALANCE OF HAND, respond with Two No Trump. This is known as a negative response.

(2) Holding at least 1 1/2 Ht you will make a POSITIVE response depending upon your holding.

a. With a biddable suit, bid it.

b. With no biddable suit and A-T-S raise the suit once.

c. With no biddable suit, and no A-T-S, but at least 1 1/2 Ht, bid THREE No Trump. The bidding must be kept open until game is reached. If there has been an intervening bid, you may pass for one round.

d. A double raise should rarely be given since the bidding cannot die, but with no biddable suit, nor A-T-S, but with 2 1/2 Ht, bid Four No Trump. We personally dislike this bid, and prefer a suit takeout in an unbidable suit with such a strong hand, in order to give partner a chance to improve his bid, and to ascertain, if possible, his distribution.

So remember, with less than 1 1/2 Ht even tho you may have a biddable suit, you must respond with TWO NO TRUMP; this bid indicates your maximum strength, and you may have a chance to show your suit on the next round, but by first bidding 2NT, you have told your partner of your Honor strength, and then by bidding a suit, he will know of that suit and judge accordingly.

Since an opening three bid is predicated upon a long trump suit and 7 sure winners, you will raise once with three winning tricks (Honor or ruffing), and once in addition

Mrs. Alter Boyman Luncheon Chairman

Mrs. Alter Boyman has been chosen chairman of the annual donors' luncheon given by the Women Pioneers it was announced today. Assisting Mrs. Boyman will be Mrs. Carl Handler and Mrs. Louis Simra, treasurer.

At the regular meeting on Monday afternoon, at Arcadia Hall, Eliza Zhitlovski, this year's Palestinian delegate, will be the principal speaker. Eliza Zhitlovski is a representative of the Mossosha ha-Poaloth, the Women's Council of the Histadruth, and has lived in Palestine for the past 23 years and was one of the first to realize the need for specialized farm training for her sex.

The meeting is open to all. A social hour will follow and refreshments will be served by Mrs. Henry Halperin and her committee.

lations and the recommendation that the testimony be submitted to the District Attorney of New York County for appropriate action and that Hughes be sued by the Corporation Counsel for restitution of city moneys. Hughes has never been molested," the Examiner asserted.

for each playing trick over these three. One small trump is A-T-S for a pre-emptive bid. Bid three No Trump with 2 1/2 Ht in the other three suits and at least two cards of partner's suit.

DO NOT RAISE an opening FOUR of a major or FIVE bid of a minor unless you hold at least six sure winners. If so bid Six.

Bid four or five No Trump when holding the necessary requirements for such a bid. (The four-five No Trump convention will be discussed under slam bidding.)

When there has been an intervening overall over a pre-emptive bid, you may raise with one playing trick (Honor or ruffing). This type of raise is defensive, and should not be given unless the responding hand is of the type which indicates that the opponents can make their contract and your penalty cannot exceed the value of opponent's trick score. (Defensive bids under the rule of Two and Three, to be discussed later).

SOUR GRAPES If we had for a moment thought that the acceptance or rejection of the prize for the best name of Mo Hendel's column was to be the determining factor in its selection, we would have brought to the attention of the judges that we also are on the paid subscription list. THE RIGHT TIME, THE RIGHT WAY AND THE RIGHT PEOPLE FOR A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

ADDRESS OF GOVERNOR THEODORE FRANCIS GREEN

My fellow-citizens:

Do you believe that these proposed constitutional changes do not come at the right time, or in the right way, or from the right people? That is what the representatives of the Republican machine say. It is what their predecessors have said. It is what their successors will say if they are successful in postponing action now. It is the only real reason they give for asking you to vote "No" at the election next Tuesday.

They say "Now is not the right time. This is not the right year." Yet twenty years ago a commission appointed by a Republican Governor, Senate and House to revise our State Constitution recommended a complete revision of that antiquated instrument, and this revision included a provision that in the future every twenty years the question should be submitted to the people as to whether they want a constitutional convention. Their fault-finding goes still further. They say this is a bad time of year to hold it. "It is too cold." You will remember that when a special election was called for last mid-summer, they said that was a bad time to hold it. "It was too hot." If it were called for next November, they would say, "This will be a terrible time to hold it, when people are voting on a lot of other issues, national and State." Let them console themselves with this fact; that after this convention is held, there will be another special election, and that may possibly come at a time when it is neither too cold nor too hot.

