Caravan of Hope to be Here Tuesday

This series of articles is prepared and written by the General Jewish Committee of Providence. The series is designed to acquaint the public with the inner workings of the GJC, hitherto unpublished, and to describe how that agency operates from the preparation of its annual fund-raising campaign to the ultimate disbursement of funds.

Probably one of the least known of the many-faceted activities of the General Jewish Committee of Providence is the work performed by its Allocations Committee.

The dramatic impact of an Initial Gifts meeting, the tense excitement of an "M-Day" Rally, the activity of an "S.O.S." drive—all these ebullient qualities are lacking, at least in public reflection, from the comparatively "de-glamorized" work of determining how much, and to whom, the allocations of the GJC shall be granted.

Last week, it was pointed out that a fairly common misconception of the GJC's work was that it conducted its annual fund-raising drive for the almost exclusive benefit of the United Jewish Appeal and that nation-wide agency's three beneficiary subdivisions: The United Palestine Appeal, the Joint Distribution Committee, and the United Service for New Americans.

One Gift for 100 Causes
Actually, the GJC services 64 different agencies—representing more than 100 important charitable causes on overseas, national and local levels. In 1947, for example, 61 other laudable agencies shared in the charitable donations of the Jewish people of Providence.

Sums ranging from $100 to $24,000 were approved by the Allocations Committee. More than a score of the beneficiary agencies were given grants in excess of $2500. The allocations to HIAS, Histadrut and the Youth Aliyah Project of Hadassah alone totaled more than $67,000 that year.

If it were not for the GJC's financial assistance to groups like these three, they would be obliged to resort to separate fund-raising campaigns of their own. By making his one contribution to the GJC's annual campaign, the donor today is relieved, for the most part, of making a number of smaller, independent gifts.

The GJC's Allocations Committee consists of 18 members appointed by the president each year with the approval of the Board of Directors. A conscientious effort is made to give representation on the committee to every strata of the local Jewish community.

Community Cross-Section

In substantiation, the observer merely has to read the roster of the present committee. It contains the names of Dr. Ilie Berger, Alter Boyman, Benjamin Brier, Irving I. Fain, Abe C. Fine, Bernard Goodman, Max Kestenman, Albert Pilavin, Henry Hassenfeld, Sydney A. Kane, Arthur J. Levy, Joseph W. Ress, Charles Rothman, Milton C. Sapinsley, Irwin N. Sil-

Center Membership Drive Sunday

An intensive one-day campaign for new members will be conducted this Sunday by the Jewish Community Center, with 400 workers planning to cover the entire community and acquaint the public with the work, program and needs of the Center.

The "C-Day campaign" has as its slogan "Every Family a Member." Some 4000 prospects are expected to be covered. The drive will open with a breakfast at 9 o'clock Sunday morning at the Narragansett Hotel. Workers will then be briefed and dispatched in pairs to call on their prospects.

Center officials pointed out that the institution provides a varied program of activities for all age levels and interests, with particular emphasis on service to children and youth. It operates one of the most modern of day camps in the country, neighborhood extension activities and after-school programs for children.

Train Open to Public; Huge Rally At School of Design in Evening

MAX LERNER
Rally Speaker

The "Caravan of Hope"—humanity's tribute to a courageous Israel—will entrain into Providence early next Tuesday morning to touch off a jam-packed day of spectacular activity dramatizing the United Jewish Appeal's 1949 $250,000,000 campaign for relief, rehabilitation and refugee services.

The caravan, in the form of an oversized Pullman car, painted in the blue and white colors of Israel and bearing the slogan and insignia of the UJA, will pull into Providence's Union Station during the small hours of Tuesday morning.

Haganah Heroes

On board will be a delegation of Haganah war heroes, Israeli dignitaries, key UJA leaders, prominent personalities who have recently visited Israel, and a public display of trophies, documents and photographs illustrating the war just won in the Holy Land.

A huge mass rally in the evening at the R. I. School of Design Auditorium will climax the day's activities. Featuring Max Lerner, noted author and radio commentator, as guest speaker, the rally audience also will witness the appearance of the "Caravan of Hope" dignitaries—as well as music entertainment and a special display of trophies and photographs.

A color guard, provided by local posts of the Jewish War Veterans, will escort the Israeli war heroes into the Auditorium at the beginning of the evening program, scheduled to begin promptly at 8 P. M.

