Zionists to Hold Membership Drive

Plans to stage a one-day membership drive this Sunday were announced early this week by the Zionist District of Providence. The campaign will begin with a breakfast served at 9 o'clock Sunday morning in the Indian Room of the Narragansett Hotel.

Arthur I. Darman of Woonsocket will preside at the breakfast and the speakers will include Dewey Stone, outstanding New England Zionist, and Rabbi Jerome Unger of New York. Harry D. Jagolinzer and William D. Strong are in charge of the program.

The objective of the drive is "to register American Jews as members of Zion standing behind Israel." The public is invited to join in the campaign.

Demand Change in ZOA Leadership

NEW YORK—Two hundred American Zionist leaders from 35 cities in every section of the United States, attending an emergency national conference held at the Biltmore Hotel under the auspices of the Committee for Progressive Zionism, this week unanimously adopted a resolution denouncing the leadership of the Zionist Organization of America for its attack on the Jewish Agency Executive and calling upon rank and file Zionists throughout the country to unseat the present Z.O.A. administration.

The Committee for Progressive Zionism, organized in February, 1948, by officers and members of the Zionist Organization of America to bring about broad democratic reforms in the Z.O.A., voted approval and expressed "confidence" in Jerusalem members of the Jewish Agency Executive.

The resolution adopted by the meeting, which was attended by many high-ranking veterans of the American Zionist movement including Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Louis Lipsky and Judge Louis E. Levinthal, all former Z.O.A. presidents, assured the Jewish Agency Executive "of our loyal support in all their endeavors to achieve effective cooperation in American Zionism."

Loan Does Not Ease '49 Campaign

NEW YORK—Officials of the United Jewish Appeal warned this week that the U. S. loan to Israel "does not reduce by one iota the necessity to raise $250,000,000 for the United Jewish Appeal in 1949."

The statement was issued by UJA national chairman William Rosenfeld, Herman L. Weisman and Rabbi Jonah Wise, in announcing launching of the 1949 drive.

They said the drive will get underway this week in many large and small cities. Several cities have already set up the machinery for the drive.

By SYD COHEN
(This is the first in a series of articles written exclusively for the Herald on a subject of major importance to the reading public. It is hoped that these articles will be of assistance in helping expose those who solicit funds nefariously, in the name of charity. Ed.)

Crime does not pay—or so we have been told.

Apparently, however, no one has divulged that information to some "leaders" of the countless charity rackets with which the nation is now infested. Many persons are making good livings out of the crimes they perpetrate in the name of charity. For such as these crime certainly does pay.

If a simile may be drawn, the charity rackets remind you somewhat of a couple of billion mosquitoes breeding in a swamp. The mosquitoes are free from harm at that stage because the very nature of their habitat, the swamp, is forbidding to outsiders. In the same way, the bloodsuckers of charity operate virtually in the open because they know that the word "charity" is regarded as a "swamp" that forbids penetration and investigation on the part of those who are solicited.

Anyone who dares to draw aside the curtain that hides these rackets is bound to incur the wrath of some legitimate charities that somehow get the impression that the charge is directed at them; and such is the gall of some fakers that even the illegitimates may have the nerve to come out in public and protest at the slurs directed at them.

A Difficult Task

It is difficult to screen the worthy from the unworthy as far as charity is concerned, for the average man and woman have the tendency to give without asking to any "cause", which makes the task of discouraging the assorted crooks all the harder. Nevertheless, an informed public is a warned public, and an exposee of the methods used and a recommendation as to the best means of putting the fakes out of business should be of assistance in the campaign to rid society of these leeches. Such a recommendation will be made at the conclusion of this series.

Galkin Named to State's Parole Board

Joseph Galkin, executive director of the General Jewish Committee of Providence and director of the Jewish Family and Children's Service, was appointed Monday by Gov. John O. Pastore as one of the three members of the new Rhode Island parole board. Galkin's appointment was in line with Governor Pastore's expressed desire to have a man experienced in the field of social and correctional work sit on the board. His term expires Jan. 31, 1951.

Galkin, a native of Providence and a graduate of Hope High School, attended Brown University, receiving his A. B. degree in 1931 in the field of sociology. He later attended the graduate school for Jewish social work in New York City.