They say "This is not the right way." They probably mean that we ought to adopt all the proposed changes as separate amendments. In the first place it is difficult to adopt them as separate amendments, for some of them are closely interrelated. The principal argument however is that it would be impossible to get substantial amendments, like a change in the Senate, adopted by a majority of each house in two successive General Assemblies and then by 3/5ths of the people.

The proposed change in the State Senate is a stumbling block to many people, including some senators, who illogically compare it with the Federal Senate. The latter represents sovereign states, which, by treaty between themselves yielded some of their powers and retained others. But the towns and cities are creatures of the State, which can and often does change their form of government and even their boundaries. The Federal government cannot combine two states into one, or divide one state into two without the consent of those states. The State government does those very things to the towns. Another difference is that the two branches of the Federal Congress are constituted on entirely different bases which affect each other. The Federal Senate is made up of two representatives from each sovereign state, while the Federal House of Representatives is based solely on population. The Rhode Island House, however, is not based solely on population, as otherwise Providence would have a larger representation than it has. As a matter of fact Providence has as a city no representative in either Senate or House. Providence has been split up into 25 districts each of which has a representative, and into 4 districts each of which has a senator, but the city as such has no representative and no senator. On the other hand Rhode Island has not been divided into districts for the Federal Senate. For these reasons the comparison is illogical.

You cannot expect that an amendment making a change in the Senate will be adopted by the Senate, because legislators will not vote away their own powers, though they may submit to the people's taking them away. Furthermore, there is no justification in providing that 3/5ths of the people must approve such an amendment. It is a fundamental American principle, which was based on the Rhode Island principle enunciated by our founders, that a majority of the people should control. A majority of the people in one generation has no power to say that thereafter a change must have the assent of 3/5ths of the people. It might as well say that it must have the assent of 9/10ths. In fact, that is what it does say, when it gives a veto power to the Senate of Rhode Island as at present constituted. This is the principle on which some anti-democratic nations in the world are now based. It is not our American principle. There are many other objections. For example, under our present antiquated constitution, amendments have to be submitted at an April election, but the April election has long since been abolished. Again under our present constitution the clerks have to read proposed amendments to all the voters, but this is no longer physically possible. The point is that it is a practical impossibility to accomplish these reforms by amendments, and I do not believe that even the most rabid Republican platform orator will dare claim the contrary.

Lastly they say "These proposals do not come from the right people", and they make this the excuse for much criticism of the present Democratic administration from Governor down. They make false statements about what has been done and what has been said here in the State House, and they indulge in all sorts of mud-slinging. It is of course a temptation to contradict these statements one by one and show their falsity and assert the truth. This would, however, divert public attention from the main issue. It is obviously their purpose in this campaign to discuss everything possible except this main issue—which is "Shall a constitutional convention be held?" It is better to resist the temptation to reply to their attacks. After the convention is over will be a better time to take up a defense of the party record because then that will be an issue—and it should not be now.

You won't have to vote on March 10th on whether you approve or disapprove what the Democratic administration has done in the State or in the nation. You won't have to vote on whether you approve or disapprove of its policies for the future. You have only to vote on whether you want to have a constitutional convention held or not. You don't even have to vote on whether you approve or disapprove what that convention may do. You will have that opportunity later, as you will have later still the opportunity to vote on the record of the Democratic party. These changes in the constitution such as I have been talking of, if made, will make for better government in this State no matter whether you approve or disapprove of the Democratic party or the Republican party or both. The government will be better not only at the present time, but for all future time, or at least until changed conditions again call for constitutional changes. The man or woman is very short-sighted who judges the value of any specific constitutional change merely on the basis of whether it helps or hurts his party for the time being. Parties change. Yesterday one party was in control. Today it is another. Tomorrow it may be either or neither. Our constitution should provide for any case which may arise.

Some opposition spellbinders talk about the records of the parties and of the present and former state officials. These matters should not affect your decision.

