Miss Wurzburger charged that the paper's last issue contained a story alleging that she had been expelled from Hunter College in 1934 for Communist activities, and that her mother was a Jewess and a secret agent of the Congressional Committee to Investigate Un-American Activities. He had been for many years active in educational work among Jewish children in Germany, Poland and Lithuania. He was once head of a Jewish high school in Leipzig which trained children in the Hebrew tradition from kindergarten to college.

A graduate of the Hildesheim Rabbinical Seminary in Berlin, Dr. Karlbach was well-known throughout Eastern Europe as a prominent Jewish scholar. He was a leading figure in the extreme Orthodox branch of the Jewish community, the Agudath Israel. Following the advent of the Hitler regime in Germany, Dr. Karlbach emigrated from Germany to Palestine, where he lived until his death.

POLICE BAN PARADE; AVERT BLOODSHED

Commissioner Disregards Pleas of Five Mayors

London (WNS)—Deeply stirred by the narrow avoidance of what would have been England's bloodiest riot had not a huge mass demonstration of Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascist black-shirt legions through the crowded Jewish districts of London's East End been prohibited by the police at the last moment, British public and official opinion are looking to Parliament and the Cabinet to take immediate measures to put an end to Fascist violence and intimidation.

Although the parade was called off, several hundred persons were injured, many seriously, and about 80 arrested when a militant throng of 100,000 anti-Fascists jammed every street in the East End, prepared to block the Fascists' march if the police permitted it.

Warned for weeks of impending trouble, the Commissioner of Police and the Home Office had ignored the pleas of the mayors of the five East End boroughs to ban the demonstration, which was to have passed through Whitechapel, Stepney and Aldgate, all heavily populated Jewish areas.

A warning by George Lansbury, Labor leader, a petition signed by 100,000 citizens and the pleas of Jewish organizations also went unheeded. The government, however, cancelled all police leaves and surrounded the area with 5,000 hobbies.

Violence appeared unavoidable when the assembled Fascists found their route of march blocked by anti-Fascists. Long before the time set for the parade the anti-Fascists crowded the line of march, determined not to permit the Fascist demonstration.

All the injuries were suffered when the anti-Fascists resisted police attempts to disperse them. A brick smashed the windshield of Mosley's car and narrowly missed hitting him.

The Career of Jesse Straus Merchant Prince, Diplomat

By Bernard Postal

A distinguished career closed the other day with the death of Jesse Isidor Straus, who until a few weeks ago was the American Ambassador to France. Mr. Postal here traces for us the life of this outstanding merchant and diplomat who, as the scion of one of America's most prominent Jewish families, played so noble a part in the life of our nation.—The Editor.

The passing of Jesse Isidor Straus ends another chapter in the saga of the Straus family in America. Virtually every member of this family, which has given so many distinguished names to America and to American Jewry, has made history. The founder of the family, Lazarus Straus, came to this country in the 1840's with the vanguard of German refugees from the reaction to the reform movement. Lazarus was the father of Isidor, Nathan and Oscar Straus, all of whom were intimately identified with American and Jewish life for two generations.

Nathan was one of the greatest philanthropists of all time. Oscar was an eminent figure in public affairs and the first Jew in the United States Cabinet. Isidor, father of Jesse, was an outstanding merchant and communal leader. But Jesse Isidor Straus, who always insisted on having his name written out in full as a tribute to his father, who went down on the Titanic, combined in himself the genius and the talents of his famous uncles and his father. He was not only a successful merchant but an able diplomat and public servant as well as a communal figure of broad interests.

Clerked First

Born in New York City in 1872, Straus' entire career was identified with the great metropolis. He was educated at Sachs Preparatory School, which also gave to New York Governor Herbert H. Lehman, and at Harvard, from which he was graduated in 1893. His first job was as a clerk with the Hanover National Bank, but he soon turned to commerce, becoming a salesman in Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn department store. His grandfather, Lazarus, was one of the owners of that firm and also of R. H. Macy & Company. When he was 24 he joined R. H. Macy & Co. and learned the business from the ground up under the tutelage of his father.

In 1912, when Isidor Straus was drowned on the Titanic's maiden voyage, Jesse Straus succeeded him as president of the establishment which was to become under his direction the world's largest department store. Endowed with a flair for unique and successful merchandising methods, Straus was credited with the unprecedented experiments which made R. H. Macy a household name. Together with his brothers, Herbert, who died three years ago, and Percy, Jesse Straus expanded the business until in 1929 its gross annual sales hit the $100,000,000 mark.