Israeli Policy-- Friendship With All

TEL AVIV, Israel—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion declared this week that the foreign policy of the new Israeli government will aim at friendship and cooperation with both the United States and Russia.

Ben-Gurion's Mapai Party led all others in the voting for the constituent assembly. It is expected he will be entrusted with formation of a government to replace the provisional regime. This will come after the assembly meets Feb. 14 to begin the job of drafting a constitution.

Ben-Gurion spoke by radio to Israel for the first time since the election. He said the foreign policy of the new cabinet also will include the seeking of a Jewish-Arab alliance, loyal support of the United Nations and "promotion of world peace."

He said the policy of the new government will include "complete civic equality for women—Jewish, Christian and Moslem—on the basis of full equality for all citizens regardless of race, religion, nationality and sex."

Boston Reports on Anti-Semitism in '48

BOSTON—Anti-semitic activities reported in the greater Boston area were down to less than half the number reported in 1947, in the categories of physical violence, job discrimination and indignities, the Jewish Community Council reported last week.

An increase in complaints appeared only in housing, by which the Council means refusal to rent or sell. This classification showed a jump of 40 per cent.

MILTON C. SAPINSLEY

Mr. Sapinsley this week was elected president of the Providence Community Fund for 1949. A past president of the Jewish Community Center, he has served as a director of the Community Chest for several years.

Call Israeli Sweepstake "Phoney"

NEW YORK—Israeli Consul-General Arthur Lourie this week issued a statement warning against the initiation of an "Israel International Sweepstakes" campaign in the United States.

"It has come to our attention that an 'Israel International Sweepstakes' campaign has been initiated in the United States, purportedly for the benefit of schools and hospitals, in Israel," the statement declared. "I wish to state categorically that this campaign has been undertaken without the knowledge or approval of the Government of Israel. The public is warned against participation in any way in this scheme which, to say the least, is of questionable legitimacy," the statement added.

Federation Scores Multiple Campaigns

PHILADELPHIA — Expressing community desires for greater stability and increased participation in setting national fund raising policies, 1200 delegates to the 17th annual General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds acted upon the most immediate pressing problems facing Jewish communities by passing resolutions on the growing multiplicity of campaigns, the failure of the International Relief Organization to meet its responsibilities, liberalization of the U. S. Displaced Persons Act and the proposed platform for central community planning agencies, and commended President Truman for his "sympathetic policies" toward Israel and displaced persons.

Evidencing great concern over the "growing multiplicity of campaigns," the delegates adopted a resolution which declared that such a growth "constitutes a serious threat to the capacity of the American Jewish community to meet the tremendous needs, national, and overseas."

"More fundamentally," the resolution declared, "it is harmful to local, central Jewish community organization upon which continuing successful fund-raising, not only in 1948, but in the years ahead must depend."

The problem can only be met effectively through both local and national action," the resolution declared. On the local level, it said that "community welfare funds have the responsibility for developing community cooperation to the point where prospective contributors will clear with their welfare funds before making contributions to independent drives."

It also urged that, beyond this action, leaders of the community, and leaders of the welfare funds, will not undertake sponsorship of such independent drives without previous clearance and approval of the welfare funds. Also, that no community so act on such appeals until it has received authentic information from the CJFWF.

On the national level, the resolution instructed the Council to meet with appropriate agencies to "seek the prevention of unnecessary and duplicating campaigns, and coordinate and merge related campaigns, and to obtain the necessary authentic information on their validity and relative requirements."

(Continued from Page 1) as a psychiatric social worker, as a director of the board's camp for delinquents and problem boys and as assistant director of the Hawthorne-Cedar Knolls School, an institution for the treatment of delinquent and problem children referred to it by the courts.

Later he became associated with the United Service for New Americans, and the National Refugee Service, one of the largest private social agencies in the country, in which capacities he has played a large part in developing resettlement programs to assist some 14,000 refugees from Europe to establish themselves in inland communities. In this post he has traveled extensively all over the country to assist in the refugee program.

Grays Name Siegel As Publicity Head

The appointment of Lester E. Siegel of Providence as publicity director of the Providence Grays baseball club was announced this week. Siegel will spearhead the drive to sell shares of stock in the club to the public. The drive will begin February 11.