Local Broadcast

The seven trains will make a simultaneous departure from key cities on Sunday, April 3. Coincident with their departure, a national broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System network will be presented by the UJA on Sunday, April 3, from 9 to 9:30 P. M. Stage and screen stars John Garfield and Lilli Palmer will play the featured roles. The broadcast, entitled "Home-coming 1949," will tell the story of a young refugee couple on the homeward trek from Europe to Israel.

In Providence, the broadcast will be heard over the facilities of WEAN. A local GJC Leader will appear on the program to outline Tuesday's activities concerning the "Caravan of Hope" (visitation.)

Providence, because of GJC's record in recent drives, will be among the earliest of major communities to be visited on the caravan's nation-wide itineraries.

Program Announced

Archibald Silverman, GJC president, this week announced the schedule of activities planned for Tuesday's visitation. At 10 A. M., a delegation of city and state officials will visit the train at Union Station. The delegation will

A Setback for Democracy

Defeat by the Southern Democratic-Republican axis of the attempt to break the filibuster in order to amend the Eenate rules will anger the majority of Americans at home and delight our enemies abroad.

The task of passing civil rights legislation to which all major parties were deeply committed has now become difficult almost to the point of impossibility. The rest of the world has been given damaging and incontrovertible proof of the gap between our professions and practices. The politicians persist in fettering the processes and practices of democracy. They obstinately bar the way to the attainment of the goal of full democratic living for all Americans.

Responsibility for the defeat must be widely shared. Many will question the political wisdom of the President in absenting himself from Washington when a battle so crucial to his entire program was being waged. The Southern Democrats in the Senate, of course, have long made it clear by their actions that the political system they most deeply fear is democracy itself. Senator Vandenberg, who swung the balance against Vice-President Barkley's ruling, played an ignominious role in the proceedings. His sanctimonious phrases about the integrity of Senate procedure will convince few persons that he was doing anything else but bartering democratic principle for political expediency. Those Republicans who voted with the Southern Democrats, despite their election pledges about civil liberties, have equally demonstrated that partisan advantage, however dubious, continues to have priority in their scale of political values, over the civil rights and welfare of millions of Americans.

Despite this setback, the struggle to protect and assure the civil rights of all Americans and to extend the practice of democracy even to the Senate of the United States will continue.

These men know the background of the groups who come before them asking for financial assistance. They are among the nucleus of leaders who have given most generously of their time, resources and talents for worthy community projects in greater Providence.

Meetings Now Underway

Already, the first in a series of meetings devoted to hearing representatives of various beneficiary agencies has been held. Subsequent meetings will be held shortly.

In preparation for these meetings, Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, assisted by Gertude B. Tarnapol, has compiled a detailed budget workbook which contains background information, program data and budget material concerning each of the 61 applicants.

This material is prepared from objective data supplied by the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, the GJC's own communications with the various 61 organizations, and its own knowledge of their work.

Hearing Requests Honored

Any organization requesting a hearing is automatically granted one. After all agencies have been heard and their needs scrupulously analyzed, the Allocations Committee gives careful thought to each agency as it is related to the total amount of money available for distribution.

Applications of new agencies, not previously admitted, are referred to the Allocations Committee after approval by the Board of Directors. It is to the latter group that the committee, after finishing its work, presents its recommendations for final approval.

"One Man's Opinion"

Types of Hebrew Day Schools

By BERNARD SEGAL

The survey recently published by the National Council for Jewish Education, reveals that there are one hundred and twenty All-Day schools in this country today. The number of pupils enrolled in these schools is over 18,000. Sixty-six of the All-Day schools, with an enrollment of some 12,000 pupils, are located in New York City. The other schools, with an enrollment of about six thousand students are distributed over seventeen states, and are located in forty-two cities.

The report of the National Council calls attention to the fact that the number of schools and of students have increased four-fold within the last ten years, and that this relatively new development in Jewish education is to be considered of the utmost significance for the future of the Jewish community in America.

The most outstanding feature of the All-Day school is that the Jewish portion of the curriculum is a part of the day-in day-out class room work of the pupil, and not an added load for the after-school hours or on the days of rest. No longer is Jewish education administered, like a bitter medicine, by the teaspoonful once or twice a week, an hour or two on a Sunday, but is given in full measure, every day, all day, side by side with the general public-school subjects.

No Central Authority

This new approach is the one characteristic common to every All-Day or Complete Jewish school. But here the similarity ends. One can not speak of the Jewish schools in the same sense as one speaks of the Catholic Parochial schools.