Suppose the Democrats, instead of balancing the budget, had left it unbalanced, as the Republicans did for many years. Suppose they had raised taxes, as the Republicans threatened to do, instead of abolishing the taxes on cities and towns, as was actually done! Suppose the Democrats, contrary to the constitution, had left the Chief Executive shorn of all administrative power and let the Senate continue to exercise it, as was the case under Republican administration! Suppose that they had failed to reorganize the business of the State, as the Republicans, in spite of their many promises, had failed to do! Suppose that they had been guilty of keeping the courts narrowly partisan as the Republicans had kept them! Suppose that the Democrats had let the wards of the State continue to suffer without giving them decent accommodations, as for many years they had been left! Suppose that the young men and women attending the State College had been left without adequate facilities for a proper education, as they had been left! Suppose the Democrats had insisted on the towns bearing the whole burden of unemployment relief, as the Republicans had done, instead of taking over one-half the burden as was done promptly after my inauguration as Governor! Suppose that instead of granting the towns only a little over one-half million dollars, as the Republicans did the last year they were in control, the Democrats had not raised the amount to four and one-half millions, as they are doing this year!

Suppose all these things! What difference do they all make as to the desirability of making changes in the constitution? If the Democrats are given credit for providing voting machines to insure in the future the honest count of the ballots which we have never had in the past; if they have built one of the best airports in the world out of the wreck of an ignorantly planned one; if for the first time they have given free public band and symphony concerts; if they have passed an old age assistance law and are now giving pensions to the aged poor after twelve years of unsuccessful efforts to accomplish this under Republican administrations, what of it? All this has nothing to do with the question of whether changes in our constitution are desirable or not, except to this extent: such beneficent legislation is not possible under our present constitution, unless a most unusual combination of circumstances exists. You don't want to have to wait another hundred or fifty or even twenty-five years before you can get other measures of progressive legislation through a Senate so constituted that a small minority controls it, and that small minority is easily made the tool of a political machine. It makes no difference by what party name you may call that political machine. A political machine really has no policies. Nor have the unscrupulous, unselfish men who through the control of such a machine, have long controlled the legislation and administration of the State. No! I am glad that this question of a constitutional convention comes at a time of year when it may be discussed on its merits apart from other national or state issues. I am sorry, however, that the efforts to keep it non-partisan have, to a great extent, failed. We tried to keep it non-partisan by excluding from the act every reference to political parties or nominations by them. On the ballot will appear no party name and no party symbol. But at the present time in our history, human nature being what it is, it is impossible to exclude partisanship entirely. You, however, as individuals can vote as non-partisans at this election at any rate, and I hope you may do so and consider carefully the advantages to be obtained by reasonable changes in our constitution, changes which most other states have already affected—changes which, as I have shown you, members of the Republican party in this State, as distinguished from the Republican machine, have often advocated, but have never yet succeeded in carrying into effect.

Purim 5696 has another ring than in former years. The carnival spirit is hushed. Even Palestine has cancelled all boisterous official Purim celebrations. Jewry all over the world somehow cannot summon a joyous spirit. Dark clouds over Central European countries, over East European lands and over the Balkans throw their shadows. The danger of a world war is more imminent than ever. No wonder that this Purim will find our people pondering over the past and thinking with a heavy heart of the future.

It is hardly exaggerated to say that notwithstanding the rather dolorous panorama of Jewish life these days Purim as a Jewish holiday will be observed in the synagogues more intensely than ever before. Religious life in this country, if one is to believe the reports from rabbinical sources, is gaining in strength. Good will organizations are contributing much to the synagogal activities. There is undoubtedly a tendency on the part of a large segment of American Jewry to devote more attention and interest to the religious education of our youth.

Purim as a milestone in this Jewish year will stand out just because world Jewry is grimly determined to gather all its strength and resources for constructive assistance to the victims of political, economic and social persecution. There are more fund-raising campaigns in this country than ever before, and the leaders of these campaigns have little doubt that their respective quotas will be attained. Thus Purim celebrated in the spirit of brotherly love will mark this year a special, even if not joyous, occasion for Jewish gatherings all over the world.

DANGER AHEAD

It is not important whether the proposal for a mass exodus of Jews from Poland was injected in a Senate debate by friends or foes of the Jewish people. The essential fact to remember is that the Polish government would welcome the elimination of 1,000,000 Jews from the Polish population. To any one seriously interested in the fate of Diaspora Jewry this news is of great significance. It confirms the fears of Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, who, in an article in the Economic Bulletin of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League, warned that the German exodus plan might influence other governments to accept Jewish mass emigration as a solution to the Jewish problem in their countries.