The Grays, still negotiating for a manager to lead the team in 1949, have offered to provide speakers for meetings of men's clubs and other organizations. Showings of the 1948 World Series movies also can be arranged. Siegel may be reached at 32 Custom House Street, GA 0991.

dealings with the public, and the knowledge that the more noise they make the more money they raise, even some perfectly legitimate charities have over-stepped their bounds by presuming to tell the people they solicit how much should be donated, and by actually protesting when they feel the gift is not large enough. This practice, too, must be regarded as a racket, and while the charity itself may be honest and aboveboard, some of the methods used must be cleaned up, lest that and other charities get a bad name.

In the most simple language, a few bad apples can spoil the entire barrel.

The Public Complains

The writing of this series is no accident. It didn't just happen. It has been planned for some time and was initiated by many individual complaints that came into the Herald office from persons who felt they were unfairly exploited. Investigation disclosed that it was a far more serious matter than originally suspected and that the condition exists throughout the nation.

One thing should be made clear at once. Some of the conditions to be listed in this series may not exist in Rhode Island. They are listed because, having been found to exist somewhere, it is assumed they may some day develop here. We are making no charges at any particular organizations and we mean to point our finger at none. A condition that is troublesome and that is general is being reported, with the hope that the people will profit from the articles. That is all.

Too, it is an accepted fact that the Jewish people are most susceptible to charity seekers. Having been on the bottom for so long, knowing at first hand what it means to suffer, and following in the traditions of our teachings and our ancestors, we are generous donors for charity appeals—and easy prey for racketeers.

Herald Not Alone

The Herald is not alone in its expose of charity rackets. Other newspapers throughout the country have taken swipes at the practice. Not only that. Various charitable organizations, disturbed at the growing number of complaints, as well as the alarming rise of false "charities", which siphon off some of the funds needed urgently by legitimate enterprises, have gone to the headquarters of major social agencies to request that some action be taken to put a halt to the stealing.

In New York, where every type of racket may naturally be expected to appear because of the tremendous size of the city and the many charities in operation, some action has been taken. Arrests have been made and some organization set up to check on the integrity of alms seekers. Funds to pursue such a campaign are lacking however, and an effective police and advertising program has not yet been devised.

It is still a matter for each individual to check on until such time as each city administration or the major welfare organizations band together to put a stop to the rackets.

In the meantime, the public must be warned—and next week we get down to cases on that particular job.

(Next week—How the public is fooled by charity racketeers)

After the services, the congregation will be invited to visit the scout display of handicraft and scoutcraft in the vestry.

A Shocking Revelation

American Jewish public opinion was shocked this week by a revelation that the unfortunate controversy between the so-called "dissidents" and the official leadership of the Zionist Organization of America, which had been reported several times as settled and disposed of for good, is far from settled. On the contrary, it has now flared up with a new intensity so that the American Zionist movement stands on the threshold of a new internal war similar to that of the Brandeis-Weizmann and Wise-Silver controversies that rent American Zionism for decades.

The ideological ground for this clearly disruptive activity is that the Zionist movement in this country, as well as abroad, has outlived its usefulness with the formation of the Jewish state; that economic and other aid to Israel is now a matter for American Jewry as a whole, not only for the Zionists. Therefore, all previous organizations, funds and institutions have to be either liquidated, or at least radically reorganized, and the "dissidents" have elected themselves as the agents best suited to carry out that re-organization. By what democratic right they have come to this conclusion has not been revealed, but they clearly act as if they were chosen for that task by the mandate of the people, although they are, admittedly, an insignificant minority. The result is that the UPA campaign for 1949, upon which so many historic hopes have been laid both in Israel and in Europe, has practically bogged down from the very beginning. The new drive has not even been mapped out, still less organized, and it looks as if it will end in a still greater failure than did the 1948 campaign which fell short of its goal by $100,000,000.

To make things even more tragic, the information discloses that the "dissidents" seem to have some support in certain sections of the government of Israel, particularly of that extremist nationalistic section which had consistently opposed the strict separation of Israel from the Jews of the Diaspora and wants to establish the hegemony of the Jewish state over the whole of world Jewry and to proclaim every Jew of the Diaspora as an automatic member of the Jewish state. How the "dissidents," who have always laid claims to a greater liberalism and democracy, and especially how Morgenthau, who has the reputation of a liberal statesman, can subscribe to such a dangerous and chauvinistic theory, is difficult to understand. But more difficult to comprehend is why Jewish public opinion has been kept in the dark about this entire affair for so long and why information of such urgency was kept from the people until now. These revelations should have been made public months ago and not artificially suppressed until they have now reached a state of explosion.