The reason is quite obvious. We have no central authority which decides and regulates on such matters in the field of education.

Thus the Jewish day schools follow the standards and requirements set up by the City and State Boards of education in teaching the general subjects in the elementary and the High-School classes. But they have no such standards with respect to the Jewish subjects. We have not as yet, and by all indications never will agree on a definition of Jewish education. No two groups agree on what is to be included under this general term Jewish education.

Hence we have as many definitions as there are philosophies of Jewish education in the community. The content of the Jewish program in each school is determined by the group sponsoring and directing the particular school.

Hence a colorful array of All-Day schools of many types and shades, ranging from extreme orthodox Yeshivahs to Progressive Academies, each modeled in the image of the founders, or the sponsors.

Orthodox Most Prominent

The most prominent group in the Jewish community active in the establishing of the All-Day schools are the Orthodox Jews.

This would be expected, since the Orthodox Jews, more than any one else, are gravely concerned about the study of Torah and the observance of its precepts. We find, therefore, the oldest and the largest number of Complete schools and Yeshivos under the sponsorship of the Orthodox groups.

But even within the Orthodox group there is a sharp division as to the meaning and the content of Jewish education. As a result we have several types of Complete schools under the Orthodox direction. Without going into too great details, we will mention four main types of Orthodox sponsored schools.

Beth Jacob, (House of Jacob) schools for girls. The system includes schools on the Kindergarten, Elementary, and High-School levels. This group also maintains a teacher's Seminar for girls. One of our Providence girls, Miss Miriam Werner, daughter of Rabbi Joshua Werner, is a recent graduate of a Beth Jacob school in New York, and expects to continue at the teachers seminary in Brooklyn.

Mizrachi First

The Mizrachi (Orthodox-Zionists Organization) were the first in the field of All-Day school activities in this country. They direct a large net of Complete schools on all levels, with the famous Yeshivah University as the crown of glory.

Tomchei Temimim (The Lubavitcher), a zealous group establishing Day-schools and Yeshivahs all over the country. These schools sponsored by the followers of the Rabbi of Lubavitch, stress the strictest observances in traditional Hasidic dress and manners. We here, in Providence, had a glimpse at the ways of the Lubavitcher during their short-lived attempt to establish one of their schools in our city. It is an uncompromising way of life, and only people with the missionary zeal of the Hasidim can brave all the obstacles in their way.

Torah Umesorah, (The Law and Tradition), is a national organization very active in founding and staffing All-Day schools. Though Orthodox in religious philosophy, this group endeavors to make adjustments to the realities of the American scene. The Torah Umesorah type of school is of particular interest to us, since the Hebrew Day school of Providence is affiliated with this net of educational institutions. We shall return to the program and the aims of this school system when we discuss at length the work of the Providence Hebrew Day School.

Other Groups Active

Now the other groups in the Jewish community have not entirely retreated from the field. The Conservatives, the Liberals, and the Nationalist groups all have founded Complete schools to reflect their philosophies of Jewish education.

There are the Progressive private schools sponsored by the well-to-do Jews of Brooklyn, Long Island, and Westchester County. The standard of these schools is very high, and compares favorably with the best among the private schools in the country.

The pupils are drawn from the homes of Conservative and Reform Jews, and the Jewish content in the school program is colored by the ways of living of these groups.

The Zionist-National groups have several excellent schools in New York and elsewhere. The emphasis in these is not on religious observances, but rather on a mastery of Hebrew and Yiddish language and literature, and a grasp on Jewish problems and ideals of the past and the present day.

The list is by no means exhausted. It is sufficient, though, to indicate the trends and the complexity of the problems confronting those who would devote themselves to this new field of activity in the Jewish community.

Historic Ramblings

By JOHN A. SOLOMON
CHAPTER IV

The members of the old Congregation Sons of Zion soon became dissatisfied with the environs of their "Synagogue" on the banks of the "Blue Danube" and desired something better, so they moved their effects to a larger and more desirable room located on Canal Street. This rental was $20 per month, and there were complaints it was an extravagance, that with other mounting expenses it would spell ruin for the lean treasury.

This room had illuminating gas, which was considered the last word in lighting. A larger and better Oren Kodesh was constructed at an expense of $25. A "be-mah" or reading table was set up. Some used benches were purchased, and additional Seferim were bought in New York. The members' wives added a feminine touch and tidied things up. They say the place looked quite inviting.