Not content merely with making R. H. Macy an international landmark, Straus labored long to raise the standards of retail business in the United States. He was widely recognized as an expert on merchandising problems and among department store executives his ideas and opinions were eagerly sought. He served a term as president of the National Dry Goods Association in 1922 and through this position became one of the best-known business men in the country.

Harvard Patron

He was never active in public life until 1931. Prior to that he devoted himself almost exclusively to his business and to philanthropy. He was a generous patron of Harvard, having contributed $300,000 to a dormitory named for his father and also to the Harvard Business School. For many years he was an overseer of Harvard College, one of the four Jews to have held this office. He also gave large sums to New York University and to various Jewish religious and charitable institutions.

Five years ago he made his bow in public life when Governor Roosevelt appointed him chairman of the New York State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration. To this office he brought unusual executive ability and a broad grasp of social problems. When he resigned there was universal regret. Later he became chairman of the Citizens' Committee on the Unemployment Relief Bond Issue.

It was in 1932 that he became a real factor in politics as organizer and president of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League, an organization which rallied business men to the support of Roosevelt's presidential candidacy. A straw vote which he conducted among business men throughout the country was one of the first auguries of the ultimate nomination and election of Mr. Roosevelt.

When the latter won the nomination, Straus was one of his strongest supporters. After the election he was widely mentioned for a place in the Cabinet, political prognosticators saying that he would become Secretary of Commerce, a post once held by his uncle, Oscar Straus.

Rallied Business Men

During the crisis of the days immediately following the inauguration of President Roosevelt in 1933, Straus rallied business men by his cool and sane action. In language newspaper advertisements he sought to prevent financial alarm and chaos by proclaiming that he, one of the nation's key merchants, had confidence. His advertisements said: "I trust my government. I trust our banks. I do not expect the impossible. I shall do nothing hysterical. If it is normal to carry little cash in my pocket when there is plenty to go around, I shall carry little now. I will not stampede. I will not lose nerve. I will keep my head."

Appointed Ambassador

It was shortly after this that he was appointed United States Ambassador to France. Straus was not the first Jewish ambassador or minister from this country but he was the first of his race to represent this country in a major European power. Veteran diplomats were none too pleased at this appointment. The record of other merchants who had been given diplomatic posts was far from encouraging.

But Straus fooled them. He turned out to be one of the best spokesmen the United States had ever had in Paris. Comine to his post at a time of political and economic change, he succeeded in winning the friendship of France and in bringing about better understanding between that country and his own. He was credited with the successful consummation of the Franco-American reciprocal trade treaty. Throughout the years he was in Paris he was suffering from a serious illness. Rumors were insistent that he would resign, but he stuck to his post and gave it up only when his physicians warned that he was imperiling his life.

Warsaw (WNS)—The Jewish Pen Club of Warsaw is boycotting Sholom Asch, world-famous Yiddish novelist and playwright. On his return from Palestine, Asch found the local Yiddish writers incensed against him because of his articles and speeches in Palestine in which he is said to have declared that there was no need to expand the Yiddish language in the Jewish Homeland.

Jury Convicts Distributor

of Anti-Jewish Leaflets

Los Angeles (WNS)—A municipal court jury here has convicted Henry Allen of Pasadena, a member of the anti-Semitic Silver Shirts, on a charge of violating the city handbill ordinance. Allen, an unemployed engineer, was tried in Municipal Judge Leo Aggeler's court for circulating anti-Jewish and inflammatory literature on a downtown street corner in Los Angeles.

He was arrested on the charge of Herman Braverman and Ben Shapiro, to whom he handed one of the circulars; the prosecutor in the case was Assistant U. S. Attorney McFarland. The circulars, printed in Chicago and bearing also an East Pasadena post office box number, were reported to have contained derogatory statements about President Roosevelt and the "Jew Deal," and bore the imprint of the American White Guard, an anti-Semitic and semi-Fascist organization. Allen is to be sentenced on October 13th.

This set-back follows another previously administered to Edmondson by Judge William Allen, who denied a motion for an inspection of the minutes of the grand jury which indicted Edmondson.