The End of a Honeymoon?

A very ominous change seems to be taking place in certain pro-Communist countries towards Zionism. The change is noticeable in a number of countries, but it came to the front recently—particularly in Rumania.

Not so long ago, the Rumanian government and the Communist party were very friendly towards Israel and even to Zionism; Jews from that country were even assisted in going to Palestine, illegally and legally. Recently the Politbureau, the highest government authority of Rumania has come out with the old denunciation of Zionism as "a political, national, reactionary current of the Jewish bourgeoisie which strives to hinder Jews from fighting with progressive forces against capitalism and their own bourgeoisie." These words are reminiscent of the old pre-war propaganda slogans, and the fact that they come from the highest Communist authority augurs a change towards the Jews which can be only harmful.

More significant still is the fact that a similar trend is noticeable now also in Poland and in other pro-Communist countries, where the earlier liberality towards Jewish immigration to Israel is being gradually abandoned. It is too early to predict, (as professional anti-Communists are already doing) that a policy of persecution of Zionism is coming in pro-Soviet countries; but it does seem that the brief honeymoon which existed between Soviet Russia and Zionism, which was based entirely on political opposition to Great Britain, is coming to an end now.

Physician Scored In Adoption Case

NEW YORK—A Bronx physician, owner of a maternity hospital, was castigated in Bronx County Court last week for giving a Roman Catholic girl's illegitimate son to a Jewish family for adoption.

Before passing sentence upon Dr. Morris Leff, 58—convicted Dec. 21 on two misdemeanor counts—Judge Samuel Joseph said:

"You are emotionally disturbed, suffering from ideas of grandeur which are primarily responsible for much that has so unfavorably impressed us."

However, Joseph noted that Leff, who has operated the Central Maternity Hospital for ten years, had "arduously, zealously and with great application" practiced his profession.

Leff was given a suspended two-year jail sentence and was fined $1000. Collection of the fine also was suspended pending an appeal.

"One Man's Opinion"

Upon These Foundations

By BERNARD SEGAL

On a rainy Sunday afternoon a year ago last Fall, I followed a crowd of people who came by car and by bus to the corner of Camp Street and Rochambeau Avenue.

A large tabernacle, whipped by the wind and drenched by rain, sprawled on a muddy, uneven, vacant lot. The people hurried for shelter inside the tent; only the uniformed men of the Jewish War Veterans post braved the wind and the rain and stood at attention beside the flags and the banners and the large sign saying that on these grounds the Congregation Ahavath Sholom would build a new Synagogue and Hebrew school.

Inside the tent, where every seat was taken, and with many standing against the posts, the ceremony of the breaking of the ground was in progress.

I have not been through that part of the city since then, and I was, therefore, thrilled to find a solid structure of steel and concrete rising up where the tabernacle stood on that Sunday.

Rabbi Morris G. Silk guided me through both, the finished and the unfinished parts of the structure.

When completed, the new Ahavath Sholom will have two stories, facing the square formed by the junction of Dana, Rochambeau, and Camp. A wide sweep of steps will lead up to the doors of the Synagogue, and a fair sized lawn will separate the building from the roadways. The Synagogue will seat 1200 worshippers, and will be furnished in the traditional Orthodox manner.

The upper story, which is the Synagogue proper, is also to house the Rabbi's study, the office, and the choir room.

Not Yet Built

But this upper part of the structure is still on the blue-print of the architects, and I saw it through the eyes of the Rabbi, as we stood and looked at the vision of the steps, and doors, and windows, and facade of a synagogue that is to materialize in a space where snow flakes fall now.

The ground floor, the one that is already in the finishing-touches stage, and needs no aid of the imagination, is much easier to describe. All the outside work is completed, and at the time of my visit, a squad of carpenters, plasterers, electricians and plumbers were busy inside, and the work will be over in a few weeks.

This ground floor consists of two independent units, the vestry and the Hebrew school.