The Anvil Chorus

This location was above a blacksmith shop. Those were the horse and buggy days when everybody wanted his horse shod for Sunday driving. The smith, a mighty man was he, pounded lustily and continuously, but on the Sabbath his "anvil chorus" was not greatly relished, and during the reading of the Torah the "shammos" requested the smithy to use the soft pedal. 'Tis said the smithy was an understanding man.

After some time at this location the congregation moved again, to a larger, better and quieter room, also on Canal Street. More and better furniture was added and other improvements were made for bettering the religious services.

Time brought on the need for a burial ground, and in 1876 a Chevre Kaddishe, or burial society, was formed, and in 1878 a small parcel of land was purchased from the Moshassuck Cemetery Corporation in Pawtucket, where the remains of some of Providence's early Jewish settlers now lie.

In 1876 a Mikveh, or ritual bath of religious purification, was set up on Clayton Street. In 1882 the first orthodox daily religious services were consecrated and have been continued unbroken down to the present time.

The First Rabbis

Eleazer Lipshitz came here in 1883 and served as the first Shochet and Chazan. Rabbi Nisan Robinovits was the first Rabbi, and served from 1887 to 1899. After his passing he was succeeded by Rabbi David Bachrach and later by the scholarly Rabbi Israel Rubenstein of blessed memory.

By this time the Jewish population had grown considerably and the congregation was on the increase. There was a constant influx of new immigrants and many new shops sprang up along North Main and Charles Streets and Constitution Hill.

Growing pains were now beginning to be felt. Many members were becoming dissatisfied roving from one location to another, and the chief topic in homes and stores was the building of a permanent synagogue of their own. Mostly everybody was struggling to eke out a living, though, and money was a very scarce commodity. It was with considerable difficulty that $1000 in cash was raised, and that was considered quite a bit of money.

Center Youth Plan "Open House" Week

The Youth Council of the Jewish Community Center has set aside the week of April 3 as "open house" for paid up Center members. The highlight event of the week will be a basketball game between the Center staff and a team composed of the Shashalets, a girls' club, and the Grenadiers, a boys' club.

Simeon Kinsley, executive director; Bernard Marks, director of activities; Miss Minna Dorn, extension activities director; Abe Lobel, athletic director, and Jack Pearl, will play for the staff. This game will precede the final play-off contest of the inter-mural basketball league.

The following activities are planned for the remainder of the week: Tuesday—Club 65; Wednesday—ping-pong exhibitions by Leo Stelberman, youth champion moving picture camera, an FM table model radio and a set of silverware, besides door prizes to be awarded each evening.

Admission is free. Proceeds of the affair will be used to remodel the vestry of the synagogue.

Daughterhood Bowling RUTH TANENBAUM

Eleanor Jacobson was the big gun for the Daisy Maes this week, winning the first string with 92 and the third with 91. Freida Stairman trailed El by two pins in the opener. Harriet Keller raced to an easy win in the middle canto, rolling 97.

The Hep Kats furnished all the excitement, with Dotty Graubart—natch—responsible for most of it. Dot edged Diane Chorney 95-94 in the opener, but that was nothing compared to the second string. Dotty, after a terrific start where-in every ball was good for a strike or a spare, dropped off and had to settle for 113.

As for the Pin-Downs, it looks like a matter of "wait till next year". Doris Levin took the first string with a mere 85, Betty Wexler the second with 88, while the Levin gal stuck to her 85, and it was Betty again in the last one with 82.

Beth Israel Bowling

By SAUL HODOSH

Harvard has discovered a new way to win games. They simply have Harold Shapiro shake hands with the opposing team and the jinx begins operating.

Meanwhile, a hot race is under way for top spot in the league as Aaron Bramson's Princetons grabbed off a share of first place when Gorman's Yale team dropped four big points.

Howie Nelson had a good night as he took high three with 356, topped by a nice single of 128. Jack Epstein and Hy Wasserman were also in the "groove" as they hit 336 and 332. Epstein had high single of 131 and we can't leave out "left-hender" Bender who managed a neat 122.

Emanuel Bowling

By JACK PLATKIN

Old age crept up in the standing last Monday night when the Athletics took 3 points from Ed Lavines' Indians, and that is an accomplishment with such big "Chief" Indians like Sherman Price, Jules Zucker, Al Kumins, and Yonkel Orchoff.

