Melzer Named Sunday School Principal

Appointment of William Melzer as principal of the Jewish Community Center's Sunday School has been announced by Raymond Franks, president of the Center. Melzer took over his new duties a few weeks ago following the resignation of Charles M. Browdy, acting principal.

The new principal, who conducted junior congregational High Holiday services at the Sons of Abraham Synagogue, formerly

Woonsocket Zionists Elect M. Shoham

Morris Shoham was elected and installed as president of the Woonsocket Zionist District at a meeting held last Wednesday in Woonsocket. Morton Darman, installing officer, also inducted the following: Dr. Robert Sadwin, vice-president; Lewis Z. Levine, treasurer; Lester Macktez, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jason Levine, recording secretary and Mrs. Maximilian Gottlieb, financial secretary.

GJC Bristol Drive To Be Held Sunday

Due to unforeseen circumstances, the Bristol area solicitation for funds for the General Jewish Committee's 1948 campaign has been postponed from October 24 to this Sunday morning, October 31. The committee representing the Bristol area consists of Alter Boyman, Raymond Makowsky, Ira Stone and Louis Levy.

Draft 3-Point Program for Israel

PARIS—As U. S. spokesmen turned away all questions on the Truman-Dewey statements on Palestine with "no comment," a program was revealed which Israeli supporters will seek to get through this session of the UN General Assembly to replace the controversial Bernadotte proposals.

Behind this program stand not only the Israeli delegation but also, it is reported, such veteran supporters of the original UN partition plan as Australia, Guatemala and probably Uruguay and Venezuela in addition to the Slav states.

In substance the program calls for the introduction at the best tactical moment of a resolution containing these three points:

Recognition of Israel as a sovereign independent state thus clearing the way for Security Council action to recommend admission to the United Nations.

A request to the Arab states for the immediate withdrawal of all armed forces beyond the borders of Palestine.

An appeal to both Arabs and Jews to sit down together and work out terms for a permanent peace under the auspices of a UN "good 'offices" commission.

Bunche's Record Indicates Hostility

PARIS—An analysis of the activities of Dr. Ralph Bunche in his first five weeks as United Nations provisional mediator for Palestine this week clearly underscored a definite and growing hostility to the Jewish State.

The record indicated that in all but a few truce orders to the Israeli and the Arabs, the Arabs have been able to count consistently on having Bunche overlook their violations. At the most, the Israeli have been able to count only on being placed on the same legal plane as their Arab attackers.

To Try Stern Leader as Terrorist

TEL AVIV, Israel — Nathan Friedman-Yellin, commander of the outlawed Stern group, and M. Schmulevitz, his top military aide, were formally charged this week with being leaders of a terrorist organization.

They were informed of the charges at an undisclosed place of detention and face a maximum penalty of 20 years if convicted.

The two men were seized in the Israeli Government's round-up of Sternists in its still unsuccessful hunt for the killers of Count Folke Bernadotte.

Advertisers, Printers To Meet Tonight

The Advertisers and Printers Division of the General Jewish Committee's 1948 campaign swings into action tonight with a fund-raising meeting at the home of its chairman, Jules P. Goldsmith.

All members of the advertising, printing and stationers' professions have been extended an invitation to attend the affair, which will be in the nature of an informal get-together, with entertainment following the business of the meeting.

Myer Cooper and Walter Rutman, co-chairmen of the division, joined with Goldsmith in urging all trade members to be present. Goldsmith pointed out that "absentees will be solicited by the group anyway. So, the more mem-

Those Not Yet Solicited Are Requested to Wait for Workers

Even the possibility of a rainy day on Sunday, October 31, failed to dampen the enthusiasm of more than 400 volunteer workers for the whirlwind community-wide "D"-Day solicitation on that date.

Breakfast Rally Sunday

With final plans all completed, the workers were awaiting only the last-minute instructions to be given at the breakfast rally, slated for 9 o'clock at the Narragansett Hotel, before setting forth for the mass canvass.

The solicitation, which will be made only of previously unsolicited prospective donors to the 1948 General Jewish Committee fund-raising campaign, is expected to aid considerably in pushing the local agency's total up toward the final goal of $1,350,000 set last June.

A final plea for all unsolicited residents of greater Providence to remain at home next Sunday until they have been contacted by volunteer workers was sounded this week by officials of the GJC.

Alvin A. Sopkin, 1948 campaign chairman, Archibald Silverman, GJC president, and Merrill Hassenfeld, "D"-Day chairman, joined in issuing this statement:

Opportunity to Help

"We know that the Jewish people of Providence will co-operate wholeheartedly in this special one-day campaign. This is our opportunity to share fully in building the Destiny which now awaits the Jewish people after years of wandering and oppression.

"We must determine to give unstintingly and sacrificially, so that the 10,000 refugees who are arriving in Israel each month will find adequate provision for their care and rehabilitation. We must set new standards of generosity so that the Jewish people of Europe and North Africa—as well as those who come as immigrants to our own country—will find a new life dignified by peace and security."

Meanwhile, Joseph W. Ress, general chairman of the Trades and Industry Division of the GJC, of which the Miscellaneous Trades

Truman Pledges Support of Israel

President Harry S. Truman this week renewed his endorsement of the original United Nations plan for the partition of Palestine and inferred that de jure recognition of Israel soon would be given.

In a statement made over the weekend, Truman pledged his full recognition of the Jewish State and announced that de jure status would be granted to Israel as soon as a permanent government is elected. December 15 is the date set for the election.

The President also said that

Dewey Backs GOP Plank on Palestine

Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, pledged his continued support of the State of Israel in a statement made earlier this week.

In an exchange of telegrams with Dean Alfange, chairman of the American Christian Palestine Committee of New York, made public by Walter Adler, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Republican State Central Committee of Rhode Island, Dewey recalled his previous approval of the majority report of the UN Special Committee recommending a partition of Palestine and called attention to his pledge to support the GOP platform, which, he said, "certainly included the Palestine plank".