The vestry, with entrances on Camp Street, is a spacious, well lit, and pleasantly proportioned auditorium. It will have a seating capacity of 650, and will be very suitable for lectures, plays, and entertainments. The stage is large enough and deep enough for dramatic productions, and the view from every corner of the hall is free and unobstructed by posts and pillars, as is so often the case in many a vestry. Adjoining the auditorium is a chapel, a library, a kitchen and the wash and coat rooms.

Of Particular Interest

The other unit, the school, is of particular interest to me. During my many years of associations with Hebrew schools, I have visited class rooms in the most unexpected locations, and I feel keenly on this subject. It is not uncommon to find classes in the kitchen, in the ladies gallery, on the stage, in make-shift cubicles partitioned off by movable walls, and invariably located below the street level.

The Hebrew school at Ahavath Sholom conforms favorably with the most desirable class room appointments. The four rooms, each seating 25 to 30 pupils, are cheerful, full of sunlight, and most attractive. The many windows face Memorial Road, and afford a very pleasant view of a quiet residential neighborhood. The three entrances, the wide corridor, the

For a newsman to give notice to an enemy of his country for the sake of a story may make him a reporter in the eyes of G. S., but to this reporter he loses the name of American. Frank Knox was a newspaperman on a consultant basis when he was secretary of the navy. Surely Mr. G. S. doesn't mean that Secretary Knox should have published the battle orders of the U. S. Navy, which was certainly a great news story—especially for the enemy. The Chicago Tribune was hailed before a federal grand jury on a charge of disclosing to the Japs by a published story that we had broken their code.

Now that Chambers has elected to tell a fuller story, a large number of men who draw pay as newspapermen have become Monday morning quarterbacks on how I should have handled the story. Their first approach is to get the facts right, which they always magnificently ignore, the prerogative, I suppose, of small and unread circulations. The truth is that nobody had the evidence, though many had the story, until a few weeks ago. Then Chambers, in defense of himself, revealed the microfilm. Up to that time, I didn't know of it, Levine didn't know of it, and neither did the Gov't.

The inside story is that if Hiss hadn't sued Chambers, it is doubtful if Chambers would have revealed them. Under a goading examination by Hiss' lawyer, Chambers blew. To the sneering question of "Is that all you have?" Chambers angrily answered that he had some other evidence and then exploded the microfilm bombshell. That supplied the evidence which made the headlines.

It's one thing to know a story and another to prove it, and it is libel to call a man a Communist. Both on the air and in print, this reporter has objected to that silly rule, stating that the blindfold of justice is being twisted into a gag of the free press and going so far as to call it a court license for the fifth column.

ADJECTIVES, A NEW CYCLE

Last week we completed a series of one hundred words, which I hope you have mastered well.

These, were all nouns—that is, words naming objects, living and non-living.

We now start a new cycle of words which describe nouns, telling something of the quality, the size, the character of living and non-living objects.

HEBREW:	ENGLISH:	YIDDISH:
1. Tov (To-voh)	Good	Gut
2. Go-dol (G'do-loh)	Big	Groys
3. Ko-ton (K'ta-noh)	Small	Klein
4. Yo-feh (Yo-foh)	Pretty	Shein
5. Cho-chom (Cha-cho-moh)	Wise	Klug
6. Cho-dosh (Cha-do-shoh)	New	Nei

The words in parentheses are used in describing nouns which are feminine. For example:

- A good Boy—Yeled Tov.
- A good Girl—Yaldoh Tovoh.
- A wise man—Ish Chochoh.
- A wise woman—Ishoh Chachomoh.

Note: The A is read as in FATHER, but AY is read as in "May." The E is read as in PEN, The CH is read as in BACH.

Braude to Address Beth-Israel Women

Beth El Bowling

By JACK APPELBAUM

Try as I may, it's just impossible to keep Milt Weissman's team out of the headlines. Last Thursday nite, in winning their usual four points, they set a new high team single of 706, and a new high team three of 1906. That's solid bowling in any league, fellers.

In glancing at the averages before we started, I discovered that Allie Shatkin had just skimmed by Sam Gordon into first place. That's my captain that did that! However, old "In-shoot" Gordon got in a cute little string of 155 which probably slid him back into first spot. That 155 is just one short of Allie's record high of 156. Two mighty fair bowlers, if I may say so.