With just two weeks remaining the standing of the top teams looks like this:

	W	L
Dodgers	59	37
Cards	57	39
Athletics	53	43
White Sox	53	43
Cubs	51	46
Yankees	48	48
Red Sox	48	48
Giants	46	50
Browns	47	49
Tigers	46	50
Indians	45	51
Reds	41	53
Braves	40	56
Pirates	38	58

Good three string scores were, Price 347, Schoenberg, 347, Lou Chase 347, Sam Chase 352, Mike Miller 340, Blackman 325, Primack 326, Lang 320, and Goldstein 319.

Happy birthday to Bobby Greene and Billy Kagen.

Beth El Bowling

By JACK APPELBAUM

Just as this column predicted three months ago, the pennant race in our league, which concludes its official bowling April 7, is a tight one. Milt Weissman's team is still in the lead, one point ahead of Bert Marks' persistent fighters. Right below them are a half dozen closely bunched teams with Phil Shaulson's aggregation, "the sleeper", showing the way. Phil's team started a surge way back in the middle of the season after a slow start and, if there were more bowling nights, they'd be fighting for the lead.

April 7 will wind up the regular season. April 14 will be an open date since it falls on the night of the second "Seder". But don't forget the single and double Sweepstakes, which will take place on April 21, starting at EIGHT O'CLOCK instead of nine.

The annual banquet will be held the evening of May 18 at the Narragansett Hotel.

Olympic Bowling

By SIDNEY GREEN

The Rodyns continued on their way to the second half title by taking three points from the Schwartzes. The Cohens took four from the practically defunct Jacobson five, while the Levines scored a 3-1 win over the Avens, and the Gordons dropped three points to Lobel and Co. This leaves the Rodyns six points ahead of the Cohens and Levines, respectively, with but two weeks left.

HTS and HT3 honors were wrapped up by the Rodyns with scores of 529 and 1561, while Lefty Jarcho's 139 was tops for a single string and Len Chernack's total pinfall of 369 was best for the nite. Other good three string scores were rolled by Jarcho—356, I. Levine—351, H. Cohen—338, Malatt—327, Cofman—323, and S. Hochman—322, J. Hochman—319, and Lobel—315.

Headed by Capt. Reeve Karten, the 20 keglers with the lowest averages will team together for one night and bowl the 20 members of the Olympic Auxiliary League on Thursday, April 7, at the latter's home alleys.

Auxiliary Bowling

By TEDI GREEN

The banquet scheduled for March 24 was postponed for one week, due to, of all things, a mild case of the mumps. The gals are now eagerly awaiting their match with the "under 100" keglers of the Olympic Men's League which is planned for Thursday Night, April 7 at the Sunnyside Bowling Alleys on Benefit Street.

The Steingold quintet was officially crowned champs of the 1948-49 bowling league, and all members of this winning combination received pendants as their prize. All 21 members of the league received favors in the form of pins (the kind you wear), and June Stein received a special award for being the most consistent bowler—she maintained a steady 74 average for the season. Anne Steingold was the recipient of a trophy denoting high average—93, high single—128, and high three—307, while Estelle Cohen's average of 90 gave her the runner-up spot and a pair of bowling shoes.

include members of the GJC's Executive Committee, and other prominent personages.

At 11:30 A.M., the delegation—including the Israeli war heroes and other dignitaries traveling with the "Caravan"—will visit the State House to present Gov. John O. Pastore with an official scroll. At the same time, the Governor will issue an appropriate proclamation.

Local GJC officials and the train's delegation will dine at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at noon and then return to the train in time for the afternoon's public visitation which will begin at 2:30 o'clock and continue throughout the afternoon.

Open to Public

During that period, the train will be open to the general public and the press. Interviews will be held, radio programs transcribed and a special display of dramatic photographs from Israel and Europe will be open to the public. The Haganah war heroes, who will greet the public, are front-line veterans flown here direct from the gun emplacements of the Negev.

Tuesday evening's mass rally at the School of Design Auditorium is expected to draw a capacity audience. It will be open to the general community without admission or solicitation of funds.

In addition to the sparkling, streamlined program arranged by the local GJC, the appearance of Max Lerner, writer and champanion of minority rights and religious understanding, will undoubtedly attract a tremendous throng of admirers who remember his dynamic address here in behalf of the 1948 UJA drive.

Auditorium doors will open at 7:30 P.M.