"I have always felt," Dewey

YAD Plans "Salute to Israel" Thursday

A Salute to Israel Rally will be held next Thursday evening, November 4, at 8 o'clock in Churchill House, 155 Angell Street, it was announced this week. Guest speaker of the evening will be Hugh McDonald, Irish-American veteran of Haganah.

The rally, sponsored by the Young Adults Division of the General Jewish Committee, is preliminary to the one-day drive of the YAD to be held on Sunday, November 7. Sumner Halsband of East Greenwich will head the entertainment of the week.

Workers are requested to call the headquarters in the Strand Building.

Sullivan and his home, 11 Sargent Street, Boston.

Division is a special unit, pointed out that all donors should take into consideration that their gifts may be paid in installments over a period of several months, if necessary.

"To those who have not yet contributed to this year's historical drive," he said, "it must not be forgotten that we have one day to pledge—but months to pay. Please bear this in mind in making your pledges—and increase your gift accordingly!"

In a radio broadcast last Sunday, Sopkin, Ress, Hassenfeld, and Nathan Samors, co-chairman of the "D"-Day campaign, explained how the name of the special solicitation was arrived at.

"We selected that name because, on that day, we will be helping to build the Destiny of the Jewish people. D stands for Destiny, yes, but it also stands for Deliverance —for we must deliver the Jews of the world from homelessness and despair. D also stands for Destination Israel—for that is the haven to which Jewish refugees look for security. And D, too, stands for Dignity—for it is a dignified future that we must build for the Jewish people after years of humiliation and pain!"

In addition to Samors, Bertram L. Bernhardt, Archie Fain and Bernard Goodman are serving as co-chairmen of Sunday's canvass.

Melzer has been active for several years in Zionist affairs. A former Young Judaea youth leader, he has served as president of the Young Judaea youth leaders council of Providence and as vice-president of the regional Young Judaean leaders council. He is New England representative to the National Young Judaea committee and director of Young Judaea activities in this state.

A delegate to the Masada National Convention, Melzer served last year as national Young Judaea convention chairman and was chairman of the cultural committee of Providence Masada. He is also a member of the educational staff of various Zionist camps and attended the Brandeis Camp Institute.

Heinrich Schalit

After five years in Providence, Heinrich Schalit has accepted an invitation to take up his residence and musical work in Denver, Colorado. Mr. Schalit is one of a small company of gifted composers in the Jewish world. The aim of this small but valiant group is that neither light opera nor alien tunes but native Jewish tradition provide the inspiration for the Song of the Synagogue. Whatever obstacles this group may encounter, theirs is the song of the future. Thus Mr. Schalit's compositions even now hold an honorable place in the liturgy of synagogues throughout the world.

In the five years that Mr. Schalit served as organist and choir director of this congregation, the music in Beth-El had a glory and a distinction which it never had before. Mr. Schalit leaves a gap which will be hard to fill.

We trust that Mr. Schalit will be happy and successful in his new home, and that he, Mrs. Schalit and their children will enjoy good health and many years in the bracing air and the wonder world of the Rocky Mountains.

RABBI WILLIAM G. BRAUDE

Succoth

After the more serious Holy Days of Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, Judaism, as it were, rewards its adherents with the more joyful holiday of Succoth. Originally Succoth was an agricultural festival and we observe it today very much as a reminiscence of the times when the Jew was a tiller of the soil. The Jew even brought his farm symbolically into the synagogue with his esrog and lulav, with which he used to chant his thankfulness to God.

Today, the festival takes on more of its ancient significance as Israel again takes its place as a nation among the nations. Once more Israel is a tiller of its soil, living the normal life of a people. In the new Israel, Succoth thus undergoes a revivifying experience.

It is possible that the newer forms, or at least the new spirit, with which Succoth was observed in the new Israel will in time also influence our own observance of the holiday. In any event, Succoth is a very welcome holiday. It is a zman simchosenu, a time of joy—and the world has need of joy.

Community Trends

The question of whether leaders of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds should be given the opportunity to exercise greater influence on the planning and the work of national Jewish agencies is now gradually becoming a major issue in American life. It will come very strongly to the forefront early next year.

The Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds believes that the time when welfare funds were merely fund-raising and allocating bodies is over. The Council feels that the communities are under an obligation "to go beyond raising and allocating dollars." Leaders of the Council insist that the communities must share responsibility also for how well and how effectively these dollars are spent.

Their arguments, as outlined by Philip Bernstein, Associate Director of the Council, run approximately as follows. The services of the national agencies are financed and made possible by the central community organizations The national agencies, therefore, must be responsive and responsible to the Jewish communities, as crystallized through their central organizations. This means that a working partnership must be established of the national agencies and the communities in the determination of policies and programs. It means a cooperative effort by the national agencies and the communities to work out jointly the new type of national organizational structures needed to make possible a genuine operating partnership. The national agencies are then urged by the Council to make possible the participation of community leaders "on a meaningful and influential level."

The Council emphasizes that the question is not one of seeking selfish control for selfish purposes, but a common concern by the national agencies and community organizations, aimed at a better service.

"One Man's Opinion"

Brandeis University

By BERNARD SEGAL

Across the hundred acre campus of Brandeis University, the students of the "Pilot class" tread the virgin paths between dormitories and halls of study. Within the halls, bells mark the beginning and the end of class and laboratory periods. Bunsen burners are flickering on the laboratory benches, and new text books are being broken-in in reading rooms. For all we know, quizzes have already been given, papers corrected, marks distributed, and one hundred and twenty Freshman hearts are even now filling up with pride of achievement or with sorrow of disappointments.

Typical University

Outwardly, Brandeis is a typical American University, perched on a picturesque campus on the outskirts of Waltham, Mass., overlooking the Charles River. To the casual observer, Brandeis is just the newest of the thirty odd colleges and universities surrounding the city of Boston within a radius of thirty miles. In the pattern of American education, the new University in a little town of New England is merely one among several hundred institutions of higher learning in these United States.