Incidentally, the boys have cooked up a diverting little pastime, after the regular session, called "DOTS". This game was designed as a special kind of torture for guys with ulcers who have a grudge against themselves. The hue and cry and general tumult attending this fiendish "mishigahss" is incredible. It just cannot be the nickles involved. (Or, could it?) Oh well, we can all use the practice, I guess.

Stay in touch with me.

SYD COHEN:

In Praise of
Ken Loeffler

Several basketball games will have been won or lost by the time this is printed, but that doesn't alter the merits of the praise about to be dished out—for a team like the Steam Rollers, which has taken so much abuse for the past two years, now is entitled to all the glory that can be mustered at this late date.

The column is not merely mouthing the surprise on everyone's lips these last few weeks by talking now about the Rollers. There is much more significance to the recent upsurge than just a series of wins. And that is worth discussion, whether or not the team wins another game this season.

Coach Ken Loeffler must be quite a remarkable guy. A strong argument could be made out that he is the best basketball coach in the entire Basketball Association of America. He has to be far above the average to be able to take a downtrodden, inexperienced club like the one he found at Providence and still manage to keep the morale high and mold a winning team.

In case you have forgotten, Loeffler came to Providence from St. Louis, where he coached the successful Bombers, one of the league's top-flight outfits, last year as well as this. He had no illusions about the switch. He knew what he was letting himself in for. He knew what the local team had done, or had not done—who his players were—what he needed. And he knew also when he took off on a personal scouting trip for players that he would have to bring back several rookies and get by with them. In other words, it seems now that had we been able to read Ken's mind last fall, we would have learned that he didn't expect to do much winning this season.

The coach couldn't come out and say he didn't expect to win—and he could not appeal to the fans to come out and forget the scores while they watched him mold his team and develop his players. He had to suffer in silence—no, suffer is not the word to use—he had to WORK in silence, and that made his job of convincing his team and his boss and his public all the harder.

Knows His Ivory

That Loeffler really knows his business and that he does not speak out of turn has been brought out through the prediction he made about one of his players at the beginning of the season. Before the first game had been played, Ken labeled Howie Shannon as a potential great and he advised the writers to watch the kid develop. The coach could not have been more accurate if he had had the option of looking into the future.

What amazes me the most is that the players themselves did not become discouraged at their long string of setbacks and throw up their hands in disgust. There, too, the fine hand of the coach is in evidence. It would require an excellent mentor to keep his team high in spirit while he experimented with players and combinations until he got them rolling. Loeffler has done it.

The Rollers are not out of the woods yet, by a long shot. They are not the best team in the world, or in the league, even in their own division. They may lose more games than they will win over the remainder of the campaign. But they have built up confidence in their coach, their team, their setup. They are on their way and they may be excused if they begin to look toward next season.

Pieri Deserves Credit

While we are tossing bouquets in the direction of the Auditorium, here's a word for Lou Pieri, the owner. By his actions, Lou has proved that he is intent on bringing the best of coaching to Providence to develop the best of teams. Undaunted after the dismal 1947-48 season, Pieri brought Loeffler here and gave him complete authority. You will recall that there has been no talk since then of replacing the coach or disbanding the team... and what better tribute than that could you make of the man?

Ending on a further note of satisfaction, it can be noted that Ernie Calverley finally has emerged from the threat of oblivion that hung over him earlier in the season, and is now—again—one of the Rollers' main bearings.

All things considered, it isn't such a bad basketball season after all.

modern wash rooms, all provide for the safety and sanitary conditions of the school.

Aside from the fact that the school is under the same roof as the rest of the building, the children's activities will in no way interfere with the goings on in the vestry or the synagogue. Children may come and go in and out of the building through three entrances facing a large strip of lawn on the opposite side of the synagogue.

Soon After Passover

The Rabbi also spoke of the courses of study, of the teachers, and of a recreational program to be suitable and as modern as the physical aspect of the school. But these are matters which must by necessity be kept in the background for the time being.

Uppermost in importance now is that upon these foundations shall arise the second story, the Synagogue. Plans call for starting on that part of the building soon after Passover, when the vestry and the school will be ready for use.

But... there is always a but. And as usual it is a financial but. Since my understanding of finances is sorely meager, I will leave this to the congregation, containing as it does among its members many who are more familiar with figures than I am.

On the way home we passed within a block of the present Ahavath Sholom Synagogue, and I understood the anxiety in the voice and on the face of Rabbi Silk. The contrast was most striking, and the congregation must apply all its resources to complete the undertaken project if it is to escape frustration.