Jewish Doctors Wanted

The reported willingness of Germany to take back two thousand of her self-exiled Jewish physicians on condition that they agree to donate their services to Hitler's army is hardly a cause for jubilation. It is, indeed, on a par with the practise of pressing medically trained prisoners-of-war into the service of the opposing forces.

The only benefit any refugee Jewish physician could hope to gain from returning to Germany under this condition is that there his status would no longer be that of a refugee dependent upon outside assistance in a strange country where economic and professional conditions prevent him from taking his proper place in the national life.

A purely physical benefit, for morally there would seem to be little choice between dependence on charity and being helpful to the Nazis in their self-appointed task of building up a strong army dedicated to the task of Nazifying the world.

The only consolation, indeed, that German Jews can conceivably find in this development is that at last the Nazis have come to recognize that non-Aryans, sub-human though they be, make good doctors—and excellent cannon-fodder.

"Jewish Disabilities"

(From a speech delivered by Thomas Babington Macaulay in the English House of Commons, April 17, 1883.)

The honorable Member for Oldham tells us that the Jews are naturally a mean race, a sordid race, a money-getting race; that they are averse to all honorable callings; that they neither sow nor reap; that they neither flock nor herd; that usury is the only pursuit for which they are fit; that they are destitute of all elevated and amiable sentiments.

Such, Sir, has in every age been the reasoning of bigots. They never fail to plead in justification of persecution the vices which persecution has engendered.

England has been to the Jews less than half a country; and we revile them because they do not feel for England more than a half patriotism. We treat them as slaves and wonder that they do not regard us as brethren. We drive them to mean occupations, and then reproach them for not embracing honorable professions. We long forbade them to possess land, and we complain that they chiefly occupy themselves in trade. We shut them out from all the paths of ambition; and then we despise them for taking refuge in avarice.

During many ages we have in all our dealings with them abused our immense superiority of force; and then we are disgusted because they have recourse to that cunning which is the natural and universal defense of the weak against the violence of the strong.

But were they always a mere money-changing, money-getting, money-hoarding race? Nobody knows better than my honorable friend the Member of the University of Oxford that there is nothing in their national character which warrants them for the highest duties of citizens.

He knows that, in the infancy of civilization, when our island was as savage as New Guinea, when letters and arts were still unknown to Athens, when scarcely a hatched bird stood on what was afterwards the site of Rome, this condemned people had their fenced cities and cedar palaces, their splendid Temple, their fleets of merchant ships, their schools of sacred learning, their great statesmen and soldiers, their natural philosophers, their historians and their poets.

What nation ever contended more manfully against overwhelming odds for its independence and religion?

What nation ever, in its last agonies, gave such signal proofs of what may be accomplished by a brave despair?

And if, in the course of many centuries, the oppressed descendants of warriors and sages have degenerated from the qualities of their fathers, if, while excluded from the blessings of law, and bowed down under the yoke of slavery, they have contracted some of the vices of outlaws and of slaves, shall we consider this as matter of reproach to them? Shall we not rather consider it as a matter of shame and remorse to ourselves?

Let us do justice to them. Let it open to them the door of the House of Commons. Let us open to them every career in which ability and energy can be displayed. Till we have done this, let us not presume to say that there is no genius among the countrymen of Israhel, no heroism among the descendants of the Maccabees.

Sir, in supporting the motion of my honorable friend, I am, I firmly believe, supporting the honor and the interests of the Christian religion. I should think that I insulted that religion if I said that it cannot stand unaided by intolerant laws.

Without such laws it was established, and without such laws it may be maintained. It triumphed over the superstitions of the most refined and of the most savage nations, over the graceful mythology of Greece and the bloody idolatry of the northern forests. It prevailed over the power and policy of the Roman empire. It tamed the barbarians by whom that empire was overthrown.

But all these victories were gained not by the help of intolerance, but in spite of the opposition of intolerance. The whole history of Christianity proves that she has little need to fear from persecution as a foe, but much to fear from persecution as an ally.

May she long continue to bless our country with her benignant influence, strong in her sublime philosophy, strong in her spotless morality, strong in those internal and external evidences to which the most powerful and comprehensive of human intellects have yielded assent, the last solace of those who have outlived every earthly hope, the last restraint of those who are raised above every earthly fear!