But to those who were present at the official opening of Brandeis, during the inauguration of Abram L. Sachar as the first president of the university, the occasion was above the ordinary. It was not just another festivity, just another academic procession. The emotions that filled the great audience at Symphony Hall, Boston, were those that come over people witnessing a historic landmark.

First Jewish University

We all knew that we were present at the birth of a "First", the birth of the first Jewish University in America.

Governor Bradford of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts had this in mind when he remarked that Boston was the birthplace of our public school system, the seat of the first college in the young Colonies, and now is the scene of the founding of the first Jewish University in America.

It is true, of course, that the Jews have founded academies and schools of college and university rank in this country before. Gratz College exists in Philadelphia since 1888. Dropsie College was established in the same city in 1905. The Yeshivah University of New York is now well established among the learned societies of the world. And there are the Theological schools and Teachers Seminaries, in Cincinatti, New York, Chicago, Boston and elsewhere.

But these are all obviously schools for Jews only, dedicated as they are to the training of Rabbis and teachers, and to the study of Hebrew thought and letters.

Brandeis is the first school of university standing founded by Jews of America for the benefit of all Americans, regardless of race, creed, or color.

While the other schools are maintained by the Jewish group for its religious and cultural needs, Brandeis is the contribution of the American Jews to the enrichment of American culture. In doing this, Brandeis follows a long established tradition in American life. Other religious groups, Protestants and Catholics, have long sponsored schools for the higher education of the youth of America. Brandeis may well be the first of many more contributions of the Jewish group to the sum total of the cultural wealth of America.

In what manner will the contribution of Brandeis be felt?

How will it differ and yet be in harmony with the two hundred Colleges, Universities and Learned Societies who sent their delegates to help in the inaugural festivities?

That is entirely in the hands of the trustees, the president, and the faculty of the University. They have no patterns to follow, no precedents to guide them. Theirs is the privilege as well as the responsibility of the pioneer, the trail blazer, the "First".

WHY NOT OPEN THE DOOR, JOHN?

Israel Loan Bogs Down

WASHINGTON—Despite President Truman's announced hope that financial aid will soon be granted Israel, loan negotiations face serious difficulties, it was learned this week.

Most important is a clear difference in viewpoint between the Export-Import Bank and negotiations for Israel on what constitutes "general purpose" and "specific project" loans.

When announcement was made that the bank was prepared to reconsider the Israel request for $100,000,000, stress was laid on the bank's desire for specific details of each project for which the loan was to be used, the inference being that previous Israeli requests had been drawn too broadly.

List Quantities and Dollars

Now an Israeli spokesman has issued a statement saying the loan request submitted last June, plus supporting documents "detail the specific productive purposes for which the request credit is to be used."

It added that "some 120 groups of investment products are listed with approximate real quantities and dollar values to indicate exactly what Israel proposes to buy with the credit."

An analysis also was included "of the grounds for Israel's confidence that it will be able to repay far larger credits than $100,000,000 over an adequate period of time."

The statement concludes with the hope that "these negotiations may be brought to an early conclusion because Israel's requirements of productive investment are urgent as a result of the large number of immigrants now entering the country."

Still Too Broad

It has been learned that the Export-Import Bank has taken the position that the proposed projects already submitted by Israel are still too broad and that a further break-down will be requested in future negotiations.

Broadly speaking, the chief hitch lies in the question of Jewish immigration in Palestine. A considerable part of the loan would enable Israel to care for these immigrants and get them on their feet. Eventually, Israel contends, such immigration will add much to Israel's productive capacity.

The Export-Import Bank board, while not ruling against purely resettlement projects thus far, leans more toward specific industrial and economic loans for projects which would be promptly productive of exports to the world's hard-currency areas.

Food and Housing

Among credits proposed by Israel are food and housing to help establish refugees. While food and housing have not been ruled out by the bank's board, it is learned that machines, factories or raw materials are regarded as coming more within the bank's scope.

A spokesman for the bank said today it had dropped resettlement loans about a year and a half ago.

What is clear is that these differences in viewpoint between Israel and the Export-Import Bank will have to be adjusted before the new state is likely to get credits. The invitation of the bank for a renewal of discussions has been referred to Tel Aviv by the Israeli mission. A reply is expected within the next few days.

To Zionists of Rhode Island:

When Thomas E. Dewey becomes President of the United States--and he most assuredly will be elected--it will be most important to all who are concerned over the welfare of the State of Israel that he have a Republican Senate majority to assist him in the carrying out of his pledged program.

Rhode Island is one of the key states in which a senatorial election is to be held next week, and it may well be that whether or not we have a Republican Senate depends on whether we send Thomas P. Hazard, Republican candidate for the United States Senate, to Washington. Most of the states electing senators next week are in the deep South. Rhode Island is one of the very few northern states featuring a senatorial contest.

We all know that Hazard has time and again committed himself to the support of Dewey. And we know further that Dewey is pledged to reject the Bernadotte Plan and insist on the retention by Israel of the Negev region.

If you support the Democratic candidate for Senator you are throwing away the last chance of the Jewish people for the ratification of the boundaries of Israel as adopted by the United Nations. The recent statements of Secretary of State Marshall, as spokesman for President Truman, have indicated as much.

For this reason, it is the duty of every friend of Israel to vote for Thomas P. Hazard as Rhode Island's next senator.

The undersigned is a friend of Israel and a Zionist.

The Providence chapter of Hadassah has selected six delegates to represent it at the 34th annual convention of the Women's Zionist Organization of America, to be held in Atlantic City, N. J. from November 5 to 9, it was announced this week. They are Mesdames Harry Albert, Sarah Felder, David Genser, Leonard Goldman, Samuel Michelson and Irwin N. Silverman.

More than 5000 delegates and guests are expected to attend the conclave, which will be asked to approve a $5,935,000 budget, the largest in the organization's history.