Beth Israel Bowling

By SAUL HODOSH

Before entering upon the opening of the second half of the league season I must atone for the column I missed last week. Max Sussman's Army team took the first half flag. Conn., took second place and Harvard and Penn tied for the third spot.

Milton Levitt also closed the season in a blaze of glory as he hit the season's high single with 151.

The second half of the season really opened with fireworks as the team high single was broken by Army with 646 and Dartmouth took team high three with a score of 1841.

Jerry Dressler joined the parade as he took over individual high three with a sparkling 375 and also was high single for the night with 130. Max Sussman turned in a good three string total of 332 as did Sam Segal at 325.

Good single strings were chalked up by Sussman—128 and Shapiro—121 as the boys seem to be sharpening up for the inter-league competition.

Mrs. Potemkin Replies

Dear Editor:

I would like to inform Mr. Isaiah Segal that if his definition of a Koy-Jew is correct, I do not belong to that group. I never took part in a Christmas play, I have never had a Christmas tree or any Yuletide ornaments in my home, and I do not attend any religious services on either Rosh Hashanah or Yom Kippur, or any Jewish holiday.

Though I do believe that there is a God, I am not superstitious enough to believe that He is going to forgive me for my sins if I pray to Him on special days, or at any special place. To quote Confucius: "If a man conducts himself in a proper manner, is honest and sincere, and earns the respect of his fellow man, he will never be in despair, and will not need to pray for forgiveness and guidance."

I would also like to bring this to Mr. Segal's attention, that I too am familiar with the Jewish traditions, education, moral and social, having been brought up in such environment, but when I learned to think for myself, I failed to see where upholding man-made-religious laws is going to make me a better person in the eyes of God, or get me into a Heaven of which there is no proof of its existence.

I do not consider my birth as a Jew an accident, Mr. Segal. On the contrary, I am very proud of my race and heritage. If I weren't, I could easily deny it at any time. To put me in a class with the Rankins and the Thomases and the rest of the Anti-Semites, is very unfair of Mr. Segal, and I would suggest to him that he make an effort to know a person well before he misjudges him. I fail to see where any one with any intelligence can put me in such class because I am opposed to religious training in schools, and because I feel that segregation is wrong.

I feel that Mr. Segal should at least give me credit for being honest for saying openly what I am sure most people feel, but are afraid to say for fear of being criticized.

Olympic Bowling

By SIDNEY GREEN

Some of the boys have been complaining that two or three teams are much stronger than all the rest, but to give you an idea of how evenly matched all are, I'll report individual averages as we go along each week . . . The Levines' team average of 100 is maintained by Malatt—104, Hochman—103, H. Levine—103, Wallick—101, Green—90 . . . Gordons' five have a team mark of 101, compiled by Frank—105, Gordon—103, B. Cohen—102, M. Satloff—100, Sax—97 . . . these teams finished one-two during the first half.

High single and high three marks for the night were rolled by H. Cohen ("H" stands for "How many pins do we need") with 132 and 356, respectively, while the Rodyns took high team single with 549 and the Levines were tops with a total pinfall of 1524.

Heckling has been a constant source of comment, to put it mildly, and last week Heshie Golden almost used a bowling ball for knocking down people instead of pins when he tangled with yours truly over the finer points of same, Ruby Pollack threatened to separate the newly formed Halmar partnership, and Harold Teitelman indicated that he "wants to be alone" when he bowls.

Olympic Bowling

- Auxiliary -

By TEDI GREEN

The Steingolds rolled into first place on the strength of some very fine bowling by Captain Ann, who took high single (119), and high three (300) honors for the night. Backed up by H. Leherer's 96 and L. Boren's 89, they also had the best high team single with a 453 mark.

The Levine keglers had to come from behind to take three points from Zawatsky and Co. The Zawatsky's didn't go down without a show of stiff competition, however, especially from E. Cohen, who had a total pinfall of 266.

Individual averages are improving, topped by the Big Three—Steingold 92, Levine 89, and E. Cohen 88, and I'd like to make special mention of Leona Kahn, Eleanor Jacobson was the star of the last session, rolling 106 for a handy first string win, and 103 in the finale ... El certainly was in rare shape.