HAIL TOSCANINI'S ANTI-NAZI STAND

New York (WNS)—Hailing the recent refusal of Arturo Toscanini, world-famous conductor, to permit any concerts directed by him at the Salzburg Festival in Austria to be broadcast to Germany, 76 members of the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra and 900 other American musicians sent him an open letter of appreciation in the form of an engraved scroll.

The letter reads as follows: "We, the undersigned musicians, including members of all the important musical organizations in New York, many of whom have had the honor and privilege of playing under your direction, wish to thank you wholeheartedly for your recent stand against broadcasting your superb music to Nazi Germany as a protest against the Hitler government's barbarous persecution of all that is genuine in art and culture. You have expressed the feelings of musicians all over the world."

Archaeological Group is Attacked by Arabs

Jerusalem (WNS-Palestine Agency)—The archaeological expedition headed by Prof. John Garstang, which is continuing its explorations into the subsoil of Jericho and vicinity, was attacked by a band of marauding Arabs who razed to the ground three huts belonging to the party.

Prof. Garstang, who was formerly director of antiquities in the Palestine Government, heads the expedition supported by the Louvre Museum, the university museums of Oxford, Cambridge and Birmingham and the City Museum of Liverpool. The Arab attack on Prof. Garstang's working quarters near Jericho aroused comment in view of the firm support which the noted archaeologist has given to the Arab cause in the past six months of the disorders in the Holy Land.

Reports from Switzerland indicate that Titulescu was poisoned by his political enemies.

Believes Hollywood Men More Handsome off Screen Than On

"Hollywood men are even handsomer off the screen than on," says Miss Fannie Kulak, who has recently returned from a visit to the film center. Miss Kulak was the winner of a contest held by the Paykottok Boys' Club and went to Hollywood as the guest of the 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation and Warner Bros. studios.

"What are the film stars really like? Whom did you meet? Where did you go?" These are only a few of the questions flung at Miss Kulak, who threw her hands up in mock dismay. "The film stars I met," she said, "were charming people. Most of them are as different from the parts they play as they can be. Take Jack LaRue, for example, who is usually seen in chilling gangster roles. He is not at all like that. He has a warm, friendly personality. So has Lionel Stander, who is far more intelligent and witty off the screen than the parts he plays."

Miss Kulak was especially impressed by the friendly atmosphere of the film colony. She visited at the home of the lovely Lois January, star of Universal pictures.

Dick Powell, Warner Bros. star, sent tickets for the Hollywood Hotel broadcast along with a note welcoming Miss Kulak to California, a very nice gesture from a young man in the throes of wedding preparations.

Although Hollywood is a style center of America, Miss Kulak found that except for such places as the famous Trocadero Cafe or the Coconut Grove, where filmland goes to play in style, one generally sees the stars, male and female, wearing slacks and sweaters. At the polo games, at the Brown Derby, by the studio restaurants, even at night clubs, informality is the keynote.

"What about the movie studios?" we wanted to know.

"They are miniature cities and harder to penetrate than Gibraltar. Visitors are not permitted on the sets as a rule because the slightest noise not written into the script might cause a very expensive re-take. At the Fox studios I saw Shirley Temple who was just back from her vacation. # Reveals True Status By Speech before Nazis

New York (WNS)—What was tantamount to an admission that the American team that went to the Berlin Olympic Games over the protest of large sections of American public opinion was financed in considerable measure by funds obtained from pro-Nazi and German-American sources was made by Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee and leader of the fight for American participation in the Berlin games, in a pro-Nazi speech at the German Day celebration in Madison Square Garden here.

Cheered by 20,000 gathered under the auspices of the German-American Bund, successor of the Friends of the New Germany, Mr. Brundage said that "thanks to the support of you people of German descent in America we were able to get our Olympic team abroad. The question then was whether a vociferous minority, highly organized and highly financed, could impose its will on 120,000 people."

Receives Ovation

DEPLORES STATE OF JEWISH EDUCATION

Students Do Not Remain in Jewish Schools

New York (WNS)—The "thin veneer" of the Jewish education which children in the United States are receiving "hardly augurs well for the quality of our Jewish life in the future," it was declared by Dr. Jacob S. Golub, president of the National Council for Jewish Education and executive director of Young Judea, in a statement issued in connection with National Jewish Education Week, which will be observed from October 10th to 16th.