Mrs. Irwin N. Silverman, president of the local chapter, who will head the contingent, said she considered it "a signal honor to represent the Hadassah women of our city at the first national gathering since the establishment of the State of Israel. We, who have a 36 year record of health and social welfare work in the Holy Land," she said, "have been inspired to new heights of endeavor by Israel's successful fight for independence. I am confident that our local membership will accept the new goals and new directives to be discussed in Atlantic city with the enthusiasm and energy that have characterized them in the past."

IF TRUMAN IS ELECTED WHAT OF ISRAEL?

Both the Democratic and Republican parties pay lip-service to the State they have betrayed—each claiming credit for prompt—though limited—American recognition. But Democratic and Republican platform pledges to support Israel are carefully equipped with back exits. The GOP forgets to promise aid to Israel against Arab aggression; the Democratic platform fails to explain or mention Administration reversal, much less to promise the measures necessary to enforce the partition. The record of bipartisan betrayal forbids trust in the Democratic and Republican pledges to Israel. The platform of the Progressive Party alone is full, straightforward and deserving of confidence because it contributes to world peace and conforms to the true interests of the American people.

The Progressive Party Calls For:

- immediate de jure recognition of the State of Israel
- admission of Israel to the United Nations
- lifting of the arms embargo
- extension of financial aid to Israel by the U. S.

Temple Emanuel Bowling

By JACK PLATKIN

It appears that from here on in there will not be much time out, and I must mention this fact in answer to a number of queries of why we start a league and then have it broken up as it had been, and as Dave Dressler says, "How can I become a good bowler when after I have started to get hot, I am cooled off because of this stop-and-go schedule, and have to regain my form all over again." But Dave, being a likeable character, also says, it is not altogether the bowling which brings him to the Casino alleys on Monday nights, but the fine and spirited association with so many nice fellows, which he enjoys. And I say, well spoken, Dave.

The teams are starting to shape up with the third week by the boards and it is entirely too early to establish the threat or the caliber of any one team, but one thing I do know is that the aged Athletics do not have one man in the 100 average bracket.

The high single so far belongs to Eddie Lang with 151, and high team single belongs to Art Weiss's Pirates with 545—and this young port side throwing captain also has a neat 111 batting average

Handicaps start next week, and more important is the fact that you will have to bowl 80 and not 79 for the automatic.

How German Family's Suicide Rocked Berlin

On November 6, 1941 the intellectuals in Germany—or those who have remained alive under the Hitler regime—were shaken by an event which had the effect of a thunderstorm, even in the then war-torn and bombed Hitler country. On that day, a 37-year-old soft-spoken German actor, Joachim Gottschalk, put an end to his life as well as to the lives of his beloved wife and their eight-year old son.

Not only the theatrical profession but also the theater and film public were distressed by the unexpected suicide of this popular German actor. For Gottschalk was loved and adored by all who knew him, his colleagues as well as the millions of his admirers and fans. But Gottschalk had one enemy—Josef Goebbels. And that was enough to cause the untimely death of the young actor and his family.

Hitler Meant Misfortune

Misfortune came to the Gottschalk family simultaneously with Hitler's ascent to power in Germany in 1933. One year before Gottschalk had married the woman he loved. Her name was Meta Wolff and she happened to be a Jewish girl. Meta, too, was an actress, but in 1933 she had to stop performing because she was Jewish.

The fact that his talented wife could no more appear on a German stage saddened Gottschalk very much. But he went on playing, in order to provide for his wife and son, who was born in the same year. His theatrical path became thorny and his career was doomed. Although still permitted to play, he had to wander from Leipzig to Frankfort-on-Main and from Frankfort to Berlin, in order to keep up his profession. Due to his popularity with the public, film companies in Berlin engaged him for important parts. For a time it looked as if the Nazi persecutions against him—for being married to a Jewish woman—had stopped.

An Illusion

But this was an illusion. For Herr Goebbels did not forget this sensitive, gentle and talented actor, Gottschalk.

And so, one day—it was November 1, 1941—Goebbels gave instructions to his assistant, Hans Hinkel, "specialist on Jewish affairs," to "liquidate the Gottschalk case." The very same day Hinkel summoned Gottschalk to his office and informed him that he no longer would be permitted to play on the stage unless he immediately divorced his Jewish wife. Gottschalk asked the Nazi leader what would happen to his wife if he divorced her. "Naturally, she will be deported," Hinkel answered laconically. Knowing that "deportation" meant death, the actor went home to his wife with a definite decision in his mind.

Suicide Pact

Five days later, on November 6, their suicide pact was executed. First, they gave an overdose of veronal (sleeping powder) to their son Michael. Then his wife took the same dose of powder. When both were asleep Gottschalk carried them into the kitchen. Then he sat down to write his farewell letters to his relatives and close friends.

When this was done, he himself entered the kitchen where he opened the gas range and, in great agony, he lay down to die together with his wife and only child. This happened early in the morning and when later in the day Gottschalk did not appear for his rehearsal in the theater, one of his colleagues went to his home in Berlin—where the suicide victims were discovered.

Although the newspapers were not allowed to publish a word about it, the news of the death of the Gottschalk family spread like lightning through Berlin and caused a tremendous uproar in the theatrical world. The indignation among Gottschalk's friends who knew the reason for his tragic end, was so great that Goebbels found it necessary to call a meeting of all the heads of the German theaters in order to make an apologetic speech to them.

The wave of protest over the death of the Gottschalk family was felt in the air, and their funeral, which many thousands of Berliners were anxious to attend, threatened to turn into a protest-demonstration against the Nazi regime. However, the Gestapo, knowing of this sentiment, promptly forbade the public to attend the funeral.

Israel Plans Super Highway and Subway

TEL AVIV—Plans to construct an automobile super-highway between Metullah, northern-most tip of Israel on the Syrian border, and Aqaba, on the eastern arm of the Red Sea (over 100 miles) are nearing completion and plans for an underground railway between Tel Aviv and Haifa (about 65 miles) are underway, Mordecai Bentov, Israeli Minister of Labor and Public Works, announced at a press conference here. The Tel Aviv-Haifa "subway" will cut the traveling time between Israel's two principal port cities from 2½ hours to 45 minutes. The super-highway will be a link in the projected Moscow-to-Ceylon highway, connecting Europe, the Middle and Far East.