The only reasonable objection one could have to the Silver point of view is that the German and Polish Jews are not being forcibly deported. They themselves are anxious to leave their respective countries, which hold no promise of economic improvement so far as they are concerned. However, from a political point of view a most dangerous situation can be created if other countries will compete with Germany for priority in an exodus plan. There is really no doubt that the Polish Jewish problem is just as vital to the Jewish people as a whole as the German Jewish problem. Why all Jewish resources should be applied to the solution of the problem in Germany is difficult to answer.

American Jewish leadership will have to chart a most cautious course in regard to the German exodus project. It must not for one moment forget that there are over 3,000,000 Jews in Poland and only 500,000 Jews in Germany. It must not forget that a strong anti-Semitic movement exists in practically every country of Europe except England, France, Italy and a few small neutral countries, and if the cry for an exodus is taken up by these anti-Jewish forces the Jewish problem will defy any solution.

Pro's and Con's on the Election

For years it has been realized that the proposed Constitution is inadequate and that it cannot cope with present problems. This inadequacy has been known for many years as exemplified by the attempts the Republicans made years ago to amend the present Constitution.

These attempts in themselves are evidence that modern requirements make it necessary that our Constitution should be brought up to date. At present dual office holding is permitted. Under the amendments to be advocated this policy would be prohibited. Another case to be considered is that of representation.

An increase in the number of Senators in the larger centres of population would bring about a situation where the will of a majority of the qualified electors of Rhode Island can be made effective when expressed at the polls. Small towns are entitled to one delegate regardless of voting population.

With all these proposed necessary reforms it must be remembered that the present election is merely a vote whether a Constitutional Convention should be held. The actual amendments will be placed before the people for their decision. This fact should be remembered and considered when you go to the polls to vote next Tuesday. Remember, vote YES for the holding of a Constitutional Convention and the delegates in the first column on the ballot.

If the proposed compulsory holiday bills, to be put before the voters of Rhode Island in Tuesday's election, are passed, employers and employees both will be liable to fines of from $200-$500 for working on Columbus Day or New Year's Day. Voters will find two bills on their ballots making these two now legal holidays into "compulsory" holidays on which it become a punishable offense to work. One other state holiday, Armistice Day, carries similar legislative "teeth", the law having been passed a year ago providing penalties for workers or employers who fail to observe the state closing edict.

Opponents of the measure, including various retail trade boards and industrial organizations, have estimated a net loss of over $1,100,000 in payrolls to be suffered by workers throughout the state, the losses falling on piece-work and day-rate operatives. Retailers throughout the state have expressed concern over the depleted purchasing power resulting from the political shrinkage and assert that the bills, if passed, will impose more closing days than in neighboring states.

Voluntary observance of Columbus Day and New Year's Day has varied in different sections of the state and in different industries. Several industrial concerns report that it has been company practice to post notices advising employees that they may remain out of work if they see fit and to inform their foremen of their intentions. Under the proposed legislation, it becomes mandatory to shut up shop, the law covering retail stores, large and small, as well as manufacturing concerns, except those specifically exempt under the law.

REPERTORY PLAYERS WARMLY RECEIVED

"Success Story" Provides Good Vehicle for Players

The Repertory Players present, in Barker Playhouse, "Success Story," a play in three acts, by John Howard Lawson, directed by William E. Smith and cast as follows:

Sarah Glassman...Jenny C. Halprin
Dinah McCabe...Selma S. Newman
Jeffrey Halburton...Leo R. LaPorte
Rufus Sonnenberg...S. H. Workman
Raymond Merritt...A. Blackman
Sol Ginsberg...Gerald L. Bronstein
Marcus Fisher...Jesse Goldstein
Agnes Carter...Annette Kaufman
Mr. Fisher...Simeon Kinaley
Miss Farley...Lillian Greenberg

Mr. Lawson's uncomfortable play is woven around the tireless ambitions of Sol Ginsberg, ably portrayed by Gerald Bronstein, whose unending efforts to get ahead involve all associated with him. His unsatisfied desire for power and money affect his easygoing employer and destroys the ideals that Sarah Glassman, played by Jenny Halprin, has woven about his capable and intelligent being.