Lil Tarsky won her pool in the first string with a respectable 93. Eve Tanenbaum, who was guesting, with 88, and Doris Levin, 87, took the second. The writer fought tooth and nail with Eve and ended with 87—but then, it's still in the family ... Lil teamed up with El again in the third string, her 89 giving her a pair of wins for the night.

Hadassah, Council to Hold Joint Meeting

Richard S. Zeisler, noted writer, lecturer and businessman, will be the guest speaker at the annual joint meeting of the Prov. Section National Council of Jewish Women and the Providence Chapter of Senior Hadassah, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Mr. Zeisler, born in Chicago, was educated at Amherst College and the Graduate School of Harvard University. On a trip to Palestine in 1947-48, he was allowed, because of his press accreditation from the Jewish authorities, to travel freely about the country. He attended all the UNSCOP's sessions in Palestine; he watched the British forcibly deport Jewish immigrants at Haifa; he joined in the celebration of the November, 1947, partition resolution in Jerusalem; and he saw the bloodshed and violence in the wake of the Arab attempt to wreck the nascent Jewish state.

The program has been arranged by Mrs. Howard Presel, program chairman of the Council, and Mrs. Charles Reitman, program chairman of Hadassah. Mrs. Isaac Gerber, political affairs chairman of Hadassah, will present Mr. Zeisler.

UNION LEAGUE GIFTS

Donations were made by the Ladies Union League for Consumptives to the Jewish Tuberculosis Sanatorium in Rutland, Me., $105, and the Tiberius Israel, $50. The League also voted to become life members of Brandeis University by giving $100 to the university library.

Some forty Providence boys and girls participated in the inspection and were surprised to see such modern and plentiful equipment as: a television set, game rooms, a swimming pool, a large gym and several smaller ones, club rooms, dance floors, a canteen, etc. These things were especially surprising because of the small population of Brockton—the general consensus of opinion seems to be—shame on you Providence!!

Young Judaea

The Emma Lazarus Club led by Miss Toby Kaufman and Miss Joyce Granoff, have regular meetings at Temple Beth-Israel. Their extra-curricular activities include bowling every Saturday afternoon at the Casino Bowling Alleys.

Young Judaea

The Szoldettes Club led by Miss Claire Gorden will collect toys which will be sent to Israel in time for Purim. Their Officers are as follows: Ruth Ann Resh, president; Joyce Schretter, secretary and Marilyn Kirshenbaum, treasurer.

Al Schacht, former major league pitcher and scout, now known as the Clown Prince of Baseball, will be the featured entertainer at the annual Father and Son Sport Night sponsored by Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai B'rith, on Monday evening, February 21 at Plantations Auditorium.

Gov. John O. Pastore and Mayor Dennis J. Roberts already have accepted invitations to attend the affair as guests of the Lodge. Warren Walden, WEAN sportscaster, will be master of ceremonies, and several other sports personalities will appear on the program.

Not the least exciting part of Sport Night will be the awarding of gifts and door prizes to the boys who attend. More than 50 major gifts already are in the possession of the committee planning the affair, and it is estimated that this number may grow to 75 by the night of the event.

Included among the gifts will be two rubber life rafts, the kind which made such a hit last year; 10 to 15 radios, sports equipment of all kinds, pen and pencil sets, knife and chain sets, sport shirts, gold cuff link sets and gold expansion bracelets.

Al Schacht will be introduced

Emanuel Bowling

By JACK PLATKIN

A wild and hectic bowling night, that's what I would call it. The boys were all scooping the standing sheet after the games, and here and there everyone had a word that their team is now in the running. The most promising of all the teams appears to be the Cubs, and its captain, Ben Zachs, is responsible for pulling his team from eighth place in December to its present third spot, and only five points behind the pace setting Dwares.

The first seven teams are separated by only six points, and everyone looks for exciting nights from now on. Murray Friedman's Yankees occupy the 2nd place in the race, and here again we have a fellow by the name of Morris Filler who contributed a neat 141 string and 365 for three.

Leo Nussenfeld also had a good single string of 146, along with Ross 124, Woller 134, Irv Chase 129, and Nate Weiss 121. Good three strings were a-plenty. Filler 365, Nussenfeld 326, Ettine 325, Broadman 324, Blackman 337, Leo Miller 332, Art Weiss 329, and Paynor 324.