SYD COHEN:

Congratulations and Fairy Tales

The softball season is over but the memories linger on...

Hail to the Comets

A word of praise is due the winners, the Mal's Baby Shoppe Comets. This team, comprised entirely, I believe, of fellows in their early twenties, played unspectacular ball all season. Sometimes they looked great, sometimes not so good. Yet, in the clutch, when they had to come through or lose, they had what they needed.

It is significant to me that it was always the other team that cracked against the Comets, not the Comets against the others. Several teams were able to pile up leads of five and six runs against the champs but somehow they could not hold them. Whether it was hits, or bases on balls, or errors, or mistakes in judgment that did it, the fact remains that Mal's Baby Shoppe usually wound up on the long end of the score.

Not a high scoring team, they made just enough runs most of the time for Warren (Red) Foster to work with. Big Red easily was the year's outstanding twirler and probably the biggest single factor in the Comets championship.

There also was another influencing factor, that sturdy red haired guy who did the coaching at first base—Red Golden, coach of the team. In his day—and he had a lot of good ones—Red was as fine a catcher as was to be found. Capable as well as fiery, Golden could keep up a stream of chatter that upset more than one opposing outfit. He was quick on the comeback and seldom, if ever, was out-talked or out-played on the field.

A team coached by Red Golden, automatically has an advantage in aggressiveness. So, while congratulating the winning team, let's not overlook their fine coach

Now the touch football league is about to start and, while this newspaper's deadline prevents us from presenting up-to-date reports on the latest goings-on, it is definite that the league will start play this Sunday morning. The daily papers will list the schedules and fields for the opening games, which will be reported here next week.

It is agreed that too late a start was made in the football planning to permit smooth operation and clear sailing from the beginning. However, the spirit is there, as it was with softball, and enough teams have joined the new organization to make it worth while. Next year, with the league organized, and the lessons from the forthcoming season under our belts, we should have all our arrangements completed well in advance of the opening playing date.

For this year, the teams will have to lay the groundwork for the future, understanding that they are pioneering in a new field that should become an annual feature of the sports life of the Jewish community of Providence and vicinity.

Meanwhile, senior and junior clubs that have not entered the touch football league and would like to know more about it—and possibly even get into it this year, are invited to contact me.

Who'll Sponsor the Sponsors?

Fairy Tale: Once upon a time there was a goose that laid a golden egg. As soon as that fact was discovered, the poor goose was placed under such strain by the constant demands made upon it that the critter up and died. A tragic end, surely, for such an outstanding bird.

Well, the softball league has its sponsors, some undoubtedly more affluent than others. These sponsors deserve as much credit for their contributions to the league as the players and officials themselves. They shelled out heavily and willingly to help set the struggling organization on its feet.

They have, for the most part, given much more than they were originally asked for. Now they have been asked for funds again to help finance the big banquet scheduled for November 15. Whether they do support the dinner or whether they don't, I am beginning to feel concern about the matter.

When I suggested the dinner a few weeks ago, I had no thought that the sponsors would pick up the tab for the entire affair. If they volunteered the money, all well and good. And if they had funds laid aside for private dinners for their teams at season's end, as some did, ditto. I feel, however, that they did their part and should not be taxed further.

We will have a need for sponsors in the future. In fact, the football league needs them now. We don't want to alienate them or lose them or scare them away ... And we don't want to have fairy tales coming to life to haunt us.

Let's hope everyone in the story lives happily ever after.

Olympic Bowling

By SIDNEY GREEN

"Last but not least" says Captain Joe Schwartz of his team's position as of last week. Joe's ball may not knock down the most pins but it sure gets down the alley the fastest . . . Al Zawatsky might just as well have been using one ball all night as his first and second throws usually went down the gutters.

Howie Cohen and Merlyn Rodyn have taken over the leadership for the highest average for the first five weeks with 110 each, while Harold Aven and Nate Gordon are tied for second with 107.

Going into last week's pin battle, Harold Levine's team continued its effective use of its "secret weapon", yours truly, by increasing its first place margin to four points over H. Cohen's runners-up. Third place belongs to Rodyn's club and tied for fourth are the Jack Jacobsons and the Abe Lobels.

Individual scoring dropped off a bit with Ralph Winn's 129 taking top honors and Meyer Jarcho registering 349 for high three.

Southern Newspaper Challenges Fund-Raising Agency

Atlanta, Ga.—A warning that the war-time period of "glamour" budgets in Jewish communal life is over and that members of the Jewish community have a right to be told where their money is going was issued last week by the Southern Israelite.

The Atlanta Anglo-Jewish weekly sharply questioned the development of a situation in which "to challenge how a community's money is being spent brings baited breath as though the revelation would somehow explode whatever status quo has been delicately created."

The weekly said the "natural, above-board inquisitiveness as to expenditure is even taken as an insult to the budgeteer." Rapping that attitude, the paper said that "the budgeteers should welcome inquisitiveness and interest about the costs of community activities."

The Israelite cited the case of the challenge by the Menorah Journal to the announced budget of around $6,000,000 of the Joint Defense Appeal. The magazine asked about certain items in the 1948 JDA budget "which appeared to augur duplication, padding and inflation."

"Did the JDA welcome the challenge and come forward with a forthright response to the budget inquiry?" the Israelite editorial asked.

"No, a hue and cry instead was raised about the questions being a challenge to ideology and not a real attempt at public service," the weekly said. "An ideological challenge, indeed! Are the principles of the JDA and its agencies so flimsy that they cannot bear up under the challenge of another agency?"

"If such indeed is the case, it might just as well be that they should collapse and Jewry turn immediately to the task of building stronger agencies which can serve the purposes for which these are supported," the weekly said.