One of the major problems of Jewish education in this country, Dr. Golub said, is the fact that while children come to Jewish schools "they do not remain." He pointed out that of all Jewish children between the ages of 6 and 16 only 25 per cent are found in Jewish schools, but of all Jewish children between 10 and 13 between 60 and 85 per cent are enrolled.

This, he said, indicates that "not enrollment is the greatest problem of the Jewish schools, but plugging the enormous leak that wastes the schools' best efforts."

Speaking of the cost of Jewish education, and deploring the "too easy analogy of the free public school," Dr. Golub declared: "Because we demand free schooling we often get it, but with disastrous results. Temples and synagogues are forced to provide free schools, but in order to do so they are obliged to cheapen Jewish education; they must resort to unlicensed teachers, to poor and inadequate supervision and, above all, to a reduced time schedule."

The next event on the Sisterhood schedule is the cake sale, which will be held at the Outlet on October 15, with Mrs. Joseph Fowler in charge. The annual Temple dinner dance was announced for November 17, with Mrs. Anna Goldenberg in charge of arrangements, and Mrs. B. Kane as co-chairman.

A Daughterhood is being organized for work in conjunction with the Sisterhood. Approximately twenty young women have responded to a call by Eve Taubenbaum to organize for this purpose.

ARAB KINGS ASK END OF VIOLENCE

Appeal for Reliance on British Good-Will

Jerusalem (WNS)—The Arab sovereigns of the Near and Middle East have appealed to the Arabs of Palestine to end their general strike and campaign of violence, now in its 25th week, and to rely upon the "good will" of the British government, it is disclosed by the evening edition of Hadashoth Aharonoth, Hebrew daily, which publishes the text of the appeal, which it declares it received from a reliable Arab source.

The appeal, issued by the rulers of Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Yemen and Transjordan, and which has been the subject of negotiations for many weeks, expresses sorrow at the violence and continued bloodshed in Palestine.

Asking the Arabs of Palestine to put an end to violence to obtain their objective, the Arab rulers jointly pledge to help the Palestine Arabs to attain justice in the future. The appeal asks the Arab revolution to rely upon "Great Britain's good will and upon the British government, which will faithfully execute her obligations to the Arab people."

It is generally believed that the proclamation of martial law has been delayed in order that this appeal might be broadcast as the best means for curbing the disorders. Sources close to the Arab Higher Committee predict that when this unusual document, displaying the united front of the Arab rulers, is issued the Palestine Arabs will call off their general strike.

CONSIDER BAN ON FASCIST ACTIVITIES

British Cabinet Called Into Emergency Session

London (WNS) — Enraged by the last-minute action of the police in banning a monster Fascist demonstration through the heart of London's Jewish quarter, a gang of 50 anti-Semitic Fascists raided the Jewish district, smashing windows in shops. Several hours earlier the police had dispersed a similar gang.

As an aftermath of the rioting and the previous disturbance resulting from the ban on the demonstration of Sir Oswald Masley's Black Shirts, the British Cabinet was called into emergency session to consider outlawing all political parades and possibly prohibit the wearing of uniforms by private organizations.

The annual conference of the British Labor Party at Edinburgh has gone on record as demanding an immediate investigation of Fascism in England, and the Laborite Daily Herald blames the riots on Home Minister Sir John Simon, who for days refused to heed pleas to ban the Fascist demonstration.

Brown and Harvard Clash Tomorrow at Cambridge

Brown and Harvard meet in the initial major-game test for both teams at Cambridge tomorrow with the odds heavily arrayed in favor of the Harvard-coached eleven. The game will be the 39th in a series that dates back 43 years to 1893, and is one of the oldest rivalries in college football.

"Fuss" McLaughry is still driving his inexperienced Brown squad in an unrelenting quest for the best available men for the 11 positions. After two full weeks of holding one team together, he injected a mid-week shift into his unit that sent four regulars to the eleven. And Monday promises to bring still further shifting as the Bruin seeks to speed the preparation for the Crimson encounter.

At the moment, Victor Petrovic and George Larkovich have the call on the ends, El Battles and Vernon Lebaubin, tackles; Nick Carlini and Gale Wisnibach, guards; Floyd Hinkley, center; Irving Ball, quarterback; Larry Atwell and Bob Love, halfbacks, and Captain Warren Ostergard, fullback.