In his wild attempts, he disregards the advice and love of Miss Glassman and weds his former employer's mistress whom he coveted only because she was something he couldn't have without money. When she finally succumbs to his promises of stones and jewels that would make her sweat to carry them on a hot day, he continually derides her in reminding her of her previous life.

The murder of Sol Ginsberg by the secretary in the lawyer's office, a method of showing that richness of life is not proportional to one's bankroll.

It was a sordid story but one that typified that mental state of many who crumble in the trials of moneyed success during the boom era of 1928-1930.

Annette Kaufman as Agnes Carter, Sol Ginsberg's wife, gave a convincing performance. Abe Blackman who portrayed Raymond Merritt, the lackadaisical owner of the business which Ginsberg so capably controlled, gave a pleasing interpretation of the part.

And Gerald Bronstein who with Jenny Halprin, had the leading parts, enhanced their previous reputations by their performances. Leo LaPorte and Samuel Workman as secondary characters gave their portrayals a realistic touch.

The entire production was coached by William Smith, assisted by Evelyn Siegal.

THE JEW OF ROME

By LION FEUCHTWANGER

Once again Feuchtwanger has managed to build a bridge across a span of two-thousand years. In "The Jew of Rome," his latest book and a sequel to "Josephus," he has actually accomplished the seeming impossible: We live and breathe, eat and gossip in the Rome and Judea of the year 99 after the destruction of the Temple, so vivid and clear are the pictures that are presented to the reader.

Josephus, the traitorous general of the Jewish army, is now living in peace and comfort in Rome as the historian to the Emperor Vespasian, and an aristocrat of the second nobility. His book "The Jewish War," has been widely acclaimed, he has married the Egyptian beauty after divorcing his Jewish wife Mara, and has a son, Gallus, who is as non-Jewish as any Greek or Latin boy of that period could possibly be. The heartache of the father in not being allowed to make a real Jew of the boy, because of the mother, is beautifully pictured.

The Jew who has written the "Psalm of the Citizen of the World" and has deserted his army and people when they needed him most, in order to preserve the record of their defeat, yet feels wretched and inferior at his inability to hold his son, or to make him understand his language. This struggle between father and son, Jewish husband and non-Jewish wife, who while loving one another cannot possibly speak the same language in matter of ideals and conceptions of life, are among the finest and realistic in the whole book. The political field of the period is fully covered with the usual court intrigues of Vespasian, Titus and Domitian, the brother of Titus, who finally poisons him and gets his throne. The beliefs and superstitions of that period are well described.

It is regrettable that the author does not seem to grasp, or rather does not wish to grasp, the grand role the Rabbi played in that period, for the preservation of the Jewish people and Jewish religion for all time to come. The struggle of the Rabbi of the College of Jabne and the newly formed sect, the Christians or the Minim as they were known at that time, but pictures the desire to do justice to the value of their accomplishments.

Any one in the least familiar with the history of that period and with the sublime sacrificial acts and edicts of the Rabbis played in that period, will feel gratified with Feuchtwanger's view of the matter. As a whole, there are unmistakable evidences of assimilationistic, or at least non-nationalistic tendencies throughout the book. The first wife of Josephus, whom he later remarries after divorcing his Egyptian wife, and her son Simeon-Janiki, who is killed through his father's neglect, are so beautifully and truly pictured, that one feels almost as if one had known them all one's life.

Truly masterful are also the parts of the book describing the attachment between Titus and the Jewish princess Berenice, who finally acknowledges that it is not easy to be a traitor, and who envies those Jewish who remain in the land, even if killed in the strife. The last line of the book, describing the agonizing march of Josephus in the procession to the newly erected Arch of Triumph to the dead Emperor Titus, brings truly the very best in the world's literature.

JEWISH ATHLETES IN PROVIDENCE

14-Year Old Herb Landy Makes the Rounds

Jan Bauer, Providence, R. I., winner of the Miami Biltmore Women's tournament in 1935, was eliminated by Mrs. Greco 1 up in last Thursday afternoon's second round. . . Tough luck Herb Landy, 14-year old, the former Hope star is now playing basketball for the Providence College Freshmen. His position is guard. . . Keep it up, Herb.