The weekly said the Menorah Journal was not even given "the courtesy of a negative response for its efforts. The fear of revealing to the public what the JDA is doing through its substantial budget left the scholarly journal unchallenged victor in the episode."

The Southern Israelite asserted that "many of the readers of the Menorah Journal are wondering what embezzlement, duplication or mistakes the JDA might indeed be hiding."

As a less flagrant example, the weekly cited the "case of the Welfare Fund in Atlanta which has not made public the complete details of its budget."

The weekly insisted it did not intend to intimate there was anything wrong with the Atlanta welfare fund budget or the JDA budget.

"We do say unequivocally that the technique of the obscure budget is communally wrong," the paper said. It added that wartime pressures made "these questionable procedures" acceptable and the secrecy "even added allure to causes."

The weekly agreed that public apathy played no small part in the situation but that the need for honest and open budgets now was vital.

With Jewish fund-raising certain to become more extensive and more difficult, "men and women must have confidence in how the money is being expended before they will respond time and again.

"The Glamour budget is not the way to gain this confidence. In the end the hidden budget will have the natural reaction of handicapping the causes intended to be served," the editorial concluded.

Pupils to Present Play in Hebrew

The third grade of the Providence Hebrew Day School will present a dramatization today entirely in Hebrew, entitled "Hillel Hanasi". This will be the first time an all Hebrew speaking skit will be presented since the school adopted the policy of conversational Hebrew for its new classes last year.

The program will be directed by Miss Elizabeth Balogh, third grade teacher. Participating will be Cynthia Berlinsky, Joel Braude, Judith Fishman, Irwin Max, Arthur Newman, Jacob Parness, Aaron Segal, Hershel Smith and Irwin Silberman.

STUDENTS INCREASING

New York—Enrollment in all Jewish religious schools in the United States during the past school year increased 2.1 per cent from 232,348 pupils to 237,285, it was disclosed this week in an annual survey of Jewish education activities.

Memos of a Girl Friday:

Dear Mr. M.: This delightful Winthrop Rockefeller story just came over the phone ... The day his son was born (at Polyclinic Hospital) the young zillionaire went up to a nervous parent-to-be and exclaimed: "Just had a boy! Have a cigar!" ... Congratulations," said the man, "I don't smoke cigars" ... "Then have a cigarette," said Rockefeller ... "I don't smoke at all, but thanks," said the fellow ... "Join me in drink?" asked Winthrop ... "I don't imbibe, but thanks," said the chap ... "Then fergoodness-sakes, take something!" persisted Rockefeller, handing the stranger a $100 bill as he left.

Have some nonsensorship: An adv. agency exec refused permission to Walton and O'Rourke to have their wonderful dowager puppet televised! ... Did you know that the gangster taken for a ride was married to a "name singer? ... Parents Magazine just awarded Orson Welles' "Macbeth" the Medal of Special Merit. It will say in its mag that the Italian critics' censure of it was unjust, etc. ... Disc jockeys have to be careful how they spot Blue Barron's new ditty, "You Were Only Fooling." The other eve'g it was played right after a candidate's speach ... A national campaign is due in the mags and papyrus "to make men corset-conscious" and hide their bulges ... Your line about Nevada Smith wanting a stage role "as she is tired of just walking around cafe floors looking beautiful" got a part for her. Where can I locate La Dollpuss?

OVERSEAS TICKER

The International Set hears that King Zog, exiled monarch of a Communist-controlled nation, has been ditched by Her Highness. Because of his yoo-hooing ... Lady Evelyn Leslie will marry G. Mackdorth-Young of the Welsh Guards ... King Farouk of Egypt is having his Caddy made bullet-proof by a West Street (New York) iron-smith ... The Maharajah of Baroda (recently accused of squandering millions while touring) is missed by waiters on the Continent (and B'way) because he was the biggest tipper since Diamond Jim Brady ... Rome and Milan stay-up-lates are agog over the romance of Fiat magnate Gianni Agnelli and Pamela Shurchill.

Latest Lowdown on the Nancy Choremi matter: The divorce plan (which she couldn't deny to reporters at the airport) will be filed in mid-winter at Alexandria, Egypt. He will charge desertion, despite the fact that she left him over a belle there ... She will spend the fall at Casablanca with her diplomat father, then go to Alexandria to dwell with her mother-in-law!

Several Texas oil men threw a party at El Borracho. It was highlighted by a 4-foot cake decorated with sterilized gold coins. During the hub-bub a chorine-guest exclaimed: "Migawd! I swallowed a gold piece!"

"That's awright, gal," a Texan hurriedly assured her. "That's plenty more in that cake."

A British official was gabbing with Washington reporters about our finances. "By the way," said

"That was a terrific experience," said the air force chief. "In that new world what could you have been thinking about?" "Thinking" was the unphony reply, "how I'd get down!"

May Craig, New England's gift to the White House press corps, recently got back from Berlin, where she flew with the Air Lift. A commentator interviewed her about it over a Boston station. "Which is exactly what you just did to the F.C.C.," almost choked the fellow, pushing the nearest button.

Starting this week permanent teams will be in action. Here's the lineup: Levines—Rita Levine, captain; I. Bernstein, J. Stein, B. Smith and R. Jacobson; Steingolds—D. Leonard, T. Green and L. Boren; Hochmans—Edith Hochman, E. Blonder, R. Roffer, S. Pollock and B. Cohen; Zawatskys—Lillian Zawatsky, E. Cohen, J. Winn, R. Kilberg and L. Kahn. The season will run for 18 weeks.

Beth-Israel Bowling

By SAUL HODOSH

After a two weeks lay-off due to the High Holidays, the Beth Israel boys came back full of fight for the long season ahead. The general trend of individual scores and team scores generally high but I am withholding judgment as to whether the improvement is due to the bowlers or the new alleys. The only true standard of measurement is my own average. If it goes up the alleys are improved. If it remains static, the bowlers are improved, so we will keep you informed, if you are foolish enough to be interested.