Providence College has another Jewish player on its team in Milt Bledien. He is a junior and played shortstop on the baseball team. . . Hope has two Jewish football stars on its coaching staff. Joe Shein former Brown and Steamroller guard is head coach, and his assistant is Irving Katznelson who went to Commercial and Providence College to learn his football.

Morris Fabricant went to Pawtucket and is now one of the best players on the R. I. State basketball team. He was named to the highest scorer in the game against P. C., scoring 6 points. His total for the season is 90 points so far. . . Sherry Kapstein in the All-Scholastic halfback of 1934 is in Brown and you will hear of him when the 1936 football season begins. . . Hope was his high school captain and he was the "spark plug" of the freshman team. He also puts the shot.

While at Hope, Firpo Horowitz was a constant winner in the shot put and will see him continue his winning at Brown University. Count how many times you see his name in the papers this coming spring for winning the shot put. Because of his fine build he played guard on the football team.

Jack Lozow is still in Hope, "Jewish Academy," and was All-Scholastic guard on the football team. He puts the shot and broad jumps on the track team, plays guard on the football team, and plays guard and center on the basketball team. . . There's an athlete for you.

Vick Bernstein is back in Brown and will do his part in making the 1936 football season a success. Brown University has high hopes in him, and I am sure he will not disappoint them and us.

PURIM AT EMANUEL

Rabbi Goldman will take for his subject this evening "Differences Unashamed" in his weekly sermon at Temple Emanuel. . . Tomorrow evening at 5:30 o'clock there will be a Megillah reading. Cocktails at Eight

Shadows of cocktails and liquors painted a varied background for the parties that preceded the Leap Year Frolic sponsored by the Providence Jewish Council . . . the thread of joy wound cheerfully through the apartment of Charlotte Brodsky where a gay and bright crowd toasted the health of Marion Rottenberg, who, although twenty-four years old, was celebrating her sixth birthday . . . just a Leap Year baby.

In and Out the Window

At Jay Fishbein's wine that tingled the nerves prepared a number of guests for the dance that followed . . . and at Selma Zepatos the front door opened constantly to admit lovely girls in strikingly beautiful gowns accompanied by many of our professional men . . . All of which was a grand beginning . . .

High Jinks

The dance proper was held at Wayland Manor where like bright colors of the rainbow as they went through their steps . . . the Spanish custom of flowers in the hair was prevalent . . . and who, by chance, was the charming miss in the black net dress that danced with Dr. Goldberger . . . Benny Lagowitz was there with fiancée Nedra Payton whose white dress, trimmed with fur, offset with colorful effect the flowers in her hair . . .

Black and White

And Murray Abrams whose attention was riveted on a stunning creation in white chiffon . . . Bill Goldberg . . . Marion Soforenko . . . Bill Matarner . . . Dr. Dave Freedman . . . Lizzie Press with Esther Goldsmith, dressed in Copenhagen blue . . . and Muriel Austin, dance chairman, was attractively gowned in a flowered black taffeta which contrasted so agreeably with her fair skin . . . and, pray tell, who modeled that chic silver metallic gown? . . . Esther Millman with the law department of Massachusetts . . . and what carefree jamboree the Gorfines threw as an after-dance liqueur . . .

Two and Two

From music, joy and laughter we slid expectantly into our seat the following evening to listen to the suave, youthful senior senator from Wisconsin as he gave an eager audience a lesson in economics . . . Senator LaFollette with clear voice and staccato gestures, skillfully portrayed our economic ills . . . Starting with the World War he covered the last eight years in a concise manner . . . reiterating that prosperity is not around the corner and that it will never be until we balance the budget of the man in the street . . .

Here and There

With ears cocked we noticed the three Kestelman brothers, Charles, Louis and Max, with their respective wives . . . also Belle Sokolow, Paul and Bill Bergman, Charlie and Mrs. Borod, Ben Irons, and it was Harold Moskoff who popped the first question . . . NEWS AND VIEWS

By Maurice W. Hendel

On page three of the March 4 edition of the Journal there appear two photographs under the title, "Walkers: One group out, the other up." One depicts a group of New York elevator strikers, the other several young ladies cooling their feet after strenuous climbs up stairs. Ironically, upon the same page a Metropolitan hotel ad sings forth the following tune, "Going to New York? Stay at this 32-story, 1200 room skyscraper hotel." What with the service difficult rather tarry at a one floor establishment.

This is a great age we're living in! Civilization rushes ahead bringing uncounted conveniences. Entire communities in an immense edifice. Shut off the electricity! What then! Back to where we started from. Use your feet!

"Glamor Cream"

We never knew that the excretions of alligator glands were beauty aids, until we witnessed Bernhardt's (Berntram) "Success Story." But we are of the opinion that if a jar of that stuff were to remain on our desk for two or three years we'd drive the other tenants out of the building. Yet, the property man forgot to remove the jar of "glamor cream" between the second and third acts. It was in a rather prominent position on Merritt's desk. We noticed its absence in the first act, found it in the second, and actually looked for the boner in the third, and were pleased to discover that we're successful as a fatalist.

Worse Than a Baby-Killer

By JOSEPH SALMARK

Of all the foreign correspondents who have visited Germany during the Hitler regime Westbrook Pegler of the Scripps-Howard newspapers stands out as one of the most upright and fearless commentators. His cables from Garmisch-Partenkirchen scene of the winter Olympic Games, were the only ones that gave a clear picture of the hypocritical attitude of official Germany. Pegler did not mince words in his dispatches, and made no bones about anti-Semitism having merely taken a holiday in the winter Olympics as a political manoeuvre.

To all Jews to receive its visiting committee with out-stretched arms and with a generous contribution.

The Moath Chitim Association is well known for its excellent work for the past 50 years. Its efforts have illuminated many a dark home and many a saddened face has been brightened, for at least the days of Passover. This year, however, it feels itself incapable of coping with the situation without extraordinary efforts and sacrificial spirits on the part of the public.

Passover Necessities Needed

Est every Jew and Jewess bear in mind that upon his or her contribution depends the happiness and well being of a distressed, and suffering family—unless sufficient money is obtained, many Jewish families will remain without matzoh and necessities at all for Passover.

It can be seen that it is impossible for the hard working committee to visit every one in Rhode Island that is desirous of helping some less fortunate family than themselves.

Those whom the committee cannot reach are requested to mail their contributions either to Morris Feinberg, 235 Charles street; Rabbi David Warner, 263 Orms street; or Rabbi H. D. Bachrach, 515 North Main street.

But as strong as were Pegler's cables from Germany, in comparison with his cables dated from Czechoslovakia they sound like the utterances of an apologist. Pegler does not hesitate to call Mr. Hitler a baby-killer in a story in which the correspondent graphically describes the tragic lot of Jewish children in Nazi-land.

"It will be impossible," Pegler says, "for the Nazi Germans of the present time to deny the atrocities which are being perpetrated on the children of the Jews under the orders of Adolf Hitler as a policy of the German government today . . ."

It is absolutely certain that their (Jewish) childhood, the few hours of innocence which are given to all of us and which civilized people try to invest with beauty and joy, has been destroyed by a man with a moustache (fabricated from the moustache of a famous comedian) who has been seriously nominated by some of his followers not for king, not merely for ruler, but for God, the redeemer of the German race. It would be a mistake to call him a baby-killer. You can't torture a dead child!

This Pegler cable should be sent by Jewish organizations in all such people who still insist that Mr. Hitler is a statesman and do not want to realize that he is a criminal.

Orphanage Annual Meeting

Superintendent

"It is rather difficult to portray in so many words the day to day life of our home and our children. Somehow, the very nature and character of The Jewish Orphanage does not lend itself to a formal message, for, after all, the specific activities are but the by-product of a child care philosophy and social policy, which transcends all our work.

Secure in Life

"As we turn the first page in our family album, there vividly unfolds a picture of forty-two children, ranging in age from four to sixteen, living serenely in a spiritual kindergarten, learning to spell God and American ideals with the proper blocks. Children, unafraid and unrepressed, enjoying a sense of security and a feeling of belonging, happily preparing for life and living. Many of these children have been suddenly bereft of fathers and mothers. Many have come from broken homes. Many were products of hardship and want.

Lovely Children

"Another day. A number of children have been admitted in the Orphanage. They seem bewildered, undetermined, unadorned, stranded, and lonely. A twist of faith has deprived them of their parents. They shall now live at The Jewish Orphanage of Rhode Island. They are fussed about, given love, sympathy and understanding, as well as a sense of importance.