Izzy Krasnoff kept his mind on the price of dairy products for one string and grabbed himself the season's high single at 145, but if prices drop, he'll be in trouble. P. Gladstein 134, E. Lovett 127 and Max Levy 121, turned in excellent strings.

P. Gladstein was stunned by the yelping of Moe Press and before he recovered, had the season's high three wrapped up with 368, edging out hard-working Esmond Lovett at 338 and Steiner 334.

In closing, a thought passes through my mind that the Tower of Babel must have been a bowling league.

More Than 200 Attend Cranston Barn Dance

JWV Asks Truman, Dewey Act on Israel

Concern over the United States' failure to maintain leadership in helping to solve the problem of the new State of Israel was voiced in telegrams sent to President Harry S. Truman and Republican candidate Thomas E. Dewey by Myer Dorfman, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans.

In his telegram to the President, Dorfman quoted the plank on Israel as adopted at the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia last summer and called attention to the "negations of the promises of a great political party which retains the power to make these pledges a reality.

"Jewish War Veterans of United States earnestly appeals to you to publicly state Democratic Party's intention to give ... freedom reality and to make it plain that your administration will not waver from the course pledged by a party that has led our nation courageously and honorably through two great wars and now faces the challenge of an intensely troubled peace," Dorfman concluded.

In the wire to Dewey, Dorfman also quoted from the GOP platform plank on Israel and appealed to the Republican standard bearer to "speak out to the world in terms that will make it plain that the great party you represent will not waver from its intention to translate into reality the high purpose that gave rise to your platform pledge on Israel."

Dewey Backs Politically and Economically Stable Israel; Approves United Nation Plan on Palestine Partition

In an exchange of letters on Palestine between Dean Alfange, chairman of the American Christian Palestine Committee of New York, and Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Candidate for the Presidency of the United States, Mr. Dewey had the following to say:

"I have your letter of October 20th and I want to assure you that I, too, have been deeply disturbed by the events in Palestine. As you know, I have always felt the Jewish people are entitled to a Homeland in Palestine which would be politically and economically stable. My views have been clearly expressed over the years and I did, indeed, approve the majority report of the United Nations Special Committee which recommended partition of Palestine.

"In my acceptance speech at Philadelphia, I pledged my wholehearted support of the Republican platform and that certainly included the Palestine plank.

"My position today is the same.

"The Jews have brought 20th century civilization to Palestine. They have shown that the Holy Land can be industrious and abundant. Since the creation of Israel the Jewish people have made great sacrifices for their goal of independence and freedom."

THOMAS E. DEWEY

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM ON PALESTINE IS AS FOLLOWS:

"We welcome Israel into the family of nations and take pride in the fact that the Republican Party was the first to call for the establishment of a free and independent Jewish Commonwealth. The vacillation of the Democratic Administration on this question has undermined the prestige of the United Nations. Subject to the letter and spirit of the United Nations Charter, we pledge to Israel full recognition, with its boundaries as sanctioned by the United Nations and aid in developing its economy."

These statements are not pretty phrases. They are utterances of a deeply devout human being to his fellow man. It shows that his fairness and sense of justice is not confined to the borders of our own country but reaches out for all mankind. He recognizes the position of Israel as a factor in solving the problems of the world. It is an indication of his deep down interest in fair play and human justice. He does not give his "word" easily and quickly. But once it is given, it is his "bond".

What better asset can we have in our leader than logical thinking and honest execution of his "word".

This is why the people of the United States will elect Thomas E. Dewey as their President next November 2nd.

For the 21st season Temple Emanu-El is again offering an adult education program to the community. This year, because of the recent establishment of the new State of Israel, it is felt that many would like to become better informed about the State and its influence beyond its own boundaries. Personality Pays

Ruth Woodman, a charming salesgirl at Shepard's, proved that experience isn't the only thing that counts. Although she has been with the department store only six months, Ruth was one of 20 winners in a recent contest to determine the personnel with the most personality in selling. The winners were treated to a banquet at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel and each woman was given a lovely orchid.

Dinner Dance A Success

The dinner dance sponsored by the Women's Association of the Jewish Community Center had been looked forward to as one of the social highlights of the year, and I don't think anyone was disappointed.

When the winners of the rhumba contest were announced, everyone agreed that the Saul Gordons were the right choice for the first prize. Those two can really dance.

As for the gowns, I couldn't commit myself to mention any woman who was outstanding—they were all simply exquisite. I particularly liked a combination of satin and lace in pale cocoa and aqua, and a royal blue lace. Satins and laces were prominent.

Congratulations ...!

Congratulations to the Joseph J. Seefers, who celebrated their 21st wedding anniversary last Saturday ... And best wishes for many more happy birthdays to Mrs. Ed Jacobs, who celebrated her birthday last week.

Congratulations, also, to Phyllis Pollock and Stanley Grebstein, who became engaged Yom Kippur night.

And a hearty Mazeltov to the Bernard Zarums, who have become parents for the first time. Their son, Barry Lee, was born October 21—and here's an odd fact. His Mom was born on the 21st—and so was Dad!

Take the long look... buy Quality

Whether it's food or furniture ... automobiles or apparel ... rugs or ranges ... you've found that the "quality buy" is the best buy in the long run. And when you combine quality with good taste you have the added joy and pride of ownership that these elements alone provide. High quality and good taste have been the stock-in-trade of Modern for over thirty-eight years. That's probably the foremost reason why so many New Englanders instinctively turn to Modern when they want something for their homes ... and that's why Modern urges you to take the long look ... buy quality.

Girl Soldier Plays Vital Israel Role

SICHRON YAAKOV, Israel—Leave the wide and confusing panorama of the Palestine problem for a moment and focus on one of the little people whose names never make headlines—26-year-old Esther Reinmann, of the army of Israel. She is one of several girls who operate a rest camp here on the outskirts of Haifa for wounded Israeli soldiers.