"The physician is called to give the children a thorough physical examination. The dentist is called in to give them a dental examination. The psychologist examines them. Their intelligence is appraised. They enter school. They receive religious education. They are given social and recreational training. Some of the children indicate special talents. Each child is individualized. Each personality blooms.

Fun and Music

"Let us turn to another page. We hear music. These children are playing the piano; they are dancing. Cheers and shouts are heard in the gymnasium to the tune of teamwork, sportsmanship, co-operation and fair play.

"Many of these little children who came to the home stranded and lonely are now young men and women. Many of them are fifteen and sixteen years of age. They are beginning to think of leaving the home and assume their stations in life. Some of them want to be secretaries. Some indicate talents for vocations and trades. Their discharge from the home is anticipated. A great deal of thought and planning is given to the home to be selected for them, to their individual abilities and limitations. We continue our supervision. We give them after-care supervision and vocational guidance after they have left the home. The interest of our home continues until these children are adjusted.

26 Years of Care

"All this has been going on for a period of twenty-six years. More than 250 children have left our home and have absorbed the influences of good training. They have learned the lesson of service to mankind and to neighbor. They in turn will some day render service to those who may suddenly become the underprivileged."

QUINTS IN DEBUT AS FILM STARS

Babies Have Real Roles in Zanuck Production

The recipe for a grand hour and a half's screen entertainment, as 20th Century-Fox has prepared it for "The Country Doctor" which comes today to the Majestic Theatre, is one part Dionne Quintuplets, one part Hollywood stars and a stirring, human-interest story that blends all the elements of drama, comedy, pathos and romance.

Introducing the most famous babies in the world in their first real acting roles, "The Country Doctor" is a warmly sympathetic story of a physician who combats disease and soothes pain for the inhabitants of a Canadian outpost.

Jean Hersholt, beloved character star, heads the sterling supporting cast of "The Country Doctor," which features June Lang and debonair Michael Whalen in the romantic leads.

The second feature, "Tango," was adapted for the screen by Arthur T. Horman from the novel of the same name by Vida Hurst. Prominently featured in its large cast are Marian Nixon, Chick Chandler, Matty Kemp, Marie Prevost, Warren Hymer, Herman Bing, Franklyn Pangborn, George Meeker, Virginia Howell, Barbara Bedford, Jane Keckley, Richard Carlisle, and Robert Collins, a dancer and member of the famous Wanda and Collins dance team. The new film was directed by Phil Rosen and produced by Maury M. Cohen. Besides its dramatic sequences, it also offers several musical interludes.

"Murder of Dr. Harrigan" Opens at Fay's Today

"The Murder of Dr. Harrigan," First National's new Cine Club mystery thriller, opens at Fay's Theatre today with Kay Linaker, Ricardo Cortez and Mary Astor in the featured roles.

Based on the story by Mignon G. Eberhart, famous author of mystery dramas, the picture is said to carry a most baffling, as well as most exciting plot in which one man is spirited away from an operating room of a hospital without leaving a trace, the attending surgeon is strangely slain, his body being found in an elevator with a surgical knife in the chest, and three women are attacked and choked by an unrecognized person.

The murder plot is tied up with a new anaesthetic which is believed to be worth a fortune, and the formula for which the head of a big drug company steals from the various physicians and chemists who have worked on it.

This is mixed up with a scandalous flirtation between the wife of the doctor who is eventually slain, and a gigolo.

There is hilarious comedy also, centering around a merry mix-up in the hospital between a nervous patient and an inept nurse, roles played by Don Barclay and Johnny Arthur.

WHY GO ON Paying Interest On A Mortgage That Never Grows Less?

It's a wrench at any income to pay off a big lump sum on a home mortgage. But why go on year after year, paying interest on an obligation that is never reduced?

Why not include in your budget one reasonable and properly proportioned monthly payment, that will not only take care of the interest charge, but will also gradually reduce the face of the mortgage?

On this plan, you really make progress! The part of each payment required for interest is less and less, and the share devoted to discharging the mortgage is larger and larger . . . until finally, at the end of 11½ years, on our regular plan, it is completely wiped out.

We'll be glad to tell you more about this plan for debt-free home ownership that has helped so many people.