Esther is young and pretty. She is grave-eyed and proper and efficient and while her story has none of the headline excitement of the Israeli posters and little of the drama of youths marching shining-eyed into battle, it is nonetheless an integral part of the story of Israel.

Knew No Hebrew

She was born in Dusseldorf. After her parent's death, when she was 14, she was sent to Palestine by her grandfather. "He thought that since I was alone in the world it was best for me to be brought up in a Jewish land," she said.

She came not knowing Hebrew and uninterested in Palestine. With other children she was taken to a youth camp in Haifa Bay where she worked in the gardens and kitchen for a half day and went to school for the other half.

At 16 she decided to try life in a collective settlement—Dagania—one of the oldest and smaller of the collectives. She spent the next three years there.

Tough Job

"It was hard work but healthy. I was out in the fields all day. My parents had been merchants and this was a life I had certainly not expected, but I liked it. Those were the days of Hitler in Germany and I was grateful to be here."

At 19 she wanted a change and went to Jerusalem. By this time she knew both English and Hebrew as well as her native German. Her first job was as children's nurse with a Hungarian family.

After a year she obtained a position as chambermaid at the Kallia Hotel, a winter resort inn on the shores of the Dead Sea. There she worked her way up to the position of housekeeper. She remained there until the Spring of 1947 when the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine arrived and was housed in the large "Kadimah Flats," where Esther was appointed housekeeper.

When UNSCOP left, trouble began with the Arabs and when partition was voted by the UN General Assembly in November the Arabs began attacking. The Kallia Hotel, in the Arab area was forced to shut down. Esther came to the Lydda airport hotel as housekeeper, but within weeks it, too, was forced to close. By last May 14, when the Jewish state was proclaimed, she had joined the army.

When all is well again she will go as housekeeper to a new resort hotel being built by Harry Levy, managing director of the Kallia Hotel, at Herzlia, on the Mediterranean.

"My story's completely unexciting," she protests. "There's no reason to tell it. I am sure any

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN BUSINESS AND FINANCE—AND WHAT THEY MEAN TO YOU

P. Bernard Hartman

MORE WORK, FEWER WORKERS TO DO IT: With the military program swinging into high gear, business activity is on the upgrade all over the country. There are some slow spots, however, in soft goods industries—as shoes, textiles, etc.—which are now showing decreases in production and employment.

Factories receiving military orders are completing their process of tooling up and soon will come into the market for more workers. Already there is a shortage of skilled workers in some areas. For example, in the Paterson, N. J. area, aircraft plants tooling up are unable to obtain skilled workers they need, and at the same time textile plants are laying off workers who do not have the skills for unfilled jobs in the aircraft plants.

MAKING MONEY FROM MONOPOLY: Last week fines totalling $50,000 were imposed in the Federal Court against leading tire manufacturers as a result of an antitrust case brought by the Federal Government.

The government accused these tire manufacturers of conspiracy in part through the medium of their association to agree on prices, discounts, allowances, bonuses and other related practices to eliminate competition.

Because of these practices you had to pay more for your tires than if competition had prevailed in the industry.

Such small fines are one of the reasons why monopolistic conspiracies pay. Reprinted from N. Y. Star soldier here or anybody who's lived through the Jerusalem seige has a far better story.

Girl Soldier Plays Vital Israel Role

More War

"The boys here feel the war will begin again. They think, if it must begin again, they wish it were now rather than later, so that we shall be finished once and for all with it.

"I'll be content, too, then. I want peace. I think now that the Jews have their own state, perhaps the world will let us have a little peace."

If Esther's story—which belongs in the simple annals of those of whom little is ever written—is told at all, it is because it proves that here in Israel, as in all countries of the world, the vast majority of men and women are those whose lives are not ringed with headlines, whose days are not marked by trumpets, but rather who go their way slowly, hopefully, patiently.

The meeting will depart from the pattern set by other trade divisions in that no out-of-town speaker will address the group.

"We feel that by now every member of our trade is fully aware of the vital importance of his gift. The daily headlines concerning the needs of Israel are, in themselves, a constant reminder of the grave responsibility that faces us. I am confident that our division will surpass last year's outstanding record of pledges," Goldsmith declared. .

6 Football Teams In Action Sunday

IN A CRAZY WORLD, PARIS HATS GO SANE

Lilly Dache, back from her annual Paris hat hunt, extols small, neat bonnets

Long before her arrival from Paris last week, Lilly Dache's recorded voice, fluttering with excitement, raved about the "hot wiss ze ladylike air." Stales staff and workroom at her East 56th Street establishment followed breathlessly the milliner's report recorded faithfully every day for the six weeks of the Paris openings: crazy hats were out, simple sleek hats were in, along with a ladylike look.

Back in New York again, Dache—hats were merely a part of the whole picture of small heads, close coiffures, small waists, wind-swept lines and opulent, postwar fabrics. It was all a throwback to that other postwar of 1918-1925 when women's fashions showed that they were women, with neat, well-turned ankles, bosoms, hips and even tummies.

No longer, Dache predicted hopefully, would a woman buy a hat to go with many costumes; no longer would the one basic frock satisfy the well-dressed woman. Everything would be an ensemble: hat, gown, coat, accessories, and each costume would require its own special hat.

The factories of Lyon were producing magnificent stiff silks and velvets, rich as those of prewar days, she said, colors were subtle and poetic; apricot, biege like field-mouse taupe and the gray of wet city pavements. Daytime hats were restrained in color and trimming, relying on beautiful draping for line.

Draped jersey and draped felt turbans, cloches made of fur, velours, suede and a nap fabric called ourson for day wear; Directoire bonnets and plumed hats for afternoon; small, head-hugging confections of flowers, leaves and glittering beads for evenings.

Some of the new lines would have to be adapted to American figures and needs: the new, slim, almost hobble-skirt would have to be given more fullness for comfort, and hats would have to be deepened for larger American heads.

—Selma Robinson

Dache gives this leopard ensemble the final inspection before marking the hat a cool $159.50.
